QUINCY NEST OWLS INSTITUTED SUNDAY

Officers Elected and Installed Ceremony Followed by Banquet

Alpha hall was the centre of Owldom last Sunday afternoon and evening. Many members of the Order of Owls assembled for the purpose of witnessing the institution of Quincy Nest of Owls. The work was in charge of General Frank Marsh Merrill deputy supreme president of the order. The initiatory work as exemplified by the Brockton degree team and officers, was impressive.

The Order of Owls is one of the youngest fraternities. It was started in South Bend, Ind., in November, 1904, and has had a phenomenal growth. It is organized in every state, and has 1,600 nests and an aggregate membership of 160,000. During the past three months an average of two nests a day has been organized.

General Frank Marsh Merrill, who is deputy supreme president of the order, and is in charge of all the organizing in this section of the country, made an address, and spoke in part as follows: "The beginning of this great order was a few fellows—good fellows—got together, had a talk. Then a few other fellows—good fellows—joined them. That was in South Bend. There was no attempt to build a society. This great modern fraternity was not made or organized. It happened—came about. It was the result of the attraction of fellows by other fellows, a force that has made many lodges and has members in all the states. Thats the Order of Owls. It's the outgrowth of the best, the result of the evolution of hearts. It has become a great society of men who love, laugh, and enjoy life as it flies, who help the sick, bury the dead, brighten dark moments, light up the gloomy places. Some are not saints. None are in potter's field, county shrouds, or poorhouses. They do good, speak kindly, shake hands warmly, and respect the honor of their women. They are the Order of Owls.

GEN. FRANK MARSH MERRILL.
Deputy Supreme President.

"The optimism that radiates from this order does good in the world. With the true Owl a grouch is unknown.

"We Owls believe that no one is hopelessly bad, but that we all have some redeeming trait. Find it out and use it as a basis to build a human edi-

OTTO SAARINEN BADLY BURNED

The firemen who have been kept on the jump for several days were given two more runs Sunday and one Saturday night that nearly resulted in a fatality. This was the alarm from Box 42 which sounded at 11.45 Saturday night. The fire proved to be in one of the rooms of the house of Karl Brockstrom at 38 Arthur street. The room was occupied by Otto Saarinen and was caused by the explosion of a lamp. In an instant the room was ablaze and Saarinen tried to extinguish the blaze with the bed clothing but the fire had started in several places and he was unable to make much headway. His hands and face were badly burned and he was nearly overcome with smoke when he was led from the room by two other boarders. In the meantime the alarm had been sounded and the firemen were soon present and had the fire out. The loss will not exceed $50.

Sunday noon an alarm was sounded from Box 143 at 1.25 oclock for a grass fire on Station street.

At 3.30 an alarm from Box 62 summoned the department to a fire on the roof of the house and barn at the corner of Atlantic street and the boulevard. The fire was caused by sparks from a passing locomotive alighting on the roof. A chemical stream from the Atlantic combination soon had the fire out. The loss will not exceed $5.

HOLY NAME PARADE.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's church will parade tonight previous to the opening of the grand bazaar at the hall in St. John's parochial school. Forming on Phipps street the society headed by the Finn band will march over the following route:—Water street to Brewer's corner, Granite, School and Hancock streets to the Adams Academy, countermarch to Hancock, Washington, Elm, School and Phipps street to the hall.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles H. Reviere was arraigned for a statuatory offense at Quincy and held in $2,000 bail until Tuesday.

Thomas F. Quinnlan was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

The case of Thomas C. McDonnell who was arrested for drunkenness and released on bail was called and he was defaulted.

Saveria Oylia was arraigned for assault at Braintree. Case continued until May 6.

GENTLEMEN ARE SPECIAL GUESTS

Annual affair of Young Women's club at Clubhouse

The last meeting of the Young Women's club for the season, was held in the Women's clubhouse Saturday evening. It was the annual gentlemen's night which is considered the big event of the year.

After a short business meeting, the entertainment was opened by a piano solo by Miss Mary Cahill. Following this a play entitled "On Account of the Lobster" was given with the following cast:

Albert Lanston, who has eaten the lobster, Alden H. Blanchard
Mrs. Grace Lanston, who demonstrates the effects of the lobster, Mabel E. Lovejoy
Serina, the maid, Esther Wetherell
Fiddler, driver for the department store, Harold Prout

At the conclusion of the play a violin solo, "Hearts and Flowers" was played by Miss Alice Barry with Miss Amy Fallon as accompanist.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing to music furnished by Miss Hannah Litchfield, and in consuming some excellent punch and ice cream and cake.

The social committee with Miss Mabel Lovejoy as chairman had charge of the entertainment and Miss Dorothy Fay was in charge of the refreshments. Miss Minnie Packard, who presided, completed her term of office with this meeting. The president for the coming year is Miss Marie Bass.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

At a meeting of the directors of the Quincy cooperative bank Saturday evening it was voted to declare a semi-annual dividend of 2 3-4 per cent. The rooms of the bank will be moved in a few days to the Adams building.

VISIT BIRTHPLACE.

A number of the students of the Quincy Mansion school accompanied by Miss C. Belle Kenney one of the faculty, paid a visit to the President John Adams house where they were received by Benjamin King the caretaker and shown about the rooms. They were very much interested in the many historical articles which the rooms contain. In the party were: Elizabeth Ellsworth, Bronxville, N. Y., Marion E. Day, Sioux City, Ia., Margaret Aline White, Westfield, N. J., Rozetta Johnson, Bronx, N. Y., Alice W. Bassett, Torrington, Ct., Evelynn M. Pullman, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Helene Hamilton, Boston.

—This week will be observed as "Merchants' week" in Malden, with music, illuminations and bargains galore. Everybody is urged to visit Malden during the week by special invitation of the Malden Board of Trade.

"WHAT THE CHURCH IS FOR

Lecture by William D. McCrackan, A. M. C. S. B.

The message of Christian Science is simple and straightforward and responds to a universal need. It is not easily treated as an academic theme, nor is it, strictly speaking a debatable question, because it provides the proofs of its own correctness, day by day and hour by hour, and these proof are final and convincing. Christian Science does more than preach or promise, it fulfills. While it arouses the noblest aspirations and expectations of mankind, it also justifies its teachings by definite results. Like the good Samaritan, it comes to those who have fallen among thieves, whom false concepts have robbed of health and happiness, whom material methods have passed by on the other side, and pours into their wounds the oil and wine of gladness and inspiration, takes them to the inn of shelter, and leaves with them the coin of priceless value which will insure their complete recovery and, in time, their complete salvation.

RELIGION OF PROGRESS

This is an age of practical achievement, and Christian Science is in thorough accord with the demands made for proofs. It lives and grows in favor with the needy of the earth by reason of its fruits. Christian Science makes no claim which it cannot substantiate and so, in this day of advance in every department of human activity, it is demonstrating its right to be known as the religion of progress.

Not that God, who constitutes the basis, foundation, and Principle of all true religion, ever changes or progresses; not that the teachings of Jesus the Christ, the Founder of Christianity, need to be revised or the Bible rewritten. We read in the Scriptures that with God there is neither variableness nor shadow of turning; we also believe that the precepts and warnings of Jesus can never become antiquated, and that the Bible of our fathers, the great treasure-house of Christendom, when spiritually interpreted by Christian Science suffices for our daily needs. The thread of gold which gleams throughout the fabric of the Bible will shine forth forever to be apprehended by the receptive thought everywhere.

So it is not a new Bible which Christian Science contemplates, but one and the same Bible, explained in a spiritually progressive manner. It is not a new God which it proclaims, but the only true God, our Father which is in heaven. It makes no attempt at an improved Christ, for there is but one Christ, who is in the bosom of the Father, perfect, eternal and indestructible. Christian Science is progressive, and marks an advance in religion because it throws the strong light of Science upon the nature and attributes of Deity, upon the teachings and works of the Christ, and because it picks out from the Bible's make-up the essential imperishable import of its spiritual message.

Christian Science calls upon mankind for a frank and fearless revision of its own beliefs about the unchanging God, His man and His universe. This age, which is not afraid to fly in the face of the sun on filmy wings, is asked to display the necessary courage to pass in review the things which pertain to its own salvation from false gods. Why should not right and just views concerning God and His universe be capable of more precise statement? Why should it be thought a thing unreasonable with any one that God can become better understood by the average man than has been the case in the past? Why should not the understanding of how to grow in grace, how to deepen and broaden one's spiritual concepts, progress according to law. And why should not this knowledge concerning the fountain-head of all knowledge, the Giver of all good gifts, the absolute eternal Principle of all Life, in whom we live, and move, and have our being,— why should not this

CITY COUNCIL BUSINESS.

There is considerable business of importance to come before the City Council at its meeting tonight. Among the business are a dozen or more orders that will come up for their second reading the most important of which is the order for the widening of Hancock street between Saville and Dimmock streets. The order appropriating $1,000 for the July Fourth celebration, and $2,150 for a screen house at Houghs Neck. Also the orders determining the value of benefit to estates by the laying out and accepting of a number of new streets, and orders granting the Telephone Co., attachments etc.

Three public hearings are also scheduled, namely the widening of Hancock street between Granite and School streets, the widening of School street at its junction with Franklin street, the widening of Garfield street and the restricting of Crescent street to pleasure vehicles.

☞H. L. Kincaide & Co., are to give a demonstration on Monday and Tuesday at their store of the new Perfection oil stove. Now that warm weather has arrived there is great demand for these stoves.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Most men feel competent to give a verdict in the McNamara dynamiting case after reading the poster headlines in the evening newspapers.

Our society people are mortgaging their houses to see King George crowned, while in England they will want one way fare rebated to take the bother of going up to "Lunnon."

Champ Clark has broken four gavels in keeping the House in order. Thats what comes from only hitting the desk instead of the heads of offending members.

We call the Italians black hearted for their Camorra murders at retail, but we have somewhere a dynamite gang that does the same business at wholesale.

If Gene Debs is going to be elected president next time, it might be well to wait until the witnesses are called in the dynamite cases before running off any more of that typewwriter ribbon dipped in vitriol.

POPULARIZING THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

A determined effort is being made by some of the Congressmen to make the Congressional Record a real newspaper. They have the idea that a periodical that purports to be a record should not be a work of fiction.

They think it should no longer look like any other old government report, those funeral black bound documents that scare away readers by a forbidding impenetrability. Rather they would like to have it a real story of actual debates.

Almost any visitor to Washington feels he is repaid by spending considerable time in Congress. But few people feel that they are repaid for time over reports padded with dead wood, which are circulated as a supposed record of these discussions and doings.

When Congress lets a member print in the Record a speech that it is not willing to spend time to hear, it is hardly likely that the public will spend time in perusing it. And worst of all the limitless freedom given members to print long extracts from favorite books scares away the public, which does not want to have its reading selected by the political fads of Congressmen.

The real debates in Congress are full of human interest. They ring with the clash of personal, political, sectional forces. They are a thrilling and often dramatic epitome of the progress of political thought. To get people interested in them, it is merely necessary to have it a real and not a fake report.

The more people read about Congressional doings, the more intelligent verdict we get on public matters. The improvement of the Record consequently is a question where the public interest is sharply offset against the vanity of members, and against their desire to get long illustrations of their oratory in the hands of the voters under a government frank.

THE MOTHERS' CONGRESS.

The National Congress of Mothers, which met at Washington, April 26, was something of a contrast with the Daughters of the American Revolution Congress of the preceding week.

Instead of the surging excitement of emotional campaigns for office, the Mothers hustled the red tape of elections and business under the table as quickly as was decent. Then they hastened to consider subjects like playgrounds, vacation schools, raising the age of consent, equal rights for mother in guardianship of children. Possibly the mothers feel so up against the growing lawlessness of the American child, that they think they must present a united front against the leagued forces of infancy.

Instead of the mother training the children, it sometimes seems as if the children were training the mothers. The youngsters feel that if the parent is taught to wait on herself, she quits bothering you when you want to get out and play ball with the boys.

Also there is a wide spread conviction among the leading spirits of juvenility, that foot ball is a far better exercise than chopping kindling wood and not half as dangerous. Under proper tutelage, the average mother can be brought to see that it is easier to do a thing herself than to see that the youngsters do the job as she want it.

The Mothers' Congress is sometimes taunted with the gibe that it is composed of women who get together merely to talk about motherhood, while the real mothers are practising its functions in the seclusion of their homes.

But while occasionally there is a mother whose energy runs into talk instead of work, mother love becomes more effective if organized and working for just laws and intelligent home administration.

When one reads that 333 out of 1000 children in Ghent, Belgium, die in infancy owing the the long hours their mothers spend in the mills, and when one learns that conditions in many American communities are little better, it is time for the mothers to protest and organize to avert this massacre of innocents.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The advice of the Vermont state board of health to have a "clean-up" day in order to remove much of the accumulations of the winter, is worth taking by each individual. The community authorities will see to cleaning the streets and sidewalks, or at least they ought to see to that part of the spring cleaning process, which leaves the attention to private property to the owners themselves. The winter accumulations make an unsightly appearance and give the impression of slothfulness, besides proving unhealthful to the persons located in the immediate vicinity. Some of the more enterprising villages in Vermont have an annual "clean-up" day each spring when the residents, men, women and children, fall to the task with rake, shovel and other implements and remove the debris ere the sun goes down. The plan is heartily recommended to other communities which have not tried the scheme and who do not realize the feeling of self-respect which the results bring. In any event the annual spring cleaning will do good rather than harm, and the timely warning of the state board of health ought to be heeded by each community and each resident of a community.—Barre Times.

Owners and drivers of motor cars should take note of the decision of the supreme court of Minnesota, that the sudden starting up of an automobile that had been standing by the roadway, without giving notice to the approaching driver of a horse, justifies a legal consideration of the question of negligence. Defendant in the suit was on his knees looking at his automobile when a young lady approached, drawn in a carriage by a gentle horse. The scene was a quiet country road. When the horse arrived opposite the machine, without warning the automobilist cranked the car and started, frightening the horse, with the result that the young woman was thrown out into a ditch and seriously injured.

The lower court dismissed the action on the ground that the evidence showed no negligence on the defendant's part. The supreme court, however, rules that while the mere fact of starting was not evidence of negligence, the question of whether or not failure to warn the plaintiff of his intention to start constituted negligence was a fit one to submit to a jury. The lower court was found in error in not submitting it to the jury and a new trial was granted.

Whether it is finally decided that a man has a legal right to start off his car with a nerve-wracking noise, suddenly, in the face of a country-bred horse, the average decent-minded citizen will remain under the conviction that thoughtful and considerate automobilists will hestitate to inflict the possible consequences of such procedure upon innocent people.—New Bedford Standard.

—Talk about the high cost of living. A Southern newspaper reports that the people of the United States spend $78,000,000 a year for candy, several millions for chewing gum, and, more incredible than all, $320,000,000 for soda water. The amount expended for candy has been heretofore placed far higher than that, by a concern advertising the securities of an automobile manufacturing combine, therefore, it would appear that when the people really come to want, it will only be after they have given up the millions spent for entirely unnecessary articles of consumption.—Banker and Tradesman.

NEW YORK EASTER FASHIONS.

Short coats, straight skirts with long loose panels at the back, high-lifted waist lines and abbreviated sleeves, most of them cut in one with the rest of the garment, are some of the striking details of this season's styles. Skirts are somewhat wider but still straight and clinging in effect, with few pleated models in the smartest showings. The circular or gored skirt, plain all round or with inverted plaits front and back is the leader for suits.

FOR FUSSY DRESSES.

For fussy dresses made of thin silks, voiles, or chiffons skirts fulled into the waist are often seen, but even these measure not over three yards at the foot and fall into much narrower lines over the skimpy drop skirt. Some of the French dresses show a ruching of the dress material or of net bound with the material at the hem of the skirts, and hems of silk, satin, cloth or braids in matching or in contrasting colors are very much used. Especially on the dresses of white cotton voile that promise to be a veritable craze this year, are their colored hems of voile to match the tones employed, in the beaded or embroidered patterns that, with lace, trim such gowns attractively.

THE CLEVER NEEDLE WOMAN.

The clever needlewoman scores this year if ever, for a little time spent in embroidery a blouse or dress pattern turns an inexpensive investment in material into styles that bring very high prices when bought ready made. French knots done in beaded patterns in heavy embroidery silks make modish garnitures quickly accomplished. The couching of heavy threads in the brilliant corals or or blues particularly effective on white or very light grounds, is another fashionable form of embroidery that is easy to do and goes quickly.

CORD GIRDLES.

Cord girdles continue their vogue and beaded styles and those with contrasting colors or tinsel in their weave add much to the style of many toilets. Mercerized cords are used in the same way with linens, voils and other wash fabrics.

NEW FOOTWEAR.

Spats and colored uppers, or shoes that give a spat effect are very much worn by the fashionable. Hosiery matches usually, and patent leather foxings are popular. With black tailored suits of satin or serge, white spats, gloves and hat or hat trimmings are smartly worn here. Black ties with red hose, red hat and other touches of the color are also somewhat seen, but are rather garish.

MATCHING SETS.

Sets of matching scarf, toque and parasol are replacing the fur match ups of the winter, and are similarly

ONE SIDED EFFECTS.

One sided effects prevail not only in elaborate toilets but in simple practical morning dresses and suites. They are not only novel but almost universally becoming, since the woman with Maude's type of face "Icily regular" is the only one who looks her best in set styles, and she is the exception. .

Wherever colors emerge into the open from their numerous veilings they are decidedly noisy. Only their Oriental combinations saves them from being unpleasantly insistent. Fortunately veilings show no sign of abatement and gowns built of many materials are the rule.

Lucy Carter.

Ostriches and Their Eggs.

A singular thing about ostriches is the way they bring up their babies. To begin with, there are a good many eggs in the nest (dug out of the hot sand), but the eggs were laid by different mothers. Ostriches do not lay eggs every day, and, being far apart, they would not hatch together. When the nest is prepared, therefore, all the ladies in the neighborhood are invited to contribute an egg apiece, the hostess returning the favor in due time.

Ostrich eggs are delicious. One weighs three pounds, or is equal to a dozen of a hen's. They are very convenient, too, for the hunters in the desert. They not only furnish a delightful meal, but a dish to cook in. The shell is hard and thick, and the egg is set on the fire, a hole is broken in the top, it is stirred with a stick, and when it is done the saucepan serves as a dish as well.—New York Tribune.

At the right is the original Mother Church edifice, erected in 1894. In the center is the extension, begun in 1904 and dedicated in June, 1906. At the left is the publishing house of the Christian Science Publishing Society, containing the offices and mechanical plant for issuing the numerous publications of the society as well as the offices of the publisher of Mary Baker Eddy's writings. This structure was erected in 1907, and a year later was enlarged to accommodate The Christian Science Monitor, a daily newspaper started Nov. 25, 1908. The park in the foreground was developed from unkempt land last fall upon the plans of a prominent landscape architect. Two spacious walks, lined with evergreens and crossing extensive lawns, lead to Huntington avenue, from which thoroughfare the accompanying view was taken. The Christian Science group of buildings is in the heart of the new educational and artistic center of Boston. In the neighborhood are Horticultural and Symphony halls, the New England Conservatory of Music, the Boston opera house and the new Museum of Fine Arts.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

knowledge constitute demonstrable Science?

Christian Scientists believe that it does; that Jesus pointed out the only true, final and real knowledge when he said, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

THE DISCOVERER

It will hardly be necessary here to insist upon the fact that religion should save the sinner. Whatever may be the doctrines which divide the various branches of Christendom, all are agreed at least upon this point, that it is the natural work of religion, the business of Christianity to save the sinner. But there is no such agreement regarding the sick. Jesus healed the sick, his disciples healed the sick, the early Christians and Apostles for some 300 years after the crucifixion healed the sick, by spiritual means; but during the intervening centuries the world has more and more relegated the healing of the sick to a special profession, using material means.

Since Mrs. Eddy's discovery of Christian Science the healing of Jesus' time has been reinstated, in accordance wtih his unmistakable injunction to his followers, and today hundreds of thousands of men, women and children in all portions of the globe rise to bless the good and brave woman to whom they owe health and happiness.

It is difficult to speak in moderate praise of one who is performing so stupendous a service for mankind. One can only rejoice that a great and growing volume of gratitude is finding its way to her from those who, through her teachings, have been delivered from pain and sorrow, from the fear of torment and the despair of godlessness. Special circumstances seem to have fitted Mrs. Eddy from her youth for the mission of mercy to which God called her. Born of New England parentage, in the state of New Hampshire, she grew up in an atmosphere of wholesome freedom and received an exceptionally comprehensive education, both secular and religious. As a woman of progressive and advanced ideas, she investigated fearlessly the questions which came before the public. Especially was she interested in the healing art, and her quick recovery from the result of an accident, through the revelation of the spiritual meaning of the Bible, led to her discovery of Christian Science in 1866.

In 1875 followed the publication of her epoch-making work, the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," now widely distributed among the civilized portions of the earth. This book is proving itself to be a potent factor in the elevation of the human race, and is literally making history by remodeling the lives and careers of multitudes. Mrs. Eddy has been the active Leader of the Christian Science movement from its inception, and her writings continue to mold its growth and development along the lines of the greatest usefulness to mankind. The reward of the good and faithful servant is hers, and this is a source of gratification to every fair-minded person.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Pleasant day Brings out Large Audiences

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

The pastor took the text for his Sunday morning sermon from Matt. 27:36: "And sitting down they watched him there."

"The Watchers at the Cross" was the topic of the sermon.

Among these watchers were the Roman soldiers represented the indifferent and the mockers of the past and present age.

The Chief Priests, Pharisees and Scribes represented a kind of religion of the past and present.

The friends of Jesus; the woman last at the cross, first at the tomb and other true friends.

The meeting of the Sabbath school at 11.45 was well attended.

"The Bible," he said," is our directory and statute book in the sphere of religion destined to continue through all ages."

The audience at this service was good and the music was especially fine. Mr. Houston of Malden sang two solos which were well rendered and captivated the audience, "In paths of peace" and "His eye is on the sparrow."

The monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held Wednesday evening at 6 P. M.

The session will meet on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

There will be be a meeting of the Men's league on Friday evening at 7.30 for general business.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

The services of Sunday were conducted by two of the deacons. In the morning Fritz Swanson took charge of the meeting and delivered the address and in the evening Mr. Von Colin was in charge.

The Dorcas society will meet on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Andrew J. Carlson, 142 Granite street.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

Three pastors from other churches assisted Rev. G. H. Palmgren in conducting the church services on Sunday.

At the Sunday school service at 9.30 brief addresses were given by Rev. C. O. Lawson of Norwood and Rev. G. E. Wiman of Waltham. Both men preached eloquent sermons at the morning service also.

The audience was large and a fine anthem by the male choir added to the effectiveness of the service.

In the afternoon Rev. Joel Fridfelt of Orange conducted the service. Rev. G. E. Wiman also preached a short sermon. Rev. Joel Fridfelt sang a splendid solo in connection with the services.

In the evening all three ministers, Rev. C. O. Lawson, Rev. G. E. Wiman and Rev. Joel Fridfelt preached short sermons of an evangelistic nature. At the close of the last sermon Rev. Joel Fridfelt made the appeal and quite a number responded.

Special singing was furnished by the choir and there was another large attendance.

This evening there will be a special evangelistic sermon with Pastors Lawson and Fridfelt giving the sermons.

On Tuesday evening all three pastors will preach.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The pastor preached in South Boston Sunday morning in exchange with Dr. James Todd, D. D., a former pastor of the Water street church. Dr. Todd gave a sermon of " The Bible' in commemoration of the Tercentenary of the King James version of the Bible.

The Bible school was largely attended and the Y. P. S. C. E. had a good meeting with a missionary topic "Hawaii."

In the evening, the pastor preached a sermon on the "Bible" speaking of the different versions from Wycliffe's down to the King James and pointing out that its value was not because of the number of versions but because it dealt with men.

The Ladies Missionary society meet in the Manse this evening for regular monthly busines.

On Thursday evening, Rev. J. M. Cornelison of Oregon will tell of his work among the Indians at both the young peoples and the church prayer meetings. Mr. Cornelison has charge of the Indian exhibit in 'The World in Boston."

There will be a business meeting of the Christian Endeavor society Thursday evening at 8.30.

SWEDISH BAPTIST.

In the absence of the pastor two of the deacons took charge of the services on Sunday G. R. Blomquist conducted the morning service taking the text of his sermon from the second chapter of Hebrews: "How should we escape if we neglect so great a salvation.?"

In the evening A. E. Lundin gave an address on the book of Jonah, pointing out the disastrous consequences of his disobedience and drawing a lesson for his auditors from the experiences of the prophet.

The Young People's meeting was led by John Hellstrom, president of the society. Mrs. A. P. Hanson gave a talk on "Missions" and Miss Agnetta Hedman told of "The World in Boston."

There will be an extra business meeting of the church on Tuesday evening. The choir will meet for practice on the same evening at 7 o'clock

The Ladies Aid society will meet in the church, Thursday afternoon at 2.30

The regular church prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

On Saturday afternoon, the Busy Workers will meet at August Weeden's cottage, Bethel beach. Mrs. Weeden will serve refreshments. Miss Agnetta Hedman will preside.

Rev. A. P. Hanson will conduct the morning service next Sunday. At the Young People's meeting and the evening service Dr. W. A. Groenlund will tell of Missionary work in China where he spent 8 years in service.

FIRST CHRCH.

Rev. Charles B. Ames occupied the pulpit at the First church Sunday morning and preached an interesting sermon.

The annual business meeting and biennial election of- the Junior Alli ance which was postponed from last week will be held tonight.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday school meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the chapel.

Tuesday the annual Sunday school party will be held in the chapel at 4 o'clock. There will be an entertainment for the younger pupils by Miss Anne V. Baker of Boston, who is noted as an accomplished and refined entertainer of children. At 5.30 refreshments will be served to be followed by dancing in Colonial hall from 6 to 8 o'clock.

From 8 to 10 o'clock there will be dancing in Colonial hall for the older pupils of the school.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers held their second annual supper in the vestry last Friday evening. The supper room was most tastefully decorated with the flags of the nations, the tables were arranged in the form of a Greek cross and a happy company of seventy-five sat down to a delicious dinner most daintily served. The evening's entertainment consisted of a play in two acts, given by members of the society, music and song.

Mrs. Charles S. Adams, Mrs. Walter E. Simmons and the minister are this year's delegates to the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association, May 23-24.

Not a few of the members of the Women's Alliance will attend the neighborhood meeting in the Sharon Unitarian church, Thursday, May 4th. Social hour from 11 to 12 o'clock, when luncheon will be served.

In exchange with Mr. Horst, Rev. Chester Drummond of the First church in Somerville preached at the morning service. He took his text from the 10th chapter of Matthew, the 29th verse, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?" and the sermon was one of rare quality both in theme and treatment. The scripture reading, hymns and service were especially harmonious and with Waldo F. Bates' excellent solos the entire service was in accord with the beautiful spring morning.

SALVATION ARMY.

Colonel Margetts of New York city gave an excellent illustrated lecture on "Heroes" in Salvation Army hall Saturday evening. The hall was packed to the doors and all felt repaid.

The Christian Martyrs were dealt with and special reference was made to John Hess.

One of the most emotional parts of the lecture was the description of the heroic work of Miss Selma Ericson, matron of the Cincinnati home who saved the lives of all the babies in the home and then, too much exhausted to escape perished in the flames.

The life and death of Luther, of Wycliffe and of a number of American heroes, Paul Revere, Paul Jones and others were graphically described by the lecturer.

Among the illustrated songs that were sung were "My Country 'Tis of Thee," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide with Me."

The pictures were of the best and the lecture was one of the most inspiring heard in Quincy for some time. Colonel Margetts will make a tour of Massachusetts before he returns to New York going to Cambridge tonight, to Chelsea on Tuesday and so on.

QUINCY POINT CHURCH

At the Sunday morning service the pastor preached an especially fine sermon on "The Spirit of the Age." Among the distinguishing characteristics of the age were it superficiality and the great love the people have for the almighty dollar.

In the evening the usual prayer and prayer service was held with a short address by the pastor.

The annual business business meeting of the Mens club will take place Wednesday evening at 7.30. The officers for the coming year will be elected.

The last all-day sew of the season for members of the Ladies Aid Society will be held Thursday from 10 to 4 at the home of Mrs. Charles P. Marshall, 10 Farnum street.

The pastor will deliver his preparatory lecture Friday evening at the prayer meeting beginning at 7.30.

CALVARY BAPTIST.

The pastor preached the first of a series of sermons on the Beatitudes at the Sunday morning service. "Blessed are the poor in spirit for their's is the kingdom of heaven," was the text of his sermon.

The Sunday school had another fine attendance yesterday.

The Junior C. E. meeting was led by Arthur Davis. "Foreign people in America" was the topic and the little folks took hold of it very nicely.

The Bible Study class will meet in the church on Tuesday evening.

The Standing committee will meet in the parsonage on Wednesday evening.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening. "Salvation and Work" is the subject.

The regular monthly missionary offering will be taken at this meeting.

The choir will rehearse on Saturday evening at 7.30.

CHRIST CHURCH.

Holy communion was celebrated at 8 o'clock and morning worship with sermon by the rector took place at 10..45. The usual prayer and preaching service was held in the evening.

The members of the Galahad Brotherhood who are serving as stewards and helpers at "The World in Boston" are enthusiastic over their work and the success of the exposition.

Holy communion was held in the church this morning in honor of Saint Philip and Saint James.

The last meeitng of the Men's club for the year will be held in the Parish house this evening at 8 o'clock.

F. P. Speare, educational director of the Boston Y. M. C. A. will speak on "Modern tendencies in Education."

An invitation to attend is extended to all men of the congregation and their friends.

An old time May party will be given for members of the Junior Auxiliary Tuesday afternoon at 3.45. The party will open with a grand march in May paper decoration.

EXPRESS LIQUOR PERMITS

Some Expressmen have them Some have not

Some of the Quincy expressmen, who have held permits during the past twelve months which permitted them to transport intoxicating liquor for hire or reward into or in the City of Quincy find themselves without that permit this morning and therefore will be unable to do any business in that line until the City Council and Mayor grant them permission to do so. No one need fear of going dry however for the City Council has granted nine permits which have been approved by the Mayor.

There are several other applications for permits pending before the City Council which will probably be reported upon at tonight's meeting. Among these are J. J. Maloney of Atlantic, Albott & Miller, Adams Express J. J. Bizzozero and N. T. Murphy of West Quincy and Carl Lilja. All of these expresses held permits last year. In addition to these there are on the table before the council orders granting permits to Mark J. Myatt and Farrell's Express.

Should all of these be granted by the Council tonight it will be a day or two before they can get their permit for the papers will not, under the usual course of events reach the Mayor before Wednesday morning and he then has ten days in which to approve or reject them.

QUINCY NEST OWLS

fice that will exclude inhumanity in all the phases that it has reached down to us from our cave-dwelling ancestors.

"Our creed, if acted on generally, will be a potent force for good. It is practical and whole-hearted. If you have a flower to give, give it today. One throb of gladness is worth more to a fellow while he is alive than a million 'He was a good fellow' when he is dead."

Thomas O'Keefe past president of Brockton nest, delivered the lectures of the ritual in an impressive manner. He was assisted in the ceremonies by the officers of Brockton Nest. The floor work was under the direction of Captain Palanquin of the degree team.

There was a large delegation of visiting Owls from out of town.

The committee in charge of the organizing of the Nest consisted of J. R. S. Ross, George A. Berry, John R. Bartol, Peter Ordway, Charles E. White, C. P. Gould, Edward Jason, Peter L. Litchfield, George Dunham, Jr., Dr. J. T. Reynolds, George H. Wilson, W. G. Spargo, James F. Allen, Charles H. Austin, John Mera, Braintree, Mark Myatt, George A. Bolster, Joseph W. Deenen, George W. Gragg, Adolph Sanberg, Alfred N. LeBrecque, Alfred M. Silvia, James J. Kelley, James E. Burke, Charles W. Hanscom, Dr. John F. Ash.

Past President—Charles H. Finn.
President—A. H. Tabor.
Vice President—George Gragg.
Invocator—Charles W. Hanscom.
Secretary—George Williams.
Financial Secretary— Edwin B. Langley.
Treasurer—George H. Wilson.
Warden—William Porter.
Sentinel—Daniel Coleman.
Picket—Peter Litchfield.
Trustee 3 years—George A. Bolster.
Trustee 2 years—William O'Brien.
Trustee 1 year—James F. Allen.

The officers were installed by Deputy Supreme President Merrill and Deputy Supreme Warden. A committee was appointed on hall. It was voted that the next meeting be held next Sunday in Wilson Hall at 2 o'clock. The committee on hall will report at the next meeting, at which time the nest will decide where they will hold their meetings in the future, also on what evenings.

The social session that followed the institution was held in the banquet hall, and consisted of light lunch, concert, speaking and a general good time.

Rev. Mr. Jenkins of Allston preached at the morning and evening service at the Union chaped Sunday.

The young people's business and social meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the chapel.

Carlyle's Sneer at Gladstone.

J. E. Boehm, the sculptor, once met Gladstone at a country house and was immensely impressed by the extent and diversity of the statesman's knowledge as revealed in his conversation. Boehm was still full of the subject when the morning arrived for Carlyle's sitting for a bust, and to the philosopher the sculptor poured forth his admiration for Gladstone's intimate acquaintance with subjects so far apart as gardening and Greek. Carlyle listened for a time in scornful silence; then he said, "And what did he say about your work?" "Oh, nothing," said Boehm. "He doesn't know anything about sculpture." "Of course," growled Carlyle, "of course, and he showed his knowledge about things that you didn't understand. No doubt if you asked Blackie he'd say that Gladstone knew nothing about Greek, and the gardener would tell you that he knew nothing whatever of gardening."

NO DEATH.

I believe there is no death. I believe that man has a continuous existence and takes on new organism that I can no more understand than a caterpillar can understand the construction of a butterfly. What I believe in one single sentence is that man never dies. Death is a launching. Death calls us and says: "Come, come, you are tired; come, you are tired, and sleep." I often look forward to the time when that voice will tell me that I may sail over the unknown sea. —Lyman Abbott.

HUMAN SKULL PUZZLE.

A Cavity That May Have Been the Seat of a Sixth Sense.

Despite the progress of physiology the study of the human body is full of mystery. Some of the well known organs have never revealed either their uses or the reason of their creation. The part played by the spleen in human life was discovered but recently. It is now regarded as one of the principal agents in the circulation of the blood. But there are in the marvelous human organism mysterious parts which it is possible that no savant, however profound his learning, may ever understand. For instance, in the skull, behind the cartilage of the nose, there is a little cavity of unknown origin. Physiologists believe that at one time—several thousand generations ago—it contained a gland consisting of two lobes joined by their common base.

This cavity—the delta turcica—is, in the opinion of certain savants, the vestige of a sixth sense which was of great use to the antediluvian ancestors of man. It is believed that this little gland enabled them to see in the darkness when they had not yet learned the secret of procuring light: that it was the seat of the mysterious sense of situation or locality, the power to orient their course, the sense so highly developed to this day in savages and certain animals. The theory is plausible, but it is doubtful whether man will ever acquire any real knowledge of the reason for the existence of the delta turcica.—Exchange.

NESTS IN COLONIES.

The biggest bird's nest in the world, not excepting the stork's, is built by the African grosbeak. It is really 100 nests or more bound together with closely interwoven sticks, vines and strands of coarse grass and is not built by a single pair of birds, but by a colony of them. It is of such enormous size that at a little distance it is often mistaken for one of the native huts built in the trees so frequently found in wild tropical countries where man eating animals abound, and the only way to sleep in safety is to "roost high."

The birds usually select a thorn tree, probably because of the protection afforded by the sharp, long thorns against marauders. All around the nest the roof of sticks, thatched with dry grass, projects to let the rain run off. A deep fringe of grass hangs from this cornice like a curtain to keep out any stray drops. These great nests are added to from year to year, each pair of mated birds building on the main nest. Sometimes the nest becomes too heavy, and the branch breaks or the great mass of sticks falls to the ground, destroyed by its own weight. The grosbeak is no larger than an English sparrow and just as gregarious.—New York Press.

—Some of the legislators are so busy thinking up their freak bills to tax bachelors, to make all holidays fall on Monday etc., that they have no time to introduce any sensible and necessary measure such as preventing the manufacture of cheap and dangerous candy that is sold to so many children here.—Stoughton Record.

JEWS IN RUSSIA.

As Christianity, not Judaism, is on trial in Russia's treatment of her Jewish residents, so the United States and not the Jewish citizens of the United States is insulted in the refusal of the Russian government to honor the United States passports. Whether I am ever to see Russia is of no consequence. But whether the United States government shall submit to further slight is the point in issue. If a former member of the president's cabinet and later American ambassador at Constantinople cannot travel in Russia on the strength of his American passport it is plain that the self respect and the dignity of our nation have been made light of. —Rabbi E. G. Hirsch.

BRIEFS

Miss Lizzie Prescott of Federal avenue has returned from a four months visit in New Hampshire.

FOR CHECKING A KISS

Best Man at Wedding Stabbed to Death by a Guest

South Norwalk, Conn., May 1.—Because he was not allowed to kiss the bride at a wedding reception here Sunday, Joseph Bolog stabbed and killed Stephen Gomosak, best man, who prevented him. Bolog used a penknife. The blade penttrated Gomosak's jugular vein and he died in ten minutes.

Albert Suska and Miss Annie Evon were the persons married. Gomosak was to have married Miss Annie Kerekes on May 21 next.

Boy Accused of Manslaughter

Cambridge, Mass., May 1.—John Kelley, 10, was in court here, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Wendall Irwin, 10, by throwing a stone. Kelley was adjudged a delinquent child and his case was continued until May 20.

Cobb to Succeed Lawler

Washington, May 1.—Charles W. Cobb of San Francisco will be appointed assistant attorney general for the interior department, succeeding Oscar Lawler of Los Angeles.

What smiling beauty would stand for this line? "These teeth made by Snigs & Snugs, dentists." The dentist's best advertisement is the result of a good job.—Mansfield News.

INEQUALITIES IN ASSESSMENTS

TAX-DODGING IN BAY STATE

Reports That Local Assessors Do Not Enforce Law Declared to Be Well Founded—Evasion of Poll Tax to Be Expected When Ninety Percent of Well-to-Do Evade Taxes Lawfully Due Upon Investments

Boston, May 1.—"The common impression that our tax laws are seldom strictly enforced, and in many cases are largely unenforced, has the best of foundation," says a statement given out from the governor's office regarding two reports from the tax commissioner's department on methods of enforcing the laws by local assessors. The statement continues:

"So far as it concerns real estate, it appears that while this class of property is usually undervalued the assessments are usually higher in the cities than in the country districts, so that the apportionment of the state tax is, and long has been, grossly unfair. Upon this subject the tax commissioner has submitted elaborate statistics which prove beyond possible doubt the unfairness of the present apportionment.

"It further appears that in the country towns farm properties are overvalued, as compared with property located in the villages, so that the burden of real estate taxation would seem to rest with undue weight upon the cities and upon the farm properties of the commonwealth.

"In the taxation of intangible property it appears that machinery and merchandise are often undervalued and that there is the greatest inequality in the taxation of this class of property. Livestock, on the other hand, appears to be more fully assessed than merchandise, although here again the assessments are very unequal. Household goods largely escape taxation.

"Concerning what is called intangible property, it appears that assessment is usually by estimate of the assessors, or what is called 'dooming,' and that very few sworn returns are actually received as the law contemplates.

"Property in the hands of executors, administrators and trustees is more fully assessed than other classes of investment, and in recent years state supervision has brought an increasing amount of this class of property on to the tax list, at least temporarily. It has also occasioned numerous removals of taxpayers from one town to another and, in a few cases, from the commonwealth.

"Upon the whole, the tax commissioner estimates that 'The great bulk of intangibles subject to taxation escape. In 1907 I estimated that about 10 percent of such property was taxed in Massachusetts.' And he significantly added: 'The means of discovery of such property are few; the avenues of escape are many.'

"Governor Foss considers that this report amply justified the investigation that he started three weeks ago. If the state officials charged with the enforcement of the laws testify that under our present statutes evasion of taxation is practically universal throughout the commonwealth and not confined to any class of property, it would seem to be the duty of both the governor and the legislature to give the matter immediate attention. Nor is the evasion of the law confined to the taxpayers, for the tax commissioner reports that the local tax assesssors in many cases wilfully undervalue real estate in order to reduce their locality's share of the state or county taxes.

"Governor Foss' attention has also been called to the recent statement of the city collector of Boston, which shows that there are 130,000 tax dodgers in Boston who annually evade the payment of a poll tax. He considers that a fact to be deplored, but hardly sees what else can be expected when the payers of the poll tax know that the well-to-do are evading 90 percent of the taxes lawfully due upon their intangible investments.

"He believes, too, that if come means can be devised for collecting the taxes on personal property the problem of collecting poll taxes would be readily solved."

TO MAKE INVESTIGATION

Russia Not Satisfied With Outlook In the Far East

St. Petersburg, May 1.—Lieutenant General Sukhomlinoff, the minister of war, has left for a two months' tour of inspection in the Far East and Mongolia.

The trip was undertaken as the result of the conditions in the Far East as disclosed in a report recently received by the foreign office from the Russian minister at Pekin. This report had to do, among other things, with the attitude of the Chinese toward the Russians, which attitude, it is reported, is not wholly pleasing to this government.

"BAR-KEEPS" OUT OF WORK

Many Saloons Are Closed by the Bar and Bottle Bill

Boston, May 1.—From now on in practically 80 percent of the city's saloons it will be impossible to purchase bottled goods for home consumption. Such is the result of the bar and bottle bill, which took effect this morning. By its provisions no firm selling liquor over the bar can also sell it in bottles "not to be drunk on the premises" unless they have entirely separated the bottled goods department from the bar proper.

Several saloons have been compelled to go out of business because of the new statute.

Hundreds of bartenders and other employes were thrown out of employment in Boston and in the other licensed towns and cities of the state.

POLITICAL FLURRY OVER RECIPROCITY

Govenor General Called Back to Ottawa From Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—The critical situation at Ottawa has resulted in the sudden recall of Earl Grey to the capital from Winnipeg. The governor general has cancelled all his engagements for this week and left with his suite for Ottawa.

The determination of the opposition to fight reciprocity with the United States all summer, if necessary, as outlined by Leader Borden, thus preventing Premier Laurier from attending the imperial conference and coronation, has caused a crisis in political circles.

TROLLEY CAR HITS BUGGY

Fall River Man and His Wife Are Instantly Killed

Fall River, Mass., May 1.—Patrick McGee, 42, a furniture dealer of this city, and his wife, Mrs. Maud McGee, 40, were instantly killed when a trolley car, moving down grade at high speed, crashed into an open buggy in which they were riding near Greenwood park. The horse escaped with only slight injuries.

It is said that McGee turned the horse across the tracks before the incoming car in an effort to reach a small road on the other side.

The McGees leave three children, the oldest being but 7 years of age.

HURRIED OFF TO JAIL

Negro Suspect Arrested In New Jersey Murder Mystery

Lakewood, N. J., May 1.—Detectives seeking the murderer of Mrs. Charles Turner, whose body was found in the woods near here, arrested Henry Graham, a short, powerful negro, whom they trailed in and out of the pine forests and marshes.

He was found at the home of a farmer named Jennings, near Jamesburg, twenty-five miles from the spot where Mrs. Turner met her death. He was rushed in an automobile to the county jail at Toms River.

But Few May Strikes

Boston, May 1.—Seven thousand Boston trade unionists are involved in the May 1 demands for higher wages and better working conditions, although the strike orders issued do not affect more than 200 of their number and it is highly probable that less than 100 men in all will be called out.

BELLBOY PICKS OUT McNAMARA

"Bryce" Was In San Francisco When Dynamite Was Sold

COUNSEL OUTLINES DEFENSE

Claims That Dynamite Such as Prosecution Claims Was Used on Times Building Would Not Set Fire to Gas—McManigal Denies Interview With Counsel For the Western Federation of Miners

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—Trebor McCachen, a bellboy employed last September at the Hotel Argonaut in San Francisco, has identified James B. McNamara among a number of prisoners as the "J. B. Bryce" who registered at the Argonaut at that time, one of the trio alleged to have purchased dynamite.

Attorneys for both sides have completed arrangements for the early arraignment of the McNamaras and McManigal.

The appearance of the prisoners in court will not be deferred later than next Wednesday, by which time it is expected Clarence Darrow and Assistant District Attorney Ford, who has been named to assist District Attorney Fredericks, will have arrived here. Detective Burns is expected here soon.

Job Harriman, an attorney for the accused men, says the defense will be based on these grounds:

First, that dynamite made by the factory from which the dynamite that is alleged to have caused the explosion was purchased was tested in the government bureau of mines and would not set fire to gas.

Second, that dynamite will not set fire to inks and oils, and an explosion of dynamite of the kind said to have been used could not have been followed by sheets of flame, but on the contrary would extinguish flames.

Third, a gas explosion, on the other hand, would set fire to inks and oils and would be followed by sheets of flame.

Dr. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines, will be one of the witnesses called to uphold the contention that gas and not an infernal machine caused The Times building explosion, according to Harriman.

The declaration of Attorney Hilton, chief counsel of the Western Federation of Miners, that Ortie E. McManigal had discussed his alleged confession to District Attorney Fredericks, was denied by the prisoner when he was apprised of the lawyer's statements, as well as by Jailer Gallagher and Turnkey Norell of the county jail, who accompanied Hilton to the jail.

Hilton said that McManigal had admitted that a statement had been made by him to the district attorney and that the accused man has stated his reasons for giving it, "reasons eminently satisfactory to the defense."

McManigal denied that he had had an interview with Hilton and over his own signature sent the following note in response to a query:

"I refuse to talk to any one, Judge Hilton and all."

DID NOT WASTE FUNDS

Inspectors Who Went After Broker Davie Were Economical

Boston, May 1.—Inspectors Burr and Pelton of the police department have returned to the city $1113.85 from the fund of $2500 which was allowed for their trip to South America and return, whither they were sent to bring back the boy broker, Robert E. Davie.

City hall authorities thought the inspectors had broken some records for economy in keeping down long-distance traveling expenses. Transportation cost $838.59. Hotel expenses were about $200. Much of the remainder was expended in removing legal obstacles that were placed in the way of the inspectors after their arrival in South America.

ONE OF WORLD'S GREATEST

Meyer Enthusiastic Over the New Battleship Delaware

Washington, May 1.—Secretary Meyer of the navy says that the recent exhibitions and test of the battleship Delaware, including those which ended in the endurance trial Saturday, were the most remarkable ever made by an American warship.

"These performances of the Delaware are most extraordinary," said the secretary. "There has never been anything like her work in the navy. The whole world must recognize her as one of the most remarkable fighting ships afloat."

In standardization runs the Delaware exceeded 22 knots, and in the twenty-four-hour run for machinery and consumption tests averaged 21.2 knots. She made a good showing in fuel and water consumption.

MARRIAGE STOPPED AT LAST MOMENT

Groom-to-Be Ordered by Priest to Leave the Church

New Bedford, Mass., May 1.—Mrs. Manuel Brown called a halt in the marriage of John C. Stimahlo and Mary Cunha, at the St. John the Baptist church, alleging that Stimahlo was already married and had a wife and seven or eight children in the Azores. The bride-to-be, Mary Cunha, was in the confessional receiving absolution when Mrs. Brown saw Stimahlo saunter down the aisle toward the confessional.

Mrs. Brown nudged her neighbor in the same pew and asked: "What is that man doing in the church?"

"He is going to be married to Mary Cunha," said the girl.

"He is not," said Mrs. Brown, and she went to Fr. Cardoza and told him of her certain belief that Stimahlo was already married. Mrs. Brown is a native of the Azores.

Fr. Cardoza called Mrs. Brown, Miss Cunha and Stimahlo together, and, from the admission said to have been made by Stimahlo, he refused to marry them and ordered Stimahlo out of the church.

MANY BLOCKS ARE IN RUINS

Flames Sweep Through Bangor With Amazing Rapidity

DYNAMITE IS LIBERALLY USED

Has Little Effect In Impeding Progress of Flames, Which Leap Chasms and Continue With Unabated Fury—Banks, Office Buildings, Public Library, Postoffice and Telephone and Telegraph Offices Destroyed Before Flames Attack Residential Section—Aid Sent From Many Cities, but Firemen Are Unable to Cope With Conflagration—Martial Law Declared

Bangor, Me., May 1.—Property valued at $10,000,000, by a press estimate, was destroyed, hundreds of people are homeless and almost the entire business section of the city devastated during the first five hours of a conflagration which is still raging.

One person is known to have been lost, a man named Scribner, of Brewer, perishing before the eyes of thousands. First his clothing took fire and then he was buried beneath the falling walls of a building.

Mayor Mullen has called out the local company of the national guard and has place the city under martial law. Portland, Lewiston, Augusta, Oldtown, Brewer and every other city and town within reach has been asked for help and apparatus is pouring in from every side.

Already a score of buildings have been blown up in an effort to check the flames, and dynamite is still being liberally used.

The city was in darkness last night, all sources of light having been cut off, and the greatest confusion prevailed, the entire population being in the streets. Already it is difficult to obtain food, many restaurants having been burned, together with one large and several small hotels.

The fire is visible for twenty-five miles around, and thousands of people are swarming in from surrounding towns.

Started In Hay Shed

The fire started in the hay shed of J. F. Green on Broad steet, and within an incredibly short space of time was sweeping through the city in a northwesterly direction, a tornado of flames beyond human power to stay.

Before midnight both sides of Exchange street from York to State, both sides of State street from Kenduskeag stream to Broadway, a considerable part of Central and Franklin streets, nearly all of Park street and Marlow street was in ruins and the flames had made inroads of nearly a mile into the residential section of Broadway, Centre and French streets. This section of the city is occupied by the middle and best class of citizens. Hundreds of these have forsaken their homes, many not even having time to take their valuables, so rapidly did the fire burn toward them.

Outside Help Called

The special train from Portland and Lewiston, bringing fire aparatus from Portland, Lewiston and Augusta, also a special from Waterville, reached here early last evening, the last to arrive being the Portland train, which pulled into the station at 9:40 o'clock after a run of 135 miles in three hours and twenty minutes, with a stop at Augusta.

Communication was kept up intermittently by the Postal Telegraph company, whose building, the Bass block, was within fifty feet of the burning structures, and at times the roof was burning. The Western Union, which was burned out early, established two or three circuits in a temporary office at the Maine Central railroad station, which was outside of the fire zone.

Half an hour after the first alarm had been sounded nearly a dozen buildings were in flames and the fire was eating its way northerly up Broad and Exchange streets on either side of Kenduskeag stream. In its pathway were banks, office buildings, the public library and other structures, all of which were reduced to ashes.

Communication Is Cut Off

The city was soon shut off from telephonic communication by the burning of the central office of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, and calls for aid to Portland, Lewiston and Augusta were sent out by the wire chief of the company, who climbed a pole and cut in on a trunk line.

The telegraph companies' offices were burned during the early stages of the conflagration, but later they established temporary offices outside of the fire zone and communication was resumed.

In addition to the fire at the corner of Broad and Exchange streets, the firemen found a blaze in a bicycle repair shop in the rear of the central telephone office on Exchrange street. Both fires spread with such rapidity that the firemen were helpless.

One of the few buildings to escape destruction was the city hall. This was in the direct path of the fire, but in some way the flames leaped over it and it was hardly scorched. The city hall stands at the junction of Broad, State and Hammond streets, and at this point the flames crossed the Kenduskeag and continued on both sides.

Dynamite Resorted To

As it burned north, the path of destruction grew wider, while sparks set innumerable fires, many of them a considerable distance from the main conflagration.

An ineffectual attempt was made to stay the progress of the flames by dynamiting several blocks, including the Smith and Strickland buildings, but the fire bridged the chasm and continued with unabated fury.

Among the buildings burned during the early stages of the fire were the Haynes & Chalmers building, the Hodgkins block, the Fiske building, Fairbanks & Co's. building and the Bangor public library. Then followed the telephone office, the postoffice, the office of the Bangor Daily News, the Morse-Oliver block, a seven-story structure, in which were located the Bangor and Aroostook railroad offices, the Windsor hotel and several churches.

Failing in their attempt to stop the fire by dynamiting the buildings at the junction of Hammond and Central streets, the firemen took their stand farther to the north, and preparations were made to blow up other buildings and make a wider breach.

At 10:30 the fire was raging as fiercely as at any time since the outbreak, and the firemen had absolutely no control. In all sections of the city people were moving out their belonging and hurrying to places of safety. Many are already homeless, and with churches and public buildings in ruins there are few places where they can be cared for.

Consumed Before Watchers Realized

The fire spread with such alarming rapidity that buidings were consumed almost before the watchers realized they were in flames.

The Morse-Oliver building, Stearns building, Graham building, high school, Universalist, Central and First Congregational, St. John's Episcopal, Advent and First Baptist churches, Kenduskeag building, Norumbega hall, in which was located Gaiety theatre, Exchange building, containing the University of Maine school of law, and Central fire station were soon added to the list of burned structures.

The fire is considered by insurance people as the worst that Maine has known since the Portland fire in 1866, when a large part of the business section of that city was destroyed with a loss of $10,000,000. The indications are that the fire loss here will equal that of Portland.

Bangor has a population of something over 24,000 persons, and latest figures show a real estate valuation of $16,898,967.

EXCURSION TRAIN BURNS AFTER WRECK

Three Dead, Eight Missing, and Fifty Are Injured

Easton, Pa., May 1.—Three persons are dead, eight are missing and believed to have perished and half a hundred others were injured at Martin's Creek, N. J., north of this city, in a wreck of an excursion train carrying 170 school teachers and friends from Utica and Syracuse and vicinity to Washington for a week's outing.

The eight persons who are missing are believed to have been burned to death. Charred bones have been found in the ruins.

The train was traveling at the rate of fifty miles an hour and when the locomotive struck a sharp curve where men had been repairing the tracks, it left the rails and ran along a hillside, carrying four of the five cars with it.

All of the wrecked cars took fire and burned like tinder. Not a splinter is left.

BECOMES MRS. GOULD

New York, May 1.—Miss Annie D. Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Vos, and related to the royal family of Hawaii, was married in St. Thomas' Episcopal church to Jay Gould, second son of George J. Gould. The ceremony was simple and there was no great crush of the curious uninvited.

The bride, whose mother, before her marriage, was Princess Kaiyiiani of Hawaii, was given away by her stepfather. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church.

Honesty Extraordinary.

A traveler writing in an Italian magazine says that the Swiss canton of Ticino is inhabited by the most honest folk it is possible to imagine. In most of the Ticinese villages, the writer says, the oldest inhabitants do not remember any case of thieving, however petty, within a lifetime. Lost objects when found must never be taken away; they must be left where they were dropped or placed in a conspicuous position so that the rightful owner can find his property more easily. The case is cited of an American woman tourist who lost her purse on an excursion in the Val Capriasca. The purse contained gold coin and a jeweled watch. Upon returning from her trip she found the purse with its contents intact on a little heap of leaves, so placed that it could not fail to attract her attention.—New York Sun.

The Parsees of India.

It was at a point near the ancient city of Surat that the Parsees first landed in India when driven out of Persia by their Mohammedan conquerors eleven centuries ago. Few things are more remarkable than the manner in which this small community has retained its religion and racial characteristics unchanged during that long period. The peculiar style of headdress worn by the Parsees is said to have been made compulsory by the Hindu king of India when the Parsees first obtained refuge in that country, and they have used it ever since. Today the Parsees are the leading commercial nation of India.

Told Him In Few Words.

A man once wrote to the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, the famous preacher, saying that he had heard he smoked and could not believe it to be true. Would Mr Spurgeon write and tell him if it really was so? The reply was:

"Dear Sir—I cultivate my flowers and burn my weeds. Yours truly, C. H. Spurgeon."

IN THE FIELD OF SPORT

Result of Saturday games on the Diamond

Makaria was defeated by Hyde Park at the Water street grounds on Saturday by a score of 7 to 3. From the spectators point of view the game was not all that could be desired owing to loose playing and inability to hit men on bases. Manning did some good stick work but was weak on his throws and was thus credited with 3 errors. "Rus" Bates played a fine fielding game but was unable to find the pitcher at all at the bat. R. Ganzel was the only member of the home team who did any strenuous hitting and he drove out three pretty singles. Curtis gave a good exhibition of fielding by snagging three difficult flies. Artis did well for his first game in the year especially in getting men on bases. "Stan" Bates pitched fairly well during the five innings he was in the game but he was not feeling well and he received poor support. McKenzie allowed three hits in four innings, struck out two men and did not give a base on balls. But one run was scored after he went into the box.

Harris pitched a strong game for Hyde Park striking out 13 men and allowing 6 scattered hits. Griffin at short showed speed on the two hot ones he accepted. The games was lost on errors for although each team made 7 Makaria's were far more costly. The home team lost some fine chances to score by strike outs with the basses full. The summary:

APPRENTICES WIN.

The Fore River Apprentices won the third consecutive victory Saturday afternoon by defeating St. John's A. A., 5 to 2 at Ward Three playgrounds. The game was slow probably because of the intense heat although at times it was both interesting and exciting.

The fielding of Lang and the batting of George Barry and Bergfors were the principal features for the Apprentices, while Chris Barry's batting and the all around playing of Avery were an asset to the St. John's team.

The score by innings:

Apprentices	1	0	2	0	0	1	0	1	0	—5
St. John's	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	—2

Batteries—Williamson and G. Barry, for Apprentices, McVey and Chadri for St. John's.

COLONIALS WIN.

The Colonials defeated the Athletics of Roslindale at Roslindale Saturday by the score of 11 to 4. The outcome of the game was never in doubt as the Colonials took the lead from the start. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Athletics	0	0	2	0	1	0	0	1	0	— 4

Batteries—Shea and McDonald; Lynch and Morris.

RAMBLERS LOSE.

The Ramblers lost Saturday by the score of 8-4 to the amateur champions of Boston of last season at Merrymount Park.

M. Chapman started for the Ramblers and was unsteady at all times. L. Chapman went in the 6th inning and did well, striking out 4 and allowing 2 hits.

"Russ" Oliver came to bat in the 9th and got a home run scoring two runs.

Three different times did Ramblers have the bases full and then fail to score, being unable to hit Askins safely. They also had some tough luck and sensational fielding by Donovan cut off runs. Conway for the Ramblers was easily the star, getting two long hits and getting three long run flys. Caine played a fast game on the infield and despite his errors, McCarty showed class.

The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

BOWLING.

The Fore River Railroad team defeated the Machinists in a bowling match at the Hayward alleys Saturday evening, taking two out of three strings and leading in totals. The first string was won by 36 pins, the second went to the Machinists by 13 and the third reverted to the Railroad men by 5 pins. White of the winning team was high man on singles and totals, getting 100 in the second string and 296 for a total. The summary:

SPORTING NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates defeated the Melrose Intermediates on Saturday at the Lower field, Merrymount park, 21 to 6. The features were the pitching of Sutermeister and the batting of Sam Prout and Holmes.

Glover A. C. defeated North Quincy A. A. at the Ward 6 playgrounds on Saturday by a score of 11 to 2.

HOUSEHOLD RECIEPTS.

Rhubarb Relish. Add to one quart stewed rhubarb, one quart chopped raw onions, one quart vinegar, a pound and a half brown sugar, one tablespoonful salt, one teaspoonful each allspice, cinnamon, cloves and ginger, and a half teaspoonful red pepper. Simmer together for three hours, taking great care not to allow the relish to scorch.

Cold Water Pound Cake. Beat together three eggs and a cup and a half of sugar, add a half cup of soft butter, a half cup of cold water, two cups of flour and three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Stir all together, flavor with lemon and bake in a moderate oven.

Steak With Creole Sauce. Broil a two pound steak and serve with the following sauce: Put one scant tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, add one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and cook slowly until the butter is browned. Stand aside for five minutes, add one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar and one teaspoonful of freshly grated horseradish, simmer for three minutes, add one teaspoonful of flour, stir until smooth then gradually dilute with one half of a cupful of strained tomato. Season with one half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper and let simmer five minutes.

Custard Souffle. One-half cup sugar, one cup flour, one cup cold milk, one cup scalded milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-fourth level teaspoonful salt; four eggs. Mix the sugar and floure and dilute with cold milk; then add the hot milk gradually and cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add the butter and salt, remove from the fire and cool. Then add the egg yolks beaten very light and fold in carefully the beaten whites. Turn into a butered baking dish and set in a pan of hot water, and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Chicken Salad. Cut the meat of a cold boiled chicken in small pieces, place it with an equal amount of finecut celery in a salad bowl, pour over some mayonnaise and mix all well together. Smooth the surface, giving the salad a dome shape, and cover with mayonnaise. Garnish with lettuce leaves and hard-boiled eggs.

"Now, Mr. Peck," said Mr. Spudds to his grocer, "you must not try to persuade me that this Java coffee really came from Java, because I know better."

"I would not try to deceive you, sir," replied Mr. Peck, "and I will add that even our Vienna bread did not come from Austria."

Planning For a Divorce

Many Methods Were Suggested, but None Found Satisfactory.

By WILLARD STOUTENBERG

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was a young law student twenty-three years old, studying in the office of Marbury & Slade. Mr. Marbury was an old friend of my father's, and I think he was quite fond of me. One day he sent for me to come into his private office, and I found him alone there.

"Frank," he said, "I can give you a chance to make $500."

Now, I was scraping along financially, trying to make ends meet till I could get my profession, and $500 would be a great lift for me.

"How?" I asked eagerly.

"By taking a wife."

My delight vanished as quickly as it had come.

"There will be nothing to prevent your getting a divorce in time," he added, noticing my discomfiture.

"I don't think I would like to be tied up in such a matter at all. What does it mean?"

"It means that a client of ours, a girl of twenty-one, has inherited a fortune conditional upon her being married. Of course there is a time limit, and that time expires tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon. The young lady, Miss Irene Townsend, needs a man to marry her and, in consideration of an amount paid him, to leave her alone forever afterward. It wouldn't do to agree upon a divorce, because in that case I doubt if the marriage would be legal, but after the property is turned over to the heir I see no reason why one should not be obtained."

I thought awhile. There was a spice of romance in the matter that appealed to my youthful imagination.

"What kind of a looking thing is she?" I asked.

"On that score, my boy, you needn't trouble yourself. She is a very pretty woman and, moreover, of excellent birth and breeding, of which she is proud. She is the ward of an uncle who, I think, intends that she shall eventually marry some great catch, perhaps a British lord. All that's wanted of the first husband is that he may be relied upon after the marriage to keep out of the way and consent to a divorce when the time comes."

"How long have I to consider the matter?"

"You'll have to decide pretty soon. Miss Townsend must be married by tomorrow noon or lose a fortune. If you don't want the job some one else must be found to accept it. Think it over and let me know before I leave the office for the day."

I thought I would ask to see the girl I was to marry; but, considering that I was to be simply a husband to obviate a legal technicality, what need was there for me to see her? If she were attractive perhaps the less I saw of her the better. I waited till Mr. Marbury's hour for going home, and when he sent for me, before answering the summons, I dipped a coin to decide for me. "Heads I marry, tails I don't." Heads won.

I announced my decision to Mr. Marbury, and he told me the marriage would take place at the office the next day about 10 o'clock. Before going to my wedding I put on a frock coat and stuck a flower in my buttonhole; but, thinking this would appear as though I considered the affair a real wedding, I changed to my business suit and threw away the flower.

At 10 o'clock sharp I received a summons to go to Mr. Marbury's office. I found there besides Mr. Marbury a man in clerical dress, an aristocratic looking gentleman, very stiff and reserved, who didn't deign to look at me, and my bride. It was all right for the others to treat the matter as a mere legal form, but the bride and bridegroom gave each other a quick look. I defy any man upon entering into such an arrangement to avoid beginning at once to play a game of hearts. At any rate, I did, and, always having found indifference to be the most powerful force to move a woman, I refrained from looking at Miss Townsend after the first glance. I cast my eye perfunctorily over the papers I was required to sign and, drawing my pen through the words "five hundred dollars," wrote "one."

"What do you mean by that, sir?" snarled the elderly gentleman.

"I have decided, somewhat late perhaps, that to accept money for such a service would demean me. I shall be happy to serve the young lady, but not for pay."

I was obliged to stand a good deal of abuse from the elderly gentleman, in which his ward took no part. But I remained firm, told them that there was still nearly two hours remaining in which to find a substitute, and since the person was to be simply a dummy it didn't matter who he was, provided he was not already married. I also said that the one dollar paid me made the marriage a matter of bargain. There were reasons why a man who had been recommended as one to be relied on should be chosen. So after considerable discussion and a side conference between Mr. Marbury and the uncle it was decided to accept my conditions. Standing before the clergyman, Miss Townsend and I were made legal man and wife.

Miss Townsend was apparently well pleased with me so far as appearance goes and was decidedly prejudiced in my favor by my firmness in refusing to take any pay for the service I was doing her. When the ceremony was over I resolved upon a bold stroke.

"There is one reward," I said to her, "that I would accept for becoming your provisional husband if you can find it in your heart to grant it to me."

The uncle knit his brow, and my wife waited to hear more.

"I have taken upon myself," I said, "a condition that will doubtless prevent me from marrying a real wife for a long while to come, and few girls care to marry a divorced man. I have done this to assure to you a fortune. It seems to me that the reward I ask, though to me it will serve as a pleasant memory connected with this episode, will not be much for you to grant. I ask one kiss from my provisional bride."

Her uncle made a step forward to interfere. My wife stood for a moment irresolute, with her eyes fixed on the floor, then slowly turned her face toward me. The movement was all I asked for. I bent forward and barely touched her lips with mine.

I turned my eyes from my bride to Mr. Marbury and saw on his face an expression of satisfaction. Then for the first time it occurred to me that in his mind there had been something more than making me a mere legal husband and that he was well pleased with the manner in which I had acquitted myself. Without another word to any one, without a glance at my wife, I went out of the room and, seating myself at my desk, dived again into my law books.

A year passed, at the end of which I received a letter from my wife. It began "Dear Sir" and ended "Yours truly." It said that in the matter of our bargain marriage she had placed herself in the hands of others, since she knew nothing of law or the fulfillment of it, with a view to inheriting an estate. She was now in possession of her property and was of age. She intended to manage the rest of the matter connecting her with me herself. There was now nothing in the way of getting the divorce, and she would be pleased to see me with regard to the obtaining of a decree. Above all things, she desired to work in harmony with me, since she had been informed that the matter could be thus far more satisfactorily handled. From what little she had seen of me she felt assured that I was a gentleman and would not stand in her way in becoming a free woman.

However we define love, its beginning is indefinable. A man, fancy free, may propose to a girl who is fancy free on the ground that she is not displeasing to him and their marriage will be an advantage. If she is accepted his feelings will go out to her as naturally as the tendrils of a vine and hers will advance to meet them.

I attribute to this fact my coming to love the girl I had married, and I reasoned that if she had been at the time of our marriage and had remained fancy free it was quite possible that something more than an ordinary interest in me might have been growing up in her. But I realized that our parts were reversed. I must be courted; she must do the courting. Any indication that I hoped to make our marriage a real one would be fatal to hopes I might have of doing so.

I replied to her letter that she was at liberty to take any steps her lawyers might advise to secure a decree. All I asked was that I might be put to as little inconvenience as possible, for my time was taken up in preparing for my examination for admission to the bar. I did not refer to her suggestion for a meeting.

She replied that, considering the fact that she was under an obligation to me for a favor, she desired an opportunity of thanking me personally therefor and on no account would she take steps for the divorce without my approval of the plan to be adopted. To hit upon a plan to which I would give my willing assent would require an interview.

So I called to see her. One thing I noticed especially. She was dressed in a very becoming costume. Since I could not make myself look beautiful, whatever I might wear, I concluded to put on something besides clothes, something that finds great favor with women. I displayed all the deference I could assume.

She could not conceal from me the fact that I stood in the position of something more than a mere legal dummy. Nevertheless she tried to. She outlined several plans her lawyers had sketched out for her by which the divorce might be obtained, but I objected to all of them on the ground that they might reflect upon her. I insisted upon assuming all the obloquy myself. But when it came to pointing out exactly how I was to do this I failed. I knew enough law to suggest the different methods that might be used, but I had not been studying my profession for the purpose of enabling a woman to divorce me, especially one from whom I had no desire to be divorced. The consequence was that after a conference lasting two hours I left her without our having made any headway.

I had many conferences with my wife on the subject of our divorce without finding a satisfactory plan. At last one evening when we were debating the matter at the door, just before my departure, in a fit of absentmindedness I kissed her. She must have been equally absentminded, for she received the kiss as a matter of course, not stopping in what she was saying.

Suddenly it occurred to both of us that we had given and received a marital kiss.

That ended the talk about divorce. Since it was raining hard I concluded not to go home till the rain let up a bit. I never went home at all.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Liquor Permits Granted after Debate. Other Business Transacted

Monday night's meeting of the City Council was a busy one. While the debate was confined to the granting of permits to transport liquor a large amount of business was disposed of. All of the permits reported by the Committee on Licenses were eventually adopted.

The most important new matter was the order introduced by Councilman Histen appropriating $15,000 to purchase the Dr. William Everett estate on Miller Stile road for park and playground purposes, which meant that while the grounds will be used for park and playground purposes, if the order passes, that the building may be used by the Grand Army as a Memorial hall. The order was referred to the joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

Councilman Richards was the only absent member.

CONSOLIDATED LOAN.

A communication was received from the Mayor inclosing a letter from Messrs. Ropes, Gray and Graham, counsel for the Old Colony Trust Co. relative to the loan orders passed late in 1910. The letter stated that as the loans were small it was not only difficult to sell them but there was also an additional expense of advertising the several loans. The law firm recommended the passage of a consolidated loan that would include a half dozen loan orders for small amounts.

Laid on the table until later when Councilman Banch offered a loan order for $22,125 which was a consolidation of half a dozen loan order passed in 1910. The order was read and referred to the Finance Committee.

CONSTABLES.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Edward J. Murphy and Peter Swanson as constables. Confirmed.

A communication from a company selling fire escapes was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

PUBLIC WAY WANTED.

A communication was received from Hon. E. C. Bumpus setting forth the urgent need of a public way leading from Goffe street near Monroe road to the Quincy depot. Referred to Committee on Streets.

DR. EVERETT ESTATE.

The Mayor forwarded a communication stating that the Dr. Everett estate which was assessed for $16,200 could be purchased for $15,000. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Histen offered the order referred to above.

LIGHTS WANTED.

Councilman Bolster presented a petition for lights on Packards lane and Councilman Gardner a petition for a light on Wilson avenue. Referred to the Executive.

The Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to lay underground conduits. Referred to Committee on streets.

WEBSTER STREET.

A petition was received for the oiling of Webster street. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Cherrington offered an order for the oiling of the street one-half the cost to be assessed on the abutters and one-half charged to the Excess and Deficiency Fund. Referred to Finance Committee.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

REPORTS.

DRIVER KILLED IN RUNAWAY

John Manning Thrown Headlong to the Ground

John Manning a teamster employed by Hugh Gilmartin was almost instantly killed on Beale street Monday afternoon when his team ran away and smashed into a tree.

Manning was driving a two-horse dump cart down the hill from the East Milton end when the bit ring of one of the horses broke allowing the bit to fall from his mouth. This frightened the animal and he started down the street on the run. Manning who was seated on the front part of the wagon was unable to control the horses and unable to jump.

When near the Wollaston school building the horses made for a tree, one going each side of the tree. The sudden stop threw Manning headlong and he struck on his head fracturing his skull.

The police were notified and the ambulance sent to the scene. On the way down the ambulance picked up Dr. Sweeney who was taken aboard. Manning was unconscious when they arrived and he was hurried to the City Hospital where he died shortly after his arrival.

But little is known of the unfortunate man as he had been at work for Gilmartin but a few days. He boarded with Mr. Donnelly on Oak street.

It was learned by the police this morning that Manning who was 35 years of age has a sister, who is the wife of a South Boston policeman and another sister who is the wife of a Roxbury Crossing druggist. They will be communicated with today.

FREE GIVING CARNIVAL.

Those who read the large ad of W. G. Shaw in today's Ledger will gasp for breath at the magnitude of his offering. Not only does he open the spring season by throwing open his entire store and stock for public inspection but there will be band concerts by Wilson's orchestra and elaborate souvenirs will be given away.

It is announced as "a big give away on a furniture man" and a "free giving carnival" and it certainly looks like it so many elaborate pieces of furniture are to be given away absolutely free. It is sure to attract crowds. The opening day is Thursday, May 4.

DEVELOPMENT OF RAILWAY

Interesting Talk Before St. Chrysostoms Club

Members of the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's parish enjoyed an interesting stereopticon lecture at their meeting Monday evening upon the subject "Fifty years development of the Boston Elevated Railway" by Captain A. G. Reynolds of Boston, chief clerk to the president of the company.

The lecture was one of the best the club has listened to this season and many new features were learned, about this already familiar public service corporation.

Last year this company whose operations cover 125 square miles carried 296 million regular passengers and issued 185 million free transfers.

It has in service 3,500 cars which travel a total milage each day of 140,000 miles equal to 5 1-2 miles around the world.

Mr. Reynolds told of the first Boston horse car line, the second in the United States, from Harvard square, Cambridge to Bowdoin square, Boston.

Another line was built from Watertown to Ashmont, on which the running time was 2 1-2 hours, the fare 33 cents. The last car left for Watertown at quarter of nine. The last horse car was abandoned on the Back Bay, December 25, 1900.

The history of the West End and the introduction of trolley cars under its first president Henry M. Whitney was told in detail.

A full description of the formation of the Boston Elevated and its many extensions was given. The Atlantic avenue line, East Boston Tunnel, Forest Hills extension, Washington street tunnel were all dwelt upon.

The East Cambridge elevated extension, running from Lechmere square to North Station thence into the subway, and the Cambridge subway, from Harvard Square to Park street, both of which are under construction were interestingly depicted.

The proposed Riverbank subway, the elevated extension from Sullivan Square to Malden and the Dorchester avenue subway extension were all mapped out.

The line of the latter, it is understood, will probably be run from the Park street subway down Summer street, South Station and out under Dorchester avenue to connect with surface cars outside of the congested district. This line to the south seems to be the only missing link in the extensions of the road.

The roads large power stations and the severe examinations of prospective employes was intimately taken up, and the lecture closed with a defence of the strap hanger, a discussion of expenses and income and the architectural comparison of transit construction here and abroad.

Captain Reynolds was accorded a rising vote of thanks and the meeting adjourned after refreshments and plans for ladies' night which is to be held on Tuesday evening, May 16.

The governess was giving little Tommy a grammer lesson the other day. "An abstract noun," she said, "is the name of something which you can think of, but not touch. Can you give me an example?"

Tommy—"A red-hot poker!"—Tid-Bits.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING ST. JOHN'S BAZAAR

Addresses by J. W. McAnarney, Rev. A. F. Roche, P. S. Mansfield, J. F. Burke and Others

Many Useful and Fancy Articles Seen at Handsome Booths

Amid the flare of colored lights and the blare of trumpets, the Holy Name society of St. John's church paraded the streets of the city Monday evening at the opening of the big parish bazaar which is to last through this week and next. The marshals of the company were Michael T. Sullivan and Edward J. Lennon, and Peter Shanley was color bearer. The Finnish band was in advance of the company which was arranged in the form of a cross.

After the parade was over, all assembled in St. John's hall where the opening exercises were held. On the platform were Rev. John J. Coan, Rev. Ambrose F. Roche, Rev. P. J. Scannell, Chairman John W. McAnarney, Philip S. Mansfield of Boston, Michael T. Sullivan, president of the Holy Name society, John J. Cunniff, grand knight of Quincy council, K. of C. Daniel Mannix, vice president Div. 5, A. O. H., James F. Burke, president of Div. 4, A. O. H.

Father Coan after a brief opening address introduced John W. McAnarney, chairman of the committee at large, who spoke as fololws:

JOHN W. McANARNEY.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Thinking men and women view with a feeling of deep concern the spirit of unrest which permeates the religious, social and commercial life of today.

As the gathering clouds and whispering winds tell the weather wise of the approaching storm, so the growing modern tendency to throw off all restraint—civil as well as religious—speaks to those who care to hear of an approaching struggle—one not like those of old between armed camps but of intellects— between on the one hand those who believe and profess the christian religion and on the other the unbeliever between the christian and the atheist.

Years ago the Catholic Church with a foresight, which is one of the marks of her divine origin, saw the coming contest and true to her mission, as one of the means of preparing her children to weather the storm—decreed that in every parish capable of supporting them, parochial schools should be established, schools in which the Catholic children could receive not only a broad and liberal secular education, but also have taught to them from their early youth the principles of the Holy Roman Catholic Faith. Tonight we stand in a building dedicated to such a purpose. Here under the watchful eye of their pastor, and the refining influence of the trained and gentle Sisters of St. Joseph, the Catholic children of this parish will receive an education which will properly equip them to enter upon the battle of life.

Here they will have inculcated into their very souls that great trinity of love, love of God, country and fellow men, so essential to the realization of the highest type of the ideal citizen.

From these falls will go forth young men and women whose lives and examples will confound those who claim that intellectual progress, development of personality, and the sturdy independence of American manhood, are incompatible with membership in the fold of our Holy Mother Church.

We have each, and we will to the end, contribute our share towards this grand work. Sacrifice it means, but the cause is worthy of it.

Let us be encouraged and animated to make that sacrifice by the knowledge that long after we have gone, yes down through generations yet unborn—when not even a memory of us or our efforts remain—the fruit of our work will go on, and when the hour comes to each of us, and come it must, when the grace of men's good deeds plead for them, then shall we receive our reward.

The work of two men is imperishably woven into the history of the Catholic people of Quincy, one, that of an early pastor, the impress of whose work will always remain with us, Father Sullivan, the other that of a young man, fresh from the Seminary, who for years gave to Quincy, Protestant as well as Catholic, the best efforts of his profound piety, great ability, and strong independent and enthusiastic character.

It would be a bold man who would seek to introduce him to a Quincy audience. It needs only to speak his name.

REV. FATHER ROCHE.

When Father Roche arose to address the audience he received a flattering demonstration. His speech follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

In this nation, composed of many different races of men, each strongly attached to the customs, the law, and the religions of their fathers, it is almost impossible for municipality or state to devise any form of public instruction that will be satisfactory to all classes. The difficulty is increased when we consider the multiplex variety of occupations and employments required by the necessities of the community.

Education is a word which admits of most extensive application. This being so, it follows, that, beyond the training which the state has a right to demand for its own protection against the burdens of ignorance, there is a vast field of special work which must be done, and which can not be acomplished by the state, no matter how good the intent may be of its best citizens.

To perform this work as desired by the various classes, and as required for the proper maintenance and regulation of modern society, special schools are called for, and supported by those who are convinced that the public schools cannot possibly supply the demand. The employment of tutors and governesses in rich families, every private school between the kindergarten grade and Harvard University, every commercial school, and every parochial school are plain testimony that public necessity requires more than conglomerate education can supply.

Granting to the public schools all the credit to which they are entitled, making full allowance for all the earnest zeal and devotion of their most loyal friends, every fair-minded man must admit that their difficulties are very great, their problems are manifold even when not complicated by race and religious differences, prejudices and misunderstandings.

In view of these considerations, no one has a right to be aggreived if we Catholics say that the time has come, when we like others, feel the need of special instruction for our children, and assume the responsibilities of educating them in all the branches which the public good has a right to require, and then, add to that, a far better special training, which the state cannot, will not, give.

To this action, no one has a legal or a moral right to object. Any opposition that may be developed, will always be found to have its root in bigotry or selfishness, and no one is obliged to give up his own rights to the demands of either of these unworthy elements.

The Catholic Church is, and always has been, the Mother of education, and of schools. She is not only requested, but she is commanded to teach all nations. In the year 181 A. D., she established the first free public school, under Saint Pantaenus, and from that time to this, she has dotted the whole world with schools, academies, colleges, universities and libraries. This building is proof that she is still faithful to the trust committed to her by Jesus Christ. It is consecrated to the work of Christian training for those who will surely need it in the life they must lead, and in the contest they must wage for body and soul against conditions immeasurably more difficult than any which have previously existed in this nation. Every Catholic should be proud of this great work. It is a grand testimony of the zeal of your splendid pastor—it is in accord with the wish and the work of our eminent Archbishop—it is the fulfilment of the instruction of all the Councils of the ancient and universal Church of Christ, and it must be of incalculable benefit of the children and the parents of this parish.

When the child enters the schoolroom, the first object upon which his eyes look, is the Crucifix which reminds him of the price which the love of Christ paid for the sanctification of mankind. Sacred pictures are upon every wall—the robe of the Sister is the testimony of sanctity , and the Rosary attached to her girdle, speaks to him of Mary the Mother of Christ, the Refuge of Sinners, the Queen of Angels. Every session is opened with devout prayer, every textbook contains its lesson of sanctification, all atheism is banished, there is no association with irreligious offspring of irreligious parents, everything speaks of sanctity, of God, and of Heaven. Could anything be more worthy of your zeal, and your support?

Among the other speakers were Philip S. Mansfield of Boston and James F. Burke.

Mr. Mansfield laid down three principles which the people of the church would have to follow if they would have the best of success, unity, harmony and organization.

Mr. Burke brought the greetings of the West. "When this project was first started," he said, "the question was will there be enough children to fill the school? the question now is, is the school big enough to accommodate the children?"

THE ATTRACTIONS.

When the speech-making was completed, the atmosphere took on the complexion of a cyclone with Jerry Keating's stentorian tones singing out his wares from one side of the stage, and J. P. Reardon and J. F. Lynch rending the air on the other. Down the hall, Robert T. Foy's barkers held their own in calling the crowd to the wheel of fortune.

As one enters the hall, the district 1 booths are to the right, first the candy wheel under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Donovan and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keating.

Next comes the cigar wheel superintended by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reardon, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Sullivan and J. F. Lynch.

A handsome oak bookcase with three compartments was donated by Henry L. Kincaide. A guessing contest has been instituted and the one who guesses nearest to the number of inches between the A in Kincaide to the S in single on the big sign over the stage will get the bookcase.

GENERAL BOOTH.

The general booth of District One was handsomely decorated in lavender and white, the effect produced being that of a wisteria arbor. Here beautiful specimens of needlework were to be seen and many fancy and useful articles such as aprons, lamps, pictures, cut glass pitchers, blankets, shoes, watches, cameras and so on indefinitely. Rev. P. J. Scannell had general charge and the ladies who had charge of the decorations certainly made their booth second to none in attractiveness.

All the articles on sale were contributed, many of them by City Square merchants. The Chinese Laundry was in charge of E. J. Parker, G. B. Powers and James Grant.

DISTRICT TWO.

The District Two booths were on the east side of the hall. The general booth was decorated in yellow and white with a cool and pleasing effect. Here one could find beautiful hand embroidered jabots, leather goods, silverware, china, statuary, glassware, and a host of other things too numerous to mention. A japanese table was part of the district two exhibit. Here there were japanese rolling boards and a variety of decorations to give things an oriental appearance.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

These trees that are planted on Arbor day are coming along just in time to give the horses some nice juicy bark to nibble at this summer.

The tercentenary of the King James Bible is celebrated, and some people's copies look as if they had been collecting dust just about that time.

The quieting down of the Mexican war talk makes it clear that what the Mexicans want is not so much freedom as rotation in office.

The senators are quarreling over committee places, but the fact that they wrangle over possession of the buck saw is far from indicating a disposition to do things to the wood pile.

There is a heavy drop in the Steel profits, but as Mr. Carnegie got an article accepted by the May Century, he can still furnish a few more library books.

The broom is one symbol to be carried in the New York Suffragist parade May 6. Mere man crouching on the sidewalks will ask timorously if this is displayed as a weapon or as a household implement.

OPENING OF BALL SEASON.

Early ball games now being played on Southern diamonds are a reminder of the coming season, and that it is good business for any town to maintain a strong team.

The one lack of the sport is that it rarely encourages the average man into exercise of his own. Sitting on the bleachers, cheering the home boys, or even execrating the umpire, do not develope your own muscle.

But the sight of nine men drilled to become one intelligent unit, the snap and vivacity of a sport where thought and action are instantaneous, the exhibition of a perfect muscular development and control, the complete mastery shown over the laws of motion as applied to a ball—all this would seem a wonderful spectacle were it not so familiar. And the swift shifts of fortune in this thrilling competition appeal to the mobile and enthusiastic American temperament.

A town which fails to give adequate support to base ball seems to a host of people as slow as a town minus a railroad. And the business men should reflect that visitors who come to see base hits often remain to buy at the stores.

NEWS FROM THE STORES.

The relation of the merchant to his public is much like that of the newspaper man to his audience.

The public, or at least the feminine end of it, picks up the newspaper with as much eagerness to learn the news of bargains and of styles as to see what the army is doing in Texas. The merchant who does not respond to this demand with a good story about his offerings and values, meets the same fate as the newspaper man who does not know a good piece of news when he meets it on the street.

When advertising fails to attract, it is usually because the writer failed to make it newsy. In this spring season there is a human interest story in every retail business, a story of the fleeting caprices of style, of shrewd bargaining by which the merchant has protected his customers, of overstocks that help family income go farther.

The public listens, Mr. Merchant! Are you there?

THE SIDE STREET LOCATION.

The story of success in retail trade has many chapters telling of great results achieved by men in seemingly unfavorable locations.

The side street merchant who does not advertise is fighting against two great currents of trade. He must contend against the drift of the public along the main streets, and against the stronger drift to the store that tells the best story in the newspaper.

The side street merchant who does not advertise impresses the public as choosing his location to reduce the cost of his goods to the public. If he has enterprise to prove by newspaper space that he offers attractive propositions, the public will look at it that it is an economy to buy goods of him.

Bargain hunters then find a certain zest in hunting him up, and they enjoy telling their friends about it.

The merchant who trusts to a central location, minus any effort to tell the public what he is doing, gives an impression of decayed respectability. It looks to the public as if he had made money in the past, but as if he were too satisfied with his gains to make much effort for new customers, or to be very watchful of the interests of his older adherents.

ST JOHN'S BAZAAR

tion. The letters were real ones and contained many things well worth reading. Then there is a jail with Edward P. Histen as keeper and a Jack Horner pie in charge of Lawrence Lyons. Miss Josephine Colligan superintended the plum picking Monday evening.

Rev. Neil Paul Brennan had general supervision over the District Two table. Miss Mary Lyons was in charge of the decorations and the Japanese table was in charge of Miss Mary Costello assisted by Manuel Perry, Jr.

DISTRICT THREE.

The District Three booths were under the general supervision of Rev. John J. Coan. Robert T. Foy is chairman of the committee, Miss Agnes Deasy, secretary, Joseph L. Heaney, treasurer and Mrs. George H. Deehan is in charge of the general booth. The color scheme is in pink and white and the booth is in the form of a rose bower. Among the beautiful things which were donated were a silver service, statuary, handsome sofa pillows, fancy work of every description, cut glass, bric a brac, a life sized portrait of Father Coan and many other things of rare merit.

The Childrens table was decorated very artistically in blue and white. Most of the articles were contributed by parents of children in the parochial school. Among the nicest donations were some beautiful battenburg centre pieces, table runners, doilies, etc.

A tool chest with a complete set of tools contributed by Mrs. M. E. Fitzgerald attracted the attention of the young men and boys.

Those in charge of the table are: Miss Margaret Meaney, Miss Margaret Desmond, Miss Agnes McGinty, Miss Nellie Garrity, Leo Ford, Henry McDonnell and John Gillis.

Part of the District three exhibit was a flower booth, very attractively decorated in pink and white. Potted plants and cut flowers were one sale at the booth and agents were going about selling pinks. In a contest run by this booth for a big bunch of roses, Mrs. R. E. Foy was the winner, Miss Mary Heaney was in charge of the booth.

In the centre of the hall was the wheel of fortune, part of the district three exhibit and the candy booth run by all three districts.

Robert T. Foy was in charge of the wheel of fortune and several young men kept up their end of the barking to draw trade.

The candy booth was decorated in pink, yellow, lavendar and white designating that all three districts were united in running it. Those in charge Monday evening were: Miss May Talbot, Miss Anna Thompson, Miss Anna Heaney, Miss Annie Clinton, Miss Margaret Lennon, Miss Evelyn Kelley and Miss Blanche Picard.

The Palm garden is situated in a room diagonally opposite the entrance. Here one could get sandwiches, tonics, ice cream, cake etc. The room was well decorated with palms, magnolia branches and paper flowers of all colors attached to the pergola arrangement which served as the refreshment booth. Around the small tables, patrons of the Palm garden are given an opportunity to enjoy a little rest while they satisfy their appetites. Just outside the door, is a pen containing a leghorn rooster and two pullets which will be awarded at the end of the week in a contest.

During the evening music was furnished by St. John's orchestra which is composed of the following: violins, Helen Brogan, Alice Barry, John Dockrey, John McConnarty, Lawrence Ferguson. Piano, Amy Fallon.

The bazaar is of such vast proportions that it is well nigh impossible to cover the whole thing in an evening so that if anyone is left out let him remember that there are several days coming.

Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

At Least One-half of All Glenwoods, Are Sold through the enthusiastic recommendation of a satisfied user.

CITY COUNCIL

an order for a public hearing May 15, on petition of the Telephone Co. for attachments, etc. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing May 15, on petition of the Gas Co. to lay mains. Adopted.

LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported a number of orders granting common victualler and Sunday fruit licenses, etc. Adopted.

The same committee reported orders granting permits to transport liquor to the following: Abbott & Miller, N. T. Murphy, Carl Lilja, J. J. Maloney, Adams Express and J. J. Bizzozero.

Murphy's license was granted and the others laid on the table until later when they were taken up one at a time. There was considerable debate over the granting of these permits Councilman Bailey, chairman of the Committee on Licenses objecting because the applicants had not filed their returns last year as required by the condition in the permit.

Chief Burrell and Inspector Goodhue were called before the Council and asked about the different applicants. All of the permits were eventually granted either by a roll call or rising vote 16 to 5 and 12 to 6.

ADDING MACHINE.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order appropriating $375 for an adding machine for the Tax Collectors office making the amount $295. Rules suspended and order passed.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on the order restricting the use of Crescent street to pleasure vehicles.

Stephen B. Little, president of the West Quincy Improvement society favored. It would be economy to restrict the street and it would add to the pleasure of the residents of the street.

Peter T. Fallon opposed. He did not see why any street was reserved for automobiles and the like. He wanted the privilege of driving his teams on any street. It would be a great injustice to the granite business.

The order was then recommitted.

A public hearing was held at 8.30 on the widening of Hancock street between Granite and School streets, widening School street at its junction with Franklin street and widening Garfield street.

No one appeared for or against and the hearing was closed and order recommitted.

A hearing was also held on petitions of the Telephone Co. for attachments and the order recommitted.

QUINCY GRANITE WANTED.

Councilman Craig offered resolution that the new court house building be built of Quincy granite. Adopted.

ROBERTSON STREET.

Councilman Forde offered an order appropriating $700 to rebuild Robertson street between Willard street and the railroad track. Referred to joint Committee of Finance and Streets.

GRAND TRUNK RAILROAD.

Councilman Ross offered a resolution urging the Grand Trunk railroad to extend its tracks into Boston. Adopted.

FIRE ALARM BOX.

Councilman Ross offered an order for a fire alarm box at the corner of Sea and Palmer streets. Referred to Executive.

TELEPHONE POLES, ETC.

The orders granting the Telephone Co. a location for poles, underground conduits and connections and attachments took their second reading and were passed.

SCREEN HOUSE.

The order appropriating $2,150 for a screen house at Houghs Neck took its second reading and was passed.

WEST QUINCY PARK.

The order appropriating $500 to put the park at the junction of Copeland, Common and West streets in condition was passed under suspension of the rules.

STREET BETTERMENTS.

The orders determining the value to estates by the laying out of Cummings avenue, East Elm avenue, Franklin avenue, Holbrook road, Merrymount road, Murdock avenue, Newcomb place, Norfolk street and Quarry street extension, took their second reading and were passed.

FULY FOURTH CELEBRATION.

The order appropriating $1,000 for the proper celebration of the Fourth of July took its second reading and was passed to be ordained 16 voting yes and 6 no as follows:

YES—Bolster, Boyd, Branch, Bryant, Cherrington, Duffy, Ericson, Forde, Gardner, Histen, Leslie, Parler, Ross, Sanberg, Smith, Studley—16.

NO—Bailey, Campbell, Craig, Jenkins, Nowland, Sodergren—6.

ABSENT—Richards.

Adjourned at 9.58 until May 15.

—It begins to look as if made-over fur coats might figure in the construction of graduation gowns this year.—Manchester Union.

WAS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

Capt. Benjamin King a Special Guest of Cunard Company

Benjamin King the veteran caretaker of the John Adams cottage was accorded undue honors Monday when he visited the big Cunard Steamship Franconia which is on her maiden trip to Boston.

Capt. King was received by the officers of the steamship and was shown every honor. In fact it seemed as though the officers and crew could not do enough for him.

The reason for all this honor was that way back in 1840 when the Steamship Britanica the first of the Cunard fleet to come to Boston entered the harbor on her maiden trip Mr. King was one of the first to step his foot on her deck. At that time Mr. King was a school boy in East Boston and he was taken out of school by his father and taken aboard the steamship.

When the Cunard people heard some days ago of Mr. King's visit to the Britanica he was sent a card which will admit him to any of the company's steamships.

MRS. KLINGENHAGEN.

The funeral of Mrs. Lillian J. Klingenhagen was held Monday afternoon from her late home 10 Kemper street and was attended by many relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. William B. Ayers of the Park and Downs church.

MOHAWKS DANCE.

The Mohawk A. C. held its second annual May party and dance in Alpha hall, Monday evening. In addition to the regular dances, John Houseberger (alias Jack Thomas) and partner did some exhibition dancing. Ben Magee of the 5 W's of Milton sang two popular songs. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music.

Those in charge of the dance were: Francis J. Taylor, floor director, James Hogan, assistant floor director, John Driscoll, chief of aids. Aids: William Fader, Charles Diglio, Everett Harris, Douglas Haydock, James Hogan, Walter Desmond, Edward Carson, Jake Silver, Francis Taylor, Timothy Regan.

The officers: John Houseberger, president, Thomas F. Flaherty, vice president, Joseph F. Wade, treasurer, Walter A. MacPherson, secretary.

The hall was filled with dancers throughout the evening and many of them were friends from out of town. The Crimson club of Brockton all clad in their club colors were prominent. Milton, Neponset, Braintree, Weymouth, Boston, Mattapan, Dorchester and all parts of Quincy were represented by those who attended.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

The farewell reception to Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, pastor of Bethany church, will be held in Bethany chapel, Wednesday evening, May 10 from 8 until 10 o'clock. The reception will be entirely informal and the public is invited to attend. Since the city is to lose so valuable a citizen and so good a friend, large numbers of people in no way connected with the church are expected to be there.

MAY DAY WEDDING.

On the evening of May day was solemnized a pretty home wedding, the bride being Florence May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Jackson, of 129 Marlboro street, Wollaston Park and the groom, Bertram Waldo Litchfield, of Scituate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Litchfield.

The house was decorated in yellow and white; spring flowers being used in carrying out the scheme and potted plants. Amid this setting the ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Dr. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church, the ring service being used.

Mildred Litchfield, sister of the groom was bridesmaid; Horace B. Jackson brother of the bride acted as best man and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's gown was a French batiste with Irish crochet lace trimming and she carried a large bouquet of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, and a wedding supper served.

Mr. and Mrs. Litchfield are to reside at 124 Glendale road where they will be at home to their friends after July first.

NEW HOME DESTROYED

John R. Graham Heavy Loser in Bangor Fire

One of those who has sustained the greatest losses in the great Bangor fire was John R. Graham, formerly of Quincy, and now president of the big street railway company in Bangor. Mr. Graham was in Quincy on Saturday and was starting home Sunday evening. He decided to spend the night in Young's hotel and had scarcely arrived there when the first of the four telegrams arrived telling him of the fire. The other three told of the destruction of the big new Graham block, his new house on French street which he had been occupying less than a month and other property which he owned. Another block of his was in the process of construction on a site directly opposite the Graham block and that too was destroyed.

The Graham building was considered the finest in the city. It contained the rooms of the Odd Fellows and a theatre as well as several of the finest stores of the city.

The new house was also totally destroyed and many costly paintings and imported tapestries were consumed by the flames. The silverware and rugs were saved.

Miss Beatrice Graham was in Bangor while the fire was raging but was conducted to a place of safety and was cared for by friends.

Mr. Graham started for Bangor Monday evening and as yet he has not sent back any reports. It is believed that his street railway offices escaped unscathed.

The losses are all covered by insurance and Mr. Graham will probably rebuild as soon as possible.

The house where he lived up to three weeks ago was not reached by the flames. Mr. Graham feels the loss of his new home more deeply than anything else because he had found so much pleasure in planning it with the architects and it was one might say, the apple of his eye.

HOUGHS NECK.

At the whist party held in Associates hall Monday evening the prizes were won by Mrs. Boutelier, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. William Taylor, H. Darrow, W. B. Worth, Mr. Magnison, Miss Wood, consolation.

Miss Elizabeth Carroll of South Framingham was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Regan Sunday.

J. McSoley took the first trip in his launch, Anna V., on Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Wade of Boston will spend the summer at the Samoset cottage.

Fred W. Scott who is seriously ill at his home in Dorchester is still on the dangerous list. It was thought yesterday that his condition was some what better, but since last evening he has been unconscious and his recovery is still very doubtful.

Mr. Charles Morey entertained over Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Brockton.

Miss May Harvey is spending a few days with relatives in Brockton.

Miss Dorothea Finley spent Sunday with Miss Harriet Baird of Great Hill.

A benefit will be held Thursday evening at the Palms theatre for Mrs. Charles Morey. Professional talent will be exhibited and there will be several noted speakers and singers.

NOON ALARM.

The alarm from Box 47 at 12.02 this noon was for a chimney fire on the house of Louis Walters on Bates avenue. The loss was slight.

Toreador Mortally Hurt

Toulon, France, May 2.—During a bull fight here a Spanish toreador, Manuel Cortes, was tossed by a bull and mortally injured. Another fighter was seriously injured.

☞There is a great demand for tickets for "Home" the comedy to be given at Music hall tomorrow night by Mrs. Isabelle Davis and Emery L. Crane. Because the cast is entirely taken by well known people it is exciting more than usual local interest as theatricals, although always attractive, are much more entertaining when the parts are taken by home talent. Besides the tickets on sale by the committee and at Pettengill's, there will be some at the door. As all seats are reserved late comers may be sure of securing good seats.

IMPROVMENTS TO BE MADE

Finnish Congregationalists hold Business Meeting

At a business meeting of the Finnish Congregational church held Saturday evening, delegates were appointed to attend the annual conference of Finnish Congregational churches in Ashtabula Harbor, Ohio.

Several improvements will be made in the church building. It was the consensus of opinion that a larger church is needed for even at the mid-week prayer meeting the auditorium is overcrowded.

Eleven new members were voted into the membership of the church.

The pastor announced that he would give a series of special lectures week after next from Monday to Thursday evening inclusive. The subjects will deal with the care of children

A special meeting for all church members will be held Wednesday evening with an address by the pastor on "The Practical church of Jesus Christ in modern times."

On Saturday evening the quarterly business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. will be held. Officers will be elected.

The annual Spring religious festival of the Y. P. S. C. E. will be held on Sunday from 5 to 10 o'clock in the evening. The pastor will read a poem written especially for this occasion.

Dr. W. A. Govenlund will come down from Fitchburg to speak and Dr. Andrew Groop, also of Fitchburg will be the principal speaker. Delegates will be present from all the Finnish Congregational young people's societies in the state.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

S. Agnes Parker Sewing circle of the Woman's Relief Corps held a very successful sale in Protection hall Monday afternoon and evening. A large variety of fancy and useful articles were on sale and practically everything was disposed of, making the affair a financial as well as a social success. A dinner was served at noon from 11.30 to 1.30 to which over 50 people sat down.

From 5 to 6.30 a supper was held and over a hundred were served.

In the evening a very enjoyable entertainment was held. Mrs. Cora Carman, president of the Circle opened the entertainment with a few remarks. Miss Ermine Baker rendered some fine piano solos after which readings were given by Miss Lucy Morton. These were loudly encored as were also the fancy dances by Miss Grace McDonald assisted by Thomas McNally, violinist.

Songs by Miss Lillian Reed and Master Burt Reed followed the dancing and then Mrs. Isabelle Morton rendered a fine solo.

The entertainment ended with singing and dancing by Lillian and Burt Reed, who were great favorites with the audience.

JUNIOR ALLIANCE

The last meeting of the Junior Alliance for the season was held in the chapel of First church Monday evening. Reports were read by the different officers and chairmen of committees and the biennial election of officers took place with the following results:

President—Miss Mary E. Harris.
1st Vice-president—Miss Ella Packard
2nd Vice-president—Miss Minnie Hardwick
Secretary—Miss Orma Tilton.
Treasurer—Miss Elizabeth Faxon

A board of ten directors was elected to work in connection with the officers.

The Alliance will be run along different lines during the coming year. The young ladies will meet to do their sewing for charity as heretofore but more will be made of the social side than formerly. During the next season there will be frequent socials to which the members of the Junior Laymen will be invited. No definite plans have been made but the future life and success of the organization is assured.

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Last evening Quincy Chapter No. 88, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its Seventh Anniversary. The honorary members were special guests, those present being Past Grand Matron, Katherine A. Hall, Past Matron, Helen P. Hadley and Past Patron, Arthur W. Stetson. Special music by quartet composed of Past Matrons and Patrons of Quincy Chapter. One candidate was initiated. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed, at which time refrshments were served.

SPORTING NOTES

Quincy High meets Arlington High at Arlington this afternoon. The boys started on the 1.19 train all in fine trim for the game. Arlington High has one of the fastest teams around Boston and Quincy will have to play top notch ball to win.

Some of Monday's scores:

Waltham 8 Tufts 2nd 4
Volkmann 4 Allen 1.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates meet the Boston Y. M. C. A. Intermediates at Merrymount park upper field, Wednesday afternoon. Sutermeister who showed up well in Saturday's game will pitch and Holmes will be behind the bat.

When M. I. T. and Dartmouth have their dual track meet a week from Saturday, there will be at least one case of brother against brother. "Teddy" Marceau will represent Teck in one of the longer runs and "Babe" Marceau is one of Dartmouth's best milers.

Milton High school meets Massachusetts Normal Art school on the diamond at Cunningham field, Wednesday afternoon.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST.

Washing tires and washing a car are two different propositions. Water alone should be used to wash tires and as little of it as necessary. After every run the envelope should be wiped clean with a damp sponge or well-wrung cloth.

A common mistake made by motorists is to mix kerosene with the water. This may be advisable when washing the body of a car to remove mud and dust from the varnish, but it should never be done when washing tires because kerosene eats rubber. This fact can be readily proved by immersing a small piece of rubber in kerosene and allowing it to soak. The rubber will soon swell and lose its elasticity. The reason for this is apparent. Kerosene is rich in fatty properties which remain after the evaporation of the gases. Every time a tire is washed with a kerosene mixture the rubber is deprived of more of its strength.

When washing tires it is best to simply dampen a sponge with clean water, care being taken that the sponge is not soaked and dripping. Then wipe the tires dry with a cloth or handful of waste.

This, and many other phases of the tire question are intimately covered in the "Book of Bibendum" sent free to motorists upon request by the Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey.

HELD FOR AUTO TRAGEDY

Four Men Charged With Manslaughter and Drunkenness

North Attleboro, Mass., May 2.—Charges of manslaughter were made against the four occupants of the automobile which struck and caused the deaths of Miss Charlotte L. Thomas and George W. Hunt, who were engaged to be married. They were discussing their wedding plans when the auto struck them. The defendants were each held in $5000 bond for a hearing on May 20.

The defendants are Charles W. H. Day, George A. Hancock and his son, Edward K. Hancock, and Edmond Kelly. Chief of Police Wilbur charged the four men with manslaughter and drunkenness.

Trust Decisions Still Hang Fire

Washington, May 2.—The supreme court of the United States did not announce a decision yesterday in either the Standard Oil or the tobacco suits arising under the Sherman anti-trust law.

WOMEN AS PREACHERS

Switzerland Will Allow the Fair Sex to Occupy Pulpits

Berne, May 2.—The synodal council of the canton of Grisons has decided to favor the admission of women to pastorates.

This decision followed the application of a woman, who, it is understood, is a German naturalized American, for authority to preach. Her theological degrees were obtained in American and English colleges and were found to be excellent.

ALIENS SOMEWHAT MIXED

Fifty-Five Never Heard of Senior Senator From Massachusetts

Brockton, Mass., May 2.—Fifty-five applicants for naturalization, when asked by Judge Hardy who Henry Cabot Lodge was, replied that they never heard of him. Seventy-five per cent were passed.

According to some the men who were examined, Eugene N. Foss was president of the United States, Congressman Harris was a senator from East Bridgewater, the nation's laws were made in Albany and Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston was vice president of the United States.

Rain Quenches Forest Fire

Sandwich, Mass., May 2.—The forest fire which burned for two days, and which burned over 2000 acres of timber and brush land, was extinguished by a downpour of rain.

SIMPLE ESSENCE MAKES BEST HOME COUGH SYRUP.

Many families in this community have found a wonderful blessing in the shape of a home-made laxative cough syrup which is the most effective cough and cold cure obtainable anywhere at any price. A whole pint can be made for less than eighty cents so that it is 8 or 10 times cheaper than labeled mixtures. Buy of the druggist 2 1-2 ozs. Essence Mentho-Laxene and empty it into a pint bottle. Pour over a pint of granulated sugar a half-pint of boiling water, stir, cool and then fill up the pint bottle with syrup. Full directions accompany the package for usage of children and adults. Nothing breaks up a cold so quickly and a cough is immediately relieved.

LOSS PLACED AT $3,000,000

Fully One-Third of Bangor Is Reduced to Ashes

LITTLE SUFFERING REPORTED

Rain Helps Quench Flames After Large Portion of Business and Best Residence Districts Had Been Destroyed—Offers of Outside Relief Refused by Officials—But Two Lives Lost—City Not Under Martial Law

Bangor, Me., May 2.—More than one-third of the city of Bangor was burned Sunday night. The loss is now estimated at $3,000,000. Mayor Mullen thankfully answered numerous telegrams offering assistance to the effect that Bangor can care for her few needy sufferers, and that the city's business men will rehabilitate their properties in a short time.

"It has been a hard blow and much has been lost, but we are not repining. Out of the ruins will grow a new Bangor, bigger, more beneficial, more progressive."

The above declaration, made by Mayor Mullen last evening, epitomizes the fire, which was about 70 percent a rich man's fire, that is, about that portion of the total loss by careful analysis falls on men able to withstand the shock. The remainder falls on people of modest circumstances, with a few cases of total loss.

The premises occupied for commercial purposes, with the exception of the fine exchange, Graham Stearns and Morse-Oliver buildings, were either ancient brick structures or wooden structures, little better than shacks.

For so extensive a fire—about one-third of the business and a considerable portion of the residential district were destroyed—there were several unique features. Suffering was absent almost entirely, not more than a dozen families of the poorer class being burned out. There was no disorder, and the militia had no break in their round of patrols.

A canvass of the burned district gives the number of burned residences as approximately 285, while business buildings destroyed, including small wooden buildings, will not exceed 100.

Only two lives were lost. A flaming torch, as he wandered aimlessly beneath the walls of the towering Morse-Oliver building, the greatest in the city, John N. Scribner, an aged cobbler of Brewer, evaded would-be rescuers and was crushed to death when the great walls of that building toppled down upon him in view of thousands. A volunteer fireman, George Abbott, also of Brewer, was the second victim of the fire, being caught beneath debris of a toppling chimney when it collapsed and fell across a street. Injuries, too, were scarce, only two cases being treated at the hospital, both minor.

Mayor Mullen made the following statement:

"Bangor will get its breath and courage and then we will go right at building again. We are going to find out first how many there are in the city who are without homes, and then we will begin to clean up and open the streets. I have received offers of help from Boston, Portland, Rockland and other cities, but I believe that we are going to to be able to take care of our own unfortunate ones without their aid. We shall not accept any aid until we find that it is absolutely necessary."

The city was never under martial law. The mayor has been at all times in control, the presence and co-operation of the militia giving a martial character to the enforcement of law and order. To facilitate the preservation of peace, all saloons were ordered closed.

Telegrams expressing sympathy and offering aid poured in upon the mayor, Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston extending the assistance of Boston twice. But to him, as to the others, Mullen, backed by the citizens of the city, extended thanks for the offer, with word that Bangor was in a position to cope with its situation.

A resummarization of the principal buildings destroyed includes, besides six churches, the business blocks in Exchange street from York street to East Market square, and in State street from the Merrill Trust company building and T. White's to Broadway; Park street, its entire length, and a large section of Central and Franklin streets; the residential portion of the city on the west side of Broadway between State street and South Park; between the same limits in French street and from Harlow street to the east side of Broadway between State and South Park.

Although rain brought discomfort to the homeless, it was the means of bringing under control the great conflagration which spread unchecked for more than seven hours. At a time when the battle of the firemen and householders against the flames seemed hopeless, a providential shift of wind and a downpour of rain drove the fire back over the burned district and drowned out the flames.

ANOTHER FALLING OUT

Duchess of Westminster Hears Actress Had Duke In Tow

London, May 2.—It is announced in the newspapers here that Gertie Millar, London's favorite comedy star, has sufficiently recovered from her indisposition to resume her part in "The Quaker Girl."

On the day after her disappearance from the cast of "The Quaker Girl" the actress was seen alighting from a train in Paris in company with the Duke of Westminster. She wore expensive furs and was apparently in the best of health and as vivacious as ever.

It is said that the Duchess of Westminster contemplates taking steps for a legal separation by the same arrangement adopted by the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough.

IS CAUGHT TAKING PACKAGE OF $1000

Alleged Black Hand Blackmailer Under Arrest

Morris, Ills., May 2.—Oscar Collins, a wealthy stockman and banker, received a letter demanding that he leave $1000 in bills on the porch of a vacant house in a populous residence section or he would be killed and his home destroyed. Officers were stationed in houses nearby to watch the spot.

Collins deposited a box containing $1000 at the designated place and James Wood, a member of a prominent family, went to the spot, got the box and started for his home nearby. Before he had gone fifty feet the officers had him with the package in his possession.

Wood denied he knew what was in the package, and said that a companion named Ryder had asked him to get it. Ryder was later arrested, but denied all knowledge of the affair. Wood's handwriting resembles that of the threatening letter.

REPORTER FINDS FORTUNE

Madrid Scribe Loses No Time In Restoring It to Owner

Madrid, May 2.—Thomas S. Bennett of New York, who is at present staying here, yesterday lost his pocketbook in the street. It contained among other items a deposit note for 40,000 pounds on a London bank, American notes to the value of $10,000 and Spanish notes for $170.

A reporter of the Republican journal El Radical found the pocketbook near the Central telegraph office and, discovering the owner's card in it, returned it to Bennett yesterday afternoon at the hotel where Bennett is staying.

NOMINATION HELD UP

Lewis May Fail to Be Confirmed as Assistant Attorney General

Washington, May 2.—William H. Lewis of Boston, appointed by President Taft as assistant attorney general of the United States, may fail to be confirmed by the senate.

At a meeting of the senate judiciary committee the confirmation was held up and a sub-committee consisting of senators Root, Sutherland and Bacon was appointed to investigate. This means that those who oppose Lewis' appointment will have an opportunity to voice their protests.

SAYS HER HOME LIFE WAS HAPPY

Mrs. Glover on Witness Stand In Will Contest

HUSBAND WAS KIND TO HER

Says Affection Was Reciprocated and They Were Planning Trip to California When He Was Murdered—Statements of Hattie Le Blanc Are Denied—Never Planned Killing of Waltham Laundryman

Cambridge, Mass., May 2.—Lillian M. Glover and Seymour Glover, chief beneficiaries under the will of Clarence F. Glover, took the witness stand and drew a word-picture of conditions and peacefulness which, according to them, characterized life in the Glover home prior to the murder of Glover.

"Every night and every morning," according to Seymour Glover, "they kissed each other. Clarence loved his wife dearly. He called her 'Honey-bunch,' 'Dearie' and 'Honeysuckle.'" Mrs. Glover generally called Mr. Glover "Clare," according to the testimony of Carrie Parker, a bookkeeper in the Waltham laundry.

"Mr. Glover was vey kind to me, and I to him," declared Mrs. Glover. "We attended the theatre, took automobile drives and lived a very happy life. Our only troubles were over our dogs. They mussed things up, and I didn't like it. We had one bad dog named 'Larry Smith.' He bit a little girl, so we had to put him to sleep, and that was his end. On our trip to Jamaica early in 1908 we didn't have a single quarrel. At the time of my husband's death we were planning a trip to California together."

Mrs. Glover denied with emphasis the principal allegations of Hattie Le Blanc's deposition. Never, she declared, had she asked Tobie Le Blanc to kill her husband, or offered him money to do so. Never had she called her husband unprintable names in the presence of Hattie Le Blanc, nor had her husband called her vile names in return. Never had she told Hattie Le Blanc that she would kill her husband, or that she would have him put out of the way. Never had she asked her husband to put Seymour Glover in the will, or threatened to make him do so. Never had she consulted Elmore about the will, or engaged him as a lawyer. Never, until three weeks before her husband's death, had she even known that there was a will.

Mrs. Glover will take the stand again today for cross examination. It is expected that the case will go to the jury late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

FIVE LIONS BAGGED

Rainey Party Having Successful Hunting In East Africa

Nairobi, British East Africa, May 2.—News has been received here that Paul J. Rainey, the American big game hunter, and his party have met with unusual successs in the southern Gwaso Nyiro river district, about 100 miles southwest from here.

Five lions were killed by the party in three days' hunting. Of these the last, a big male, after being trailed by the pack of bear hounds which Rainey took along with him from Nairobi on April 10, suddenly charged a party of gunbearers, but was shot and killed by Rainey. The expedition, which represents the Smithsonian institute and the New York zoo, is doing much scientific work.

TO PREVENT FATALITIES

Boxers Must Be Examined Before Entering Ring In New Haven

New Haven, May 2.—Every person taking part in a boxing exhibition in this city from now on will, before entering the ring, have to undergo medical examination to determine his physical fitness to take part in the match, according to the announced decision of Chief of Police Cowles.

Chief Cowles' action is a result of the fatal termination of a boxing match at Waterbury recently. William F. Luke died at Waterbury, following his match with Joseph Clancy, and it was afterwards stated that when Luke entered the ring he was in no physical condition to fight.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Quincy Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Quincy. Follow the advice of a Quincy citizen and be cured yourself.

Charles Somers, 17 Newcomb Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to make known to other kidney sufferers, the benefit I received from Doan's Kidney Pills. I had lame back, as the result of weak kidneys for about ten years. I could get no relief from the many remedies I tried and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before long this remedy completely cured me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

REBELS TAKE THREE TOWNS

Murder and Pillage Rife in Kwangtung Province

TROOPS' LOYALTY IS DOUBTED

Plotters Against Manchu Throne Concentrating Attacks Upon Towns North and West of Canton—Bodies of Dead Left to Decompose In Streets —Two Hundred Rebels Killed

Hong Kong, May 2.—Rebellion, brigandage and anarchy are stalking through the western half of Kwangtung province, murdering, pillaging and burning. The loyal troops are fighting desperately to crush the uprising, the seriousness of which is revealed in further dispatches from Canton.

Wu Sum, a Chinese who was educated in Japan and has adopted the dress of western countries, is the leader of the rovit against the Manchu dynasty. The brigand chief, Luke of Shuntak, is at the head of a horde of outlaws, whose object is robbery, accomplished by killing.

Following the standards of these two men are Anarchist groups to whose purpose the present outbreak lends itself most advantageously. These combined forces have thrown themselves with fanatical disregard of their own lives against the troops, and since the first outbreak Thursday night much blood has been shed. Sedition is rife among certain of the troops and this is a special source of alarm, as it is feared that the disaffected soliders will desert their officers if the rebels appear to have the upper hand.

Official advices and the refugees arriving from Canton confirm the sinister reports. Bodies of the slain lie in the streets of the city. In the panic there have been few attempts to bury the dead and the stench from the decomposed bodies fills the air.

Rebels rioting in Canton were shelled yesterday by a Chinese gunboat and 200 are reported to have been killed. The families of the Europeans employed upon railroad construction in the territory dominated by the rebels will be sent to Hong King for safety.

Advices from Canton indicate that fighting between the government troops and rebels has been renewed. That part of the city without walls is reported to be burning, while several blazes have been started within the walls from flying sparks.

A large force of the rebels who succeeded in scaling the walls was surrounded and many of them captured after desperate fighting. They are being decapitated as fast as they can be taken to Namhoi jail.

The rebels have taken three important towns in the West river district, Sam-Shui, Won Chow and Wookhow, all of which they looted. Murder and pillage is reported from all parts of the district.

The prefect of Shunting and a magistrate at Sam Shui have been slain by the rebels. The town of Fat-Shan is reported to have been almost totally burned.

The revolutionaries are cutting all telegraph wires around Canton and practically all communication is cut off between there and points to the northwest.

The uprising began with a plot against the throne by anti-Manchus, who went to Canton in great numbers from Hong Kong. Their object was betrayed and the revolutionary movement was prematurely begun, following an attempt to arrest the leaders.

The revolutionaries appear to be abandoning Canton and concentrating their attacks upon the towns to the north and west. There are 30,000 troops in the capital of the province and upon the loyalty of these the hopes of the government depend.

Church Wins In Suit Brought Against It by a Woman

Washington, May 2.—Mary V. Miller, niece of Frederick Hickey, Jr., late of Baltimore, lost her fight against the First Spiritual church of Baltimore, which benefited by a provision in her uncle's will. The supreme court, to which Miss Miller appealed, declined to review a decision of the lower federal court favorable to the church.

Miss Miller contested the bequest on the ground that it was against the public policy to allow churches to be enriched by wills.

SUNDAY SERVICES

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the morning service C. E. Thompkins M. D. of Suifu China gave an address on The Missionary movement in China. This great movement he divided into three parts—Pastoral, Medical and Educational. By a beautiful illustrative narrative he showed that the language of love and kindness is known by every tongue.

A strong appeal for prayers from every Christian for the missionary in foreign lands and not a word for money must set many to thinking.

Promptly at 12.15 the Walther and Rand men's classes 82 men sung their opening hymn followed by that beautiful song "Cast thy bread upon the Waters" beautifully rendered by Mr. C. McL. Kempton.

The subjects discussed by the Walther class were Jonah and the Biggest Fish story on record, also the question whether too much money is spent on Foreign Missions.

The discussion was warm but good natured, and there were some lively tilts between Mr. Walther and Messrs. Hall, Sparrow, Bailey and others. The allotted hour was too short for so good a time.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The services at the Hall Place M. E. church were as usual on Sunday. In the morning the choir sang "Hear our prayer." The pastor, Rev. T. C. Martin, presented the plan of using the "Duplex" envelopes, as a means of raising both the current expenses and the benevolent offerings by weekly subscriptions.

The Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service. Junior League was held at 3 P. M. Enoch D. Fuller lead the Epworth League Devotional service at 6.15 on "Helps and Hindrances from within."

A praise service lasting nearly half an hour was held at the opening of the evening service. Mr. Martin makes the music at the evening service a special feature, using the famous Chapman-Alexander songs as solos, duets and choruses. The pastor presented the system of the Duplex envelopes at the evening service.

The Epworth League business meeting was held in the vestry Monday evening at 7.45. This was the annual meeting with election of officers.

On Wednesday evening the Ladies Aid will give the pastor and his family a reception in the vestry of the church. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL

The pastor preached an excellent sermon Sunday morning taking for his theme "The Consciousness of Social Responsibility or A Friend to Man." Eccl. 11:1, Matt. 12:50 and other texts were used.

In the evening a stereopticon lecure on "The American Highlanders. was delivered to a large audience

The lecture was beautifully illustrated by 50 lantern photographs and was one of the greatest interest to those who love to "lift their eyees unt the hills.'

The Intermediate C. E. society will meet this evening in the church parlor.

The regular meeting of Unity Circle of Kings Daughters will be held Tuesday evening at 7.30. Mrs. Wilson Marsh will give a short address on Mt. Pleasant Camp. There will be special music.

The Quincy Mothers association will meet in the chapel Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. William J. McCausland of Franklin street will give an address on "How Mothers should care for the eyes, ears and nose of the child" with discussion of digestion, exercise and infectious diseases.

The pastor will deliver his preparatory lecture Thursday evening at 7.45.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society will meet on Friday at 4.15.

Fourteen people have signified their intention of joining the church at the communion service next Sunday morning.

SURPRISE PRESENTATION.

The Ladies Aid of the Hall Place Methodist Episcopal church gave a surprise to Mrs. William J. McCormick at her home on Cross street. Mrs. McCormick was formerly president of the Ladies Aid. Mrs. F. L. Badger on behalf of the society presented Mrs. McCormick with a cut glass spoon tray and six glasses.

A very pleasant evening was spent by all present. Music, both vocal and instrumental and games were enjoyed until a late hour.

THAT JAMAICA GINGER CASE.

To the Editor of the Ledger:

On my arrival home from Chicago my attention was called to an article seemingly inspired, in the Ledger of April 27, concerning a seizure made of Jamaica Ginger from the warehouse of E. V. Fitts & Co. The inference of the article would seem to indicate that Mr. Fitts believes the seizure was made for some unknown reason to him and that the seizure was prompted by spite or some similar motive. As the article in question reflects not only on me but on the whole police department of Quincy as well, I ask the liberty of your space to make reply.

The seizure was made in consequence of information received while the police were making a raid on a store, that had been selling Jamaica Ginger as a beverage. The Jamaica Ginger found was in bottles not labelled according to the public statutes, Chapter 259 of the Acts of 1907. Some of these bottles were shown to the justices of our district court and two justices looked into the law covering such cases, in a very thorough manner, with the result that the police were told to consult with the authorities of the state board of health, relative to the selling of such unlabelled goods. The state board of health was consulted and they in turn, consulted with the office of the Attorney general of the state. The latter authority sustained the opinion of the judges of our local court and the police were requested to proceed against the people selling this Jamaica Ginger in Quincy.

At the store house of the Fitts Company were found 34 dozen bottles of Jamaica Ginger without the label as was thought necessary by the judicial authorities. Jamaica Ginger in other bottles, properly labelled was found in the same store house but was not touched.

The case against Mr. Fitts went to court and he was held for the Grand Jury. During the trial in the lower court, the case turned on the point whether or not the Jamaica Ginger as put up in the unlabelled bottles, was a proprietary preparation. The Judge decided it was and the opinion that went from the office of the Attorney General of the state to the state board of health also decided it was. That being the case the disposition of the local court was to hold Mr. Fitts for the Grand Jury. No bill was found by the grand jury. The Ledger article says, "No liquor case could be found under the pure food laws." No attempt was made to make a liquor case under the pure food law. The case was simply a question as to whether or not the Jamaica Ginger was a proprietary preparation, if so it should have been marked according to the statute referred to above. The case did not go to trial in the upper court because the grand jury returned a "no bill." Under the circumstances the police could not do other than they did, and do their duty. The police department was not actuated by any personal interest in the matter as your article would imply. The police department was simply trying to serve the citizens of Quincy to the best of their ability and in doing this they had the assurances of the judges of our court, the state board of health and the attorney general's office of the state of Massachusetts that they were acting in the right. The failure of the grand jury to find a bill did not settle, judicially, the legal merit of the case. Mr. Fitts was fully informed of all the facts in the possession of the police, at the time the raid was made so it could not be, as the Ledger article says, that the raid was made for some reason unknown.

Very respectfully,
Alfred W. Goodhue.

ATTENTIONS UNWELCOME

Providence Man Slays Woman He Admired and Kills Self

Providence, May 2.—Mrs. Katie Beatuglio, 37, and the mother of three children, is dying, and Luigi di Parlo, an admirer, whom she repulsed, is dead, self-slain, as the result of an encounter in Charles street. Only two weeks ago she had Di Parlo arrested and put under $700 bonds to keep the peace because he told her he would kill her.

Di Parlo had been an unwelcome visitor at Mrs. Bertuglio's. He was 45, married, and had four children, so she put him out of the house. He said he'd kill her and she believed him, although she had police protection, because he had a bad reputation and was said to have killed a policeman in Brooklyn.

ALLEGED INTERVIEW A PURE INVENTION

Corral Denies Making Charges Against America

Paris, May 2.—Vice President Corral of Mexico arrived here yesterday afternoon and denied that he had ever given an interview at Santander or elsewhere in which he criticized Americans as having fomented the revolution in Mexico.

On April 27, El Imparcial, of Mexico City, printed a dispatch from Santander, Spain, in which Corral was quoted as saying that the revolution in Mexico was fomented by Americans desirous of intervention by the United States. According to the dispatch the vice president said that in the case of intervention all Mexicans, regardless of party, would unite to fight the common enemy. As soon as he reached here Corral repudiated the remarks credited to him, saying:

"I have never given an interview at Stantander or elsewhere criticizing Americans as having fomented the rebellion in Mexico. The alleged interview was a pure invention, unworthy of notice."

BRIEFS

Mrs. Martin, wife of the Rev. T. C. Martin arrived at her home in West Quincy from Watertown on Friday.

The contract for the Montclair school building will probably be signed Wednesday.

"Home" a three-act comedy is to be given at Quincy Music hall tomorrow night by local talent.

The Men's Club of Christ church held its last meeting of the season in the Parish house Monday evening.

The entertainment committee of John Hancock lodge is making arrangements for a second annual fair to be held the last of the month.

The expressmen who were granted liquor permits by the Council Monday night were at City Hall bright and early this morning looking for their license.

Friends will be pleased to learn that Mrs. G. C. Shunk of Safford street who has been quite ill is improving and able to sit up a few hours each day.

Friends of Emery L. Crane are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to his enterpretation of Mr. Dorrison, the old gentleman in the play 'Home" to be given Wednesday night at Music hall.

A free stereopticon lecture with over 300 views of the International Schools of Scranton, Pa., and some interesting orations by vice president C. E. Lawrance will be given in Union hall tonight.

Bicycles have by no means gone out of fashion as they are too useful to be retired from service. H. L. Kincaide & Co. report good sales of the makes carried by them and today are offering special prices on them.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes of Wollaston avenue sailed Saturday morning on the Romanic direct for Naples. They will spend several months touring Europe returning by way of Germany and England the middle of the summer.

The last initiatory for the season of John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., will be held Wednesday evening. Those in charge are hoping there will be a large attendance to give the officers a royal welcome for the good work they have done the past winter.

It is to be hoped many women will avail themselves of the opportunity offered them tomorrow afternoon to add to their fund of knowledge which is permanent and useful by attending the lecture of Dr. William J. McCausland which will be given under the auspices of the Mothers' Association, Wednesday afternoon in Bethany chapel. Although the lecture is free it is the result of years of study and observation by a well known physician and will be of incalculable value to those who hear it. This will be the last meeting of the season.

Tom Young of Brighton who has been seriously ill at a Boston hotel was removed Monday to the home of his brother Edric F. Young of Eliot avenue, Belevue Park. Mr. Young is in the care of a trained nurse.

The many friends and relatives of Mr. Stephen Hobart of High street called and helped him celebrate his 86th birthday on Sunday. Mr. Hobart is one of the oldest men in South Quincy and is in very good health for his age. He received many pretty postals and gifts also a sum of money.

An enjoyable song service was held in the Atlantic M. E. church Sunday evening under the direction of the pastor Rev. A. E. Dorr. There were special soloists and a violinist Miss Mabel Burr and Miss Jula Barber sang "Lead Kindly Light," and "Jesus Lover of my Soul." Miss Georgia Cheney sang "Rock of Ages" and Mr. Bernhart of Boston sang "Crossing the Bar." "Abide with Me." was sung by the congregation.

Sunday was celebrated as Girl's day in the Atlantic M. E. Sunday school. The program committee was composed of Misses Mary Beale, Marguerite Perkins, Mabel Stewart. Those on the invitations were Misses Alice Beale, Mabel Crockette, Tina Libby; Decorations, Miss Lucia Cheney, Dorothy Bates, Edna Smith; reception committee, Mrs. Maude Andrews, Misses Mabel Cheney, Marion Green. Mrs. Arthur R. Poquett was superintendent and Miss Emily Keeler librarian. Mrs. Fred Burr's class of young ladies sang two selections, and Miss Maud Cheney read "God wants the Girls."

A. L. Baker reports the following recent sales of real estate in Wollaston: Capt. O. Thatcher, North Central avenue, house and 5,000 feet of land to W. J. King of Milton for residence; George E. Black, two apartment houses on Blake street to F. E. Harlow of Dorchester; Ellen V. Douse a three-apartment house, 170 Billings road to C. L. Baker of Mexico; a two-apartment house, 171 Billings road to L. M. Baker of New York, the latter four for investment; Miss E. I. Nesbitt house and 6,000 ft., of land, Marion st., to G. W. Smalley of Smalley Granite Co., Mr. Smalley buys for residence. The popularity of the Wollaston Co-operative bank is seen in the fact that the demand for local loans equal and many times exceed the supply of many for sale.

WITH FEDERALS ON WATCH

Daring Rebel Leader Enjoys Himself In a Mexican City

Torreon, Mex., May 2.—While federal sentries kept a sharp lookout for the approach of rebels, Luis Mova, leader of the revolutionists in this state, deliberately entered the city, inspected the fortifications, leisurely drank a few glasses of beer in a saloon, and then attended a moving picture show.

The daring insurrecto rode to the outskirts of the city in an automobile. There he left his car, engaged a public carriage and drove slowly about the city. He engaged in no conversation, and his appearance was not such as to excite suspicion.

At the edge of the town he resumed his place in the big car, which had been waiting for him, and drove off into the hills to rejoin his forces.

COLLEGE COMEDY JAPANESE PANTOMIME

"Up to Freddie" and "In Old Japan" for Benefit of Quincy Ramblers

Great Credit is due Miss Hazel Jennings for Success of Affair

Seldom has a Quincy audience been given an opportunity to see a dramatic performance given by local talent carried through with such great success as that of Tuesday evening. The Quincy Ramblers were more than fortunate in securing the services of so many friends who were willing to spend long hours in rehearsals to prepare themselves for the finished performances which were given. Music hall was well filled with an appreciative audience which was generous in its applause for all who participated in making the evening enjoyable.

The first play "Up to Freddie" was a comedy in two acts. Freddie surely was up against a pretty stiff proposition when, after four charming young ladies had turned him down, each reconsidered and accepted. It sure was up to Freddie but he was equal to the occasion and kept his appointment with all of them at the same time introducing his newly wedded wife, who had been the dignified and gracious chaperon, Miss Prince. Another element in the play which was especially well acted, was the affair between Grenville Lodge and Marguerite Burnett.

Lodge was a young playwright who lacked experience in matters of the heart and in order to gain a little knowledge proposed to the charming Marguerite in a very humorous scene. She took him up immediately and then he finds that it's up to him as well as Freddie. He makes good in his explanation and gradually the two young people fall in love with one another. The affair is brought to a climax when she reconsiders her acceptance and finally Lodge convinces himself and Marguerite as well that it is impossible for them to live apart.

Miss Ruth Packard as "Marguerite" was exceptionally good and deserves a great deal of credit for her acting which was far above mediocrity. The part of "Fweddie Thatchah" was taken with great success by Curtis Arnold.

Freddie had the appearance and speech of a fop but in the end proved himself no such fool as he looked by showing that man not only proposes but also disposes.

The four charming young ladies he disposed of carried themselves very well indeed and each one deserves a whole lot of credit for the excellent manner in which she represented the type of girl called for in her part.

Everett Rhodes as Grenville Lodge and Lyman Morrison as John Stanhope filled the requirements of their parts very ably.

Two specialties were introduced one a duet by Miss Ruth Packard and William Murphy with Curtis Arnold as accompanist and the other a duet with mandolin accompaniment by Miss Packard and William Murphy.

The cast:

Grenville Lodge, an amateur playwright, Everett Rhodes
John Stanhope, who starts the game, Lyman H. Morrison
Fweddie Thatchah, a most pwopah and iwwepwoachable young man, Curtis Arnold
Miss Prince, a dignified and gracious chaperon, Helen Mitchell
Marguerite Burnett, one who catches and is caught, Ruth Packard
Mary Stanhope, sister to Jack, Edith Mullen
Patty Huger, a fascinating Southerner, Doris Cummings
Dorothea Chisholm, timid and tenderhearted, Dora Bean
Leonore Crowninshield, dignified and averse to mosquitoes, Frances Curtin

Before the second play was put on, Ryder Gay and Leo Joyett gave a very funny little sketch introducing a number of jokes and a couple of songs, "I want to be in the land of Harmony" and "I lost my girl." Ryder Gay did the singing and his partner played the accompaniments on the piano. The audience liked the sketch very much and wanted an encore. The pair responded and sang "Lovin' Joe."

The second play was a pantomime "In Old Japan" written and staged by Miss Hazel Jennings who took the leading role herself with wonderful ability.

Miss Ella Packard as Watairs, the jealous lover took her part very well and George Jennings in the character of Totsu carried out his part with ability.

Miss Alice Simmons made a distinguished looking naval officer and Miss Anna Bjorkman a dainty little maid to Purple Eyes. The Geisha girls executed the Japanese dances

ENJOYABLE MAY PARTIES

Entertainment, Supper and May Pole Dance

FIRST CHURCH

The annual May party given to the children of the First church by the Sunday school was held Tuesday. In the afternoon the younger children met in the chapel at 4 o'clock where a pleasing entertainment was given by Miss Ann V. Baker of Boston. Miss Baker gave a very clever entertainment which was greatly enjoyed by the children as well as by some of the parents who were present. Her program included crayon sketches, clay modelling and shadow pictures and was very fine.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the children were given a supper in the dining room. They then adjourned to Colonial hall where they enjoyed dancing from 7 to 8 o'clock the dancing party being matronized by Miss Georgiana C. Lane.

In the evening the older pupils of the Sunday school enjoyed dancing at Colonial hall from 8 to 11 o'clock. Music was furnished by Merrill's orchestra of Wollaston and the party was matronized by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann and Miss Georgiana C. Lane.

CHRIST CHURCH

The annual May party of the Junior Auxiliary of Christ church was held in the Parish house Tuesday afternoon.

The May pole dance was a very pretty feature with all the children decked with colored tissue paper and the pole decorated with streamers of all colors. Amy Torrey, president of the auxiliary was queen of the May. About forty children participated in the dance. After it was over all were seated and refreshments were served. The children all had a delightful afternoon in carrying out the old custom and the spectacle was surely a pretty one with forty children, cheeks aglow and eyes sparkling, entering into the dance with enthusiasm.

SECOND NIGHT OF BAZAAR

Another Large Attendance Pleasing Entertainment

There was another large attendance Tuesday evening at the second night of St. John's bazaar but not quite as much of a crush as there was on the opening night. Things have settled down to a business basis and everything is running as smoothly as clock work.

All of the tables were well patronized and the young ladies with books were just as persistent as ever in securing people to take chances on the many articles that are being disposed of by books.

There are so many articles that are being disposed of by this method that as soon as the books have been filled the gifts are being awarded although in most cases the winners are leaving their prize on exhibition.

Seldom if ever has there been a bazaar where there were so many useful articles to be disposed of as here and the one who gets them will be indeed fortunate for they are all well worth trying for.

The entertainment Tuesday evening was in charge of the district one committee. The program included a solo by William H. Wall of Weymouth who sang with great effect the tower song from Il Trovatore, fancy dancing by the little Misses Katherine and Lillian Green from St. Francis DeSales parish of Boston, vocal solo by Miss Rose Maura and a solo by Mrs. Matthew Ott, Mrs. John J. Reardon was the accompanist.

Another pleasing program is announced for tonight.

STRIKE SETTLED.

The strike among the granite workers at Hardwick, Vt., which has been in progress for a month has been settled, a five year wage agreement having been signed. It is understood that concessions were made by both sides.

I. D. I. GIRLS.

The I. D. I. girls met at the home of Miss Maud Johnson, Granite street Tuesday evening for their regular monthly meeting. The first part of the evening was spent in sewing after which all gathered around the piano for a session of song. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The club is planning an auto straw ride to take place as soon as the weather grows warmer and the young men are beginning to wonder if they will be invited. The girls are also planning to give a play later in the season.

WHO WILL PLANT A TREE?

The Ledger has received a gift of 500 to 600 catalpa trees which will be given to any one who will plant them. Here is a grand opportunity for the school children to have an arbor day this week and set out a tree in the school yard or at home. The trees will be given free to any one calling at the Ledger office, young or old, the only restriction being a limit of three trees to each person.

INSPECTOR APPOINTED.

FLYING CLASS AT SQUANTUM

A Sexoplane will be a Feature of this Year's Meet

That the Squantum aviation field will be a busy place from now on until the aviation week in August is an assured fact. A flying machine arrived on the grounds Tuesday which was a notice to the pupils of the Burgess-Curtis Aeronautical school to sit up and take notice and would be Grahame Whites are numerous.

The Record says: There wasn't any bell this morning to summon the pupils of the Burgess-Curtis Aeronautical school to their studies on the aviation field at Squantum. But at 8 A. M., when the flying machine arrived on the field, the pupils cames running from quickly erected hangars, saying over to themselves "aviation—the art of flying, work hard, fly high and we'll all be Grahame-Whites."

Task master and instructor-in-chief W. Starling Burgess, who flies in the air at Marblehead when everybody else tries to fly over the water called his pupils.

Now the Squantum field would be a desert indeed without Brother Merrill so let's hope he quickly responded.

"Come on all you other high flyers," cried pedagogue Burgess; "Harry Atgood leave Lynn, 'Ed' Hammond desert Boston beans and Browning. 'Doc' Reynolds, you are wanted at Atlantic, not at Amherst, and even Harry Brown of Jamaica Plain get on your wings and learn to fly."

With such an aggregation of near star Grahame-Whites', the "daring English aviator" was almost forgotten. What is more, "Charlie" Hamilton, of the dollars and flying fame, will be at the school in a few days.

Tiers have been removed from the grounds and the get-away cleared, so it looks like clear sailing for the aviation beginners.

The first international aviation meet to be held in this country, is scheduled to take place during the Harvard- Boston aero meet at Atlantic, Aug. 28 to Sept. 4.

The contestants will be Mlle. Helene Dutrieu, representing France; Mrs. "Jimmie" Martin of England, and Mrs. C. F. Willard, representing the United States.

Mlle. Dutrieu will use a Farman biplane Mrs. Martin a Grahame-White biplane and Mrs. Willard a Willard-Curtiss biplane, designed by her husband, the famous bird-man from this city.

Meanwhile Jean M. Alleas, a young Frenchman is putting the finishing touches on a "sexoplane" which has six supporting surfaces.

Alleas has embodied his views in a novel plane and has also invented a motor delivering 30-horse power, and will use two of these motors on his aerial craft. Should the plane be a success, Alleas stands in line for the Gould prize of $15,000 offered to the aviator who should make a successful flight using two engines separate from each other.

Four years ago he began the construction of his model and finally secured the placing of capital in the venture, the Alleas Aviation Company being incorporated last month with a capitalization of $50,000, the officers being Jean M. Alleas, president; Joseph Brettler, secretary; and Emile Coulon, treasurer.

Alleas slaims for his plane that it possesses innate stability, and to prove his contention illustrated with his model, the small machine dropping bow down toward the ground for a distance of a foot, then righting itself and floating gently to the ground. He claims also that with the two motors there is less danger of ancident, as there is always a reserve supply of power in case of damage to one motor or of sudden gusts of wind.

The main planes of the sexoplane are at the top and measure 26 feet long by 8 feet wide. They are arranged in tandem formation, while directly beneath them are four smaller planes, 12 by 8 feet in dimensions, which are used as ailerons or elevating planes by means of a unique system of control, four wheels regulating the planes and engines being situated just in front of the aviator.

The construction of the frame work is of tubular steel, the weight of the sexoplane being about 800 pounds, the total spread of surface being 760 square feet. The engines are of the two-cylinder, double-opposed type, similar to the Clement-Bayard, and are connected to the propellers by means of a chain and shaft drive. The propellers are three-bladed, also of Alleas's design, and are braced by six steel tubes. Four 28-inch wheels act as alighting gear.

Alleas expects that he and his assistant, Joseph Founau, will have the machine completed within a few days when a trial flight will be attempted on the marshes in front of the hangar. Mrs. Alleas is as enthusiastic over the project as her husband and declares that if he does not make the flight she will do so.

BENJAMIN LANGHORN.

The funeral of Benjamin Langhorn was held Tuesday afternoon from his late home on Quincy street and was largely attended, including Clan McGregor, O. S. C. which attended in a body. The services were conducted by Rev. Richard E. Armstrong after which the burial service of the Clan was held. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

ACTIVITY IN BUILDING

Quincy Experiencing Unusual Active Building Boom

That Quincy is experiencing a growing building boom is evident from the report of Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker for the four months ending May 1. During this period 215 permits have been issued by his department, largely for buildings and cottages. The total value of buildings contemplated by these permits being $442,142 as against $300,510 for the corresponding period last year.

Of the total $254,312 is for dwelling houses and $43,200 for cottages.

Month	Permits	Value
January	18	31,345
February	18	31,345
March	75	99,135
April	84	239,437
	215	$442,142

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Civil war is raging again in 15,000 newspapers.

Let us, then, be up and doing with a heart for fishing bait!

Every one is planning to leave home tonight to see "Home," after which they will see each other home.

Mr. Harrison says it feels natural to be mayor of Chicago. A man will get used to anything.

Governor Wilson is after more reforms. What a wicked place New Jersey must have been before he redeemed it!

When the devil started quoting Scripture, adequate precedent was set for Abe Ruef to teach a Bible class of California convicts.

The Dutch have hauled down our flag on Palmas, but the impression prevails in this country that the island did not pay Uncle Sam for keeping the flag pole painted.

Iowa took a long time to break the senatorial deadlock, but did a good job of it in the end. One might think judging from the results that it had studied the Illinois method and then had tried to see how differently it could act.

THE DYNAMITE TRIALS.

Every organization, as well as every individual, in the slighest way related to the trials at Los Angeles, for alleged dynamite outrages, owes it to the country and to its own personal interest to give up every scrap of evidence in its possession that can bear on these charges.

This long record of crime is a tax on every workingman in the country. The cost does not come out of the concerns made the victims. They figure the chances of violence as a part of the cost of the business, and the people have to pay a higher price for construction work.

The knowledge that there are among us these desperate anarchists, discourages capital from new enterprises, helps make business dull, and tends to throw men out of employment.

This country still depends to a large extent on Europe for capital for new enterprises. We can not draw European funds here, if we permit the enemies of society to destroy property right and left.

BRAINTREE TOWN MEETING.

The town meeting Monday night was called to order at 7.50 o'clock by Moderator Benjamin H. Woodsum. It was not as well attended as previous ones but made up in snap and ginger what it lacked in numbers.

The water question was the subject under discussion and consumed the entire evening. There was some oratory, more statistics, lots of sarcasm, several personalities and much comedy. It is a serious question and is receiving careful thought by the citizens but the tension during the evening was relieved many times by a hearty laugh.

The report of the previous committee was not accepted and after nearly three hours' talk the following motion was carried:

That a committee of nine citizens including the members of the Water Board and two gentlemen from each precinct be appointed by the moderator.

This committee to investigate the Metropolitan or other water systems, driven wells, etc., also the purity and quality of any water system and the annual expenses of operating and report at some future meeting.

Meeting adjourned at 10.35 until Monday, May 8, at 7.45 P. M.

BOWLES WANTS HARBOR BOARD

Should Expend $30,000,000 to Develop Harbor

"You gain nothing by wasting time on details such as the chamber of commerce devotes much of its time to; what you need is votes of legislators for the creation of a board of port administration."

"Charles S. Mellen has said that if Boston will provide the facilities he will provide the business, but to make Boston harbor the equivalent of New York harbor much is to be done in addition to building piers and warehouses" said Admiral Bowles.

"Boston should seek to be a deep-water port, with more than 40 feet of water in all channels at all tides. A drydock is a necessary equipment, and one of the best evidences of development, but the city has no authority to go ahead in such development.

"Even the harbor and land commission has no authority for initiative and no responsibility in such a matter, although you will probably admit that development should be made on the basis of public ownership.

"Obviously the thing to do is to create a port administration and give it power to take property, invest it with the power of initiative and let it take charge of the whole project.

"The thing for members of the chamber of commerce to do is to go out and get one vote each in the legislature for a port administration board."

Admiral Bowles estimated that $30,000,000, instead of $3,000,000, will be none too much money to spend for the proper development of the harbor. He pointed out the admirable location of the harbor, and said that the "slowing down" point of transatlantic steamers is only 14 miles from the inner harbor here, while at New York the distance is nearly twice as far from the inner harbor.

COLLEGE COMEDY

very prettily and one could well imagine himself in the Sunrise kingdom.

During the performance, music was furnished by Miss Mary Beale and Max Pinkham, violinists and Miss Avis Tobey, accompanist.

The costumes and settings were very beautiful and most of them were real Japanese.

Miss Jennings gave an unusual bit of fine acting in the part of Purple Eyes, simulating the emotions of fear and anger, love and anguish with great ability and finally giving a wonderful scene in the death struggle

The cast:

Lieutenant Burton, American naval officer, Alice Estelle Simmons
Totsu, father of Purple Eyes and antagonistic to Americans, George Jennings
Watairs, cousin and betrothed of Purple Eyes, Ella Packard
Cherry Blossoms, maid of Purple Eyes, Anna Bjorkman
Setair, chief geisha, Esther Briggs
Nara, Lena Clark
Chrysanthemum, Dorothy Packard
Jonquil, Ella Melville
Oyouke, Helen Croucher
Iris, Hazel Harris
Yetsu-San, Beryl Turner
Purple Eyes, in love with Lieut. Burton, Hazel Jennings

After the play was concluded the floor was cleared and dancing was in order from 11 until 1. The Wollaston orchestra furnished the music. Philip Rice was floor director and the following young ladies were aids: Misses Grace Blake, Marion MacCloon, Eugenie LeClaire, Louise Wilson, Marion Mitchell, Gertrude Mullen and Sybil Marsh.

These young ladies also acted as ushers.

The evening was most enjoyable for all and was marked by the greatest success. M. C. Burton, manager of the Ramblers deserves great credit for his energy in preparing the entertainment. Miss Jennings who coached the casts so efficiently and took part in the pantomime also deserves commendation. Mr. Burton was assisted greatly also by Miss Helen Mitchell and Miss Edith Mullen.

That the Ramblers should fail to "deliver the goods" on the diamond after receiving such splendid support from their friends would be an utter impossibility.

Why Use Two Pairs of Glasses?
Those who have worn glasses for many years, find after passing the age of forty-five, that stronger glasses are required for close work.
To obviate the use of two pairs of glasses, what are known as bifocal lenses are resorted to.
"KRYPTOKS" are double vision lenses without line or cement, that give clear vision both for distance and close work, thus obviating the use of two pairs of glasses. They are worn without confusion after the first few days and prevent the annoyance of carrying two pairs of glasses. They add strength and vigor to the eyes by stimulating clear vision at all times.

Cost Plus 5%
Means Better Values and Greater Variety Than Ever
Regal Shoes, as our advertisements have told you, are now sold at cost, plus 5 per cent.
The small cost of selling is of course included, and if the result happens to figure out at an "odd" price—like $3.85, for example, the price is $3.85. The shoe is not "built up" with unnecessary extras to sell at $4, nor is it skinned down to sell at $3.50.
Being freed from the former necessity of building shoes to sell at prices fixed in advance, Regal designers can now give their whole attention to producing the best possible combinations of materials and styles to fill the many different demands.
As a result, there will be greater variety and better values in Regal Shoes than ever.

MAKARIAS HARDY SOCIAL

Fellows Present Dr. Hardy with Handsome Travelling Bag

Sunday morning a number of the fellows of the Makaria fraternity held what they called a "Hardy Social" the social was one complimentary to Dr. E. N. Hardy who was presented with a handsome travelling bag with Dr. Hardy's initials in brass on the side.

Charles Grassick made the presentation speech. He alluded to the many pleasant hours that the fraternity had spent with Dr. Hardy and how much they were indebted to him as their teacher, and how much they deplored his going.

Dr. Hardy responded and in thanking the fellows for their gift told of his regrets at parting with such a good lot of fellows. He also spoke of the many pleasant gatherings of the Makarias he had attended and of the many pleasant and profitable hours they had spent together.

Brief remarks were also made by T. King, D. King and others.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The regular monthly business meeting of Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church was held in the vestry, Monday evening, at 8 o'clock with the president in the chair. After the devotional exercises the secretary's report was read and accepted and the treasurer's report for the year was also accepted.

It being the annual meeting yearly reports were received from the four vice presidents. The first vice president reported a fairly good attendance at the devotional services and good work done during the year; the second vice president reported a good sum of money paid for missions at the close of the conference year; the third vice president was absent but report was received of money in treasury of that department; the fourth vice president reported that six of the business meetings last year were held in the different homes and the remainder in the vestry, the members contributing toward the expense of refreshments. There were also two home socials and one entertainment under the direction of this department. The fourth vice president also reported the farewell reception to Rev. Carl H. Raupach in April and presentation of Epworth League pin. Eleven new members were received last year.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President re-elected J. M. Francis, 1st vice president, Hilda Francis; 2d vice president, Clyde Hannant; 3d vice president, M. E. Hodgkinson; 4th vice president, C. B. Hodgkinson; secretary, Camille Fuller and treasurer, Ada Williams.

1911 QUINCY DIRECTORY.

We are pleased of the change to be made in our City Directory this year, owing to the new management of the publishers, W. A. Greenough & Co.

W. F. Dinsmore, who for seventeen years has been with Sampson & Murdock Co. publishers of the Boston and many other directories, will have charge of the compiling and printing, while Charles H. Everett, (fifteen years with the same firm) will look after the interests of our advertisers, which we hope will include every live business man in Quincy.

The new book will be of a smaller and more convenient size, the style of type will be changed, all deaths and removals from the city will be recorded as far as it is possible to obtain, and no pains will be spared to make this edition accurate and more complete than ever before.

The support of this directory heretofore has depended greatly upon Boston merchants who are always anxious to draw the business from our local enterprises, and it should not be so, we therefore hope to see every conspicuous space occupied this time by up-to-date Quincy firms.

If 3,000 business men realize from their ads in the Boston Directory, why can not our local merchants see where they will profit by the same method in Quincy?

One of the heavy contributors to the relief fund started at the mass meeting in Bangor, Me., Tuesday to raise funds for the general relief was John R. Graham formerly of Quincy, who contributed $1,000 although a heavy loser by the fire.

IN FASHION'S REALM

New Skirts Fuller but Weighted to Maintain Straight Lines.

Jackets Very Short and the Eton Much in Vogue.

As the season advances it becomes more evident that women are going to be allowed to do very much as they please in the way of choosing clothes. Of course, if a woman tries to look old-fashioned and out of date she can do it, but if she will just eliminate flaring skirts and long coats she can exercise her taste and wear out most of her second-best clothes without violating the accepted fashions.

The costume that is opposed to the present styles consists of a full-plaited skirt that blows with every wind, which has a placket down the middle of back showing hooks and eyes, a long coat that flares at the hem and is double-breasted, and a hat that has a bandeau in it and shows the hair.

Each one of these details is impossible if a woman cares anything about clothes; combined they are hopeless. Only the woman who cares nothing about the fashions will have preserved these garments from another day in order to wear them now, or, worse still, have bought them in defiance of the existing rules of dress.

It is a temptation to discuss the woman who is never able to compromise on clothes. Whatever is new is to her ugly, extreme and unladylike, and she cannot see a middle course; so she insists upon wearing the clothes that spell comfort and fashion to her, merely because they happen to suit her taste. It is difficult to persuade a woman who likes a full-plaited skirt that it is not only heavy but ungraceful in the way it blows with the wind, and flings itself out of place with every movement of the foot.

She would consider it immodest to wear a narrow skirt cut short enough to show her ankles, but she does not consider it undignified to wear a four-yard skirt in a high wind which is blowing it around her in away that is far more exposing than the trig little skirt that stays where it is put. It is her bent of mind, and all the sermons on the subject would not persuade her otherwise.

But this is a digression from the main subject; the point is that there is such a wide choice of fashions and materials in every garment that a woman need no longer dress like her neighbor, and she has a chance to follow out the demands of her figure and her taste.

Coats are short, but there is no definite length. She can have a bolero, an Eton, a jacket to the hips or one six inches below. She can work this out to suit the lines of her figure. If the single-breasted effect is decidedly unbecoming she can adopt the style that has the long revers to the waist, and has two fastenings, double-breasted, from the waist to hips.

In skirts she can do almost anything she pleases, except widen the hem. Even this dictum does not mean that she must keep it under two yards, as the extremists do; she can let it run several inches over, but the effect must be that of a straight line from under the arms to hem, and she must put weights in the latter so that it will not fly. It is really not so much the narrowness at the bottom as the straightness of line that the styles demand, and this is obtained by widening the hem in such a manner that it pulls the seams down straight and remains correctly placed, no matter what the wearer does.

The French designers put a light steel chain into the hem of the lining in their house gowns to keep the silhouette of the figure sharply in relief. Over these they drape transparent material. Many women who read about the new fashions and who see them off the living models cheerfully say that full skirts are back again; that gathers are used, and that we shall no longer have the tubelike silhouette. They do not take into consideration, or rather they do not know, that this trick of slightly gathering gauzy drapery into an overskirt does not give more thickness or impart more curves to the figure than a plain skirt; the lining is so slim, narrow, and tight, and weighted to remain in that position that the result is more tubelike than ever.

It is doubtful whether this innovation of the full skirt over a scanty lining is not far more suggestive in revealing a woman's figure than the other plan of having the lining and an opaque material cut by one pattern, without gathers or plaits.

Among the new touches on all the skirts, whatever pattern is chosen, is a band of wide, round scallops below the knees. These are finished with heavy silk floss either in the tone of the gown or in a contrasting color. This is worked out on satin, thin cloth, and the veilings which go by various names. When the method is used on a walking suit, as is done often, embroidery is omitted and braid or a binding of satin is substituted.

A blue serge suit, for instance, has a drop skirt of surah with a ten-inch band of serge as a hem, and over this is a straight tunic fastened in the back under a broad box plait, attached to the high-waisted lining at the top, and finished at the hem with scallops outlined with heavy black silk braid.

The short jacket, which barely touches the hips, is single breasted and fastened with gunmetal bullet buttons through long buttonholes that are bound with the braid. These buttonholes, by the way, are placed fully an inch back from the edge of the coat.

It is usually lined with a brilliant contrasting color, and some alert women have a trick of turning it over from collarbone to bust to give the effect of a brilliant single rever.

There is a bias effect at the waist, obtained through bands of braid which end at the back under bullet buttons. The hem of this coat is scalloped across the middle of the back only, and bound with the braid. The sleeves are narrow, are cut in one with the shoulder, and end below the elbow in scallops and braid.

This is a distinctly new and original model, and should serve well for those who want something out of the common-place. It is not difficult to make, and can be worked out from this description on a regular pattern.

Scallops on house gowns are very much in favor, and if one considers it too much trouble to overcast them with silk floss, they can be edged with galloon of metal or silk. The shops offer such a wide quantity of these trimmings that one has no trouble in finding just the thing to suit each gown.

The lavish offering of lace by the shops that has rather taken the fashionable world by storm has brought about many ways of using this material. So far there has been no showing of it in robes for the evening, a fashion that was once so universal every one tired of it. Given time this may come back, and then we shall probably have the same epidemic as before, for nothing so pleased the woman who did not like trouble about her clothes as the purchase of a lace robe that could be dropped over any lining.

She felt she had achieved a wonderful evening gown that sprung up, mushroom-like, in a few hours. The method of employing lace on skirts is the feature of the fashions that interests dressmakers now. An actress who is more famous for her clothes than for her talents has exploited a frock in which the use of lace is carried out. The lower skirt, which is of messaline, is trimmed with three extra wide flounces of French lace, the lower one of which trails on the floor in quite the old-time manner.

The outer garment is a rather snug fitting bodice and tunic of the new coral pink satin. This is open from above the knees to hem, and is wrapped across the hips and fastened with a cabochon of silver and crystals. The bodice is a deep V, back and front, and there is a wide fichu of the lace outlining the decolletage. The short sleeves are made of two flounces of lace, hanging well away from the arm, and dropped over them is an upper sleeve of the satin bordered with silver lace.

Naturally, this gown is too ornate and expensive for the majority of women, but it points a fashion. One can copy the idea at much less cost, and again one likes to know just what is being done by the best dressed women, in order that one may follow it, even from afar. The woman who wanted a striking black and white gown for any indoor occasion could copy this model in white lace and black satin; black lace flounces with a black satin tunic would also be effective, using black tulle edged with lace for the fichu and substituting jet for silver in the ornaments.

It is difficult to get away from the unusual sight that gowns now present of having the trimming arranged in a one-sided fashion. A coat will have only one rever, or if there are two revers they would be of entirely different materials. Bodices have oversleeves made of thin fabrics, if they are for the evening or indoor wear, and for ordinary purposes they are trimmed differently. Often opposing but harmonious colors will be used bright pink will be put on the left sleeve and king's blue on the right sleeve.

Skirts are draped at one side or caught with a cabochon, while the other side is left quite plain. Elaborate panels with braiding and buttons and the introduction of colored material will be used on the rght side of a skirt, and the left side will look as though it were not even a poor relation.

The tailors do not hesitate to put a wide band of braid upon one sleeve of a coat and leave it off the other. They have not yet got to adding a turnover cuff to one wrist and omitting it at the other, but they may come to this if the keep up their eccentricities.

It is not new for evening gowns to show the Grecian fashion of only one draped shoulder and the introduction of another and thinner material on the other side, but this is accentuated this Spring in gowns that are not even copied after the Greek. For example, a black silk marquisette frock intended for all-around wear has one shoulder and sleeve of king's blue satin, while the other shoulder and sleeve are of the black fabric, which is draped across the figure to the waist line on the opposite side of the figure. The introduction of panels is a prevailing fashion. They are made of braid and buttons of heavy lace, of colored linen, and of any kind of fabric that is opposed to the foundation material. It is now fashionable to give the effect of gowns opening down the front from collarbone to hem, and when it is not convenient to do this the narrow panel is brought into play. —Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

A COLLECT FOR WOMEN.

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretence and meet each other face to face—without self pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serious, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses—straightforward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all, and O Lord God, let us not forget to be kind!

EIGHT-HOUR BILL VICTORY

Advanced to Third Reading in the Massachusetts Senate

Boston, May 3.—By a rollcall vote of 29 to 8, with one pair, the senate advanced the eight-hour bill to a third reading yesterday afternoon.

This is the bill which was twice vetoed by ex-Governor Draper. It has been passed by the present house and has one more reading in the senate before going to Governor Foss.

This bill makes the fact that an employe on public works in this state has worked over eight hours on any day prima facie evidence of a violation of the present law. This prima facie clause is the one to which Draper objected.

PENALTY IS INCREASED

Rhode Island Solons Discourage the Carrying of Weapons

Providence, May 3.—Following the large number of recent prosecutions for carrying concealed weapons, the house passed an act increasing the maximum penalty for this violation of the statutes.

The present law, which provides for a fine of $100 or six months' imprisonment, is changed to $500 fine or imprisonment for one year. The bill now goes to the senate.

BUYING MOUNTAINS

Commission Securing Tracts Under Provisions of Weeks Bill

Washington, May 3.—Agents of the forest service have already begun the work of buying up from their private owners the lands included in the Appalachian-White Mountain reserve.

Although comparatively few offers of tracts of great size have been made to the government, the gradual process of examining, appraising and negotiating for purchase is reported as being satisfactorily under way.

It appears that the southern section of the reserve created by the Weeks bill is responding more promptly to the call.

New Trial In Wireless Fraud

New York, May 3.—A new trial of Christopher C. Wilson, president of the United Wireless company, and his six associates, who are charged with misuse of the mails, was ordered in the United States district court. Prejudice on the part of one of the jurors was shown and the entire jury was discharged.

QUEEN CITY TO BE REBUILT

CITY HAS NUMEROUS SALOONS

More Than Two Hundred and Fifty Which Escaped Flames Are Temporarily Closed—Rehabilitation to Be Under Supervision of Committee of Public Safety—No Difficulty In Caring For the Homeless

Bangor, Me., May 3.—Under the direction of a committee of public safety, Bangor has begun the gigantic task of rebuilding the devastated city. The work will be done with Bangor money and by Bangor residents. That was one of the first things decided by the committee.

Another was that, in no spirit of false pride, but with the consciousness that "Bangor can take care of its own," no outside aid or assistance is necessary, although the kindly spirit that prompted so many offers received is fully appreciated by officials and citizens.

The city is not weeping over the loss. Stunned at the first by the magnitude of the disaster, it has started out to build a new Bangor, one that will be a bigger and busier and better Bangor than the one which won for itself the title of "The Queen City of the East." The new Bangor will be queenlier than ever.

Every saloon in the city, and Bangor had 267 before the fire, has been ordered to close by the police, but while this order is being apparently obeyed, liquor is easily obtained, judging from the number of drunken men seen on the streets. Eleven places where liquor was sold were burned out, but there are 256 left.

Authorized by the city council, Mayor Mullen has appointed a committee of public safety to supervise the work of rehabilitation. This committee consists of the seven members of the board of aldermen, the seven city councilmen and as many prominent citizens.

The problem of caring for the seventy-five families left homeless and destitute by the fire was a comparatively simple one. All are accommodated at the homes of friends, at the city almshouse or otherwise. There has been little suffering as a result of the conflagration.

FIGHTS THE AGREEMENT

Glover's Motion Says Compact Was Not Made With Mrs. Eddy

Concord, N. H., May 3.—Counsel for the plaintiff in the action of George W. Glover against Henry M. Baker, executor of the will of the late Mary Baker G. Eddy, and others, filed a motion to amend their amendment of March 25 by adding the averment that the agreement made by Glover prior to Mrs. Eddy's death not to contest her will "was not made with her, but was made only with Archibald McLellan and his other directors, whose purpose, unknown to the plaintiff, was, if possible, to make secure to themselves the fruits of Mrs. Eddy's illegal residuary bequest to them of more than $2,000,000, of which money they were then in possession. In the agreement, and in McLellan's purpose therein, Mrs. Eddy took no part."

Archibald McLellan, with the other directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, is a defendant in the suit brought by Glover in an effort to secure part of his mother's estate.

WARNING GIVEN TO AMERICANS

Mexican Rebels Say They Will Attack Border Towns

SITUATION AGAIN VERY GRAVE

Lives of Americans Said to Be No Longer Safe In Interior of Mexico—Almost Continuous Fighting In Sinaloa and Conora—Railroad Connections Broken and Wire Communcation Interrupted

Douglas, Ariz., May 3.—Whatever the prospects of Mexican peace are at Juarez and Chihuahua, there are no peaceful signs along the western coast of Mexico. News that dribbled into Nogales from various parts of Sinaloa and Conora tell of almost continuous fighting in those states.

Americans in this city, familiar with the conditions across the border, regard the situation as grave. Not only is the political welfare of the Mexican states affected, but American interests are said to be in danger. Even the lives of Americans, hitherto held sacred by federals and rebels, are no longer safe in the interior of Mexico, it is reported.

Railroad officers who reached Nogales from Mexico brought warnings from the rebels to remove all their families as quickly as possible into the United States and to advise all their American friends to do likewise.

Coupled with these warnings was the threat of the insurrectos that they intended, before the end of the week, to launch attacks against all the border towns. Many Mexican families are leaving Mexico.

Word comes from the Magdalena district, southeast of Nogales, of the wiping out of thirty federals under Luis Estraella by rebels near Otates.

Reports of heavy fighting near La Colorado, southeast of Hermosillo, Sonora, were brought across the border yesterday afternoon. The rebels, it is said, have recaptured La Colorado, which was the scene of bitter fighting several weeks ago.

The situation along the southern Pacific lines, which parallel the western coast of Mexico for hundreds of miles, is grave. Trains are running on these lines only as far south as Navojea, 100 miles south of Guaymas.

All railroad connections south of Navojea are broken, and there is no way of reaching the ports that line the coast.

All wire communication is interrupted to the southward, and only the smallest scraps of information concerning the real situation are obtainable.

NAVAL SHOE CONTRACTS

Secretary Meyer Will Be Asked to Furnish House With Facts

Washington, May 3.—The house naval affairs committee ordered a favorable report on the Gardner resolution which directs the secretary of the navy to supply the house with information relative to contracts for navy shoes.

The resolution followed charges made on the floor of the house by Representative Diffendorfer (Pa.) to the effect that Herman & Co. of Boston have a monopoly of supplying shoes to the navy.

The resolution directs Secretary Meyer to supply the particulars and names of all firms and individuals who have obtained contracts for navy shoes. The resolution also asks if any shoe contracts have been blacklisted by the navy department.

NEVER MISSED A DAY

Woman Completes Her Twenty-Second Year as Mail Carrier

Lenox, Mass., May 3.—Miss Florence S. Markham completed yesterday afternoon twenty-two years' service for Uncle Sam carrying the mail between Stockbridge station and Interlaken, a village three miles west. She makes the round trip twice a day.

Miss Markham cares for her own team, handles express, baggage and freight. She has never had a vacation and has never missed a train.

When she first started to work for the government Miss Markham received $9 a month. Now she gets $25 monthly.

Visitors to "World In Boston"

QUINCY YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

The last meeting of the Young Women's Club of Quincy was held Saturday evening, at the club house on Goffe street. As it was also gentlemen's Night a goodly number were present. A short business meeting was held Miss Minnie Packard, president presiding. The report of the previous meeting was read by Miss Gladys H. Howe, recording secretary. Officers for the coming year are as follows:—

President—Miss Marie Bass.

1st Vice President—Miss Minnie Packard.

2d Vice President—Miss Mabel Pratt

Recording Secretary—Miss Hannah Litchfield.

Corresponding Secretary — Miss Margaret Lennon.

Treasurer—Miss Maud Briggs.

First on the programme for the evening's entertainment was a piano solo by Miss Mary Cahill, which was very commendably rendered and was followed by a violin and piano duet by Miss Alice Barry and Miss Amy Fallon which was much enjoyed. A play entitled "On Account of the Lobster" very well acted and heartily applauded. The cast was as follows:

Albert Langton—Alden Blanchard.
Grace Langton—Mabel Lovejoy.
Fiddler—Harold Prout.
Serina—Esther Wetherell.

Dancing followed till 10 o'clock the hospitlity committee served frappe and cake between dances.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

The education committee completed a successful year, financially as well as socially, when the term of lessons expired January 7, 1911. The existence of such a department as this requires first of all sincere co-operation. The loyalty and faithfulness of the majority of the girls who signed up for the work deserve commendation. Comradeship is assured if a committee can depend upon enthusiastic support from its patronage.

This committee comprised Miss Mila Bates, Miss Marie Bass, Miss Marion Tirrell and Miss Annie Mitchell. These were chosen as temporary heads of the various classes by Miss Packard and they continued in charge of their respective classes, to wit, dressmaking, stenciling and brass, and embroidery, for the balance of the first year. At that time Miss Mary Grady and Miss Olive Huston were added to the committee.

As regards our infancy, like all new projects, much eagerness was expressed on the occasion of our first class night, but soon it was sifted down so that only the hard bed rock of thirty members remained. At this time no set fee was imposed for the lessons, leaving the girls to turn over to the class instructor the five, ten or fifteen cents she felt she could afford. Six members of the Women's Club acted as instructors in the work and we on this occasion wish to express publicly our thanks and gratitude for their untiring efforts and very generous assistance.

The second year, classes were conducted in basketry, dramatics and aesthetic dancing. To club members a course of five lessons was offered for one dollar ($1.00.) Miss Parker was obtained to instruct the class in basketry and Miss Ruth Bass of Dr. Sargent's school of Physical Culture the dancing class: Mrs. Gurney offered her services free gratis to the dramatic class and she has our appreciative thanks.

In our work along the line of education our classes were represented by members from all wards of the city. Next year we would wish for still keener interest, for the class work will doubtless be continued.

The receipts for the past year are $20.20 while our expenditures were $18.75, leaving a balance of $1.45 for the club Treasury.

Mila G. Bates, Chairman.

ADAMS CHAPTER, D. R.

The May meeting of Adams Chapter D. R. was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Wilson, 257 Granite street, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, regent, presided over the business session. Mrs. Charles H. Sprague of South Braintree announced that she would entertain the Chapter at the June meeting, at her summer home at Bayside, Hull and asked that the regular date, the first Monday, be changed to the fifteenth. It was so voted.

The literary exercises were in charge of the committee Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Brewer and Mrs. Titus. Mrs. Titus read a short sketch on "May Day Recollections" and then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Charles F. Read, secretary of the Bostonian society, who read a very interesting paper on "Old Milestones."

During the social hour which followed the regent announced that an invitation had been extended the chapter to attend a Colonial Tea to be held at the home of Mrs. Walter F. Jones regent of Abigail Phillips, Quincy Chapter D. A. R. of Wollaston, Mrs. Jones was a guest of the afternoon.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The last meeting of the executive board is called for tomorrow morning at ten o'clock at the clubhouse.

All members are looking forward to next Tuesday afternoon when the annual meeting will be held and the biennial election which is always interesting.

Names have been placed on the ballots in alphabetical order instead of by preference which fact should be borne in mind when marking the ballot.

Delegates will probably be chosen to represent the Club at the annual meeting of the State Federation at New Bedford.

The meeting will begin promptly at 2.30 as it will be a long one, the usual monthly reports and business being followed by annual reports, election and business, closing with a social and club tea.

DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION.

The 20th annual meeting of the general society, Daughters of the Revolution, will be held at Hotel Belvedere, Baltimore, beginning May 8. The election of officers occurs biennially, and is not due this year. The members of the board of managers from Massachusetts whose term expires this year are Mrs. Frank C. Granger of Randolph. Mrs. Albert F. Hayward of Brookline and Mrs. Fred M. Goss of Melrose. The Massachusetts members who remain on the board are Mrs. William B. Littlefield of Lynn, Mrs. George H. Plummer of Lynn and Mrs. William A. Jackson of Malden.

About 100 delegates and members from the Massachusetts state society are planning to attend the convention, which will open Monday evening with a reception, given by the Maryland society at Hotel Stafford. The convention will open formally on Tuesday morning, and on Tuesday evening the annual banquet will be given at Hotel Belvedere. On Thursday, the 11th, the dedication of the memorial to the sailors of the revolution will take place at Bancroft Hall, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis. The occasion will be honored by the presence of President Taft and other high government officials, and representatives of all patriotic societies.

FLIES NOT AN EVIL.

If They Are Thick, It Means Something Wrong with Garbage, Says Expert.

The "Busy, curious, thirsty fly" has at last found a defender. He is Prof. S. A. Forbes, state entomologist, who has experimented with the "fly problem" in Chicago for two years.

"Don't swat the fly; swat the person who gives it opportunity to do deadly work as a disease carrier," said Prof. Forbes. "The fly, instead of being an evil, is an agent for good.

"The presence of the fly points to an unsanitary condition—that the householder is not taking proper care of his garbage or is careless with his table scraps. Take warning of the fly. It will save doctor's bills. Fly carried disease is the punishment for not heeding sanitary laws and the fly's warning."

CHAMBERLAIN BEFORE COURT

Hyde Formally Arraigned on Charge of Bribery

HE FURNISHES $7500 BAIL

Said to Have Made Deal With Robin to Increase City's Balance In Northern Bank In Return For Favor to Carnegie Company—Gaynor's Former Partner and His Record Have Long Been Under Sharp Criticism

New York, May 3.—Charles H. Hyde, the city chamberlain, appeared in court yesterday afternoon and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging bribery. The offense charged is punishable by imprisonment for not more than ten years, or a fine of not more than $5000, or both. Bail was set for $7500 and given.

District Attorney Whitman gave out a brief statement explaining the indictment. It was charged, he said, that while Joseph G. Robin was chairman of the executive board of the Northern bank of New York, Hyde agreed with him to increase the city's daily balance with the Northern bank, if in turn the Northern bank would the next morning lend $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust company; that the loan was made and the city's balance subsequently increased.

City Chamberlain Hyde and his record have been under public discussion for nearly a year, and seldom has his name been used by the newspapers in a complimentary sense. Several times, in fact, the newspapers have demanded editorily that the city chamberlain be dismissed by Mayor Gaynor.

Criticism of the city chamberlain was intensified when the present grand jury invtstigation began and the authorities were informed that Hyde was on terms of close friendship with William J. Cummins and Joseph R. Reichmann, the leading factors in the Carnegie Trust company, and that Cummins had been able to borrow for himself and friends nearly $4,000,000 partly, at least, on his boast that he could "swing" city deposits through his "good friend, Hyde."

There was also a charge that he had forced Joseph G. Robin of the Northern bank to come to the aid of the Carnegie Trust company with a loan of $130,000 in August last, when the capital of the Carnegie Trust was impaired and the institution was facing failure. Still another subject of criticism of the city chamberlain was his investment in mortgages of trust funds turned over to his care by the supreme court. An investigation of this matter is now being made by the grievance committee of the Bar association.

The public herd little of Hyde until the campaign which elected Gaynor mayor began in the fall of 1909. Hyde had been Gaynor's law partner. He managed the Gaynor campaign.

Hyde made few speeches, devoting his attention to the financial end of the fight and to planning the work for the speakers and ward workers. Hyde was also the handshaker of the Gaynor camp. Big, broad-shouldered, and with a persistent smile, Hyde's attractive personality won friends for Gaynor. So the mayor's friends were not at all surprised when they heard that he had appointed Hyde city chamberlain. It was about the most lucrative position he had to offer. The salary of the city chamberlain is $12,000 a year and the duties of the office are not exacting. Hyde soon evidenced this fact by his frequent absences, leaving his deputy, Harry J. Walsh, to run the affairs of the office.

BRIEFS

Miss Sadie Thomas of Granite street is improving rapidly in health and is down stairs today for the first time.

Abigail Adams lodge, Companions of the Forest held a largely attended May dance at Doble's hall Tuesday evening.

The Executive Committee of the W. R. C. will meet with Mrs. Alberta Hewson, 26 Newcomb place, Thursday afternoon.

The boss teamsters will meet members of the teamsters union Thursday evening to try and settle differences in the wage schedule.

The Intermediate C. E. society of Bethany church met in the church parlor Tuesday evening for its regular bi-weekly meeting. All the members of this society will be received into the Senior society next Sunday evening.

A large number of the members of Clan McGregor O. S. C. will pay a fraternal visit to Clan McKenzie at Boston Thursday evening. The degree team of Clan McKenzie in full Highland costume will work the degree on a large class of candidates.

George Shaul, formerly organist at Christ church and at present in St. Thomas' church, Taunton, will give a recital on the Christ church organ Friday evening. This is to be the first of a series under the direction of Prof. Wrigley. Miss Marion Brown will be the soloist of the evening.

The natives were startled by seeing three young men walking through City Square wearing straw hats, Tuesday afternoon and it appeared that they had stolen a start on the season. On closer investigation it proved to be three members of the cast in the college comedy "Up to Freddie" going home from a dress rehearsal.

Mrs. Emma E. Marnock, president of Paul Revere, W. R. C. No. 103 accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Gould and daughter went to Lynn. Thursday evening to attend the reception tendered to Mrs. Nellie F. Libby, department president of the Mass. W. R. C. A very enjoyable evening was had and they were well repaid for their visit.

KINGS DAUGHTERS

The regular monthly meeting of Unity Circle of King's Daughters was held in Bethany chapel, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Horace G. Crocker had charge of the devotional exercises. She read a very fine paper on "Love and Holiness" Mrs. Edith Cary Page sang "Love Divine" which was very much in keeping with the subject of the devotional exercises.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Wilson Marsh who gave a splendid address on Mt. Pleasant camp telling of the work there, those who helped to make it successful and many other things of great interest.

The ladies voted to have the annual reception to the Shut ins in June this year instead of in October.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL. . .

A stereopticon lecture was given in Union hall, Tuesday evening as a means of letting the public know about the International Correspondence school of Scranton, Pa.! Over 300 views were thrown upon the screen illustrating the work of the school their home office and various branches throughout the country. C. E. Lawrance,vi ce-president oft he company gave a series of statistics showing the vast amount of territory covered and the great number of people taking the various courses.

RUNAWAY

A horse owned by Joseph A Keating the piano man, became frightened while standing in front of the store Tuesday afternoon and started to run going round the corner of Granite street at a fast clip and dashing up the street with the wagon behind rumbling along at a great rate. The horse was stopped near the corner of School and Granite streets and fortunately no damage was done.

This runaway occurrred at about the same time as the one at Brewer's corner and the two horses escaped meeting only by a short stretch of road.

MODERN TENDENCIES.

The adresss on "Modern Tendencies in Education" given by Frank P. Speare Monday evening before the Christ church Men's club was one of the most practical and at the same time one of the most humorous heard by the club this season.

The next meeting of the club will be held on May 17. A debate in charge of Arthur L. Thomas is on the program for that evening. The annual meeting and election of officers is on June 5.

HER MAIDEN TRIP.

The steamer Sankaty which was built at the Fore River for the Nantucket and Marthas Vineyard route and which was launched Feb. 2, made her first trip between Nantucket and New Bedford Tuesday. When she arrived at Nantucket the townspeople turned out to welcome her. Cannon were fired, bells rung and whistles blown. Many of the buildings of the town were decorated.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

A serious accident occurred at Brewers corner Tuesday afternoon when a horse owned by the Pelervo co-operative store ran away. Anderson, one of the clerks in the store ran to stop him and held him by the head till he got part way up the little hill in front of Brewer's store. Then he was obliged to let go and fell on his face. The wagon ran over him inflicting injuries on his back and chest.

The horse was feeding in front of the store with his bridle off when it became frightened and started to run. The horse was stopped some distance up the street by passers-by

Mr. Anderson is reported comfortable today.

QUINCY HIGH THIRD WIN

Defeats Strong Arlington Team 10 to 4

Quincy high won its third consecutive Tuesday afternoon by defeating Arlington high school 10 to 4 on the Spy pond athletic field, Arlington. Rice pitched a masterly game allowing the opposing team only 3 clean hits and two texas leaguers. With the exception of a bad fifth inning Quincy played good baseball. Hill led in the hitting getting three good singles. H. Chapman got a two bagger and a single.

In the ninth inning Arlington had three men on bases but Rice pulled out of the hole with good support.

H. Chapman played a good game behind the bat. Although his passed ball was costly he made up for it by good hitting. Cousens and Hadley played well for the home team. Reycroft the pitcher did some good fielding and drove in three runs by his three bagger.

Quincy is improving slowly and may be expected to show some first class baseball by mid season. The next game is with Waltham at Merrymount park Friday afternoon.

GOLF TOURNAMENT.

From 75 to 100 players are expected at the open amateur meeting of the Wollaston Golf club which opened this morning and will continue until Saturday. From the qualifying round sixteen players will be drawn for the match play for the Wollaston cup.

The course is in good shape. A new bunker has been placed at the 16th hole which may bother those competing, as it will catch a short drive or a slice off to the right.

Among those who have entered are Arthur Lockwood, R. R. Freeman, C. M. Hart, J. J. Gallagher, W. L. Carleton, Tom Fuller and B. S. Evans. As post entries are allowed, those in charge of the meeting feel confident of a larger list of entrants than in past years.

Wife of Rich Man Granted Petition Declaring Him Insane

Washington, May 3.—A petition to have adjudged insane Stilson Hutchins, founder of the St. Louis Times, Washington Post, Washington Times, and once prominently connected with the Des Moines State Journal, Dubuque Herald and St. Louis Dispatch, has been granted, the writ being returnable May 4.

The petition was filed by Mrs. Rose K. Hutchins, his second wife, whom he married in 1900. By reason of his mental and physical condition, she says, Hutchins is incapable of properly caring for himself and his estate. It is said the estate is worth between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

STRIKE THREATENED ON THE NEW HAVEN

Ten Percent Wage Increase Demanded by 11,500 Men

Boston, May 3.—Unless the New Haven railroad grants a wage increase of 10 percent to its employes in the clerical and mechanical departments a strike involving 11,500 employes is threatened by the allied trades organizations.

Such action was promised at a meeting of 330 officials of the various organizations held in this city yesterday.

The men will insist on a 10 percent raise, based on the present ratings and rates. No reduction in the number of hours of work is demanded.

Should the New Haven refuse the requests of the men the representatives of fourteen organizations are prepared to leave their work until their demands have been met. The employes involved comprise 3500 clerks and about 8000 in the various mechanical departments.

Government to Await Decision of Court of Appeals

Washington, May 2.—President Taft is expected ssoon to issue an order directing that no more seizures of dried or frozen eggs be made under the food and drugs act pending a decision of the United States court of appeals in the case recently decided in the United States district court at Trenton, in which the government was beaten on every point.

Senator Lodge called at the White House and secured from the president a promise to this effect, the manufacturers having represented that their credit was likely to suffer through the uncertainty attending their business in view of the prosecutions instituted by Dr. Wiley.

ILL WITH TUBERCULOSIS

Alfonso's Condition Demands Urgent Means of Treatment

Paris, May 3.—L'Intransigeant claims that King Alfonso is gravely ill with tuberculosis, and that at a recent consultation of his physicians it was decided that urgent measures of treatment were necessary.

King Alfonso has long suffered from what has been described as a nasal trouble. There have been occasional rumors of a more serious ailment, including that of tuberculosis of the throat. Alfonso will be 25 years of age on the 17th of the present month. He has always been of a delicate constitution.

PUBLIC DOCK QUESTION UNDER DISCUSSION

Board of Trade Favors One For City of Quincy

Public Docks, one of the questions that is agitating the public today was the subject assigned for discussion Wednesday evening at the meeting of the Board of Trade. The subject is one of such vast proportions however and one on which there is bound to be so many opinions that it would be impossible to get a full and impartial discussion at one meeting. The board however made some progress on the question.

Frank Fessenden Crane, Quincy Dock and Water Front Commissioner was present and when the question was reached said that a year ago Mayor Shea had instructed him to make an investigation of the question and that he had spent six months in looking it up. He had prepared nine questions which he desired to submit for the board to discuss and give its opinion. These questions were:

How much ought the city to expect as a rate of income for the investment of its money in a public dock?

Should you not say at least four per cent?

What would be the best method to adopt in order to acquire such per cent on the investment?

How can the dock interests of the city be best served? By connection with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, the trolley freight line or by carting to the dock with teams?

What sort of a public dock would best serve the interests of all the City of Quincy? Only a wharf, or a wharf with land adjoining suitable for granite sheds, storage warehouses or other business, or manufacturing interests?

What kind of up to date modern appliances for the handling of freight would be best adopted for the Quincy public dock?

Should the Quincy public dock be located on the main ship channel, available at all hours of the day or would cheap land available only at high water pay the city best?

After the reading of these questions the first action was a vote by the board that the sense of the Board of Trade of the City of Quincy be that Quincy needs and should have a public dock.

From then on the discussion was general. It was generally admitted that once established a public dock would be a source of great income. The question how the dock should be reached as it was necessary that the source of supply should be got to the docks.

The discussion gradually drifted as to the proper location and several sites were suggested. Hayward's creek at Quincy Neck was thought by President Stone to be a good location. The Fore River track to Braintree came to this creek and there was a deep water channel too near it. The foot of River street and Bracketts wharf was also suggested.

Mr. Crane said if a dock for the granite industry only was desired that was one thing but if it was advisable to take advantage of the 28 foot channel and have tramp steamers, etc., use them an entirely different kind of dock would be needed.

John L. Miller said the dock should be as near the centre as possible. Income should not be talked of for it would be an asset of the city. What would benefit the granite industry would benefit all. He did not think it advisable to have sheds at the dock for cutting granite that might come from Maine by water. The City Council should be asked to make a survey as to the cost of dredging.

Mr. Crane thought that it was possible that if a plan was had, to get the Harbor and Land Commission to help out on the preliminary survey. He did not think the Board of Trade

DISASTROUS FOREST FIRE

Large Area Burned Over Wednesday afternoon

Wednesday afternoon was a busy one for the firemen at the Central and Quincy Point stations for they were kept busy from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until after 6 o'clock in battling a woods fire that extended from Scammel street to near East Howard street embracing many acres and threatening to destroy buildings. It was shortly before 3 o'clock that boys started a grass fire near the junction of South and scammel street.

A high wind was blowing at the time and it was not many minutes before the blaze had extended over quite a large territory. The fire department was called out on a still alarm and were soon hard at work.

Starting from Quincy avenue back fires were built to keep the fire away from houses and the firemen went through the woods along the boarder of the swamp and built more back fires. This kept the fire confined to the swamp where it would do but little damage.

While at work here an alarm was sounded from Box 173 located at Newcomb square. This was sounded at 5.12 and called the department to a fire in the woods in the rear of the John L. Eldridge estate. The fire may have started from sparks from the South street fire which were fanned into a blaze by the high wind.

When the firemen arrived the flames were shooting high into the air making a spectacular fire which was threatening the barn on the Eldridge estate.

A line of hose was laid but was of little use until the steamer made connection and then a powerful stream of water was sent into the blazing woods. Every available foot of hose carried by the Central station and Quincy Point apparatus was used.

This stream had a telling effect and with the chemical streams from the Central station combination the fire was eventually subdued although it was over an hour before the all out sounded.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Annual Meeting Quincy Co-operative Bank

The annual meeting of the Quincy cooperative bank was held Wednesday evening and these officers elected:

President—John F. Welch.
Vice-President—George H. Field.
Secretary and Treasurer—Frank A. Reed.

Directors—Daniel L. F. Chase, F. W. Crane, Joseph W. Dennen, John Harkins, Eugene C. Hultman, John F. Hunt, Perry Lawton, Albert Nelson, John G. Roberts, Simeon Scammell, Joseph A. Sedgwick, Eben W. Sheppard, Henry O. Studley, Frederick E. Tupper, James F. Young.

Auditors—Wilson Marsh, Charles K. Hogan, Byron C. Miller.

With this meeting Richard D. Chase who has been the secretary and treasurer of the bank for so many years retires from active connection with the bank although he remains on the board of directors, his position being taken by Frank A. Reed.

Today the offices of the bank are being moved from the Savings Bank building to the new office in the Adams building.

SUCCESSFUL WHIST.

A very large whist party was held at St. Mary's hall Wednesday evening by the Ladies Sodality of St. Mary's church. Whist was in order for the first two hours between 35 and 40 tables being in play. Each score card bore a number one of which entitled the holder to a handsome cut glass dish. Edward Finn proved to be the holder of the card and he was awarded the dish.

The prizes for the best scores were awarded to Miss Theresa Buckley,, Miss Pauline Barry, James McKay and George McDonnell.

At the conclusion of the whist there was dancing until 1 o'clock. Music being furnished by Joyce's orchestra.

ST. JOHN'S BAZAAR.

Another large crowd was in attendance Wednesday evening at the third night of the St. John's bazaar, and good sales were reported at all the booths. The young ladies did a thriving business in the book line. There was no entertainment Wednesday evening.

FIRE AT QUINCY HOME.

The Central station apparatus was summoned by telephone to the Quincy Home shortly before 8 o'clock this morning for a fire on the roof of a shed adjoining the Home. The fire started from sparks from the steam roller setting fire to the roof.

THREE ACT COMEDY "HOME" PRESENTED

Scene Laid in Alfred Dorrison's English Home

Quincy society was at "Home" in Music hall, Wednesday evening and had a very agreeable time listening to good music by the Wollaston orchestra and witnessing the dramatic performance given under the direction of Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis and Emery L. Crane.

The scene was laid in England at the home of Alfred Dorrison, Sr., a wealthy manufacturer. In the opening scene his long lost son returns from America and finds his father engaged to a Mrs. Pinchbeck whom the son knew as an adventuress. Her brother Captain Montraffe was a miserable blackleg who was looking for money and cared not how he got it. Alfred, the son, makes himself known to his sister Lucy, but conceals his identity from his father, going under the name of Colonel John White.

The comedy elements are furnished by Bertie Thompson who is in love with Lucy and Alfred junior takes part in several humorous scenes. His proposal to Dora Thornhough, who is staying with the Dorrisons, was well done.

The climax of the play comes when Alfred proposes to Mrs. Pinchbeck, after he has been accepted by Dora. The action is done to show his father the character of the woman he is about to marry but it served not only to defeat his own purpose but to get himself ordered out of the house and to turn Dora against him. Lucy saves the day by telling Dora all about it. Mr. Dorrison, when he discovers the truth, is all forgiveness.

Mrs. Pinchbeck, in the last act, rises out of the sin and degradation to which she has been accustomed and proves herself, a true woman, refusing to be the accomplice of her villianous brother in an attempt to swindle Mr. Dorrison.

She was really in love with Alfred Dorrison but finding that her love was unrequited she went forth into the night and the infamous reprobate, her brother is ordered out of the house. The play ends happily with the two pair of lovers and Mr. Dorrison seated in the parlor of the Dorrison home while the familiar strains of "Home Sweet Home" emphasize the feeling of peace in the household. At the same time one cannot help thinking of Mrs. Pinchbeck who has gone out into the cheerless night.

The task of criticizing this is not altogether desirable and possibly it is wholly unnecessary but we will at any rate tell those who did especially well that their efforts were appreciated.

Walter C. Rogers in the part of Alfred Dorrison was very good in the comedy elements but appeared to have lacked experience in the more serious and correspondingly more difficult scenes.

The audience was somewhat disappointed because it did not see more of Mr. Crane who took the part of Mr. Dorrison, Sr. He impersonated the character very ably but the part was not the most important and the audience felt that his versatility was not put to a fair test.

The part of Bertie Thompson fell into good hands when it was given to Curtis Arnold. His simulated effeminacy and childishness kept the audience in constant laughter.

Miss Beatrice Morrison did well in the part of Lucy Dorrison and acted with great ease and naturalness.

Mrs. Wallace Carr made a very demure and pretty Dora Thornhough.

The Crane brothers looked very "haristocratic" with their side burns and knee breeches and carried themselves with all the hauteur of real English butlers.

Mrs. Davis came up to the expectations in the part of Mrs. Pinchbeck and brought out the pathos of her departner very effectively.

The character of Captain Montraffe was made obnoxious in the hands of Erastus Osgood and on the whole his acting was much superior to that of the rest of the cast. The fact that he made the character despised by the audience proved that he fulfilled the requirements of the part.

The play was well received by the audience and a curtain call was demanded at the end of each act, when bouquets were given to a number of the cast.

The cast:

Alfred Dorrison, passing under the name of Colonel John White, Walter C. Rogers
Captain Montraffe, Erastus Osgood
Mr. Dorrison, Emery L. Crane
Bertie Thompson, Curtis Arnold
Servants to Dorrison, Donald Crane, Richard Crane
Mrs. Pinchbeck, Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis
Lucy Dorrison, Miss Beatrice Morrison
Dora Thornhough, Mrs. Wallace Carr

H. C. Hallowell, Jr., acted as prompter.

Among the patrons of the affair were:

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Abele, Jr., E. E. Abercrombie, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Angier, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bryant, Mr and Mrs. George H. Brown, Mrs. Lewis Bass, Lewis Bass, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Blackmur, Mr. and Mrs. C. Burgin, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. A. L Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Doble, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dow, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dasha, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Emery, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Faxon,

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Although the board of health gave that garbage heap in Mr. Lorimer's back yard a shining coat of whitewash, the neighbors are sniffing more suspiciously than ever.

Gov. Wilson is starting out on a long tour of the Southwest. It is very kind of him to perform part of Mr. Taft's duties, while not getting any part of his salary.

The country has a balance of trade in its favor of about $400,000,000. But after we have paid the bills of the European tourists, the cashier will be sending us the usual overdraw notice.

The country proposes to find out who did this long list of dynamite jobs. They are the cowardly acts of dirty sneaks who want to kill people in the dark without giving them a chance to hit back.

SEEKING SPRING TRADE.

The spring months are a peculiarly profitable time for advertising. It is a time when you do not have to convince people that they need to buy. The only thing needed is to convince them that they should buy of you rather than of the other fellow, and in particular that by buying at home they can save express and get satisfaction for goods that fail to be as represented

Spring is particularly a time for renewals of household supplies. The annual orgy of house cleaning, so dreaded by mere man, means the frequent revelation that household furnishings are gone beyond further repair. The wet and mud of spring and winter mean damage to the home equipment, and everywhere housewives are querying as to where they can best make renewals.

The heat of summer means a fresh stock of clothing. Every year the sway of fashion over society makes people less inclined to wear goods that are out of date. The rewards of the merchant who keeps his goods up with metropolitan vogue, are increasing year by year.

The men may make fun of feminine subjection to style, but they are equally driven by the weather to make a complete change of clothing at this time, and last year's styles are less and less popular as the years go by. The freedom with which men's clothing stores in the larger cities advertise indicates that they find it pays.

It makes little difference how stylish and how serviceable a stock is kept, how good values are offered, if the merchant keeps that information within his own bosom.

With the logic of the season compelling purchase, advertising brings in high returns just now. And the returns are always at better prices than where goods have to be cleared out at forced sales late in the season.

It takes something more than memory of what a merchant did years ago to bring buyers in his store today. The people want to know in black and white what he is doing this week and this month, and they want some basis for comparing his offerings with the mail order catalogues and with other competitors.

THE TALLEST BUILDING.

Plans were announced in New York last week for the tallest building in the world, to be 750 feet high, including a tower that will run up to the 55 story notch. This edifice, to be erected by F. W. Woolworth, rises above the famous Metropolitan building by 50 feet, and over the so called "Singer-horn" by 138. And in the memory of middle aged men, offices could not be rented in our citites above the fifth floor!

The ancients built the tower of Babel on the plains of Shinar to reach to heaven, but the modern sky scraper is built to escape the "hell of not getting money." Against the sky scraper it can be said that it is a vampire sucking light and air from humbler neighbors, a concrete expression of the tyranny of modern business. In the streets of lower Manhattan on a hot day the healthful down beat of a vertical summer sun is turned into the sickening steam of a human laundry.

But on the other hand, what a stunning effect of barbaric power is given by a sight of New York's towering structures as a whole! What marvellous and enticing story of achievement it tells, how the finger of fortune seems to beckon the young man to enter this city of dreams, and win for himself his share of the golden store!

An interesting scene may often be witnessed on an ocean liner, when a group of Europeans see for the first time this manifestation of American enterprise, these structures built to conform to the individual needs of American life. It is so wholly different from the more prosaic low level of European construction, where business buildings seldom rise above 100 feet, that the foreigner stands breathless with wonder.

The sky scraper is better fitted to New York than to many cities that have erected them from imitation, much as the chappie turns up his trousers when it is raining on London. Some artists regard these buildings as nothing but a grotesque array of gaunt parallelopipeds, even lacking the grace that goes with a bunch of tapering factory chimneys. But taken in the mass they convey an impressionistic sense of power.

In a city shaped like a tape measure they provide an economy of time. As experts says that a 2000 foot building can be placed safely on a 200 foot lot, this airy expansion has only begun. The records of 125 people a minute passing many spots in New York streets will in time be greatly exceeded.

PUBLICITY AGENT'S DAY.

The publicity man is having his innings these days. He has long been installed in theatrical offices giving out real and alleged news to the papers, including tender and thrilling happenings which sometimes have happened and sometimes have not. Later he was followed by the publicity man in great stores, handing out advertising, and also news events of the stores that would at once interest the public and perhaps also send some trade to the marts of trade. Smaller stores got in line. Great lawyers and physicians employed publicity aids, too—sometimes disguised in magazine or Sunday paper articles, but advertising just the same. Even the Standard Oil fell in line, and has one of the best paid and most notable of press agents. Steamship and railroad companies, here and there a highly paid pastor, and oftentimes the promoter of some invention or other scheme to get the public's money, found it worth while now and then to employ a publicity man's services. Now a chain of big shoe factories has taken on a clever publicity man in this vicinity and quite likely other factories have such an official—certainly they have advertising agents, and good ones, too. It all shows the trend of the times. The old-time "dignified" business or professional man affected to abhor advertising, although we never knew one to object to it when it was favorable and was free. The modern man who has something to sell finds publicity in this hustling age very essential, and finds that without it he is a loser and bound to drop back in the game.—Brockton Enterprise.

JIMMY.

Samuel Minturn Peck.

Jimmy was a little boy,
His chubby legs were short,
Yet ever 'twas his greatest joy
To follow in our sport;
And oftentimes the course would try
A strength that was so wee,
And down the hill I'd hear him cry:
"O Bruvver, wait for me!"

Although I heard, on pleasure bent,
I did not wait for him;
As heedless on my way I went,
The sobbing call grew dim;
And as he fell so far behind
His form I could not see,
Yet faintly brought the pitying wind:
"O Bruvver, wait for me!"

My youth, alas, long since hath fled,
And Jimmy, too, is gone;
The wee, wee boy when he lay dead
I scarce could look upon.
Forever Jimmy's longing cry
Unheeded now must be—
But, oh, 'twill haunt me till I die:
"O Bruvver, wait for me!"

—A local newspaper is in no sense a child of charity. It earns twice over every dollar it receives, and it is second to no enterprise in contributing to the up-building of a community. Its patrons reap far more benefits from its pages than its publishers, and in calling for the support of the community in which it is published, it asks for no more than in all fairness belongs to it, though generally it receives less. Patronize and help your paper as you would any other enterprise because it helps you, and not as an act of charity.—Winthrop Sun.

HOUGHS NECK ASSOCIATES

Discuss Sea Street Widening and Other Matters

An important meeting of the Houghs Neck associates was held Wednesday evening in Associate's hall. The meeting was largely to consider the question of the widening and regrading of Sea street between Palmer and Bird streets and especially the locality known as Calamity corner.

President Wall presided and in opesing called upon P. F. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien who is a civil engineer connected with the construction of the Boston subway, and chairman of the street committee of the Associates, presented plans, showing how the grade of Sea street at a width of forty feet could be raised to grade 15, which would be sufficient to protect the causeway from being everflowed by any ordinary tide.

An informal discussion followed and Mr. O'Brien's plans met with general favor and he was given a unanimous vote of thanks for his efforts.

At the present time it is impossible to obtain adequate fire protection for the property at Rock Island as it is necessary in case of fire for the apparatus to go a third of the way toward Quincy until near Post Island and cross there.

At high water it is almost impossible to reach the island and children attending school are unable to cross unless they go around by Rock Island road.

Then again it is a source of great inconvenience to working men who on their arrival home from work find the street impassable if it happens to be high tide.

The danger in passing over the present street mas brought focibly to mind this spring when a 10 year old child in passing over the bridge was blown off by the high wind and but for her ability to swim and great presence of mind she would probably have been drowned.

On another day a still smaller child crossing the bridge with her grandmother was blown from her grasp by the wind and was only saved by her dress catching in the projecting spikes from which perilous position she was rescued.

Both of those subjects were discussed at length but no final action was taken the reports being progressive and laid on the table for further discussion at a future meeting.

—The strain over the cost of living must go down gradually during the coming year. The price of grain is lower than it has been for years and live stock is gradually coming down in proportion. All this will lessen the surplus of the farmers of the west, but it will ease conditions in the crowded centres where the cost of food was fast becoming a menace. The reduction in prices has been due to bountiful harvests and greater plenty all along the line. Outside of the producing districts the change is more than welcome.—Haverhill Gazette.

BOARD OF TRADE

in any condition at the present time to say what was wanted for a public dock or where it should be located. He believed that at present the granite industry should be looked after. He then moved and it was voted:

That a committee of three granite manufacturing members of the Board of Trade be appointed to report back to the president a location for a public dock best adapted to the granite interests, and for that committee to take such action as it thought best.

BUSINESS SESSION.

At the business session which preceded the discussion several matters were disposed of.

Eugene C. Hultman was appointed to represent the Board of Trade on the Chamber of Commerce trip to Europe which sails June 12 to study business conditions on the other side.

GRAND TRUNK R. R.

The question of the Grand Trunk railroad entering Boston was taken up and after some little discussion it was voted the sense of the Board of Trade be to use its influence to get the Grand Trunk railroad to make Boston its eastern terminus.

QUINCY ADAMS DERRICK.

A letter was read from the general frieght agent of the New Haven railroad thanking the Board of Trade for its letter expressing its thanks for the erection of a boom derrick at South Quincy.

It developed however that the thanks of the board had been a little premature as the derrick had not been erected as yet.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

President Stone who was appointed to try and arrange for a hearing before the special commission on the abolishing of the grade crossings reported that he had had an interview with ex-Governor Bates the chairman of the commission and had been informed that the commission had not yet reached any decision. President Stone was assured however that a committee from the Board of Trade would be given an apportunity to be heard.

President Stone said that his own opinion was that while the commission had perhaps not decided as yet. They had made up their minds and that while the committee of the Board of Trade would be heard he did not think it would make much difference.

NEW MEMBERS.

On ballot the following were elected to membership: George A. Sidelinger, Paul R. Blackmur, Old Colony Street Railway Co., Joseph Halter, Edward F. Parlee.

MERGER QUESTION.

The question of the merger of the Merchants' Association with the Board of Trade was brought up and the committee reported that the merger had taken place.

It was then voted that the action of the committee on the merger be ratified.

—The indictment of the manufacturers of the Triangle Waist Co., in New York on the charge of manslaughter as responsible for the terrible disaster in their workshop is no action of revenge. It must be set down as the proper way in which to treat any such sacrifice of human lives. The building in which the factory was operated did not comply with the law when it was erected. The tenants turned it into a crowded sweatshop, and to be sure they drove their workers to the limit and were able to watch them every second to prevent their dodging, the doors were locked at a risk which naturally must now come before the courts.—Boston Record.

BUTTERCUP HEN IN DISGRACE

Her Marvelous Egg was that of a Goose

Amos J. Kinney of Elm street the well known importer and breeder of fancy fowl was very much surprised Sunday to find in the nest of his Sicilian Buttercup hens a very large egg. He had it weighed at a drug store and was elated to see it weigh 5 3-4 ounces, it was 9 3-4 inches in circumference and 7 1-2 inches in diameter. There was a story in a Boston newspaper about this wonderful egg, and as Mr. Kinney is a travelling man it had to be shown to all of his customers, but now the joke is out, this marvellous egg, supposed to be laid by his buttercup hen, proves to be a goose egg, placed in the nest for the purpose of creating a sensation, and it certainly fulfilled all expectations and more.

HEROIC RESCUE

What might have been a serious if not fatal accident, was prevented Tuesday by the prompt action of Clifford Backus, son of C. H. Backus, of Arlington street. A lady with her two year old child had been calling at the home of H. C. Seymour, and after placing her child in the carriage removed the weight from her horse and started to reenter her carriage. The child at the same moment picked up the whip and touched the horse, which became frightened and started on the run towards North Central avenue. Clifford Backus happened to be near and by prompt action overtook the frightened animal before it made the turn on Central avenue, thereby preventing the child from being thrown from the carriage. Needless to say the lady was profuse in her thanks to the young man.

The Lady Associates held their semi monthly meeting in Associate's hall Tuesday evening. After the business part of the meeting was completed a social evening was spent, the feature of the evening being a potato race. Mrs. Fennor received a cut glass dish for making the most trips the length of the hall, carrying a potato on a small ice cream spoon.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening May 17, instead of Tuesday evening of that week on account of the Associate's Cake-walk, concert and dance.

A committee from the Men Associates consisting of O. G. Fosdick, chairman, M. G. Coughlin and Hiram Darrow waited on the ladies and asked them to join the associates library committee in providing quarters for the distribution of books from the Public library. The ladies promised their hearty support.

The committee further asked the ladies for their support in presenting the Cake-walk, which was cheerfully granted.

It would probably be interesting to know that the Catholic club cleared seventy-five dollars on their dance at the Bungalow last Saturday evening.

The residents of Houghs Neck are making an appeal to have Sea street watered.

—The Boston Evening Record is publishing names of absentees from the Legislative sessions, which is an excellent idea. If it don't have the effect of shaming the members to a better attendance to their Legislative work it will give their constituents an opportunity of knowing how they are neglecting the duties for which they were elected. On roll-call to amend the constitution by providing for biennial elections there were 19 absentees, —nine Republicans and ten Democrats. The vote stood 63 to 156 in favor of amendment.—Athol Chronicle.

BRIEFS

The "Never Part" club met at the home of Miss Louisa A. Ross of Phillips street Tuesday evening.

The regular meeting of Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters, will be held with Mrs. Carroll Bates of 74 Taylor street on Monday evening, May 8.

Albert H. Sawyer proprietor of the Hillside house, Campton, New Hampshire, and John French of Campton are guests of Robert T. Johnson of Maple street.

The Christian Scientists held their first Wednesday evening meeting in their new quarters at Alpha hall last evening. The reading room is now located on the ground floor to which all are welcome.

MOTHERS' MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Mothers' Association was held Wednesday afternoon and there was a good attendance. The devotional services were conducted by the presiding officer and Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell sang three beautiful songs. The music gave great pleasure to the audience.

The speaker was Dr. McCausland and as might be anticipated his address was highly entertaining as well as instructive. In non-technical language he discussed diseases of the eye, the ear, the nose and the throat, describing the functions of those organs and parts and stating what constituted proper use and care of them. Then in their regular order he discussed the diseases to which these organs are subject and offered suggestions for practical preventatives, instructing those present as to how to recognize the symptoms of the most common of those diseases. Like all the other excellent lectures delivered before this Association during the season, this one would have to be heard first-hand to be fully appreciated. There was impressed upon the mothers present how important a part common sense should play in the treatment of certain diseases ,and how much assistance can be given nature by intelligent common sense cooperation with the physician by the mother.

As usual, the association will suspend its meetings until autumn.

GLOVER JURORS DISAGREE

Eight Said to Have Stood For Breaking Murdered Man's Will

Cambridge, Mass., May 4.—The jury in the contest of the will of Clarence F. Glover reported a disagreement to Judge Hammond in the supreme court here. The twelve men were then excused and later were formally dismissed from the case. In failing to agree upon a verdict the second attempt of the four brothers of the murdered Waltham laundryman, who were given nothing by the will, to break the instrument failed.

It became known that on the question of breaking the will the twelve men stood eight for and four against.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

One of the most unique and wholesome spectacles ever witnessed on this continent will be the cleaning and special arbor day celebration in Spokane the latter part of May when the city commissioners will cooperate with the residents in an effort to make Spokane a "spotless town." Mayor Hindley will proclaim a public holiday to start the campaign, after which the City Beautiful committee of the Chamber of Commerce and allied organizations will take charge.

Arrangements are not yet completed, but it is expected to bring out from 45,000 to 50,000 men and women, including railroad and bank presidents, manufacturers, wholesale and retail dealers and society matrons, on the opening day to assist in beautifying the residence districts. The city department will take care of the business streets and alleys and special detachments of firemen will be on hand to avert fires. The refuse will be destroyed under their direction.

It has become an annual institution in Spokane and has been taken up by other cities in the United States and the Dominion of Canada. Twenty thousand men, women and school children p articipated in the first annual cleaning day, five years ago. The men and boys were armed with shovels pruning implements and rakes, while the women and girls assisted in planting trees and shrubs and flower seeds. They worked from early morning until the sun passed from view behind the western hills and the results were highly satisfactory. When Spokane awakened the next morning the city presented the appearance of a new pin.

Beautification and artistic improvements were noticable in all parts of the city and it was generally conceded that the first cleaning day campaign was one of the most successful semicivic movements carried to a successful conclusion in Spokane and the Northwest. Then and there it was decided to devote one day each year to this work. Afterward the campaign was extended to cover 6 days, closing with an arbor day celebration the last afternoon of the week.

Another movement in connection with the cleaning day plan was the organization of the Spokane Tree Planting association with 10,000 active members among the children above the third grade in the public schools. Pupils promising to plant one or more trees or shrubs a year are eligible to free memberships. The certificates presented to the children contain full instructions in taking up and transplanting trees and shrubs, also hints on caring for the plants. To defray the expense of the organization special membership cards were sold to adults at $1 each.

The City Beautiful committee is declared to be one of the best organized bodies in America. In addition to the chairman and permanent secretary, there is a vice chairman in each ward, a captain in each precinct and a lieutenant in every block within the incorporated city limits. There also is a joint committee of 20 business men, making up the sub-committees on cleaning day, public buildings, parks, driveways and alleys, streets, bridges and tree planting. The joint committee meets twice a week, when plans are submitted for discussion, and upon adoption the work is carried out through the captains in the various wards.

The older boys in colleges and high schools are organized to assist the officers of the association in reporting districts or lots that require attention. The captains and lieutenants of the companies of boys make tours of every block in their neighborhoods, to oversee the work. They are supplied with blanks to make reports on the location of ash piles, refuse-littered alleys, neglected lawns and trees and broken fences and sidewalks, and as soon as these are checked the work of betterment begins.

The success of the several campaigns resulted in the formation of a civic plan commission, consisting of 50 liberal and esthetically educated business and professional men to work out a practical program for water, sewer, transportation, parks and boulevard system and municipal art in Spokane for the next 50 years. Experts declare this is one of the most important and farseeing pieces of business wisdom yet advanced by any American city.

CRAZED BY LOSS OF EMPLOYMENT

Boston Man Takes Lives of His Three Daughters

KISSES THEM ALL GOOD-BY

Then Turns on Gas and Leaves Them to Die—Tells Friend What He Has Done and Deed Is Not Discovered Until Many Hours Afterward—Feared His Motherless Little Ones Would Starve

Boston, May 4.—Thomas Hagerty, a widower, of 101 Calumet street, his mind unbalanced through the fact that he had lost his position and could find no employment, locked his three daughters in their bedroom on Tuesday night and turned on the gas.

Later he was tortured with remorse and confided in his friend, Patrick Sullivan, what he had done, adding the statement that he intended to commit suicide by the same method. Sullivan at first did not believe the statement, but decided to inform the police of Station 10.

At 9:30 last night he reported the statement of Hagerty to Lieutenant Fessenden of Station 10, and immediately a squad of officers was sent up to the house. The Hagerty flat is on the third floor of the three apartment house, and when the officers knocked on the door they received no reply.

They pushed in the door of the first room off the hall, and found three children, Margaret, aged 10; Marie, aged 7, and Anna, aged 5, on the bed in their night clothing. All were dead. On examination by Dr. O'Connor, it was found that they had been dead at least twelve hours.

Fearing that the man had carried out the latter part of his plan as well the officers made a search of the apartment, but without success. Finally they were told that the man had gone into the house at 91 Calumet street. Here they found Hagerty in the apartment of Miss Mary King. The man would not reply to any of the questions of the officers, except to affirm that he had killed his children because he saw nothing before them but poverty and starvation.

The children were laid out on the bed very carefully, their hands folded across their breasts, the sheets pulled tightly around them, "tucked in" at the sides. Then the father kissed them and bade them "goodbye."

Miss Mary King, at whose home Hagerty was found, told the story of Hagerty's life preceding the tragedy. Mrs. Hagerty died about three years ago and shortly after that Hagerty had secured a position as butler in a Back Bay family, that of the late Mrs. Anna P. Peabody. Mrs. Peabody died six weeks ago. He lived at the Back Bay house, and so could not take care of his motherless children. He sent them out of town to a home where they could be cared for at the cost of a few dollars a week.

When Mrs. Peabody died, Hagerty was immediately out of a position. Moreover, the people who had been boarding his children were clamoring for the money owed them, and he was without funds. He decided to take the children himself, confident that he could secure a position in a very short time.

He was unsuccessful in his attempts to find work, although he had been visiting the employment bureaus for the entire time. The children were hungry much of the time, and frequently what they received to eat was from the hands of Miss King and the other neighbors.

CASE COMES UP TODAY

District Attorney Says That McManigal Will Plead Guilty

Los Angeles, Cal., May 4.—Ortie McManigal, who is charged with John J. and James McNamara with blowing up the Los Angeles Times building and killing twenty-one men here, will plead guilty when he is arraigned this afternoon, accordingt to District Attorney Fredericks.

So far transcripts of the testimony before the grand jury have not been given to attorneys for the defense. They will be handed over when the men are arraigned. Clarence Darrow will be in charge of the counsel for the defense.

RISING FROM ITS ASHES

Bangor Will Be Amply Able to Provide For Its Destitute

Bangor, Me., May 4.—Clearing the wreckage of burned buildings from the streets, dynamiting dangerous ruins, receiving relief funds and distributing supplies to the destitute—these activities, together with the settlement of insurance, the hasty establishment of temporary places of business and plans for rebuilding, occupy Bangor's attention.

The relief fund amounts to $30,365, and it is likely to exceed $50,000 by the end of the week. It is certain that more than enough money will be locally subscribed to provide for the comparatively few destitute.

It is generally believed now that the loss will not exceed $3,500,000, and the insurance will approximate $2,000,000.

JUDGE RECEIVED THREATS BY MAIL

Alleged Writer of Letters Is Held In Default of $3000 Bail

Portsmouth, N. H., May 4.—In the absence of bail, Fred Gilbert of Portsmouth, charged with sending threatening letters to Judge Hadley of the Lowell police court, was placed in jail to await trial after a hearing before Jude Hale in the United States district court.

Gilbert pleaded not guilty and his bail was set at $3000. He is charged with having written letters to Hadley telling him that his house would be blown up unless the judge released from jail three men charged with looting mail bags in the postoffice at Lawrence.

CHARGED WITH BRIBERY

Five Members of the Buckeye State Legislature Are Indicted

Columbus, O., May 4.—Three state senators and two representatives were included in bribery indictments returned last evening by the Franklin county grand jury, which has been engaged in investigating corruption in the assembly.

One indictment was returned against each, charging the solicitation of bribes. In addition, Rodney J. Diegle, sergeant-at-arms in the senate, and alleged go-between in negotiations with senators, was indicted with the senators for aiding and abetting in the bribe solicitation.

Bail of $5000 for the three senators and Lowry, and of $10,000 for Nye and Diegle was furnished.

MONTGOMERY IN SING SING

Former Head of Hamilton Bank Serving Time For Larceny

New York, May 4.—William R. Montgomery, former president of the Hamilton bank, was taken from the Tombs to Sing Sing prison yesterday afternoon to serve not less than two years and two months and not more than five years and two months for larceny.

He was convicted last February of taking $4400 of the bank's funds, just before the institution closed, and appropriating the money to his own use.

HYDE RESIGNS UNDER FIRE

Gaynor Accepts City Chamberlain's "Sacrifice" With Regret

GRAND JURYMEN ARE ROUSED

Man Accused of Bribe Taking Characterized Proceedings Against Him as "One of Most Wicked Conspiracies In History of City"—First Instance of Indictment of High Official In Gotham Since Tweed Regime

New York, May 4.—Mayor Gaynor has acknowledged receipt of the resignation of Charles H. Hyde as city chamberlain. He replied that if the chamberlain insisted he should have to accept it with regret. On receipt of the mayor's acknowledgement, Hyde replied in writing that he did insist.

The mayor had written: "I have always found you honest and correct to a dot and it grieves me to see any such man sacrificed, even for the time being." The chamberlain thanked him, but answered that he did not think the mayor should be called on to bear his burden, just or unjust.

The grand jurymen were highly indignant that a man whom they had accused of bribe taking should refer, as Hyde did, to their indictments as "a political conspiracy," and threatened to "make somebody sweat for it." Hyde's secretary, John V. Smith, who joined him in attacking the grand jury, was summoned to appear as witness.

Hyde proffered his resignation as city chamberlain soon after his arraignment on an indictment for receiving a bribe. He said he was quitting his job in order not to embarrass Mayor Gaynor and he characterized the proceeding against him as "one of the most wicked conspiracies in the history of the city." The news that Hyde was quitting office came from Hyde himself. District Attorney Whitman said it surprised him.

The Hyde indictment furnishes the first instance of the indictment of high city official in New York since the Tweed regime, back in the seventies. The grand jury is still investigating the case of the people against Hyde, and more indictments against the city chamberlain are considered probable. Gaynor refused to be interviewed on the case.

The precedent for Hyde's indictment in this wise was the indictment of Alderman Dickinson in 1904. Dickinson offered to help Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury get an appropriation for a plant the department wanted in Brooklyn provided Woodbury would reinstate a discharged laborer. Habeas corpus proceedings got this proceeding before the appellate division, which held that the indictment was sound. But the case was never tried.

The loans of the Carnegie Trust company to Hyde's secretary were considered by the grand jury as "collateral evidence," implying a motivt for the main transaction of which he is accused, namely, the promising of more city money to the Northern bank in return for a loan by that institution to the Carnegie Trust company. The bribery or consideration alleged is the accommodation of Cummins' trust company.

THE PERFECT WAY

Scores of Quincy Citizens Have Learned It.

If you suffer from backache,
There is only one way to cure it.
The perfect way is to cure the kidneys.
A bad back means sick kidneys.
Neglect it, urinary troubles follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.
Are endorsed by Quincy people.

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch Street, Quincy, Mass., says. "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief, but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had finished the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

A WOOLEN "TRUST" INQUIRY

Relations of American Company With Thirty-Three Large Mills to Be Investigated—United Shoe Machinery Company Said to Have Shoe Industry In Its Grip—Steel and Sugar Concerns to Be Probed

Washington, May 4.—Representative Francis of Ohio introduced a resolution in the house to investigate the American Woolen company of Boston. The resolution calls for a sweeping inquiry into the relations of the American Woolen company with a list of twenty-three mills named in the resolution.

The house has started on a trust busting program that will rival any ever attempted by the department of justice. The committee on rules favorably reported the Stanley provision providing for investigation of the steel trust, and its alleged affiliations with railroads; coal companies and banks.

Representative Hardwick of Georgia, a member of the rules committee, at the same time introduced a resolution demanding an investigation of the sugar trust.

Following the example set by the Stanley resolution, it is expected that the house rules committee will report both the Hardwick and Francis resolutions, and that within ten days a probe of three of the largest trusts in the country will begin.

Boot and shoe manufacturers appeared before the senate committee on finance and argued against placing their products on the free list. They astonished the members of the committee by declaring that their entire industry is practically at the mercy of a gigantic trust, known as the United Shoe Machinery company of Boston. The representatives of the shoe industry explained to the committee that they were in the grip of this concern.

The charges against the shoe machinery trust were made by William D'Oench, a shoe manufacturer of St. Louis. The story he told appeared to make a complete case of violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and Senator Bailey remarked that the hearing should be turned over to the attorney general. He said he believed if this fere done the trust would have trouble on its hands.

The resolution aimed at the American Woolen company covers these points of inquiry: Whether the American Woolen company has violated since 1898 the Sherman act, which violations have not been prosecuted, and if such violations are disclosed the commission is directed to report the fact and circumstances to the house with bills requiring appropriate action to be taken by the executive officers of the government and to correct the evil.

Also if the company has not endeavored to control the price of raw wool and the sale and output of woolen goods; also as to capitalization of the company, the speculation in stocks by officers of the various corporations composing the American Woolen company and the controlling of the price of labor.

The resolution directs inquiry as to whether the American Woolen company has had any relations involving violations of the law with certain mills. The special committee is authorized to send for persons and books and to compel the testimony of witnesses.

The American Woolen company is the largest concern of its kind in the world and is now operating thirty-three mills. It employs more than 30,000 operatives. It makes worsted and woolen goods and is supposed to have had tremendous influence in framing the wool schedule in the Payne-Aldrich tariff which congress is about to take up on a revision proposition.

It is estimated that the growth of this company's business has added 30,000 to the population of Lawrence, Mass., alone within six years past. The company makes dress goods for men and women's wear in all weights and colors. It has executed some large contracts for furnishing the United States government with fabrics for army and navy uniforms. Besides its Massachusetts mills, it has plants in Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and New York. It was chartered in New Jersey and has a main office in Boston.

The company's preferred authorized capital stock amounts to $40,000,000, of which the whole amount has been issued. Its common authorized capital stock amounts to $40,000,000, of which $29,501,100 has been issued, according to the latest report at hand.

EXPENSES FOR A NEW LORIMER PROBE

Favorable Report Will Precipitate Contest In the Senate

Washington, May 4.—Renewal of the Lorimer investigation was provided for by the senate committee on contingent expenses, which approved a resolution covering the expenses of such an inquiry.

The report was unanimous, but there was a specific understanding that it should not be construed as an indication of the committee's views on the merits of the case.

The first fight in the senate on the resolution will come when an effort is made to have it referred to the committee on privileges and elections for a report on the merits. Senator La Follette will antagonize such a motion and contend for action by the senate without further committee reference.

Senators who in the last session voted in favor of Lorimer's retention of his seat generally hold the view that the senate should take no further action in the matter until the inquiry now under way in Illinois is concluded.

$8,000 POSTAL THEFT

Suspect Arrested In Boston Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned

Boston, May 4.—Timothy F. Sullivan was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes, charged with the theft of $8000 in bills that vanished two weeks ago on the way to the First National bank of Boston from the New London City National bank.

Sullivan was arrested as he stepped from the railway mail car in which he had been employed between here and New York. Instead of going to his house, where his wife and two children awaited him, he was locked up at Station 2.

The disappearance of the $8000, all in $10 and $20 bills and making a bulky package, was one of the oddest cases the postoffice has had in years.

Sullivan pleaded not guilty when arraigned. Hayes fixed bond at $10,000.

ACCEPTS $1,100,000

Government Compromises In Fraud Suit Against the Duveens

Washington, May 4.—The government has accepted $1,100,000 in compromise of the suits against Duveen Bros., the New York art firm accused of customs frauds.

The books and papers will be retained for evidence in a criminal action. Two of the Duveen brothers now under indictment are out on bail and not in the United States.

The settlement in the Duveen case involved the largest sum collected in any of the customs cases with the exception of the sugar frauds.

BEATEN BY ONE VOTE

Income Tax Is Thrown Down In the Massachusetts Senate

Boston, May 4.—The senate yesterday afternoon, by a majority of one vote, blocked the adoption of the federal icome tax amendment. The vote was 10 to 11, with nine pairs.

Five Republicans joined with the Democrats in favor of the tax. The vote against it was solidly Republican. Had the senate voted in favor of the tax yesterday Massachusetts would have been the thirty-second state out of the thirty-five necessary for the adoption of the amendment.

MRS. BERTUGLIO DEAD

Succumbs to Injuries Inflicted by Man Who Killed Himself

Providence, May 4.—After she had lain unconscious for fifty hours, death came to Mrs. Katie Bertuglio, who was shot and beaten by Luigi D'Parlo in the shooting affray which ended with the suicide of her slayer.

Mrs. Bertuglio, who aroused the animosity of D'Parlo because she had spurned his attentions, died as the result of two revolver shots in the head and a fractured skull caused by blows from the stock of the murderer's revolver. She is survived by three children.

HUMAN HEART SHOWN TO THE DODGE JURY

Effort to Show That Heath Did Not Commit Suicide

Guildhall, Vt., May 4.—During Wednesday's session of the Florence M. Dodge murder trial the prosecution sought to show that William Heath did not commit suicide, but was shot by some person from behind and more that three feet away while Heath was on his hands and knees.

The defense endeavored to show that suicide was not impossible, and for the first time showed along what lines it was constructing some of its defense.

A human heart, that of the dead man, William Heath, was shown to the jury, and later marked as an exhibit and offered as evidence. Dr. B. H. Stone, the state pathologist, passed a penholder through the wound to show the course of the bullet, and then stood for more than a minute while the jury looked at it. Many turned pale, while others went out to get the air. The accused was cool throughout the ordeal.

DIFFERS WITH DOCTORS

Lynn Man Proves to Them That His Legs Are Not Broken

Lynn, Mass., May 4.—Chester A. Goodhue put his family aboard a train for Haverhill and when he got through with his good-byes the train was under way and he had to jump. When he stopped rolling he was in the cellar of the old Lynn Item building. He was unconscious all the way to the Lynn hospital. When he woke up the doctors were remarking that both his legs were broken.

Goodhue is not an argumentative man, but he felt forced to differ with the surgeons. They insisted that they knew all about it and finally to convince them of error Goodhue got up and walked around. A little later he said he thought he'd go home before he got any more legs constructively fractured.

CLASH HALTS TRIAL

Violent Scene When Morra Is Denounced as Actual Assassin

Viterbo, Italy, May 4.—Nicola Morra, denounced by Gennaro Abatemaggio as one of the actual assassins of Gennaro Cuoccolo and the latter's wife, faced his accuser in court and their exchanges provoked a scene so violent that President Bianchi was compelled to suspend the sitting.

The informer and the defendant stood before the bench and appeared to be prevented from springing at each other's throat only by the carabineers.

Again Abatemaggio described the murders, indicating minutely the part taken by Morra, who frequently interrupted with denials. The accused first rejoined with ridicule, but anger soon possessed him. "Your whole story is absurd" shouted Morra. Then followed a verbal duel between the informer and the accused.

AN UNUSUAL CASE

Woman Sues For the Custody of Her Unborn Child

Boston, May 4.—Mrs. Bertha Schwartz of Lawrence and Boston filed a divorce libel against her husband, David Schwartz, asking for the custody of her unborn child. This is the first suit of its kind ever entered in the state of Massachusetts, according to available records in the state courts.

The reason for the suit is given by Mrs. Schwartz as an effort to protect property rights of her unborn child against her husband, who, she declares, has not supported her since her marriage in Lawrence on Nov. 27, 1910.

"The Country Minister," a five act comedy to be given by the Quincy Adams club on Wednesday, May 17, in Music hall, promises to be one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season. L. H. Clee will take the leading role as the minister and he will be supported by a cast of popular young people of South Quincy, all of them well known in amateur theatrical circles.

Camp Quincy will be pitched on the shores of Thorndike pond, Rindge, N. H. this year. The combined advantages of a large pond, five miles long, and old Mount Monadnock, with all its possibilities for hikes and explorations should recommend the new location to boys and parents alike. Efficient leaders will have charge of the different tents and will direct the boys in their play. The dates set for the start is July 1 and two weeks of fun with a special Fourth of July celebration and other special events at stated intervals will follow until the return on July 15.

SPINSTERS MEET AT ATLANTIC

Womans Suffrage, Men and Dress Discussed

If any bachelors or widowers remain in single blessedness after the performance given Wednesday evening at Atlantic Music hall, their hearts must be hard indeed.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Josephine J. Green and was presided over in a thoroughly up-to-date manner. Each Spinster reponded to the roll-call with an appropriate sentiment about man. A song entitled "Why don't the Men propose" was next in order, followed by an entertaining paper on Women's Sufferage, given by Miss Sophia Stuckup. Two poems appropriate to the occasion were read by Miss Polly Jane Fratt and Jerusha Matilda Spriggins. Considerable fun was occasioned by the reading of a list of eligible Atlantic bachelors.

Then a discussion concerning dress reform was presented by Miss Belinda Bluegrass for the affirmative and Miss Rebecca Rachell Sharpe for the negative. Another song "Go tell the Bachelors" was sung.

The meting was then interrupted by Professor Makeover, who guaranted to put the Spinsters through his machine and convert them into anything they cared to be. The result was as follows:

Song — Mrs. J. Ripley
Reading — Master Joseph Beal
Duet — Miss Margaret Reade, Miss Hazel Davison.
Song — Miss Anna B. Harding
Fancy Dancing — Master James Kennedy
Song — Mr. Norton Stetson
Reading — Miss Maud Reade
Songs — Miss Eleanor Phillips, Master Ralph Smith

The characters were played by the following cast:

Josephine Jane Green, President of the Young Ladies' Single Blessedness Debating Society — Miss Maud Read
Priscilla Abigal Hodge, Secretary — Miss Anna Blanche Harding
Calamity Jane Higgins, Treasurer — Miss Ada Blanche Harding
Rebecca Rachel Sharpe — Miss Hazel Davison
Tiny Short, a very tall lady — Mr. Arthur Hall
Patience Desire Mann — Miss Margaret Read
Jerusha Matilda Spriggins — Mrs. Albert Hall
Sophia Stuckup — Mrs. Alva T. Beede
Juliet Long, a very tall lady — Mr. George Deans
Charity Longface — Mrs. John Burke
Cleopatra Belle Brown — Mrs. Angus Polson
Polly Jane Pratt — Mrs. W. Hartley
Violet Ann Struggles — Miss Grace DeWolf
Belinda Bluegrass, dress reform advocate — Miss Jean Arthur
Francis Beautyspot Temptation Touchmenot (candidate) — Mrs. J. Ripley
Hannah Biggerstaff (candidate) — Mrs. William Cummings
Professor Makeover — Mr. John Ward
The Professor's Assistant — Mr. Kenneth Blake

The committee consisted of Mrs. Albert Hall and Mr. John Ward and much credit is due them for the success of the affair.

STRICKEN ON THE STREET.

Mrs. William Herbert of Sumner street was stricken with apoplexy Wednesday afternoon and lay on the sidewalk for twenty minutes before the police ambulance arrived and took her to the hospital.

When Mrs. Herbert fell the other women in the street, became so excited that they ran screaming instead of trying to render assistance. A boy finally notified Dr. Middleton who suggested taking her into one of the houses in the neighborhood but the foreign women were so badly frightened they would not allow it. Dr. Middleton attended the woman on the sidewalk until the police ambulance arrived.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. Intermediates were defeated by the Boston Y. M. C. A. Intermediates, Wednesday afternoon at Ward 3 playgrounds by a score of 33 to 8. Up to the end of the fifth inning it was Quincy's game 8 to 7, but Estey went wild and the team gave him poor support. Sutermeister was put in without a chance to warm up and was unable to stem the tide of runs. The high wind and the cold made it disagreeable both for spectators and players.

In the grammar school league on Wednesday, Adams defeated Gridley Bryant 12 to 3 and Massachusetts Fields won from John Hancock 10 to 9.

The Quincy Adams club play the Lynn Employed Boys at Lynn Saturday afternoon.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates play Wakefield at Merrymount park Saturday at 3.30.

Makaria plays the Northwesterns at Merrymount park Saturday at 3.30.

Several scores of games played on Wednesday are as follows:

Milton High 7, Mass. Normal Art 2.
Boston H. S. of Commerce 5, Cambridge Latin 2.
Framingham High 5, Worcester South High 2.
Melrose 3, Somerville 1.
Groton 6, Volkmann 3.
Brookline 7, Dorchester 6.
Brockton 20, Powder Point 4.
Everett 10, Boston College High 9.
Waltham 16, Salem 2.

At the open tournament held on the links of the Wollaston Golf club yesterday in the teeth of the gale, F. H. Hoyt of Allston was low man in both gross and net score with 81-2-79. Since no player could take two prizes, the cup for best net went to J. H. Churchill of Wollaston whose card was 92-10-82.

A. G. Lockwood playing at scratch and B. S. Evans, Jr., with a handicap ofthree each handed in an 86. R. R. Freeman was the only other player to keep under 90. His card was 89-4-85.

GUILD ENTERTAINED

The Women's Guild of Christ church was entertained at the Rectory, Wednesday afternoon. A short business meeting was held after which the jet of sociability was turned on and a very pleasant afternoon was spent.

It was announced that a salad supper was to to be given in the parish house next Wednesday evening at 6.30 under the auspices of the Guild.

Husband—Why do you scold the butcher? It isn't his fault that the meat comes to the table all dried up. Scold the cook.

Wife—I don't dare to, but I'm in hopes that if I keep on scolding the butcher he'll get mad and come around and scold the cook.—New York Weekly.

WOULD RATHER WHIP HOPES THAN BE A HOPE.

Boxers sometimes get some peculiar ambitions. Jim Savage is a husky young heavyweight who has done a lot of fighting around New York, where he recently put "White Hope" Frank Moran out of the running. Savage has an ambition, and it is not to be a white hope. All he wants is the job of cleaning up the white hopes as fast as they bob up. If they can't get by him, to the junk pile with them, says Savage. If they do, let them be recognized as regular white hopes, with a chance to go to the top. Quite some job for Savage, but he declares he would rather be the cleanup kid than one of the hopes.

MARQUARD MUST MAKE GOOD.

If Giants' Big Southpaw Does Not Deliver He Will Be Sent to Minors.

Unless Rube Marquard, the former association pitching star, shows the stuff within a few weeks he is going to have the unpleasant experience of splashing into the minor league pond again.

ark (N. J.) club, wants Marquard, and Manager McGraw has promised his old worker the erstwhile pride of Indianapolis providing he fails to display something good as soon as the season opens. McGraw paid out 11,000 plunks for the Rube a few years ago and has carried him as dead weight ever since.

RUCKER OFFERS SUGGESTION

Twirler Says He Would Tie Bases Down With Rubber Bands.

Fate had put it up to George Bell, the big farmer from Academy Corners, Pa., to pitch the opening game for Brooklyn against Boston.

Nap Buckner had set his heart on starting the season, and he was extremely reluctant to admit that his twisted ankle would put him out of the game for weeks.

Nap is far from a spendthrift, and the news had another angle that hurt him.

"Gee," he complained, "have I got to stop longer at that fifteen dollar a week hotel?"

It was suggested that Nap take a taxicab home, but he balked at the dollar expense when a trolley car cost only a nickel.

"Say," said Buckner, "why can't they fasten the bases down with a rubber band so there would be some give to them? It would prevent a lot of these accidents."

Manager Mack Has Clever System.

Connie Mack keeps a score of every game and files a record away each day, so that when a player comes to signing a contract and asks for more money Connie can show him just what he has been able to do on every occasion he went to the plate. There is some system to that.

BASEBALL PRATTLE

The passing of Kitty Bransfield, the Philadelphia Nationals' slow moving first baseman, is freely predicted. He's only a pinch hitter now.

Cicotte, the Boston Americans' twirler, has developed an "aeroplane" curve which has a "naughty little wiggle." The ball does a houchi-couchee as it nears the plate.

Syd Smith, it is said, is to do the catching for the left handed Cleveland pitchers this season. The rotund backstop is said to be a past master at handling port siders.

A rusty nail piercing his foot at Los Angeles one year ago didn't put Billy Sullivan out of business after all. The veteran will catch practically all of the games for the Chicago Americans this season.

Cy Falkenberg of Cleveland, in addition to his new fadeaway ball, has developed an underhand affair to mix with it. He starts it at a height of seven feet, swoops it down to the ground, and it crosses the plate with the chin elevated like an angry old maid.

Good Form

Obligations of Guests.

It may very probably come as a shock to some people to learn that guests have obligations, the idea prevailing that these lie on the shoulders of the hostess. Indeed, there are some fortunate persons who are quite satisfied that as guests they are conferring, not receiving, obligations by their presence at parties and that having actually appeared nothing more can be required of them. They are graciously pleased to eat their host's dinner and smoke his cigars or possibly to sit through the concert or whatever entertainment he may have provided and when leaving, having perhaps, perhaps not, shaken their hostess by the hand and murmured, "Such a pleasant party!" they consider they have fulfilled all social duties. That they have talked through the music or yawned in the drawing room after dinner or have been obviously bored by their partner at dinner is, of course, not their fault, and they feel perfectly justified in picking holes in the entertainment and remarking to their various friends:

"Were you at the So-and-so's last night? My dear, what a crush! So badly managed I got only a grape for supper. And poor X. sang all out of tune. Dear me! Why do people give parties like that?" Why, indeed, if that is all the pleasure they afford their friends?

As a matter of fact, however, this kind of thing is often a pose. The apparently disgusted guests have probably enjoyed themselves very much and would be horribly annoyed if parties like that were not given and furious if they were not asked to them. Often, too, they are really quite kind hearted persons, but it has never occurred to them that guests at a party should contribute toward its success.

Now, there are two motive powers which go to produce the good guest; either will do it, but when they work together the perfect guest is the result. These motive powers are good feeling and good breeding. The man or woman who is actuated by either of these principles will not be rude or casual or obviously bored, to mention only a few of the characteristics of the modern party goer. But, while good feeling will prevent one from doing what would wound or annoy one's hostess, good breeding and a knowledge of the ways of the world are needed to produce the finished guest. Without this knowledge one will be nervous, self conscious and, lacking ease, will not be able to add in any way to the success of the party.

Try to learn to be chummy with your husband, so that when the first glamour of love dies you will have the steady glow and warmth of friendship and comradeship to fall back upon and will not be left, as so many couples are, with nothing.

Cultivate a sense of humor. There are many things in married life at which we must laugh or weep, and the ability to see the funny side of things will keep you from discontent.

Don't be one of the I-told-you-so women. When your husband makes a mistake, let him down easy and forget the incident. He will remember it with tears of gratitude.

Don't expect your husband to keep up the high pressure lovemaking of his courting days through forty years of dead level matrimony.

Never forget that a man is as much bound to have flattery as a child is to want sweets. Deny him sweets at home and he is apt to go to the shop down the street.

Don't bewail the fact that your husband is not all your girlish fancy painted him. What would a perfect man want with you?

For a Hostess to Ponder.

Don't have nervous waiting maids.

Don't confide any of your terrified anticipations to your husband.

Don't put a man next to his wife or a married couple on the same side of the table.

Don't fail to be ready and in the drawing room five minutes before the time the guests are expected to arrive.

Don't allow the conversation to remain entirely between two couples. Make it general at times.

Don't Hold Things In Fingers.

Girls, don't imagine that you must always have in your hands some small article—a purse, a handkerchief or even a hairpin—in order to feel perfectly at ease in the presence of strangers. Forget that you possess eight fingers and two thumbs and they will lie in your lap or against your sides in the manner most natural to them. A good way to overcome self consciousness and to get rid of the sensation of not knowing what to do with the hands is to deliberately start for a long walk along a crowded thoroughfare without even the tiniest of coin purses between the fingers. You will be surprised to note how few really graceful women are making their hands work simultaneously with their feet.

TO KEEP HANDS OFF

Taft Says Our Government Has No Desire For Expansion

Baltimore, May 4.—President Taft, in his speech at the opening of the third national peace conference here, declared that the United States would keep hands off and not seek to extend its domain or to acquire foreign territory.

The president made no mention specifically of Mexico, but to those who heard him it was evident that the troubled situation there and the suspicion in the South American republics as to the intention of this nation in regard to its southern neighbors had inspired him.

MERCHANTS WEEK PLANNED FOR

Band Concerts, Firemen's Parade and Other Features

Date Changed to Week Beginning June 19

A special meeting of the Merchants branch of the Board of Trade was held Thursday evening at the rooms of the board in the Adams building. The meeting was held to hear the report of the advertising committee and take action on changing the date for the annual Merchants' week.

The committee on advertising reported that figures obtained for printing a 24 or 32 page magazine had been obtained and that the local printers were lower than the Boston firms, the bid of the George W. Prescott Publishing Co. being the lowest. It was planned to issue an edition of 15,000 copies but the edition could not be gotten out in time for the date originally selected.

The original plan for the week did not contemplate anything in the way of an entertainment and for this reason the Merchants were not taking hold of the advertising as well as they should.

An informal discussion followed on the subject of advertising and entertainments. It was the opinion of several that the people were hounded to death with advertising matter and the mere matter of a magazine advertising reduced prices would not bring the people to Quincy. There must be some attraction in order to get people here. Several stated that they had rather contribute money for an entertainment.

It was generally agreed that as the Merchants of Atlantic, Wollaston, Quincy Point and West Quincy would receive no direct benefit from the week it would not be fair to ask them to contribute.

One merchant advanced the idea that instead of a merchants' week that a festival be held in some hall in the month of September. That is

DUTCH SUPPER AND SALE

Successful Affair of Ladies Aid Society

A very successful sale, supper and entertainment were held in the Universalist church Thursday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society.

A Dutch supper was served at 6.30 under the direction of Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt, president of the society. The menu consisted of frankfurters, sauerkraut, cheese, potato salad and to these were added baked beans, rolls and coffee for those who perferred Yankee to Dutch.

After supper, the Murray club repeated the two plays, "Her Deaf Ear" and "A Paper Match" given in connection with their sale last week and their popularity was still further attested.

Two vocal solos were well rendered by Misses Edith Hyland and Addie Wright .

At the sale the various tables were in charge of the following:

Apron table—Miss Bradbury and Mrs. Veazie.

Candy table—Mrs. Annie Smith.

Grab bag—Mrs. Mary Hobart.

Ice cream table—George W. Cragg.

Among those present, was Miss Fannie E. Austin who has accepted the call to become pastor and will begin her duties the first Sunday in October. She will occupy the pulpit next Sunday and will not appear in Quincy again until fall since she spends the summer in New Hampshire as pastor of a church.

CHURCH HELPERS.

The Church Helpers, one of the active allied societies of the Wollaston Unitarian church held an interesting meeting in the vestry on Thursday afternoon.

At the roll call each member responded with a quotation. Contralto solos by Mrs. Royal L. Turner, a club member and prominent vocalist, were enjoyed.

Selections from the "Cape Cod Ballads" of Joseph Lincoln were read by Rev. Carl G. Horst. Following the meeting afternoon tea was enjoyed, Mrs. William E. Rowe and Mrs. William H. Boynton presiding.

Mrs. G. Ernest Carr and Mrs. Ralph W. Oldham were appointed in charge of the chancel flower supply for May and Mrs. Harry A. Stevens for the annual children's dance. Among those present were eleven infants the guests of their mothers.

PARENTS' MEETING.

The annual meeting and last of the season was held by the Parents and Teachers Association of the Massachusetts Fields school on Thursday evening.

The following officers were elected:

President—A. G. Baker.

Vice President—O. W. F. Alstine.

Secretary—S. J. Ripley.

Treasurer—Mrs. Charles W. Reynolds.

Executive Committee—Mrs. Elisha Atkins, Mrs. J. R. Morris and Miss Florence Gammons.

The secretarys report for the previous meeting and the annual report were read by Leon F. Besse, secretary pro tem. In the latter report the work of the association was reviewed since its organization in the fall of 1910. The treasurer's report followed and a general discussion of matters affecting the school took place.

After adjournment of the business meeting the evening was taken up with music, readings and games in charge of a committee composed of J. R. Morris, Leon F. Besse and David H. Goodspeed.

RECEPTION TO REV. T. C. MARTIN

People of Hall Place Church Greet New Pastor

A reception was tendered the Rev. T. C. Martin and family at the Hall Place M. E. church, Wednesday evening by the Ladies' Aid.

Duets were rendered by Miss Olive Grant and C. A. Goucher; Miss M. K. Shirley and C. A. Goucher, with Miss Ada Williams as accompanist. Also recitations by Master Leslie McCormick.

Miss Cassie Thayer welcomed the pastor on behalf of those present and he responded in a few well chosen words. Miss May Williams presented Mrs. Martin with flowers on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, after which all had a chance to meet the pastor and family.

Light refreshments were served by the refreshment committee of the Ladies' Aid, and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. Martin was born in Preston, England, and came to this country when two years of age. His boyhood was spent in the town of Warren, Mass, where he worked at the shoemaker's trade. He graduated from Wesleyan Academy in 1873 and went to college, graduating in 1877. He entered the ministry at this time and has been a member of the New England Conference all but nine months of his ministry. He took several prizes while at college for public speaking.

Mr. Martin has held pastorates at South Hadley Falls; Wakefield; Monson; Trinity, Lynn; Shelbourne Falls; and Amherst. His last pastorate was at East Long Meadow and Hamden. His special work has been the raising of church debts, and building and repairing churches. Built the William Butler Memorial church at Shelbourne Falls and raised large debt while at Wakefield. He also started the church at Southville.

In 1882 he married Miss Carrie E. Doane of Dana. Five children were born to them, four boys, and one girl. The two oldest boys graduated from Wesleyan in 1905 and 1906. One is teaching in the High school at Westfield, N. J., and the other is a teacher of physics in the High school at Watertown, Mass. The daughter is in her senior year in Syracuse University. The next son has just entered Wesleyan University, while the youngest is in his freshman year in the High school.

Mr. Martin has lived entirely in New England. He visited England and Scotland in 1891. He was sent to West Quincy by the bishop who presided at the Conference held at Cambridge in April of the present year. The outlook for the work of the coming year is very bright and encouraging.

REPAIRING TRACKS.

People going to and from W. Quincy and East Milton by electric cars have to take a walk of a bout a quarter of a mile at South Quincy and still pay the same price for the ride. From a point at the switch above Quincy street to a place opposite the Ward Three playgrounds the street is ripped up and new rails are being laid. In consequence of the little hike which the passengers have to take there are delays at both ends. The same conductor makes the whole trip with the passengers so there is no opportunity to "skin the company out of a nickel."

THE PUPIL, PROGRAM AND THE PARENT

Splendid Soul Stirring Address by Mr. Howlett

Last Meeting of Cranch Parents and Teachers Association

The last meeting of the year for the Parents and Teachers association of the Cranch school was held Thursday evening in the school building with the largest and most enthusiastic audience of the season. George E. Pfaffmann, president of the association, presided at the meeting. Mr. Townsend, master of the school reported on the improvements in the school yard and the work he hoped to see done in the near future.

Miss Mary E. Harris sang a group of songs which were well received by the audience. After the address by Mr. Howlett a social hour was enjoyed and frappe was served by the hospitality committee for the meeting consisting of the following Miss Nellie E. Marsh, teacher in the eighth grade, Mrs. Edward Angier, Mrs. Edwin S. Bennett, Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Mrs. Howard Elwell, Mrs. Henry Faxon.

While the refreshments were being served music was furnished by four pupils of the school.

James D. Howlett, headmaster of the High school was the speaker of the evening. He took for his subject "The pupil , the program and the parent." No report could do justice to the splendid, soul stirring address given by the speaker and the public is suffering a real loss because there is no written copy. In opening the address Mr. Howlett said he would take the advice of a friend who told him to begin by telling a story and the audience would give him the best of attention while waiting for another.

All were agreed that the address was on the the most telling and heart felt they had ever heard, that the speaker was the right man in the right place and that every effort would be made by them to keep him here with us.

In speaking of the pupil he emphasized the fact that graduates of Quincy schools are too immature. Entering the first grade at five years of age and having only eight grades, the boy and girl enter the high school at thirteen years, and with only a four year high school course, are sent to college or into business at seventeen. In other cities, the grammar school

That Camorra trial over in Italy dispenses a brand of justice almost equal to what is put up by the mock trial entertainments given by our sewing societies.

The English had some smart speakers at their peace meeting the other night, but the $300,000,000 they were spending for battleships talks more eloquently.

Mr. Taft told the New Yorkers that he did not want to annex Canada. As Uncle Sam has 46 children of his own, with two more under way, it seems unnecessary for him to ask to adopt his neighbors family.

The newspapers are perfectly willing to have their friends call around to lick the editor, but when as at Los Angeles they use dynamite as an instrument of chastisement, there's going to be something doing.

The decision of the trustees of the Crane Public Library to continue the present hours should be commended. Heretofore the Library has closed at 6 P. M. beginning the first of May and it has inconvenienced many who wished to use the reference books or the reading room.

Some 1,000 catalpa trees have been set out in Quincy this week which should result in years to come in a more beautiful Quincy, even if they do not all live. The Ledger gave away over 500. There was a great demand for them by young and old, the children being especially interested.

BANGOR'S FIRE LESSON.

The $10,000,000 fire in Bangor, Me., conveys a striking lesson to every city where free wooden construction is permitted.

As the Associated Press says: "The section devastated by the flames comprises in the main business blocks of all but rotting wood."

Bangor was an unusual sinner in the prevalence of wood buildings. It has had the excuse, as the shipping point for the Maine lumber industry, that wood construction was very cheap. But even at that, it has proved a gold brick.

Instead of continually raving about the sins of Congress and politicians for the high cost of living, why will not the American people give some thought of such wasteful extravagances as fire?

We burn up every year $2.30 per capita, or over $10 for the average family. The European fire loss is only 33 cents a head.

When a traveller, after touring the cities of Europe, built of stone, brick, and cement, first returns to our own wooden towns, they look like a conglomeration of card houses in their tawdy flimsiness.

But as long as insurance policies allow us to shift the loss on the other fellow, it never occurs to our happy-go-lucky American temperament that every family has to pay the price of a couple of barrels of flour yearly for needless fire loss.

And what an impression of substantial business prosperity is given by a city that has had the foresight to require fire proof construction! Take Denver, Colo., where a fear of water scarcity has lead to a practical elimination of wood. The impression of solid dignity that the visitor carries away from such a town is worth for advertising purposes all the higher cost of the construction, let alone the economy in fire departments and individual losses not covered by insurance.

But in our ordinary cities, if a man covers his fragile tinder box with a thin sheet of metal made to imitate stone, we call it fire proof, and admit it even to the limits where dangerous construction is forbidden. In many places if a man puts a tin roof on his shack, it gets by as fire proof.

Woman's World

© 1911, by American Press Association.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY.

At the age of sixty-seven Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist in the department of agriculture and chief crusader in the United States for pure food and drugs, at last has taken unto himself a wife. His marriage to Miss Anna Campbell Kelton of Washington was an event of national importance. Some of the jokesmiths are expressing the hope that the new Mrs. Wiley is a good cook, for Dr. Wiley certainly deserves a wife who, if she does not actually do the family cooking, is capable of supervising the work scientifically.

Mrs. Wiley is the youngest daughter of the late Brigadier General John C. Kelton, who was governor of the Soldiers' home at Washington at the time of his death. She is president of the Woman's Suffrage league of the District of Columbia. For several years she has held an important position in the library of congress.

It is gratifying to note that "a breakfast followed the wedding ceremony," after which Dr. and Mrs. Wiley started on a bridal tour to last several weeks. Mrs. Wiley's age is less than half that of her husband. Dr. Wiley is the man who led the crusade against food and drug adulteration which resulted in the enactment by congress of the measure known as the pure food law. This law requires the labeling of all food packages so that the buyer may know the exact nature of the contents. Recently Dr. Wiley in a speech declared that this is an overdrugged nation and also that alcohol is harmful, and the prohibition of the liquor traffic would be a blessing to the world.

Extravagance Then and Now.

It is very much the fashion to berate modern woman about her extravagance.

When you can't scold a woman about anything else, when you have wasted all your ammunition against freak fashions and other pet feminine follies, then it is considered timely to scold women for the reckless way in which they spend money nowadays. And you always add "nowadays," just as if the grandmothers were always frugal.

The nowadays is rather unfair. It is safe to assert that there have always been feminine spendthrifts as well as those who were careful and conscientious in the expenditure of money.

The wardrobe excesses of Josephine form appalling reading, with their hundreds of sets of things, and evidence more than anything else the vulgarity of the parvenu.

Maria Theresa, the second wife of Napoleon, on the other hand, conducted her expenditures on moderate lines, although springing from one of the most ancient courts of Europe.

Extravagance is not necessarily an appanage of rank. It is, as a rule, the outward and visible sign of the man who has made riches quickly and who desires that his women folk should blazon it forth to the world by running through the whole gamut of modern pleasures in the most costly possible way.

Rose Hats For Spring.

Some of the new spring hats are already on exhibition in the exclusive shops, and among them is the flower hat. Roses of all kinds and sizes seem to be the most popular flower used. Some of these roses are made of grosgrain ribbon with a picot edge set off by leaves and stems of ribbon of the same shade as the flower. Large and small roses are often used on the same hat. The soft pastel tones of blue, pink and green bid fair to be favorites. On some of the large hats the wreath of roses is veiled by malines, and on some of the models valenciennes lace is used to set off the beauty of the roses. Among the small flowers used are the forgetmenots, lilies of the valley and heliotrope. One of the handsomest of the spring models has a long wreath of forgetmenots which are made of old gold velvet. Rosebuds of pink and blue chiffon are also used on some of the advanced models.

INVITES CRITICISMS AND SUGGESTIONS

Taft Authorizes Investigation of the Tariff Board

Washington, May 5.—President Taft has authorized the tariff board to submit to an investigation at the hands of a committee of business men connected with the National Tariff Commission association. This is another step on the part of the advocates of a permanent tariff commission to popularize the work of the present board and to pave the way, if possible, for the creation of a permanent tariff commission.

President Taft's action was taken at the request of President Cobb of the Tariff Commission association, who asked for the investigation for the purpose of enabling his association "to consider and decide whether the work and experience of the board indicate the desirability of any changes in the form of legislation which we ask of congress in our advocacy of legislation to make permanent the idea of an independent commission."

Cobb has been notified by the president that the investigation may begin at once, and the president invites criticisms and suggestions from the investigating committee.

MERCHANTS

each merchant would have a booth at which he could exhibit some line of goods on which a special price was made.

This idea seemed to strike the merchants as a good thing but they were in favor of having both the festival and Merchants' week. The latter to be held in the spring and the festival in the fall.

It was suggested that during Merchants' week there should be a day assigned to each section of the city it being generally admitted that the centre derived practically all of the benefit from the week. It was also suggested that any money needed for entertainment should be raised by subscription among the merchants in City Square.

All of the discussion was informal each speaker expressing his own ideas. The general trend of the discussion was however that something more than advertising was needed to bring people here.

DATE CHANGED.

The question of the time for holding Merchants' week was then taken up the original date fixed at the April meeting being recinded. It was then voted that the date be the week beginning June 19.

BAND CONCERTS.

It was also voted to hold band concerts every evening and a committee consisting of Fred Zoller, J. A. Keating and Alfred H. Remick was appointed to look into the matter of procuring a portable band stand. One that the association should own and which could be readily moved.

FIREMEN'S PARADE.

It was also suggested that the firemen's parade of last year was a splendid feature and it was voted that the president of the association request the Mayor to arrange for a parade and play out of the fire department the last day of the week.

ADVERTISING CAR.

Nathan Ames was appointed a special committee to confer with the officials of the street railway to see what could be done about getting an advertising car for the week.

CITY SQUARE LIGHTING.

An informal discussion was also held on the lighting of City Square. Both the Electric Light and Gas Company were giving demonstrations of street lighting. The association did not come to any conclusion however as to which was the best. This will be taken up at a later meeting.

MEETING CHANGED.

It was decided that instead of the regular meeting next Tuesday evening to hold a meeting Monday evening at 9 o'clock after the stores closed.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A number of friends of Lawrence H. Allen, 34 Avon Way, gathered at his home Thursday evening to join him in celebrating his birthday, for on the fourth, Father Time slipped over the last sheet of the quire used in recording the passing years of the host.

Early in the evening readings were given by an elocutionist, a friend of the host's, and a sleight of hand performance and card tricks were executed by a magician from town.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake, candy and cherry frappe were served later in the evening and then cards were enjoyed until a late hour.

ST. JOHN'S BAZAAR.

There was another large attendance Thursday evening at the bazaar of St. John's church at the parochial school hall. District three had charge of the entertainment program of the evening which included, vocal solos by Miss Welch, duet and fancy dancing by the Misses Phelan and whistling solos by Matthew Fay. There was also music by the children's orchestra.

Tonight district one has charge of the entertainment and a fine program is promised.

—A contemporary, commenting on billboards makes the truthful ing on billboards makes the truthful statement that the billboard industry when left to itself, steadily advances. In too many American cities the billboard industry is left to itself, or, worse still, it is stimulated by the prevailing public disregard of its own interests. Of course, no thoroughly billboarded city can make pretensions to beauty. Whatever of beauty it has is handicapped. Whole streets and whole neighborhoods are injured by the presence of a few billboards. The owner of a vacant lot who grants privilege to a billboard concern injures not only the value of his own property but the value of property all around him. At the very least, he should be taxed for this privilege. Perhaps in no other way could the billboard nuisance be more speedily abated.—Christian Science Monitor.

GIFT DAY AT W. G. SHAW'S

Mammoth Furniture Store Thronged With People

Thursday was gift day at W. G. Shaw's mammoth furniture store and the store was packed with people during the whole afternoon and evening. The idea of Mr. Shaw's holding the gift day was to induce people to come to his store and inspect the extensive line of goods carried and to note the extremely low prices at which they were marked. No attempt was made to make sales during the afternoon and in fact it would have been impossible so great was the crush.

Wilson's orchestra was present and rendered a fine musical program which was greatly enjoyed.

People begun to arrive early in the afternoon and were allowed to roam about the warerooms at will. Every man woman and child was given a coupon ticket which entitled them to participate in the gift of nine valuable articles in the furniture line. In addition to this each child was presented with a game.

The Sperry-Hutchins stamp company also had an exhibit and gave away sheet music and postal card albums.

A large corps of clerks were on hand assisting the visitors in their trip about the store.

At 6 o'clock the doors were closed for an hour during which time Mr. Shaw entertained his clerks at dinner at Thompson's restaurant.

If there was a crush in the afternoon there was a jam in the evening. It seemed as though everybody and their best friend was there.

At 9.45 the drawing for the free gifts took place. Peter Carlson held the sealed box in which the coupons were placed and Bert Emery a Boston furniture salesman drew out nine lucky coupons.

The numbers of these coupons, the article and value of the article will be found in Mr. Shaw's advertisement on another page of the Ledger.

Saturday's Ledger will contain the names of the winners of the gifts and other important information.

When seen this morning Mr. Shaw said that his whole idea had been to get the people to come to his store and see what he had to sell, what a large stock he carried and at what low prices they were sold and that the result had been beyond his expectation.

PUPIL, PROGRAM AND PARENT

has nine grades and the high school course is five years in length, giving the pupils of these schools two more years. It is hardly fair to expect our pupils who are two years younger to compete successfully with these others.

A willingness on the part of the pupils to do their work is also a very important factor. "You should see to it" he said "that the pupil is not only equipped with maturity and efficiency, but also with a willingness to do his work." "Don't continue to send him if after a sufficient trial it is found that he does not want to go and will not work. Take him out and set him to work.

The program should be suited to the needs of the community. In Quincy, a different program is needed from the one used in Worcester and Springfield.

Here the average boy fits himself for work in the granite business, the Fore River Shipbuilding Company or the Tubular Rivet and Stud company and it would be unwise to insist upon his taking the college course. In Quincy High school, seven courses are offered to prepare the boy and girl for different vocations. There are the college course, the technical, business, English, household arts, mechanics arts and normal. Vocational training is given in every course and each has a good backbone running through it. There is no "snap" course in our high school today.

The parents and teachers association is a big help. The parents are deeply interested in the pupil and the school and the teachers are rendering invaluable service in their positions.

It is the duty of the parent to send the children to school every day unless prevented by sickness or some such reason. In after life, the man who is "right on the job" and the dependable women are the ones that succeed. The formation of the habit of regularity is the best possible training for the future.

Mr. Howlett impressed upon his audience this: That the education of children, fitting them for life, making them useful members of society and good citizens, a work done by the parents and teachers is the grandest work that can be done. A father and mother who have educated two children and sent them out into the world to be useful citizens have done a much greater work than if they had made a million dollars.

The audience was very enthusiastic over the address and many were heard to remark that it was such a speech as would abide with them through the months and years to come and would guide them constantly in the education of their children.

—Paris is still the third city in size in the world, and to its 2,846,986 inhabitants, as well as to many others, it is the most beautiful. The census, which was taken last month, shows an increase of 124,255 over the figures of 1906.—Medford Mercury.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, April 28, 1911.

An all summer congressional session with great activity in the House of Representatives and with characteristic inactivity in the Senate is foreshadowed. The Senate is not yet organized. The House promptly completed its organization, passed the Canadian reciprocity bill, and has presented and partially debated the so-called farmers' free list bill. As is well known, there are complications and side issues. Presidential question, the nomination coming off next year, has much influence in politics and in legislation at the Capitol. There appears as yet but little opposition to the nomination of President Taft by the Republicans for a second term. Straws appear to indicate on the Democratic side a turning in favor of Gov. Woodraw Wilson of New Jersey. The only apparent active opposition to President Taft is from the adherents of Senator La Follette. The friends of the Senator are active and aggressive and there is of course no telling what the next twelve months may bring forth. Gov. Harmon and Champ Clark, the Speaker of the House, and of course the quadrennial Bryan are always Democratic possibilities. But Gov. Wilson of New Jersey has appealed to the intelligence of the public in a remarkable way. Last week at a banquet in New York, a toast was proposed to the governor of New Jersey and the future president of the United States. Gov. Wilson interrupted and said, "That, of course, means Gov. Dix." "No," replied Mr. Frielinghuysen, a Republican, "that means yourself." Gov. Wilson has apparently converted a flinty, Democratic, Trust-strangled state to the doctrine of progressive politics, and he has apparently done it by the force of his character and his will almost unaided and alone. He had long been known as a gentlemen, a scholar and a statesman, but only recently has he been brought before the public as a brilliant and practical politician. His speeches are no less remarkable for their brevity than for their inclusiveness, their felicity and their common sense. For matter, terseness and condensation they are in remarkable contrast with much contemporary American oratory.

It ought to be a matter of great satisfaction to millions of people in the United States that the postal deficit has been wiped out. Postmaster General Hitchcock deserves the highest credit and a bronze monument with more metal in it than there is in some of the equestrian monuments in Washington. To have wiped out a deficit of nearly eighteen millions of dollars in two years is a splendid achievement. With the cooperation of Congress (and the people ought to see that he has it) he can accomplish more. He has one cent postage in view and it would be easy of attainment if a parcels post were established or if certain other reforms advocated by the Postmaster General were carried out. A bill for one cent postage backed by the administration may be introduced in the present extra session and if not it will almost certainly be brought up in the regular session. The P. M. General will continue to urge the increase of rates on second class matter from one to four cents a pound. It is refreshing to know that the wiping out of this eighteen million deficit has been reached without in the least impairing postal facilities. The service has actually been extended along desirable lines. Over three thousand new post-offices have been established, delivery by letter carriers has been extended to one hundred and forty-two thousand new rural routes covering over fifty thousand miles in length have been authorized.

Anything that concerns the capital of the United States ought to be of interest to every citizen of the United States, but the citizen is so much absorbed in the politics of his hamlet or his metropolis that he gives not much attention to Washington affairs. Victor Berger, the only socialist member in Congress, has been made a member of the District of Columbia Committee and it is said has taken upon himself to reform the Constitution of the United States and' "Willow Tree Alley" in Washington. "Willow Tree Alley" is a capital slum section. Mrs. Victor Berger finds the Washington public schools a field for reform, and not without reason. Washington has long been the dumping ground of inefficient teachers and poor text books such as are compiled to sell by callow educators. These books could not be foisted on a community that had the privilege of voting. But Washington is a disfranchised district governed by an ever shifting Congress, a Congress without responsibility to the citizens of Washington. Adams.

—The reports of a short ice crop do not harmonize with the newspaper stories of 24 inch ice being harvested within the past few days on some of the New Hampshire lakes, while a recent 15-inch snow fall in the Provinces indicates that winter is in no haste about making way for spring.—Milford Gazette.

The Lion and the Lamb.

He was a gentleman of the old school—never mind his wrinkled brown skin and wrinkled brown clothes—and it was with the most distinguished politeness that he gave his order to the butcher man:

"De madam say please to cut her two lam' chops fum de lion, suh."

The butcher man jerked a loin from a hook, and his customer watched him cut into it. And a waiting woman said to herself:

"Addition forty-eleven to the literature of the lion and the lamb."—Washington Star.

Astrology and War.

It has been stated on what is said to be good authority that a representative of the Prussian government asked of a French astrologer the proper time to pick a quarrel with France. After carefully comparing horoscopes of high officials he answered that any hour in the afternoon as near as possible midway between the 9th and 14th of July, 1870. On the 11th of July William snubbed Benedetti, the French emissary, and on the 12th friendly relations ceased.

Diana of Philadelphia.

At the mint in Philadelphia are a number of coins far more precious than any which find their way into circulation. They are a collection of curios, and many of them date from times of great antiquity. Perhaps the most interesting among them is a handsome coin bearing on its face the profile of a woman which has a striking resemblance to the goddess of Liberty of our own currency. Underneath is the single word "Demos," which is the Greek for people. On the reverse of the coin is a beautiful figure of the goddess Diana arching her bow, and the inscription translated into English reads, "Diana, Friend of the Philadelphians."

The coin was minted more than 2,000 years ago at the city of Philadelphia, in Asia Minor, where there grew up in later years one of the seven churches of which St. John writes. The prize was discovered some years ago in Europe by a citizen of our own Philadelphia, himself an authority on coins. By him it was appropriately presented to the mint in Philadelphia. —New York Press.

LIFE'S PURPOSE.

No one is useless in this world who lightens the burden of another.—Charles Dickens.

Generations are as the days of toilsome mankind; death and birth are the vesper and the matin bells that summon mankind to sleep and to rise refreshed for our new advancement.—Carlyle.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

At the annual meeting of the Epworth League in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church on Thursday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Walter Sutermeister.
First Vice President—Miss Sadie Teed.
Second Vice President—Mrs. E. Dewsnap.
Third Vice President—Miss Florence Bennett.
Fourth Vice President—Miss Mildred Dunham.
Secretary—Arthur Dewsnap.
Treasurer—Miss Gertrude Barlow.

An interesting debate upon the question "Resolved: That the financial condition in the average family depends more upon the woman than the man."

Speaking for the affirmative were Mrs. Samuel Kay and Miss Isabelle Williams while Walter Sutermeister and Arthur Dewsnap took the negative. F. G. Bennett the retiring president presided at the meeting and debate.

LIBRARY HOURS.

It will be welcome news to many readers that the summer hours at the Public Library will not go into effect until July. At the suggestion of the Librarian the Trustees at their meeting Wednesday evening voted not to make the usual change of hours on June 1.

The central library will therefore be open from 10 o'clock A. M. until 8 P. M. (Saturdays until 9 o'clock) all through the months of May and June.

A WIDESPREAD SUGAR INQUIRY

All Branches of the Industry to Be Delved Into

UNDERWOOD IS BEHIND MOVE

Scope of Hardwick Resolution Broadened So as to Include Even Beet Sugar Companies, Which May Be Pried Loose From Sugar Trust—General Conditions In the Industry Will Be Looked Into

Washington, May 5.—The Democrats in the house will investigate the entire sugar industry in the United States. This was the decision reached by the committee on rules, which was called together to consider the resolution introduced by Representative Hardwick of Georgia, calling for an investigation of the American Sugar Refining company.

The rules committee appointed a sub-committee to redraft the Hardwick resolution so that it will permit an investigation of the entire industry. This will include the so-called independent refiners, as well as the American Sugar Refinery, and also the connection between the American Sugar Refining company and the beet sugar companies throughout the United States.

The redrafted resolution will be favorably reported to the house in a few days and is expected to pass. Behind these trust investigating resolutions is said to be Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee. Underwood wants some information about sugar, steel, wool and wool manufactures. It is believed that he hopes to unearth some valuable information in this way which would otherwise be difficult to obtain.

The sugar trust is confronted with prospects of more resolutions of investigation. Close on the heels of the resolution introduced in the house comes the announcement that Representative Warburton of Washington has been looking into the beet sugar industry and has found that it is not worth the preserving.

He already has a bill to free-list sugar. He will presently introduce resolutions directing the department of justice to take action under the Sherman law to pry the sugar trust loose from its beet-sugar possessions. That the trust holds millions of the stock of beet-sugar interests is well understood.

He will also introduce a resolution calling on the tariff board or the bureau of corporations for a detailed report on general conditions in the sugar industry; the relations between the sugar trust and the beet sugar companies; also the relations between the trust and the Louisiana cane industry; the exact facts concerning the interests which the trust and its associates hold in primary sugar production in Cuba, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines and elsewhere; the actual difference in cost of production at home and abroad—and in short, a complete, authorative survey of the sugar industry, from which safe deductions may be made as to proper tariff treatment of the subject.

CAMORRA JUROR EXCUSED

His Illness Causes Excitement Among Superstitious Neapolitans

Viterbo, Italy, May 5.—The first of the provisional jurors in the Camorrist trial was called into actual consideration of the evidence against Enrico Alfano and his co-defendants when Juror Dimaria was discharged on account of illness.

The superstitious Neapolitans were thrown into high excitement by the announcement, as they recalled the dire prophecy of Blanche Bacu, the French fortune teller, who visited court at the opening of the trial and predicted that one of the jurors would die before the case came to a close.

Lever Finds That Potash Controversy Did Not Unseat Hill

Washington, May 5.—After a talk with President Taft Representatives Lever of South Carolina and Brantley of Georgia declared they were convinced that the potash controversy with Germany had nothing to do with the recent resignation of David J. Hill as ambassador to Berlin.

Mr. Lever, author of a resolution calling upon the president to inform congress whether or not the potash controversy figured in the Hill resignation, said the resolution would be dropped.

MORE ON LORIMER CASE

La Follette Will Have Something to Say on the Matter

Washington, May 5.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin gave notice to the senate that early in the coming week he would submit certain information and observations as to the reasons why his resolution for a reinvestigation of the Lorimer case should be passed. La Follette is known to possess new information in connection with the charges of bribery in the Lorimer election.

The question came up when the committee on contingent expenses made its report. The committee reported the La Follette resolution favorably so far as meeting the expenses of the investigation is concerned.

Vice President Sherman asked if there was objection to the present consideration of the resolution when La Follette, after securing the recognition of the chair with some difficulty, asked that the resolution lie on the table. He gave notice at the same time of his intention to address the senate on the subject. The matter was allowed to go over accordingly.

FOUR YEARS IN PRISON

Sentence of Safe Breaker Who Robbed Postoffice Four Years Ago

Boston, May 5.—John Sanford of Troy, N. Y., was sentenced to four years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta yesterday by Judge Dodge of the United States district court for looting the Winchendon postoffice out of $3700 four years ago.

Sanford, who is regarded by the postal authorities as one of the most expert safe dynamiters in the country, was identified at the trial as the man who had been seen prowling about the postoffice on the day the safe was blown and on the previous day.

He was arrested in Troy, N. Y., by Postoffice Inspector James. The New York officials wanted him for the robbery of the Highland Falls postoffice in that state. By means of a money order, which he sent in a registered letter at Troy, he was identified and later sent to Sing Sing prison for three years. He was released Tuesday and brought to Boston to answer to the charge against him here.

Sanford has also served seven years in Auburn for a similar offense.

ROCKEFELLER GIFT IS NOT ACCEPTABLE

At Least That Is What Wellesley College Girls Think

Wellesley, Mass., May 5.—A petition to the Wellesley college trustees to return to John D. Rockefeller the $100,000 presented by him to the institution for a heating plant is being circulated by students, it being the feeling that the college made a mistake in accepting the oil king's wealth.

The money gift is not termed "tainted" in the petition, but the document ends with the words: "We, the undersigned, do not feel that our college should rest under the shadow of this gift."

To date more than 200 signatures have been secured. The paper is to be presented shortly before commencement with the request that the trustees give it their consideration with a view of refunding in the fall the $150,000.

Protracted Strike of Lasters In Lynn Factory Causes Further Trouble

Lynn, Mass., May 5.—Five hundred additional employes of the A. G. Little & Co. shoe factory were thrown out of work yesterday afternoon by the failure of the firm to arrive at some form of settlement with the striking lasters, seventy of whom went out almost a month ago to enforce their demand for higher wages.

The firm called the operatives of all departments together and submitted a statement, saying that it was willing to settle with the lasters if some form of arbitration could be devised to do away with all labor troubles in the future. No such guarantee being provided, 500 operatives were added to the number already idle as a result of the protracted strike.

PER CAPITA CIRCULATION

Sum of $34.50 For Each Person In the United States

Washington, May 5.—A statement just issued by the United States treasury department gives $34.55 as the per capita circulation, basing the figures upon an estimated population on May 1, 1911, of 93,705,000.

The department showed that on that date there was a general stock of money amounting to $3,546,574,337, which included $308,936,220 held in the treasury and $3,237,638,117 in circulation.

DISAPPEARED WITH SPOILS

Archaeologists Have Aroused the Ire of Turks

MOSQUE OF OMAR DESPOILED

Promoters of Enterprise, Who Have Spent $300,000 on the Work, Said to Have Found Solomon's Crown, Ring and Sword, While Hunting For Ark of the Covenant and Seven-Branched Candlestick

London, May 5.—The operations at Jerusalem of the Anglo-American syndicate of excavators threaten to cause an interesting diplomatic affair. According to messages from Constantinople, the Turkish government takes a serious view of the matter and has sent high officials to Jerusalem to investigate the charges that the foreigners despoiled the mosque of Omar and discovered and carried away sacred relics hidden from the Romans when the city was sacked by Titus in A. D. 70.

Meanwhile the present whereabouts of the archaeologists and and the nature of their spoils is a mystery. The members of the expedition with their prizes embarked at Jaffa, Palestine, fifty-four miles by railway northwest of Jerusalem, on April 19. They went aboard Captain Parker's yacht, which had been awaiting them, and set sail before the people of Jerusalem learned what they had done. It is probable that the yacht is now heading for England.

There is no doubt that the promoters of the enterprise hoped to discover the Ark of the Covenant and the Seven-Branched Candlestick, but a Constantinople dispatch says that it is believed that the explorers found Solomon's crown, his sword and his ring and an ancient manuscript of the Bible. The extent of the operations is shown by the statement that $300,000 has been spent by the syndicate, who engaged noted engineering experts.

A considerable degree of mystery still surrounds the expedition. It is known, however, that before leaving for their quest the explorers stated that they expected to discover among the rock tombs honeycombing Mount Moriah a manuscript which would set at rest all doubt concerning the resurrection of Christ.

The party, led by Captain James Parker of the life guards, secured a concession in 1909 to excavate in search of treasure and the manuscript dealing with the resurrection. The members of the expedition worked secretly and mostly at night, that they might not awaken local fanaticism.

According to a report now in circulation here, a Swedish biblical scholar and Orientalist pursuing a study of the early history of the Jews in the library of St. Sophia at Constantinople, found a cipher giving a clue to the whereabouts of certain sacred objects of the Jews which had been buried to save them from the Romans when Jerusalem was sacked, A. D. 70. These objects were the Ark of the Covenant, the Seven-Branched Candlestick, the Censer, and also the Tables of the Law. It was as a result of this, it is said, that the company was formed in England by Captain Parker.

It was at the village of Siloam that the excavations began, on the slope of the Mount of Olives. The work was carried on along a passage toward the ancient site of Solomon's Temple. Finally, the tunnel brought them toward the sacred rock in the mosque of Omar, covering the Well of the Spirits, where the souls of the departed are supposed to assemble periodically for prayer—one of the spots most holy to Moslems in all Islam. It is said that the explorers bribed the guardians of the mosque to allow them to enter the mosque and explore beneath the sacred stone, and there, it is said, after digging they discovered the objects of their search, with which they left Jerusalem secretly and suddenly.

The mosque of Omar, with the great temple area of about thirty-five acres (about one-fifth of the space of the city within the walls), is owned by the Mohammedans and controlled by the Turkish government. Next to the mosque at Mecca it is the most sacred shrine of their religion.

BEWARE OF TIGHT COUGH, PRECEDES PNEUMONIA.

Home-Made Syrup Loosens.

You can make a simple laxative cough syrup which will loosen the tightest cough in one hour and cure any cough or cold in a very short time. Here is the formula:
Essence mentho-laxene .....2 1-2 Ozs.
Granulated sugar syrup.....13 1-2 Ozs.

Make the syrup by using a pint of granulated sugar and a half pint of boiling water. Mix, stir and let cool. Then go to the drug store and buy a 2 1-2 oz. package of Essence Mentho-Laxene (concentrated,) empty it into a pint bottle and fill up with the syrup. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two as needed and you will soon be entirely rid of your cough and cold. This relieves and cures old people quicker and surer than anything ever heard of, and it is just fine for children, they like the taste so well.

CLERK MAKES CLEAN BREAST

Postal Employe Admits Stealing $8000 From Mail

TELLS WHERE IT IS HIDDEN

Federal Inspector Recovers Full Amount, the Guilty Man Expressing Relief—Says He Thought Package Contained Only Enough to Pay Off a Few Debts Which He Had Contracted—How He Was Tempted

Boston, May 5.—Timothy F. Sullivan, the arrested railway mail clerk, confessed last night to the federal authorities that he stole the $8000 in a registered mail package consigned to the First National bank, Boston.

In the presence of his counsel, Guy Ham, and Inspector Jennings of the federal force, he made a clean breast of the matter and told the authorities precisely where they would find the money. Late last night Jennings went to the place mentioned, which is not divulged, and recovered the money. Ham says that his client throws himself on the clemency of the court.

Yesterday afternoon Jennings went to the Cambridge jail to have a talk with Sullivan to see what he could learn relative to the whereabouts of the registered mail package and its contents. Ham was at the jail and the three entered a conference in the office of Sheriff Fairbairn.

Sullivan, who is held under $10,000 bonds, informed the officer that he desidera to make a clean breast of the whole affair.

He said that of late his expenses at home had been so heavy that he had gone into debt and was greatly worried about it. On April 20, as he was sorting the mail on his car, he poured the registered packages from the pouch, and as he did so the one sent from New London, Conn., to the First National bank, Boston, dropped out. There was a little slit in the paper in which the money was done up, he says.

Through the slit the bills peeped out at the mail clerk, and therein lay the temptation, which he was too weak to withstand. He had no idea of the amount of money there was in the package, he says, but felt that there was sufficient to pay his few small debts.

When he reached Boston, he states, he took the package home with him. When he counted the money and learned that he had $8000 he was appalled. His first inclination, he says, was to return the money. He knew that if he did this it meant sure detection. Then he said he hid the money.

He said it was somewhat of a relief when, on Tuesday night, Jennings stepped up to him and placed him under arrest. He said that his only thought was of his wife and children.

He said he desired to place himself entirely upon the clemency of the court. Sullivan's case comes up in the United States court next Wednesday.

LAST OBSTACLE REMOVED

Grand Trunk Railway Will Soon Be Able to Enter Providence

Providence, May 5.—By a unanimous vote and without debate the house passed the amendment to the Grand Trunk railway's charter. The bill was reported in the senate today, the closing day.

The bill incorporates the agreement between the Grand Trunk railway and its rival, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, regarding trackage rights, in order that the Grand Trunk may have an unobstructed road to its desired tidewater terminal.

The bill practically removes the last obstacle to the entry of the Canadian road to Providence. It permits the Southern New England railway, the new subsidiary of the Grand Trunk, to pass by tunnel under the New Haven road's track.

HEATH NOT A SUICIDE

Claim of Prosecution In Murder Trial of Mrs. Dodge

Guildhall, Vt., May 5.—After much important testimony was given Thursday by numerous witnesses in the Florence M. Dodge murder trial, it was announced that the prosecution will rest its case today.

Thus far the state has brought out testimony that, in the opinion of its witnesses, suicide was impossible; that Mrs. Dodge said she and Heath were alone in the house; that she "didn't know it was loaded," and that she "would go up for it."

Heath had been using paints, oils and putty when shot, and the state endeavored to show that his hands were soiled, and that if he had held the revolver, it would have been coiled.

OUTBREAK IS CRUSHED

But Some Apprehension Is Felt For the Future In China

Hong Kong, May 5.—Political unrest is widespread, but the revolutionary movement begun at Canton last week appears to have been checked. There is, however, some apprehension for the future. Many missionaries from the west of Canton have fled for safety down the river and are coming to Hong Kong.

Divisions of the Chinese northern troops have been hurried to Canton, where occasional clashes occur between the authorities and the disorderly elements. Veteran army men are being used to restore order, as the authorities fear that the sympathies of the newly recruited soldiers are with the revolutionaries.

BALDWIN GOING TO THE ARCTIC IN 1913

Does Not Expect to Emerge From Drift Ice Until 1917

Baltimore, May 5.—Captain Evelyn B. Baldwin, the Arctic explorer, who is a delegate to the peace congress here from the peace league of New York, says he will lead another Arctic expedition in 1913.

He plans to enter the pack ice northwest of Point Barrow, Alaska, make his ship fast to a large ice floe and drift near to, if not over, the North Pole and into the north Atlantic ocean between Spitzbergen and the east coast of Greenland. He expects to emerge from the ice in 1917.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Hagerty Is Charged With Murder of His Three Children

Boston, May 5.—The behavior of Thomas Hagerty when he appeared before Judge Williams on the charge of murdering his three children carried out the theory of insanity. When his name was called he stood up, staring straight before him as though he heard nothing of what was said to him, and he roused from his stupor only long enough to plead not guilty to the charge of murder.

The vacant stare in his face and the sad, shocked look in his eyes showed plainly that he was looking far beyond the courtroom to a little room in the top floor of the house at 101 Calumet street, where he had kissed his children good night, tucked the bedclothes around them, and turned on the gas.

Batch of Dynamite Is Found In a New Haven Plant

New Haven, May 5.—Dynamite in quantity sufficient to have shattered the side of East Rock, one of the Twin Bluffs overlooking the city, and to have shaken the city itself, was discovered secreted in the grinder of the stone crushing plant at East Rock by a police officer.

There were twenty-one sticks of the explosive, which had been stolen from tool houses at the East Rock park. The crusher was to have been put in operation in a few days.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"Ann Boyd," which enters upon its second week at the Shubert in Boston next Monday with a special summer bargain matinee on Wednesday, is a play for the people. It is a story of life in Northern Georgia, among people who are close to the soil, and whose natures, habits, passions and proclivities show none of the restraints of city life. They are real people, with real (not suppressed) emotions, and they live their lives in an atmosphere of genuineness and from motives that spring from the heart. Naturally a play of this kind sometimes does not appeal to the wishy-washy latter day sentimentalist—the man who has either lost the power to feel or is ashamed to show that he still possesses it. "Ann Boyd" is not a parlor comedy filled with impossible epigrams spouted by impossible people, but it has in abundance those heart stirring qualities that appeal to a far larger clientele than do those cumberers of the theatrical ground. "Ann Boyd" is a dramatization of Will N. Harben's novel of the same name, the play having been made by Lucille LaVerne, who plays the name part. It is a throbbing heart-story of a woman's wrongs, one whose whole life has been one of travail, hardship, persecution and social ostracism on account of a fault committed when she was almost too young to recognize the difference between right and wrong.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Merchant of Venice" will be the play of the coming week at the Castle Square, and Mr. Craig's last Shakespearian production of the present season. One of the best known and most popular of all Shakspeare's plays, "The Merchant of Venice" with its picturesque Venetian scenery and its striking characters never fails to receive the attention of multitudes of playgoers every time it is revived. Its plot involving Shylock and his pound of flesh, the love story of Bassanio and Portia, and the great scene, never fail to hold the attention of an audience.

Many famous actors have acted Shylock, and Mr. Craig has already received much praise in the role, although he has not acted it for several years. His interpretation of the character will be a study in itself, and a skilful portrayal of the manysided nature of the Jew who strives to avenge both a personal and racial grudge against Antonio in particular and against all Christians in general. Portia, one of the most exquisite of all Shakspeare's feminine characters, will be acted by Mary Young, and Gertrude Dinley returns to the company after an absence of several months. Other important roles will be taken by George Hassell, Walter Walker, Al Roberts, Bert Young and Florence Shirley. Mr. Craig will take special pains to make an elaborate scenic production of "The Merchant of Venice," and there will be special orchestral music.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The Aborn English Grand Opera company will again repeat a favorite selection of their season of a year ago at the Boston Opera House next week, when Bizet's last and greatest composition, "Carmen" will be presented with a cast of favorites. Louise LeBaron, whose original and artistic depection of the central character in this opera last Spring, is well remembered, will have the same part again for half of the performances of the coming week, while Bertha Shalek, who has been equally successful in the same role, with the Aborn organizations in other cities, will appear as Carmen at the other four performances of the week. The intention of Messrs Aborn in offering these two artists to alternate in the stellar role of "Carmen" is to afford two distinct and different conceptions of the role, both of which have equalled each other in past successes.

The balance of the cast will be formed with an equal proportion of well-established favorites and of notable new additions to the Aborn forces. A promising young debutante of this occasion will be Miss Reata Freber, a young soprano who has been singing in concert in Chicago, Saint Louis and other Western cities, who will make her first appearance in grand opera in the role of Micaela. For the week beginning Monday, May 15th, the third novelty of the Spring season, Offenbach's "Les Contes d'Hoffmann" ("The Tales of Hoffmann") will be heard here in English for the first time with the same cast with which Messrs Aborn gave this delightful opera comique its first American performances in New York a couple of years ago.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

That most delightful of all musical comedies, "The Prince of Pilsen" will enter on its farewell week next Monday night, May 8. The attendance at the Majestic Theatre, in spite of very warm nights, has been almost record-breaking in numbers, and would have continued to be large if the play did not have to give way to the Morrison Stock Company, which held a contract for the theatre. There are few musical comedies more popular in Boston than this famous production of Henry W. Savage, which winds up its ninth year with the same undiminished popularity that it showed at the end of its first run here. "The Prince of Pilsen" is essentially a Boston product, and the Hub seems to consider it as much a part of itself as the Bunker Hill Monument or the Common. It was here that it was first given, with the exception of a trial performance in Malden, and it was here that the first seal of public approval was set upon it and gave it the prestige that gained for it a serious hearing in the other large cities. Mr. Henry W. Savage has shown his mastery of the amusement business in his revival of the piece, as he has in other productions. Every detail has been as carefully reproduced this season as though the comedy were a new piece and needed the elaborate embellishment that it was given. In point of scenic adornment and costuming it has rarely been equalled by any musical comedy we have seen. The cast sent here by Mr. Savage is an excellent one. There are some of the original cast still in it.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Andrew Mack, the Irish singer who has won wide popularity as a dramatic star, has been making one of the greatest successes of his career during the past few weeks on the B. F. Keith circuit and he comes to Boston next week. Mack is not only a splendid singer with a wonderful voice, but he is a remarkably good story teller, and on his present tour he is winning new laurels in this direction. He will head an exceptionally strong bill, another feature of it which will attract attention will be the greatest of all fun makers, Jack Wilson, and his company in a new version of "An Upheaval in Darktown." Claude & Fanny Usher will be seen in their comedy sketch "Fagin's Decision," introducing the famous "Spareribs." A novelty that is bound to attract a great deal of attention will be Rivoli, an Italian character change artist who enacts an entire play by himself. Newcomers will be Lee White & George Perry, in singing and dancing specialties that are far away from anything that has hitherto been seen in vaudeville. Bertisch, the strong man, will also appear, and other features will be the Vissochi Brothers, wonderful accordion players, and Rawson & June, the boomerang throwers.

BUFFALO BILL.

The interesting announcement is made that Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East will exhibit in Boston May 15 to 20. A remarkable event is announced in the leave-taking from public life of the old scout, "Buffalo Bill," who is making a last bow to each city he now visits—a valedictory. It is further stated that arrangements have been made with officials of the railroads to run reduced rate excursions on that date, thus affording residents of this vicinity an opportunity to visit the exhibition at a minimum of expense. Two vast enterprises are now allied under one management. The union of Buffalo Bill's Wild West with Pawnee Bill's Far East brings together two great factors in out-of-door entertainment. The Far East contingent will be represented in an Oriental spectacle of great beauty and splendor; introducing many picturesque types which inhabit the romantic East. In this scene and as a particular feature, Rosai's Musical Elephants, imported at an expense of $1,000 per week, will introduce their remarkable exhibition; playing various musical instruments, dancing and in other manners evidencing their remarkable sagacity and wonderful training.

SILENCE ON MORALITY

Dr. Van Allen Tells Brother Clergymen That It Is Criminal

Boston, May 5.—During a discussion on the question of morality in the public schools at the 126th Episcopal convention Rev. Dr. Van Allen delivered an impassioned speech scoring the clergy and the church for "criminal negligence pertaining to questions of morality." He said:

"Shame on the clergy, and shame on the church for this criminal silence on questions pertaining to morality. How many of you clergymen have preached on the morality of sex during the past year? This is the most important matter before the church today, and I make no apology for taking up your time discussing it at this convention."

Moore Takes Hyde's Place

New York, May 5.—Robert R. Moore, who ran for comptroller on the same ticket with Mayor Gaynor, was appointed city chamberlain, to succeed Charles H. Hyde, now under indictment charged with bribery, who resigned Thursday.

Husband Finds Bride Slain

New York, May 5.—Mrs. Anna Molnar, 28 years old, a bride of eight months, was found dead from knife wounds in the kitchen of her home here. Her young husband found her and is almost crazed with shock and grief.

Aerial Dreadnought Damaged

London, May 5.—An accident to Great Britain's first aerial Dreadnought on the eve of the launch has delayed the trial trip. The delay probably will prevent the airship's flight over the fleet at the coronation review.

New Jersey to Sterilize Criminals

Trenton, May 5.—Governor Wilson has affixed his signature to the so-called sterilization bill passed by the New Jersey legislature providing for the sterilization of criminals and the hopelessly defective.

CUP TO BE PRESENTED.

The Fore River football team meets the General Electric team from Lynn, Saturday afternoon in the final game of the season in the Boston and District Football league, at Fore River park, Quincy Point, on Saturday at 3.30. After the game the Thomas Greve cup will be presented to the Fore River club as champions in the league. Mr. Greve, donor of the cup will be present at the game and will present the cup in person to the president of the Fore River club.

The Fore River team will be selected from the following men: Ridges, Shaw, Lewis (captain), McGregor, Elliott, Campbell, Melville, Carruthers, J. McDonald, Hughes, Dunlop, Moran, Harkness, Bonner, Ritchie, D. McDonald and Richardson. The gate receipts will go toward procuring medals for the players. The record of the team is such that the support of the soccer fans is well deserved. Games played—18, won 14, lost 2, drawn 2. Goals kicked—53, opponents—20.

WORK AMONG INDIANS.

At a meeting in the First Presbyterian church Thursday evening Rev. J. M. Cornelison of Oregon, who has charge of the Indian exhibit in "The World in Boston," gave a very interesting discourse on "Work among the Indians of Oregon." When Mr. Cornelison first went there to enter the work he had to endure a lot of hardship, living alone in a tent and suffering privations. By constant endeavor he gained favor among the Indians and at the present time has a firm foothold among them. A church has been built and he has his own house and is living very comfortably.

At the young people's meeting he exhibited an Indian costume and told the young people about the life of the Indian boys and girls.

There were large audiences at both meetings and the addresses were of the greatest interest to all.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Cold Water Pound Cake. Beat together three eggs and a cup and a half of sugar, add a half cup of soft butter, a half cup of cold water, two cups of flour and three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Stir all together, flavor with lemon and bake in a moderate oven.

Steak With Creole Sauce. Broil a two pound steak and serve with the following sauce: Put one scant tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, add one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and cook slowly until the butter is browned. Stand aside for five minutes, add one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar and one teaspoonful of freshly grated horseradish, simmer for three minutes, add one teaspoonful of flour, stir until smooth then gradually dilute with one half of a cupful of strained tomato. Season with one half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper and let simmer five minutes.

Custard Souffle. One-half cup sugar, one cup flour, one cup cold milk, one cup scalded milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-fourth level teaspoonful salt; four eggs. Mix the sugar and floure and dilute with cold milk; then add the hot milk gradually and cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add the butter and salt, remove from the fire and cool. Then add the egg yolks beaten very light and fold in carefully the beaten whites. Turn into a butered baking dish and set in a pan of hot water, and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

HIS GUARDIAN ANGEL

Her Interest In Him Was Manifested to the Last Moment

By Allen G. Lamond

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I left Rose Seaton to go to South Africa to seek my fortune my heart seemed to be settling right down, down like a doomed ship. We had promised to be true to each other and all that, but somehow my common sense told me that fate was against us. We would be separated by an ocean. I had only the prospect of spending a lifetime in the service of a diamond mining company, where an uncle of mine had secured me an inferior position. Neither Rose nor I had any means or we would not have parted, and, having parted, I saw no prospect of ever getting together again.

I was an accountant for three years, during which I hoped that some day fortune would favor my returning to my sweetheart; then suddenly my dreams were realized. Mr. Oldershaw, the head of one of the departments, sent for me one day and said to me:

"How would you like to make a trip to America?"

I brightened up at once as I replied in the affirmative.

"One of your American millionaires has visited our mines and has purchased one of our largest diamonds. He is on a trip around the world and desires the stone delivered to his wife in New York, where it will be paid for, the responsibility for its safety resting on us until it is turned over. There are reasons why it can't very well be sent by the ordinary method, one of which I will tell you. It has got out that a diamond worth a hundred thousand dollars is to go to New York. This fact has led to so high a charge for its transportation that I am determined to send it by a special messenger. A false stone will be sent by express to mislead those who may try to capture the real one on the way. We have spies right here among us who know everything of importance that goes on. It is our purpose to outwit them. Let it be known that you have determined to resign your position and go home, permitting a month to intervene before your departure. Your expenses will be paid, and if you succeed in making a delivery you will receive a thousand dollars and an agency to attend to our business in New York."

The day I sailed a middle aged woman, well dressed and of ladylike appearance, drove up to the steamer. She looked up as she alighted and saw me leaning over the rail on deck. An expression of satisfaction that I could not account for passed over her face. It surprised me, for I did not remember ever to have seen her before. She came aboard, and I did not see her again till the next day, when we were out on the ocean. I was pacing the deck when I passed her sitting in a steamer chair. She called me to her and said to me:

"Bring a chair and be seated. I have something of importance to say to you."

Astonished, I did as I was bidden. The lady cast glances in every direction and, seeing no one within ear shot, said to me in a low tone:

"I am an American and a friend of Mr. Oldershaw. Learning that I was about to sail for home on this ship, he called on me and told me that a young man, whose photograph he showed me, would be aboard, going on an important mission to New York. Mr. Oldershaw asked me to keep a watch over you and if I saw any suspicious person attempting to gain your confidence or in any way conspiring against you to warn you. There; I have told you what I have to say. You don't need to place any faith in it; all you need do is, if I warn you against any one during the voyage, to beware."

"One question I would ask you," I said. "Why did not Mr. Oldershaw advise me of his request to you?"

"Mr. Oldershaw's plan was for me to keep a watch over you without your knowing it. He did not think it would be necessary for me to make myself known to you. But already I have observed two men talking together, both looking directly at you, and I need to warn you at once. Later I will point them out to you."

"Did Mr. Oldershaw inform you as to the nature of my mission?"

"He did not. That was not necessary."

Her story appeared very plausible, and I confess I felt disposed to trust her, but I did not care to show too much alacrity in doing so, and, rising, bade her good morning, thanking her for her interest in me.

"You are under no obligation to me," she said. "What I do is in repayment of a kindness once done me by Mr. Oldershaw. He has perfect confidence in you, but has strengthened you by giving you an assistant."

That afternoon while taking my usual exercise, walking the deck back and forth, I met the lady.

"Come with me," she said, "and I will show you the men who were talking about you. They have a stateroom next mine, and I overheard one of them say, 'As soon as it is dark I'll try and inviegle him on some pretext to the stern.'"

I went with her to the forward deck, and she pointed to two men standing just above the cutwater looking out at the ocean. One was a burly fellow with a sandy mustache; the other was small, spare and clean shaven.

"That's all," said my companion. "You have seen them and are guarded against them."

The same evening just before dark I went on deck. The man with the sandy mustache was lounging about and, presently coming up to me, asked if I could tell him the day's run for the ship. With this as an opening wedge he entered upon a conversation with me, turning it upon some curious phenomena of the sea. He mentioned the phosphorescent light in the wake of a ship, saying: "It's very pronounced tonight. Just come back with me; I'll show it to you."

I told him that I had often seen what he referred to and, bidding him good evening, went below.

It was very plain to me that the woman's story was true. From this time forward I had perfect confidence in her. She did not ask me the nature of my mission or show any curiosity about it. I argued that if she was desirous of possessing herself of the diamond she would sooner or later lead me to speak of it in the hope that I would tell her where it was. But while she sought my confidence in other ways she never referred to the object of my journey. I told her that I was going home to a sweetheart I had not seen in three years, and the sympathy she gave me was delightful. She seemed to appreciate perfectly the feelings of a young man deeply in love. So interested was she in this that I told her I would bring my fiancee to see her after reaching port, and she was good enough to assure me that she would be delighted to know her.

It was after this refreshing conversation, in order to show some appreciation of her interest in me, that I said to her:

"I feel perfectly safe in saying to you that I am carrying a very valuable stone belonging to the Diamond company to New York and wish to consult you as to a safe place to keep it."

"In that I can't advise you. We women have methods of concealing such things that do not pertain to men. I can't think of any safe place where a man can put such a treasure."

"The only safe place I know is on my person. I have it suspended about my waist day and night."

"My dear boy," she said, "what do you mean by revealing such a secret to me or to any one?"

"I have perfect confidence in you."

"Nevertheless you should not have told me such a secret."

"I shall surely tell no one else. If any one can take it away from me by force in the daytime he's welcome to do so. By night I am locked in my room."

The evening before making port my friend while talking to me of some delicacies in the way of eatables she had aboard invited me to come to her stateroom and partake of them. She said there would be no impropriety in my doing so, since she would hook the door wide open. I accepted her invitation. Her stateroom faced on the same aisle as mine, so I had not far to go. She brought out some pate of chickens' livers and other nice things, including some real madeira wine, a rarity outside the island of Madeira. I ate of her dainties and drank freely of the wine.

In the morning I awoke in my own berth with a remembrance of my supper, but with no recollection as to how I got into my own stateroom. I put my hand to my waist, and the pouch I kept slung there was gone.

Everything being quiet and no motion to the ship, I arose and looked out through a porthole. We were docked. Dressing myself, I went ashore. A few of the passengers remained, but my lady friend was not among them, nor were the two men against whom she had warned me.

When I met my Rose after the first transports of our meeting I said to her:

"And now you must hear the reason of my coming and the story connected with my journey. Beginning with my meeting with my lady friend, I told her every incident—every word so far as I could remember the conversations that had passed between me and her. When I reached the part of my story where I had told that I kept the stone about my waist Rose could not repress the exclamation, 'Oh, how stupid!'"

And when I gave an account of the supper and my being drugged my sweetheart was so unkind as to say I had been rightly served. I concluded my story with these words:

"And now, my darling, the diamond having been safely delivered and a check in payment mailed to South Africa, we have $1,000 on which to begin housekeeping and an assured salary"—

"'But the diamond is stolen!'"

"I did not say so. In order to please my guardian angel, as I called her, I told her where I kept a lump of glass. The diamond was in my trunk, fitted with a lock that I alone knew how to open."

Rose jumped for me, throwing her arms around my neck.

"And you suspected her from the first?" she asked when the transports had subsided.

"No, I didn't suspect her at all or I wouldn't have been drugged by her."

"Explain."

"Well, you see, when she sympathized so sweetly with me about you she knocked the underpinning out from beneath me. I yearned to make a return and thought that I couldn't make a better one than by a show of confidence. So I told her about where I kept my treasure, only I omitted to say that it was a false one. I thought that would do as well."

COPELAND MINSTRELS

Several Novel Features at this Years Show

A minstrel show is one that always appeals to the music loving public and especially those put on by the Copeland club. St. Mary's hall has usually been the scene of the show and the hall has always been too small to accommodate those who desired to attend. For this reason Music hall was selected. The show was held Friday evening and a large audience was present to enjoy the singing and laugh at the jokes of the end men. Many novel features were introduced into the two hours program which was greatly enjoyed. As a whole the show was a good one but at times the piano accompaniment was not exactly in key with the choruses. The jokes were all local and the points brought out were immediately caught onto by the audience. There was an absence however of any roughness in the jokes or anything at which the most sensitive could take offense.

One of the best jokes was when one of the end men said that a well known Councilman had been to see the Postmaster General to have Mayor Shea's picture put on the one and two-cent stamps. Asked why this was wanted the end man replied so that the Republicans could lick him. Patrick Morrissette a well known, West Quincy man was also the butt of several jokes as were also Policeman Malone, Houghs Neck and Wollaston. As noted above all the jokes were new and well taken.

FARRIS INQUEST.

A great part of Friday was consumed at the inquest on the death of Lisa Farris who was murdered by Aisar Hadad April 12. The inquest was held before Judge Avery and a large number of witnesses were summoned, many of whom could not speak English which took considerable time. At 4 o'clock the inquest was adjourned until May 20.

ST. JOHN'S BAZAAR.

Another large crowd was present Friday evening at the grand six days bazaar under the auspices of St. John's church. The entertainment Friday evening was under the direction of the district one committee and included fancy dancing by a young miss and a monologuist both from Boston. Tonight the entertainment will be of a humorous nature. The bazaar will close tonight and the various committees will be busy closing up the books and deciding who the lucky persons are who have drawn the different articles.

BODIES IDENTIFIED.

The body of John Manning who was killed in the runaway accident at Wollaston was identified Friday by relatives from South Boston and arrangements made for its burial at South Boston today.

The body of John Morrissey, known as the king of tramps who was killed several days ago by the cars at South Quincy was identified Friday by James Morris, a nephew, of Roxbury as John Morris. The nephew had but little to say about his uncle and no arrangements were made for the burial. The body will probably be buried at Mt. Wollaston cemetery this afternoon.

TODAY'S COURT.

Dennis F. Cleary was fined $10 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

QUINCY SHORE BOULEVARD

Legislative Committee in Quincy Friday.

The joint Committee on Metropolitan Affairs came to Quincy Friday afternoon to look over the ground relative to the bill now pending before the legislature for an appropriation to building the Quincy shore boulevard from its present terminus near the National Sailors Home to Hancock street. The drive along Quincy shore is one of the prettiest in the state but it lacks an outlet to Hancock street. With this completed it would furnish an outlet.

The committee who were accompanied by Representatives Thomas and Langelier arrived shortly after 2 o'clock in automobiles and rode over the shore boulevard, thence through Merymount park to City Hall. Here they were received by Mayor Shea and escorted to the Elks club where caterer Thompson served a lunch.

HOUGHS NECK.

Fred W. Scott who has been critically ill at his home in Dorchester died Friday at 5.07 P. M. Although the end was expected, it came as a shock to his relatives and friends. Mr. Scott will be greatly missed here especially at the Quincy Yacht club and Winter club where he has been a prominent member for several years. He leaves a wife, one daughter and two sons.

Rev. W. J. Sayre of Boston will preach at Union Chapel Sunday both morning and evening.

Miss Harreit Baird of Great hill entertains friends this evening at her home, among them being Miss Cecil Hayes of Boston, Miss Mildred Taylor of Dorchester, Miss Dorothea Findlay of Germantown and Thomas Culhane, Edward Sullivan, Harry Clarkson and Thomas Wendell of Boston University.

The lecture on India given in Union chapel last evening was largely attended and much enjoyed.

A series of whist parties is to be started Friday evening by the Men Associates.

Mr. Griffin and family of Milton reopen their cottage on Monday.

Miss Dorothy MacDonald of Roxbury will be a week end guest of friends.

The Men Associates held a whist party last evening in Associates hall those carrying of the honors being J. E. Whall, George McEwen, W. B. North, Mrs. B. F. Freethy, Mrs. W. B. Taylor and Mrs. W. B. North.

LOST CHILDREN.

The lost child call followed by one round from Box 13 was sounded at 11.06 this noon to summons help to search for Ethel the 3 year old daughter of John Pierce of Center street and the two children of August Peterson of Center street who had been missing since 9 o'clock. The children were found on School street a mile from home soon after the alarm.

It seems that Mr. Peterson in leaving home for work this morning forgot his bottle of coffee and a little later desiring that papa should have his coffee the children took the bottle and started to take it to him. They lost their way however.

CANAL PLAN TURNED DOWN

Commission Against Brockton Ship Canal

The Inland Waterways commission consisting of Francis T. Bowles, president of the Fore River Shipbuilding company, Frank Fessenden Crane, L. E. Chamberlain, Bernard J. Rothwell, A. H. Skinner and J. J. Martin, appointed by Governor Foss to look into the advisability of constructing a free ship canal between Bston and Narragansett bay brought in an unfavorable report.

It says: The value of a canal as now surveyed by the army engineers, depends on the answers to questions. These answers to the questions and its final conclusions are as follows:

1—It is doubtful as to what extent sea-going steamers, both cargo and combined cargo and passenger vessels, in the coastwise trade would use the canal.

2—Sailing vessels would not use this canal under ordinary weather conditions and on account of the cost of towage would not use it except under extraordinary circumstances.

3—It is probable that a fair proportion of the present cail barge traffic around the cape would use the canal.

4—The possible saving on coal freight to Boston harbor would not exceed five cents per ton on possibly 4,000,000 tons.

5—If sailing vessels will not use the canal and only a portion of the barge traffic will use it, a part only of the loss of life and property incurred in navigation around Cape Cod would be saved by the construction of the canal.

6—It is probable that there would be some coal brought to Boston in box or other cheap barges which cannot now take the outside route. There would be a saving in freight on this traffic.

7—There would be some benefit to local industries and inhabitants of towns on or near the route of the canal by the introduction of competing water transportation.

8—As to the possible industrial development on the route of the canal, there is no doubt that additional sites would be available, having water transportation, but it must be remembered that the state already includes much property yet unused having these advantages.

The army engineers estimate the cost of construction of the Boston-Taunton ship canal at $40,047,000 and the annual cost of maintenance at $836,000.

If the state contributes the right of way at $900,000 and expends say $1,000,000 on terminals, its total outlay would be $1,900,000 in addition to the cost to the federal government.

The conditions of transportation may so change in the future as to make such a canal desirable and necessary, but the facts as they now appear do not warrant the commission in advocating the present construction of the proposed canal.

BRIEFS

Miss Mary Melvin of West Quincy is seriously ill at her home.

The joint Committees on Finance and Public Buildings of the City Council meet Monday evening, also the Committee on Soldiers Relief.

The alarm from Box 432 at 8.59 this morning was for a small brush fire on Furnace avenue. The recall sounded promptly.

Trees are still in demand at the Ledger office. Over 500 catalpa trees were given out on Thursday and Friday, yet many were disappointed because they called too late to get one.

The annual May festival at the Quincy Point church will be held next Wednesday afternoon and evening. There wil be a sale of fancy articles, aprons, cake and candy, a supper and an entertainment.

FORE RIVER BRIDGE REPAIRS

Will Be Closed to Teams and Cars After Labor Day

The County Commissioners and trustees of the Fore River bridge, under whose direction the bridge is to be repaired and the draw widened met Friday afternoon at the office of Mayor Shea when plans for the proposed work prepared by Herbert T. Whitman were presented and practically adopted in general, the details will have to be worked out later however.

It is planned to begin work immediately, and when work is fully underway the bridge will have to be closed for a time to all but foot passenger travel.

The commissions decided however in view of the heavy travel during the summer months to Nantasket and the south shore not to close the bridge until Labor Day.

Some work will be done on the piers this summer and the contractor will have his steel work all ready to put in when active work is eventually commenced. It is planned not to keep the bridge closed any longer than possible and it is said that when work is commenced everything will be ready to do a rush job.

ORGAN RECITAL CHRIST CHURCH

Delightful Instrumental and Vocal Music

The first organ recital in the series given under the direction of Prof. Wrigley at Christ church was held Friday evening. Mr. George Shaul, organist of St. Thomas' church, Taunton, delighted a large audience by his skillful playing and Miss Marion Evelyn Brown of Ottawa, assisted very ably by rendering two splendid vocal solos.

Mendelssohn's Sonata in B flat played at the opening was especially well executed. Another selection which won the special favor of the audience was the Intermezzo by A. Hollins. Mr. Shaul played this lighter and more fantastic piece with the hands of a master and brought out the contrast with the preceding selection very forcibly.

The Finale from Widor's Second Symphony was played in a most capable manner and majesty of tone and volume were brought out with splendid effect.

The program:

Sonata in B flat	Mendelssohn
Allegro con brio. Andante Religioso. Allegretto.
Vocal, Jesu, Jesu, Miserere	E. Nevin
Meditation	Ralph Kinder
Gavotte Moderne	E. H. Lemare
In The Twilight	F. F. Harker
Pastorale in F	George E. Whiting
Vocal, Angels ever bright and fair	Handel
Benediction Nuptiale	E. d'Evry
Intermezzo	A. Hollins
Chanson De Joie	R. G. Hailing
Finale from Second Symphony	C. M. Widor

The next recital will be given on May 16 by Henry King Fitts, organist of St. John's church, Roxbury. Arthur C. Peverley of Braintree will be the soloist.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

They've got a new head for the Annapolis naval academy. Let us hope he teaches the boys that a person may be able to earn a dollar and yet outlive the disgrace of it.

Be very careful how you set fires at this season of the year. State Forester F. W. Rane sounds a note of warning to all citizens of this state. He says that already many lives have been lost and great acreage reduced to desert conditions by forest fires which in many cases would not have occurred had the law been properly enforced. He says that if the proposition were properly understood the state would be guaranteed an income of many millions a year and thousands of acres of barren land could be reclaimed. He calls the forest fire waste the cancer in what might otherwise be a flourishing wooded country.

THE HOME MERCHANT—NO 1.

At the request of several readers, this newspaper proposes during the next few weeks to review briefly the reasons why our people should patronize home trade.

If all our people followed the example of some of our citizens and bought everything possible away from home, we would have precious few retail stores left. What would happen in that case?

A large section of our people, including merchants and their clerks and the tradespeople who cater to them, would move away. Not merely that, but the decadence of our business life would manifest itself in our business center. Stores to rent, an air of decadence, of struggle to meet obligations, would settle like a pall over our town.

Any person thinking of locating here for business or residence would get an impression that this is a dead town, and would not come.

But suppose all of our people bought goods at home whenever possible, what would be the result?

The first thing that would happen would be a distinct increase in the business done, with a chance for more people to gain a livelihood here.

More than that, the sprucing up and expansion of our retail trade that would then take place would give an added impression of a bright business future, that would attract new comers.

SURPRISE PARTY.

About 40 friends of Howard W. Pratt, 79 Coddington street gave him a surprise party at his home Friday evening. The body of young people gathered at the library and walked down to the house. After their arrival, Henry Prescott presented the host with a handsome travelling bag containing a sum of money in behalf of those present. The evening passed pleasantly in games of all descriptions, not to mention the indispensible refreshments. The committee in charge consisted of Henry Prescott, Marion Bill and Robert Pratt.

Howard Pratt, the host, went to Providence this week to make final arrangements for entering business there. He came back Friday afternoon to spend the week-end with his parents and will enter upon his regular employment the first of the week.

THE OPTIMIST.

S. E. Kiser.

There was a man who smiled
Because the day was bright;
Because he slept at night;
Because God gave him sight
To gaze upon his child!
Because his little one
Could leap and laugh and run;
Because the distant sun
Smiled on the earth, he smiled.
He toiled and still was glad
Because the air was free;
Because he loved, and she
That claimed his love and he Shared all the joys they had!
Because the grasses grew;
Because the sweet wind blew;
Because that he could hew
And hammer, he was glad.

THE M'NAMARAS ARE ARRAIGNED

Brothers to Plead to Nineteen Counts on June 1

M'MANIGAL IS NOT IN COURT

Secretary of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union Charged With Murder and Dynamiting, While Brother Is Charged With Murder In Connection With Wrecking of Plant of Los Angeles Times

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' association, was formally arraigned before Judge Bordwell of the superior court on charges of murder and dynamiting, and his brother, James B. McNamara, was arraigned on a charge of murder, all in connection with the explosion that wrecked the Los Angeles Times building on Oct. 1, 1910, and killed twenty-one men.

Ortie E. McManigal, alleged to have made a confession implicating the McNamaras, was not arraigned. It is not expected that he will make any appearance in court until the trial begins. The day for the McNamara brothers to plead was fixed for June 1.

Fully an hour before the time for the arraignment, the courtroom was crowded, despite efforts of the officers to keep the proceedings secret. The McNamara brothers, with hands manacled, were brought into court by Sheriff Hammell and three deputies.

Assistant District Attorney Ford read all the nineteen indictments charging the men with the murder of employes of The Times plant.

Accused with the brothers in the indictments were William Caplan, alleged to have been an abettor of James B. McNamara in the explosion, and four others, one a woman, who were masked by the names of John Doe, Richard Doe, John Stiles and Jane Doe.

CLAIM DEATH ACCIDENTAL

Mathematical Problems Introduced by Counsel For Mrs. Dodge

Guildhall, Vt., May 6.—A unique problem in mathematics was made one of the principal factors in the defense of Florence M. Dodge, when Harlan Howe announced that Mrs. Dodge did not shoot Heath, but that he met an accidental death.

An attempt to show that it was impossible for Mrs. Dodge to have fired the shot which killed William Heath, for whose murder she is being tried, was made.

The defense introduced witnesses who by their testimony brought up complicated questions in angles and degrees. This was to show that Heath could not have been shot in the positions as shown by government doctors, and that it might have been possible for him to have met death by accident.

LOSS OF $3,000,000

Insurance Commissioner's Estimate of Result of Bangor Fire

Bangor, Me., May 6.—State Insurance Commissioner Putnam estimates Bangor's loss at $3,000,000 or less. The insurance, he figures, is approximately $1,500,000.

The work of relieving the fire sufferers is going on satisfactorily and much of the suffering is already attended to. Over $42,000 has been subscribed to the relief fund.

The committee on public safety unanimously voted that the following message be sent the several railroad companies:

"The citizens of Bangor, through its committee on public safety, respectfully request that no excursion trains be run to this city and that no reduced fares be made on regular trainss."

NOGI IN ST. PETERSBURG

Noted Warrior Places Wreath on Tomb of Kondratenko

St. Petersburg, May 6.—General Nogi, the Japanese hero of Port Arthur, arrived here on a special mission of placing a wreath upon the tomb of Major General Kondratenko, commander of the Seventh East Siberian Rifles, who was killed at the battle of 203-Metre hill in 1904, during the Russo-Japanese war.

Direct Vote Is Tabled

Boston, May 6.—By a rollcall vote of 17 to 14, with four pairs, the senate tabled the resolution in favor of the direct election of United States senators. The resolution had been postponed three times in the senate before the tabling.

Gave Kamerun to Germany

Hamburg, May 6.—Adolph Woermann, head of the Woermann Steamship line, is dead. With associates, in 1884, he purchased Kamerun, in western equatorial Africa, and turned the country over to the empire for a German colony.

INFORMER'S STORY PROVES TO BE FALSE

Four Charged With $15,000 Robbery Are Discharged

Great Barrington, Mass., May 6.—False evidence brought about the discharge in the district court of Tony Smat, Fred La Forge and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Soule, all charged with being directly or indirectly involved in the robbery of $15,000 from the paymaster of the Woronoco Construction company.

Smat and La Forge were charged with the robbery and the Soules with complicity. The evidence upon which the warrants were granted came from La Forge, who said that he assisted in the holdup, and desired to turn state's evidence.

At the hearing in the district court it was shown that La Forge was serving a sentence in the Berkshire house of correction at the time of the robbery and could have learned of it only through the papers.

THE HOPE DIAMOND SUIT

Plea For Summary Judgment on McLeans Refused by Court

Washington, May 6.—Holding that the affidavits of Edward B. McLean and his wife in defense of the suit of Cartier, the New York jeweler, to recover $180,000, the purchase price of the celebrated Hope diamond, are sufficient in law, Justice Barnard of the supreme court of the District of Columbia declined to grant the motion of the plaintiffs for summary judgment. He declared the McLeans entitled to have a jury pass on the matter.

While the McLeans contended in their answer that Cartier misrepresented the value of the gem, superstition as to the ill fortune that has followed the owners of the Hope diamond is said to have something to do with the case.

AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

Pennsylvania Law Protects Uniform of Soldiers and Sailors

Harrisburg, May 6.—Governor Tener signed a bill passed by the legislature making it a misdemeanor for the proprietor or employe of any public amusement place to discriminate against any person wearing the uniform of the United States.

The new law provides a fine of $500 or imprisonment for one year or both at the discretion of the court.

Suicide In Two Feet of Water

Kensington, N. H., May 6.—Despondency is believed to have caused Henry Tuck, a farmer, aged 70, to commit suicide in two feet of water in a brook.

Prince's Speech Is Defective

Madrid, May 6.—Queen Victoria will take Prince Jaime, her second son, to Switzerland for an operation to correct a difficulty of speech.

MINSTRELS

There were also several amusing features introduced which were appreciated.

The curtain arose disclosing the plantation hands listening to a song by the quartette composed of Messrs Kelley, Donaher, Knight and Daley whose melody, "Down where the cotton blosoms blow" was interrupted by the appearance of T. Willard Burke the boss.

Councilman Smith, the interlocutor then appeared in a shiney top hat, borrowed from a hack driver, and long coat who informed the boss his party had become stranded at the plantation and if he liked they would give a show.

Then the five suffragettes, and six end men made their appearance and the show was on, their introduction being made to the air "Band, band, band."

Zuke got a handsome bouquet from some female admirer and Fred McDonald a May basket, to which was attached several varieties of vegetables.

Then there was a solo "Farewell to Lovers lane, I've bought an aeroplane" by Miss Mildred Donaher, a specialty act by Miss Zita Pitts who received a handsome bouquet assisted by Ernest Godfrey and Jimmie Grant introducing the new "Jimmie Valentine" song. A specialty act by Jimmie (Heinz) Grant assisted by the suffragettes, introducing "Put me on an island" and a specialty by Ernest Godfry as leader, introducing the German band from West street, namely Mike Shyne, Frank Lemieux, John Dunn and Lorretto Coletti.

The grand finale was the singing of Andy Dinegan's popular new song "In dear old swing" by Miss Annie Sullivan assisted by the entire company. There is a catchy swing to the air of the song and it will not be long before the boys will be whistling it.

As Fred McDonald finished his solo he was handed a box by the director which he presented to interlocutor Smith. The box contained Jack's one weakness a piece of strawberry short cake with whipped cream and seven strawberries on the top. That he knew where the gift came from was evident when in receiving it he thanked his friends of the Fourth Estate for the gift.

John made an exceptionally good interlocutor his experience on the floor in the City Council chamber standing him in well. James B. White was the pianist and Andrew J. Dinegan the director.

The ten charming suffragettes were: Miss Lois Norris, Miss Zita Pitts, Miss Laura Corbin, Miss Marie Donaher, Miss Agnes Smollett, Miss Evelyn Towne, Miss Anna Gilcoine, Miss Annie Sullivan, Miss Ida DuTemple, Miss Julis Falvey.

The plantation hands were: T. Willard Burke—Boss, Albert Daley, Elmer Paradise, Michael Shyne, Able Cohen, Ralph Elcock, William McDonald, Frank Lemieux, Americo DiBona, George Kelley, Loretto Tocci, Joseph Desmond, Thomas Fay, Early Martin, George Lemieux, Bernard Donaher, Loretto Cantell, Thomas Hinchon, Romeo Colletti, John Sheehan, Paul Lyons, Henry Desmond, Ernest Knight, Joseph Gibbons.

At 10.30 the floor had been cleared for dancing and with Wilson's orchestra on the platform the dance was on until 2 A. M.

Andrew Dinegan was the floor director, and T. Willard Burke assistant. The aids were Edward J. B. Desmond, John Buzzi, Richard Williams, L. George McLeod, George Hebert, Frank J. Desmond, William Lorandeau

MURRAY CLUB DANCE.

A very pretty dancing party was held at Colonial hall Friday evening by the Murray club of the Universalist church.

About forty couples participated, the party being matronized by Mrs. Robert G. Reed.

A dealer in stuffed animals, who also kept a few live creatures for sale, gave the shop boy, who was permitted to sell the stuffed specimens, orders to call him when any one asked for any of the living animals.

One day a gentleman called and demanded a monkey.

'Any one of these?" asked the boy, who was in charge. He pointed to the stuffed specimens.

"No—I want a live monkey," answered the customer.

The boy stepped to the door of the back shop and called to his master—

"You're wanted, sir"

The Quincy Women's club brings its series of meetings to a close on Tuesday afternoon of next week, holding the annual meting at the clubhouse. Beside the business there will be a pleasant social hour, reception and club tea. It is always one of the happy meetings of the club year and pleasantly anticipated by most of the club membership.

Colonial hall, Saturday evening was the scene of a pretty dancing party, when the Sevsters club of Atlantic gave their first dance. Twenty-four couples were present and all voted the affair a big success. Two favor dances were a feature of the evening. The ladies received May baskets and the gentlemen jonquils as favors. A Suffragette German proved popular, when the ladies wore badges which read, "Votes for Women" and the gentlemen sported dusting caps. At eleven-thirty the strains of Home Sweet Home concluded the last waltz and a most enjoyable party. The affair was matronized by Mrs. Alexander Hill of Appleton street.

Victor E. Landstrom and Miss Anna P. Rehn, two popular East Milton young people, were married at noon last Saturday, at the home of Rev. Irad Hardy, pastor of the Chapel Street Baptist church in East Gloucester, formerly pastor of the Baptist church in East Milton. Mr. and Mrs. Landstrom left immediately on their honeymoon, which included visits to New York and Niagara Falls. They are to make their home in East Milton, on Westbourne street, where they will be at home to their friends after July first.

Miss Annie Mooney who has been visiting her aunt, Summer street, returned this week to Philadelphia, Pa.

A welcoming reception is to be tendered Rev. and Mrs. J. Hamilton Woodsum by the parish of the East Milton Baptist church on Tuesday evening. Mr. Woodsum has recently been called to this church and the reception is a social greeting from his new parishioners.

* * *

Mrs. Walter E. Burke of Adams street is to address the meeting of St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church on Friday evening.

The Friday club had a social meeting yesterday afternoon after its annual meeting being entertained at the home of Mrs. Thomas L. Sturtevant, Adams street, the hostess being Miss Alice Putnam at one time an active but now an honorary member. A pleasing entertainment, social chat and refreshments brought the club season to a most happy ending.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Joslin of Edward street left this week for Winchendon, where they will spend the summer.

A surprise party was given Thursday evening to Miss Collina M. Brown of 4 Myrtle street, Atlantic, by her friends, it being her fourteenth birthday. Twenty-five were present and it was a complete surprise. A signet ring was presented by Miss Ruth Price with appropriate remarks. A collation was served. There were readings by Miss Gertrude Fratus and Miss Teel and Miss Margaret White rendered selections on the piano and violin. After a very enjoyable evening they all left for home at about midnight. Great credit is due Miss Price for the success of the party.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of 145 Warren avenue, retiring president of the Quincy Women's club has issued cards to the members of the executive board of the club for an informal reception at her home on Monday afternoon from four until six o'clock. All have served two years with Mrs. Gurney and the reception is in the nature of a farewell gathering.

Little Constance Fryer of this city, danced her "flower dance," most charmingly at Fogg's Opera house, South Weymouth, last evening, at a May pole dance given under the direction of Miss Agnes Hayward of Braintree.

The True Blue Whist club brought its season to a close on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lizzie McNeil, Washington street, having a very enjoyable gathering.

Harold Thomas of Newton street, Wollaston, has been receiving heartiest congratulations from friends, teachers and students on his impersonation of Shylock, in the "The Merchant of Venice" which was presented by the Junior class of Boston University last Saturday. He received numerous curtain calls and his acting was considered more professional than amateur especially so in the Court of Justice scene, the hearty applause was well merited. Mr. Thomas who is a college graduate is taking a special course this year preparatory to entering Harvard Medical College next year.

The approaching concert by Bertha Cushing Child and her assisting soloists promises to be the musical event of the season. The long list of patronesses assures its success socially as well. The soloists are all so well known in Boston muiscal circles that an evening of rare pleasure is safely promised. Miss Worden, the brilliant young composer of the Celtic song cycle, which is to be heard for the first time at this concert, will come on from New York, to personally direct and play the piano part of her interesting composition.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith have returned from a trip of several months across the continent to California and are looking as though they thoroughly enjoyed it. Their Quincy friends have given them a most cordial greeting home.

* * *

Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt of Elm place gave a dinner at her home on Friday in honor of her mother Mrs. Eliza Penniman, in observance of her 70th birthday. The guests were Mrs. Penniman's two children, George W. Penniman and Mrs. Merritt, and their families. The only absent one, was Mrs. Penniman's only grandson, Ralph G. Merritt, who has a government position in Middlebury, Vermont, and was unable to be present. She received many beautiful presents, flowers and cards of congratulation. In the evening many callers came to offer congratulations.

SPORTING NOTES.

Results of the grammar school games played on Thursday and Friday were: Wollaston 11, Cranch 9; Quincy 14, Coddington 5; Willard 6, Gridley Bryant 5; Massachusetts Fields 6, Lincoln 2.

The Glendale Senators defeated the All-over Stars in a base ball game Friday afternoon by a score of 6 to 3 but on account of a dispute Umpire Reis gave the game to the Glendale Senators, 9 to 0. The batteries were E. Asklund and H. Erickson for the Senators, W. Dean and L. Grant for the Stars.

Brookline 6, English 1.
Weymouth 4, Hingham 3.
Volkmann 14, Roxbury Latin 4.
Rock Ridge 9, Thayer 3.
Brockton 9, Middleboro 2.
Hyde Park 14, Needham 5.

In the tournament at the Montclair links, there are four survivors, among them Richard R. Freeman of Wollaston who won from G. B. Trafton, Chestnut hill in the second round by 6 and 4. He is matched to play F. H. Hoyt of Allston this afternoon. Hoyt defeated J. J. Gallagher of Wollaston yesterday by 4 and 2. The other match in the semi finals is between B. S. Evans and C. C. Bell both of the Brae Burn club of Newton. The summary of the second round is as follows:

C. C. Bell, Brae-Burn, beat L. J. Malone, Woodland, by 3 and 2.
B. S. Evans, Brae-Burn, beat B. E. Jones, Concord, by 4 and 2.
F. H. Moyt, Allston, beat J. J. Gallagher, Wollaston, by 4 and 2.
R. R. Freeman, Wollaston, beat G. B. Trafton, Chestnut Hill, by 6 and 4.

The semi finals and finals will be played off today. There will be also a members handicap tournament.

Walter Lornergan, captain of Quincy's pennant winning team in the Old Colony league last year, seems to have the ability to ally himself with winning teams. The Brockton team, with which he is playing now is at the head of the league and is playing in championship form right along. Whether Lornergan is the rabbit's foot of the team or whether his skillful playing is responsible for the victories is an open question. We are inclined to thjnk both are important factors.

Makarias vs. Northwesterns of Somerville, Merrymount park, upper field, 3.30.

Adams A. A. vs. West Quincys, Ward 3 playgrounds at 3.30.

Y. M. C. A. vs. Wakefield Y. M. C. A., Merrymount park, lower field, 3.30.

Fore River Apprentices vs. Glover A. C., Ward 2 playgrounds, 3.30.

Out of town games:

Manets vs. Clapp Memorial at Weymouth.

Orients vs. Braintree at Braintree.

South Quincy A. A. vs. Cunningham gym. at Milton.

Soccer football:

PUBLIC DOCK QUESTION

Granite Manufacturers to Hold Open Meeting

The Granite Manufacturers' Association is to hold a public meeting at its rooms in the Adams building Wednesday evening to discuss in a general way the public dock question. Invitations have been sent to the members of the City Government, Board of Trade and other business associations to be present and take part in the discussion. In its invitation sent out the Granite Manufacturers say:

We have been discussing in a general way the possibilities of a Public Dock in this city and we feel that the time is ripe for some move to be made towards the establishment of one. While the industry that we represent would be one of the greatest gainers by such a dock we believe it would be a great benefit to other lines of business and the city in general, and we believe that any action taken should be by the general public and not by any one organization.

MILTON

An open dance will be held in Cunningham gymnasium, Monday evening, May 8.

A demonstrator of Borden's milk is in Hammer's drug store this week.

James Gallagher of Granite place lost by fire Wednesday evening a barn containing twenty tons of hay. The horses were saved by being led out blindfolded.

You Get the Odd Change

The new, Regal, "square-deal" method of pricing shoes at COST PLUS FIVE PER CENT. gives the buyer the benefit of many "odd change" prices.

For example, if the manufacturing cost, of any pair of Regal Shoes, with 5% profit and selling expense added, comes to $3.85, you get that shoe at $3.85—not at the old, traditional, $4.00 price.

The Regal Company has abandoned the old-fashioned idea that good shoes always must be sold at "even money" prices.

Regals give the purchaser exactly what he wants at the smallest profit and lowest price at which shoes of that style and quality can be sold.

$3.35 to $5.85
and are stamped on the shoes at the factory.

BRIEFS

St. Chrysostom's Men's club is to have a ladies' night on May 16.

Owing to the extra work to be done for Memorial day by the executive committee of Paul J. Revere, W. R. C., there will be no supper on Tuesday evening, May 9, in G. A. R. hall.

The alarm from Box 413 at 2.43 Friday afternoon was for a grass fire on Arthur street.

Rev. Richard E. Armstrong is to entertain the Galahad club of Christ church at the rectory on Thursday evening.

The Altar Guild of St. Chrysostom's church holds its last meeting for this season on Sunday. Miss Briggs and Miss Parlee are serving this month.

Erastus Osgood is coaching the Boys' club of Christ church for the two plays they are to give in the parish house on May 18.

Miss Fannie E. Austin, who has accepted the pastorate of the Universalist church will occupy the pulpit on Sunday. This will be the last Sunday Miss Austin will preach, until she enters upon her regular pastorate in the fall.

The Women's Guild of Christ church is to serve the last parish supper for this season on Wednesday night in the parish house.

Granite lodge, No. 193, O. S. S. G., will commemorate St. Georges day by holding a concert and dance in Clan McGregor hall on Wednesday evening. Members and friends should attend as a good time is expected. Regular lodge meeting to commence at seven o'clock and concert at 8.

Walther Men's class meets Sunday at 12.15 in the Wollaston Baptist church. Features for Sunday, solo by Mr. Bullock, song service in which 90 men will participate, discussion on the "Temptations of Prosperity and Adversity" and last but not least the warm hand of good fellowship. All men invited.

RESOLUTIONS TO DR. HARDY.

At the spring meeting of the Norfolk Association of Congregational churches at the Central church at Bridgewater on Tuesday the following resolutions were passed by a unanimous rising vote.

Whereas: The Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D., who has for sixteen years been the pastor of one of the largest churches of the Norfolk Association and during these years has been a loyal and efficient worker in this Association, giving liberally of his time and strength to its interests and

Whereas: Dr. Hardy has accepted a call to the Congregational church in La Grange, Ill., and will soon leave our immediate fellowship.

Therefore be it resolved that we express our most hearty appreciation of his large hearted, Christian character, his wise and able ministry in our midst; that we express our regret at losing him from our Association, and that we express to him our best wishes as he goes to another field of service and pray that he may prosper in the work to which the Master has called him.

YEAR IN PENITENTIARY

Sentence Imposed Upon Mail Clerk Who Stole Package of Money

Boston, May 6.—Timothy F. Sullivan, the railway mail clerk who confessed to stealing $8000 in a registered package from the mails, was sentenced to one year in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta yesterday by Judge Dodge in the United States disitrict court.

According to his counsel, Sullivan took the money in a moment of sudden temptation and used $350 of it to pay household expenses. The balance will be returned to the National City bank of New London, which sent the money to the First National bank of Boston on April 20.

The arrest and punishment of Sullivan has established a record for the federal courts of this district. He was arrested on Wednesday, confessed on Thursday and was indicted and sentenced on Friday, just fifteen days after the commission of the offense.

BURIED IN BLOOMERS

Miss Fowler Remains True to Her Faith to the Very Last

Vineland, N. J., May 6.—True to her ideas in regard to dress while in life, Miss Susan P. Fowler was laid in her casket arrayed in her favorite bloomer costume. She had worn bloomers sixty-nine years.

Rev. W. M. Gilbert, pastor of the Unitarian church, conducted the services and called attention to the high moral character for which Miss Fowler was always greatly respected in the community despite her peculiar notions of dress.

For forty consecutive years Miss Fowler filed a written protest with the tax collector, when she paid her taxes, against taxation without representation.

DEAD AUTHORS NAMED AS INCORPORATORS

Resolution For National Academy Is Again Introduced

Washington, May 6.—Samuel L. Clemens, Charles F. McKim, Edward E. Hale, Julia W. Howe, Francis M. Crawford, John La Farge and Richard W. Gilder, all dead, are named as incorporators of the American Academy of Arts and Letters in a resolution introduced in the house by Representative McCall of Massachusetts.

This resolution has been introduced several times during the Sixty-First congress. Although death played havoc in the ranks of the men originally named as incorporators, McCall failed to remember that fact. As a result the house is now asked to permit these dead writers and painters to be among the incorporators of the academy.

A similar resolution incorporating the National Institute of Arts and Letters also has many names of those who have died as incorporators. Those now dead who are named as incorporators of the academy also are named as incorporators of the institute.

TWELVE THOUSAND A DAY

Visitors to "The World In Boston" Fully Up to Expectations

Boston, May 6.—If the attendance for the last two weeks of "The World in Boston" keeps up to the standard set by the past few days there is a reasonable prospect that the guarantors will receive back a large portion of their money. It takes a good many people at 25 cents each to pile up much in the way of receipts, but when, as has been the case this week, the attendance has averaged 12,000 daily by conservative estimate, there is justification for the hope of the mangement that at least 50 percent of the $60,000 guarantee fund can be returned. The attendance at the pageant is increasing daily.

"The World in Boston" is bringing to the city many meetings of missionary committees and boards which at other times would meet in New York.

DIAZ READY TO RESIGN

Will Quit Presidential Chair "When Order Is Restored"

Mexico City, May 6.—The resignation of Porfirio Diaz as president of Mexico within a very short time is regarded here as certain. Should the announcement of his intention to resign be made today it would cause the members of his cabinet no surprise.

No authoritative confirmation of this can be obtained, but there appears little doubt that, recognizing the seriousness of the situation and responding to the popular demand, Diaz will retire when order is restored.

CONGRESS TO TAKE RECESS?

May Adjourn Through Summer Unless Senate Gets Busy

FIGHT OVER FREE LIST BILL

Will Begin Next Monday, When Measure Will Be Taken Up For Amendment—Will Be Strongly Attacked by Republicans, but Democrats Are Confident of Its Passage—Wilder Opens the Debate

Washington, May 6.—Members of the house who do not look with favor on the decision of the senate to meet at 2 o'clock instead of at 12, and who suspect that this is but another method for delay, are making plans for adjournment.

Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee has been asked to agree to a proposition which would have congress take a recess on July 1 and come back and resume the session on Oct. 1. Underwood has not committed himself to this plan because he believes there is a chance that tariff legislation will be in such shape on July 1 that it will be possible to adjourn without date.

If, however, the senate shows a disposition to hang on indefinitely, the recess plan is certain to gain force in the house. A vast majority of the members do not look with favor on a state of affairs which would keep them in Washington through the hot months of July, August and September with absolutely nothing to do but meet twice a week only to adjourn, while the senate talks.

Recognizing that the real contest over the free list bill will come Monday, leaders of both parties in the house have issued peremptory orders to absent members to return at once to Washington. The bill will be taken up then for amendment under the five-minute debate rule. The measure has been before the house nearly two weeks, and the general debate has run on without limit.

Consideration of the bill for amendments will mark the beginning of the attack, and efforts will be made by the Republicans to amend it in almost every particular. For many of the amendments Republicans are counting on scattering Democratic support. The Democratic leaders expect the measure to be adopted, however, with little or no change except by the addition of certain amendments definitely approved by the ways and means committee.

Representative Wilder of Massachusetts opposed the free list bill yesterday in a speech opening the debate. He criticised the haste with which the Democrats drew up the free list bill and denounced their methods as those of the steam roller. "I do not understand," said Wilder, "how this can be the greatest deliberative body on earth one day and then be informed the next by some individual members of the legislation that is to be passed in the coming days. For together they make a paradox. I have little use for a steam roller, regardless of the party operating it.

"We have gone far enough at the present time with the Canadian reciprocity bill. All of our affairs should be treated with the utmost care and while changes should be made continuously they should be made with the utmost discretion and this headlong falling asunder in our midst with the usual result should be avoided, if possible. And may the good Lord encompass and speedily facilitate this brilliantly illuminated pyrotechnical new Democratic steam roller in its flight down hill backward until it disappears altogether in the sepulchre of the demnition bow-wows already yawning for it in the abyss at the foot of the hill."

BIG AVIATION MEET

Spectators Will Enjoy the Luxury of Rubberneck Chairs

Chicago, May 6.—The proposed monster aviation meet to be held in Grant park in August is regarded as a certainty following the announcement by the propomters that $50,000, or one-half of the sum required to stage the show, has been subscribed.

The latest development in the preparation is the adoption of a combination Morris chair and "bleacher" introduced to have the necks of the spectators.

Why Use Two Pairs of Glasses?
Those who have worn glasses for many years, find after passing the age of forty-five, that stronger glasses are required for close work.
To obviate the use of two pairs of glasses, what are known as bifocal lenses are resorted to.
"KRYPTOKS" are double vision lenses without line or cement, that give clear vision both for distance and close work, thus obviating the use of two pairs of glasses. They are worn without confusion after the first few days and prevent the annoyance of carrying two pairs of glasses. They add strength and vigor to the eyes by stimulating clear vision at all times.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Quincy Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Quincy proof:

H. A. Vinton, 1366 Hancock Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me of kidney trouble which had been in my system for at least ten years. I had pains in my back and loins and I believed my trouble to be rheumatism. I consulted a doctor and tried many remedies but found only temporary relief. Being advised to take Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and began their use. They quickly drove away the pains in my back and my health is better today than it has been for a long time."

EAGER TO GET IN TESTIMONY

Alleged Boodlers In Ohio Are on the Anxious Seat

SIX LEGISLATORS IN COURT

Plead Not Guilty of Soliciting Bribes and Trial Is Set For Week After Next —Certain Others Ready to Confess If Assured of Immunity—Exposure Means Passage of Big Bills Demanded by Governor Harmon

Columbus, O., May 6.—State Senators L. R. Andrews, G. G. Cetone and I. E. Hoffman, Representatives A. C. Lowry and G. B. Nye and senate Sergeant-at-Arms Rodney K. Diegel, under indictment for soliciting bribes, were arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Kinkead in the criminal court and pleaded not guilty.

The defense indicates a purpose to claim that dealings with the detectives were for the sole purpose of catching and exposing bribe givers. Following the pleas of not guilty, the prosecutor fixed the time for trials as week after next.

Intimations that the knowledge which Prosecutor Turner and Attorney General Hogan possess concerning bribery in the general assembly was limited to the few cases in which detectives posed as lobbyists to trap legislators were refuted when the grand jury took a recess until Monday. The recess was taken, according to the prosecutor, so he could arrange and make presentable a mass of incriminating evidence which had accumulated.

It is now asserted by good authority that certain members of the assembly are anxious to get in their testimony and confessions, if they can thus gain immunity. It is also asserted that Prosecutor Turner will avail himself of such volunteered testimony as he thinks he needs. Turner has been in possession of some valuable leads to testimony by anonymous letters. Presumably, these have come from persons who unwillingly were made to contribute to corruption funds to procure even meritorious legislation.

For the present, at least, no action will be taken for the expulsion or suspension of indicted members. With the exception of Nye, they are busy with routine duties.

Morton Launden of Cleveland, secretary to ex-Governor Herrick; R. F. Wolf, proprietor of two local newspapers, and Opha Moore, secretary of the Manufacturers' association, said to have employed detectives to ferret out corruption in the assembly, were among the witnesses before the grand jury.

Since the expose senators and representatives have voted, meekly and promptly without a word of protest, for measures which last week they declared their intention to fight. From present indications, in two weeks practically all of the seventeen big bills demanded by Governor Harmon in his talk to the Democratic caucus will have been passed in satisfactory form.

The house unanimously passed Senator Tod's bill, making the penalty for bribery of a public officer or member of the legislature one to ten years in the penitentiary, and eliminating a fine as alternative remedy. Tod procured the passage of the bill in the senate last session, but it was buried in the house.

CHICAGO STRIKE IS OFF

Each Road to Individually Settle Trouble With Freight Handlers

Chicago, May 6.—Peace between the freight handlers of Chicago and the railroads has been restored, and the maintenance of way employes are expected to call off their strike in a day or two.

The ending of the freight handlers' controversy came after a report of the committee of the twenty-nine railroads conducting the wage negotiations for the freight handlers.

It was decided that the employes of each road should meet their general managers to correct grievances in the individual freight houses. The demand for an increase in wages is withdrawn.

TWENTY-ONE NATIONS HONOR CARNEGIE

Join In Presenting Medal to "Benefactor of Humanity"

Washington, May 6.—Andrew Carnegie received what he called his greatest mark of honor, when twenty-one American republics bestowed upon him a gold medal bearing on one side the words "Benefactor of Humanity," and on the other "The American Republics to Andrew Carnegie."

According to John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, it was the first time in history that such a tribute from so many nations had been paid to an individual.

Mr. de Zamacona, the Mexican ambassador, made the speech of presentation; Secretary of State Knox presided and President Taft spoke in eulogy of the gifts which Carnegie has made for the cause of peace on this hemisphere and throughout the world.

Members of the diplomatic corps and men high in official life filled the hall of the Pan-American Union building, where the ceremonies were held and for the erection of which Carnegie gave almost a million dollars.

SUICIDE OF HUB COUPLE

Man and Wife Turn on Gas and Then Lie Down to Die

Boston, May 6.—With the room filled with gas that escaped from two open jets, William Weigand, 56, and his wife, Martha, 48, were found dead in bed at their home, 280 Silver street, by their only daughter, Meda.

Medical Examiner Leary said he thought it was a double suicide. Weigand worked as a laborer and, although he owned his home, his income is said to have been small. Mrs. Weigand had not been in the best of health for several years. The family of the couple consists of the daughter, Meda, 18, and a son, William, a member of the fire department.

Careful preparations had been made, the crevices and cracks of the door having been filled with newspaper.

Wife of General Frost and Her Sister Killed In Accident

South Norwalk, Conn., May 6.—Mrs. Russell Frost, aged 55, wife of General Frost, commander of the Connecticut national guard, was instantly killed, and her sister, Mrs. Dudley E. Raymond, received injuries from which she died when the carriage in which they were riding was struck by a runaway trolley car. The conductor and the motorman of the trolley car were arrested and held in bonds, charged with manslaughter.

Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Raymond were the daughters of the late Colonel D. P. Ely, at whose death each of them inherited more than $1,000,000.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A "Mrs. Police Commissioner" Whom Bostonians May Have to Salute—Bay State Suffrage Banners Unfurled in Gotham—What a Suffragette Should Wear—May Day Crowds at "World in Boston" Show Socialism Has Nothing on the Sunday School Yet.

Not since the National Educational Convention last year has Boston, the city of great conventions, been treated to such a visitation as that caused by the "World in Boston." The flaunters of red banners got out a big crowd for their May Day demonstration, but they were lost in the shuffle of the religiously inclined, showing that socialism as yet has nothing on the Sunday school as regards popularity. Special excursions for schools and Sunday schools have, in fact, resulted in dozens of special cars laden with shouting youngsters running from all the suburbs and nearby towns to leave their lively burden at the doors of Mechanics Building where every morning the sidewalks are crowded with hundreds more anxiously awaiting admittance. The large numbers of visitors coming to the city on special trains from such places as Providence, Worcester, Springfield, and other cities at some little distance, give the streets and public dining rooms an aspect of festivity unwonted even in student thronged Copley Square.

Up rose the sun and up rose Emilie on the morning when the greatest steamship ever to enter the port of Boston poked her nose up the narrows. Emilie doubtless wanted to get a position on one of the ferry boats or along the wharves where a good view could be obtained of the steamer as she docked at seven o'clock and friends who have been touring the continent came tripping down the gang plank. A strong local feeling had been developed that the coming of this new ocean liner, the largest ever to enter our port, was the beginning of a new era in shipping for the Hub. Passengers on the liner were somewhat astounded at the fervor of their reception many of them not being aware of the special significance of the occasion which called forth siren shrieks, tug boat whistles, and shrill toots from every description of vessel in the harbor, while through the tumult could be heard the cheers of the thousands along shore as the great ship swung into its berth. While here the leviathan was visited by many land lubbers.

Mrs. Police Commissioner, Miss Police Captain and Miss Police Sergeant. Are we coming to that? That, at any rate, is what is desired by a body of business women and working girls of the modern Athens who have presented a petition to Governor Foss, urging him to consider Mrs. Christina D. Page as a favorable candidate for the office of police commissioner, from which they consider that the present incumbent, Stephen O'Meara, should be deposed. They firmly believe that with a corps of women garbed in inconspicuous raiment and armed with whistles to summon assistance the necessary walks of business women throughout the city would at least be freed from the present annoyances and dangers due to mashers and degenerates. Little Old Boston has from earliest days been a hotbed of women's rights, but one can imagine that even here the innovation of so radical a plan would cause considerable excitement. Governor Foss has an opportunity to make good with the ladies, if they can convince him that they are capable of controlling the wickedness in the good city of our forefathers, where Col. Bob Ingersoll once remarked that the crust of Hell was thinner than anywhere in the world.

Motor-boating to business may be the vogue this coming summer for those fortunates who reside on the banks of the Charles between the Watertown dam and the Charles River Basin. A line of launches, capable of accommodating from 50 to 70 passengers, is scheduled to begin operations about Memorial Day, and anyone desiring to take the trip down the winding Charles may do so for small expense and in practically the time consumed by the electric cars. The trip through the Brighton and Cambridge marshes and park reservations, with the scenes about the University and the Stadium, and the emergence from the smoothly winding little river into the white-capped waters of the wide basin with its background of spires and gilded dome should furnish an inspiring spectacle on which to start the day's work. Incidentally, think of the sporty tan the business girl may acquire en route to her job in the city.

Proper street dress for suffragists consists of a small hat, white shirt waist, short skirt, white if possible, low heeled walking boots. Such at least was the prescription received by Massachusetts workers for equal suffrage on the eve of their departure for the great woman suffrage parade in New York, May 6. The suggestion was not made, however, for the purpose of exciting titters among newspaper paragraphers, but with the laudable object of securing picturesque harmony in the procession. The Bay State's delegation sent to this gigantic metropolitan demonstration comprised several of the leading suffragists who bore banners with the names of eminent leaders of other days. Mrs. Gertrude B. Newell bore the golden standard dedicated to Julia Ward Howe with Edwin D. Mead's fine tribute; "Always young for liberty." A Lucy Stone banner of white silk with gold letters and the words, "Justice, simple justice is what the world needs" was given by Mrs. Emma L. Blackwell of Cambridge. The Mary A. Livermore banner was designed by Mrs. Mary Francis Bolles of Winthrop. Preparations for the great Gothamite gathering have occupied much of the attention of the Boston suffragists for some weeks past, though they have not interfered with routine activities. An admission of the effectiveness of a recent campaign in Brockton appears in this admission of a local newspaper: "To those who have not followed the growth of the 'votes for women' movement, the visit of Miss Hughes came as a revelation. Man has had his own way for so long and has done exactly as he pleased, with one code of morals for himself and another for woman, that the power and force of an energetic campaigner like Miss Hughes is a surprise to him, and he begins to realize what may happen when women decide to turn on the searchlight and let the truth be known, come what may. That such a movement might bring about a new standard of decency in the social life of many cities can hardly be doubted."

Ethel Angier.

BRIEFS

No council meeting Monday evening.

A pleasant day is predicted for Sunday.

The New England order of Protection held a whist party in Protection hall last evening.

The Y. M. C. A. wireless club met last evening to complete the work on the aerial and to receive messages for different points.

The Cranch A. A. juniors played a double header this morning. The first game with the Warren Stars who were defeated by a score of 13 to 7. The second game was with the Medford A. A. who were defeated 14 to 5.

Among those to receive teacher's diplomas at the commencement exercises of Emerson college of Oratory, was Miss Alice E. Simmons of Wollaston who took part in the Japanese pantomime given in Music hall, last Tuesday evening.

The dress rehearsal of "The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown" was held in High school hall last evening. A good sized audience composed of pupils and parents was present to witness the performance and everything went splendidly. A record attendance is expected tonight.

Harry Heffernan, son of J. Heffernan of the Regal Shoe store in City Square, who is with the Webster and Atlas National bank in Boston was last night awarded a first prize of $15 in gold and a silver cup, in the contest for speed and accuracy in running the Burroughs adding machine. The contest was held at Tremont Temple under the auspices of Boston Chapter American Institute of Banking and was competed for by a large number of bank clerks.

BRAINTREE CLUBS.

Braintree is famous for having within her limits innumerable private clubs whose object is playing whist and sociability. When spring comes however many of these disband although there are a few clubs still which meet throughout the year at regular intervals. The mention of several who held enjoyable gatherings this week is perhaps interesting to many.

Wednesday evening, the members of the Matrons' whist club and their husbands were delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Simonds of Franklin street. The game was enjoyed for two hours and the souvenirs were secured by Mrs. Clifton Woodsum, Mrs. George E. Snow, Mrs. A. A. Palmer, Marion C. Gillette, Wilford F. Woodsum, William G. Benham and Benjamin H. Woodsum, Jr. Dainty refreshments were served and an hour with music and games quickly passed.

The same evening the members of the Pond street athletic association were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Urban T. Landrey of Pond street. Whist was played and the highest scores were made by Mrs. Mary Murphy of East Weymouth, Mrs. Jessie Southwick, Guy E. Wood and John McClelland of South Braintree.

Thursday afternoon the ladies of the Clover bridge whist club were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Fred L. Flowers of Commercial street, East Braintree.

Friday afternoon, Mrs. B. Herbert Woodsum of Franklin street, South Braintree entertained the members of the Ivaloo whist club.

Last evening, the Thimble club which is composed of the ladies of the Amana Rebekah lodge met at the home of Mrs. William M. Call of Williams avenue, South Braintree. These ladies meet every other week at some home and sew on articles which are to be sold and the proceeds added to the treasury of the lodge. There is always the social hour and refreshments are served thus adding to the pleasure of the evening.

DEATHS

FORBES. In Quincy, May 5, Mr. John E. Forbes of 11 Common street, aged 48 years.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

The farewell reception to Dr. and Mrs. E. N. Hardy next Wednesday evening in Bethany chapel is to be entirely informal. Everyone in the city who wishes to do so, will have an opportunity to extend his greetings and good wishes to Dr. and Mrs. Hardy.

There will be music and a few informal addresses. The ladies of the church, who have charge of the reception extend a cordial invitation to all, to be present and join the members of the church in bidding their pastor and his family Godspeed.

AMATEUR NIGHT.

Amateur night at the Orpheum was a great success and the crowds that were there to see the fun surely felt well repaid. There were five contestants for the prizes and all of them performed creditably. John McCarty was awarded first prize by popular vote. He did a very good juggling act which showed that he had been there before. Miss Gladys Thomas, who did a singing and dancing act, got second prize.

In the regular entertainment, Jess Morris did some very creditable step dancing, and Murphy and Washburn entertained with songs and jokes. "The Tale of Two Cities" was the subject of the best pictures. The story was given by means of motion pictures in three parts and one need have no hesitancy in saying that it was one of the best things ever seen in Quincy.

ORDER EASTERN STAR.

Quincy chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held a very enjoyable May party and dance in Alpha hall Friday evening with an attendance of about 75 couples. Dancing was in order throughout the evening and during the intermission ice cream and cake were served. The last starlight waltz was perhaps the most enjoyable with the shower of confetti falling upon the dancers like particolored snow flakes. Feleig's orchestra from Boston furnished the music.

The committee on arrangements was Mrs. James Milne, chairman, Miss Bessie Roberts, Miss Annie Rose, Miss Margaret Milne, Miss Harriet Griffiths, Miss Mildred Crowley, Miss Clara Call and Miss Myra Lester.

Quincy High vs. Waltham at Merrymount park this afternoon.

QUINCY LOSES TO WALTHAM

Heavy Hitting of the Visitors Does the Trick

Quincy high lost to Waltham at Merrymount park Friday afternoon in a poor exhibition of base ball, by a score of 16 to 8. The first big jolt for Quincy came in the 5th inning when 5 hits and two errors gave the visitors 7 runs. Again in the 8th inning, two hits, two bases on balls and two errors gave them six more runs. Quincy had a little rally in the 5th, getting two runs and in the 8th, three hits and three bases on balls with the assistance of one error, gave her 5 more runs.

The Waltham team appeared to be superior to Quincy both at the bat and in the field but, there was no excuse for the 10 errors made by the Quincy players. Rice struck out 10 men but he allowed 13 htis. Waltham had two second rate pitchers in the box, Fagan struck out nine men, gave 6 bases on balls and allowed five hits, Healey who pitched in the last two innings, allowed two hits, gave two bases on balls and did not get any strikeouts.

The Waltham batsmen seemed to be able to hit Rice at will but that would not have been so bad if he had been given decent support. For Quincy Harold Chapman played a good game behind the bat and Hill did some good hitting.

For the visitors, Day and McClellan did well in the field and Stankard with a home run and two singles led in stickwork. Barry with a three bagger and two singles was not far behind.

It is to be hoped that this game will wake the team up so that it can make Brockton hustle on Tuesday.

The summary:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Waltham	1	2	0	0	7	0	0	6	0	—16
Quincy	1	0	0	0	2	0	0	5	0	— 8

Earned runs—Waltham 8, Quincy 4. Three-base hits—Barry. Home runs—Stankard. Sacrifice hits—McClellan. Struck out—By Fagan 9, Rice 10. Bases on balls—By Fagan 6, Healey 2, Rice 3. Wild pitches—By Rice. Umpire—Ganzel. Time—2 hours.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

The eighth monthly musical service will be held in Bethany church Sunday evening with the following musical numbers:

Organ prelude—Inflammatus from Stabat Mater Rossini
Anthem—Damascus March Costa
Solos—Jesus Lover of My Soul McDougall Mrs. E. S. Moore
Solo—Glory to Thee My God this night Gounod Albert L. Hayden.
Anthem—I will sing of Thy power, Sullivan
Postlude—Quartette Best

CHARLES W. CLAPP.

In the death of C. W. Clapp, who passed away last Monday after a brief illness, Braintree has lost one of its most prominent citizens and the people of Mt. Vernon avenue a kind and friendly neighbor. A resident of the town for about twenty years he has done much for its improvement in the way of putting up many well built artistic houses and improving a number of old houses. The store at "Five Corners" was built by him and he also gave the stone watering trough at the same place. An expert on real estate his advice was often sought and readily given. Since the death of his wife more than a year ago Mr. Clapp has rapidly failed. He sold the homestead thinking among new associations he might find more contentment but there seemed no comfort for him anywhere. Mr. Clapp's immediate relatives are his two sons and a granddaughter. He was in his seventy-ninth year.

The Mistake.

In his biography of Alexandre Dumas Harry A. Spurr says that the improvident French author, who hated avarice, was once waiting in line for his cloak at a soiree when he saw a millionaire give a tip of 50 centimes (10 cents) to the servant who handed out his paletot. Dumas, getting his cloak, threw down a 100 franc note. "Pardon, sir; you have made a mistake, I think," said the man, offering to return the note. "No, no, friend," answered Dumas, casting a disdainful glance at the millionaire; "it is the other gentleman who has made the mistake."

SPECTACULAR FIRE AT NORFOLK DOWNS

Plant of Wire Fabric Co. Destroyed Saturday Night

Unnecessary Alarms Bring Thousands to the Scene

With flames which could be seen from all over Quincy, and which for a second time in two years threatened to consume the Boston Gear Works, the factory of the Wire Fabric Company, near the Norfolk Downs depot, was gutted on Saturday evening.

Fed by a large quantity of varnishes and other inflammable materials used in the process of manufacture the oil-soaked building gave forth an intense heat that kept the firemen on the outskirts of the blaze and severely handicapped them.

Miniature explosions caused by the popping of stoppers in the bottles and tanks of oil and other combustibles sent sparks many feet in the air and had a high wind been blowing the conflagration must have become general, as the factory abuts the plant of the Boston Gear Works from which it is separated by a space of not more than four or five feet.

Alec McKenzie, the night watchman of the Gear Works was in the boiler room at the time and was not aware of the fire in the adjoining building until the alarm sounded.

The alarm was pulled from box 612 at 9.58 and at 10.22 was followed by two more alarms from the same box. These were unauthorized.

The sounding of so many alarms gave the citizens an idea that a conflagration was in progress and brought thousands to the scene on foot and in automobiles. The three alarms acting as a general call.

Eye witnesses near the scene at the start of the blaze say that the flames seemed to shoot up all at once through a skylight in the roof, the entire interior evidently becoming a seething mass of fire before it was discovered.

Contemporaneous with the sounding of the alarm a score of employes of the Gear Works living in neighboring houses manned the nine private lines of hose of the company and had water on the blaze before the fire department.

Taking their stand at the windows and on the roof of a shed between the two factories the boys kept steady streams on the fire. To their early work and later assistance of the fire department the safety of the plant of the Boston Gear Works is undoubtedly due.

Upon their arrival the firemen found a blaze that had gained a tremendous headway and only by quick action and wise direction was it confined to the building in which it started.

The fire was well under control an hour after the first alarm was pulled and the all-out sounded at 11.57.

The illumination of the fire made the surrounding premises as light as day and attracted to the scene hundreds of people who thought from the location that the Gear Works were again being burned.

The origin of the fire is a mystery but stock is taken in the story of Mrs. Thomas H. Adams of Newport avenue who states she saw a man coming from the direction of the building an hour or so before the fire.

Seated with friends on the piazza of her home which is across the railroad directly opposite the Wire Fabric Company Mrs. Adams saw someone coming away from the factory who aroused her suspicions.

Calling out and asking what he was doing she received no reply but the man vaulted the fence and started on the run up the railroad track toward Wollaston.

This incident happened shortly before 8.30. Mrs. Adams can give but a meagre description of the person who she describes as a man over middle age, of average height and quite stout. The police are at work on the case.

The fire gave an opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of the protective devices now installed in the Gear Works.

Upon the arrival of the first employes the water curtain was turned on. This sent a continuous sheet of water pouring down the four sides of the building.

At the same time sprinklers upon the roof of the building were set in operation that drenched the surface and extinguished any sparks that fell upon it.

In addition there is in the interior a complete sprinkler system set in motion by the heat. The starting of this sounds a gong which notifies the watchman or others that something is amiss.

A private fire main with water at city pressure to which lines of hose are connected at various places over the plant completes the system.

Close to the burning factory in the rear is a stable in which were three horses and a cow. These, although the barn did not ignite, were in danger from the heat and smoke and were led to safety.

Other than a water damage to materils stored under the roof and a flooded cellar the plant of the Gear Works was undamaged.

OPENING NIGHT SQUANTUM Y. C.

Banquet, Speeches and Vaud ville---Those Present

The yachting season of 1511 opened auspiciously for the Wollaston Yacht club with a banquet, speech-making and vaudeville in the hall of the club house on asturday evening.

Shortly after 7 o'clock those present sat down to the following menu served by the Hyde Park Ice Cream Company:

Roast turkey Mashed potatoes
Escalloped Oysters
Radishes Cucumbers
Cream fritters, wine sauce
Ice cream Water ices
Frozen pudding
Cake Coffee

The club members and guests at the head table included: Commodore Louis E. Crosscup of the Wollaston Yacht club, Commodore G. W. Hinkley of the Squantum Yacht club, Commodore I. M. Whittemore of the Quincy Yacht club, Walter E. Stone of the Corinthian Yacht club, Jack J. Harland, president of the Inter Club Yacht Racing association, William L. Carlton chairman regatta committee, Corinthian Yacht club, Rear Commodore Frank Fessenden Crane of the Quincy Yacht club; William M. Chase, Vice Commodore H. E. Crane of the Quincy Yacht club, W. J. Coombs, H. C. Seymour, Walter E. Frost, J. A. Fenno and Vice Commodore Frank F. Taylor of the Wollaston Yacht club.

During the progress of the banquet music by the Raymond orchestra of women players was enjoyed. Besides a program of classical and other music popular pieces such as "Old Gray Bonnet" and "Kelly" were interspersed the choruses of which were heartily joined in by the diners.

The after dinner speaking opened with a few words of welcome and felicitation by Commodore Crosscup who instroduced Commdore Hinkley of the Squantum Yacht club. Mr. Hinkley expressed his best wishes for the club and hoped for the time to come when the two clubs would be second to none in Quincy.

Commodore Whittemore of the Quincy Yacht club was next introduced. He brought the greetings of the Quincy club. He was followed by William L. Carlton, chairman of the regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht club. Mr. Carlton spoke of the proposed regatta of the local club and also urged attendance on the run of the Lynn club to Marblehead.

Walter E. Stone of the Corinthian Yacht club, the next speaker proved not only that he was a jolly good fellow but a royal entertainer as well. His stories and recitations took the house by storm and he was loudly encored.

Last on the list came Jack J. Harland of the South Boston Yacht club, president of the Inter club Yacht Racing association. He spoke of the large number of boats that were present from the Wollaston club and extended an invitation for May 30th.

The evening was then turned over to a group of entertainers from Boston who gave a vaudeville program which met with the hearty approval of those present. The program included musical numbers, specialty acts, stories, character sketches, singing and dancing.

Much credit for the success of the affair is due to the entertainment committee consisting of Louis E. Crosscup, W. J. Coombs, Mr. Woodman and A. N. Potterton. The last named who is secretary of the club was presented by the officers with a fountain pen as a token of esteem and in appreciation of his efforts for the success of the club.

Among those present were:

Walter E. Stone, Jack J. Harland, G. W. Hinkley, Louis E. Crosscup, I. M. Whittemore, William L. Carlton, Frank Fessenden Crane, William M. Chase, H. S. Crane, W. J. Coombs, H. C. Seymour, Walter E. Frost, J. A. Fenno, Frank F. Taylor, Arthur E. Linnell, Harry L. Linnell, Henry E. H. Kuppel, C. A. Chase, E. E. Palmer, A. F. Forbes, F. W. Tuttle, Harry J. Campbell, E. F. Brown, E. S. Stubbs, E. M. McTear, George H.

QUINCY NEST OWLS.

A class of 26 candidates was initiated Sunday by Quincy nest of Owls, bringing the membership up to 142.

At Sundays meeting it was decided to hold regular meetings on the first and third Thursdays of each month at Hibernian hall on Water street. It was also voted to keep the charter open for a further period of thirty days during which time the fee for membership will be $5.

MRS. JOHN A. CAMPBELL.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. John A. Campbell took place from the United Presbyterian church Sunday at 2.30 and was largely attended. The pastor spoke from Revelations 14:13. "The Blessed Dead." Mr. Graham Paterson sang "Lead Kindly Light." Mrs. McKenzie sang "What can wash away my sins" Miss McDougald and Mr. McLean sang "Looking this way." The singing was good. These selections were made by the late Mrs. Campbell and it was her desire that they be sung at the funeral.

JOHN FORBES.

The funeral of John Forbes was held Sunday afternoon from St. Mary's church where the burial service was conducted by Rev. Henry T. Grady. Mass was celebrated this morning at 8 o'clock.

NEW CONTRACT SIGNED.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have a new contract, which has been signed by nearly all the contractors of the city to go into effect May 15. General electricians will get five cents an hour more than before (45c) and second and third year apprentices will get approximately five cents more per hour.

All electricians will get half holiday on Saturday with pay and a half for work overtime and double pay for work on holidays.

"What a fine looking little boy!" exclaimed the good-natured woman to her traveling acquaintance. "How old is he?"

"You're not connected with the railroad, are you?" asked the suspicious mother.

"Certainly not."

"Not in any capacity whatever?"

"No."

"Well, just wait until the conductor gets out of hearing and I'll tell you."—Chicago Post.

SQUARE DEAL PLAN USELESS

Automobile Drivers Evidently Do Not Want It

It has become evident to the general public that the "Square Deal" plan to automobile drivers that was adopted by Chief Burrell does not work. While there are some that appreciate the plan of Chief Burrell and try to keep within the limit of speed specified by law the great majority seems to think that Quincy is a place where they can put on power and make up for the time lost by having to go slow in other towns or get caught.

Sunday therefore Chief Burrell detailed Goodhue to get after them. Inspector Goodhue in an automobile patrolled back and forth from the Milton line on Adams street to Newcomb square via Quincy avenue.

As a result six speeders will be hailed into court this week. One of these is Max Green of Everett, who a party of seven in his Pope Hartford hit up a speed of sixty miles an hour.

Inspector Goodhue trailed the machine from Newcomb Square but was unable to overhaul him as his car a light machine was bouncing so bad that he momentarily expected to get smashed up. In City Square however Mr. Green hauled up and here he was captured and his number and name secured.

One of the parties trailed by Inspector Goodhue was Mayor Shea. Some says the Mayor was making 28 miles an hour but as there is some doubt if the officer would be able to prove that the Mayor's car was making that speed he will not probably be summoned.

TODAY'S COURT.

Katty Holden, Eric Ericson, Jules Blomquist, and Kalie Penttenes were fined $15 each for drunkenniess at Weymouth. Ceperma Martines $15 and Christopher King $10 for drunkenness at Quincy, J. Pelaquiu, John Fewcer and Fred Pelaquin $10 each for drunkenness at Milton.

Albert C. Burrage, Jr., was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

SENIOR DRAMATICS QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Paul Blackmur and Clara Mansfield Take Leading Parts

The Senior Dramatics at High school was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience Saturday evening in High school hall and the cast deserved every bit of applause that it received.

Paul Blackmur and Clara Mansfield as hero and heroine made a well matched pair and acted well together. Mr. Blackmur performed his part in a way which showed experience in amateur productions.

Misses Daisy D. Brooks, Olive Fay, Annie R. Allen, Amy Nelson and Clara V. Bushnell as pupils in Cicero House Academy performed with fine precision. Miss Bushnell as the "littlest girl" was quite perfect.

Miss Jean S. Arthur as mistress of Cicero House Academy portrayed in grand fashion the hauteur and dignity of the matron of a fashionable private institution of learning.

Miss Marion F. Bill was a comely and inobtrusive maid in the academy.

John K. Goodhue, as a private in the British army executed his part with an ease and abandon which were characteristic of him.

Frederick Sutemeister took the part of the long-winded flowery solicitor, guardian of Miss Angela Brightwell.

Philip A. Rice, next to the hero, caused the greatest number of laughs. He imitated in fine style the bravado of a sergeant of Scotland yard.

Winthrop M. Safford and Miss Blanche Picard as Major and Mrs. O'Gallagher showed a fine interpretation of their parts, imitating the Irish brogue and wit to perfection.

Mr. Safford showed fine stage presence, acting with great ease.

Artemas M. Dingwell gave a most realistic portrayal of the difficult part of a German music master. He gave the audience a fine piece of acting in the third act, leaving the stage midst a round of hearty applause.

Great credit is due to the coach Miss Mary G. Brown for putting on the finishing touches of the play.

As a whole, the play was a fine production and upheld the reputation of Quincy high school.

Miss Brown and many of the cast received flowers. Phil Rice got a large green article closely resembling a cabbage.

The cast:

Miss Romney, of Cicero House Academy,	Jean S. Arthur
Angela Brightwell,	Clara F. Mansfield
Euphemia Schwartz,	Olive Fay
Matilda Jones,	Daisy D. Brooks
Milicent Loveridge,	Annie R. Allen
Clara Loveridge,	Clara V. Bushnell
Mrs. O'Gallagher,	Blanche Picard
Miss Devereux,	Amy Nelson
Emma,	Marion F. Bill
Major O'Gallagher of the 41st Lancers,	Winthrop M. Safford
Private Doherty,	John K. Goodhue
Herr Von Mozer, music master,	Artemas M. Dingwell
Mr. Hibbertson, solicitor,	Frederick Sutemeitser
Sergeant Tanner, of Scotland Yard,	Philip A. Rice
Captain Courtnay, of the 41st Lancers,	Paul Blackmur

For the benefit of those not present it might be well to add that the hero Captain Courtnay was Miss Brown during a portion of the play.

Before the play and between the acts selections were rendered by the Wollaston orchestra. Sayard, 'cello, Pinkham, violin, Gourlie, piano, Pletsch, cornet, Thayer, flute.

ST. JOHN'S BAZAAR.

So great was the success of the bazaar of St. John's church in aid of the parochial school last week that it has been decided to continue the bazaar during this week. Pleasing entertainments will be given each evening.

A WARM DAY.

Today is easily the warmest day of the season and is a reminder of what may be expeteced the coming summer. At noon today the glass registered 83 degrees or four degrees warmer than the hottest day in April. The warmest day at noon in May last year was 78.

FELL OVERBOARD.

A morning paper reports that Larence Jefferson of Russell street, Atlantic, fell overboard at Rowe's wharf Sunday and was rescued by Patrolman Ives and locked up for drunkenness.

JOHNSON—CRONHOLM.

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday evening when Mr. Bent Johnson and Miss Josephine Cronholm were united in marriage by Rev. G. H. Palmgren at the new home, 38 Euclid avenue.

The single ring service was used. The bride looked very pretty in her gown of white messaline and carrying a bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony a supper was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in singing and dancing.

The happy couple were recipients of many beautiful gifts which the guests had a chance to inspect before going. The bride is a popular young lady among the Swedish people of the city and the groom is well known as the brother of Andrew Johnson of the firm, Hughes and Johnson. Many of the guests at the wedding were from out of town, friends of both bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home to friends after June 1.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The small boy observes raisin day at other times than April 29, provided he knows the location of the jar.

The humane minded person now goes out to plant a tree in order that future generations of caterpillars shall not suffer the pangs of hunger.

Socialist Berger has moved to abolish the Senate. He should not give up hopes of getting into it so early in the game.

Gov. Mann of Virginia wants Audubon's birthday, May 4, observed as Bird day. Many people would observe it by getting out with a rifle and popping over the song birds.

The chief thing that worries us about the Dutch carying off that one out of 1600 Philippine islands, is the fear that they won't carry off any more.

After such calamities as the Bangor fire, people will some day find out that a man practically commits arson, when he puts up a wooden building in a thickly settled city.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock wants to try one cent postage in the District of Columbia. Better make it easier for the people to write to the office holders, instead of for the office holders to write to the people.

THE PAPER DUTY.

A strong resolution favoring free print paper was passed by the American Newspaper Publishers Association at their meeting in New York the past week. The things the Senate did last year to the paper tariff are still a sore subject among newspaper publishers.

This was no case where the tariff makers sat in stuffed easy chairs and submissively consumed cooked up figures representing only one side of the deal. Representative Mann of Illinois, a staunch protectionist and his sub committee spent eight months studying paper. They visited leading American and Canadian mills.

The committee established the fact that the labor cost of making paper is less in our country than in Canada.

They therefore recommended and the House voted, that wood pulp come in free, and that the paper duty be reduced from $6 to $2 per ton. But the Senate in its majestic and impregnable wisdom raised the paper duty to $4, and the conference had to compromise on $3.75, subject also to conditions.

The argument has been formerly used that cheap paper would promote cheap and disreputable newspapers, given to attacks on property.

If motives of this character still tax the distribution of information through the newspaper, these people seem reminiscent of several centuries ago when they used to smash printing presses. No doubt some of our higher ups feel that the foundations of society would be safer were there no newspapers.

The paper trust, before the Payne-Aldrich hearings, showed that their earnings decreased from $2,138,117 to $1,623,616, in 1907. To this it was said that paper which they sold in this country for three cents was being marketed in Europe for less than two.

Leaving wholly one side the question of the need of American industry for the present measure of protection, as a question on which there are honest differences, there is a need for free paper or at least for a very low duty, for the protection of our trees.

If the hoary monarchs of the forest, which guard the regular flow of the rivers and perhaps rainfall too, must be slaughtered that the American youth may read about the Katzenjammer Kids in the Sunday supplement, by all means let us take the trees of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland for this unseemly sacrifice.

WEEK END HOLIDAY GREATLY ENJOYED

Baseball and Tobacco For Prisoners In Rhode Island

Cranston, R. I., May 8.—The 500 inmates of the state prison and county jail—seventeen of them doomed to life imprisonment—received a welcome respite from the punishment which they are working out, in the first of a series of Saturday half-holidays.

These week-end hours of pleasure were granted them through the recommendation of Warden McCusker, who has instituted various economic and social reforms within the grim walls.

At a baseball game, and in other sports held in the prison yard, there met on equal footing and without noticeable restraint, men convicted of murder, those serving time for lesser offenses and prison officials. To the prisoners, one of the best appreciated features of the day was a distribution of 500 clay pipes and fifty pounds of tobacco. Several of the "lifers" enjoyed their first fresh air in more than a score of years, and more numerous were the pisoners who had not tasted tobacco in one, five, ten, twenty and more years.

MURDERS HIS ROOMMATE

Lace Pedler Caught In Act of Burying His Victim

Beaver Falls, Pa., May 8.—Caught burying the body of a man he admits he murdered, Pinzairone Rosalio, a lace pedler, was arrested in the woods north of this town. The victim was Salvatore Magro, aged 24, also a lace pedler and a roommate of Rosalio at the home of Mrs. Marie Cisco.

The suspicions of Mrs. Cisco were aroused when she saw Rosalio leave the house alone and return with a large dry goods box, which he took to his room. Later he hired Joseph Dalmini, a grocer, to haul the box ostensibly to a railway station.

Mrs. Cisco notified Chief of Police Woods. The wagon was followed and the burial was in progress when the a suspect.
two men were arrestsed, Delmini as

The body was found to be horribly mutilated in an attempt to dismember it. Rosalio stated that he killed his roommate during a quarrel.

MAGNETISM FAILS TO WORK

Angel of the Camorra Loses His Temper and Curses Informer

Viterbo, Italy, May 8.—The confronting of Abatemaggio, the informer, by Ciro Vitozzi, the priest, at the Camorra trial was dramatic. The "Angel of the Camorra" apparently tried to exercise some kind of magnetism over the informer. He looked at him long and fixedly, he himself standing immovable. But this produced no effect, for Abatemaggio calmly repeated his accusations.

Vitozzi then became melodramatic and shouted: "Swear it on the ashes of your father."

Abatemaggio placidly replied: "I swear."

Vitozzi became frantic, crying out: "Forger! Perjurer! Attacking me, an ecclesiastic!"

Abatemaggio smiled and said: "You stained the ecclesiastic gown."

Vitozzi shouted: "Thief! Infamous one! May the Almighty curse you through the generation!"

BIG FAMILY NO HANDICAP

Father of Twenty-Five Children Has Accumulated a Fortune

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 8.—Mrs. Nathan Valone of Pittston yesterday presented to her husband his twenty-fifth child, a fine girl weighing fifteen pounds. Of the twenty-five, twenty-two are alive and well and several of them are married.

Valone was naturalized in 1884 and the same year he married. He has been twice wedded. His first presented him with sixteen children, twelve boys and four girls, and all but two of these grew up. Ten years ago he married again and his second wife has given him nine children.

Valone has prospered, notwithstanding his large family, for he own owns a grocery store, shoe store, fruit store, his own home and several other houses.

SUNDAY BILL IN OHIO

Bill Permitting Games Becomes Law Without Governor's Signature

Columbus, O., May 8.—Governor Harmon allowed the Greeves bill, which permits Sunday baseball in certain Ohio cities providing the people there vote for it, to become a law without his signature.

Under the Greeves measure baseball can be played on Sunday if 40 percent of the voters request the matter to be placed on the ballot and if the people then vote to allow it.

The bill will allow American league games in Cleveland and several minor league cities of the state. Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo now have Sunday baseball.

SPECTACULAR FIRE

was badly gutted the portions near the Hayward street side and the Gear Works being left in the best condition.

In the office situated in the westerly corner of the building, although the outsides of the desks and other equipment were burned, the files and other records inside are in fairly readable shape.

On Sunday the spot was the goal of hundreds who were coming and going all day.

This is but the fourth general alarm in the history of the city of Quincy the third having been sounded from this same box 612 on the night of Saturday, November 27, 1909 when the conflagration of the Boston Gear Works took place, the loss amounting to $95,000.

The first general alarm was occasioned by an early morning fire in the car barns of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway on December 7, 1899, box 26 being pulled in. The loss including cars was $27,100.

The second general alarm was sounded from box 23 on March 18, 1900 at 4.30 A. M. for a fire in Music Hall block. At this fire the total loss was $28,200.

Mayor Shea who is one of the Chief stockholders in the Wire Fabric Company was one of the early arrivals on the scene and was with Chief Williams during the greater part of the time fire was in progress. Mayor Shea said Saturday night that the loss would be something over $5,000 on which there was an ample insurance. The plant had not been in active operation for some time or the loss would have been much larger.

SUNDAY FIRES.

Twice on Sunday was the department called out by bell alarms. The first alarm came at 5.55 in the afternoon from Box 147. This was for a fire in a small building in the Granite Railway Co., yard used as a modelling building which was damaged to the extent of $500. The cause of the fire is unknown but is supposed to have been caused by boys.

Sunday afternoon at 7.15 an alarm was sounded from Box 612 and led many to believe that there was another fire at the Boston Gear Works and brought out a large crowd of spectators. The fire proved to be in a house on Holmes street and was caused by a defective chimney

The fire was one of those difficult ones to handle as it got in behind the plastering and in order to reach the seat of the blaze it became necessary to do considerable cutting away. The fire made much smoke and led the spectators to believe that their was considerable fire. The fire was out after half an hour's work. Chief Williams gives the loss at $500.

The house is occupied by J. M. Foley and the family were seated on the piazza and the fire was burning briskly for some minutes before it was discovered and the alarm sounded.

RECEPTION TO NEW PASTOR.

Members and friends of the Atlantic M. E. church tendered their new pastor Rev. H. E. Dorr a reception in the vestry of the church Thursday evening. Mr. Dorr was assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Russell Poquett. Mr. Bernhart and Mrs. Elizabeth Burr. The reception committee was composed of Alena Kilpatrick, Agnes Kinneburgh, Mary Beale, Alice Beale, Emily Keeler, Robert Kinneburgh, Ralph Church, and Reginald Smith. Refreshments were served by Alena Kilpatrick, Agnes Kinneburgh, Alice Beale and Edna Smith. The ushers were Miss Marguerite Perkins, Miss Mabel Cheney, Miss Lucia Cheney, Robert Kinneburgh, Ralph Church and Reginald Smith. Rev. Wesley Wiggin of Wollaston M. E. church and Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Atlantic Congregational church were present and spoke fitting words of welcome, and there were speeches by Mr. H. O. Cassidy in behalf of the church and by Mr. Bernhart of Boston. There were vocal solos by Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, piano duets by Miss Ethel Dicey and Miss Jennie Harding also by Miss Eldeine Marguerite Young and Miss Bertha Shultz.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Anncouncements For Coming Week

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the morning service, following the Scripture lesson, the hand of fellowship was extended the following: Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Bailey, Mrs. Ida W. Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Carpenter, Miss Ethel L. Banks, Miss M. May Gold, Mrs. Flora W. Roberts, Mrs. Anna J. McGrath, Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Dresser, Mrs. Bertha M., Thomas, Mr. Louis S. Cleaves, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Oxner, Mr. Otis C. Wheeler, Deacon and Mrs. J. L. Rand, Mr and Mrs. E. W. Campbell, Miss Ethel Campbell, Miss Margaret L. Durand,

Rev. Joseph Walther's address was a tower of strength and beauty. Subject—The value of discontent or rather the value of noble discontentment as paralleled by this verse from the 42nd Psalm, "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my Soul after thee O God."

Immediately following the communion service the Walther and Rand men's classes opened with a big song service including "Is the way so dark O Wanderer" beautifully sung by Mr. Kempton.

The discussion on "The temptations of Prosperity and whither they are really greater than those of adversity," was entered into with good nature and much spirit by visitors as well as members. The final decision was that extremes in both cases were about equal—as Mr. Sparrow put it—The deacon was discussing the ministers wife's pie—Wol the top crust was a trifle salty and the bottom crust a bit tough but the middle was mighty fine.

Y. P. S. C. E. met at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Lessons from the life of Ruth." Leader, Miss Eleanor Dunn.

Evening worship was at 7 o'clock in the Auditorium. Inspiring service of music and song was enjoyed. The pastor preached a short sermon, subject being "Vines and Foxes."

Mr. Herbert H. Albee sang "The Lost Sheep" beautifully.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

The pastor delivered his Sunday morning sermon on the theme "Jesus prays for the glory of Himself and His Father." A ladies quartette sang a very beautiful selection.

In the evening the pastor spoke on the subject "Faith and Life."

The Ladies Aid society will meet on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Torn, 235 Whitwell street, Thursday afternoon at 2.30.

The Young people's society will hold a social at the home of Oscar Hermanson, 363 Granite street, Thursday evening.

There will be an entertainment under the auspices of the Young People's society, Saturday evening in Protection hall.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor delivered his sermon Sunday morning on the theme "The Word of God."

In the evening his topic was "The Prayers of Christ."

The regular mid week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

At the Wollaston Unitarian church Rev. Carl G. Horst took for the text of his morning sermon a part of the 10th verse of II Corinthians, the 6th chapter—"As having nothing and yet possessing all things."

Assuming, as a foregone conclusion, that ownership of definite, material things gives man a sense of security and dignity, the preacher left the realm of the purely material to dwell upon the theme of the higher satisfaction which may come to man in the possession of a sense of his larger ownership in blessings which are universal.

Born again to the beauties of nature in all her many phases, and to the unlimited joys of an appreciation of poetry, music and the fine arts the world is more truly and in a wider sense owned by man, than if he were possessed of wealth to surround himself with all these things, and had unseeing eyes and dull perceptions.

Riches lie in the open vision, the appreciative mind, the thankful heart, —in the wisdom which recognizes and appropriates the legacy left us by the wise and good of all past ages.

None are poor but the spiritually dead, who are incapable of that fineness of vision which gives a sense of precious possession of those qualities which endure beyond the present life.

A mass meeting of Unitarian Laymen will be held in Tremont Temple, Wednesday, May 24 at 7.30 P. M. Ex-President Charles W. Eliot will preside and the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, Chapplain of the United States Senate and several prominent laymen will speak.

A special meeting of the Women's Alliance will be held in the Vestry, Wednesday, May 10th at 2.30 P. M. A social hour will be one of the features and plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Rev. Carl G. Horst is secretary of the Minister's Monday club, which held its regular monthly meeting at the National Unitarian headquarters in Boston today. The topic for consideration was "Eugenics." The Rev. George W. Cutter, M. D. delivered a fine paper on this subject treating it both from the minister's and the physician's point of view.

"I do not believe that church-going is by any means synonymous with religion. But I know that it is a fairly accurate symbol of religion. Neither is a thermometer synonymous with heat. But there is a good deal of significance in what the thermometer says. Church attendance is at least the thermometer of Religion. And when it stands at zero the chances are that religious enthusiasm is pretty cold. People who are interested in business are to be seen at the desk or behind the counter at their work. And people who are really interested in religion are likely to be seen at church. That which indicates failure in business is not a good condition of success in religion."

CHRIST CHURCH.

Holy communion was celebrated at the 10.30 service Sunday morning. The rector delivered a sermon on "The Joy of the Lord" taking his text from John 16:22.

In the evening a service of choral evensong was followed by an address by the rector on the subject: "How we got our Bible." Mr. Armstrong traced it down through the various translations, especially the English translations, to the American Standard revision which we use today.

The regular monthly meeting of the vestry will take place this evening at 8 o'clock.

Sunday school services were held at the same hour in Union hall and a large number of children were in attendance.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

At the Sunday morning service the right hand of fellowship was extended to the following: Mrs. Mary A. Miller, by letter from South Church, Amherst. On confession, Mrs. Ethel M. Corthell, Mrs. Flora Johnson Smith, the Misses Catherine H. Laing, Margaret M. Hunt, Mariam L. Miller, Miriam Hardy, Marion F. Bill, Andrew W. Stewart, Thomas M. Sandison, Albert Beach, Fred A. Ward. On reaffirmation, Mrs. Mary V. Roberts, Mrs. Annie W. Griffiths.

At the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting, ten new members were admitted to the society, graduates from the Intermediate C. E. society.

The resignation of Howard W. Pratt was accepted and Roy L. Sidelinger was installed as president in his place.

The eighth monthly musical service was held in the evening. The solos by Mrs. Moore and Mr. Hayden were greatly enjoyed and the anthems by the choir were rendered with good effect. The selection by the quartette was finely rendered.

The farewell reception to Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Noah Hardy will be held Wednesday evening, May 10, from 8 to 10 o'clock.

There will be music, a few informal addresses and an opportunity will be given everyone to say goodbye to the pastor and his family. The reception will be very informal.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening. It will be Dr. Hardy's last prayer meeting with his people.

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Ellery C. Butler preached an interesting sermon appropriate to the season at the First church Sunday morning.

This evening at 8 o'clock a special parish meeting will be held in the chapel. There are several important matters to come up for consideration.

A reception to Rev. C. B. Ames will be held in the chapel Friday evening to which all members of the parish are cordially invited.

QUINCY POINT CHURCH.

The pastor preached a very able sermon Sunday morning taking for his theme "The Spirit of the Church." Brotherhood was especially emphasized.

A communion service was held and six new members were received into the church.

In the evening an illustrated lecture on "Every day life in Japan" was given by the pastor.

SWEDISH BAPTIST.

The pastor delivered the sermon Sunday morning from the text Luke 24:47-50. "Christ sending out his disciples." A communion service was held after the sermon.

The Young People's meeting was conducted by John Hellstrom. The subject of the meeting was taken from the Book of Ruth.

In the evening Dr. W. A. Grovenlund, who has recently moved to Fitchburg gave a very able address on Paul, taking his text from the 26th chapter of Acts, "Paul" he said, "was a great man with a great program and he carried out his program in a wonderful manner." He ended by urging his audience to carry out their program as well as Paul did.

The Finance committee will meet in the church htis evening at 7.30.

There will be a social for members of the Young People's society. Tuesday evening at the home of A. E. Lundin, Glendale road.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

The Busy Workers and the Baraca club will be very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. A. N. Weeden, Bethel beach, Saturday afternoon and evening.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor delivered a fine sermon from the text "Ye did run well, who did hinder you?"

In the evening, the pastor's theme was "Man's response to the divine call." There were large audiences at both meetings.

The Y. P. S. C. E. consecration meeting was held at 6 o'clock. Six ne members were received into membership.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet in the church parlor Wednesday evening.

The last meeting of the Quincy Adams club will be held in the lecture room Tuesday evening.

The regular prayer meetings will be held on Thursday evening.

CALVARY BAPTIST.

The pastor preached the sermon at the Sunday morning service from the text Matt. 5:4. "What mourners are blessed," was the subject. He divided those who were blessed into three classes, first those who are tried, second, those who sorrow and third, those who mourn over sin.

Mrs. R. J. Davis sang a splendid solo, "Does Jesus Care?"

L. H. Clee spoke to the Davis class at noon. "What ideal are you setting up in your life?" was the subject of his address.

In the evening the pastor spoke from Isaiah 9:6. "The Wonderful Name" was his subject. He spoke of the wonderful life and death and resurrection of the Savior and emphasized man's need of a wonderful being to help him.

Rihbany, George Clarke Cox and Rabbi Charles Fleischer. The festival in Tremont Temple at six will close the week.

IN THE FUTURE.

And none but the Master shall praise us,
And none but the Master shall blame,
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame,
But all for the joy of working,
And each, in his separate star,
Shall paint the thing as he sees it,
For the God of things as they are.

—Rudyard Kipling.

GRAND JURY ACTS ON ITS OWN HOOK

Calls Lawrence Officials In Probe of Alleged Corruption

Lawrence, Mass., May 8.—The investigation of alleged corruption in connection with the conduct of city affairs took a sensational turn when the grand jury, without consulting the district attorney, took charge of the investigation itself and summoned several witnesses, including Mayor Cahill, Aldermen Jordan and Scanlon, City Treasurer Kelleher and City Clerk Wade. Wade was requested to bring records of the city government meetings.

When the grand jury went into executive session, after District Attorney Attwill had announced that the evidence he had to present was all in, the jurors informed Attwill that they wished to discuss the cases by themselves. Foreman Damon later made the request that police officers serve subpoenas on the five city officials named.

Scanlon is the alderman who first notified the state police of the information he had secured in regard to the purchase of paving blocks and who made the statement on inauguration day which resulted in the postponing of the election of a city treasurer.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED

Former Boston Councilman Accused of Killing Man With a Brick

Boston, May 8.—The grand jury indicted ex-Councilman Coleman E. Kelly of South Boston on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Jeremiah Mahoney. The defendant had attended festivities incident to a wedding and later on the street had a dispute with Mahoney. Kelly is alleged to have thrown a brick at Mahoney, who died from the injuries he received.

A "no bill," by reason of insanity, was returned in the case of Clara Russell of Dorchester, charged with the murder of her 12-year-old daughter Margery. Mrs. Russell strangled the child.

Aviation.

A French aviator has broken the passenger carrying record by taking six passengers on a cross country flight.

A suit of clothing which resembles an overcoat when closed, but which opens into a parachute should its wearer fall from a height, has been invented by a Berlin chauffeur for aviators.

JAIL BREAKER CAUGHT

Exhausted by Flight Before Posse In Pursuit of Him

Plymouth, Mass., May 8.—William J. Hammel, the prisoner who escaped from the Plymouth county jail Saturday and who was chased by a posse of fifty citizens over a large section of Plymouth county, was captured Sunday in Manomet, ten miles from this town.

Hamel was in an exhausted condition when overtaken. He was just making his way to a farmhouse to beg for food when the officers caught sight of him. He started to run away, but became entangled in a barbed wire fence. Freeing himself from the wire Hamel started running when Deputy Collingwood fired twice in the air. Hamel stopped at the sound of the shots and was easily captured.

Weil to Be Tried Next Week

Boston, May 8.—Victor M. Weil, stock broker, charged with using the mails to defraud, will be placed on trial in the United States district court May 16. Weil's operations are said to have amounted to $1,000,000.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Power of the Apple.

Apples contain 77 per cent of the acid combining elements. Pineapples, oranges, grapefruit and lemons are also invaluable for their marked acid combining qualities. The apple, however, is the most powerful of all the fruits. In fact, so powerful is it in its acid combining qualities that to eat a large, solid, properly grown apple three times each day would be almost sufficient to offset the effects of the excess of nitrogenous foods that we might eat during that period.

HORSE RECOVERED.

Late Saturday night the police recovered in West Quincy a horse that had been stolen Wednesday from William H. Cusick of Brookline.

Charles Fuller of Hall place from whom the police recovered the horse had purchased the animal in good faith at a Boston sales stable where it had been sold by the party who stole the horse as his own property.

APRIL WEATHER.

The weather in April was unusually cold until the 24th when an abrupt change to warmer was experienced, and summer temperatures were recorded during the closing days of the month. The mean temperature of 43.4 degrees was 1.2 degrees below the normal, and the lowest in April since 1907. Last year it was 49.8 degrees, the highest mean for the month in sixty-three years. The maximum temperature was 81 degrees on the 29th and this was nearly equalled on the 27th and 28th when 79 and 80 degrees, respectively, were recorded. These are the highest April temperatures since 1908. The lowest reached was 18 degrees on the 2nd and this is the lowest in April since 1898.

April, like the four preceding months, was drier than usual, the total precipitation of 2.86 inches being .62 inch less than the average amount. In 1910 the monthly total was 2.64 inches. A measurable quantity of rain or snow fell on 11 days and the most in any day was 1.24 inches on the 5th. The total snowfall of ten inches was the most in April since 1907, and occurred on seven different days. The largest daily fall was seven inches on the 9th and this is the greatest on an April day since April 12, 1894 when twelve inches were recorded.

There was much less relative humidity than usual, less than the average cloudiness and rather more sunshine than is customary. The mean wind velocity of 18.9 miles per hour was 1.5 miles below the normal for the month, while the maximum velocity was 53 miles per hour from the northeast on the 20th. The prevailing wind direction was west. An aurora was observed on the night of the 18th.—L. A. Wells of Blue Hill Observatory.

CAPITULATES TO THE REBELS

Diaz Announces His Intention to Resign Presidency

WHEN PEACE IS RESTORED

Will Make Sure That His Acceptance of Madero's Ultimatum Will Not Be Followed by Anarchy—Rebel Army's March on Capital Halted When President's Decision Becomes Known —Washington Feels Relieved

Mexico City, May 8.—President Diaz last night issued a manifesto to the people of Mexico, declaring his intention to resign the presidency as soon as peace is restored.

In this manner the president has virtually acceded to the demands of Francisco I. Madero that he make announcement of such intention. Madero had given the order on Saturday for the rebel forces to retire from the border and march upon Mexico City. The manifesto has resulted in countermanding the order.

As to when peace is actually restored Diaz reserves the right to be the judge. In the words of the manifesto, it will be "when, according to the dictates of my conscience, I am sure that my resignation will not be followed by anarchy."

The president declares that his determination to relinquish the presidency at this time is prompted solely by a desire to conserve the best interests of his country.

The president makes it clear that he does not propose to abandon the presidency while his country is at war, and that he will not do so at any time under compulsion.

President Diaz' manifesto was made public this morning. The promise of the president is made to the people of Mexico and its receipt by revolutionists will be incidental.

It ws at a cabinet meeting Sunday afternoon that Diaz announced to his ministers his decision. For two hours and a half they discussed the terms of the manifesto and at the conclusion of the meeting there remained nothing to do but secure its official promulgation.

Only in a general way does the manifesto refer to the revolution. The government's position is that Diaz could not have made a public statement at an earlier moment and it is indicated that the revolutionists failed to observe the amenities of the peace negotiations by making them public. Officially, it is said that Madero and his advisers were guilty of betraying an agreement by injecting into the conference either secretly or openly the question of the president's resignation. It is declared that it had been agreed in confidence that this point should not be permitted to become an issue.

Proffering the declaration of his willingness to retire, the president discusses the political conditions of the country and the efforts that have been made by the government to establish peace. He shows that the government wishes to confirm the demand of the public in so far as it is wise and for the best interests of the country.

Events leading to the beginning of negotiations for peace are taken up and it is indicated that the government is disposed to take into consideration proposals the revolutionists have to make.

Messrs. Braniff and Obregon, go-betweens in the recent negotiations, will probably return to Mexico City today with Judge Carbajal, the federal envoy. They made several efforts to persuade Madero and his followers to recede from their attitude on the resignation of Diaz, but without result.

Rebel Advance Stopped

El Paso, Tex., May 8.—When General Madero heard of the dispatch from Mexico City concerning President Diaz' resignation, he immediately gave orders to have troops stop marching. Couriers were sent ahead to halt the advance guard.

"I naturally am very glad to hear that President Diaz has made the announcement," said Madero. "I am going to send a telegram to him at once congratulating him on his patriotism, for it certainly was an act that required the highest kind of personal sacrifice and patriotism."

Washington Feels Relieved

Washington, May 8.—President Taft and official Washington generally quickly learned of the sudden change in the Mexican situation, namely, the announcement by Diaz that he would resign in the interest of peace.

The news of the withdrawal of insurrectionary forces from a position so close to the American towns as to constitute a constant source of friction and a menace to the good feeling between the two peoples was viewed here with relief, and the later announcement from Mexico of the president's self-effacement to effect tranquility in his troubled country was in line with the Washington administration's hopes and Mexican Ambassador Zamacona's recent prediction that peace soon would be restored.

Cannon Sees Trouble In Store For Insurgent Republicans

Washington, May 8.—Bitterly attacking the free list bill and also the Canadian reciprocity agreement, former Speaker Cannon sharply criticized President Taft because of the Canadian agreement.

"I confess that I lost my temper over the Canadian reciprocity bill," said Cannon. "It made me angry to sit here and hear the cries of the Democrats and the demagogues who uttered hysterical shrieks about the cheaper cost of living.

"But we cannot afford to forsake our principles just because a few of our old party (the insurgents) have strayed off. When they have paid the penalty, as they will pay the penalty between now and 1912, they will find the doors open for all those who want to come back to the good old economic regime of the Republican party."

THOUSANDS OE MEN FIGHT FOREST FIRES

Serious Blazes In Several Districts of New England

Boston, May 8.—Treacherous forest fires, which threatened the existence of towns, called out thousands of fighters to save their homes, burned over hundreds of acres of valuable timber lands loaded with dressed and undressed lumber, overcame several fighters and destroyed several buildings, raged throughout New England yesterday and far into the night.

From Long pond on Cape Cod, near Chatham, to Biddeford and Sanford, Me., glowing fields and a dense pall of smoke hanging over the landscape gave evidence of the destruction.

People in these three places slept little last night. Although the fires were practically under control, large forces of men were kept out to watch them, lest, taking new starts during the night, the fires might sweep unawares to the edges of the dwelling houses and destroy the towns.

Bank Handles Millions In Careless Manner to Deceive Thieves

Brockton, Mass., May 8.—In order to avoid suspicion officials of the Home National bank apparently carelessly tossed bundles of papers and books into an express wagon in front of the bank and carted them to the new building on School street.

Despite the fact that Patrolman Reilly occupied a seat beside the driver and kept one hand in his pocket during the ride, no one suspected that in those bundles was more than $2,000,000 in cash and securities.

If there was anyone who had evil intentions he was thrown off his guard by the careless manner in which the bundles were thrown into the wagon.

End of Year of Mourning For the Death of King Edward

London, May 8.—The court mourning for King Edward ended on the first anniversay of the death of the monarch. The occasion was commemorated with a memorial service at Windsor. The accession of King George was celebrated with the customary naval and military salutes and the dressing of the warships.

The coronation year season, which it is expected will be the most brilliant in British history, opened today, when King George attended the Newmarket races for the first time since his accession. From now on the court will be gay.

LEPER HURRIED FROM BOSTON

Pawtucket Lad Suffered With Disease Four Years

A PUBLIC SCHOOL ATTENDANT

Utter Isolation Except From Persons Similarly Afflicted Awaits Young Son of Wealthy Mill Superintendent —Nature of Disease Revealed After Diagnosis by Experts In Massachusetts General Hospital

Boston, May 8.—Four years a sufferer from leprosy, yet in daily attendance at a public school during all that time, Harry Sheridan, the 15-year-old Pawtucket, R. I., schoolboy whose examination by experts at the Massachusetts general hospital revealed the true nature of his dread disease, now faces the fate of his kind.

Virtually a prisoner in the home of his wealthy parents, about which policemen detailed from the Pawtucket force stand guard, the fact of his having been allowed to return to that city at all has aroused the ire of Dr. Richards, the Pawtucket city physician, who is at a loss what to do.

Although the Massachusetts experts who examined the boy knew that he was to be returned to Pawtucket, the fact that he had been came as news to them. As a matter of fact the boy was taken home by his father, Edward P. Sheridan, who is superintendent of the Lumb knitting mills, and a man of considerable prominence in Pawtucket.

Either Penikese, the island of the living dead, down in Buzzards bay, on which Massachusetts maintains a camp for her leper exiles, or Manila, where the government camp is, will be the boy's future home.

As soon as Dr. Richards learned that the boy, though adjudged a leper, was actually back in his home he notified the police. Officers were sent out to the Sheridan home with orders to keep the boy from leaving the premises, or any outsider from approaching them.

It is claimed by Richards and other Pawtucket physicians that no danger of contagion menaces the other pupils of the Darlington school—more than 500 in all—where young Sheridan was a seventh grade pupil, but nevertheless the parents of the other pupils are nearly franticwith fear. The school has been closed since Thursday, when the nature of Sherman's disease was discovered.

The outward symptoms on the boy's body are a swelling of the head, the face and particularly the lips; of the lower limbs, and a marked redness of the parts affected.

The boy's father came to the Massachusetts general hospital Saturday and the boy was turned over to him. It is not known how he and his son returned to Pawtucket, but it is probable the journey was made in Sheridan's automobile.

The Sheridan home is in Darlington, one of Pawtucket's wealthy residential sections. The house is already a marked one among its neighbors; a place where a leper lives, and therefore to be shunned.

Four other boys round out the Sheridan family. Two of these are older and two are younger than the afflicted brother, the two younger having also been enrolled as pupils in the Darlington school.

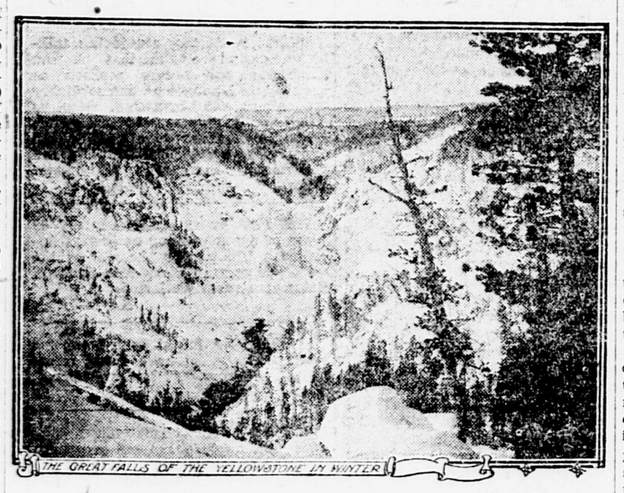
The Yellowstone National Park in Winter

An Aspect of Nature's Wonderland That Few Ever See



THE GREAT FALLS OF THE YELLOWSTONE IN WINTER

THE polar regions are hardly less accessible than the Yellowstone National park—the greatest playground of the American people—is in winter. This is scarcely conceivable, for in summer 40,000 visitors now find it one of the easiest places to reach and to travel through.

Lieut. Frederick Schwatka made an attempt to explore the park in January nearly 25 years ago. He had returned not long before from an expedition in search of Sir John Franklin's party that had perished in the arctic regions. Before that he had been on a 3,000-mile sledge journey in the frozen north and had suffered terrible hardships. On his trip into the Yellowstone Park Lieutenant Schwatka was accompanied by a large, well-organized party. They traveled on Norwegian skis and Canadian web snowshoes; but the snow was so light that it would not support them, and their toboggans were exceedingly difficult to draw. It took them three days to cover 20 miles. Lieutenant Schwatka, inured as he was to such hardships, fell ill and was unable to proceed. He and all the rest of the party but four of the sturdiest men turned back. The photographer, F. J. Haynes; Edward Wilson, a government scout, and two others kept on. It took them 29 days to make the circuit of the park, 200 miles. The thermometer ranged between 40 and 50 degrees below zero most of the time, and the adventure nearly cost them their lives.

Winter Population of the Playground.

The total winter population of the park is usually between four and five hundred people. These include three troops of cavalry. The cavalry can use their horses only during the summer months. During the winter they are stabled at Fort Yellowstone. The stage horses are driven down to the lowlands, miles away, when the tourist season is over, and graze in the sheltered valleys there until the snows melt.

In the great hotels that are thronged during the tourist season live only the caretakers, generally two in each place, a man and his wife. The first blizzard isolates from the world outside everybody in this great national domain that has an area of 3,312 square miles. No valley within its limit has an elevation of less than 6,000 feet, while many of the mountain peaks within and near the park rise from 10,000 to 14,000 feet above sea level. Yellowstone lake, 15 by 20 miles in size, is the largest body of water in America at that altitude, 7,741 feet above the sea. On the summit of the range, a few miles south of Yellowstone lake, is Two Ocean pond, a small lake with two outlets, one into the Atlantic through the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers, the other into the Pacific through the Snake river, a branch of the Columbia. The Grand canyon of the Yellowstone, ten miles long, has an average depth of 1,200 feet, and is the most brilliantly colored landscape in existence. But in winter everything is blanketed with snow eight to ten feet deep. All is ice-bound except the more than half a hundred great geysers that throw their columns of boiling water hundreds of feet in the air, almost as little seen by humankind as when they began their spoutings ages ago.

From December to March the enforced dwellers in the park are nearly as much cut off from the world as though they were penned in by the polar ice. Of course the telephone and the telegraph bring them scraps of news from the outer world, but the only way of getting about is on snowshoes or skis. Even then the distances between the places where the people live are so great and the ways so dangerous that few venture forth. Only the government scouts, whose duty it is to look after the wild life in the park and see that it is not molested by poachers, get out at all. The rest of the people there are like the bears—they hibernate until spring. An ample supply of fuel and provisions is laid in before the first snowstorms begin to sweep over the Continental divide, and there is little to do until the sun swings northward and the snows melt.

Building a Hotel Amid Arctic Temperature.

Despite the arctic rigors of this region, however, 250 men have been fighting the cold there this winter completing the fifth of the big hotels that are the halting places of tourists in this summer playground that belongs to the people of the United States. The first order prepared on the kitchen ranges of this new hostelry which stands on the brink of the great precipice down which roars endlessly the mighty cataract of the Yellowstone, was for nails. Nails big and little, brads and spikes, ten-pennies and shingles, had to be heated on the cookstoves before the carpenters could handle them. The reason for this haste was that the new hotel had to be finished in time for the summer season, when the park is in its brief period of verdant glory.

More people will go to the Yellowstone National Park this year than ever before. In 1872, when the federal government dedicated it "as a public park or pleasure ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people," probably not more than a thousand persons a year were visiting it In the next twenty-three years the number of visitors climbed slowly to about 5,000 annually. In 1895, the authorities began counting the persons who entered the park, and complete records have been kept ever since. There were 5,438 visitors in 1895. Ten years later the number had risen to 26,188. In 1906, it dropped to 17,172. The next year it fell off nearly a thousand. In 1908 the total was 18,748. Then came the most remarkable increase in visitors that the park has ever known. In 1909 there were nearly twice as many (32,545) as the year before. This was principally due to the opening of a new railroad gateway to the park—at Yellowstone, Mont.—which made it much easier of access.

A Bit of E. H. Harriman's Wizardry.

This came about through a visit that the late E. H. Harriman made to the park in the summer of 1904. He was so impressed by the wonders of the park that he immediately ordered the location and construction of a branch from the Oregon Short Line, a part of the Union Pacific system, to the western border of the park. This road, from Idaho Falls to Yellowstone, Montana, 20 miles from the lower Geyser basin, was finished November 12, 1907, and was opened for traffic the following June. It is 107 miles long and cost nearly $2,000,000. Its construction called into play the greatest energy and skill in the science of railroad building.

Owing to the deep snows and severe winters work could be carried on during only about four months of the year. But in that brief season, a vast army of men and machines toiled night and day. The giant mountain barriers with their deep valleys in between had to be conquered. That part of the earth where the rails ran had to be remodeled so as to secure the safest and easiest grades. Probably no railway, where so many obstacles had to be overcome, ever was built in so short a time. But the largely increased number of visitors to the park has proved that the new line is fully appreciated. Of the more than 40,000 who entered the park last year nearly half went by this new western gateway that Mr. Harriman created.

The government scouts who are guardians of the wild creatures are about the only ones who ever see much of the winter beauties of the park. Those who have been there any length of time have learned much that is new about the habits of the animals that abound there, although they are chiefly concerned in keeping poachers out of the park. There are fewer of these now than there used to be, because heavier penalties have been laid by the government on those who are caught.

The few that do venture in the park mostly come in winter. Then there is less chance of being detected, but more risk of losing their lives in the cold and snow. One thing more than all others tempts them—the buffalo. Unscrupulous taxidermists will pay the weight in silver for a buffalo head nowadays, for these heads are practically unattainable by legitimate means. The rest of the wild creatures that make their homes in the park are seldom molested.

It has been 17 years since one of these poachers after buffalo has been caught, but he did so much damage before he was arrested that it has taken a long time to make up for it.

Early in March, 1894, a party was organized at Fort Yellowstone for the purpose of visiting the winter ranges of the game to ascertain the exact number of buffalo that still existed and to photograph them. The party traveled on Norwegian snowshoes, with packs of sleeping bags, provisions and camera, directly to Hayden valley via Norris and the Grand canyon. They found 81 buffalo in the valley, together with numerous small groups of elk aggregating more than 300.

In a secluded spot toward the end of the second day's march they discovered the cache of a poacher. They were much surprised at this, as they had had no idea that there was any one in the park killing game. The cache consisted of a canvas tepee, sleeping bag, provisions and toboggan, and they found six buffalo heads suspended in a tree nearby. A trace of fire in the tepee led the scouts to believe that the poacher was not far away. To capture him was the next move. It had been snowing constantly all the morning, and all the snowshoe tracks leading from camp were entirely obliterated. The scouts separated and went in different directions.

When five miles from camp one of them heard a half dozen rifle shots in rapid succession. Hastening through the timber in that direction, he came upon an opening in the forest and saw the poacher. He had driven six of the buffalo into the deep snow and had slaughtered the entire band. The scout was alone and armed only with a revolver. Poachers of this kind are desperate men. They know that the arm of the federal government is long and its grip sure once it seizes them. Therefore they fight to the last. No desperado is more reckless of his life. The scout knew this, but did not hesitate for a moment. It was still snowing hard, and neither the poacher nor his dog noticed the scout's approach. The scout was within 20 feet of the poacher and had him covered with his revolver before he told him to throw up his hands. A moment more, and he was disarmed. Then he was handcuffed and taken to the guardhouse at Fort Yellowstone. He had killed about one-eighth of all the buffalo in the park.

Elks and Bears Very Comfortable in the "Big Cold."

There are about 250 buffalo in the park now. To protect them more effectually against poachers about 200 are kept in an inclosure and have become partly domesticated. The remainder run wild in the country to the east of the Yellowstone lake.

Fully 5,000 elk winter in the foothills of Mount Washburn, on Specimen ridge, along the east fork of the Yellowstone and along the main stream of that river clear to the base of Mount Evarts. During the winter the elk live in "yards"—places 500 to 1,000 feet in diameter, where they keep the snow trodden down. The bull elks patrol these "yards" at night so as to keep away the mountain lions and other animals that prey upon them.

The elks shed their horns about the first of March, and until they grow out again lead a quiet life so that their sprouting horns will not be injured. At the time when they shed their horns they are still herded together, and now and then a scout will run across some secluded spot in the primeval wilderness where the ground is covered with two or three score of these great antlers, some of them six or seven feet long. They are allowed to remain where they are, for it is not permitted to take them from the park or even to use them for decorative purposes there. But before the end of the next winter they disappear. The field mice and other small rodents eat them.

The bears that are seen around the hotels in the summer time, stealing garbage or fighting the searchlight when it is turned on them at night, go into winter quarters in November or December and sleep until spring. There are hundreds of them, black, brown and grizzly. They go into caves or hollow logs or under the roots of trees that the snow will cover. There are many natural caves in the park. Sometimes four or five bears will snuggle up to each other in the same cave and sleep the winter away. It is in winter, too, that the cubs are born. When the baby bear comes into the world he is not much bigger than a rat, but he grows and grows in his cave, kept warm by his mother until spring. When he emerges into the light he is a full grown cub, quite able to take care of himself and fight anything of his size.

ARRAIGNMENT DATE NOT SET

District Attorney Says McManigal Will Plead Guilty

DARROW TO HAVE EVIDENCE

Counsel For Defense Starts East, Stopping at San Francisco on the Way to Consult With Labor Leaders —Boston Labor Unions Asked to Contribute to $500,000 Fund For Secretary-Treasurer McNamara

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8.—The district attorney and other officials held a conference on the cases of John J. and James B. McNamara, charged with murder and dynamiting while Leo M. Rappoport, their attorney, was on the way east with a copy of the evidence taken before the grand jury which indicted them.

Attorney Rappaport will consult with Clarence S. Darrow, who is expected here about May 15 to assume his duties as leading counsel for the defense.

District Attorney Fredericks says that the time of the arraignment of Ortie E. McManigal, alleged confessed dynamiter, is not settled, but that "the man undoubtedly will plead guilty."

Attorney Rappaport started eastward by way of San Francisco, where he will talk with labor leaders who declared they had evidence of importance for the defense. He will return here by June 1, the time set for the McNamara brothers to plead.

Meantime Job Harriman of Los Angeles will meet Judge Bordwell, who will hear the trials, and Fredericks, to determine what would be the proper amount of bail to be fixed in the case of John J. McNamara on the charge of dynamiting.

Half Million Defense Fund

Boston, May 8.—John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the Structural Iron Workers' union, awaiting trial at Los Angeles for alleged complicity in dynamiting The Times building in that city, will have a $500,000 defense fund, according to an official notice received by Boston labor leaders.

This communication was in the nature of an appeal for funds to defend McNamara. It came from Frank Duffy, general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, with headquarters in Indianapolis, and was addressed to the Carpenters' District Council of Greater Boston.

There are 6000 union carpenters in this district, with twenty-seven local unions. Dan H. Deegon, secretary of the council, declared that they will all be asked to contribute.

FOOLS BROOKLYN SLEUTHS

But Young Man Disguised as Woman Is Finally Landed

New York, May 8.—Anthony Torgoni, 22, of Brooklyn would have completely misled Detectives Grieco and Donlon but for an accident.

The detectives followed Torgoni to his room, but when they got inside they only found a poor, decrepit old woman in bed, who told them that no Torgoni or other man lived there, and ordered them to get out. The officers searched the room and then left satisfied, though mystified.

On the stairs they met 16-year-old Rosina Niarinelli, for whose abduction Torgoni was wanted. She admitted that she was going to his room to meet Torgoni. So the detectives went back, and after they had induced the "old woman" to get out of bed they found "she" was Tony in an old cap and wig. Torgoni was held in $1500 bail.

BRIEFS

A private dancing party was held at Electa hall Saturday evening.

There is nothing doing tonight by the City Council but several committees have meetings scheduled.

Rev. R. J. Davis is confined to his home by illness but hopes to be out in a day or two.

Insurance adjusters are coming out this afternoon to adjust the loss by the fire in the Wire Fabric Co. at Norfolk Downs Saturday night.

Miss Mary A. Manhire of Albertina street who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. P. J. Geddes of Newark, N. J., has returned.

A few more straw hats made their appearance this morning. A few more warm days will bring out the great army of straws.

Although these days are warm and seasonable we undoubtedly need a good many showers to help along vegetation.

Fruit trees are blossoming out and the white blossoms of the plum, cherry and pear trees look springlike. The air is full of fragrance.

The Ellen H owned by C. P. Curtis, Jr., has been selected by the Boston Yacht club as the challenging boat for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup.

Local florists are preparing to have a large stock of white pinks and other flowers for mothers' day, Sunday May 14, when a white flower is worn in memory of mother.

Thousands of automobiles passed through Quincy Sunday and at one time during the afternoon it was difficult for people on foot to cross Adams street near the academy.

Sunday was a busy day along the shore front and hundreds of yatchtsmen were busy getting their flyers ready to put overboard. Quite a number of the yachts are already in the water.

H. Houghton Schumacher, a member of this year's graduating class of Harvard Divinity school, having satisfied the Committee on Fellowship for New England, has been admitted to the Unitarian ministry.

More than 2000 catalpa trees have been set out in Wakefield by the school children. Something like a 1000 have been distributed in Quincy, 500 by Mr. Sampson of the Quincy school and over 500 by the Daily Ledger.

The Brockton Board of Trade is to be addressed tonight by Alfred W. Donovan of Rockland, president of the New England Boot and Shoe Club, former Mayor John S. Kent, president of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers Association, Walter M. Dunbar president of the Brockton Merchants association, and a member of the Malden Board of Trade. The latter will tell of the achievements of Merchant's week in Malden. Brockton as well as Quincy is getting ready for its annual merchant's week.

APPRENTICES WIN.

The Fore River Apprentices defeated the Glover A. C. at Atlantic Saturday by the score of 6 to 2. Caine, Oliver and Williamson excelled for the winners, while Gertsel and Duggan shone for the losers. This is the fourth consecutive win for the Apprentices.

The Apprentices are without a game for next Saturday and would like to hear from some strong team. Address W. T. Butler, Fore River Ship Co. Dept. J.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Dolly Varden Cake. Cream one teacupful of powdered sugar and half a teacupful of butter, add the whites of three eggs, mix in two teacupfuls of flour with which is sifted three level teaspoons of baking powder and half a teacupful of milk. Flavor with lemon. Make a frosting of the yokes of the eggs beaten with one teacupful of sugar.

English Lemon Pie. Soak one half cup of fine bread crumbs in cold milk to cover. Beat three rounding tablespoonfuls of sugar with two rounding tablespoonfuls of butter, add the beaten yolks of two eggs, the juice of one and the grated yellow rind of two lemons and last the soaked crumbs. Line a plate with good paste and fill. Bake and cover with a meringue made from the whites of two eggs and a quarter cup of powdered sugar. Brown slightly.—Gene Weld.

Hodge Podge. Cut into slices four onions, two carrots, three small turnips, six potatoes, one stick of celery. Add a level tablespoon of rice, season with salt and pepper. Cut one and one-half pounds of lean meat in slices, mix all together and put in a jar, add a pint of water. Cover and bake slowly six hours. Turn out into a deep dish to serve.

Roast Squabs. Dress and tie into shape,and fasten thin slices of bacon over the breasts. Put a little butter into each bird. Roast for 30 or 40 minutes in a hot oven, basting them frequently with melted butter.

Molasses Drop Cakes. One-half cupful of butter, one cupful of molasses one cupful of sugar, one cupful of cold water, one heaping teaspoonful of soda, one quart of flour, salt and ginger to season; beat well, drop in spoonfuls and bake in a quick oven.

Veal a la Bourgeoise. Place a piece of veal weighing three or four pounds in a stewpan with two tablespoons of butter and brown well; add two cupfuls of stock, six small onions and let cook slowly one and one-half hours, basting often. Serve the veal with the vegetables as a garnish, remove all grease from the liquid and make from it a brown gravy which may be served separately or poured over the meat as you prefer.—Alice E. Whitaker.

—We've been waiting patiently for the following court decision to hand down to some of our gum chewing friends and it has come at last. A federal judge has just made a ruling that gum chewing is a badge of illiteracy and further that "it is well known that the gum-chewing community is not, as a class, drawn from the most intelligent and discerning portion of the public. The proof shows that in the city of New York the majority of customers come from the East Side, and is largely composed of ignorant foreigners, many of them unable to speak our language. That such customers may be induced to purchase the gum for the complainant's is more than probable." "The flavor lasts!"—Stoughton Record.

MAKARIA VS NORTHWESTERN

Somerville Boys Taken Into Camp at Quincy

Makaria won very handily from the northwesterns of Somerville at Merrymount park on Saturday by a score of 8 to 5. Up to the end of the 5th, the visitors led by a score of 4 to 0, but a home run with the bases full tied up the score in the fifth and in the eighth, Makaria got 4 more clinching the victory. McKenzie pitched good ball during the first five innings and then Bates went in to hold the opponents down during the remainder of the game. The Chapman brothers appeared in the Makaria lineup for the first time and gave a good account of themselves.

The home team played the best game of the year, having only one error marked against it . Marden pitcher for the Somerville team had Makaria guessing early in the game but begining with the fifth, they touched him up for 7 hits.

The score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Makaria	0	0	0	0	1	3	4	0	—8

QUINCY 23, WAKEFIELD 10.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. Intermediates defeated the Wakefield intermediates at Merrymount park on Saturday by a score of 23 to 10. The home team played the best game of the season making but two errors and getting 14 hits. The visitors played loosely at all times. Estey pitched a good game after he settled down and made 8 strikeouts. Sutermeister started in the box and held his opponents well in hand getting 8 strikeouts. Holmes' home run was a feature of the game.

The summary:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Quincy	1	3	1	8	2	1	5	2	0—23

WOLLASTON GOLF.

F. H. Hoyt of Allston won the final match in the open tournament Saturday defeating Brice S. Evans 5 up and 3 to play. He made 72 after one of the finest exhibitions ever given by an amateur.

In the handicap medal play Richard R. Freeman and John J. Gallagher tied for the gross prize at 85. The prize for the best net score was won by C. S. Bates with a 73.

In the second round for the director's cup of the Wollaston Golf club played Saturday afternoon J. H. Stetson beat L. M. Baxter 1 up, C. M. Hart beat H. B. Driver 1 up, J. H. Churchill beat F. D. Collins 5 and 4, and C. S. Bates beat J. S. Phelps 2 up.

DRIVING CLUB MEET.

Twelve classes were raced at South Weymouth Saturday afternoon at the meet of the Old Colony gentlemen's driving club. The best racing was in class C the first three heats being won by Oswego Boy, a comparatively new horse.

The North Quincy A. A. was victorious in its game with Westville at Ward 6 playgrounds on Saturday by a score of 7 to 4. The home team showed its ability to "clout the ball" getting 13 hits.

Canavan pitched a good game and received good support.

The score by innings:

At Wollaston:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
No. Quincy	2	1	0	0	0	1	2	1	0—7
Westville	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	2	0—4

Batteries—Canavan and ; Bent Richie and Donahue.

ADAMS 3, W. QUINCY 1.

The Adams A. A. defeated the West Quincy team 3 to 1 on Saturday at Ward 3 playgrounds. Greve who was in the box for Adams up to the fifth inning retired because of a sore foot and Knight went in. His record was one to be proud of, 10 strikes out and one hit in 5 innings. There were no sensational plays and Knight's pitching was the principal feature.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
W. Quincy	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—1

Cremo 5¢ CIGAR QUALITY PLUS

BASEBALL STARS DON'T LAST LONG

"Finds" Scintillate Brightly For Awhile, but Go Out Quick.

"JIGGS" DONAHUE AN EXAMPLE

Former Guardian of First Base For White Sox Sprang Into Fame at Once, Then Slumped as Quickly. Steady and Reliable Players Go on Year After Year.

The greater the star the quicker the fall seems to be a cardinal principle in baseball. The good average player goes along year after year, sticking to the same old pace and holding on to his job by steady, grinding work. The star, however, lives up to his name. He shines and flashes and dies out almost in a breath.

There are many who could be named to illustrate the example. Nealon, the Pirate first baseman of three or four years ago, was one. On the coast he bloomed up in a day almost, and the crowds went wild over his sensational play. Then Pittsburg grabbed him up at the highest price ever paid for a minor leaguer, and he rose to his height and fell back into mediocrity in the short space of six months. The Pirates couldn't get rid of him quickly enough, and you never hear of him as a ball player after that.

"Jiggs" Donahue, once of the Chicago Sox, is another. After playing average ball for several seasons in the minors he suddenly sprang into fame as a first sacker who "ate 'em up." So Comiskey grabbed him off, and he lasted for a very few years. In the world series of 1906 his work was the sensation against the Cubs. That was the supreme time of his baseball life. The following season he fell off badly, and an average steady going fellow, Isbell, supplanted him. "Jiggs" was given a tryout this spring by the Sox and was recently released.

Take the steady fellows, who can generally be relied on in pinches. There are scores of them, and their careers always are long and honorable in the majors. Stovall of Cleveland, Crawford of the Tigers, Dougherty of the Sox, Schulte of the Cubs, Stahl of the Red Sox and Wallace of the Browns are examples. They have seen many stars come and go, but are clinging to their positions and will keep them for years to come in all probability.

Sometimes men of this type are compelled to sit on the bench for awhile, while one of the "comets" takes his place. But you find them back again at the old stand before they have been missed long. They fall right back, and things go along smoother, although not perhaps as sensationally.

Change of environment works wonders with pitchers as a rule. There is such a thing as being too long with one team. It is also true that some twirlers can work better with one team than with another. This was especially true with Overall. He was a wonderful pitcher when with Cincinnati, but didn't like his surroundings. Right when he joined the Cubs he fell into his stride, and he was responsible for a number of victories for them.

Clif Curtis of the Boston Nationals is another example. Clif pitched for Milwaukee for a long time. He was regarded as a fair man, but the Brewer fans didn't care much for him. The reason was he couldn't play his game in Milwaukee. To make a long story short, the Doves got hold of him last year, and the transformation was wonderful. He copped one game in Chicago in a manner that left no doubt of his ability to befuddle champions. He looked about as good as any twirler on Boston's staff.

Pitchers are not the only players who profit by changes. There is Delehanty, who now is with Detroit. He plays with much more ambition and life than when he was with Washington. Bresnahan has done yeoman service since leaving the New York Giants and joining the St. Louis Cardinals.

BARGER HAS HIS OWN IDEAS.

Insists He Must Cover First When Baseman Is Fielding Bunt.

Pitcher Cy Barger of Brooklyn has opinions of his own regarding inside baseball, especially that relating to fielding sacrifice bunts. He says the second baseman ought never to cover the initial bag when the first sacker is fielding the bunt. The second baseman, in his opinion, should be free to cover his position, while the pitcher should be there to make the put-out at first. The only reason why all teams let their second baseman cover, according to Cy, is because one club started it and the rest follow suit. He gives orders that he will do the covering whenever he pitches and guarantees that he will never miss a play. He is a quick starter for the bag and says it is all in that start.

Steinfeldt Is Not So Old.

While termed an old timer, Harry Steinfeldt, who was recently released by the Cubs to St. Paul, is far from a ripe age. He was born in St. Louis, Sept. 29, 1876; hence he has yet to reach his thirty-fifth birthday. On the other hand, Wagner was thirty-seven on Feb. 24 last, and the Teuton is not ready to step out.

CLOSES TENTH YEAR WITH A BANQUET

Wollaston Glee Club Holds its Annual Feast in Unitarian Church

Four Reasons Why Club has been a Great Success

The annual banquet of the Wollaston Glee club, which closed the tenth successful season of the club, took place in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Monday evening. The event was a full dress affair and many attractive costumes were in evidence by the ladies.

The regular and associate members of the club sat down to the following menu shortly after seven o'clock.

Vegetable soup
Roast lamb Mint sauce
Green peas
Mashed potatoes Cold slaw
Spagetti, Italian style
Olives Radishes
Hot rolls
Ice cream Cakes
Coffee

The menu was served under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Raymond of East Somerville and was pronounced a decided success.

The evening's program opened with a welcome from the president, Herbert J. Gurney. He urged a large increase in the associate membership and spoke with regret of the absence of the club's conductor Mr. Crowley, who on account of sickness in the family was unable to be present.

F. K. Linscott secretary of the club responded in a most happy vein with a report that follows in part.

The past year of the Glee club has been marked by a blaze of glory. This, of course, has been equally true of each previous year of the clubs existence but that of the year just passed has been of higher candle power than any previous year.

Four different explanations have been made for this marked success. The first is by the first tenors who insist that the solid phalanx of exeprienced singers in the first tenor division has made failure impossible. The second, given by the second tenors, is that they have not done half as badly as they might have.

The baritones furnish the third explanation which is that they are the centre around which all else turns and if they are true, which they have been, all other parts of the machinery must run smoothly.

The second bass, with that becoming modesty, always to be found in professional singers of wide experience, say nothing but when you ask the cause of the year's success, with a toss of the head and a twinkle of the eye, they allow you to read in their mind their explanation which is that the second bass is the foundation of a glee club.

In the case of the Wollaston Glee club it is a foundation on solid rock in accordance with the Biblical teaching. The friends of the club are permitted to choose the explanation that appeals to them as the most reasonable.

Throughout the year from the 31st of October to the 15th of March with few exceptions weekly rehearsals have been held by the club under direction of Mr. Crowley.

Two concerts have been given. The first on December 13, notwithstanding the unlucky date was a howling success. The second concert on March 15 is of so recent date that the memory of club members and their friends needs no refreshing. The club at present numbers as active members twenty-nine, with seventy-five associate members.

Our success in the past, while we may be justified in pausing for a moment to review it, should be but an incentive to further effort for greater success in years to come.

The ten years history of our club is a legacy that has been entrusted to us to carry on to the future and even if our personal or selfish interest fail to inspire us to better work there should be no lack of inspiration when we consider what the club is, what it has done, the progress it has already made and the opportunity that lies in the future.

The report of Dr. E. R. Johnson the treasurer showed a respectable balance on hand an unusual feature.

Mr. Gurney then called for "the tall sycamore from Third hill" to which Frederick H. Bishop responded.

Mr. Bishop referred to his being called upon to speak as a habit left over from previous years. He urged the utmost enthusiasm in making the most of the results of the last year which he considered a turning point in the musical and financial history of the club.

During the evening selections by a quartet of club members consisting of Arthur F. Capen, Irving L. Shaw, Charles M. Kempton and George A. Smith were enjoyed. The numbers included "Juanita," "Don't yea cry ma honey" and "Two flies."

Undr direction of Frederick H. Bishop the club rendered several compositions in an effective manner. They included "March of the men of Harlech" by Brewer, "Just being happy" by Jacobsen, "The City Choir" by Parks and the "Soldiers' farewell."

Several regular and associate members were called upon to respond briefly and a solo entitled "Mona" was most acceptably rendered by A. L. Hayden.

A color scheme of pansies and pinks formed the table decorations making an effect most pleasing and dainty.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Hogue, Mr. Arthur F. Capen, Mrs. H. A. Hogue, Miss Ruth A. Pease, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot A. Seiders, Dr. and Mrs. A. Percival Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hayden, Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Abele, Mr. F. W. Crane, Mr. S. B. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs Charles McL. Kempton, Mr. and Mrs. Chester G. Wiley Miss E. A. Arnold, Miss Grace Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, Mrs. S. A. Thompson, Mrs. Francis A. Dalrymple, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Moulton, Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gurney, Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Linscott, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith, Miss Alice S. Cifre, Mr. Henry M. Dean, Jr., Mrs. Willard E. Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Blake.

GOT HIS MONEY BACK.

Monday Inspector McKay accompanied Charles Fuller to Boston and a visit was made to the sales stable where Mr. Fuller had purchased the horse, which turned out to have been stolen from Brookline. Mr. Fuller was looking for the $185 which he paid for the animal which he bought in good faith.

Accompanied by a Boston officer Mr. Fuller and Inspector McKay called on the proprietor of the sales stable and after some argument the money was refunded.

OLD COIN.

A relic of the revolutionary war was unearthed Monday on the farm of Court Officer W. M. Marden at Hanson. Mr. Marden was exercising his muscles digging up an asparagus bed when he unearthed a coin that was probably brought to America by some of King Georges red coats during the revolutionary period.

The coin is an English half-penny and bears the date of 1773. It also has the head of King George III.

A POPULAR SHOW.

The Orpheum was filled to its full capacity Monday evening with an appreciative audience who all agree that this week's bill was the best yet. Previett & Merrill in their illusion act held the audience spell bound by their work and were well repaid with applause at the end of their act. Terese Miller was a big hit with her stories and her songs. Bill Jones comedy act was a screamer. Bill told some good stories and had the audience with him from start to finish. Tom Murray sang Joe Daly's latest song, "Arizona Mary" beautifully illustrated the moving pictures were the best seen here. Five big reels with plenty of western dramatic and comedy. If you want to see a good show do not fail to see this one.

MISS STONE TO SPEAK.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary to Armenia who was captured by brigands and was ransomed by the United States several years ago, will speak in Bethany chapel Thursday evening at 7.30 under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Stone is a most interesting speaker and her experiences have been such that no one could fail to gain much from her address. The public is invited to attend.

BOY DROWNED.

Verdun Sylvester Gubian of Hyde Park was drowned while canoeing on the Neponset river Monday afternoon. He was accompanied by Philip C. Bowie who was able to swim to a point of safety when the canoe was overturned. The Gubian boy was but a few feet from the bank and his companion thought he could swim.

SUPERIOR COURT.

5276. Old Colony Street Railway Co. vs. Mrs. S. Louise Thomas and Hiram W. Phillips both of Quincy. A petition to determine title to a certain right of way in Quincy. Jury on view. Cases tried together.

—Lewis Nixon, shipbuilder, claims that "if we lose our spirit," through ceasing to prepare for war, "we shall sink to the level of China." Therefore he insists that we stop talking about disarmament and proceed to make more fighting ships. He may be right. Possibly the people would not wear clothes if they were not constantly kept interested in the changes of fashions. And maybe they would starve to death if new foods were not held alluringly before them all the time.—Worcester Telegraph.

PARISH MEETING FIRST CHURCH

Resignation of Pastor Accepted Church To Gild Dome

There was a representative gathering at the special parish meeting of the First Congregational society in First church chapel Monday night. The parish meetings of this society are conducted in the good old way of a hundred years ago, similar to the proceedings of a town meeting, that is a warrant is posted for the meeting in the church vestibule three weeks before the meeting and the warrant is read at the meeting and a moderator elected to conduct the business.

John Brooks Keyes, clerk, read the warrant and John Q. A. Field who has served for several years as moderator was again selected to preside.

The first business taken up was the matter of loaning the church silver to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston to be exhibited this summer with other silver from old New England churches. On motion of Brooks Adams it was voted to loan the pieces of silver of the 17th and 18th century.

The committee of five selected at the annual meeting to consider the letter of resignation from Rev. E. C. Butler, reported that after various meetings and consultation with Mr. Butler, it recommended that the resignation be accepted to take effect March 1912 and that Mr. Butler become pastor emeritus at that time. In September of this year candidates would be asked to preach with a view to selecting a pastor.

It was recommended that the committee on repairing the church tower and improving the grounds about the church be enlarged by the addition of Russell C. Low and C. Eaton Pierce. The committee was later again enlarged adding Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs. N. S. Hunting and Miss Georgiana C. Lane, making a total of fifteen. This committee will endeavor to raise the necessary funds for regilding the dome; repairing the tower; fixing up the grounds and also receive subscriptions toward clearing off the church debt preparatory to calling a new pastor next year.

The chapel committee of two was enlarged to five.

Miss Mary Holden was elected to take up the duties next fall of editing the church paper "The Message."

There was considerable discussios and interest shown throughout the meeting, the adjournment being at about ten o'clock.

QUINCY HELPERS.

Quincy is doing its share in making "The World in Boston" a success. Over 200 people from the various parts of the city go in one day each week to do their work as stewards and helpers.

Christ church, Bethany church, First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, Wollaston Baptist, Wollaston Methodist and Atlantic Methodist are Wollaston Methodist, Hall Place Methodist and Atlantic eMthodist are all represented by their full quota and several other churches have a number of stewards representing them. The beauty of the thing is that these people are not only doing this work but are paying for the privilege, a sacrifice of time and money.

SUCCESSFUL PIANIST.

Quincy people who were interested in assisting Alice Eldridge of Rockland to go abroad to continue her piano studies will be glad to hear of her continued success. The Rockland Standard of last week contained the following:

To a former Rockland girl, Miss Alice Eldridge, has fallen a artipcular distinitcon, according to despatches just received from Berlin, Germany. At a gathering comprising the cream of the society that is a part of the American colony she has recently roused the greatest enthusiasm by a piano recital that has stamped her in the estimation of critics as a genius of rare musical ability. Following her triumph last winter in a concert with the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, the Berlin Times criticism of her recent performance reads as follows:

Miss Alice Eldridge, the American pianist, gave last week great joy to her many friends at a delightful musicale. Miss Eldridge did not appear in concert this season, but that did not mean that she has stopped studying and making progress since her concert with the Philharmonic orchestra won her last winter the sympathy of many music lovers and a readily given appreciation from the side of the Berlin press. If the critics, who were present at her concert could have heard how Miss Eldridge achieved at this musicale, Chopin's B moll prelude, Gabriel Faure's Impromptu and the Racokzy March, Liszt's 15th Rhapsody, they would have to state from this performance that this young, much promising pianist makes a very fine progress. Her strength combined with a very fine touch, her musical taste, and a fine understanding supported by a technique that enables her to give the intention of the composers clearly as well as correctly proves a strong pianistic talent and betrays industrious study and made her interpretation especially of the brilliantly played Liszt Rhapsody a great joy for the large audience, that listened with great interest, and showed itself grateful by warm applause.

HOUGHS NECK.

Our appeal to have the streets sprinkled here to lay the heavy dust was not made in vain.

Through the kindness of P. F. O'Brien, Mr. Fosdick has placed a map of Houghs Neck in the post office for public use.

The boats to Peddocks island were well patronized on Sunday.

After May 16, the night of the Associates' cakewalk and dance, the Casino will be used as a skating rink.

John Donnellly of Quincy Point was entertained by Miss Alice Corcoran assisted by two friends.

Mrs. T. C. Holyoke of the Tree Pines will spend a few days with relatives in Brookline.

George Hodgekinson of Germantown entertained a company of young friends at his home Monday evening. A social evening was enjoyed and a collation was served.

Arthur Rockwell has purchased a 20 foot catboat formerly owned by Arthur Holbrook.

At the whist party, Monday evening prizes were awarded to Mrs. Blonquist, Mrs. Stooper, Mrs. Fenner, Mrs. Norteman, Frank Boutilier, Mrs. Medros, Mrs. Ferris and A. Brown.

MAY FESTIVAL.

The annual May festival of the Quincy Point church will be held Wednesday afternoon and evening. The sale will open at 3 o'clock and there may be found cake, candy, aprons and fancy articles and something interesting for children. At 6.30 a supper will be served and at 8 a comedy in two acts, "The Rainbow Kimona" will be given by nine girls under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Newcomb and Mrs. F. E. Drake.

Piano duets will be rendered by Mrs. C. P. Marshall and Miss Helen Lincoln. Punch and ice cream will be on sale during the evening.

POPULARITY CONTEST

New Feature Added to St. John's Bazaar

The second week of the bazaar of St. John's church started in Monday evening with fully as large an attendance as on any evening during the first week. The entertainment Monday evening consisted of music by the orchestra.

On Monday evening a new contest was started which will keep things moving at a lively rate. This contest is to see who the two most popular unmarried ladies of the city are. Any unmarried lady is eligible, and the contest i sbound to be a spirited one.

The two fortunate young ladies to be selected will be given a week's vacation trip this summer.

Now is the time for the young men to boom their young lady friends and it will mean a hustle from now on to the end of the week.

Several additional contests were also inaugurated by the district one table.

TODAY'S COURT.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The principal business of the Queen of the May now-a-days is to get the dust out of the parlor rug.

It is useless to say the unwritten law is not binding, when none of us will wear a straw hat in summer weather if it happens to come before June 1.

The cost of dinner for two at New York's new theatre restaurant, the Folies-Bergere, is put at $21.80. And yet $12 a week wages in the city looks big to the farmer's boy.

The Hoe book sale in New York netted $400,000, but we would not dare offer the second hand book stall $40 for an equal supply of the world's wisdom nuggets.

If anyone suggested building a tariff fence between New England and New York, or up and down the Mississippi, he would be laughed at. Yet why not just as well as cutting off our Canadian market?

Each day brings its proof of the assimilation of foreign peoples in the vast melting pot of American life. Yesterday a Chinaman, Yum Hsiang Tsao of Shanghai won the De Forest prize for oratory at Yale by his oration on "Yale Spirit." Tomorrow, perhaps, this same man will grap the significance of that larger spirit of "The American" and will use his oratory in moulding a more patriotic race in his adopted country.

Now that the First parish is to commence the work of improving its property in regilding the dome and improving the grounds about the church it is up to the city and individuals to get in line and continue the work of civic improvement. The church property is the hub of the city and it is well that it should be in first class condition and attractive. From it should radiate equally attractive streets, buildings and grounds. Property owners should paint their buildings and keep them in repair. A tidy well kept city showing civic pride attracts the attention of those passing through. Quincy is naturally beautiful and the past few years show every indication of an awakening of civic pride. The work of the future should be taken up systematically with expert advice. The people should get together now and outline the work of "a more beautiful Quincy" so that year after year the work will go forward systematically to the end that fifty years hence Quincy will be a beautiful Quincy.

There have been an unusual number of fire alarms this spring and in a greater part of the cases the alarms have been for grass fires for which it was not necessary to call out a half dozen pieces of heavy fire apparatus.

The new auto chemical, which the city has ordered and which should be delivered this month is just the machine needed to cope with such fires and some arrangement should be made so that it would not be necessary to call out the steamer every time the bell strikes.

When the auto arrives and is put into commission it should have a crew of at least half a dozen men to accompany it when called out. It is almost useless to send it to a fire with one man besides the driver as it would be necessary to wait after arrival for men.

It not infrequently happens even now that apparatus arrives at a fire and finds itself handicapped for lack of men. Time and time again has it been necessary for the chief to lend a hand in laying hose on his arrival while waiting for the call men to turn up.

To be of any real value therefore the auto chemical should carry a crew of at least half a dozen men. Of course it would be expensive but good things come high.

JOINT MEMORIAL DAY.

Probably the most significant feature of all the various observance of the fiftieth anniversaries of the great Civil War events is the suggestion that North and South unite in one Memorial Day, when the valor and sacrifice of the Blue and the Gray will receive a simultaneous tribute from one end of the country to the other. By a happy circumstance the Grand Army Memorial Day, May 30, is not coincident with the birth of any great Union commander, or with the occurrence of any battle thus commemorated. The suggestion is that the two sections join in celebrating their heroic dead May 30, and though it will in all probability be a long time before the suggestion is adopted—if indeed it ever is—the very fact that it has been seriously made and particularly that it emanates from a Southern source is cause for gratification.

Some of the Southern States observe the birthday of Jefferson Davis as their memorial day, though Missouri ex-Confederates have for a long time united with the ex-Union soldiers in observing the day—May 30—a date, by the way, which the women of the South are said to have originally selected.

The further the nation gets away from the personality of any individual where sectionalism in any form is likely to be engendered or perpeuated, the better, and for that reason the selection of a wholly impersonal day for the paying of tributes to the brave dead who lost their lives battling for the cause they believed to be the right one is an inspiring suggestion—one which it is hoped will be adopted. With North and South laying garlands upon its heroes' tombs on the same day, the Mason and Dixon line will grow a shade dimmer. It is already fading steadily and the time must come when memorial boundary stones and the dusty tombs of history will be the only means of identifying it— if indeed anybody wishes to identify or commemorate the unhappy division of the States.—Kansas City Journal.

THE UNHAPPY UMPIRE.

The umpire has truly no enviable task. Partisanship on the ball field sometimes quite overrules the sense of fairness and decency characteristic of the average American. The crowd is sometimes so eager for the home team to win that it adversely criticises every decision in favor of the visiting players. The empire who listens to the voice of the grand stand, pro and con, is unfit for his occupation, yet it is hard indeed for mortal flesh and blood to be indifferent and coldly neutral in the crucial inning of a hotly contested game.—Philadelphia Record.

SIGN BOARD SCENERY.

Far in the distance lie the fields,
With rolling meadows in between,
The face of nature smiles so sweet,
And all the earth seems bright and green.

How restful to the traveler's eye
The undulations stretching far,
How fair the view of hill and vale,
Where blue and white rayed asters are.

Yet all these meadows fair and bright,
These fair majestic dreamy hills,
Are covered o'er with sign boards crude
That tell the use of Skinnem's pills.

Where'er the meadow's beauteous blooms,
Are beckoning to the eager eye,
The sign man shuts them rudely off
With glaring tales of Boozem's rye.

The river with its winding shores,
Is given up to Wearpunk shoes,
While in its midst a pretty isle,
Sings praise for several kinds of booze.

And here and there an old time barn,
Of picturesque and quaint design,
Sets forth the merits of a thing
To cure the croup in dogs and swine.

The fences tell where cheapest clothes
And overalls can be obtained,
While rocks and cliffs shriek wildly out
The fate of sinners unordained.

Oh may the advertiser bold,
Who thus defiles the landscape fair,
Go bankrupt ere his life runs out
And live his last days in despair.

The painter with his daubing brush,
Oh may he with the colic squirm,
His guilt is writ in letters bold,
And some bright day the worm will turn.

Some day the advertiser bold
Will have to show the public why,
And painters with their chromos rank,
Will hang their brushes up to dry.

The face of nature will be clean,
Without the use of Slushem's soap,
And in the weary traveler's heart
Will spring the seeds of faith and hope.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, May 5, 1911.

The much advertised horse show in Washington is on the tan bark arena three blocks south of the White House. It started off quite tamely a half an hour after the scheduled time on Thursday the 4th instant at 11 o'clock. General Miles, at one time commander in chief of the army of the United States, headed a procession of a dozen buggies, to two or three of which were attached good horses. The General drove a pair. It is evident that the day of the driving horse is past. The motor cycle, the automobile, the telephone, the aeroplane, to say nothing of the bicycle, have driven him to the second place in speed and in endurance. This result is desirable for all the world and especially for Washington where the abuse of draft horses by negro drivers is more conspicuous than in any other city of the United States. The hard, smooth streets of Washington, the great extent of the Potomac Park and of Rock Creek Park furnish excellent courses for vehicles, but it is unusual now to see a fine pair of horses and an elegant carriage, and when seen they have an ancient and passe appearance. Automobiles of different makes are seen everywhere.

The utility of aeroplanes for defensive and offensive purposes in war is to be given a test this week when C. N. Anderson, one of the best marksmen in America, will ascend to the height of several hundred feet and shoot at glass balls to be thrown by the aviator. Anderson has come to Washington and the test will be made at Bennings track, southeast of the city. A number of sportsmen with army and navy men are taking great interest in the experiment. Five or six Curtiss machines of the latest type will be in the air and Glenn Curtiss himself with other professional aviators will steer them.

There was an interesting session of the Senate Finance Committee this week, and in a discussion concerning the United Shoe Machinery Company of Boston it is alleged that it has all the American shoe manufacturers under its thumb and Senator Bailey of Texas suggested that the question was one of which the Attorney General of the United States rather than the Senate should take cognizance. The Senate Committee was in special session to hear western shoe manufacturers from St. Louis, Grand Rapids, Chicago and Milwaukee, who were protesting against placing their manufactured product on the free list. One witness testified that 45 per cent duty on shoe making machinery made it prohibitive, and yet the royalty charged by the trust for the use of its machines he said was sufficient in less than one year to buy the English machine outright. Representative Weeks of Massachusetts declared on the other hand in a House investigation held simultaneously with that of the Senate, that the shoe machinery was a munificent monopoly inasmuch as it enabled one corporation to lease the machines at a very low rate to American manufacturers. Mr. Weeks used a number of samples of shoes to illustrate his argument against the Democratic measure. Mr. Diffendorfer of Pennsylvania introduced a resolution in the House calling upon the Navy and War departments to furnish Congress information relating to shoe contracts for the army and navy. The inquiry was based upon charges that a single shoe concern has a monopoly to furnish the army and navy and has frozen out other competitors. Congress is giving much attention to investigations. Inquiries into the affairs of the United States Steel Corporation, the American Woolen Company, the American Sugar Refining Company were placed on the list in the House and Senate Committees and will no doubt be an important part of the work of the summer season. Mr. Broussard of Louisiana introduced a resolution to appoint a special committee of three Senators and four Representatives to examine the laws and departmental resolutions governing the methods of appointing diplomats and consuls. The resolution carries twenty five thousand dollars for expenses and empowers the committee to hold sessions in foreign countries, if necessary. Of course, everyone knows that this is for the purpose of a foreign junket for the committee with their wives and daughters and others at the expense of the government. There will be doubtless be other junkets proposed before the extra session is over, and the Democrats who are now in power will probably demonstrate in spite of their professions of honesty and economy, that they can get quite as much on the side from the government in the way of jaunts and junkets and plums and pork as their Republican confreres. There should be an outright appropriation by the government called "The Foreign Travels Bill."

RAIN COMES TO AID OF FIRE FIGHTERS

Thousands of Acres of Timber Lands Are Laid Waste

Boston, May 9.—A heavy rain which started late last night put an end to many of the forest fires which have burned over thousands of acres of valuable timber lands, destroyed dozens of farm buildings and summer places and exacted a toll of two lives.

Tired and worn out from their long struggle with the flames, hundreds of men who had fought forest fires from the Canadian border to Cape Cod went to bed feeling secure last night for the first time in several days.

Masachusetts alone gave over 10,000 acres of her best timber lands and thousands of dollars' worth of buildings to the flames. Maine contributed several thousand acres of timber lands and but for the rain last night would have yielded hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of lumber to the wasteful element.

All day yesterday hundreds of men fought to save towns and cities from the threatening fires.

FRANCE GETS WARNING

Germany Thinks Danger Likely to Follow the Occupation of Fez

Berlin, May 9.—Germany has warned France of the dangerous consequences which would be likely to follow the occupation of Fez by French troops. Further than this the government has taken no step, though watching developments in Morocco very closely.

There is no truth in the rumor that Germany had decided to send three cruisers to Moroccan waters in order to display the flag at Casablanca, Rabat, Mogador and El-Araish.

In view of the hint from Berlin, it is believed here that the French flying column from the southwest which has been hurrying to the relief of Fez will be halted outside the capital.

KILLING ON BATTLESHIP

Negro Mess Attendant Shoots Another on the Nebraska

Boston, May 9.—Alexander Allen, a negro mess attendant, was shot dead by a fellow negro mess attendant, James Beeks, in the junior officers' quarters on board the battleship Nebraska, which is in drydock at the navy yard here. The affair is said to have been the outcome of a long-standing quarrel.

Allen and Beeks had had several fights before and invariably the latter was worsted. As Allen is the smaller man this is believed to have angered Beeks until he had decided to shoot the other.

Five shots were fired in such quick succession that the other attendants who were near had no chance to interfere. All of the bullets took effect within a few inches of the heart and the victim died before he could be removed to the ship's sick bay. Beeks was locked up.

Allen was 21 years old and enlisted in the navy from Brooklyn. Beeks is 22 years old and enlisted from Atlanta.

INDEPENDENTS INCLUDED

House to Advocate Thorough Investigation of Sugar Business

Washington, May 9.—Investigation of the entire sugar industry in the United States was authorized by the house committee on rules. The committee reported in an amended form the resolution introduced last week by Representative Hardwick. The Hardwick resolution called for an investigation of the American Sugar Refining company.

As the resolution was reported to the house yesterday it calls for an investigation of the independents as well as trust organizations and the relations of every company with other sugar refinery companies. It is believed that there will be no difficulty in having the resolution pass the house. it does not require action by the senate, so that the investigation probably will be under way in a fortnight.

BRINGS NEW TALES FROM SOUTH AFRICA

How Caswell Killed a Cheetah While Porter Held Her

New York, May 9.—Colonel John Caswell, chief of ordnance of the general staff, Massachusetts national guard, arrived here by the steamship Celtic with a fund of South African hunting tales which were not to be put in the shade by even the name of his head native porter, "Oh So Dark." He also brought with him eighty-eight specimens of big game for the Agassiz museum at Harvard.

The colonel tells how, during one of his hunting beats, he was training a cheetah cub, when the mother sprang at him and pinned him down by one leg. Caswell had no rifle, which reposed in the hands of the trusty Oh So Dark. He yelled for help and Oh So Dark, quick to grasp the essentials of the situation, seized the cheetah by the tail with one hand, thus holding her rigid, while with the other he courteously extended the needed rifle to his master.

Aiming with precision, the colonel killed the cheetah with one shot, taking care not to wound Oh So Dark at the other end of the target. His leg was badly torn.

Peace Society Establishes Permanent Headquarters In Washington

Washington, May 9.—Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, general secretary of the American Peace society, the oldest organization of its kind in the country, has established the society in permanent headquarters in Washington, abandoning the office maintained in Boston for seventy-four years. All of the general business of the organization will be transacted from the national capital. An active campaign will be carried on for the spreading of the doctrine of universal peace.

The main object for moving the headquarters of the organization to Washington was to get it where direct influence could be brought on public officials, members of congress and foreigners.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION

Auto Parade Talked of for Merchants Week

The meeting of the Merchants branch of the Board of Trade called for Monday evening did not materialize, the meeting was called for 8.30 P. M. the idea being that members could come to the meeting after the stores had been closed.

President Crane, Secretary Sandberg and Financial Secretary Foy reported and waited until 9 o'clock when they decided not to wait longer. Shortly after they departed other two members appeared on the scene but it was too late.

There was but little business to transact as practically everything had been done at the special meeting last week. Everything now is Merchants week and the merchants intend to make it more of a success than was last year. For this week prices will be cut deep and the careful buyer will do well to read carefully the advertising magazine that is to be issued just previous to Merchants' week.

For an attraction there will be band concerts ever evening and a firemen's parade on one day of the week. It is also possible that there will be a parade of automobile in which every resident of Quincy who owns an automobile will be asked to enter. One of the features of the Merchants week in a suburban city last week was an automobile parade. Owners of cars vied with each other in the decorations of their cars and it proved an attraction for thousands from out of town.

AN APPRECIATION.

Editors Daily Ledger:

In reference to the resignation and near departure of Dr. E. N. Hardy, an incident is brought to mind, which, I think is worthy of mention.

A terrible thing had happened—collision at a railway crossing, resulting in the death of two young men, one of whom was the only son of worthy and respected parents, residing in this neighborhood.

The sad tidings had been telegraphed to the home, and my first thought was to hasten there, and offer what comfort I could, to the grief-stricken parents, in their terrible hour of sorrow. I had almost reached the entrance, but stopped on the sidewalk. What words would be adequate with which to enter the presence of such unspeakable grief?

While I hesitated, a gentleman come hurrying up the street. "It is true then," he said "true of the accident?" It was Dr. Hardy of Bethany church and gladly I stepped aside to let him enter, one so much better fitted than I to minister comfort to the bereaved family at such a time.

Only a rumor! he did not know for sure, but there he was right on the spot, to weep with those that wept, to carry the Master's message of consolation and love, that it might be, even the presence of their pastor would touch again the keynote of hope, which had well nigh been crushed out by the sudden and overwhelming sorrow.

Again, and more recently a sad bereavement came to that home. In the cold embrace of Death lay one who was near and dear. In vain did they listen for the sound of a voice that was still and long for the touch of a vanished hand.

Again Dr. Hardy, in spiritual eloquence, endeavoured to lift the drooping hearts of the mourners, recalling incidents in the life of the departed one, the noble efforts of his early manhood inspired by the memory of a beloved mother, far away at the old home in Wales, with other remarks alike pathetic and touching, and again referring to the blessed resurrection hope, in such a way as will long remain in the memory of some who heard it.

And it surely seemed as if Heaven was in unison with the inspired words of the pastor, when, later, after a day of gloom and dropping rain, the nearly setting sun broke from beneath the clouds, the beautiful rays of celestial light filling the cemetery and enveloping the casket as it was lowered into the tomb.

And it shall come to pass, that, at evening time it shall be light. Zech. 14-7.

God bless Dr. Hardy! God bless our ministers! what should we do without them.

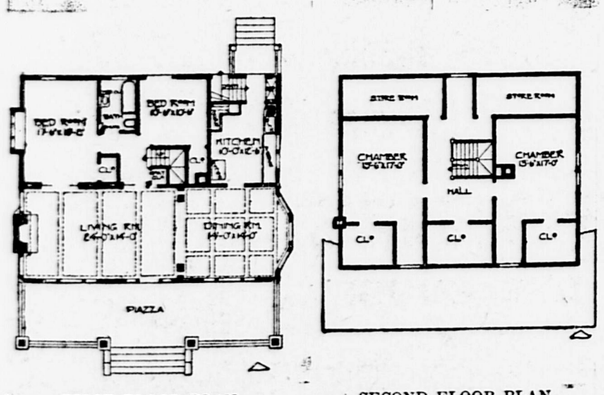
PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The gable roof, running parallel to the street, extends out over a broad piazza and is broken by two small dormers. The wide cornice is supported by heavy sawed brackets and is further ornamented by wide sawed barge boards. The exterior has a massive and substantial appearance and yet suggests comfort. The arrangement of the rooms is complete, practical and homelike. The stairway is not made a prominent feature in this design, being approached from a small hall. The living and dining rooms can be prettily finished in oak and the balance of first story in birch and the second story in white enameled pine. Size of house forty feet wide and thirty-two feet deep. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $3,900.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of Design E for $25.

ANIMALS' TOILETS.

Fur Seals Are as Particular as Women In Fixing Up.

The cat carries her clothesbrush in her mouth, for with her rough tongue she cleanses her glossy coat as a boy brushes off his clothes. She licks one of her front paws and rubs it over her face and she is ready for her breakfast.

Foxes, dogs and wolves do not use their mouths when they need to wash and brush, but scratch themselves vigorously with their hind paws and are as fresh as ever.

The cow with her long, rough tongue combs her coat of hair until it is clean and curly. The horse more than any other animal depends on his owner to keep his coat in proper condition, but often he will roll on the green grass or rub himself down against a tree or fence.

Field mice comb their hair with their hind legs, and the fur seal in a similar manner spends as much time as a woman in making herself look smart.

Although the elephant appears to be thick skinned and callous, he takes great care of his skin. He often gives himself a shower bath by drawing water into his long trunk and blowing it on the different parts of his body. After the bath he sometimes rolls himself in a toilet preparation of dust to keep off the flies.—Our Dumb Animals.

GAMBLED FOR A GIRL.

Prince Lucien Bonaparte Won a Bride From His Brother Pierre.

It is said that the two brothers, Prince Louis Lucien Bonaparte and Prince Pierre, in their early youth when shooting mouflons in the mountains in Corsica, came across a beautiful peasant girl with whom they both fell violently in love.

Who she was and whether she favored both brothers or neither I cannot tell. Be that as it may, they quarreled. Les preux chevaliers of old would no doubt in similar occurrence have had recourse to lance and sword. The Corsican princes decided to play for their belle a game of cards. They went to the nearest inn and wrote and signed a paper agreeing that whichever won the game should marry the lady fair. Prince Lucien won and, faithful to his word, a short time after married her.

She never left the island as far as I know. Prince Lucien lived in England, securing to her a comfortable income, which she received till her death, somewhere about the spring of 1891.—From the Princess Murat's Memoirs.

Flower Perfumes.

A garden full of flowers is more fragrant when shadowed by a cloud than when bathed in sunshine; at least that is the conclusion to which experiments of a French scientist lead. He asserts that it is light and not, as commonly believed, oxygen that exerts the greatest influence in desortying odors. According to the same authority, the intensity of the perfume given off by a flower depends upon the relation between the pressure of water in the cells of the plant, which tends to drive out the essential oils that cause the odor, and the action of the sunlight, which tends to diminish water pressure in the cells. Sprinkling the plant increases the turgescence and as a consequence a more copious production of perfume. At night the air round a flower bed is heavy with odors, because then their emanation is not opposed by the sunlight.—New York Tribune.

The Shapes of Eggs.

There was recently had before the Zoological society of London a mathematical discussion of the differences in the shape of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end foremost. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being inclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Scientific American.

Just a Bit Too Apt.

To eke out his salary the people of a small country church gave their pastor a donation party, among the presents being a fine new dress coat for the pastor and a pretty bonnet for his wife.

On the following Sunday as they walked up the aisle in their new habiliments the choir inadvertently struck out with the voluntary—much to the discomfiture of the sensitive clergyman and his wife—"Who are these in bright array?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Young, but Wise.

"But mamma thinks I am too young to marry."

"Why should she think that? You're much older than she was when she got married, aren't you?"

"Yes, but father was drawing a much larger salary at the time than you're getting."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Practiced, but Not Perfect.

Jack—I'll be frank with you. You are not the first girl I've kissed by any means. Maud—And I'll be equally frank with you. You have a great deal to learn, even at that.—Boston Transcript.

SPRING LOVE

Not In Heroics, but as It Really Occurred

By F. A. Mitchel

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the poet said that in the spring a young man's fancy turns to love he should have added that in the spring a girl becomes frivolous.

The Buddingtons on May 1 moved into one of a block of houses fronting on a small park. Grace Buddington watched from a second story front window the delicate spring leaves come out on the trees under the warm sunshine. Whether her heart budded at the same time is not known, but an incident occurred that burst a blossom of mischief into a full blown flower.

Grace had caught a glimpse of a young man who lived next door. He was nineteen or twenty, while she was seventeen and a half, being very particular that the half should be put on when her age was mentioned. The fact of this gentleman, who was very good looking, who wore buff gaiters over his boots, whose clothes were cut by the correctest pattern and whose white cuffs always protruded exactly two inches below his sleeves—I say, the fact of his being a next door neighbor excited a profound interest in the young lady's heart. They were to live, no one knew how long, side by side. They might become bosom friends, possibly like brother and sister, possibly lovers. This "may be" is decidedly pleasanter to contemplate than "might have been." The first is the bud, the last the decaying flower. Oh, blessed age when there are no sad memories!

Nevertheless youth is peculiar. One would suppose that, harboring such rainbow fancies, Miss Buddington would act in a way calculated to bring them about; that she would look forward to a conventional meeting with her neighbor which would grow into friendliness and from friendliness expand in some one of the channels that had been dug for it by her imagination. She did the very opposite.

While she was watching the nurses in the park halting their baby carriages for a brief bit of chat, the fountain sparkle in the sun, while she listened to the chirp of birds and a distant confused noise of many vehicles on a street beyond, the door of the next house opened, and the young gentleman of whom she was dreaming came out on the stoop. His boots, a stickpin in his neckwear and his silk hat all glistened in the sun. He stood swinging his cane in his hand, looking out on the pleasant scene before him evidently very well satisfied with himself. Then, noticing that not quite enough of his cuffs showed below his sleeves, he adjusted first one and then the other. But in doing so he noticed a spot on his right cuff and, taking out a snowy cambric handkerchief, endeavored to obliterate it.

During all this time Miss Buddington was watching him from the window some dozen feet above him and two or three feet to one side. While he was endeavoring to remove the spot from his cuff she disappeared for a few moments and when she returned held in her hand a pitcher of water. Extending her arm, she held the pitcher directly over the reflected streak of sunlight crossing the top of his silk hat.

But she refrained. Whether this was on account of pangs of conscience or a desire to enjoy the situation by prolonging the climax or from a dread of making an enemy instead of a friend of her immaculate neighbor there is no record. The sensation was certainly delicious. But the most delicately flavored wine must be swallowed at last, and presently, tipping the pitcher, she poured a stream down on her unsuspecting neighbor.

When Mr. Tippler—that was the young man's name, T. Pemberton Tippler—felt the water resounding as on a drumhead upon the top of his hat and splattering fountain-like all over him his first impulse was to stand from under, the second to look up to see whence it came. He was too late to see more than the pitcher and a shapely wrist disappearing within the window. But he had before seen the young lady who had recently come to live next door and was especially got up with a view to disporting himself that she might see and admire him. Love scorned turns to hate. Mr. Tippler having come out to be admired and having been treated, as he considered it, contemptuously, he was quite sure, by the girl next door, he swore a great oath of revenge.

A few days later Mr. Tippler while walking home saw Miss Buddington coming from the other direction. He involuntarily quickened his pace, then suddenly slowed up. He looked to the right and to the left and up at the sky. The stoops of their respective homes were side by side or, rather, there was but one stoop with a stone division. At first Mr. Tippler wished to meet Miss Buddington at the bottom of the steps that he might show his supreme indifference to her by turning his back upon her. Then he was afraid he would meet her. He took out his handkerchief and blew his nose. He carried a silk umbrella in his hand and while trying to walk with dignity tripped on it. His hat fell in front of him, and he stepped on it. Grace Buddington, who at that moment turned to ascend the steps, giggled.

Mr. Tippler was boiling with rage.

After that whenever Mr. Tippler caught sight of Miss Buddington approaching him he made a strenuous effort to appear unconcerned. The way he did it was first to pull down his cuffs. Next he would adjust his neckwear. After that his handkerchief came out and he blew his nose. Finally when he passed her his face would be as red as a turkey cock.

As for Miss Buddington, when she saw Mr. Tippler coming she would proceed on her way with the utmost composure. On passing the gentleman the only sign of embarrassment she showed was putting her palm to her back hair, but this should not be counted as embarrassment, for all women do that.

Meanwhile the courtship was progressing finely. When Mr. Tippler went into the back yard he would seize the limb of a tree and pull himself up by his arms to show his strength to the girl next door, who, he felt sure, was peeping through the blinds at him. Then he would loll on a wooden bench, taking care to assume a graceful position. All the while he was waiting for an opportunity to show his contempt for the girl for whose benefit he was posing.

Finally came his chance for revenge. One day when he was "showing off" in the back yard, while his back was to the houses, he heard something lightly strike the ground behind him. Turning, he saw a little posy. Looking up at the next door windows, he saw no one.

But he knew.

And where was revenge? He was supremely happy. Why? Not because he might throw back this little token. Instead of doing so he put it in his buttonhole and looked up at half a dozen windows, from one of which he was sure the posy had been tossed. His face wore a smile which he intended for an appreciative and tender one. But intended smiles are always like those people put on to be photographed, stereotyped. Nevertheless it was seen and appreciated by Grace Buddington, who had thrown the posy.

It's the old story of the alternate claw and velvet touch. From time immemorial women have poured water—sometimes hot water—on men's heads and then have wiped out the insult by a posy.

This love affair had passed the excruciating first stage. Having been begun all wrong, its earlier features were distressing to the young man. But as all things are enjoyable from antithesis, he found delight in the very unhappiness that had marked its beginning. The girl, who at that beginning had found pleasure in pouring water upon the adornments which the young man—like certain birds who disport themselves in rare plumage to attract the female—had put on to please her, pursued the even tenor of her way. She was simply doing her share in the love making on feminine principles—principles that are as far hidden from men as undiscovered natural laws. Was her first communication with him a stroke of genius? Did she reason that it was an efficient way of snaring him? Not by those steps which men call reason. She chose her way instinctively.

Having first made the young man suffer and then given him a sop, the young lady proceeded to the next step. Common usage would have suggested an open acquaintance. But Miss Buddington, as has been observed, was not prone to use common methods. Was it because she acted on the principle that stolen fruit is the sweetest or did she consider secrecy and duplicity better suited to her purpose? Only a woman can answer this question, and perhaps no woman could answer except for herself.

Miss Buddington now thought it time that her admirer should do something in the way of courtship, so she waited. The young man had learned the whereabouts of her room and had learned that it was third story back, his own being in a like position in his own home. A window in each room adjoined. He contrived to get a note to his lady love by tying a string to the end of his cane and the note on the end of the string, whipping the missive into her open window. This led to an endless string between the two windows, over which passed bits of nothings, gradually warming up until they became words of love.

One morning Mrs. Buddington, who was nourishing some plants in her back yard, turning from them, happened to look up at the rear of her domicile. Her curiosity was excited by an endless string run on two pulleys, the one fixed to a window sill of the adjoining house, the other to the sill of one of her daughter's windows. The lady kept her own counsel, but the same afternoon, seeing the young man next door come in, she hurried out to the back yard and concealed herself under a tree, where she could keep watch of the endless string. It was not long before it began to move, and with it a folded bit of white paper. A hand detached the paper, and in a few minutes another paper was crawling along the string in the opposite direction.

"Grace," said Mrs. Buddington the next morning at breakfast, "get ready to go to your Aunt Mary's. You will leave on the 2 o'clock train."

"Why, mother! What's that for?"

"Never mind what for. And you'll not come back here next autumn. You will go to boarding school."

But boarding school failed to solve the problem. What there was in a pitcher of cold water poured over Mr. Tippler and his spick and span outfit to cement him to Miss Buddington as mortar will unite two bricks is a mystery. At any rate his love once thus planted grew furiously, and before the first term of school ended he had eloped with his lady love.

BRIEFS

A special meeting of the School Committee will be held this week.

A. S. Sandberg has moved from Newcomb place to Boston for the summer.

Miss Fredricka Clark and Master Charles Clark of Weymouth spent the week end with the John Morgans of Standish avenue.

The meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association Wednesday evening should bring out some interesting matter in relation to public docks.

J. L. Miller has resigned as president of the Quincy Blue Granite Quarry Co., and is now devoting his whole time to his own business, which is constantly increasing.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO GREET ADVERTISING MEN.

Big Features Planned for Boston Convention.

Assurances have been received at the headquarters of the Pilgrim Publicity Association of Boston, who are to entertain the big convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, August 1, 2, 3, and 4, that President Taft will be glad to meet the delegates at the "Summer White House" on the afternoon of August 2.

Special trainloads of advertising men are coming from the West, South and Southwest, and big delegations from practically every State in the Union. One of the features, as planned by the Pilgrim Publicity Association, is a mammoth automobile ride around the north shore to give the Western delegates an idea of the seaside beauties of New England. During this ride a stop will be made at Beverly, where President Taft will officially greet this representation of advertising men from all over the country.

FARMERS FOR RETALIATION

They Make a Concerted Attack on Reciprocity

SINGLED OUT FOR SLAUGHTER

Notice Served on President and Republican Party In General That Votes of Husbandmen Will Go to Democrats If Reciprocity Agreement Is Ratified—National Grange Has No Apologies to Make In the Matter

Washington, May 9.—As plain as earnest words, thunderous tones and shaking fists could make it, the farmers of the country have served notice on President Taft, the United States senate and the Republican party in general that if the Canadian reciprocity bill is passed they will vote for Democrats and universal trade in retaliation.

Fourteen states were represented at the hearing before the senate committee on finance. The speakers ignored, except in generalities, any specifications as to inquiries that might be expected from the operation of the treaty. New England fears an inundation of Canadian wheat, "that will cut down the producer without benefiting the consumer," and the west is fearful that wheat will drop, but points like these were made only in passing and usually in reply to questions.

The farmers—all delegates from the state granges—waived economic questions. Some of them said, in fact, that they were not certain that Canadian competition would hurt them appreciably. Their point was the broader one that the farmers had been singled out by the president for slaughter and the farmer would hold responsible at the polls every senator and representative who voted for reciprocity.

The thread that ran through the speeches was that if farm products are made free, everything must be made free.

The farmers were especially incensed against the suggestion emanating from the White House that a majority of the farmers favored reciprocity and that protests against it were inspired by individual interests and did not represent genuine farmer sentiment.

Ex-Governor Bachelder of New Hampshire, master of the national grange, made the president's utterances the text of an address, and from the care with which this address was prepared in manuscript and the pains taken to give it circulation, it was obviously a notice served upon the administration and the high protectionists in congress that they must expect the farmer to vote for general free trade if the agreement was ratified.

"The national grange has no apologies to make for its action in this matter," said the ex-governor. "When it is intimated, as by members of the house, that the opposition of the farmers was initiated by some outside interest, I denounce the charge as without the slightest foundation. Why should the manufacturers be entitled to an investigation by the tariff board before their tariff rates are reduced; while the farmers are tried, convicted and sentenced to have their products put on the free list, without any consideration of their claims to equal protection along with the manufacturing interests."

The Canadian agreement he denounced as violating both the Republican and the Democratic national platforms. He read a long list of comparative duties showing that the Canadian farmer was taxed by the tariff from 25 to 35 percent less than the American.

Robert Eaton, master of the Illinois state grange, officially favored taking the duties off the manufactures mentioned in Bachelder's list. Eaton informed the senators that they were at "the parting of the ways," and he painted a word-picture of the horrors of free trade.

"If this bill is passed," said Eaton with superb inconsistency, "the farmers will retaliate and send men here who will force free trade on this country. There will be a day of reckoning in the future," concluded Eaton dramatically at the close of his address.

TAFT DEFIES THREATS

Will Stick to Reciprocity Agreement Even If Votes Are Lost

Washington, May 9.—President Taft indulged in some plain talk in explaining to twenty-five members of the national congress that he does not intend to play politics with the Canadian reciprocity agreement even if the enactment of that measure by congress costs him the farmer vote.

The president told his visitors bluntly that he was sorry to hear that Republican farmers would desert the party if the agreement goes through, but fears of such desertion would not change his conviction as to the wisdom of such legislation.

He said he believed reciprocity the best thing for the whole country and that he did not intend to argue it.

MOSQUE OF OMAR

Where Explorers Are Said to Have Stolen Sacred Relics

TO RESUME WORK AUG. 1

Captain Parker Tells of the Jewish Expedition In Jerusalem

London, May 9.—Captain Parker, who headed a party of British explorers in Jerusalem, who have been charged with despoiling the mosque of Omar and carying away sacred relics hidden from the Romans, has returned to England and gives to The Times an account of the excavations. He says:

"Unfortunately, although the work from a scientific viewpoint was of extraordinary interest, we were unable to discover any Hebrew writing. But we found definitely the spot where the city of David and the Jebusite city which preceded it existed. The latter, from the pottery we discovered, undoubtedly was in existence 2000 years before David captured the city.

"I cannot say anything about the rumors in connection with the mosque of Omar until the Turkish commission of inquiry has presented its report."

Captain Parker has definitely arranged with the Turkish officials to resume operations on Aug. 1.

BY VOTE OF MORE THAN TWO TO ONE

House Passes Free List Bill Without a Single Change

Washington, May 9.—Nine hours of continuous pounding by the Republican minority failed to make a single change in the first Democratic tariff bill, that placing on the free list agricultural implements, meats and many other articles.

The bill passed the house last night by a vote of 236 to 109. The Democrats voted solidly for the measure and carried twenty-four Republicans with them.

An effort by Mr. Mann to recommit the bill to the committee on ways and means was tabled by the house.

TO REDOUBLE ITS EFFORTS

Mexican Government Preparing to Cope With Rebels

MAKES NO PEACE OVERTURES

Madero's Statement That He Would Undertake Capture of Mexico City Is Not Taken Seriously—Rebel Sympathizers Unable to See How Diaz' Announcement Has Changed the Situation—Fight at Juarez

Mexico City, May 9.—While unofficially there is still hope here of a renewal of the peace negotiations, the official view is that the exchange between the representatives of President Diaz and Francisco I. Madero, Jr., the rebel chief, is a closed incident. Francisco Carabajal, the government commissioner at Juarez, has been ordered to return to the capital.

If there are overtures for a new conference it must come from the other side, although the government officials maintain, as before, an attitude of willingness to listen to any proposition which does not include the point over which the recent negotiations broke, and which was answered by President Diaz in the concluding lines of his manifesto. The executive stated clearly the government's position when he said:

"The failure of the peace negotiations perhaps will entail a renewal and aggravation of revolutionary activity. If unfortunately such be the case, the government, on its side, will redouble its efforts, relying upon the loyalty of our heroic army to quell the rebellion."

At the war department there is no intimation of the plans for a new campaign. An official of the war office said that he did not believe that Madero was serious in the statement that he would undertake the impossible task of capturing Mexico City.

The posting of bulletins on the street corners, setting forth that Diaz would resign at a date which he deemed auspicious, created much excitement. These bulletins were also distributed by messengers from the chamber of deputies.

The sentiment among the people of the capital who, by a large majority, are revolutionary in their sympathies, is that Diaz' promise, with reservations, while technically seeming to meet the revolutionary demand, fell shore and offered too many loopholes for postponing the resignation. It is generally believed that the announcement of the president will not be accepted as satisfactory by the rebels, and a renewal of hostilities is expected.

BATTLE IN JUAREZ

Five Persons on American Side of the Border Are Killed

El Paso, Tex., May 9.—Insubordination in the ranks of General Madero's army and a lust for the fight of which federal concessions apparently had deprived them, caused a fierce attack on Juarez which culminated last night in a careful retreat by the insurrectos after a day of continual skirmishing.

The 150 rebels who early yesterday opened fire on the federals not only captured some of the important outposts, but carried the fighting into Juarez.

The casualties of the insurrectos and federals are not known, but five persons on the American side of the line were killed and at least twelve were wounded.

Thousands of persons in El Paso dotted roof tops or lined the river banks in direct line of the fire. Colonel Steever of the Fourth United States cavalry protested to both armies against the fire into American territory and it lessened considerably thereafter.

Nearly 1000 American troops were massed on the border keeping crowds back and ready to respond to any orders from Washington.

CRASH OF TROLLEY CARS

Fifteen Passengers Are Injured In Collision on a Slight Grade

Westwood, Mass., May 9.—A big semi-convertible trolley car filled with passengers was run down by an open car near Westwood park last evening, and fifteen passengers were injured, one of whom is not expected to recover.

The semi-convertible car was at a stop on a slight down grade when the crash came, its rear vestibule being crushed in and practically every window shattered. Some forty-five people were seated in it and about fifteen more were standing. All were badly shaken up, some cut by flying glass and others trampled upon in the wild scramble to escape which followed the collision.

The open car carried only amotor-

The open car carried only a motorman badly cut and bruised and sustaining a broken leg.

STRIKE BARRED BY LAW

Stopping of Mail Service by Clerks Would Be a Criminal Act

Washington, May 9.—"There is a law making a criminal offense to wilfully and knowingly obstruct the mails, and I think that law would be applicable in the case of a strike in the railway mail service," declared Second Assistant Postmaster General Stewart to the house committee on civil service in explaining what the postoffice department would do in the event of a walk-out by the clerks, who are seeking to form a union.

Trouble was being fomented, he said, by "a few discharged clerks and agitators outside the service."

SUPPORTS PROSECUTION

Witness For Defense In Dodge Trial Reverses His Testimony

Guildhall, Vt., May 9.—Attorney General Sargeant, at the trial of Mrs. Florence M. Dodge, by his skilful cross examination, caused Dr. Kingsford of Dartmouth college, one of the star witnesses for the defense, to demonstrate, and later to admit, that it was possible for a person to have shot Heath in just the manner the prosecution claims he was shot.

Harlan Howe, for Mrs. Dodge, waged a fight against the admittance of the testimony of his own expert, and when Judge Hall ruled against him, took an exception.

Woman Wins Slander Suit

Providence, May 9.—A verdict of $1800 was given in favor of Mrs. Katherine A. Hayden in her suit against Mrs. Gertrude N. Hasbrouck of this city, for slander. The slander was the outgrowth of gossip about the theft of several small articles from the Churchill house, where many of the women's clubs met.

LAND COURT.

To the Quincy Savings Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the Quincy Co-operative Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in said Quincy; Jessie Scoular, Daniel Scoular, Jr., Nancy J. Hayden, Charles W. Strattard, Lodiski H. Winne and Louisa F. Chubbuck of said Quincy; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Ellen J. Bushnell of said Quincy, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, bounded southwesterly by Washington Street seventy-five and 2-10 (75.2) feet; southeasterly by land of Jessie Scoular and Daniel Scoular, Jr., two hundred and ninety six and 2-10 (296.2) feet; northeasterly by land of Nancy J. Hayden and of Charles W. Strattard, seventy nine and 36-100 (79.36) feet; and northwesterly by land of Lodoiski H. Winne, of said petitioner and of Louisa F. Chubbuck, three hundred and five and 8-10 (305.8) feet; containing 23,210 square feet of land. Being lots "A," "B," "C" and "D" as shown on a "Plan of Land in Quincy, Mass., surveyed for Ellen J. Bushnell"; dated March 1911, by Frederick E. Tupper, C. E., filed with said petition.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way in Washington Street (public highway) as now established in common with others entitled thereto; also rights of way in Hersey Place (private way) as shown on said plan, in common with the owners of land adjoining said land on the northwesterly side thereof, and other rights as created by an agreement dated June 3, 1901 and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 954, Page 473; said private way being fifteen feet in width and one half over the land of each party to said agreement.

Petitioner admits that the entire parcel is subject to a right of way over a strip 7 1-2 feet in width along the northwesterly boundary line (being one-half the width of said Hersey Place, private way) as set forth in said agreement dated June 3, 1901, recorded as aforesaid, also subject to the restrictions recited in said agreement, to wit, that no house to be erected on the premises shall be built within fifteen feet of said Hersey Place, and no such house shall be built to cost less than $1800; also subject to the right granted to the city of Quincy to construct and maintain a sewer in said Hersey Place.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are herby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-ninth day of May A. The Yellowstone National Park in Winter

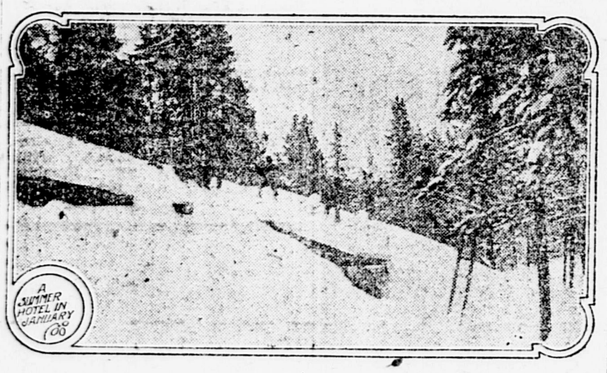
An Aspect of Nature's Wonderland That Few Ever See

OLD FAITHFUL GEYSER, WINTER



A Paradise for Wild Things.

Millions of trout come up into the smaller streams to spawn in the spring. Bears live mostly on berries and fish, when they can get them. Since there are no berries in the spring the bears break their fast on fish. They wade into the creeks and scoop them out with their paws. When the little bears get tired of catching fish in the shallow pools they go hunting for moles and work as industriously as puppy dogs digging them out of the earth. Springtime, when the bears are lean and hungry, is their busiest time.

Three-fourths of the park is a dense forest, a primeval wilderness. Away from the few hotels, the roads and the trails the park today is what it was before even a Pharaoh reigned in Egypt. It is such a paradise for the wild things that roam at will there that they have less to fear, even from each other and from the elements, than anywhere else in the wilderness. When the fury of the winter storms drives the elk, deer, mountain sheep and antelope into the sheltered valleys and canyons they have nothing to be afraid of except the pelting, driven steel-dust of the mountain blizzards. Nature is kind even to the birds. On the great terraces where the stupendous springs of hot water flow incessantly gather great flocks of wild ducks and other fowl.

In this region, nearly 8,000 feet above the sea, where the mercury sinks away below zero from December to March, there is far more wonder and mystery in midwinter than the summer tourist ever gets a hint of. Civilization is miles away across a wilderness of shining, snowclad mountains. The gale-driven snow dances over this waste and is piled into fantastic drifts. Sometimes it is swept with a roar through the mountain gorges faster than the swiftest railway train ever traveled. It covers to the eaves some of the big hotels. In summer times these places are buzzing with life, but in winter they are pictures of desolation, almost indistinguishable from the rest of the landscape beneath the enshrouding snow. If the caretakers wish to get out they have to obtain exit from a window on one of the upper floors. Tall trees buried in the snow appear like bushes. The general aspect of the country is entirely changed.

The incomparable wonder of the Grand canyon of the Yellowstone, that huge gash in the earth whose walls glow with every tint of jewels and flowers, is a mass of purest white save where here and there the winds have swept away the snow and left the brilliant-hued rocks exposed. Their reds and yellows and purples and crimsons glow the brighter in contrast with the surrounding whiteness. The black foliage of the pines stands out sharply. Where the water slides over the precipice and forms the Great Falls of the Yellowstone, it roars down as white as carded wool. Down at the bottom of the gorge, where the waters are swift and deep, they are black. There are immense icicles 200 feet long. An ice bridge a hundred feet high is formed at the base of the falls.

The great geysers play endlessly, each at its appointed period, although no one is there to see them. Every seventy minutes Old Faithful sends its columns of water and steam 300, 500, sometimes 1,000 feet into the air and holds it there for three minutes. Sometimes the winds unfold from its top an iridescent banner of spray; at other times the fountain form is a perfect cone. In winter its boiling hot water gives off a vast cloud of drifting steam. At nightfall of a January evening, this immutable water clock of the Yellowstone becomes a specter of ghostly white, a sight so strange and startling that even those who neighbor with it never lose their awe of its majesty. All about the geysers the foliage of the trees is heavily laden with ice, giving the trees a thousand fantastic shapes. A cloud of vapor, like the steam from some great manufacturing city, hangs and drifts over the geyser basins—the workshop of nature.

There are more than fifty in this giant sisterhood of geysers. Not even in Iceland or New Zealand, or anywhere else where the earth is still being made is there such a convent of their order as in the Yellowstone. No one has ever been able to describe them adequately in words any more than it has been possible to tell on the printed page the extent of the wonders in this "workshop of the Almighty." It is a place where almost every form of creative eccentricity in nature is found.

But the geysers play unseen, and the agents that are molding the earth keep at their tasks in solitude all winter long. The great streams and waterfalls never rest in their toil of tearing down the heights and building up the valleys. Only during three months of the year is it possible for many people to see this Titanic work of Nature in progress. If those who travel for pleasure every summer knew how curious and beautiful a place the park is, there would be as great an influx of visitors between the 15th of June, when the season begins, and the 15th of September, when it ends, as now sail away to Europe for rest and play.

To get to the new gateway to this wonderland by the most direct route the traveler branches off from the main line of the Union Pacific at Ogden, Utah. A night's ride in a Pullman lands him at Yellowstone station, the western entrance of the park, ready for the 158 mile tour in the Monida and Yellowstone stages that are awaiting him. The trip through the park may be made in five days, or it may be cut down to two by visiting the region of the geysers alone.

Many, Many Wonderful Things.

There are many wonderful things on the road before one gets to the Yellowstone park, however. Going west from Ogden on the Union Pacific is one of the most stupendous pieces of railway engineering in the world, the great Salt Lake cut-off that was constructed at a cost of $6,000,000 to save forty-three miles of the distance between Ogden and San Francisco. It crosses the Great Salt lake at its deepest portion and is 102½ miles long. Some of the best engineers in the world pronounced this cut-off impossible, but it was built and is one of the unique features of American railroading.

Another thing that attracts travelers is Salt Lake City itself, which has been constantly in the public eye ever since it was a little huddle of wagons in the wilderness more than three generations ago. In many ways it is one of the most remarkable cities in the world, and as the seat of power of the religious empire of the Mormons it is unique. The Tabernacle, with its great organ, the biggest in the world, and the other notable buildings have been described over and over again, but no words or photographs can picture them adequately any more than they can a bath in the lake itself—in water in which one cannot sink.

To get to the Yellowstone National park or to Salt Lake City is now one of the easiest things imaginable. The directions are simple: You go to Ogden by the Union Pacific, the new and direct route, turn to the north for the park and to the south for the "City of the Saints."

The "First Man on the Ground."

It is just a hundred and four years since the Yellowstone territory was discovered. A trapper and hunter found it. He was one John Colter, a private of the famous Lewis and Clark expedition. When, in 1806, this distinguished band of pioneers retraced their steps and started back to St. Louis over their route that eventually opened up the great northwest Colter broke away. All by himself, he set out for the headwaters of the Missouri. He was practically forgotten when, four years later, he came into St. Louis, tattered, torn, Indian-like in his ways, but bubbling over with enthusiasm.

He had seen the most wonderful place in the world, he said, where steam came out of the earth and scalding water leaped miles high, where there were diabolical furnaces under ground. It would have been the "abode of the damned," he said, but for the fact that there was no sign, for hundreds of miles, of human beings. Surrounded by the curious, John Colter talked for days of the wonders he had seen. And he met with the fate of many; no one believed him.

He told of too many wonders. St. Louisans marveled, then laughed, then for many a long year spoke of "Colter's Hell." They thought he had imagined it all.

But Colter, trapper, pioneer and discoverer, proved exactly right. It was not until thirty-four years later that he was found to have told the truth. Bridger, the noted guide, confirmed his romantic story.

SNOWSHOE PARTY AT OBSIDIAN CLIFF

How Is Your Weight?

While it is true that too much weight is not to be desired yet the fact remains that many men and women are thin to the point of danger. This danger lies in their having no reserve force or nerve power to combat deadly diseases. A little extra flesh is needed by all to feel well and to look well, and this calls up the question of how best to increase the weight. Physicians and chemists, by experiments have solved the problem of increasing the white and red corpuscles of the blood, by the administration of 3 grain hypo-nuclane tablets, and this is always followed by an increase of weight. Obtain in sealed packages, and take for a period of several months according to directions with packages.

GOMPERS AND BURNS CLASH

Detective Declares That the Dynamite Charge Is True

SAYS LABOR MAN KNOWS IT

Arrests of McNamara Brothers and McManigal Not the Result of a "Plant"—Gompers Calls Burns a Liar and Says Investigation Which He Made Shows That Plot Was Framed Against Accused Men

New York, May 9.—The lie direct has passed between Detective William J. Burns, who left here last night for Los Angeles, and Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor. The man who caused the arrest of the McNamaras and Ortie McManigal in connection with various dynamiting outrages has lost thirty-five pounds in four months, but is in fine condition. He arrived here from Montreal.

"There won't be any further talk of a 'frame up' when we get these three men on trial," said Burns. "Samuel Gompers knows by this time that there was no 'frame up' and that the arrests of the McNamaras and McManigal were not the result of a plant. Why? Because Gompers has been conducting an investigation of his own at Indianapolis that has convinced him that there was no 'frame up' and no 'plant.'"

When this was repeated to Gompers in Washington, he replied:

"If William J. Burns has said that I am satisfied that the men indicted are guilty, as charged, or that there was not a 'frame up' or plot responsible for their arrests, he lies, as he has lied in everything else connected with this case.

"I have investigated the entire case, and I am more convinced than ever that there is a 'frame up' and a plot behind their arrests. Burns has lied through the entire case."

Burns stated that he paid out $14,000 of his own money to complete his work after the city of Los Angeles had called a halt on expense money for him. This was after the mayor had put through bills aggregating $6000 for the Burns agency.

FRICTION WITH CHINA

Japan Said to Have Concluded a Combination With Russia

St. Petersburg, May 9.—The newspapers report fresh friction between China and Japan. The Rech asserts that Japan is about to present new demands to China, with reference to free trade in Kwangtung province and the transfer of the Dalny customs to Japan. In event of refusal Japan presents an ultimatum.

Pourparlers between Russia and Japan concerning the measures to be taken against China in case of a continuation of actions on the part of that country inimical to Russo-Japanese interests in Manchuria have just reached a successful conclusion. The two governments are at present discussing the necessity of informing the other powers of the conclusions reached.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS

Special meetings will be held in St. Paul's M. E. church on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 7.30 o'clock. Pastor C. P. Carlson, the Swedish county representative will preach the gospel on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and on Thursday evening will give an address on "The religious and political condition of Sweden at the present time."

Pastor Carlson has been engaged in church work in Sweden for 35 years, is a good speaker and thoroughly conversant with his subject. A general invitation is extended to all to attend this lecture. No admissions will be charged.

—It is possible that the present legislature may fix the salary of members at $1000 t o begin with the next general court. For some years the pay has been $750, and that is ample. The statesmen could earn it in less time if they worked harder. A session running half a year, every year, is simply an absurdity, no matter how much 'business" our population of 3,000,000 puts up to the legislators. New York with a population more than twice as large has a shorter session and does the work with fewer members. Our legislators are sufficiently compensated by the present salary.—Framingham News.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many societies, relatives and friends, for their kind assistance and words of sympathy in our sad affliction and the expression in flowers, of love for our departed dear one, at the funeral, we return our sincere thanks and appreciation.

PURE FOOD LABELS.

They Were Used In Palestine as Early as the Year 850 B. C.

Professor George A. Reisner of Harvard university discovered among some speciments of earliest Hebrew writing in the excavations of the city of Samaria, in Palestine, a most interesting record of the first pure food laws in history. He also found ancient writings dealing with the first instance on record of the keeping of wines in a government warehouse under bond.

Dating back to the period of King Ahab, 850 B. C., these inscriptions are considered to be one of the greatest finds of the Harvard Palestinian expeditions which delved into the city of Ahab and Omri for three years. They found labels on wine and oil jars. These mention the year in which the wine was laid down in the cellars of the palace storehouse, and they state the vineyard from which the wine came, important facts that are recognized equally well by vintners today.

On the oil jars the label runs, "A jar of pure oil," with the mention of the district from which the oil came. The bits of pottery on which the descriptions were written were not parts of the jars, but were evidently intended to be attached to the necks of the receptacles, just as are labels or seals at the present time.—New York World.

WOOL, SILK AND LINEN.

Tests That Will Determine the Quality of the Fabrics.

If you wish to find out whether the material sold to you as all wool or all silk is really so make a 5 per cent solution of caustic potash and in this boil your sample of silk or wool. If the entire sample is consumed in the boiling your material is what it pretends to be; if there is a residue that residue is cotton. The caustic solution consumes the animal fibers.

If you wish to find out whether the silk that seems to be heavy silk is weighted with mineral burn the sample and the ash will show you how much mineral weighting there is. The pure silk will be wholly consumed.

In buying supposed linen goods of toweling or suiting, dip your sample into concentrated sulphuric acid for two minutes and wash it out carefully. The cotton will have been consumed, the linen will have resisted the action of the acid. This test is one that should be made with precaution, as vitriol is not a thing to be tampered with.—Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine.

Right and Wrong Exercise.

The word "exercise" covers a multitude of sins. It is a very loose term used for any form of physical exertion, be it sweeping out a factory, walking home from the office or lifting dumbbells. To say "Exercise is beneficial" is a very inaccurate remark and a very dangerous belief. It is necessary to distinguish between right and wrong exercise. As often as not big muscles in arms, chest or legs are a calamity, for they actually shorten life unless the vital organs are proportionately developed to take care of them. Men are constantly wearing out their hearts and arteries with some form of violent work they call "exercise." If continued they would die of arteriosclerosis. A pretty good general rule for these men to go by is to take no form of exercise after they are grown up that they cannot keep on with until they are old men.—J. Edmund Thompson in National Magazine.

Society.

Woggs—So you don't enjoy these society dances?

Boggs—No. Half the time I'm on needles and pins for fear my ten-year-old dress suit has ripped, and the other half I'm worried because my partner's gown has become unfastened and whether I ought to say anything about it or not.—Puck.

His Strength.

There was a young fellow named Frank,
Who was lantern jawed, knockkneed and lank.
He spoke with a screech,
But he married a "peach"
Because he had coin in the bank.

DISBANDING OF RAMBLERS.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

Through the desertion of Millard and Harold Chapman and the loss of Fowler and Murphy who are unable to play on account of work, the Quincy Ramblers have come to the conclusion that it is for the good name the team has earned in the past, to disband.

Early this spring all of the members were in favor of starting up again except the Chapmans and they wanted to join the Makarias who had been trying hard to get them; anyway, after thinking it over, they told me they would "stick."

That was assurance enough for me, so I had a man come out from a Boston sporting goods house and measure the whole team. They were willing to give the suits on the strength of the play some Quincy young ladies were giving for our benefit at Music hall on May 2d, which by the way was a great success due only to the girls' hard work in rehearsing so faithfully.

When Manning left to go with Makarias I thought it would cripple us to a great extent, but I was lucky enough to find a man just as good, except on base running, so felt sure of a fast infield.

The only place in which we were weak was in the outfield which, with the exception of Conway, was new; so that when the Chapmans came up to see me last Sunday and said they wanted their releases I was thunderstruck.

No one in this city has used those fellows as square as I have and I always gave them credit for their ball playing.

Their only excuse for leaving was that Mr. Ganzel would make finished stars of them; with due credit to Mr. Ganzel as a ball player I don't think that he will give them a greater reputation than they made while under the name of the Ramblers.

The Chapmans also remarked that they didn't intend to stay with us any longer than after the play was over any way.

There has never been a time in the past when the Chapmans have helped the club out when we held a dance or play by selling tickets as members of other clubs do, but were willing that the others should shoulder the hard end of the work.

I want to thank those that have taken so much interest in the team and helped to support it and to say that the rest of team has appreciated it as much; the disappointment was a great one to me because the prospects the Ramblers had for 1911 were big.

The Manet club has asked me to manage their team and I have accepted.

SPORTING NOTES.

Quincy High vs. Brockton today at Brockton.

One of the most important early season games in the grammar school league was that played yesterday between Massachusetts Fields and Adams schools. The former was the favorite and it was the opinion of many who had a line on both teams, that the South Quincy team would be defeated by a wide margin.

The game was a pitchers battle throughout with the odds a little in favor of Swain, the Adams pitcher. At the end of the game the records showed that he had secured 13 strikeouts and had given but one base on balls, while Northrup the Massachusetts Fields pitcher struck out 14 men and gave 6 bases on balls. The final score was 4 to 1 in favor of Adams.

This game was especially important because the two schools were leaders in the league and many believed that the winner would be in line for the championship. However, Willard school is still to be reckoned with. Although most of the members of last year's championship team have graduated, the members of the present team have the baseball eye and will figure in the race for the championship.

Although Brockton lost to Lawrence on Monday it was no fault of Lonergan's who accepted nine chances without an error and figured in a double play.

"Babe" Marceau, Dartmouth '14 lowered the college record in the mile run Wednesday afternoon in a trial race preparatory to the Dartmouth '14-Worcester academy dual meet next Saturday. Marceau's time was 4:32 2-5, two-fifth of a second better than the previous record. The new time will not go on the college books as a record because it was made in freshman competition.

Bob Somerville defeated Young Gotch in a wresting match at Greenfield Wednesday evening. The first fall was made in 15 m. 34s. the second fall in 34m. 20s. and the final fall in 35m. 15s. In the first fall Somerville got the scissors and wrist lock, in the second the hammerlock and in the third, the full body and toe hold.

To the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of Daniel S. Baxter late of Quincy in said County, deceased, intestate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to Paul Perley Baxter, of Ansley, in the State of Nebraska, without giving a surety on his bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Brookline in said County of Norfolk, on the twenty-fourth day of May A. D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eighth day of May A. D. 1911.

PITCHER COOMBS HAS ONE PECULIAR HOBBY.

Jack Coombs, the steel armed pitcher of the Philadelphia Americans, has one hobby—a collection of pipes. No matter where he travels, he tours the lanes, small streets and the curiosity shops. He is always in hunt of another trophy for his smoking emporium.

He has every style, bore and caliber, but he confesses that the sweetest one of the lot is an old corncob furnace that he whiffs after a battle on the diamond. Coombs is a quiet fellow, but any one desiring to open up a conversation with the mighty man from Maine only has to talk "pipes" and he is sure to be entertained by the peerless pitcher.

KEEP AN EYE ON JACKSON.

Cleveland's Crack Young Outfielder Out For Batting Honors This Season.

Probably the work of no player on the Cleveland team is being more closely watched than that of Joe Jackson, the Naps' brilliant center fielder. The young ex-Southern leaguer, who led the American league batters last year with an average of .387 for the twenty games in which he participated, has declared he is out for the batting honors of the country. Last summer Jackson was a sensation in the field, at bat and on the base lines in the Southern circuit. He looked like four aces to a man with his last peso in a showdown to the Cleveland fans last fall.

This season he appears to be as good if not a bit better than the closing days of 1910. He is a terrific hitter, wielding a bat that would make a Samson hesitate. American league pitchers say they will find his weakness pretty soon and slow him up, but old timers who have watched him shake their heads and insist the soft spoken boy is another Lajoie, a batter without a weakness. It is certain that Jackson last fall faced the best pitchers in the league and that they all looked alike to him. In addition to his splendid batting, Jackson is as fast a man as Ty Cobb.

He covers a wonderful amount of ground in the outfield, and his throwing is of the sort that makes the blase sit up and toss their hats into the air. Jackson played with the New Orleans club last season and led his league in batting with a percentage of .354.

—Spokane Spokesman-Review

—Spokane troops of the Boy Scouts of America have adopted resolutions inviting troops in all parts of the United States to join in observing a sane Fourth of July. The idea is to celebrate Independence Day as a jubilant holiday and to assist the authorities in saving life and limb. Rev. David W. Ferry, scoutmaster of Troop 3 and founder of the Girl Guides of America, who has established national headquarters in Spokane, says it is planned to have organized celebrations, at which there will be more fun, more brass bands and more fireworks than ever before to give the youngsters the time of their lives, with all the elements of danger eliminated. The executive committee of the Spokane troops, headed by Carl Ultes, Jr., will place the entire scout body at the service of the city officials. The scouts and Girls Guides also will join in the general celebration, including the patriotic exercises, games and fireworks in the city parks. Z. E. Hayden, commissioner of public safety, is heartily in favor of the plan.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB ELECT NEW PRESIDENT

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard Honored with Important Office

Reports of Officers Show Broad Scope of the Club Work

Club members were early at the clubhouse on Tuesday afternoon for the annual meeting and to cast their ballots for officers for 1911-12. The polls were open from two until three o'clock in charge of the election committee.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney president, called the meeting to order at the usual hour half past two. Following the secretary's report for the month several recommendations from the executive board were brought before the club, the most important being the appropriation by the club of $100 a year for three years for the salary of a paid secretary for the Associated Charities. After discussion it was voted to give $100 and to recommend to the incoming board that the club give $100 each year for the next two years. It was also voted to give $50 to the Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham chairman of the committee to look into the matter of incorporating the club gave a very comprehensive outline of what would be required. The report was accepted and referred to the incoming board.

The club will be represented at the annual meeting of the State Federation in New Bedford May 24, 25, 26 by four delegates, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Albert W. Parker, Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Mrs. Frank S. Davis and they were instructed to vote for the mountain laurel as the national flower.

Mrs. John T. Conway, delegate to the Industrial and Social conference at Worcester brought back a good report of the meetings.

The annual meeting opened with the singing of the club hymn, written by Mrs. Tirrell, which was followed by a group of German songs by Mrs. Edith Cary Page, accompanied on the piano by Miss Florence G. Olney. Mrs. Page sang delightfully using her sweet voice with an ease that gave much pleasure to her listeners. The first group of songs were "Dein" by O. Bohen and "Ungeduled" by Shubert and later she sang three more "Honeysuckle," Chadwick; "Oh that we two were maying" and "A birthday" by Woodman, all of which were pleasingly rendered calling forth loud and appreciative applause. Beside the vocal solos the club had the added pleasure of hearing Miss Olney a pinaist of recognized ability who played Mowskowski's "Barcarolle" beautifully, with brilliancy and fine technique.

The annual reports which are given below brought out the great amount of work being done along all lines by the officers and committees of the club.

RECORDING SECRETARY.

In looking over the records of the past year, it has seemed to me that the short review which I shall give might be put under four heads.

The first head I shall call gifts. As the value of a tree is estimated by the fruit it bears, so the value of a club to a community can be estimated in one way by the amount of money which it contributes towards worthy causes. During the past year this club has completed its pledge of $300 to the Anti-Tuberculosis society and given the same society $200 more; it has given $200 towards the salary of the Visiting Nurse, and $25 to the

COUNCIL OF DISMISSAL

Dr. Hardy Formally Dissolved from Bethany Church

The council of dismissal called by the committee of Bethany church to take action on the dismissal of Dr. Edwin Noah Hardy Ph. D. assembled in Bethany church Tuesday afternoon. The committee which consisted of George A. Sidelinger, Delcevare King and Mrs. Elizabeth Alden called the following:—Rev. Edward A. Chase, Wollaston Congregational; Rev. William B. Ayers and William Kershaw, Park and Downs; Rev. Charles P. Marshall, T. B. Pollard, Washington street; Rev. Thomas W. Davison and Deacon Edwin French, Atlantic Memorial; Rev. F. G. Merrill and Deacon W. E. Bean, Pilgrim church North Weymouth; Rev. R. H. Cochrane, Weymouth and Braintree Union church; Rev. Thomas Simms and Rev. Granville Yager, Braintree First; Rev. E. W. Phillips and Deacon A. H. Gurney, Whitman First; Rev. H. C. Alvord, Old South, South Weymouth; Rev. Edward Anderson.

Rev. E. A. Chase was chosen moderator and Rev. E. W. Philips scribe of the council.

John A. Hunt, clerk of the church read the resignation of Dr. Hardy and the action taken thereon by the parish. Dr. Hardy then spoke briefly and the council adjourned to the vestry.

The report of the council follows: "Whereas our brother, the Reverend Edwin N. Hardy now feels himself called to separate himself from his field of labor in Quincy and to take up a new work in LaGrange, Illinois, we his brethern assembled in ecclesiastical council advise that the pastoral relation now existing between the Bethany church of Quincy, Massachusetts and Dr. Edwin N. Hardy Ph D. be dissolved on May 15. We place on record the expression of our joy that in these days of unrest, this relation has continued for sixteen years with fruitful results.

We hear evidence to his continued efforts for increased knowledge and self-cultivation through study, to his thoroughness in pastoral labors, to his large-heartedness and wisdom in counsel to his ministerial brethren, to his wise and efficient administration of a church and parish having many and varied interests and connections, to the wideness of his vision in the movements of the Congregational church at large and the interpretation of them through the agencies of Bethany church.

We further place on record our appreciation of the fidelity of Bethany church, its material and spiritual share in the agencies of the community for helping others. We commit it to God in the choice of a minister who shall keep it true to its traditions and lead it on to an enlarging share in progress of all good things in city, development of its own constituency and the growth of the kingdom of God everywhere. As he goes from our midst we heartily commend him to the fellowship of the churches with which he is to be associated."

After the council was dismissed all were invited to adjourn to the church parlor where refreshments, consisting of sandwiches ice cream and cake, were served. Members of the Philathea class had charge of the serving.

One of the most delightful features of the council was the presentation of a beautiful picture of the marriage of John Alden and Priscilla to Dr. Hardy by the members of the Norfolk association of Congregational churches. In making the presentation, Rev. Thomas Simms of Braintree spoke very fittingly of the esteem in which Dr. Hardy was held by his brethren and he said "fearing that when you get way out there and meet new people you will forget us back here in New England, we are giving you a bit of New England to take with you to remember us by."

Dr. Hardy said in response that he would have many beautiful pictures of New England to take with him that were so imprinted on his mind that he would never forget them.

The following letter accompanied the picture: Dear Brother Hardy—Your brethren in the ministry of Old Norfolk association desire to express to you their personal love and appreciation and their deep regret at your going away. For sixteen years you have been one of the leading souls in this conference. Your work has been untiring, consistent, Christ-like. Every man feels you a friend and brother; you have been a friend and brother to every man.

We have not realized the large place you actually filled until this parting. We come today to say these things to you, to grip your hand, to leave a remembrance in this picture. May God richly bless you where you go; may even larger success go yours in future years.

Yours very sincerely,
J. Stanley Durkee,
Thomas Simms,
E. W. Phillips,
Committee of ministers from Norfolk Association.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In the old days the simple hearted children used May 1 to wander in the woods seeking posies, but now the sophisticated youth rummage the streets for cigarette pictures.

The Bangor fire sufferers had to camp out in the streets, but their chances for getting a square meal look much better than those of the ordinary camping out party.

This is a time of great danger to health, when the housecleaners incite the germs to go rampaging all over the house, when before they were resting quietly as harmless as kittens.

The Pennsylvania railroad has been boasting about the safety of its passengers, but the awful Easton accident suggests that careful track walking and train running is the best press agent.

Today's Ledger is a woman's edition being full and running over with the doings of the women's clubs, more especially the annual meeting of the Quincy Women's club. But much of it will not be uninteresting reading for the men as it shows what the women of the city are doing along all lines. They are active in every good work, social, civic and educational, all of which tends to the upbuilding of our city. It is a work in which both men and women could unite for the betterment of all.

The meeting tonight of the Granite Manufacturers' Association to discuss the public dock question should bring out a large attendance of its members but of other business associations, who have been invited as well. The question is one of great importance to the business men of Quincy especially those engaged in the granite industry.

The granite industry has been kicking for years for better facilities for shipping their finished product. The railroad in an endeavor to meet this situation built a new freight yard at South Quincy and equipped it with a powerful travelling crane. For a short time this seemed to meet the want but conditions are now about as bad as before, for the big crane can not keep things moving fast enough. Recently a boom derrick has been erected, ar is about to be erected at South Quincy to help out. While these two derricks may be able to take care of the shipments the manufacturers claim that they are still further handicapped as to rates.

With a public dock which could be connected with the granite yards by the trolley freight system there would be an opportunity to ship by water and the competition would have a tendency to reduce rates. Quincy has an unsurpassed water front and a deep channel which will allow the largest vessels to enter. With a public dock it is among the possibilities that some of the tramp steamers would seek dockage here.

It is a well known fact that steamship companies are constantly looking for dockage in Boston but are unable to get it. With Quincy's water front and the possibilities of connection by steam and electric railroad lines it would seem that the possibilities for development are almost beyond realization.

MAY-DAY AND LABOR.

On May 2, 1911, a leading metropolitan newspaper printed dispatches from only three American cities, giving reports of labor troubles, which traditionally are apt to center about May day.

These three were the strike of Pennsylvania R. R. shopmen, the Los Angeles carpenters, and a small strike of 450 Philadelphia plumbers.

On May 2, 1902, the same newspaper printed news from 22 different strike situations in the United States. Some of those, as for instance in the Lowell, Mass., textile strike, and the shutting down of 48 mines in Chicago and Alton R. R. territory, were far reaching.

What has caused in nine years this sharp decline in the tendency to settle labor disputes by war?

Principally a perception of the destructive power of the weapons in the hands of both of the contending forces. It has been as some day it will be in the international field, when armaments become too destructive, the common sense of mankind will rebel at the wholesale loss.

The organization of strike breaking into a recognized business has placed powerful arms in the hands of capital. One New York concern has had 35,000 men on its list, who either from the pinch of want, or dare devil adventure, or because they were of the hobo type, were willing to be called "rat souled scabs" for the sake of $2.50 to $3.50 per day.

As the strike breaking concern got $5 per day for each man in the New York traction strike, this one job gave returns while it lasted equal to the salary of the President of the United States.

On the other hand, the labor army has been drilled and systematized with organization by companies for relief, watch of disaffected workmen and persuasion of strike breakers. Systems of reprisal have in some cases proved of deadly effect, as where workingmen slip into their pockets portions of machines which tied up a whole factory. The peaceful settlement of the anthracite coal strike by an arbitration commission was a magnificent object lesson.

As Wane Mac Veagh said at the time, a strike is a "foretaste of hell." When merchants will only give orders when they can get a privilege of cancellation in case of strike, when children have to be sent prematurely into factories away from home to build a reserve against the day of war, one sees how deadly the effects of strikes are, and the working people realize it better than anyone else.

CONTESTS POPULAR.

Considerable interest is being taken in the contests in progress at the St. John's bazaar and there is a hustle on the part of the candidates for votes.

In the contest for a week's vacation trip for the most popular unmarried woman Miss Hattie Daley leads with 51 votes. Miss Vera Burke has 22 votes and Miss Mary Driscoll 17.

In the contest for a gold watch for the most popular street car employee David R. Barry has 20 votes, Thomas H. Craig 17, John Faircloth 13, John Regan 8, William Kelley 6 and Charles Austin 7.

Tonight a third contest will be started for the most popular business man. The standing of the candidates in each contest is bulletined at the hall every night.

BRIEFS

The mid-week service of the Christain Science church will be held in Alpha hall this evening.

The Elks' charter has been hung in Electa hall which will be their regular meeting place from now on.

Quincy L. O. L. met in Wilson's hall Tuesday evening. A number of new candidates were initiated.

The Loyal Ladies' of Clan McGregor held its regular meeting in Clan McGregor hall Tuesday evening.

Some alterations are being made at the Central fire station to accommodate the auto chemical which is expected in about two weeks.

Work is progressing rapidly on Glendale road and Bedford street. The edge of the sidewalks are being sodded on Glendale road and new sidewalks are being made on Bedford street.

The salad supper of the Woman's Guild of Christ church will be held in the Parish house this evening at 6.30. This is to be the last parish supper of the season.

The farewell reception to Dr. and Mrs. Hardy will be held in Bethany chapel this evening. All who know the doctor and his wife are cordially invited to be present at the reception. It will be an informal gathering.

The annual May festival ofthe Quincy Point church will be held this afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society. There will be a sale afternoon and evening, a supper at 6.30 and an entertainment at 8 o'clock.

Miss Ellen M. Stone is to speak tomorrow night at Bethany chapel under the auspices of Quincy W. C. T. U. It will be remembered that Miss Stone was the missionary who was captured and held for ransom several years ago in Armenia. She is an interesting speaker and her experience should be entertaining and attract a large audience.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON

He Succumbs to the Infirmities of Old Age

COLONEL HIGGINSON DEAD

Author Was Held In High Esteem by All Who Knew Him

Cambridge, Mass., May 10.—Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, aged 87, famous abolitionist, poet, author, historian, and veteran of the Civil war, died at his home in this city late last night. Death was due to general breakdown, the result of a long life of mental and physical activity. Death came as gently as would a peaceful sleep.

At the bedside were his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Barney, her husband, Dr. J. E. Barney of Boston, Dr. John L. Hildreth, his family physician, and two trained nurses, who had attended him during his illness.

Colonel Higginson was born in Cambridge Dec. 22, 1823, son of Stephen and Louisa (Storrow) Higginson. He had a distinguished ancestry. His paternal grandfather was a successful shipmaster before the revolution, and later a delegate to the Continental congress. His mother was the daughter of Captain Thomas Storrow, a British officer.

PERNICIOUS ACTIVITY

Postal Clerks Devote Too Much Time to Forming Trade Union

Washington, May 10.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Stewart frankly admitted before the committee on the civil service that clerks had been discharged from the government service for activity in promoting the organization of a trade union. The clerks were removed from the St. Paul office. They were good clerks, Stewart said, but their "pernicious activity" amounted to insubordination.

Oscar F. Nelson, president of the National Federation of Postal Clerks, and dismissed from the postal service in Chicago because of union activity, also was a witness.

Vardaman Refuses to Testify

Jackson, Miss., May 10.—Ex-Governor Vardaman declined to give testimony when an examiner of public accounts sought to obtain from him explanations of expenditures during his term of governor. Vouchers for the expenditures, it is alleged, are missing.

Boston and Maine Dividend Drops

Boston, May 10.—The Boston and Maine directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock, a reduction from a 6 percent to a 4 percent annual basis. No action was taken on the preferred.

POSTMASTER NAMED IN ALLEGED GRAFT

Said to Have Been Involved In Pawtucket Stone Deal

Providence, May 10.—Evidence of a sensational nature, in which Postmaster William H. Barclay of Pawtucket was named as a co-conspirator, was brought out in the trial of James Beach, a contractor, charged with conspiring to defraud the city of Pawtucket in connection with the so-called "stone crusher scandal," and who is now serving a sentence for larceny in the same connection.

Former Governor Higgins, on the witness stand, produced an affidavit made by Beach at the time of the investigation, three years ago, in which Beach told of the transaction between him and Barclay, then commissioner of public works of the city, and Miss Olivine Bedard, formerly bookkeeper for Beach, testified that Beach told her that for every ton of crushed stone taken away from the city crusher Barclay received $1 and Beach 50 cents.

It is alleged that for the thousands of tons of stone taken away from the city crushers, the city never received any money.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Mrs. John J. Warner of 146 Taylor street was hostess on Monday afternoon for the monthly meeting of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R. In the absence of the regent Mrs. Edward E. Jameson presided.

A meeting of the new executive board of the Quincy Women's club is called for Thursday morning at ten o'clock at the club house.

The national society of the Daughters of the Revolution is to dedicate on Thursday a memorial tablet to the sailors of the Revolution, at the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

The Chelsea Woman's club has decided to do active work next year to bring the city back into the no-license column. The club membership is 450 and there is a surplus in the treasury of $1,000.

A May breakfast to be held on Wednesday, May 17, at the Boston Art club, Newbury and Dartmouth street, Boston, by the New England Woman's Press association which promises to be a notable ending of the club year.

Only a small number have resigned or dropped from membership this year in the Quincy Women's club, the records showing about twenty, the smallest number since the formation of the club. This will be bad news for those on the waiting list but as special privileges are to be granted them the coming year they will enjoy a part of the club program.

Mrs. Walter F. Jones of Wollaston Park, regent of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R., is to open her house for a colonial party to be given by the chapter on May 20 under the direction of Mrs. Seth Crocker.

By invitation of the New Bedford Woman's club the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs, will be held in the First Baptist church, Williams street, New Bedford, May 24, 25 and 26. The regular sessions will begin May 25, at 11 A. M. and 2 P. M., and May 26, at 9.30 and 1.30. On May 24 the hostess club has arranged an organ recital in the Rogers Memorial church at Fairhaven at 5 P. M., and at 8 P. M. an informal reception in the Old Dartmouth Historical Society building, North Water street. Quincy clubs are to be well represented at the meetings.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., holds its May meeting on Friday afternoon at three o'clock in Association hall.

Braintree women have formed an unique society called the Friendly Aid Association of Braintree which promises to have a great influence on the upbuilding and social service work in that town. It officers are: President, Mrs. W. E. Dow; vice president, Mrs. J. W. Watson; secretary, Mrs. A. W. Hoe; treasurer, Miss Leta Weston. The organizations represented are: All Souls' church, Mrs. W. E. Dow, Miss J. F. Edgecomb; First Congregational, Mrs. B. F. Wallis, Mrs. O. W. Allen; South Congregational, Mrs. J. W. Watson, Mrs. J. H. Kilbrith; Baptist, Mrs A. W. Hoe, Mrs. J. F. Ellis; Episcopal, Mrs. W. T. Case, Mrs. H. A. Rhoades; South Methodist, Mrs W. W. Sylvester, Miss Leta Weston; East Methodist, Mrs. A. T. Johnson, Mrs. G. A. Remick; St. Francis, Mrs. C. A. Sullivan, Mrs. W. H. J. Fitzgerald; The Philergians, Mrs. W. F. Rogers, Mrs. F. E. Dyer; overseers of the poor, Henry M. Storm.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney who retired on Tuesday from the presidency of the Quincy Women's club after two years of faithful service gave a reception on Monday afternoon from four until six o'clock at her home on Warren avenue, Wollaston, to the officers and chairmen of committees who have served with her on the executive board. It was a delightfully informal affair throughout attended by nearly every member of the board. Most cordial relations have existed between the members of the board and each felt a real regret that the time had come to part. Some stay on the board in other capacities while others will rest from their arduous duties and enjoy the pleasure of inactive membership in the club. Mrs. Gurney has made an excellent president, always having the interests of the club at heart. She has been in attendance at meetings through stormy weather and illness, ready at all times to do her share and more to promote the welfare of the club and goes out of office having the love and appreciation of all the members of the club. At the closing meeting of the executive board she was presented with a bouquet of roses to show the appreciation and loving thought of the members of that board.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB MEETING

Social Service Department of the Massachusetts General Hospital: and only today you have voted $50 more to the Anti-Tuberculosis Society and $100 towards the salary of a paid secretary of Associated Charities. These gifts, amounting in all to $675 are exclusive of the gifts of the various committees. They add up to a larger sum than the club has ever before been privileged to give, and they show in which direction our sympathies are going, i. e. towards that form of social service which relieves the sick and seeks out the unfortunate in order to lend him aid.

Secondly, the club has entered somewhat into the public life of our city and our state, and has sought through letters of protest and approval to be one in creating that most powerful of all aids to great enterprises, viz., public opinion. In January we voted to endorse a protest of the Wintergreen club of Boston against women who were charged with murder being held in prison a year without a trial; in March we sent a letter of protest against the location of a Trolley Freight station on Washington street in April we sent a letter approving the widening of Hancock street and at our last Board meeting it was voted that we petition Judge Avery to appoint a probation officer with special training. Next year when we have our Legislative Committee we shall be able to follow the trend of public affairs more closely, but in our zeal to better them, let us not be too hasty. Let us be sure that every question has been thoroughly discussed before we vote upon it so that our voice may always be heard on the side of right.

My third point is the expansion of the club. This has been in many directions. The committees have become departments with sub-committees under them; we have rearranged the departments to make them coinside more closely with those of the Federation; and we have added the Legislative department to our list and put the Child Welfare committee under it, we have put Arts and Crafts under Art and made Literature a department by itself with the Library Extension committee under it, and made the Woman's Exchange a department by itself.

Our expansion is also shown by the problem which our waiting list has set before us. This list has lately assumed such proportions that we have been forced to consider what can be done for the large number which is kept outside by the limit to our membership. We have, therefore, voted to grant them certain privileges which may seem meagre to them but are as liberal as our present equipment will allow. The large number attending our meetings has made it imperative that we hold the most popular ones outside the club house. During the past year there have been fourteen regular meetings of the club and of the Executive Board eight regular meetings and four special meetings.

The average attendance at the Board meetings has been seventeen at the regular meetings and about eleven at the special meetings. All the meetings of the club have been well attended. At our dramtics we filled Music hall; at our musicale we filled Alpha hall ,having 198 guests on that day alone; and our club house was crowded to its utmost capacity when we entertained Hon. Curtis Guild, Mme. Mary Hallock and Mrs. Elizabeth Pooler Rice.

In the light of these facts, it will not seem strange that an amendment to our by-laws to raise the membership limit from 350 to 450, which has lately been before us for discussion, was voted down. I believe that this was done not from any selfishness on the part of those who voted against it, but because it resolved itself into a question of giving up this club house either entirely or in part and that we considered disastrous to the club. It would be "killing the goose that laid the golden egg." Our first traditions are rooted here. May these roots sink deep into the very ground upon which we stand. Let all Quincy get into the habit of looking upon this spot as a centre, where all worthy causes may look for help, where the largest questions, moral, civic and social, are discussed, and where women from every part of the city are united in co-operative work and sisterly love. It may be that our growing needs will make it desirable at some future time to add to this house, but I for one hope that the day will never come when we shall have to leave it.

This growth of the club, of which I have been speaking, has made it apparent that we should take still another step in advance—we should become incorporated. This the club has voted to do and it is left to the incoming Board to carry it into execution. By so doing we shall place ourselves on a much firmer footing and make ourselves over from a collection of individuals into a body corporate that can hold real estate, sue and be sued, and transact all legal business the same as an individual. The necessity for this may not be pressing today, but it would not be surprising if a charitable organization such as this might have some gifts in the future which it could not receive unless it were incorporated.

My fourth and last point is the question—What is the cause of this phenomenal growth of the club? Of course I can give only my guess at an answer to the question, but I feel that it is a question which should be considered carefully so that in future we may not destroy the source of our vigorous life in the past. To my mind there are two reasons for our success. The first is because we started with this club house. A club with a home is quite a different organization from a club without a home. There is no atmosphere in a public hall; here we create our own atmosphere. This is the club. This is the club which is very attractive to so many who have not as yet had the opportunity to join it. It is a question whether the club which we would have if we should meet in a hall would be so attractive.

My second reason for the growth of the club is our spirit of service. If we had lived for ourselves alone; if we had sought merely to be entertained; or had thought only of our own self-culture, we should still need an excuse for our existence and we should not have grown any more than the dead tree which brings forth no fruit and affords neither shade nor beauty is allowed to remain a blot on the landscape. But we have not done this. To be sure we have had entertainment for ourselves. We have had sermons to uplift us, lectures to instruct us, and dramatics and musicales to give us aesthetic pleasure. But I think you will agree with me when I say that still the highest pleasure to be gained from this club comes from the work we do—the pleasure of knowing each other as we can be known only when we are working shoulder to shoulder, the real pleasure of bringing forth by our own efforts some good which will "help man in his steep ascent to heaven," to quote an address which I heard last June. Service to mankind is our aim. Let us cherish it as our one most valuable possession and then we shall grow and bear more and more fruit as the years go on.

Isabella Foote Pinkham.

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

One of your former secretaries, in her yearly report, spoke of herself as the "visiting card" of the club; and there seems to be no better way than this to express the peculiar position of the corresponding secretary in her relation to the club.

With its characteristic courage and faith the Quincy Women's Club changes the style of its visiting card once in two years, but, underlying that may be the belief that the "type" will remain always the same; the best that those so honored are able to stamp upon it. For the honor conferred in the giving of this office is no mean one, and must in every case fill the recipient with the ambition to serve worthily and faithfully. In the present case your officer has so far fallen short of the ideal in her mind, that she can only thank you most heartily for the appreciation of her efforts which you have constantly shown. She has felt this position so responsible a one, so capable of a broader work and service to you that it might be well worth the entire time and study of any member; and so believing, she cannot but regret that her time was necessarily divided among several duties equally near to her heart.

And now, may she say a word to you as coming from one who has been privileged to serve upon your Executive Board for the first time. Knowing that many of you shrink from taking any position which brings this duty upon you, and believing that by such means you are sometimes kept from truly understanding the power and worth of this organization of which you are a part. She would bring you a message of encouragement, tell you that such service is its own rich reward and offers an opportunity of two years' study at the very centre and heart of your club. No woman may have this experience without a better knowledge of what the club means to its members and to the community.

Only a word about the routine work of this office. It may be of interest to know that it entails the preparing and posting of approximately one thousand separate pieces of mail yearly; letters, postal cards, bills, year books and invitations, besides the care of membership applications the waiting list and correct membership list. Only two formal resignations have been received this year, twelve having been received at this time last year and we close the season with a full membership of 350 and 128 names on the waiting list. No doubt it will be a welcome message to these waiting members and their friends that the Executive Board on last Thursday morning enthusiastically voted in favor of the following measures. That the waiting list shall be printed each year in the year book. That a copy be sent to each member on the list that she may know the yearly program and dates of open meetings. That each member on the list may be a guest of the Club twice instead of once only, and that the program committee be requested to arrange an extra meeting for the coming year which shall be a reception to the waiting list. In this way may our club more fully include all who desire the privileges and benefits of club life. Bespeaking for the incoming secretary all the support of that kindly appreciation and regard which you have so generously given in the past.

Irene Chipman Tirrell.

Clara C. Hunting, Auditor.

ART AND LITERATURE.

As chairman of the Art and Literature commitee, I have now the pleasure of reporting to you their second year's work from October 10 1910 to March 15, 1911.

October tenth 1910 a class of six lessons in Current Events with 97 members, under the direction of Mrs. May Alden Ward, was commenced and ended March 9, 1911.

November 15th, 1910, a stereoptican lecture on Italian Art by Mrs. E. C. Bumpus was given, free to members at the First Church chapel. This was given in co-operation with the Program committee.

December 13, 1910 a dramatic presentation of the play "Pygmalion and Galatea" was given by club members at Music hall, with Mrs. Mary Chandler West as pianist.

March 15, 1911 Gentlemen's night was observed at the clubhouse, complimentary to the members, with a lecture on Art by Darius Cobb of Boston and solos by Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell with Mrs. West pianist, followed by a social hour and refreshments.

Elsie Russell Bickford, Chairman.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

The work of this committee has been preeminently educational and philanthropic, our only digression into purely social affairs consisting of the two teas recently served. During the first half of the club year the committee concerned itself chiefly with classes. The commendation of the teachers by members of classes attest the efficiency of the teaching force. Instruction was given in jewelry, tooled leather, basketry, china painting, millinery and dressmaking, (two classes weekly having been held.) in two branches. After the Christmas recess classes in three branches were resumed and the interest in basketry and china painting has extended to the present time. The Arts and Crafts Exchange was conducted during the meetings previous to holidays under the efficient management of Mrs. William L. Russell, ably assisted by Mrs. Herbert W. Beattie, Mrs. Arthur P. Homer and Mrs. Henry H. Schultz. The liberal patronage enabled the Exchange to net nearly $4 more than last year. The club meeting for Nov. 8 was in charge of this department.

Mr. Frederick Whitney of Salem spoke upon the Interpretation of Indian Symbols in Basketry. The large collection of Indian baskets, kindly loaned by Mrs. George Stone of Wollaston for exhibition added greatly to the pleasure of afternoon.

Hoping to serve some who were debarred by circumstances from class work and wishing to accord to our school teachers some of the benefits of the club a course of informal talks was arranged for the early part of the present year.

The response of the teachers was very gratifying and the committee felt well repaid for putting the hour at four, even though sometimes cramped for time.

Miss Lillian Newman gave the talk in January. Subject: Pottery. Many specimens brought in by those attending made a very creditable exhibition.

An informal reception was given the art instructors in our public schools and tea was served.

In February Miss Lucy B. Wright of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind spoke of the industrial work in charge of that body and convinced us all of the wisdom of patronizing more generally the work of the unfortunate blind. An exhibition showed the variety of the occupations open to them and the sale of useful articles of their handiwork, greatly pleased the women in charge. A delightful half-hour of music was furnished by a concert company of blind young men. Not the least attractive feature of the afternoon was the visit of six wee children from the Blind Babies' Nursery in Brookline.

Mr. Frederick Whitney of Salem was the speaker in March. He dealt for the most part with color, painting his illustrations in water color while he talked. It was a matter of regret that but few moments could be given to the subject of design, the bit we had only proving what a treat the swiftly moving clock was denying us. A social half hour with refreshments followed.

The speaker in April was Mr. L. B. Jennings of Boston who read a most scholarly paper on "Interior Decoration," bristling with helpful suggestions for the home maker. Many exquisite fabrics were displayed. On this date the committee arranged exhibitions representative of the work done during the year in jewelry, china painting, basketry and tooled leather.

The work of the treasurer Mrs. Frank F. Prescott has been arduous but it has been most painstakingly done and detailed reports placed in the hands of the club treasurer monthly.

We present today as of probable interest a few facts from our financial report. From all sources our receipts have been $351.55. All bills have been paid and a surplus of $107.30 remained which has been disposed of as follows:

In gifts to the Quincy Women's club a gas lamp for platform use.

To Miss Newman, in recognition of her assistance in January which was gratuitous, a book.

The donations to purely philanthropic work are these:

For the salary of Visiting Nurse, $25.00.

For the Mt. Pleasant Fresh Air Camp, $20.00.

For the Day Nursery, $10.00.

For the salary of a secretary for associated charities, $10.00.

For the Massachusetts Commission for Blind, $10.00.

For the Blind Babies' Nursery, Brookline, $5.00.

A total of $80.00.

That money might have been expended to good purpose in Arts and Crafts room must be patent to all, but it seemed wise to consider the taste of the incoming committee, so we leave the room as we took it, with the addition of a large portable work table, and we bequeath to our successors in office the sum of $15.55 to use at their discretion.

Simple justice requires one more word. We feel that credit for the $107.30 of philanthropic work done should be properly placed. Careful investigation shows that nine-tenths (9-10) of those in classes have been residents of Atlantic and Wollaston.

By far the greater part of patronage of the exchange came from Wollaston. Barring the teachers who came from various points, seventy-five per cent (75 per cent) of the ticket holders for the course of talks were from Wards Five and Six. We thank the women of these localities especially for their noble support and trust you approve of the gifts you have had so large a share in providing.

At the first we grieved at our inability to broaden the interest in the Arts and Crafts movement, but today we feel to congratulate the incoming committee upon the large field practically ungleaned that is open to them, and to wish them unbounded success. May the membership of the next committee be as mutually helpful as the retiring has been.

Caroline E. Tenney, Chairman.

CIVIC COMMITTEE.

The Club House Grounds were cared for all through last summer; two beds of roses were planted which bloomed until the frost came. Tulips and daffodils were set out for spring blossoms, and chrysanthemums with the hope that next fall may find the grounds brightened by these gay flowers. Four settees were purchased and placed on either side of the path to furnish rest for tired women. All this took much of our money, but we have endeavored to do some outside work as well. Twenty dollars were solicited by part of our committee to care for the grounds at the Atlantic R. R. station. Letters of thanks were sent by our secretary to each person who contributed. In connection with the "Play Ground Committee of One Hundred" the Civic Committee tried to secure several supervised playgrounds. But one was equipped by the city, so the committee felt it best to carry one on in the rear of the Young Men's Christian Association, as was done the year before. This was conducted very successfully, large numbers of children, who otherwise would have been compelled to play on the street, visited the playground daily. Our part consisted in paying the salary of assistant supervisor Miss Ella Packard, one of Quincy's brightest young ladies who proved herself well fitted, both by natural ability and good training to care for the girls and younger children. Several pictures of the children and supervisors were taken at the playground on the last day it was opened. One of these was sent to us by Mr. Delcevare King and is now on the wall of the Civic Betterment Room.

On November twenty-second, the Civic Betterment afternoon, Dr. O. P. Gifford delivered a helpful and entertaining address taking for his subject, "Points of Contact." The music was also furnished by Civic Committee.

On November twenty-fifth, of the same week, occurred the Annual Assembly. This was very successful from both the financial and social standpoint, although we did not clear as much money as the year before. Especial thanks are due to Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Hunting and the rest of the committee who gave largely of time and effort. Early in the year the waste receptacles for which we had worked were finally put into position in the different sections of the city.

Our membership in the Civic League has been renewed. Three dollars were given to our Educational Committee toward the prizes for the flower gardens. Ten dollars has been contributed to the Visiting Nurse Committee as we feel that this work certainly is assisting in large measure to the betterment of many. The Branch Library Committee has met with the Civic Committee several times and recently fifty dollars was given by the Civic Committee to be held by the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, as a nucleus for a fund for children's books in the Branch Libraries. It is earnestly hoped that many people may be interested to add to this amount from time to time. A protest was made by the club through this committee against the location of the Trolley Freight Station on Washington street, also a letter expressing approval of the widening of Hancock street between City square and the Adams Academy.

This committee has tried to arouse public opinion in regard to many lines of effort but have not been able to accomplish nearly as much as we wished. We hope that another year may see the Municipal Cleaning Day established and that this may include the grounds in the rear of the High school. These, we are sorry to say are in a very bad condition. At this time we wish to take the opportunity to express our gratitude and appreciation to all who have helped in our work in any way during the past two years.

Also I would express my personal thanks to each member of the committee, who has been ready to assist in any undertaking.

May we also bespeak your co-operation for the next committee who will, we hope accomplish much more than we have along Civic lines.

Annie E. Shaw, Chairman.

CUSTODIAN.

The number of guests through the year have been 625. The largest number being at the dramatics, Dec. 13, when there were 271 present. At the musical there were present 224 and at the meeting March 14, when Elizabeth Pooler Rice read the play "Miss Hobbs" there were 47 guests. At the other meeting the number has ranged from 3 to 25. The receipts for the year have been $133.45, of this $3.20 was in fines and the $130.25 for guest tickets. The largest amount taken at any meeting was for the dramatics $77.50 and at the musical $51.00.

Katherine Sage Jameson, Chairman.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

I submit herewith my report as chairman of the Education committee.

The purpose of this committee is to promote education along lines, which, for obvious reasons, the public schools cannot follow, and to serve as an auxiliary to the public school system.

The carrying on of this work requires money; and, therefore, chief among the duties of our committee was the procuring of the necessary funds.

The first duty of the Education committee was to oversee the work of the Girls' Vacation club held in the club house, during the summer of 1909. This work was planned by the chairman of the out-going committee. There were classes in sewing and parlor games. The membership was about 74. A class in sloyd for boys was maintained at the Y. M. C. A., by this committee and some money was spent for the Children's Garden Exhibit. The bills for the expenses of these classes were approved by the present chairman and sent to the club treasurer, Mrs. Blanchard, for payment. The receipts are in the hands of the club treasurer. The balance from the fund to the credit of the Education committee, together with $15, which was voted by the Executive Board to this committee, was expended for a reception to Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Albert Barbour and Mrs. Barbour. This reception was well attended by parents and teachers and pronounced a happy affair.

In the autumn of 1909 the Education committee undertook to establish a school lunch at the High school. The matter appealed so strongly to the school authorities that they took the matter in hand and developed it. The results have proved the wisdom of the idea evolved by our committee.

In order to procure funds for the summer school and children's gardens the living picture entertainment and the May Festival were held. From these the sum of $254.67 was realized, which was sufficient for the work of the year.

The Vacation club was expanded into a summer school for girls. The membership increased from 65 to 220. The course of study as much more extensive than in previous years. Instead of the sewing and games, courses in Home Nursing, physical culture, cooking and a business course were offered. The cooking lessons were given only to girls who were at the heads of families; the business course was arranged for girls who did not expect to attend the High school; while every girl was allowed to have the work on physical culture, folk dancing and swimming. The number of girls enrolled was out of all proportion to the teachers and the accommodations.

The committee realized that in order to get good results the classes must be small; so other subjects were introduced to occupy the time of the girls waiting for their turn at the regular work. These subjects were spelling, current events, story work, fractions and mental arithmetic and a little descriptive geography. In the geography work they dwelt principally upon the striking features of our country, such as the Yellowstone Park, Niagara Falls, etc. The overflow number of girls were graded and taught by volunteer teachers.

The regular teachers were: Mrs. M. J. L. Kennedy, who taught Home Nursing; Mrs. Stanley Bone, the cooking and Household art teacher; Miss Mary L. Eagan, the teacher of business course and Miss Ruth Bass, teacher of physical culture. Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Bone received no compensation for their teaching; their work was a labor of love.

The volunteer teachers were Miss Clara E. G. Thayer, Mrs. J. M. Nowland, Miss Clara Thompson, Mrs. Albert M. Parker, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Percy Holman, Mrs. William E. Alden, Miss Harding, Miss Millie Wainwright and Mrs. W. T. Babcock. Miss Willimina Birse received some small compensation for her teaching.

On Friday mornings a series of lectures were given and well-attended. The speakers and subjects were as follows:—Mrs. H. J. Gurney, "Stories"; Miss Georgiana Lane, "How a Painting Grows"; Mrs. Walter E. Burke, "Dickens as an Educator"; Miss Edith Randall, "Holland"; Charles H. Hardwick, Esq., "Birds and their Habits"; Mrs. H. H. Kitson, "How a Statue Grows"; Miss Mary Nowland, "Manners"; Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, "A Word About Some Old Songs." Prizes were given for the best reproduction of these lectures and for excellence in class work.

A public exhibition of the work done was held in the club house at the close of the school. There was a demonstration of what was learned in the home nursing class, an exhibit of cooked food and gymnastics and folk dancing by the class in physical culture.

One hundred and eighty girls were instructed in swimming during the summer. The teaching force was one of unusual ability, and it is safe to say that the impress of the six weeks in the summer school of 1910 of the Quincy Women's club will not be soon obliterated.

The children's garden work was carried on by the Education committee. The work was in charge of two paid inspectors, Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Miss Mary Griffin. There were 1,000 names entered upon the books of these inspectors. Each name stood for a garden. The summer was hot and dry. The work of the inspectors was arduous because of the distances between gardens. There was an exhibit of flowers and vegetables from the children's gardens held in the Council chamber in August 1909 and also another in August 1910. Prizes were awarded for the best specimens of flowers and vegetables and also for effort.

Thomas Curley, of the Massachusetts Civic League came to the club house and spoke of the work of the League in Playgrounds and School Gardens; Dr. Frank E. Spaulding, Superintendent of schools in Newton, gave a scholarly address upon "Education as a Business; ex-Gov. Curtis Guild gave a delightful lecture upon "The Origin and Changes in the American Flag and the Flag of Massachusetts."

In January of 1911, Twelfth Night Revels were held under the auspices of our committee. The entertainment was an experiment, but, nevertheless successful. It was patronized by the best people of Quincy in large numbers, and, judging from the requests for a repetition of the entertainment, it is evident that it would ze safe to repeat it another year. The financial proceeds were gratifying,

Instead of the annual May festival, the Education committee will hold an out-of-door fete in June. The success of the May festival in past years would have justified holding one this year, and initial plans were made for holding it. But cases of scarlet fever have been breaking out intermittently since last fall and until such time as this dread disease is effectually stamped out, it would be unwise to hold any entertainment which would bring together indoors 900 children, more or less, from different sections of the city. Enterprise and profit must give way to the safety of the children. This was the only reason for not having our May Festival. It was enough!

The Sloyd outfit at the Y. M. C. A. is also the property of the Education Committee.

All receipts for money paid out I am turning over on this date to the club treasurer. The books of account and bank book will show the moneys received. The cancelled checks and receipts will show the uses made of the money and the amount paid in each case.

I should like to end my report here without comment, but my desire to see the work continue on the larger plan adopted constrains me to make a few further remarks.

The work done will continue to speak for itself. Any effort expended in the causes of popular education is a seed cast into time, and the more earnest and intelligent the effort the better will be the results. There is a large field in Quincy for a summer school. The fact is quite apparent. The attendance last year proves it. I predict that in the near future the city will take over the summer school and conduct it as a part of our public school system,—a consummation devoutly to be wished. Until such time as this is done it behooves the Women's club to continue the work, not contracting its operations but expanding them, according to the increasing demand for knowledge. It would be a matter of regret to myself and the ladies who have so faithfully supported me during the past two years if any backward step were taken by those who will succeed us. The duty of the club is measured by its opportunity.

"In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper, whether this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good."

Martha C. Mackay, Chairman.

HOME ECONOMICS.

The first meeting of the Home Economics Committee after the annual meeting was held on May 24. At this meeting the Exchange was made a sub-committee with Mrs. Conway chairman and Miss M. Carrie Hatch treasurer. The Chairman was given power to call her committee together and make all plans for the exchange and to report to the chairman of the Home Economics Committee at the end of the year. At this meeting it was also voted to give the proceeds of the candy sale to be held at the performance of Pinafore to the club fund for the Tuberculosis camp, also to give $10 to the Visiting Nurse committee for the Supply closet and $10 to Mr. Shaw as a token of our appreciation for allowing us the use of his store for the Saturday afternoon sales. The amount made at the Pinafore candy sale was $26.07.

We engaged Mrs. Tyler of the Pure Food committee of the State Federation to speak to the club on Nov. 29. There being a severe storm and but eight women present she graciously consented to postpone the lecture until Jan. 31. On that date she gave a most interesting lecture on "The Story of the Label" showing us how by careful observation we could avoid buying adulterated foods and told us how it remains with the consumer to demand foods free from adulteration and preservatives, for it will not pay a dealer to keep in stock such goods, if there is no call for them. See that you read the label on all goods carefully.

Jan. 3, a meeting of the committee was held at the home of the chairman and the club president was invited to meet with us. Although it was quite stormy there was a good attendance including the president, after a short business meeting we enjoyed a social time. A cup of tea and other refreshments, helped to loosen our tongues and we adjourned feeling that it was a good thing to belong to this committee. Owing to the absence from the city of the chairman for most of the time for two months there was no meeting held until March.

On the afternoon of February 28 the club listened to a very interesting lecture by Dr. Bernath H. Smith Chief of the Bureau of Food and Drug Inspection of Boston. He came to us highly recommended by Dr. Harvey M. Wiley and he came up to our expectations. He impressed the fact upon us that it is up to the consumer to be wide awake and demand pure and clean foods and honest weight and measures. Our committee served refreshments after the lecture and we heard from all sides that it was a pleasant as well as a profitable afternoon.

At the meeting in March it was voted to expend the balance of the money left from that raised at the demonstration lectures of the winter before for books to be placed in the Public Library and to add enough from the Exchange fund to buy the Library of Home Economics. As we had $9.90 we added $4.80 and have placed in the Public Library the set of books twelve in number, and we hope the members of the club will make good use of them, with the purchase of the books we were privileged to make one of our number an associate member in the American School of Home Economics and the committee unanimously voted to make Mrs. John Conway an associate member.

We met with a great loss last summer in the death of Mrs. Henry G. Fay as she was one of our most valued members always ready to help in every way possible, and we also regretted the resignation of Mrs. Edward Badger on account of ill health, for she was always ready to do what she could.

M. Carrie Hatch, Treas. Ex.

Another year the Exchange will be a separate committee from the Home Economics. There is enough work for the two committees and in my opinion much better work will be done by each committee under different chairman. The Exchange under Mrs. Conways efficient management has proven there is a place for it in the club. It was not thought best to continue the sales at Mr. Shaws store after the holidays as it required more time than the women who had it in charge felt that they could give to it but sales have been held at the club house at every meeting during the season.

There is much need of careful food inspection and especially of milk in our city. It is well for us that something has been done to give us better weights and measures, for it was told me by one who knows that Quincy was very lax in this regard.

There is no reason why if the 350 members of this club should unite in demanding proper inspection of its food supplies, that we could not have it, for what has been done in one place can be done in another. I do not like to think that it is true, what I heard our own Mrs. Richards (who did more than any one person to give us pure food and who has so recently been called home,) say this past winter that Boston and suburbs, were 50 years behind the times in sanitary matters. It looks very much as tho we were, when cities in the far west can get enforced such stringent laws as the cities of Portland Ore. and Tacoma, Wash., are having enforced through the efforts of their Women's clubs. I hope you will all unite in doing all in your power to help the new chairman, for you are fortunate in having one so efficient and who knows so well the work of this committee.

Mary L. Wade, chairman.

has very little to report. During the season we have provided and served refreshments for six meetings. The same system has been followed as last year—that is the members have been asked alphabetically to assist, and a great effort has been made to ask every member, but as different people have charge of the teas it is almost impossible to keep an accurate list. The assisting members each time have been asked to contribute cake, sandwiches or money. With the money thus received the club has been given eight dozen frappe glasses, and flowers have been purchased. As a whole the members have responded gladly and generously, and where there has been refusals it has been perhaps without a realizing sense that they thereby put double work upon those who had already done their share. The success of the club teas depends upon the cooperation of the club members.

Alice Prescott Low, Chairman.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

I feel that it is needless to take the time this afternoon in repeating what has already been given by the treasurer, whose report includes all the expenditures of the house committee.

With the increased use of the clubhouse for the various meetings, has come the increased cost of heat, light, and service, but these bills I am very sure are cheerfully paid and we must all be gratified in the knowledge that our club house is in daily use as a meeting place for many philanthropic, educational and social occasions beside all club and committee meetings that properly belong to the work of the Quincy Womens club.

Our club members, individually, and our committees as a whole, have shown their great interest in our club in many ways and the following list of gifts to our Womens club, testify to their generosity and loyalty. In 1910-1911 gifts were received from Miss Elizabeth Johnson: Library table, 2 sofa pillows, material and upholstering two box seats, material and upholstering rocker, velour curtains for bookcase; Arts and Crafts committee: Draperies for windows, table covers and portieres for tea room; Mrs. Charles Bickford, bulletin board.

In 1911-1912 from Mrs. Theophilus King and Mrs. John W. Sanborn, clock for audience room; Mrs. Charles R. Safford and Mrs. Alfred Jelenick, table cover for education room; Arts and Crafts committee—Gas reading lamp for audience room; Home Economics committee—Umbrella stands and two brush mops; Mrs. W. G. Shaw, picture of children in playgrounds; Music committee—Die and clock for tea room.

The house committee has made a partial attempt, at least, in ventilation by having several boards fitted in the windows and more can be added. The club property consisting of the furnishings in the different rooms has been insured for five hundred dollars ($500.00). New globes have replaced the old ones in the chandeliers. A letter box has been placed in the vestibule and a gas heater in the sitting room of the visiting nurse.

Eliza J. Davis.

MUSIC COMMITTIEE.

It would seem almost superfluous for the Music Committee to make a report of their year's work for the results of their efforts have been evident, at nearly all of the club meetings throughoutt the year.

As the plan of last year proved satisfactory both to Committee and club members, we followed the same idea for this present year; namely, that each member of the Committee supply music for one club afternoon. And we have each endeavored as far as possible, to provide music in harmony with the subject of the afternoon, and to keep up the high standard in the character of the music, for which the Quincy Women's club is as justly celebrated.

Our appropriation this year, was the same small sum—fifty dollars ($50.00); but we have been greatly aided in our work in two ways—first, the fact that on six afternoons out of the fourteen comprising the club year, we have been materially helped by the kindness of other Committees, and secondly the splendid and unusual musical talent which exists within the club, and to which we have never appealed in vain. On the opening day of the year, the Program Committee, as in former years, offered to pay for the music we provided—on the second afternoon, you will recall that Mr. Nat M. Brigham, in his lecture "From Coronado to Kit Carson," sang his own songs, then on the dramatic afternoon of the Art and Literature Committee, Mrs. Bickford kindly supplied the music, the Program Committee again came to our aid on the occasion of the lecture "What is Good and Bad Music?" Madame Mary Hallock needing no other music than that which she herself gave so interestingly as illustration,—and on Federation Day, our president was able, out of the appropriation for that day to pay for the music we furnished on the afternoon of the lecture "The Golden Age," the music was complimentary to the club through the courtesy of one member of our Committee.

Of our own club members, who have delighted us with their talent during the year, we mention, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Mrs. Frank J. Moore, Miss Alice Gertrude Coe and Mrs. Edith Cary Page as soloists, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Charles Sampson, Mrs. Clarence Burgin and Mrs. Percy Bennett as accompanists, also Mrs. Mary Chandler West, both as piano soloist and accompanist. We acknowledge with gratitude, both the appreciation of other Committees, of the difficulty of the Music Committee to furnish good music through the season, with the usual annual appropriation, and the kindness and willingness shown in coming to our assistance, and also the courtesy of our own club members and their friends, who so generously gave of their time and talent.

Of outside talent, we remember with pleasure the beautiful singing of Mrs. Walker, Miss Whitcher, Miss Edith Glines, Miss Gertrude H. Dayton and Mrs. James L. Slade, Mr. Doane's fine playing on the mandolin, and the brilliant work of Miss Anna B. Eichorn, second violinist of the Caroline Belcher String Quartet. Miss Marion Whiton and Miss Florence Olney have proved their ability, both as piano soloists and accompanists.

For the first time since the formation of the club, the annual Musicale was held, with unanimous approval, outside of the club house, and we trust that we have established a precedent. The excellence of the performance by the gifted women of the Westland Quartet and of Mr. Heinrich Schuecker of the Boston Smphony orchestra, who is one of the famous harpists of the world, the pleasant accommodations of Alpha hall, and the enthusiasm of the large audience which filled every seat, altogether, make the memory of the Musicale of 1911, one of pride and gratification.

The die, which was made for our Committee from a photograph of the Club House, taken by Mrs. Blanchard, our former treasurer, for the purpose of adorning our Pinafore programs, we presented to the club, and were much pleased to see its immediate use on the cover of the year book.

You will recall that from the one performance of the opera, Pinafore, given by Club members under the auspices of the Music Committee we realized four hundred dollars, ($400.) above expenses. After giving the necessary amount ninety three dollars ($93.00) to redeem the pledge of the Club, three hundred dollars ($300.00) to be used in building a sleeping shack at the Anti-Tuberculosis camp,) we gave in addition two hundred dollars ($200.00) more to the same worthy charity, and still we had a balance of one hundred and seven dollars ($107.00) which we kept as a fund to our credit in the Club Treasury.

The Music Committee agreed that as so much was done along philanthropic lines by the different committees and the club in general, and so little in comparison for the benefit of the club itself, that the fund remaining should be devoted exclusively to the interests of our own club. And this is the way we have expended it. First the services of Mr. Schuecker at the Musicale just mentioned, were complimentary to the club, second, we bequeath ten dollars ($10.00) to the incoming Music Committee, to augment in a slight degree, the inadequate yearly appropriation, thirdly, we present a Seth Thomas clock, warranted to keep good time, which we have placed on the mantel of the Executive Board Room, to measure the deliberations of future Executive Boards, and lastly, in view of the fact of the development of our club, and that sooner or later, we must have more commodious accommodations and in the faith that more sums will be added to it, we have the honor to present the remainder of our fund, amounting to a little over fifty dollars ($52.58) to the Club as a nucleus for a building fund.

PHILANTHROPIC.

The Philanthropic committee has fifteen active members with Mrs. Walter E. Piper as secretary and treasurer. Her duties as treasurer have not been arduous as at the beginning of the year she held only a little over $3.00 and at the close $1.65. Monthly meetings have been held at the clubhouse. After a short business session, these meetings have resolved themselves into a Charities Conference, to which all the churches, charitable and fraternal organizations in Quincy have been urged to send their representative. Mrs. Wilson Marsh has served as secretary for the charities conference.

The attendance has been gratifying, for the most part and much interest has been shown in the work. Reports were given at every meeting by the representatives of organizations and in this way a sort of central bureau was established, where the best methods of investigation and relief could be discussed and decided upon. At Thanksgiving and Christmas, the lists of families to be aided by the Salvation Army and other charitable organizations were inspected and duplication and fraud prevented thereby. We endeavored to make sure that no one family secured six baskets containing turkey and its accompaniments and then had a party to celebrate the joyous occasion, while other needy persons went without.

Friendly Visitors appointed by this body have been able to observe and keep comfortable some aged and worthy people where slight but continuous aid was needed. Co-operation with the Overseer of the Poor and the Visiting Nurse has resulted in more intelligent work and each has aided the other whenever possible. Several entertainments have been given for the inmates of the Quincy Home and at Christmas a little humorous play served to enliven them, with ice cream, cake, candy and fruit and a gift for each one afterward, all contributed by members of the Philanthropic committee.

One of our energetic members it is not necessary to mention her name, has collected and sold old rubber, to the value of $12.25. This sum was given to the Day Nursery for the purchase of coal and through the efforts of this same member, 52 pounds of fancy crackers and cakes were given the Day Nursery by the Loose Wiles Biscuit Co. This lady wishes the credit for her work in this direction to be given to the Philanthropic committee. Although our funds have been very limited, we have purchased a rocking chair. for the use of an old lady over 80 years old who had only a wooden kitchen chair to sit upon.

The committee has furnished a speaker for one of the club meetings, although Mr. Louis Brandeis whom we hoped to have was unable at the last moment to come and sent Mr. Herman LaRue Brown, in his stead. His subject was Massachusetts Savings Bank Insurance and Pension Systems. This speaker came to us without remuneration. The Girl's Club which has been a protegee of the Philanthropic committee since its formation now has its special adviser, in the person of Miss May L. Gavin, who reports for it. Members of our committee are still interested in the club and have attended meetings and assisted in its undertakings.

The Charities Conference beside considering the need and best way to help many a Quincy family has also looked up and answered inquiries from Portland, Me.; Cleveland, Ohio; Baltimore; many from Boston, and one from London, England. Inquiries have also come from the Social Service Dept. of the Mass. General hospital and one from the Boston Dispensary in regard to the families of tuberculosis patients. We are glad to report Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Floating Hospital fame, Edward Southworth of Boston schoolmaster fame and James Howlett of our own High school will join our Charities Conference and help with their wisdom and experience.

In November, Miss Alice Higgins, General secretary of associated charities in Boston was secured by this committee to address a meeting held in the club house. It was attended by ministers of churches and representatives of the Salvation Army and other charitable organizations. Miss Higgins in an able and brilliant manner told of methods of work in Boston and other cities where charity organization exists. She dealt with the question of deserted wives, which comes up so often in our local work, with work among the children, through the school teachers and with many other puzzling questions, convincing us of the great need of united effort and trained workers here, in our own community.

We believed her when she said we must have men and women and ideas in order to make the work a success. We made up our minds that we could learn to be "cheerful mourners at the funeral of our own ideas," as she said we would have to be, but in the meantime we resolved to see what could be done toward organizing the charities of Quincy.

At the next meeting of our committee, it was unanimously voted to send out an appeal to all the churches and charitable organizations in Quincy, stating our desire for a trained worker and our belief that it would be for the best interests of the city to have one, asking for subscriptions of money for three consecutive years, toward the same. Nearly 100 return postals were sent out and up to date 20 replies have been received. Some organizations have contributed generously toward the object, others are still considering the matter and still others we may never hear from at all. But we are not discouraged. We know that Quincy is sometimes slow, but she arrives, in the course of time and we feel that her residents, who so abound in good works, will see the tremendous advantage of the plan we propose when their attention has become concentrated upon the matter. Picture in your mind please, a central office where a card catalogue is kept with an accurate description of every case which comes to our charitable societies for help, where information may be obtained without many weary miles of travel and often unpleasant experiences and where we may get advice from one trained in the most approved methods of relief work!

Is not the picture attractive and can we not realize it in our midst?

It seems highly probable, to those who have witnessed the growth of the Anti-tuberculosis movement in this city and seen the increase in interest, resulting in the beneficial Camp Mt. Pleasant and the fine organization behind it, that almost anything in Relief work may be accomplished in our midst.

Why, at some future day, should not our anti-tuberculosis society and our Charity Organization both come under one management and have an assured maintenance from our generally prosperous community? Is not the idea feasible? I think so.

Thec hairman of this committee desires to express her appreciation of the services of her faithful secretaries without whose inspiration she would have been but a poor leader of the work of Mrs. King who defrayed the expense of the appeal for the paid secretary and superintended the sending out of the same and of the courteous co-operation of the Overseer of the Poor and his assistant and of the various organizations represented in our body. As she shoulders the responsibility of this work for another term of two years, she asks for the hearty support of this club and the earnest interest of its individual members in the work of charity organization and feels sure that she will receive it.

May we, when we have reached our goal, be able to say, with one of whom Miss Higgins told us, we accomplished our purpose because "we cared so much!"

Alma Faunce Smith, Chairman.

PRINTING COMMITTEE.

As usual the Printing Committee presents a short report. Besides the usual club-printing and year books the revised by-laws and rules have been printed in separate books. For the first time the year books were ornamented with a picture of the clubhouse, the photograph being taken by Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard and presented to the club. The cut was made for the Music Committee and presented by them to the club and is now club property.

Annie L. Prescott, Chairman.

VISITING NURSE COMMITTEE.

For six years a Visiting Nurse has given to the sick and suffering in our midst, efficient and faithful service. surely a work that has prospered for so long a time, has earned its right not only to exist, but also to have generous and willing support.

This charity has grown steadily from its beginning, each year has seen better service rendered, more work accomplished.

Two years ago Mrs. Williams Ward Whitcher was elected chairman. For a year she carried on the work with wisdom and enthusiasm, but, because of illnesa, was unable to continue through her term of service. Last September the committee, with the present chairman took charge, endeavoring to follow, so far as possible, the plans adopted by the former efficient chairman. Our efforts have been successful, for this year outranks all others in the number of patients visited and calls made. Our Nurse has made 1,263 visits, calling upon 296 patients of this number 184 were pay patients, an average of 10 physicians a month required her services.

We have been able, also, through the generosity of some of our members to secure a week's service of a regular nurse for a patient who otherwise would have suffered for lack of intelligent care. In January the work of the Visiting Nurse was extended by the acceptance of a proposal from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., to allow our nurse to attend such patrons of the company as should require her services. For such service the company pays 50 cents per call, and I would recommend a continuance of this service to the company as many of the patients paid for by them would otherwise require and secure the services of the nurse without pay. In January and February the company's patients were few in March the number increased considerably and in April 64 calls were made for them. Since the establishment of Camp Mt. Pleasant the nurse has stood ready to assist as far as she is able in the care of the patients there. Also there are many tuberculosis patients cared for in their own homes over which she has careful supervision.

With the ever increasing number of patients, and also increasing revenue from patients able to pay, comes the realization that the time is near at hand when an increase in the nurse's salary, and, also, an assistant nurse, will be necessary. You are probably all familiar with the manner by which this work is supported. It distinctly belongs to the Quincy Women's club. Indeed, had it not been the intense desire of Dr. Jeffrey Brackett and Miss Elizabeth Johnson to establish a Visiting Nurse in Quincy I doubt if we should be in possession of this beautiful club home today.

The club subscribes $200 each year for its support. The remainder of the amount needed is given by a very few organizations and individuals. These few give generously, but it would seem that so noble and so needful a charity would appeal to every member of our club, and so I bespeak for the incoming chairman generous and voluntary support.

We thank you for all gifts received during these two years, of money, food and clothing. Unity Circle has always shown great interest in the work and has given liberally.

Its annual gift of $50 is the largest received, and knowing that the money given by that Circle means the expenditure of time, strength and often of sacrifice, we sincerely appreciate the gift.

We also gratefully acknowledge the gifts of our Home Economics, Civics and Arts and Crafts committees of the club. To the Quincy Catholic club for its generous gift of money, to the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Wollaston Congregational church, and to the few ladies who contribute so willingly each year we tender our most sincere thanks.

Emma F. Welch, Chairman.

LIBRARY EXTENSION.

The committee for Library Extension would report as follows: Since our appointment we have held approximately twelve committee meetings, have visited neighboring libraries and waited upon the City's chief executive and individual members of the board of trustees of the library. Through the cooperation of all of these interests there has been established at West Quincy a Branch Library and Reading Room, which is thus referred to in the last annual report of the librarian of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

"By far the most important work of the year has been the widening of the library's influence by the opening of its first branch reading room. Through the interest of the Mayor and the generosity of the City Council in its appropriation this was made possible: and in West Quincy, the ward farthest from the centre without special library facilities of any kind, a long cherished hope was realized on July 5.

"An attendance averaging 86 per day during the hot month of July witnesses to the appreciation of the reading room at the start and a circulation of 14641 and an attendance of 25880 for ten months, shows that the appreciation has continued."

In her report to the librarian of her work in West Quincy, Miss Wainright says: "The borrowers range in years from nine to ninety and include Italians, French, Germans, Swedes and Finns. Every month sees more children registered from the Willard and Gridley Bryant schools. There are a number of young men who find the reading room helpful, consulting the works of reference and sending to the Central library for books on various subjects. It has been interesting to determine whether girls or boys predominate among the borrowers, but the balance seems to be almost equal. Among the adults also the same figures prevail, with possibly a few more women than men."

Your committee participated in the formal opening of the branch at West Quincy, and while we regret that we cannot report the installation of similar branches in all localities from which appeals have come, it is gratifying to report a lively interest by citizens in all parts of the city, and to learn from the report of the trustees of the library that it is their intention to extend the service as rapidly as their means will permit.

It is hoped that the donation of fifty dollars by your Civic Committee as a nucleus for a fund for children's books may be added to by general contribution and tend to add to the newly awakened interest in our Public Library.

Anna Elizabeth Whitcher, Chairman.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Many of us remember the time when a Woman's club meant a little group of women, who met to study Browning and Emerson, and Shakespeare and other serious literary lights. Their aim, self-culture, their ideal, the Boston Woman, of whom it was said, that, "You could always tell a Boston Woman but you couldn't tell her much."

As we have listened to the reports of our chairmen of departments, this afternoon, we must all be gratified to see how the Quincy Women's club has improved upon that old ideal. From every department we have heard of good work done, for the children, the young women, the sick and the poor of our city.

It is not necessary for me to repeat the the specific instances of our work,—that has been told in the reports of our departments, but your president desires to emphasize the need of continuing the altruistic spirit that now exists.

"Work," says Mrs. Philip Moore, the president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, "Work is not a penalty but a spiritual opportunity of the highest order."

It is through work for those who need help that we gain, as one of our earliest lectures, told us, the highest and best kind of self-culture:

"For if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not."

There is one department of our work that to the mind of your president demands your most careful consideration and your most devoted help. The Young Women's club is one of the finest models of true philanthropic spirit in action, that we can find. It is true as has been said, that the club has not reached the kind of girls, we wanted, but we have reached the girls who wanted the club.

Those of us who have watched the development of the Young Women's club have seen how girls of all classes have come together in the meetings, how those who have been favored by birth, environment and education are helping their less favored sisters to reach a higher place in life than is now theirs. And some of us older women have felt we might learn much of beautiful unselfish kindliness from these girls. But they have not our experience and they need our help. The future success of the Young Women's club depends largely upon us. Your president strongly recommends that the needed help be given by the women of this club, that more of us attend the meetings of the Young Women, and stand ready to help them by suggestion or by teaching, the various branches of education that they may need or desire.

In my report of last year, some statistics of the president's special work were given. That has largely increased during the past year particularly in the matter of letter writing, 298 letters have been written by her this year, about club matters against 135—the previous year. Many of these have been to members of Congress—and have had reference to bills, concerning children, pure food and conservation. The creation of a legislative department is a wise innovation that will relieve future presidents of much of this labor. One of the important acts this year has been our entrance into the General Federation of Women's clubs. An act that will doubtless be of much benefit to us.

In conclusion, your president wishes to express her heartfelt thanks to you all,—officers, chairmen of departments and members for your loyal and most helpful support. You have, indeed, been more than kind to her virtues, and to her failings you have been, apparently, blind. The past two years have brought to her many new, but dearly prized friends. They have been pleasant years and for that and for all the unnamed but ever remembered kindnesses, she, from the bottom of her heart, thanks you.

Claire H. Gurney.

Following the president's address the tellers were ready to report, the election resulting as follows:

President—Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard.
1st Vice—Mrs. Wilson Marsh.
2d Vice—Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham.
Recording Secretary—Miss Edith Randall.
Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. Percy Holman.
Treasurer—Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham.
Auditor—Mrs. Thomas Fenno.
Directors—Mrs. Albert E. Avery, Miss Alice G. Coe, Mrs. Edward E. Jameson, Mrs. Albert W. Parker and Mrs. Edward S. Tenney.

Mrs. Gurney the retiring president gracefully welcomed the incoming president bespeaking for her the same cordial support accorded herself in such large measure the past two years Mrs. Sheppard responding in a few gracious words. Beautiful bouquets of pink roses were presented to the retiring and new president by the Hospitality and Music committees, Mrs. William H. Doble making the presentation. These floral offerings were made possible by the contribution of club members to the work of the Hospitality committee.

An informal reception brought the meeting to a close, during which the Hospitality committee served punch and crackers, the committee being Mrs. S. E. Ames and Miss Prescott and the pourers Mrs. Edwin E. Davis and Mrs. Andrew J. Garey.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Mrs. Sheppard who will wield the gavel for the next two years is well fitted for the position being well known socially, her home on Greenleaf street being the scene of many delightful gatherings and she has been active in many organizations in years past. The Mothers' Association grew rapidly in numbers and interest during the two years efficient leadership of Mrs. Sheppard. From the time the first sod was turned for the new building of the Y. M. C. A. until its completion Mrs. Sheppard by her influence and enthusiasm kept the work of the Auxiliary to a high standard of activity. She is greatly interested in the work of the Quincy Day Nursery being at the present time first vice president of the Association. In Bethany church Mrs. Sheppard has been an active member for some twenty-five years. Since the formation of the Quincy Women's club six years ago she has been one of its most active members serving the club in various capacities, being especially successful as head of the Hospitality committee, so that she now takes up the duties of president as one experienced in club work. Under her administration the Quincy Women's club will continue to grow in influence, constantly broadening its scope and be a power for good.

A special meeting of Wollaston Masonic lodge was held Tuesday evening.

Some floral plots are being laid out in the lawn in front of the High school building.

The family of Benjamin Johnson are moving today from Hancock street to their summer home at Adams shore.

St. Stephen's chapter will exemplify the Mark and Past Master degrees at its regular convocation tonight.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. Chrysostom's church held its regular meeting in the parish room Tuesday afternoon.

The Girl's Friendly society of St. Chrysostom's church met in the parish room Tuesday evening for regular business.

A women's prayer meeting was participated in by ladies of the Wollaston Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dresser, South Central avenue.

The Pastor's class in the Fundamental Principals of the Christian Faith met in the parsonage of the Wollaston Baptist church with Mr. Walther Tuesday afternoon.

A cottage prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street, Tuesday evening. James H. Hill was leader of the meeting.

All persons interested in the welfare of West Quincy are invited to attend the meeting of the improvement association in St. Jean hall Thursday evening.

Both sides of Upland road have been planted with young maple trees. If they live and grow it will not be many years before the street will be greatly improved in appearance.

Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard who moved to Sherborn last fall was in town yesterday to attend the annual meeting of the Quincy Women's club and received a most cordial welcome from club members.

A meeting of the Charitable Tens Circle of the King's Daughters will be held Monday, May 15 at three o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Frank S. Davis, 25 Elm street. This being the last meeting before the summer recess a good attendance is desired.

A rehearsal of "The Piper" will be held in the Parish room of St. Chrysostom's church this evening. This play, which is a dramatized version of "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," will be given at the time of the annual lawn party.

The Boys' club of Christ church will hold its regular business meeting this evening at 7 o'clock. The boys are very much interested in the two plays which are to be given by members of the club on May 18 in the parish house. Mr. Erastus Osgood is coaching the casts.

A gang of men were at work all Tuesday night repairing that part of Hancock street near the corner of Saville street. This is the part of the street that was recently rebuilt with crushed stone and tar. The tar came through the surface and on a warm day it melted and several ladies had their skirts ruined by trailing through it.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many societies, relatives and friends, for their kind assistance and words of sympathy in our sad affliction and the expression in flowers, of love for our departed dear one, at the funeral, we return our sincere thanks and appreciation.

A. Beach and Margaret Ruthven Lang are well-known Bostonian composers and now comes Miss Magdalen S. Wooden of New York to submit her interesting composition to music lovers. Mrs. Child and her assisting singers will interpret the new work as the second part of the concert. The first part being made up of solos and duets that have been carefully selected for their musical worth and pleasure giving qualities.

BATTLE LAST A WHOLE DAY

Many Casualties In Fierce Contest In Juarez

CITY IS FIRED BY REBELS

They Control More Territory Than Do Federals, but Position of Latter Is Well Nigh Impregnable—Fighting Forced In Face of Fire From Machine Guns—City Looks as If Hurricane Had Struck It

El Paso, Tex., May 10.—What perhaps was the fiercest battle of the Mexican revolution was fought yesterday at Juarez, across the Rio Grande, but without result.

Last night both federals and insurrectos rested on their arms, while the light from burning buildings fired by the rebels gave occasional glimpses of a federal force cooped up in the church from which they could not be driven in the all-day fight.

At least five persons have been killed on the American side of the line since the skirmishing began Monday and about fifteen have been wounded, while the loss on the battlefield is variously estimated at from 30 to 60 dead on both sides and about 75 to 100 wounded.

General Navarro at 7 o'clock last night agreed to stop the firing while the insurrecto wounded were removed. The federals have adequate facilities and are caring for their wounded within the town.

All day the battle raged, the insurrectos swarming through the streets of Juarez and meeting the heavy fire of the federals with an equally vigorous volley of musketry. The rebels claim the town. While it is true that they actually control more city territory than do the federals, the position of the government forces is so well fortified that it is well nigh impregnable.

The strength of the federal position is largely due to the fact that the rebels are scattered. If the rebels were lined up in battle formation they probably could storm the federal stronghold, which apparently consists of six places, namely, the barracks, the church, the theatre, the schoolhouse, a hotel and the custom house. But the insurrectos suspect that a detachment of nearly 300 federals with a machine gun is concealed in some unknown place in town, and they are hesitating to move in close formation for fear of a flank attack.

The rebels forced the fighting in the face of the fire of the federal machine guns. They dared not gather in too great number for an attack on the federals, because the artillerymen of Navarro many times demonstrated the accuracy of their range when they shelled adobe house, behind which insurrectos had sought protection a half mile from Juarez, while skulking along the river front.

General Navarro is said to have mined most of the houses in Juarez, and, when he gets word of an insurrecto gathering, it is believed he will be able to inflict a terrible slaughter.

Many deeds of bravery on the part of the insurrectos were witnessed from the American side of the line. An actual view of the fighting in the streets of Juarez showed the insurrectos as more than holding their own.

The sun beat fiercely on the battlefield and late yesterday a fire, started by the insurrectos, filled the streets with clouds of suffocating smoke. The postoffice and several adjoining buildings are in ruins.

Juarez looks as if a hurricane had struck it. Wires are suspended from jagged telegraph poles and the streets are filled with plaster, adobe debris, window glass and splinters.

Signs and awnings are punctured and torn. Many brick buildings have holes in them, and not a few of the characteristic adobe houses of the town are without roofs.

The terrorized inhabitants were under cover all day and many were injured by the hail of bullets.

Bullets continued to sing across the Rio Grande to the American side, but the casualties were fewer than on Monday, owing to the efforts of the United States troops, who have kept sight-seers several hundred yards from the river.

There were many sorties during the battle, the rebels maneuvering to draw the federals from their fortifications. The mortars of the government troops kept up a deafening fire for several hours, but without any effect other than to prevent the rebels from swooping down on the federals from the foot-hills west of Juarez.

The insurrecto artillery proved of little value and the revolutionists wrought more destruction while within Juarez by tossing dynamite bombs about, wherever they thought federals were concealed, than with their cannon. One of the bombs is believed to have set the postoffice on fire.

During the day two Americans were wounded in El Paso by bullets from either federal or rebel guns. One was a woman sitting in her home. She is not seriously hurt. The other was on forbidden ground.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO DR. AND MRS. E. N. HARDY

Addresses by Prominent Citizens and Clergy of City

Dr. and Mrs. Hardy Receive Several Handsome Presents

The four corners of the city were gathered together and made as one in Bethany chapel Wednesday evening to do honor to Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Noah Hardy who are soon to go West where the beloved pastor of the Bethany Congregation will take up his work with a new people in LaGrange, Illinois. Hundreds of people from Quincy and a large number from out of town joined in making the reception one of the most memorable ever held in this city. Many who would like very much to have been there were unable to be present but even so there were probably 600 people or more at the reception during the course of the evening..

Refreshments were served by a committee of ladies headed by Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. W. H. Sidelinger, Mrs. Walter Rice and Mrs. John Bell served, assisted by ladies of Bethany circle and members of the Philathea class. Music was furnished by the Bethany church choir and the soloists accompanied by Madame Beale Morey, Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt and Mrs. Charles Sampson.

Addresses were made by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, Brooks Adams, Edward Southworth, Mayor William T. Shea, Rev. A. M. Thomson and Theophilus King.

All of the speakers told of the personal affection they had for Dr. Hardy, how valuable a citizen he was and what a good friend he had been to all. His interest in civic affairs as well as in religious work, the breadth of mind and vision and his wisdom and insight were all emphasized by those men, prominent in the affairs of the city, who had found in him a true friend.

Theophilus King, the last speaker of the evening paid a very fitting tribute to Dr. Hardy and his wife and family and in behalf of the church presented him with a very heavy purse of gold. Mrs. Hardy received a beautiful chain and pendant from the ladies of the church. The pendant was a pearl and diamond sunburst. Mrs. J. F. Welch, president of Bethany Ladies' Circle made the presentation.

A set of resolutions was presented to Dr. Hardy by the church.

The Elks gave Mrs. Hardy a very handsome bouquet of roses, pinks and calla lilies and Dr. Hardy received a gold mounted stylographic pen. Mrs. Andrew Stewart presented Mrs. Hardy with a bouquet of pinks and the Bethany Ladies circle and Deacon R. D. Chase also gave bouquets of pinks.

Dr. Hardy in response to the numerous presentations spoke very eloquently and feelingly of his love for the church and his many friends in Quincy.

He paid a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Hardy saying that whatever success he may have had in conducting the work in Bethany church, was due to the constant encouragement and helpfulness of Mrs. Hardy.

The affair was much less lugubrious than had been anticipated and, although all felt the pangs of parting, the cheerful attitude of Dr. Hardy made it much easier for everyone. He

THE KINCAIDE Policies

Three of the principals on which the Kincaide business has been built and on which it will continue to stand.

JUSTICE—not alone to those who buy from us but also to those from whom we buy and to those who work with us and for us.

INDUSTRY—active and tireless in conducting our business on right lines and in finding ways to better it by making it more serviceable.

TRUTH—for its own sake and as a concomitant of justice, truth unvarnished, undiminished, uncolored, PLAIN.

Adherence to these is a duty we owe to the public. They are not mere abstract qualities to us, but vital, compelling forces in the upbuilding of a business.

MAY FESTIVAL QUINCY POINT

Supper, Sale and Entertainment by Ladies Aid

The annual May festival of the Quincy Point church held in the vestry Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society, was the most successful ever held in the church.

The sale opened at 3 in the afternoon with the following ladies in charge: Fancy table—Mrs. Marcus S. Wight, apron table—Mrs. Charles H. Sherburne, candy table—Mrs. Walter Perry, cake table—Mrs. T. R. McKenney, punch table—Mrs. E. R. Stone and Mrs. E. H. Bushnell ice cream table—Mrs. Mary Bailey.

Supper was served at 6.30 and over 120 people were seated at the tables. The menu included baked beans, cold meats, salad, pies, rolls and coffee and those who have ever been to a Quincy Point supper will only need to be told that it came up to the standard, to appreciate what a good supper was served.

The following ladies acted as waitresses—Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Bonney, Mrs. Holman, Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Bushnell, Mrs Lincoln and Mrs. R. H. Newcomb

At 8 o'clock an entertainment was given by nine girls practically all of whom were in Mrs. C. W. Newcomb's class. Mrs. Newcomb and Mrs. Fred Drake trained the girls and the result of their efforts was made very plain to the audience.

The girls all did splendidly and both acts were gone through without a hitch. "The Rainbow Kimona" was the name of the play and the scene is laid in a college girl's room. The title of the play was the name of the society to which all the girls belonged.

The plot hinged on the suspected kleptomania of the new senior. Rose Jackson, the little colored maid was accused later but finally the matter is cleared up by the revelation of the "ghost" which Rose declared she had seen and which proved to be no other than the girl who had been loudest in her accusations of the new senior, walking in her sleep and bearing a collection of scarfs and pieces of jewelry which she had collected during her perambulations.

Marie Lorentben who took the part of Rose Jackson was very funny and kept the audience in an uproar by her manoeuvres and little speeches. The members of the Rainbow Kimona society looked very dainty in their kimonas and all took their parts remarkably well.

The cast:

Nellie Van Tassel, the President of the "Rainbow Kimona Society" Doris Carter

Ruth Ashton, the Vice President Jennie Gibb

Alice Marion, the Treasurer Nellie Lorentsen

Isabel Sutro, the Secretary Viola Jones

Beatrice Courtney, the Class Poet Freda Grages

Oliver Mercer, President of the Basket Ball Team Eva Forrest

Winifred Turner, Student Mabel Roache

Edith Jones, the new Senior Madaline Betts

Rose Jackson, Miss Penelope's impish little colored maid Marie Lorentsen

During the evening piano duets were rendered by Mrs. Charles P. Marshall and Miss Helen Lincoln.

Business was brisk at the different tables and everyone had a good time and at the same time did his share toward the financial success of the festival.

ABIGAIL PHILLIPS QUINCY CHAPTER

Delightful Afternoon with Mrs. J. J. Warner

The Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R., was entertained at the residence of Mrs. J. J. Warner, 146 Taylor street Monday afternoon, the Vice Regent Mrs. Edward E. Jameson in the chair. Reports were read by the secretary, treasurer, corresponding secretary, registrar and historian. The Outing committee, Mrs. W. E. Hingston, chairman, has planned several historical trips for the summer and early fall, including Quincy, Boston, Concord, Lexington and Dedham.

Resolutions on the death of Mrs. M. W. Marple were prepared by the historian, Mrs. George Taylor and accepted by the chapter and placed in the records.

Mrs. Waterhouse delegate gave a very full report ofthe National Congress at Washington. She with Mrs. Roger H. Wilde, alternate, attended a reception at the New Willard given by the Massachusetts State Regent, Mrs. Dunning, and also the reception given by President and Mrs. Taft at the White House on April 19, to the D. A. R. About 2,000 Daughters were received and welcomed. President Taft also gave an address of welcome on Monday the opening day of the Congress at Continental hall.

Mrs. Ida Waterhouse and Mrs. Roger H. Wilde are delegates to the State Conference of D. A. R. to be held in Worcester, May 23.

May 22, the Sarah Bradley Fulton Chapter entertain at the Royall house in Medford. The Old Concord Chapter of Concord has opened a tea room in the old Tolman mansion recently purchased by the D. A. R.

The annual meeting of the chapter will be held at the home of Mrs. Ida F. Waterhouse in June.

The musical program of the afternoon consisted of piano selections by Miss Muriel Warner and a group of patriotic songs pleasingly sung by Misses Ramah Baker, Muriel Warner and Pauline Randall. Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Quincy was introduced by Mrs. Antoinette Paige and read a very interesting paper on the "Old Cemetery in Quincy." Much time, thought and study must have been given to the preparation of this paper for Mrs. Marsh not only told of the location of some of the oldest and most noteworthy graves and read the epitaphs some curious, some pathetic but she also told the histories and legends connected with many of those buried there.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Marsh, also the young girls who sang.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Baker, Miss Randall and Miss Warner.

SALAD SUPPER.

A excellent salad supper was served at the parish house of Christ church Wednesday evening by the ladies guild, it being the last affair of its kind to be held until fall. The supper was served at 6.30 and was partaken of by a hungry party who had their fill of most excellent salad of several varieties, such as potato, vegetable, cucumber, and salmon. In addition to this there was cold ham rolls butter and coffee, and gelatin with delicious whipped cream

Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker was the chairman of the committee having the supper in charge and assisted by a large corps of attentive waiters gave excellent service.

After the supper the Rector announced that although there were several of the officers of the church present anxious to speak there would be no speaking of any kind. There was however a table loaded down with some toothsome home made confections which he hoped would be well patronized.

It was intended to have some little entertainment but on account of the reception to Dr. Hardy this was omitted.

GRANITE MANUFACTURERS WANT A PUBLIC DOCK

Competition Would Reduce Freight Rates and Bring More Business to Quincy

Committee Appointed to Consider What is Best Adapted for Needs of Granite Business

That a public dock would be a great benefit to the granite manufacturing industry of Quincy was evident from the sentiment expressed at the open meeting of the Manufacturers' Association held Wednesday evening. The meeting was called to discuss this all important question. Invitations to be present had been extended to all the business organizations of the city and the members of the City government. While there was a good representation present the many other events held the same evening kept others away.

President John C. Murray called the meeting to order and stated that the granite manufacturers were much interested in the question of public docks and had given the question some consideration. He believed the time ripe to take up the question.

After the meeting had organized with Mr. Murray as chairman and T. J. Dunphy as secretary Mr. Murray said the manufacturers were not prepared to say just what was wanted. We in Quincy are behind the times as far as transportation goes as we are handicapped by the railroad and if it was possible to get a means of transportation by water he believed it would not only increase the granite business but stimulate other business as well Just get the facilities and the business is bound to come He believed it would bring business to Quincy.

The important question was where to locate. He did not believe in going to Quincy Point as the expense of transportation so long a distance would be large. Make the haul as short as possible.

MAYOR SHEA

Said that some time ago he had requested Dock Commissioner Crane to look into this all important question. The first thing to decide is where we want the dock and what kind of a dock would be best adapted for the business interests of Quincy. These questions can be arrived at by discussion at meetings of this kind. He did not think that the administration go at this alone but that the people should say what they wanted and we at City Hall will do all we can to further the project. We want to get the public opinion and it will take several of these meetings. Then all the views can be boiled down and we can arrive at some definite conclusion. There are plenty of business concerns looking for locations and if we have dock facilities we can offer inducements for them to come here.

He believed any money expended in dredging out the river would be well spent.

JOHN Q. A. FIELD.

Did not want to express an opinion now as he did not understand the question. If the time was ripe he would like to be told how to do it. You say the rates are too high. He did not know of any law that would allow the people's money to be expended for public docks.

Mr. Field than told of the schooners that formerly transported granite from Quincy but stopped for lack of business. Freight could not be shipped by water to New York as cheap as by the railroad as there would be too much handling to do. Many things have got to be considered in the shipping of granite by water. How to get to the wharf, and facilities at the dock. He wanted to see how business would be benefitted by a dock. Mr. Field then branched off to the derrick at South Quincy.

Getting back to the main question he said he understood that the wharf near the Electric Light plant had been leased for a number of years.

Mayor Shea said in reply we are trying to improve the granite business and the whole business of Quincy. If there is no law that will allow us to build a dock we will go to the legislature. Let us take a broad view of this question. Let us consider whether we can attract business of any kind here. If we can develop our waterfront and induce other plants to come here it would be a good thing. It might be feasible to run the trolley freight from the sheds and quarries to the docks.

Mr. Field replying said if you are to use the trolley freight the freight could be landed as cheap at Quincy Point as Bracketts wharf.

JOSEPH WALKER.

Was very enthusiastic over the question. It was not a question of the past but of the present and future. The granite industry of Quincy called for a public dock. He believed the sentiment of the whole state was for the development of water fronts. Nothing would so induce business to come here as a good water front. He believed a committee of 25 should be appointed to look into the question, A committee who know what the needs of the city are.

COMMISSIONER CRANE.

Read from a printed report what was being done elsewhere in the way of public docks. Before appointing a committee we should decide if the granite men want a public dock or simply a pier. A dock where vessels can come in at all times or wharf available simply at high water. If you are to ship to distant points we have got to consider deep water facilities. We have got to have connections with the dock by trolley freight or steam railroad. It was up to the granite men to say what they wanted. Will a public dock cheapen freight rates? Get down to business and find out what you want.

ANDREW MILNE, JR.

Said any man in the granite business will tell you it is time to do something. He believed there was much work that would come to Quincy if we had facilities to land it. Anyone figuring to cut a job of out of town granite is in the dark as to how much it will cost to get the stock here. He then spoke of some of the difficulties he had experienced in getting a shipment of Maine granite to Quincy.

He had been told that the lack of water competition was the reason railroad rates were not cheaper to Quincy.

JOHN L. MILLER.

If we had a water front dock we could sell all our grout which we can not now handle for lack of a way to ship. There is nothing better for concrete building than Quincy granite if we had a way to ship it. The getting rid of our waste material is worth more than the cost. Then we would see a dock bring other business. We have not got the service from the railroad that we should have for a city of our size as we are at the mercy of the railroad who would have a different tune to sing if we did have.

He believed that if Barre had the facilities for shipping by water that we have we would see their business three times what it is because they have the push. Why should we pay 75 cents when we can ship by water for 35 cents. He then spoke of a case where it took four week to get a car from Quincy to Georgia that would have gone in four days by water. He believed that with a dock vessels could carry away granite and bring back iron. It was for the business interest of Quincy to holler for water front development.

Mr. Field replying did not think there would be any market for Quincy granite as Cape Ann granite was better. Quincy granite was not the right shape.

Commissioner Crane said we want a dock but we want to have it right. He did not expect teamsters would be pleased with it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY

Said if we had as good a water front as Rockport we could beat them. We want to develop our water front not alone for the granite business. There

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Our people are travelling thousands of miles to see the coronation, while sensible Londoners are preparing to take to cover until the racket is over.

The fashion plates continue to model women after a peg-top, but the great majority of sensible womanhood never gets far from the bell outline.

Labor troubles used to prevail May day, but the workingman realizes pretty well now that when he strikes he usually hits his wife and children first.

Senator Crane is said to have brought the warring senatorial factions together. He must have stocked the pie counter with the kind mother used to make.

April showers were scarce this year over the bulk of the country, and the people who have run off with their neighbors' umbrellas have delivered themselves to the enemy of souls for nought.

It is a little surprising that when so important a matter as the widening of Hancock street between Granite and School streets is up for consideration that so little public interest is shown. At the last meeting of the City Council there was a public hearing on this proposition and although advertised in all the local papers and a notice was served on all of the abutters not one person appeared either for or against the proposition. The question of widening this main thoroughfare is a most important one and the time is not far distant when the widening must be made. That it will be an expensive job there is no question, but it can be done cheaper now than later. Every year the widening is put off adds to the expense. Another street that must soon be widened is Washington street, the main thoroughfare leading to towns along the south shore. The travel over this line by street cars is enormous and for the convenience of the travelling public the street should be double tracked.

In this case the street railway has volunteered to share the expense when the widening takes place.

SAVING NIAGARA FALLS.

A persistent campaign is being made by the power companies to divert more water from these falls that are one of the wonders of this planet.

According to the appeal issued this week by the American Civic association, the companies now demand an increase of 68 per cent in the amount of water used in their turbines. The current flowing over the American falls is already thin in spots. If more is taken, the unbroken span of surging tide will be cleft by the rocks that will be left dry.

To many of our people, the argument for the sake of beauty has no force. To them naked brick walls, belching smoke stacks, ghastly cinder heaps, look much better than the majestic sweep of a falling torrent, because they mean that someone is storing away dollars in his strong box.

The United States has never had many ruined castles nor Gothic cathedrals with which to attract visitors from the old world. Consequently the stream of travel from across the water, compared with our tourists who visit Europe, has been small.

Our natural wonders, Niagara, the Yellowstone, the Yosemite, the Rocky mountains, have however ,a world-wide reputation for scenic grandeur, surpassing anything to be found in the tamer scenery of Europe. A certain number of Europeans come over periodically to see the wonders wrought by the God of Nature in our streams and mountains.

And this return tide of travel is tending to increase, and no doubt it brings a revenue to the people of the United States as great as the profits of the power companies.

Why should one of the things that bring this travel, profitable to the whole people, be ruthlessly marred, in order that a few wealthy corporation stock holders should be permitted to make fatter dividends?

Of far greater moment than this, is the argument for beauty for its own sake. Who that has heard the thunder of Niagara's age long voice, that has stood in awe at the titanic force that could throw up this stupendous dam, can bear to think that these sublime tones shall be allowed to fade under the paralyzing hand of vandal man?

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Nation wide observances began the past week, celebrating the ordination of Cardinal Gibbons to the priesthood, and the 25th anniversary of his elevation to the cardinalate.

Cardinal Gibbons is said to be the only archbishop in the world who has no carriage of his own. Although he will be 77 years old July 23, you can see him almost any afternoon, winter or summer, tramping along Baltimore's streets. In the fluttering jam of Charles street, a thoroughfare of fashionable shoppers and parading dandies, you will note a spare and erect old gentleman, with a stright rimmed silk hat, distinct in style from the modes of the moment, and with a touch of scarlet under the brim. It is James, Cardinal Gibbons, on no leisurely stroll, but swinging along at a steady pace over Baltimore's hills, at a rate that make many a visiting churchman puff. He is not usually satisfied until he has reeled off four to five miles, whether storm or sunshine is to be faced.

If you are a newspaper man seeking an interview, a churchman with ambitions, or a curiosity seeker, you will find him at his desk before the most of his townspeople are out of bed. Unless you look as if you carried a bomb, you will reach him when your turn comes. He will listen to you as if your time were as important as his. And he has almost as many calls in a day as the President of the United States.

Baltimore is a great center for epicures. While feasts of terrapin and wild duck and soft crabs irradiate the memories of many high livers, and stimulate their palate for gastronomic triumphs to come, Gardinal Gibbons lives on simple roasts and buttermilk.

Cardinal Gibbons is a writer of one of the world's "best sellers," as his book of popular theology has reached a circulation of 2,000,000. He is noted for his American spirit, and his wise and tactful leadership. But the spectacle of a man elevated to a summit of earthly dignity, who lives as simply as you or I, gives his personality a unique charm.

FACIAL PIGMENTS BARRED

Queen Mary's "Suggestion" to Women Who Attend Court

London, May 11.—The frigid and restraining hand of Queen Mary was felt again at the first court of King George's reign. The lord chamberlain, acting for the austere sovereign, had already notified the great dressmakers of London that they were to inform their customers that it was the queen's wish that hobble dresses and clinging skirts should not be worn at state functions, and after the first gasp of dismay the edict was accepted as the last word.

But other words were to come, and a quiet "suggestion" by the queen was swiftly sent abroad that lip salve and rouge should be dispensed with by the women who were to attend the court. With this suggestion went a royal concession permitting the use of face powder in moderate quantities.

And so it happened that the facial pigments were noticeably absent, and even the conceded rice powder was seen to have been "puffed" on with gentle hands.

MISS GOULD GETS SCARE

Man Monkey's Antics Lead to Calling Out of Police Reserves

New York, May 11.—A man who thought he was a monkey shed his shoes in front of Miss Helen M. Gould's Fifth avenue house and, chattering to himself, shinned up a tree. He wriggled far out on a bough overhanging Miss Gould's porch and squatted there, grimacing and gesticulating at a swelling crowd below to whom he directed a running fire of gibberish.

Someone telephoned to the police and reserves hurried up. They dispersed the crowd and ordered the monkey imitator down. He merely grinned until three bluecoats climbed up after him and dislodged him.

He then told the police that he was Joseph Blewett and that he became a monkey after reading that the little animals were received into the homes of millionaires.

He was taken to Bellevue, where his sanity will be tested.

MEN'S UNION ENTERTAINMENT

Concert and Farce at Park and Downs Church

The second night of the first entertainment of the Men's Union club took place in the Park and Downs Congregational church on Wednesday evening.

The entertainment was in two parts, the first a concert program of music and readings and the second a one act farce entitled "My turn next." Both nights were a decided success and capacity houses were played to.

Opening the program was the march "Onward" sung by a chorus of the Men's club. The chorus was conducted by A. H. C. Bishop the singing being pleasing and spirited. "The Monkey and the Chimpanzee" was given as an encore.

A quartet composed of Arthur F. Capen, T. C. Hay, C. A. Boynton and A. H. C. Bishop sang the "Spring song" with great success.

Arthur F. Capen contributed two tenor solos "The miller's daughter" and "I'll sing thee songs of Araby." Mr. Capen received continued applause and responded with "Sweethearts."

"The long day closes" by the chorus followed and "Mrs. Cozey's boarding house" was given as an encore. This humorous piece with its chorus of "Roast beef, corn beef" etc., brought down the house with laughter and applause.

Erastus Osgood delivered a monologue entitled "In a drug store." He was applauded to the echo and was recalled a number of times until he begged to be excused.

"Aunt Marjory" and "Nobody knows but mother" were given by the quartet and a duet by the Musgrave brothers, Frank and Samuel entitled the "Battle Eve." As an encore Samuel Musgrave contributed a solo "The last watch."

Closing the musical program was "The trumpet calls away" by the chorus after which those present sung America. Miss Henrietta M. Gram was the accompanist.

The plot of "My turn next" deals with the troubles of the newly married husband of a widow, who from accounts of various friends deduces that she has done away with four other husbands.

Every move on her part is taken as an attempt to do away with him. The climax approaches with a dinner scene at which "mushroom ketchup" that is supposed to be fatal is served. Explanations ensue and all ends happily. The farce was a perfect roar from start to finish and is among the best entertainments ever produced at the church. It was given under the direction of Erastus Osgood.

As Taraxicum Twitters, the ill fated husband, B. F. Perkins excelled. His part which was a complicated one was well taken.

Tim Bolus, his hired boy, was taken by T. H. Irving and his manners and costume displayed the typical Irish lad.

Tom Trap, a commercial traveller and friend of Twitters was assumed by James B. Wilson with good success while Farmer Wheatears was taken in a natural manner by Ralph P. Green.

By far the best of the three feminine characters taken by the men was C. A. Colson, as Cicely, sister of the former widow. His costume, makeup and bearing turned him into a modern damsel that would do credit to one of the college shows.

C. N. Merrill had a difficult part as Lydia, the former widow present wife of Twitters, and did well with it. As Peggy, the Irish domestic of the house H. A. Matchner was fine. His makeup and actions took off the Irish maid in great style.

The entire program brought out talent hitherto unexpected in the club which hereafter undoubtedly will not be permitted to lie idle.

PUBLIC DOCK

was nothing better than granite for concrete, but we have got to have the facilities for handling it. We should have a dock deep enough for vessels to come at all times. He believed that with a good dockage one-third of the granite would be shipped by water as the rates were much cheaper. We want an outlet for our granite. We would then create a market for our crushed stone. Let us have water deep enough for future development.

In reply to a question Commissioner Crane said that concrete under water was all right, but if it was where the ice formed about it, and it was subject to the action of the rise and full of the tide it was not so good. But in the south where much dock work is being built there is no ice, and the south would be a good market. To compete with Cape Ann we must have deep water. He believed a dock would make the railroad rates cheaper.

CHARLES M. BRYANT

President of the City Council said that he believed in public docks and did not believe in putting it off until all of the available land had been taken by private enterprises. He hoped the question would be pushed. Some one has got to make the start and why not the granite manufacturers. We want all the people to come forward with their ideas. If we can have freight come by water cheaper the competition will force the railroad down. We want to connect in some way with the main channel so that any size vessel can come here. Boston light is three miles nearer Quincy than Boston. The trouble in Quincy is the people will not take hold and push. As an illustration of this lack of push he cited the old water company, street railway and electric lights and how they had developed. Unless we make a start our whole water front will be taken away by private enterprises. He hoped there would be a committee to see about location, cost, etc., and bring it to a head.

COMMISSIONER CRANE

Urged the appointment of a committee. We have made a good start tonight. Keep it up and other associations will fall into line.

It was then voted that the sense of the meeting be that we need a public dock.

COMMITTEE.

It was voted that a committee of five be appointed to include the chairman who should investigate the question and report back to a future meeting as to the kind of dock best adapted to meet the needs of the granite industry.

The meeting then adjourned.

—There are 16,000 lawyers in New York city, and it is said that the great majority of them do not make to exceed $1,000 a year. This would seem to carry the implication that a majority of the New York lawyers are in law because they like it, and not because there is money in it. And this is complimentary rather than otherwise to the profession.—Christian Science Monitor.

TAYLOR TERRACE.

Probably many people in our city do not know that one of the large properties in the north part of the city belonging to the Taylor family has been developed gradually into a most desirable residential section known as Taylor terrace. This old homestead lies to the east of Hancock street between Wollaston and Norfolk Downs and contains many acres of land. Broad streets have been laid out, trees planted and artistic houses built, all under the personal supervision of the owners. The property is restricted which insures permanent and desirable people as residents. A few more houses have been completed; an excellent opportunity for some one to purchase a home. Fuller details may be found in an advertisement in this issue.

ROOSEVELT ON DECK DURING CAMPAIGN

Story About Polar Expedition Is Called Nonsense

New York, May 11.—Theodore Roosevelt will not spend the summer of 1912—presidential year—in hunting polar bears in the Arctic with an expedition led by Captain Bartlett, late of the Peary polar expedition, but will be right here in the United States, attending to such matters of importance as may develop at that time.

The authority for this is Roosevelt himself. A contrary impression has been given in an item sent out to the newspapers, which quoted Bartlett as authority for the statement that big game hunting in the Arctic has more attractions for Roosevelt than the next presidential campaign, as the colonel now sees it. Bartlett, the item said, had Roosevelt's acceptance pledged.

The Times telegraphed to Roosevelt at Oyster Bay asking him if it was true that he proposed to put in the summer months preceding the presidential election in an Arctic hunting trip. Quick as the telegraph wires could carry it came back this reply: "Nonsense."

EIGHT YEARS OF FRAUD

Teller of Cleveland Bank Said to Have Stolen $114,850

Cleveland, May 10.—For alleged peculations amounting to nearly $115,000 Julius W. Hopkins, paying teller of the First National bank, was placed under arrest. It is stated that he has confessed that during the last eight years he had embezzled a total of $114,850 of the institution's funds.

When arraigned before Commissioner Walther the accused waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to await the action by the grand jury. Bond was fixed at $60,000. He was unable to give bail and went to jail.

The Golden Rod appeared this week and was hailed with great delight by the pupils of the school. This number comes up to the usual standard and varies but little from previous numbers. There seem to be more short stories than in previous editions.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is well written and shows that the author has travelled in Europe to some extent or is familiar with the literature and the geography of the European countries. The motivation is good and the author works up to the climax very skillfully and not without some real humor.

"That Mule" is a humorous little anecodte of the courtroom which omits the machinery of the law but gives us a little insight into the mechanism of the mule.

The third story "Such is Life" is an amusing little sketch which gives added proof to the real raison d' etre of the "woman hater." It would be a dangerous experiment to accuse the author of having had experience so we will merely make the statement that he is a good story teller.

"The Price of Pork" is another anecdote which savors very strongly of the modern college boarding house and shows quite conclusively that "where there's a will there's a way."

"Mazie's Cake" is a delicious morsel which shows the attempts of various members of the family to give well intentioned assistance to the cook and the resulting conglomerate flavor proves the old adage which is paraphrased by the author.

"Just for a piece of Calico" was evidently written by a person of experience, presumably a boy, who has witnessed the results of the fearful fascination women have for the bargain counter and has been made slightly cynical thereby. The plot is slightly overdrawn but is none the less interesting and amusing.

The last story in the magazine "The Twenty First Century" brings us right into the midst of the electrical age a la Jules Verne, and if the prophecies contained therein are true, we of the twentieth century, that is, we mere men, have reason to rejoice that we shall slip this mortal coil ere the twenty-first arrives "when everything is governed by machinery, electricity and Women."

The writer has a good imagination and the ability to tell a good story after the manner of Frank R. Stockton and Jules Verne.

The editorial and athletic sections are of the usual type and the jokes are up to the standard set by previous editors.

The cartoons are especialy good and the subjects were happily chosen.

GOING BACKWARD?

If Christianity is the highest type of civilization — and who can deny it?—then is it not true that we are retrograding instead of advancing on certain lines? We glory in our system of universal education, in our enormous wealth and in our territorial expansion. But these advantages are not evidences of Christian progress. Two thousand years ago pagan Rome had all these temporal advantages. The wealth of the nations poured into her lap. Her empire extended over three continents. She far excelled us in arts, in oratory, poetry, philosophy and literature and in all the refinements of cultivated society. Her paintings and sculpture, her literary productions, are still our models. And yet while she was in the zenith of her material and intellectual splendor she was in a state of moral and political decay. In fact, she was lapsing into barbarism.—Cardinal Gibbons.

"I am glad to see that one thing has been brought to the attention of Congress," said the man who is perpetually indignant.

"What do you mean?"

"The necessity for a universal standard of weights and measures. What we wante right away is som scheme that will make fifty pounds of ice weigh just as much in July as it does in April.—Washington Star.

SPRINGFIELD DYNAMITING

Burns Says That McManigal Confessed to the Job

THE LOS ANGELES DISASTER

Detective Expects No Trouble In Selection of Jury to Try Accused Men—Encountered Many Difficulties In Collecting Evidence—Expresses Surprise at Careless or Ignorant Manner In Which Men Handled Dynamite

Boston, May 10.—William J. Burns, the detective, who recently added to his fame by securing the arrest of Ortie McManigal on charges of being concerned in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times building and doing other similar jobs in different parts of the country, arrived in Boston yesterday. He came here from New York city and left last night for Chicago, where he will stop off on his way to Los Angeles.

In speaking of the Los Angeles case and sixty-eight others with which he claims McManigal has confessed that he was concerned, Burns said that the Springfield municipal building was one of those which McManigal claims to have blown up.

"I expect that the Los Angeles Times trial will begin within a month and I am on my way there to prepare for it now," said Burns. "I do not expect trouble over the selection of a jury. Everything will be conducted above board; it could not be otherwise with the whole country watching. I am working in this matter for the city of Los Angeles, having been employed by Mayor Alexander.

"To give some idea of what we were up against in getting the facts in this case, I want to say that a lot of private detectives worked out there and the grand jury tried to call me before them to make me tell what I had found out. To have done so probably would have spoiled the investigation and would have given the guilty ones a chance to escape or cover their tracks.

"I knew what the grand jury wanted and so kept out of their reach. I did not submit any reports to the mayor and I told him that if I did the grand jury would try to find out from him what I was doing. They did call him before them, but as he knew nothing of my doings he naturally could not tell them. I kept none of these records in the Los Angeles office. Here again I was wise, because they called my local manager, but he could tell nothing. My office was broken into that night. Now who is to blame for that break I do not know, but I have my opinion. Perhaps later on I shall try to find out."

Mr. Burns told of the risks run by the men who used the dynamite on the buildings and bridges, saying that he had found on inquiring among experts on high explosives that they probably had taken far greater chances than they realized. He claimed that they had carried dynamite in hand grips and suit cases on trains and also that he had found an empty satchel at the railroad station in Toledo which had become soaked in nitro-glycerine, so much so that if it had by chance been scraped by a piece of sandpaper it probably would have been blown up.

The fulminating caps used in connection with the explosives were found, in one place, in the same room with the dynamite. In fact, the detective declared that the careless or ignorant manner in which the dangerous materials had been handled was such as to stir wonder.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Quincy People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Quincy cures are the proof.

Mrs. J. Boyle, 8 Marsh St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can say they are unequaled for curing kidney disorders. They built up my system and in six weeks, freed me from kidney complaint from which I had suffered for a long time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

How to Fight Colds.

Never go to bed chilly; it is the surest way to take cold. Exercise hard for five or ten minutes before retiring, put your feet in cold water, followed by vigorous rubbing, and take a hot water bottle to bed for your feet. When you feel a cold is coming take whatever remedy you are accustomed to use for breaking it. Most families have some sure cure, but neglect to use it until the cold has a grip. A mustard foot bath and hot lemonade are good, provided one can keep warm at night. It should not be taken by mothers who must be out of bed several times at night with their children. A simple cure that will break a cold if taken at first symptom is a teaspoonful of powdered ginger in a glass of hot milk.

BRIEFS

St. Margarets Guild holds a business meeting Friday evening promptly at 7.30 and at 8 o'clock Mrs. W. E. Burke will address the Guild.

A reception is to be given tomorrow night in First Church chapel for Rev. Charles B. Ames, assistant pastor of the church, who is leaving in June for a parish of his own. Mr. Ames has been connected with First Parish for two years and has made many friends here.

Mrs. John D. Mackay chairman of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club, having in charge the past two years the summer school and children's garden work, appealed to Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge for some government seeds for the children of Quincy. She was pleased to report at the annual meeting of the club on Tuesday that a large package of seeds had been received, accompanied by a letter from Senator Lodge.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston has ordered all flags on public buildings raised Sunday in honor of "Mothers' day," and requested the pastors of the various churches to make some reference to the mothers in their sermons on that day.

AN ANONYMOUS LETTER

Prosecution Introduces It as Evidence Against Mrs. Dodge

Guildhall, Vt., May 11.—Attorney General Sargent presented his strongest piece of evidence in the trial of Florence M. Dodge for murder, when he introduced an anonymous letter received by him last December, the contents of which professed to tell how William A. Heath was murdered.

H. W. Shaylor, a handwriting expert, identified the writing as that of Mrs. Dodge. The defendant denied writing the letter.

Around this letter now hinges the outcome of the case. By it the state hopes to discredit Mrs. Dodge's story.

Counsel for the defense fought hard against the admission of the letter as evidence and the comparisons by Shaylor, but Judge Hall ruled against them and the letter and the testimony of handwriting experts were admitted.

SURRENDER OF THE FEDERALS

Victory of the Mexican Rebels at Juarez Is Complete

NAVARRO GIVES UP SWORD

Federal General and His Garrison Will Be Treated as Brothers Rather Than Prisoners, the Insurrectos Holding Diaz Responsible For Loss of Life and Suffering of Wounded—Town Which Federals Thought Impregnable Falls After Comparatively Easy Effort on Part of Rebels

Juarez, Mex., May 11.—This little bullet-riddled city is the provisional capital of Mexico and Francisco I. Madero, Jr., provisional president, and his staff have taken possession of it after winning the bloodiest battle of the Mexican revolution.

In a corner room of the barracks in which for two days he held out against the fire of the rebels, General Juan Navarro, the federal commander, is a captive, for he surrendered with almost his entire garrison of several hundred men.

His face is sunken, his head is bowed, and he does not talk. Bitter defeat has disheartened him.

In contrast, in another part of the town, is Madero, the conquerer, surrounded by members of his family and his staff, joyous and flushed with victory; yet ready, he says, to make peace with the Mexican government if it is disposed to deal frankly and sincerely with the revolutionists and without such "vague promises as President Diaz' manifesto contains."

In hotel lobies, store fronts and hallways, the improvised hospitals of the battlefield, are scores of wounded, attended by numerous physicians and nurses from El Paso, who have volunteered aid.

A conservative estimate of physicians, as well as of insurrecto leaders who surveyed the fighting, puts the federal dead at nearly fifty and the rebel loss at about fifteen, with a total of nearly 250 wounded on both sides. The actual number lost probably never will be known, for deserters were many and the dead have been buried quickly.

Among the dead federals are Colonel Tamborel and Captain Sachudo. The former, a few days ago, taunted the rebels as cowards.

On the American side of the line five have been killed and about seventeen wounded, many of them being innocently engaged at a distance from the river.

The actual surrender of the town by Navarro took place about 1 o'clock. Navarro gave his sword to Colonel Garibaldi of the insurrecto army after the rebels had entirely surrounded the barracks and threatened to annihilate the garrison within.

His eyes became dim with tears as he surrendered, but Garibaldi, with a handshake that bespoke his admiration for the gallant resistance the federal leader made, assured him of the desire of the rebels to afford him every courtesy. Twenty rebel officers rode up and expressed to the federal commander, as Mexicans, their sympathy for him and his men.

The same fraternal feeling prevails in the whole insurrecto army for their countrymen who have been defeated, but words of opprobrium for President Diaz, whom they hold responsible for the loss of life and the suffering of the wounded, are heard on every side.

General Madero, when he arrived yesterday at the corral where the federal prisonerss are quartered, made a speech full of sympathy and encouragement, lauding them for their bravery and assuring them that in his heart as well as in those of his men there was no enmity, but uniform friendliness.

"You fought for General Diaz," he said at the conclusion of his speech, "because you had to, because you were a part of that system which we are trying to dissolve. In a few days perhaps peace will be restored. You soon will be free. If the war is to be continued, you can have your choice of being paroled or joining the army of liberation. In the meantime we shall treat you as brothers, not as foes."

With shouts of "Viva Madero," the throng of prisoners and insurrectos who gathered to hear him threw their hats skyward and shouted in deafening applause.

A few minutes later, down the main thoroughfare, was heard the galloping of horses and soon the insurrectos' standard, the Mexican national colors, waved in the sunlight. Behind it rode Mrs. Madero. An escort of cavalry accompanied her. Her face was beaming as she spurred her horse to the scene of her husband's triumph. The shouting increased as the two embraced and entered the Madero headquarters.

Orders were issued by General Orozco to his men to guard stores and houses to prevent looting. The general himself shot at two of his men whom he caught trying to make away with some booty.

JUAREZ CUSTOM HOUSE

Important Building In City Taken by the Insurrectos

The town federals thought impregnable fell after a comparatively easy effort. The house to house advance and the same deadly fire, which drove the federals from their trenches and outposts early Monday when skirmishing began, gave the rebels, who were hardly affected by the federal artillery, an entrance to the town. At the close of Tuesday's fighting the rebels had extensive control of the place.

During the night they discovered the federal strongholds, and by the use of dynamite bombs and shells, a conflagration and fierse rifle fire fought their way to the famous old Spanish church, the brick of which formed a barricade for the federals. The insurrectos took the church at midnight. The federals retired futher into the city to the roof of the municipal building, the edges of which were piled with sand bags.

After the assault was renewed Wednesday and the rebels had brought their machine guns within effective range, the federals retired to the barracks and insurrectos by the hundred occupied the houses within 100 yards on every side. Their fire was rapidly demolishing the builindg and there was no other alternative for Navarro but to yield.

Finally at noon Navarro hoisted a white flag. He first attempted to send a messenger to Senor Obregon, one of the go-betweens in the recent peace negotiations, asking him to arrange for a cessation of hostilities or for an armistice, but the rebels would accept nothing but immediate surrender.

DEMOCRATS FAVOR FREE WOOL MEASURE

Its Sponsors Claim to Be Certain of Its Passage

Washington, May 11.—Representative McCall of Massachusetts says that the Republicans will take no action on the revision of "schedule K" until after the Democratic program has been fully ascertained. He denies current rumors that he is ready to introduce a bill to this end, and says that he has no knowledge whatever that his side of the house will make any such move in the immediate future.

Both Mr. Harrison of New York and Mr. Peters of Massachusetts, who are leading advocates of free wool, say that a free wool bill will be reported and will pass the house under any circumstances. They have the votes. As far as New England is concerned Peters says that his canvass revealed every Democratic member solidly on his side except Mr. Murray of Massachusetts, who, he said, had expressed a desire to think the matter over more carefully.

AN APPEAL TO FOSS

Pothier Wants Bay State to Take Care of Rhode Island Leper

Boston, May 11.—Governor Pothier of Rhode Island has written a letter to Governor Foss asking the chief executive of Masaschusetts to use his influence with the state board of charity here in an effort to have them rescind their decision forbidding Harry Sheridan, the 15-year-old Pawtucket boy, to become an inmate of the Penikese island colony.

If the board still refuses to admit the boy, the state of Rhode Island will be forced to buy an island off its coast for the sole use of the Sheridan boy. He is now under guard in his home in Pawtucket.

Governor Pothier makes the request of Foss because he has been asked by Mayor Easterbrook, City Physician Richards and City Solicitor Blodgett of Pawtucket to take this action.

LIEUTENANT KELLY FALLS FROM AIRSHIP

Army Aviator Almost Instantly Killed at San Antonio

San Antonio, Tex., May 11.—Lieutenant George E. Kelly of the Thirteenth infantry, U. S. A., was killed in a fall from a Curtiss aeroplane at Fort Sam Houston.

He was making a flight, and when about fifty feet from the ground shot forward from his seat, landing on his head. His skull was fractured and he died in a few moments without regaining consciousness.

Kelly was a pupil of Glenn H. Curtiss in aviation and came here about three weeks ago from San Diego, Cal., where he had received his first lessons. It is believed the accident was caused by the unexpected starting of the engine while Kelly was making a landing.

CANADIAN PACT FIRST

Reciprocity Treaty With Newfoundland May Then Be Taken Up

Washington, May 11.—Secretary Knox, while ready to enter into negotiations with Newfoundland for a reciprocity arrangement upon lines similar to the measure now pending before congress, has decided to await the action of congress on the Canadian bill before proceeding with what would be a useless task in the event that the Canadian arrangement fails.

Newfoundland has little to offer as a basis for exchange besides her markets and a free fishing privilege, but it is believed that the consideration would be sufficient providing the Newfoundlanders were willing to remove existing export restrictions on pulpwood and pulp, which were imposed with a view to inducing American papermakers to erect their mills in Newfoundland.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 11.—Every workman at the navy yard who draws pay from the yard pay office for the next week wil be obliged to sign the name of John E. Watt to a pay voucher as well as his own name to his pay slip.

Somebody forged Watt's name to his check while he was off duty for $2100, and the government hopes in the exhibition of handwriting of the nearly 1500 men to detect the forger.

EXPENSES ARE HEAVY

State Department's Need of Money Is Explained by Wilson

Washington, May 11.—Assistant Secretary of State Wilson testified at a hearing before the house committee on expenditures in the state department. He explained in detail the workings of his department and the circumstances that led up to the reorganization under Secretary Knox.

The department's contention is that the country's foreign relations have grown so intricate and far-reaching that the existing machinery for carrying on the work is inadequate. Wilson said that since the Spanish war, conditions have arisen that demanded not only an enlargement of the department, but also means for specialization.

Many questions were asked Mr. Wilson looking for an accounting for new bureaus and individual positions that have been created under the present regime.

Leaders Disturbed Over Opposition to Bronx County Bill

New York, May 11.—Four Tammany district leaders in the Bronx went to Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, yesterday afternoon, to tell him that it was their intention to resign and quit Tammany hall unless Murphy ceased opposing the legislative measure making the Bronx a separate county.

After the conference Murphy announced that the leaders would not resign from the organization. He is said to have urged them to consider the matter for a week.

GRAFT IN OHIO LEGISLATURE

Effective Evidence Said to Have Been Discovered

PREPARING "IMMUNITY BATH"

Senate Plans to Investigate Itself, Thus Preventing Bribery Prosecution of Members—Action Strongly Opposed by Governor—House Rebukes Upper Branch by Voting For Repeal of Immunity Statute

Columbus, O., May 11.—That "the surface only has been scratched," was the announcement made by the prosecuting attorney regarding the graft scandal in the Ohio legislature. Orpha Moore, secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers' association, followed this with the declaration that there would be fifty members of the legislature indicted. There are 117 members in the house and thirty-four in the senate.

Moore, through the organization which he represents, worked for months to secure evidence to indict grafting members of the legislature. Various bills were introduced which the manufacturers opposed. The demands for money from legislators were so insistent that the Manufacturers' association financed a campaign to entrap the grafters.

It was the association's money that employed the Burns detectives, who came here, posing as lobbyists, and declare they bribed five senators and representatives, securing evidence through the use of a distagraph concealed beneath a couch in the room where the bribe seekers sought them out. It has developed that the evidence which these detectives secured, that has been made public through the indictments already brought, is but a small part of that secured through other means, equally effective and spectacular, and on which the additional indictments, now confidently predicted by both Moore and the prosecuting attorney, are to be based.

Under the laws of Ohio those testifying before a legislative investigating committee are immune from punishment. The testimony they give may not be used against them. Governor Harmon, the members of the Ohio Manufacturers' association and many of the members of both house and senate have for this reason been consistently opposed to a legislative investigation of the bribery charges.

The senate, however, in defiance of the governor's wishes, passed by a strong majority, vote a resolution selecting an investigating committee of ten to inquire into the charges that members have solicited and received bribes. Not only did the accused body thus vote to investigate itself, but it took the unprecedented action of naming, in the body of the resolution, the men who are to serve on the committee.

Heretofore it has been customary for the lieutenant governor, the presiding officer of the senate, or the president pro tem, to appoint committees. It was therefore generally conceded and understood that the senate was providing an immunity bath for itself.

Governor Harmon had authorized his secretary to say for him that he is opposed to the senate or house making an investigation until after the grand jury has finished its work. The governor wants it to be impossible for any senator involved in the bribery charges to obtain immunity.

Senators who supported the resolution explain their course by saying that the grand jury investigation cannot and will not give clean bills of health to those senators who are free from all taint of bribery, and unless they are cleared by a legislative inquiry they will be under a cloud with their constituents.

As a rebuke to the senate for appointing the committee there was introduced and passed unanimously in the house a bill to repeal the immunity clause, or that section of the statutes which provides that testimony given before a legislative committee cannot be used in the criminal courts against the witness. Representative Greeves, author of the bill, declared that the senate was trying to whitewash itself and that it was up to the house to act quickly. Floor Leader Langdon took the same view and the bill went through.

LOVE ON ICE.

One winter afternoon after Dr. Arnold Scherner had come home from his desk in the Bureau of Finance, eaten his dinner, and stretched himself on the sofa to enjoy a cigar and a French novel, his young brother Hans burst into the room and said:

"Alma Holdesheim asked me to return this book with Adrienne's thanks."

"Why didn't you give it to me at once?"

"What was the hurry?"

"That is my affair. Now get out!"

Hans "got out" and banged the door. Arnold opened the book at page ten and copied on a piece of paper certain letters which he found marked by almost imperceptible pencil dots. The transcription read:

"I must see you tomorrow. Meet me at Haller's at four."

The Scherners were a family of officials. The father was a bureau chief, the oldest son, Gustav, a provincial governor in Dalmatia; Arnold was in the Ministry of Finance, and Hans was preparing for a government position. The only daughter had married an official.

Arnold was very ambitious. Social rank and consideration he had, what he wanted was money. It had never been too abundant with the Scherners and Arnold fully realized its power. Hence he had resolved to marry it. As his friend Rudolf used to say, "It is possible to love a girl, even if she is rich."

He had the entree to the best families in Vienna, but if he should go to a rich man and demand his daughter's hand, it was doubtful whether his own prospects of official advancement would counterbalance the lack of present fortune. Clearly then, the thing to do was to capture the heart of a rich girl, preferably a very young one, and so enlist the aid of love in overcoming parental opposition.

His first budding sweetheart was carried off by a predestined cousin, the second was dazzled by a lieutenant's epaulets. Then,on the ice—everybody skates in Vienna—he met Alma Holdesheim, and on his first visit to her house he met her sixteen-year-old sister Adrienne, and marked her for his own. Pretty, modest, well-bred, and, most important of all, unsophisticated, and not yet "out," she seemed the very girl for him. In the Vienna equivalent of Bradstreet, old Holdesheim was thus labelled:

"Owns a large spinning mill, an estate in Bohemia, and a town house in Vienna. Estimated to be worth 600,000 gulden; income, 18,000."

This was satisfactory. There were three children, and Adrienne's dowry could be reckoned at 150,000 gulden. Arnold's wooing began on the ice. Hitherto Adrienne had skated only with girl friends, and a few of their young—very young— brothers, who "didn't count."

Dr. Scherner was the first real man who had paid her any attention. He handled her skillfully. As long as they were alone he treated her in a familiar, comrade-like manner, but in the presence of others he showed her the elaborate politeness due to a grown-up young lady, and both of these things pleased her.

And as he was handsome, witty and well-bred, it was no wonder that "little Adrienne" fell in love with him. During the summer his memory was kept green by the 178 souvenir post-cards which he sent her.

In the following winter she made her debut and Arnold met her everywhere. He made himself her shadow so that she once naively said: "If I go anywhere and you are not there I miss you so!"

Adrienne's mother, not being blind, could not fail to notice Dr. Scherner's attentions, and their favorable reception by Adrienne.

"Pshaw! She is only a child," old Holdesheim replied to his wife's warning. "What if people do talk about it? Scherner is an honorable young fellow, and his father will be in the ministry some day."

The ensuing summer strenghtened the bond between the lovers. Arnold had induced his father to spend the vacation in the vicinity of the Holdesheims. The young man might have done so alone, but he was unwilling to attract the attention of Adrienne's parents too strongly until he had made sure of her love.

This certainly came in the course of the summer and the first vows of love were exchanged. "The third day comes a frost, a killing frost," and the third winter Adrienne caught cold and was not allowed to skate or dance. The lovers met rarely, and hence the device of borrowed books and marked letters.

But this was not the first frost. Early in the season Adrienne had discovered that Dr. Scherner was not the only young man who cared for her society, and social success made her coquettish. She meant no harm. Arnold, she thought, ought to recognize cheerfully her right to hold a little court, like other girls. But Arnold did nothing of the sort, but made the mistake of yielding to jealousy.

Resolved to nip the growing evil in the bud, he scolded her, and thereby made matters worse.

Adrienne was offended that he could think her a flirt, and waited for him to make overtures toward reconciliation. But he obstinately maintained the role of the offended party, and was very cold and distant.

"Firmness is necessary with a woman," he said to himself. "When she sees that she can play with you, your influence over her is gone for ever."

Meanwhile, something that Adrienne would never discovered had become very evident to her mother—namely, that Arnold Scherner was simply in quest of a well-dowered bride. She knew that the Scherners were comparatively poor, and was not in favor of an alliance with them. But she was too wise to warn Adrienne directly. Instead, she undertook her financial education, initiating her into all the details of the family resources and expenditures. Adrienne learned to her astonishment that her own fortune would amount to 150,000 gulden.

This seemed like an immense sum, but it dwindled marvelously when she learned that it represented an annual income of only 6,000 gulden, about a third of what she would require in order to live in the style to which she had been accustomed.

Clearly, then, her husband must have an income of at least 12,000 gulden. Then Mamma Holdesheim one day capped her argument by remarking innocently that Dr. Scherner's salary of 3000 gulden was a very high one for so young a man. Here was a sad discrepancy. "I shall have to economize," thought Adrienne.

At another time her mother said:

"Arnold must marry a rich girl. I wonder that he has not asked for your hand, as you and he seem to like each other. With your money he could do something for his family."

Adrienne had expected opposition, but she was not prepared for cold mathematical demonstration.

Shortly before this, Alfred Mortell, the son of a rich brewer, had come upon the scene. His reception had not been encouraging, for the little rift within the lute had not yet appeared.

Now, Mortell was accustomed to receiving an unpleasant amount of attention and flattery from young ladies and their mammas, and he said to himself:

"Thank heaven! Here is one girl who does not care if I am rich and unmarried."

This feeling inspired the hope of winning Adrienne by his personal merits, and he began to court her assiduously.

She was barely civil to him, but Arnold's jealousy was aroused, as has been said. After the lover's quarrel, Adrienne devoted more attention to Mortell, partly to punish Arnold, partly because she was not entirely free from vanity, and knew how many girls were envying her the conquest of the young millionaire.

Then came the suspicion that Arnold was in love with her money, and then came a ball at Mortell's luxurious house.

Last of all came her father with the news that Alfred Mortell had asked for her hand.

She begged for a week of deliberation, though her mind was made up. She wanted the week in order to be off with the old love decently and in order. The rupture, she was determined, should be made by Arnold, not by herself. She wished to appear well in the world's eyes and his, for, after all, she loved him in a way, and was grateful to him for the little romance he had given her. Hence the rendezvous at Haller's. There, after the waitress had brought the perfunctory ices and retired, Adrienne said:

"I have bad news for you. You must promise to listen calmly until the end. Then you will understand and perhaps pity me."

"At one time, you know, we were wealthy. Until a little while ago I supposed that we were still wealthy. I knew, indeed, that papa within the last year has had to pay large sums on my brother's account; but still I could not understand why, when we were alone together, he always seemed so anxious and troubled. But the other day he told me that my brother had squandered enormous sums, and, not daring to confess to papa, had tried to cover his losses by speculating in stocks, the result of which was that he lost a deal more. In fact, as he had power to sign for the firm, he has gambled away not only all his own fortune, but most of papa's and ours.

"Papa has succeeded in obtaining a delay in the payment of the largest debts, he says.

"When papa told me this, I tried to console him by saying that I, for one, did not care so much about money. Then he told me the whole truth. The debts amount to more than we can pay. Unless we receive assistance from some source, the firm will go into bankruptcy."

Adrienne paused, but Arnold said not a word. She had glanced at him once or twice to discover the effect of her communication, but she did not dare to look at him squarely for fear he would read the lie in her eyes.

"Such being the state of affairs," she continued, "I resolved, after thinking and worrying over it a good deal, to ask you to give me up. I cannot consent to chain your fate to mine, and, besides, I feel compelled to sacrifice my love for you to my love for my father.

"The shame of bankruptcy would kill him—I must save him from it. You know how."

"Beer?" said Arnold. He was surprised, but never dreamed of questioning the truth of her statement.

Adrienne shrugged her shoulders. "Beer, or banking, or railways. What is the difference? I am in the market for the highest bidder.

"But—hm! But cannot I, perhaps assist your father? It is true that I have nothing but my salary. Is the sum—I mean the sum necessary at once—so very large?"

"A good many thousands." There was a long pause. "I cannot give you up." Arnold said at last.

"But you must; I cannot let you sacrifice yourself."

"But I love you, Adrienne!"

"As I do you, Arnold. But we must."

Another long silence. Then Adrienne said: "I must go now, I will give you until Sunday to decide. If you love me truly you will give me up and not tempt me from my duty. Do not make my heart heavier than it is!"

"If I receive a picture postcard from you on Sunday, I shall know that you agree with me. Goodby!"

She sprang up and was gone before he could make any effort to detain her. Arnold sat looking at the untasted and melted ices.

"Two years wasted!" he muttered. "And I believe I am really in love with the little thing. Confound it! But a bankrupt father-in-law? Never! After all, it might have been worse. Suppose it had come after our formal betrothal!"—N. Y. Evening Post.

NOT CERTAIN IT IS DESIRABLE

Some Congressmen Opposed to the Steel Trust Inquiry

FEAR IT MAY HIT EMPLOYES

Resolution Likely to Be Passed, However, When It Comes to a Vote—Bay State Representatives Favor Investigation of Charges of Monopoly of Contracts For Supplying the Navy With Shoes

Washington, May 11.—Before this week is out, the house Democrats propose to lay bare the secrets of the United States Steel corporation. By Saturday at the latest, Representative Stanley, author of the resolution providing for a committee of inquiry, will return from Kentucky and he will at once, as a member of the rules committee, move that the house consider the resolution, which will be passed forthwith.

This will commit the house, in a single week, to investigations of the sugar trust—the American Sugar Reining company—the boot and shoe and navy contracts, and the steel trust.

Although it seems a foregone conclusion that the Stanley resolution will be passed, there is opposition to it even from the Democrats. Several of them, who have steel mills in their districts, oppose the resolution on the ground that, as the steel trust has a profit-sharing system in which its employes share, the depreciation of the stock will react on the employes. Others contend that an investigation of the steel trust will enable certain Wall street bears, who are short on steel, to clean up without loss.

The answer made to this charge by adherents of the Stanley resolution is that not to investigate, after the press notices to the contrary which have been repeatedly made, would give Wall street steel bulls an opportunity to make an unprecedented killing in behalf of the already rich stockholders. When it comes to a vote, few if any Democrats will have the boldness to oppose the resolution, and many Republicans will vote for it also.

There was a hearing yesterday before the house committee on military affairs relating to Representative Gardner's resolution calling for an investigation of the charges made by Representative Diefenderfer on the floor that Herman & Co. of Boston have a monopoly of contracts for the supply of shoes to the navy.

Congressmen Weeks and Gardner of Masaschusetts apepared before the committee to urge the favorable report of the resolution. Herman & Co. were represented at the hearing by Judge Hogan, the company's attorney in Washington. These men claimed that since the charges have been made it is only fair that the company should have the benefit of a full and thorough investigation.

The Gardner resolution, which calls for an investigation from 1908 to the present, will very likely be supplanted by the one offered by Diefenderfer, which calls for the facts from 1901. The resolutions will be reported favorably.

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucepans, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

Dealers everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

BRIEFS

Charles E. Durgin of Winchenden is in town today visiting friends.

Meeting of Ward Four improvement association tonight.

Meeting of Committee on Streets of City Council tonight.

The Christian Science church held its mid-week meeting in Alpha hall Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Dennis Pittipit of Conant street who has been seriously ill at the Carney hospital has returned home very much improved in health.

Peace on arbitration day will be observed May 18 under the direction of Mrs. Anna J. Gould, patriotic instructor of the Women's Relief corps.

Mrs. A. R. McMullen returned to her home on Hancock street on Wednesday from a visit of several weeks at Farmington, N. H.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the famous missionary to Armenia, whose capture by brigands a few years ago, brought the whole world to the rescue, will speak in Bethany chapel this evening at the meeting beginning at 7.30.

Mrs. Agnes G. Fletcher Past Protector of Maple lodge, K. and L. of H. 313 is receiving the congratulations of members of the lodge and of friends on her unanimous election as guardian on the board of grand officers at the annual grand lodge meeting held in Boston Wednesday.

James Duncan, first vice president of the American Federation of Labor and Secretary—Treasurer of the Granite Cutters union was the speakers Wednesday evening at the banquet tendered by the Boston unions to the officers and delegates and women visitors to the biennial conventions of the hotel and restaurant alliance at Faneul hall.

CONTEST STANDING.

At the close of the St. John's bazaar Wednesday night Miss Hattie Daley was still leading in the contest for the most popular unmarried lady.

Miss Daley now has 75 votes to her credit. The other two candidates are Miss Vera Burke who has 38 and Miss Mary Driscoll 25. A garrison finish is looked for Saturday night.

CURIOUS FIND.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick and daughter Miss Minnie Hardwick were making a tour of their grounds at the corner of Washington street and Revere road, looking at the shrubbery and plants. They came to a clump of catnip which they decided was useless and as Miss Hardwick pulled it up she was attracted to something clinging to the roots. On investigating it proved to be a gold ring in good condition and bearing the initials E. V. H.

The ring had been given to Dr. Everett V. Hardwick now of Dorchester when a small lad and as boys do he soon lost it. He was playing ball when it disappeared and it could not be found. After many years it has come to light and will probably be prized by the Doctor in memory of boyhood days.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT'S FIRE.

The alarm from Box 25 at 8.45 Wednesday evening called the department to a fire in a small shed at the end of Brackett street. The shed was distroyed with a small loss. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Arabella—"What do you meditate about during service?"

Isabella—"Well, partly my own sins and partly the sins of my friends and neighbors."—Cincinnati Commercial tribune.

RECEPTION

could not help sorrowing because this leave-taking was necessary, but he assured his friends that he was not going to say good bye. "This little period of separation should not make us grieve so much" he said, "for when we meet again we will be all the happier for it."

The credit for the reception is due to the ladies of the church and especially to Mrs. J. F. Welch who has been the leading spirit in making preparations.

Dr. Hardy preaches his farewell sermon on Sunday and starts for La Grange, the midle of next week. Mrs. Hardy will stay in Quincy until the schools close in June and will then go to New Hampshire with the family where Dr. Hardy will join her the first of July.

HOUGHS NECK.

The 30 foot power dory owned by Samuel Knopf of Manet avenue which was sunk off Manet beach has been brought to the Quincy Yacht club for repairs.

George Leonard and Frederick Trickey of Brockton are guests of relatives here this week.

A masquerade is to be held at the Bungalow this evening.

A supper is to be held in the Union chapel next Wednesday evening.

Mr. Moses is not wasting any time in letting the Pandora stores. Two palmists from Boston are to occupy one.

The "Togo" owned by Arthur Lane was launched Wednesday.

The meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates came to order Wednesday evening at 8.30 with President Wall in the chair: Chairman P. F. O'Brien of the street committee made a report ,which was accepted as progressive, the matter to be brought up at the next meeting. Chairman E. P. Powers of the cake-walk and dance committee outlined his plans for the entertainment to be given May 16.

The prettiest party of the season will be given May 29 at the Bungalow, by the Baysides.

The "Dartwell" made its appearance here this week ,and the "Iris" and "Josephine" will be with us Sunday.

The Quincy Yacht club minstrel show will be held Thursday evening in the smoking room.

Mrs. Charles Morey had a narrow escape Wednesday afternoon from serious injury. Some one had placed a large milk can full of water on the stove to heat with the stopper in. As the water commenced to heat Mrs. Morey was attracted to the stove by a crackling noise and as she went to investigate the can exploded scattering water and steam all over the room. Mrs. Morey escaped with a few burns on her face and neck which are not serious and feels that she was fortunate in not being badly scalded.

MUSICAL MOUNTAINS.

Singing Cliffs In the Pyrenees and Roaring Sands In Hawaii.

In certain parts of the world are mountains and hills which are said by the natives to sing. In the Pyrenees certain cliffs emit plaintive sounds resembling the strains of a harp. Two other cliffs in the same chain are called the "snorers." When the wind is in the southwest they send forth a peculiar sound not altogether musical. The faces of these cliffs are marked by deep gullies, open in front, which may be compared to the pipes of an organ. At certain times a stratum of air, held between the cliffs and bordering trees, closes the openings while the wind blows freely between through the gullies, or organ pipes, behind; hence the music that is heard.

At the confluence of the Orinoco and the Rio Meta are granite cliffs which ring at sunrise. Humboldt refers to the phenomenon as the musical stones of the Orinoco. The music is caused by the rush of the expanding air through fissures partly closed by mica.

Many more examples might be cited to show that nature makes use of principles which have been adopted by man in the creation of musical sounds. Nor are the musical sounds of nature confined to rocks, mountains and hills, for in Hawaii is a sand bank fifty feet high which, when the hand is moved about in the loose sand, produces a sound like that of a melodeon. It is said that if the observer slides down the bank on his back, dragging both hands in the sand, the sound becomes as loud as faint thunder.—Harper's Weekly.

Shakespeare In France.

I once stumbled upon a choice bit of French quotation from Shakespeare. It was a tale by Uchard.

The distinguished author of this tale rendered "Frailty, thy name is woman," by "Fragilite, c'est le nom d'une femme" ("Fragility, that is the name of a woman").—Strauss.

A Woman's Compliment.

"I admire your hair, dear."

"Thanks."

"But isn't it a good deal of trouble to find that peculiar shade in the shops?"—Washington Herald.

HIGH LOSES TO BROCKTON

Mannings Home Run a Feature

Score 6 to 3

Quincy high was defeated by Brockton in a well played game on the Brockton field, Wednesday afternoon by a score of 6 to 3. Quincy played much better than in previous games but the errors were costly and the boys were unable to bunch hits on Gaxton the Brockton pitcher. Manning's home run, the second one to be made by a high school player on the Brockton grounds, was the feature of the game. H. Chapman made a good two bagger. Two good double plays were made by the Quincy team, Holmes and Manning figuring in the first and Anderson and Hill in the other.

Manning and M. Chapman got two hits apiece and Pfaffmann, Blackmur and H. Chapman. Murphy was given a tryout at second base near the end of the game but he did not get any chances in the field. Holmes and Pfaffmann showed up well in the field.

For Brockton, the playing of Sullivan and Spillane was especially good.

Lewis Devine was fined $20 and Merle R. Poole $10 for exceeding the speed limit at Milton.

George B. French was sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Frank Burns alias Timothy J. Shea was held in $1000 for the grand jury for breaking and entering at Quincy.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Frank Burns who is known to the police under the name of Timothy J. Shea w rrested by Chief Burrell and officer Olson, Wednesday night for breaking and entering the drug store of George W. Gragg at Quincy Point.

The store was entered Tuesday night by forcing the rear door and tobacco, cigars and other miscellaneous articles to the value of $7.35 was taken. The cash register which contained quite a sum of money was not molested.

The police were led to believe that Burns was the man and arrested him for drunkeness. Searching his room they found several of the articles stolen also some tools that evidently came from the Fore River.

Burns who has been arrested several times for drunkeness was arraigned in court this morning for breaking and entering was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

EXHIBITION OF CHURCH SILVER.

Francis H. Bigelow of Cambridge, an expert in old silver and colonial furniture, has been giving much of his time for the past year to the Museum of Fine Arts in their preparation for the great exhibition of church silver to be held there in the latter part of this month.

Few exhibitions have ever been held in Boston to which so much hard work has been devoted as to this exhibition, the museum officials, with plenty of outside aid, having worked for a year for it already.

E. Alfred Jones of London, one of the greatest living authorities on silver, has been to this country once already in the interests of the museum and this exhibit and he will return again. Many churches from all over New England have sent their communion services for this occasion and the best work of American silversmiths will be displayed.

The churches, realizing how safe a place the museum is for storage, are leaving their silver there and calling for it for use as needed. Among the churches using this scheme are the Arlington Street church, the First church and King's Chapel. At the time of the big fire and bigger fire scare at Marblehead last winter, the churches of that town were delighted to know that their silver was carefully stored at the museum. The arranging of these communion sets for the exposition will be the work of many hours.

The First Congregational society of this city which has some rare pieces of 17th and 18th century silver is to loan them to the exhibition.

Physiognomy Not Reliable.

I am a profound disbeliever in physiognomy. Features are false witnesses. Stupidity frequently wears a mask of intelligence. I know business men who look like poets and poets who look like business men. Men of genius invariably look like idiots, and if you pick out the man who looks most eminent in a party you are sure to find he is a nobody. I always distrust men who look magnificent. Nature is a stingy creature. She seldom gives a man the double gift of being great and looking great. She took care to lame Byron and deform Pope and disfigure Johnson. But the crowning example of her jealous parsimony is Shakespeare. I have always been disappointed with Shakespeare's face. It does not live up to his poetry. It is dull, heavy and commonplace.—From "Adventures In London."

His Honest Face.

"Anyway, he has an honest face."

"Honest? You surprise me."

"Yes; it's the only honest thing about him. It shows how dishonest he really is."—Life.

W. C. T. U. HEAR MISS STONE

Tells of Conditions in Turkey and Bulgaria

Miss Ellen M. Stone was the speaker at the meeting in Bethany chapel Thursday evening and it was the privilege of a large audience to hear her address. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Mrs. Merriman president of the local branch, presided. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy introduced the speaker. Miss Stone spoke of the great contrast felt in Armenia, Turkey and Bulgaria between five years ago and now. In fact it is within three years that the press has been given its freedom and Christian work has been allowed to go on wholly unmolested.

She spoke of the thirst for knowledge the Armenians and Bulgarians have but sounded a warning note by saying that spiritual development and mental development were entirely different things and that there is greater need of work as these people become enlightened.

In mentioning the World in Boston she spoke of the Turkey court and the Armenian children with great affection. Miss Stone is one of the leaders in the Turkey court and is a prominent figure each day for everyone wants to see and talk with the one who figured in the famous capture by brigands.

She also spoke of the Frances E. Willard settlement which is under the auspices of the W. C. T. U..

She mentioned also the work of the W. C. T. U. in the foreign countries in which she had been, and the Loyal Temperance legions and national temperance societies which were doing a great work.

In closing her address Miss Stone gave a little picture of the horrors of her captivity and emphasized the additional horrors caused by the use of American rum by the brigands. The liquor curse is strong upon the peoples of Armenia, Turkey, Africa and most of the other countries where American merchantmen sail. Thus by doing their best to abolish the sale of liquor in this country, the women are doing missionary work which will be felt in foreign fields as well as at home. After the service many of the people had questions to ask and a brief, informal discussion of various questions concerning Turkey and Armenia followed.

A. O. F. S. CLUB DANCE.

A very pretty dancing party was held at Colonial hall, Thursday evening by the A. O. F. S. club of Quincy Point. About fifty couples participated and the party was matronized by Miss Mildred Champagne and Miss Beatrice Fairfax. The floor director was John J. Comerford and Frank G. Smith the assistant. The aids were Charles M. French, James K. Morrison, Harold W. Smith and Lewis A. French.

Frappe was served during the entire evening and the comfort of the guests was was carefully looked after by Harold W. Smith and William R. French. The Quincy Point orchestra furnished the music.

At Hawick the people used to wear wooden clogs, which made a clanking noise on the pavement. A dying old woman had some friends by her bedside, who said to her:

'Weel, Jenny, ye are gaun to heaven and gin ye see ony o' oor folk ye can tell them we'eh a' weel."

To which Jenny replied: "Weel, gin I should see them I'se tell them. But ye mauna expect me to gang clan clankin through heaven lookin' for your folk."—Scottish Nights.

WILLARD SCHOOL JANITORSHIP

Civil Service Board get After School Committee

A special meeting of the School Committee was held Thursday evening to take action in regard to the election of a janitor at the Willard school. This school has had no regular janitor since the resignation of Francis Walsh the position having been filled by Raymond S. Barry who was appointed provisionally under the Civil service rules last fall. When the examination for janitors was held later Mr. Barry was unable to take examination owing to illness but he has still been kept at work as the School Committee desired to retain his services if possible.

There has been considerable correspondence between the Civil Service Commission and the School Board over the janitorship the election being put off from time to time in the hopes that Mr. Barry who took the examination in April could be reached.

It was during the month of March that a requisition was made for eligibles to fill the vacancy. and three names were certified that it was because no appointment had been made under this certification that the controversy arose.

As noted above there has been considerable correspondence over the matter but the question came to a head this week when it is understood the Civil Service Commission notified the School Board that if Mr. Barry was found to be employed after May 13, the Commission would begin proceedings under the law to compel a compliance with the Civil Service rules.

The result was the special meeting held Thursday night. The meeting was of short duration and from the names certified to the School Board that of Joseph Chippendale was selected and he was unanimously elected his employment to date from next Monday.

NEW ADAMS SCHOOL LOT

Parents and Teachers Assoc. Discuss Location

A very lively meeting was held Thursday evening by the Adams Parents and Teachers association with about 100 people in attendance. President Alfred O. Diack presided at the meeting.

A vote of thanks was extended to N. M. Spencer for his efforts in having the ashes removed from the rear of the school.

Dr. George M. Sheahan was then introduced and the audience listened to an excellent address on "The Health of School Children and how to preserve it."

At its conclusion a rising vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Sheahan.

Mr. William Campbell gave impersonations of local characters in a Canadian village which were heartily enjoyed by the audience.

An animated discussion of nearly an hour's duration concluded the evening's program. The site of the new schoolhouse was the bone of contention. Councilman George A. Bolster asked the opinion of the parents with regard to the proposed site on Water street. This started the ball rolling and some pretty sharp talk flew about the room as said ball gathered momentum.

A committee was appointed to act in conjunction with the executive committee of the association. The joint committee is to suggest suitable site for the new school and to arouse public interest and get things started as soon as possible. The committee is as follows: Robert E. Foy, Henry Sheahan, Harry Jenkins, Michael Hartrey and Robert Williams.

The committee will meet this week and go over the ground of the different proposed sites on Water street, the Marsh estate, the old High school property and School street. They will suggest to the council their choice of a site and will try to have the land purchased immediately.

After the discussion punch was served by the Hospitality committee composed of the teacher and parents of the 8th grade pupils: Miss Mary Egan, Mrs. E. Robert Foy, Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. James Brogan and Mrs. Peter Cahill.

GALAHAD CLUB.

The Galahad club of Christ church was entertained by Rev. R. E. Armstrong in the Rectory Thursday evening in its last meeting of the year. After the business session, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

This was the closing meeting of a most successful year for the club under the direction of H. C. Hallowell, Jr., and prospects are good for a very successful season next year.

OLEOGRAPHS PRESENTED

Atherton Hough and Parochial Schools Honored

Thursday was a busy day for Mrs. Anna J. Gould, patriotic instructor of Paul Revere Women's Relief corps and her assistant instructors and as a result of their days visits two school buildings are suplied with handsome framed oleographs of the origin of the stars and stripes and each school room is supplied with the stars and stripes which all American citizens love so well.

The first visit was made to the Parochial school at South Quincy where Mrs. Gould was accompanied by Mrs. Lucinda Richardson patriotic aid from Ward Three and Mrs. Nason of West Quincy. The oleograph was presented by Mrs. Gould who made a few patriotic remarks, with the oleograph were eight flags, one for each school room. In addition to the remarks of Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Nason sang several patriotic songs.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Gould accompanied by Miss M. Lizzie Furnald patriotic aid from Ward One and Mrs. Nason visited the Atherton Hough school at Houghs Neck where they received a royal welcome. Mrs. Gould presented this school with a framed oleograph and four flags, one for each school room. Brief remarks were also made by Miss Furnald and songs were contributed by Mrs. Nason.

The visitors were accorded an unusually warm welcome and the children sang several patriotic selections.

HOUGHS NECK.

A May party is to be given tomorrow afternoon in Associates hall for the children.

The masquerade at the Bungalow Thursday evening was a great success, attended by about 250 most of whom were in costume. The judges were: Mrs. Donovan, Mrs. Macomber, Miss Alice Rhines, Phil Catarius, William Whitaker, James Purcel and those to carry off the honors were: for best men's costume, a gold scarf pin—Miss Margaret Cavanagh, suit of the colonial period; for ladies, set gold collar pins, Miss Flonece Howe, Egyptian beauty or Harem skirt. Two little tots Florence Swears and Evelyn Cahoon did a colored cake walk receiving great applause. Dancing was enjoyed from eight until twelve.

—The selectmen of Wakefield have issued orders that hereafter the flag on the city hall shall be raised at half-mast at the death of a G. A. R. veteran or of a member of the Spanish war veterans. The flag has never before been raised on the death of a veteran of either war.

TO CLEAN UP WEST QUINCY

Imp. Assoc. Seeks to Make it a Place Beautiful

A regular meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association was held Thursday evening and was largely attended. Several subjects of importance to the ward came up and caused more or less discussion. In the absence of the president the vice president, John Evans was in the chair.

It was voted to communicate with the Board of Health to see if it would not be possible to have a team visit the ward once a week to carry away the tin cans and other rubbish that collects. If a favorable reply is received residents will be notified by circular.

The public dock question came up and after some discussion it was voted to endorse the action taken at the granite manufacturers' meeting Wednesday evening.

It was also voted to request all citizens of the ward to clean up their yards and plant flower seeds so that the residences may be made more attractive. In this connection the secretary was instructed to communicate with Congressman Curley to see if a supply of government seeds could not be secured for distribution. If received they will be given out by the president.

There was also some other discussion on local affairs but no definite action taken on any of the matters.

—The Lorimer case ought to warn every statesman to make a searching inquiry before accepting a Christmas present. Otherwise he may some day be confronted with the fact that the knit necktie he thought his daughter had made for him had really been bought by a syndicate of corporationists.—Denver Republican.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve, every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say "Prove it." We'll welcome the opportunity.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Begins to look like Mr. Ultimate Consumer has a new lease on life.

Chicago is going to celebrate Mother's day May 14. Mother will have to blister her hands getting up an extra good dinner for the occasion.

J. P. Morgan paid $25,500 for a Latin letter Martin Luther wrote, and we have doubts if Mr. Morgan can read it at that.

While Canadian reciprocity is getting through congress the Lorimer case will have to content itself by sitting on the fence.

Andrew Carnegie told the peace conference that Britian is his motherland and America his wifeland. He seems to have married his own sister.

While they are probing the shoe machinery trust, wish they would ask them why this year's shoes all have a tumor grown on the top of the box toes.

Congress seems to be questioning whether the trusts, which have been living in the best rooms in the people's house, ought not to begin paying a little rent.

The new pictures in the French salon are said to be conservative. Perhaps then you can tell the difference between a sunset and a plate of carrots.

People are saying that the Danville grand jury is to investigate the "political activities" of Speaker Cannon. That is a large order for any one to fill.

President Taft told the peace conference that we want no more alien territory. If other people want us to give them good government, they must pay the market price for these costly goods we have been giving away free.

SWAT THAT FLY.

Are you doing anything to make the world better for your having lived in it?

God bless the man who first invented screens. The device that has at once brought the greatest degree of personal comfort, cleanliness of household and individual safety is the door and window screen. No other invention of the last quarter of a century can compare with its worth and utility as a life and health saver, and yet, until recently, screens were used principally to exclude the fly and mosquito solely on the ground of personal comfort.

Heads of families who are looking for an investment may be assured of one that is certain of enormous returns through the prevention of sickness and maybe death by the early and effective screening of every outside door and window of their home. It is much easier to keep flies out by proper screening than to get them out once they get in. Screen your house! Scientists of all countries are agreed on one point—that the fly is carrier of disease germs—therefore, screen your house!

Flies love to feast on filth, and then get into the house and wipe their feet on your cake or baby's bottle. Screen the house! It is true they are nature's scavengers, but they spread filth and very often disease in doing their work; besides it is better to do your own scavengering by keeping clean than to have the fly do it for you; for not only is the fly a dangerous companion, but clean people are beginning to suspect that those who have flies about them are dirty housekeepers, else flies would not be there. If, therefore, you wish to bear the reputation of cleanliness in your neighborhood, be sure that your trash and manure heaps are frequently removed, and that your house is properly screened!

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

A working program for the church for the ensuing year, radically different from anything used during the past few years, and unanimously adopted by the official board at its regular meeting Tuesday evening, will be presented to the Ladies' Aid, Epworth League, Junior League and Sunday school of the Hall Place M. E. church by the pastor Rev. T. C. Martin. A public gathering and social to this end will be called for Wednesday evening May 17th in the vestry of the church.

The following officers were elected by the board at their meeting Tuesday evening: Treasurer, Charles S. Jose; collector, Robert Newcomb; assistant collectors, J. M. Francis, C. S. Jose, Mrs. F. W. Bent and Hilda Francis; chief usher, J. M. Francis.

Charles S. Jose was chosen to furnish communion elements for the church for this year. C. A. Goucher will present the matter of the pastor's moving expenses at the Sunday morning service and will take up a free will offering for the same.

BOY SCOUTS.

Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous naturalist and writer on outdoor subjects, animals, etc., who is Chief Scout of the Boy Scouts of American, is writing a series of twelve articles of particular interest to all Boy Scouts, which will be published during the coming year in The American Boy, of Detroit, the boys' magazine that is giving greatest attention to Boy Scout activities.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATIONS.

Two of the large National Associations of the summer—the National Sunday School Association and the National Educational Association—will meet in San Francisco, the first in late June, the other in early July. These are the only Associations that get one fare for the round trip. Some roads east of Chicago have not granted this though New Englanders will have no trouble in going on that rate. This is the first time since the burning up of San Francisco that she has entertained a large convention but she is now better equipped for it than ever before. San Francisco is the only city in which every hotel is absolutely new and up-to-date and in anticipation of the coming of all National Associations at no distant day there is a Convention League, composed of prominent men of affairs, who not only secure the adoption of that city as a convention point but look after every detail of the arrangements so that visitors may see the most with the least effort. They secure written agreements with every hotel and restaurant that there shall be no advance in rates and that the visitors shall have as good as there is, as good as any guests can have, for the rates.

The railroads from Chicago to the coast work enthusiastically with the Convention League giving the lowest possible rates, booming and boosting to the limit.

Not alone does the convention city exert itself but every other city in the State joins in the campaign to offer the delegates every possible opportunity to know the State and enjoy all of its attractions. The railroads west of Chicago make two vital concessions, never made in the East, whereby delegates can go by one route and return by any other, with stop over privileges anywhere en route west of Chicago.

INSPIRED BY JEALOUSY

Italian Slays His Wife and Then Surrenders to Sheriff

Rumford Falls, Me., May 12.—Two hours after she had been shot four times in the breast by a revolver held at close range by her husband, according to his confession to the officers when he gave himself into the custody of Deputy Sheriff Niles, Mrs. Joe Bill died at her home in this town.

Bill could not tell why he did it, but jealousy over another Italian is alleged to have been the cause of trouble which has been brewing for more than a year. Each had sued the other for divorce and three of their four children are in a Catholic home in Portland. The fourth, an infant, was with the mother.

Joe Bill—the only name by which he is known in this country—is engaged in the wholesale and retail fruit trade and has been following that business for at least twenty years in Lewiston and Rumford Falls. In that time he has accumulated considerable property, including a boarding house which cost $10,000 and accommodates fifty. It was conducted by the couple.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Clairvoyant of Many Aliases Is Arrested In New York

Boston, May 12.—Frank S. Ryan, who has many aliases, who is wanted here, charged with the larceny of $3000 from a woman, was arrested in New York. Ryan is a clairvoyant and, according to the police, has swindled many persons in all parts of the country.

While he had offices at 88 Boylston street in 1909, say the police, he defrauded Mrs. Anna H. Taylor of $3000. She says that he sold her stock of a concern called the "New York and Mexico Mining company" for this sum. Later he asked her to give the stock back to him, as he thought that he could sell it for her at a good profit. The woman gave him back the stock and has seen nothing of Ryan or her money since. The police claim that the stock was worthless.

This man, it is alleged, obtained as much as $15,000 from E. P. Nichols of Manchester, N. H., by means of a similar transaction. He is wanted, so the Boston police claim, in several places.

MURDER MYSTERY BELIEVED SOLVED

Bones of Man Who Disappeared Years Ago Are Found

Farmington, N. H., May 12.—The discovery of a human skeleton under a pile of stones five miles from here on the road to Middlton has revealed a mirder. According to the police the bones are those of Samuel Rollins of this town, who disappeared from his home eleven years ago.

The police say they have the confession of a woman who, with two men, murdered Rollins and afterward hid the body.

Rollins was never heard of from the time he disappeared. After a time his wife married again. She is now Mrs. Pepper. It is reported that she is now dying.

HIS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Gibbons Gives Some Advice at Celebration In His Honor

New York, May 12.—"No citizen should be a drone in the social beehive. No man among you should be an indifferent spectator of the moral, political and economic questions which affect the welfare of the commonwealth. As you are all protected in your life and property by the strong arm of the government, so should you all unite in upholding the hands of those who are charged with the administration of the commonwealth."

This was Cardinal Gibbons' response to addresses of welcome at the reception given by the Catholic club in honor of the golden jubilee of the ordination as a priest and the silver jubilee of the elevation to the cardinalate of the only American prince of the church.

QUANTRELL STILL ALIVE

Skull of Civil War Guerilla Was Supposed to Be on Exhibition

Warrensburg, O., May 12.—According to a letter received by B. F. Ross from W. O. Coleman of San Benito, Tex., William C. Quantrell, the noted guerilla leader, is alive in Mexico. He was supposed to have been killed in a battle at Taylorsville, Ky., Aug. 10, 1865, and what is purported to be his skull is now on exhibition in Topeka, Kan.

Coleman, who knew Quantrell in Kansas before the Civil war, says the guerilla will meet with his comrades at their annual reunion in Independence, Mo., next August, if he lives.

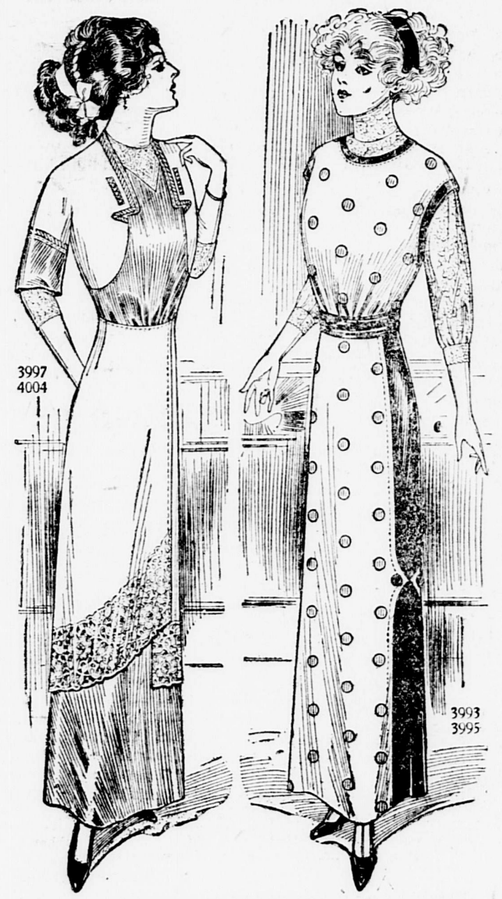
COLLEGE PLAY AUDIENCE.

Colors that Rival a Dutch Tulip Bed—Pretty Faces under Odd Hats—Girlish Frocks of Picturesque Style—Lingerie Collars and Fixings.

At an amateur play by a college dramatic club, given in the ballroom of a fashionable hotel, the vivid colorings in the hats and dresses recalled the brilliance of a Dutch Tulip bed. Coral tints and King's blue and the shouting greens of the season were all in the jumble, but the young fresh faces of the girls carried off successfully many a blend that would have been fatal to the appearance of older women.



The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

CORAL AND BLUE.

No combination is too daring. A coral silk with blue figures, had a tunic and bodice drapery of plain blue chiffon, with a sash of coral satin ribbon. Hat in poke shape of black Tagal straw, the crown made up of coral blossoms topped with an upstanding bow of blue velvet. Almost every hat one sees, has a velvet bow, or velvet facing or both.

BLUE AND WHITE VOILE.

Another frock of blue and white striped voile, had flouncings of white voile on the skirt, three of them, each topped with a running of blue ribbon that ended in a bow in front. The bodice had a fichu of the same triple flouncings edged with blue ribbon and a girdle of blue satin with a pump bow of the same in front.

ODD COATS.

No end of odd shaped coats were worn, some short, some long, some with sleeves, some without. There were short fronts and long tailed backs that looked like sashes, and many wraps built on pelerine and fichu lines. Materials were as varied as coats. Black satin, colored chiffon and Marquisette, Surah weaves, changeable taffetas, and double faced silks, with the underside in vivid blue or green tones often repeated in reveres, and piped trimmings. Pinked ruches of the taffeta was a favorite garniture not only for wraps but for hat trimmings that were delightfully youthful in effect.

LINGERIE COAT COLLARS.

Where a girl was in one of the popular coat suits of fine serge in blue, black, or lighter shades, she almost invariably wore with it a wide sailor collar of hemstitched scrim, or lace trimmed batiste—a notable fad just now. Embroidered linen is also much used for these coat sets, and often the collars are cape like affairs, and the cuffs four or five inches wide. These do much to add variety to a single suit, or to transform one that has been worn. Some of the collars form a deep point in the back reaching almost to the waist, and this is often finished with a long tassel of silk or linen thread. This type of collar is usually of crash embroidered in a melange of color, in small set designs such as are used on waists.

MARQUISETTE WAISTS.

Waists of cotton Marquisette in peasant cut have more or less elaborate patterns embroidered on the goods. Sometimes just a simple design at the top and sleeve ends, but often a very elaborate banded pattern done in heavy padded embroidery and the large French knots that so successfully imitate beaded effects. Coral, and blue, and yellow, with black outlining the figures are often used together, but very pretty waists come in two color tones for those who find the Russian combinations garish. Cluny and Irish laces and beadings are used with these waists, and the girl clever with her needle can get up stunning bodices at little cost either of money or time, for the embroideries go quickly and materials are not expensive.

GRADUATION FROCKS.

Many of the prettiest frocks to be worn for graduation this year will be made of this same material embroidered in white or in delicate pinks or blues or lavendar. One of the freaks of the years fashions is the way the young girls have adopted the lilac and purple tints that were formerly relagated to older women. The hat of purple straw with a garland of lilacs with a deep tinted rose nestled here and there, and an upstanding loop of velvet lined with rose color, is very much seen, and goes well with navy blue or black and white costumes.

Lucy Carter.

DOING ONE'S DUTY.

What a man does for others, not what they do for him, gives him immortality.—Daniel Webster.

Virtue herself rewards the toils of Virtue.—Socrates.

Our grand business in life is not to see what lies dimly in the distance, but to do what lies already at hand.—Carlyle.

My duty is what no one else can do for me.
Another may do my task better than I, but not my duty.
—Josiah Royce.

The Recompense.

"Men are so hideously lacking in self control," a young girl once said to her mother.

"Well, don't find fault with that," the mother answered. "If they weren't most girls would die old maids."

Reprimand For Tennyson.

On one occasion when Tennyson was on a visit in Ireland with Aubrey de Vere a sullen mood overtook him, and he sought out his hostess and began to inveigh against the inanity of lancing, but the lady cut him short, saying: "How would the world get on if others went about growling at its amusements in a voice as deep as a lion's? I request that you will go upstairs, put on an evening coat and come down and ask my daughter Sophia to dance."

Steel vs. Wood
Your old black-walnut desk may be a good looking piece of furniture but it isn't the modern place to keep your valuable papers, your jewelry, or money. It can burn readily, its lock is easy to pick or break, its concealment is insufficient. A steel box in our burglar-proof, fire-defying vault will cost you $5 a year—(only half the cost of a similar box in Boston). Use one and stop worrying.

FIRE CHIEFS VISIT QUINCY

Entertained at Dinner by Ex-Chief John W. Hall

Several of the well known veteran fire chiefs of the state were entertained informally at dinner Thursday by ex-Chief John Whitney Hall at his residence on Hancock street. Mr. Hall has been in poor health for some months and has been unable to keep up his associations with the Fire Chiefs' club as he would like to and the dinner of Thursday was that he might meet a few of his congenial friends about the festive board.

The house was prettily decorated with flowers by some of his neighbors and friends and Prof. Frank Wrigley kindly volunteered to play for the chiefs while they discussed the many good things set before them.

After dinner and cigars lighted an hour or more was spent in talking over old times and incidents of some of the fires which they had helped to extinguish. It was a happy day for ex-Chief Hall but perhaps one of the happiest of the party was ex-Chief H. G. Simmons of Cambridge who has reached the ripe old age of 82 years.

Others in the party were such well known fire fighters as Chief Spencer of Chelsea who was in command during the fire that destroyed a good part of that city two years ago. Chief Hopkins of Somerville, Chief Cowing of Malden and Chief Brophy of Jamaica Plain.

It was a happy gathering and as the chiefs took their departure it was with the hopes that they would soon meet again.

Q. Y. C. SMOKER.

The opening smoker of the Quincy Yacht club will be held at the club house next week Thursday evening and the program arranged is such that there should be a large attendance of members. The ball starts rolling at 8 o'clock when a minstrel show will be put on the boards by the club members and from what has already leaked out of the program it will be a hair raiser. During the show there will be seegars and after the show a lunch consisting of chowder ,doughnuts and coffee.

BARN DANCE.

The Lainolocs held a barn dance in Alpha hall Thursday evening with an attendance of about 50 couples. A number of the dancers were in farmer costume and the members of the Colonial orchestra which furnished the music were all attired in country costumes. The stage was decorated with a variety of pictures of horses, cows and other farmyard animals and the centre of attraction was a real live saw horse saddled and bridled for the chase.

A number of barn dances were enjoyed and a grand march by the Farmers' band caused much amusement. The guests marched after the band and the judges had little difficulty in awarding the prizes.

The first prize for women was awarded to Miss Clara Lundstrom. The prize was a barred Plymouth rock pullet. The second prize for women, a dozen fresh eggs, was won by Miss Irene Williamson. Owing to the scarcity of men in costume the first prize was withheld and Torval Johnson was given second prize, a bag of potatoes. The judges were Charles Helliken, Arthur Isaacson and Reginald Johnson.

The committee in charge was: Lewis Nicholson, floor director, Harry Nicholson, Torval Johnson and Theodore Gullickson.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles Boyden, Joseph M. Hatley and John J. Johnson were fined $10 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Nine clam diggers caught taking clams from the flats at Squantum were fined $3 each.

MILTON

E. D. Varney of Grafton avenue moved with his family to Atlanta, Georgia on Wednesday. Mr. Varney hopes to regain his health in the milder climate of the South.

A very successful open dance was held under the auspices of the Cunningham gymnasium basket ball team on Monday evening.

The entertainment by the Commonwealth Concert Co., and S. Thompson Blood, impersonator held in Milton Town hall Thursday evening was greatly enjoyed by a good sized audience. The combination of musical numbers and reading was most pleasing. The entertainment was held under the auspices of the Oliver Peabody Camp, Sons of Veterans.

The Milton Cubs defeated the High school freshmen in a well played game Thursday afternoon. The Cubs were defeated last Saturday by the Cedar A. A., but hope to win the victory over the Harken A. C. this week.

Mrs. F. J. Dolan of Edgehill road is entertaining friends from St. Louis this week.

William H. Rand of Bryant place has returned from a two weeks trip to Oak Bluffs, Illinois.

Mrs. Lewis Harlow of Belcher circle is entertaining friends from Stanford, Conn.

Work has been started on the fountain in East Milton square and it will be opened in the near future.

Charles Rosenquest of Petersburg avenue is suffering from three broken ribs, a dislocated thumb and a badly torn arm as a result of an accident which occurred on Wednesday while he was painting a house in Dorchester. The hook which held the staging came off the roof and Mr. Rosenquest and two men were dashed to the ground from a point outside the second story windows. One of the men, Peterson is suffering from spinal trouble and internal injuries and he is on the dangerous list. Mr. Rosenquest himself said that he did not know he was hurt till he went to see the doctor. The third man was not injured seriously.

Patrick Haley of West Quincy twin brother of Thomas Haley who died last week, passed away at his home Thursday morning. He contracted pneumonia while sitting up with his brother and died within a week.

Mr. Hyslop who has been in the Milton Convalescents home, is to be removed to a private hospital in Jamaica Plain this week.

Frank T. Richardson, the popular carrier of the East Milton post office who has been confined in the Convalescents home for some weeks is recovering slowly from his shattered condition.

Dennis T. Crowley of West Quincy has purchased all the remaining building lots in Belcher circle and it is reported that he will build a number of houses in the near future.

A number of houses belonging to the Brackett estate have been sold by John F. Keegan.

A dance will be held in Cunningham gymnasium next Wednesday evening.

The week's fire record:

The box was sounded on Monday for a larger fire in the same place, near the residence of Dr. Green.

On Monday afternoon the alarm was rung in from box 67 for a fire in a shed back of Mr. Corcoran's house on Willard street. A man who was passing by connected up the garden hose and had the fire almost out before the department arrived.

On Monday evening box 172 was sounded for a fire on the Boston side of the river.

The alarm at box 63 Wednesday was for a fire in a runabout owned by Mr. Felton of Edison street, Dorchester. The auto was standing beside the fire alarm box when the department arrived and the flames were easily extinguished.

Box 642 was rung in Thursday noon for a fire in a big pile of rubbish on Randolph avenue near School street.

There was a quiet celebration in the Baptist church, East Milton Tuesday evening when the mortgage was burned. Ice cream and cake were served by the ladies of the church.

Rev. Arthur E. Gregg, pastor of the East Congregational church was called to his home in Goffstown, N. H., this week owing to illness in his family.

The Men's club of the "White church," East Milton, will hold the last meeting of the year next Wednesday evening. Henry E. Sheldon, who has recently returned from Spain, will give an informal talk on experiences on the trip. Refreshments will be served.

OBSERVANCE OF MOTHER'S DAY

White Carnations Should be Worn Sunday

Gov. Foss has issued an appeal asking that the public recognize next Sunday as "Mothers' Day" and that white carnations be worn in memory of mother. In appeal Gov. Foss says:

"The second Sunday in May is becoming known all over the country as 'Mothers' Day,' and in many states an executive proclamation is issued to the people, asking that public recognition be accorded it as such.

"While this day is not officially designated in this state for special observance, I nevertheless feel that all citizens of the commonwealth will wish to observe the day by some special tribute of filial love.

"As good citizens we must be loyal to our mothers and fathers before we are fit to be called loyal to the state and country that they have given us, and the growth of the filial spirit is the first requisite to better citizenship.

"We have certain public days set apart in honor of distinguished Americans, but there is no honor which can be given to any of our historic men that is to be compared with the love and homage we owe to the mothers who gave us birth.

"I hope that every man and woman, boy and girl, in our state may learn to value at its own supreme worth the counsel, the self-sacrifice and the unfailing love which only a devoted mother can give; and that mothers' day will become more and more honored until it is second only to Christmas in the hearts of all.

"A white carnation has been widely adopted as the symbol to be worn on mothers' day."

OUR ACTIVE REPRESENTATIVE.

Says Representative Langelier of Quincy, the indefatigable chairman of the committee on harbors and public lands—"The Chamber of Commerce announce the sending out of 3,000 letters asking that legislators be urged to vote for the immediate release of the $3,000,000 for the development of Boston harbor. That means at least $60 wasted for postage, besides the amount wasted in the work. That bill has been buried for weeks in the senate ways and means committee. The chamber would save money by employing some live man to follow the course of legislation, and learn the progress of events. They are weeks behind the times."

"What the Chamber of Commerce ought to do," says Representative Langelier, "is to apply their leverage on the committee that is holding up the bill. Then they would accomplish something."

Apropos of what Representative Langelier says it is gossiped that one obstacle in the way of the legislation desired is personal jealousy among certain legislators as to who shall gain precedence in reporting and favoring the measure. Senator Brown of Medford breathes forth indignation against Senator Tinkham of Boston because the committee on harbors has stolen a march on metropolitan affairs in reporting the bill favorably.—Boston Record.

TELEPHONE TALK.

A new feature in the work of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company which has been started very recently is a series of lectures to employees on different subjects in connection with their work to increase knowledge and interest in the operations of the company. Members of the plant department of the Quincy district listened to a lecture in Union hall Thursday evening by W. J. Hadley, district wire chief. Charts were used to illustrate the different points in the lecture and valuable information and instruction was given regarding circuits etc. About 50 employees of the company representing all the towns of the district, Dorchester, Milton, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, South Boston, Randolph, Hull and Quincy, were present at the lecture. These will be given once or twice a month by men who are authorities in the different branches of the work and they are calculated to enlarge both the knowledge and the interest of the employees.

Shopping For a Railroad.

Strict economy in buying is the only qualification that can insure a position as shopper for a railroad.

"The woman who can be talked into paying a cent more a yard for cotton or woolen goods than is absolutely necessary need never apply for the job," said a woman who holds a railroad job. "It is my business to buy clothes for people who have been injured on our road. Pending recovery the road pays all expenses, and when patients are ready to leave the hospital they are provided with a complete set of clothing, even to rubber overshoes. Unless the patients are unreasonable in their demands we provide the kind of clothes they ask for, and no doubt many of them leave the hospital better dressed than they have ever been in their lives. Since those outfits have to be duplicated a good many times in the course of the year it is obvious that needless extravagance cannot be tolerated. The railroad insists upon purchasing all supplies, and it is imperative that the woman who does the buying knows to a thread the kind of material she wants and what she ought to pay for it."—New York Sun.

Toothless Saws.

Toothless saws have been in use cutting armor plate for a number of years. The theory of the action is abrasion by local fusion, due to the very high speed of the disk, causing so many thousand inches of surface to impinge on the metal undercut that the material acted upon is heated at the point of contact to a temperature approaching, if not equal to, the fusing point. It appears as if a very small portion of the metal being cut immediately in the neighborhood of the point of contact is first melted and at once rubbed off, thus exposing a fresh surface to the frictional action, and that this process goes on continuously while the disk is working. The temperature of the disk must necessarily be much lower than the work in contact with it, owing to its large surface area, and when it is considered that all the frictional energy of the rotating disk is concentrated on an extremely small area of contact in the material subjected to its action the results obtained are not so surprising as appear at first sight.—Thomas R. Shaw in Cassier's Magazine.

Home Only In Name.

A young teacher who has substituted in the lower districts of the city tells this little story of one of her pupils:

There had been an entertainment at the school at which the child had received a picture from the principal. The next day the little girl appeared with the picture under her arm. Quite regretfully she laid it upon the teacher's desk.

"Mom says thank you for the picture," she imparted, drawing up her ragged little form, "but we ain't got no wall to hang it on."

"No wall!" cried the horrified young substitute. "Why, Molly, what do you mean?"

"There's five families of us in our room," Molly explained carelessly, "and we live in the middle."—Philadelphia Times.

AN ILL MATED PAIR.

Wide Apart In Temperament Were Thomas and Jane Carlyle.

That the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple no one could deny. She was a highly strung, nervous woman, very quick, able and impatient, disappointed with her married life and her position, jealous of the admiration which Carlyle received at the hands of all his admirers, especially of one or two women, whom she found very unsympathetic.

That Carlyle adored her there is little doubt. He loved her with all the rough, passionate power of his nature, but he was a peasant in manner and character and lacking in all the little outward signs of devotion and affection which so many women exact and the absence of which they resent most bitterly.

Mrs. Carlyle found herself tied to an irritable genius who, sensitive at every point, deeply devoted to her, but absolutely incapable of translating that love into the language which she craved and longed for. I remember her once saying to me in a bitter way, 'My dear, whatever you do, never marry a philosopher," and that was the key to the enigma—the woman always hungering for proofs of the devotion in which the whole of her daily life was wanting.—From Lady St. Heller's "Memories."

Mistaken Identity.

Walking down St. James' street, Lord Chelmsford was accosted by a stranger, who exclaimed, "Mr. Birch, I believe?"

"If you believe that, sir, you'll believe anything," replied the ex-chancellor as he passed on.—"A Book About Lawyers," by Jeafferson.

There is a caution which may defeat itself: there are many crises in our life when safety lies in courage.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Are You Too Thin?

There is no better way to keep thin than by constantly looking for something to worry about. First of all you must learn to "take life a little easier." See the funny things and the pleasant things and just forget the others. When you have established this habit then try the daily dose of olive oil about two hours after your noon meal. Take a glass of hot milk at bedtime and another in the middle of the afternoon. Do not boil the milk. Just get it hot and sip it slowly instead of drinking it down as you would cold milk. Do not forget also that you must always have plenty of fresh air to breathe. Vitiated air will burn up the flesh you do gain very quickly.

BRIEFS

Representative Langelier was in Lawrence Thursday on the Roads and Bridges committee looking over the building of a $350,000 bridge in Lawrence.

The contract for a new soldiers' monument for Randolph has been awarded to J. N. White & Sons of Quincy. It will be made of Westerly granite with a bronze figure of a soldier and will be 20 feet in height. It is said the base will be original in design and unlike anything in this State. The site decided upon is in front of Stetson hall.

BROCKTON MERCHANTS' WEEK.

Dates have been decided upon for features of Merchants' week, June 3 to 10 in Brockton and there is considerable enthusiasm. An illumination is proposed, a banquet, automobile parade, horse parade, marathon race, etc. The publicity committee reports orders for thousands of envelopes bearing the seal of the Brockton Merchants' Association. There is to be a window dressing contest and a new scheme of illumination.

The dates for special features are:

Saturday, June 3—Automobile parade.

Wednesday, June 7—Horse parade.

Friday, June 9—Annual merchants' banquet.

Saturday, June 10—Marathon race.

MRS. SULLY MUST SETTLE

Claimed Large Sum of Money Given Her Was Not a Loan

New York, May 12.—Mrs. Emma Sully, wife of Daniel J. Sully, once called the "Cotton King," lost the suit brought against her by Peter H. Corr of Taunton, Mass., to recover $20,000.

A sealed verdict opened yesterday afternoon found for Corr in the full amount, with interest from 1904, making $28,536. Mrs. Sully maintained that the money was not lent but had been given her to aid her husband when he was in difficulties.

Postmaster Hangs Himself

Natick, Mass., May 12.—After suffering from a mental illness for the past six months Charles J. Wood, aged 71, postmaster of Natick for the past twelve years, committed suicide by hanging in his home here.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT

Established In Mexico With Juarez as the Capital

REBELS GREATLY BENEFITED

Capture Enough Supplies to Wage Furious Warfare For Some Time to Come—Capture of City Adds Immense Prestige to Flag of Revolt—Doubt as to Loyalty of Government Troops In the City of Mexico

Juarez, Mex., May 12.—Mexico's provisional government, composed of insurrectionists, became an established fact with the selection of a cabinet by Francisco I. Madero, Jr., provisional president, and with the establishment of a capital in the captured city of Juarez, where General Navarro and his federal troops are held prisoners.

Secretary of War Carranza will have charge of railways and telegraphs. His first act was to grant permission for repairing the Mexico Northwestern railroad. Men immediately began mending the roadbed south of Juarez.

That the insurrecto army is more than an armed mob was shown in the absence of general looting and intoxication and the quickness with which the shattered city was cleared of its dead and wounded. The embargo against visitors was removed during the day and sightseers in thousands poured across the bridge from El Paso.

The insurrectos are determined not only to hold Juarez against any attack, but to prevent a fight in this vicinity if possible. Plans are being laid at the insurrectos' headquarters for a force of several hundred men to march south to meet General Rabago, the federal leader who is reported to be on his way here from Chihuahua.

The insurrectos are the conquerers in a town which is the most important capture of the revolution, not only because of the fact that it is a port of entry to the United States and the insurrectos believe that in the next twenty-four hours food and supplies will be crossing the line to them unmolested, but because they are now in possession of about 450,000 rounds of ammunition, several machine guns and field pieces, about 700 Mauser rifles and enough ammunition belts and other warlike sundries to wage furious warfare for some time to come.

Hard Blow For Diaz

Mexico City, May 12.—An atmosphere of deep gloom pervades the federal offices, in strong contrast with the spirit of hopefulness maintained recently. Seemingly seeking to avoid acknowledgement even to themselves of Wednesday's reverses of the federal arms, the officials of the government are nevertheless face to face with the naked facts. They are quite disturbed and uncertain of what the future holds for them.

There is no one in the capital, not under the official ban of silence, who does not admit that the capture of Juarez by the rebels adds immense prestige to the flag of revolt and that morally it is bound greatly to augment the strength of the insurrecto cause.

The rebels have taken the state of Chihuahua by force of arms; they have long controlled the greater part of Sonora, and in the last two months have increased in strength by leaps and bounds in Coahuila. Durango is conceded to the rebels, and Zacatecas is overrun with them. In Aguas Callentes, armed revolutionists outnumber the federals.

To the south of the capital lies the menace of the four Figueroa brothers, the most powerful of whom, with 800 followers, has been waiting the result of Madero's neace negotiations with the government. Recently he said he would be guided for peace or war by Madero. Besides this force, vague estimates have it that there are anywhere from 5000 to 10,000 scantily equipped additional forces waiting to be organized into a fighting force by the Figueroas for an attack on this city. The Figueroas claim that 6000 of their followers are armed.

In the last few days a belief has sprung up that the federal force in this city does not come within 50 per-tent of the strength which has been credited to it.

In many minds there is doubt as to the loyalty of many of these troops should revolutionary victories continue. Several Mexican officers, in private conversation with American friends, have given utterances to this fear.

ANOTHER CASE OF LEPROSY

Woman Living In Boston Is Found to Be Afflicted

Boston, May 12.—A Sicilian woman living with her husband on Salem street has been discovered to be infected with leprosy and has been removed to the detention hospital.

The woman has been in this country four years and the case is therefore mysterious as to the manner in which the disease is conveyed. Yesterday she appeared at the outpatient department of one of the hospitals to be treated for a persistent rash on her arm. It was there decided that the case was leprosy and the board of health was summoned, the doctors verifying the diagnosis.

The woman is 43 years old. She has no children. The board of health gave orders for the most thorough fumigation of her apartments and also for all the other precautions attending diseases of this nature.

FOR SLAYING HIS THREE CHILDREN

Hagerty Is Held Without Bail For the Grand Jury

Boston, May 12.—Thomas Hagerty, the widower who last Wednesday killed his three small daughters by turning on the gas in the room as they slept, was arraigned in the Roxbury municipal court on the charge of murder. Hagerty was first arraigned last Thursday and his case continued until yesterday afternoon.

At his previous arraignment he stared vacantly from between the bars of the prison pen, seemingly unconscious of the proceedings or people in the courtroom. Yesterday he smiled at friends, beckoned to some and was attentive to all that went on about him. He waived examination and was held without bail for the grand jury.

Richard Hagerty, the accused man's brother, was in court. Hagerty asked his brother about the children, where they were buried and if a new lot had been purchased for their burial.

FIVE MEN SUFFOCATE

Loss of Life Would Have Been Larger but For Miners' Strike

Wilkesbarre, May 12.—Five lives were lost by suffocation in the Boston mine of the Delaware and Hudson company at Larksville.

A strike began at the colliery on Tuesday and only a small number of men were at work. Had the full force been engaged the loss of life would have been appalling.

Fire broke out in a section of the mine where rock miners were employed. The rescuers, by using dynamite, blocked the current of foul air and in this way entrance was gained to the chambers where it was known the missing men were at work.

TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

How Issues an Early Labor Day Invitation to Hoboes

St. Louis, May 12.—James E. How, the intellectual and philanthropic tramp, has sent out invitations to his fellow hoboes to meet him in Washington on Labor day, Sept. 4, 1911.

The invitations are out a long way ahead because Washington is a long way away from How's immediate clientele, and it is necessary to give them plenty of time to get there.

The Washington gathering is to discuss a national free employment bureau, free transportation of the unemployed to places where there is work, and kindred matters.

INSTRUMENTS OF AGITATION

Natives Are Hindering the Advancement of Egypt

ARE UNFIT FOR SELF-RULE

Must Be Made to Understand That England Is Considering Interests of Whole People—Circuitous and Dilatory Methods of Legislation Need Reform—European Dwellers Suffer Under Present Conditions

London, May 12.—Sir Eldon Gorst, the British agent and consul general in Egypt, in his report on Egyptian affairs, which has been issued as a parliamentary paper, acknowledges that the efforts made to develop self-government have been disappointing. The executive council and the general assembly, he says, have become "mere instruments of Nationalist agitation against the occupation." They seek to render the business of the government impossible.

"The conclusion to be drawn," says Sir Eldon, "is that the policy of ruling this country in co-operation with native minsters at the present time is incompatible with that of encouraging so-called representative institutions." The British agent adds:

"We have to make the Egyptians understand that the government does not intend to allow itself to be hustled into going further or faster in the direction of self-government than it considers to be in the interests of the Egyptian people as a whole. Until this elementary lesson has been thoroughly learned, no proposals looking to the further development of the legislative council can be usefully entertained."

The report of Gorst is remarkably similar to the conclusions of a foreign observer, Howard d'Egville. The latter points out that under the capitulations no law is binding upon the nonnative community in Egypt till it has been approved by each of no less than fifteen treaty powers.

The capitulations were essential in former days to protect the lives and property of foreign residents in Egypt from the arbitrary and despotic methods of her native rulers, but under the enlightened guidance of England this necessity has passed away, while the ever-increasing needs of modern civilization demand less circuitous and dilatory methods of legislation.

The only practicable means of meeting the difficulty would be to constitute a European council, elected by the European residents and consisting of subjects of the treaty powers, and to substitute the assent of the council for the present cumbrous methods.

It is clear, says d'Egville, that the Egyptian people are as yet totally unfitted for self-government, and any attempt to establish a parliamentary system would be futile, owing to the very limited number of natives who would be capable of working efficiently without European supervision. Considerable progress has been made towards training the Egyptians to govern themselves by enlarging the powers of the provisional council.

But, brilliant as much of the work of the British officials has been, and particularly in the sphere of education, serious error has been committed in endeavoring to educate the natives on European lines, and the experiment of sending natives to train in Europe has, in the opinion of the writer, proved highly unsatisfactory.

Apart from the Suez canal, the magnificent work which England has done in the development of the Soudan, unsurpassed by her achievements in the administration of other parts of Africa, provides one o fthe strongest reasons, d'Egville believes, why England must remain in control of Egypt.

But until some such machinery as that suggested above can be established to obviate the interminable delays experienced at present under the capitulations the interests both of the country and of the European dwellers in it must suffer more and moe.

Without the support of the other powers England can do little, but an earnest hope is expressed that when the time comes that support will not be found wanting.

The Borrowing Neighbor.

"Say, John, yer haven't been over ter my home since my birthday gatherin', jest a year ago termorrer."

"It ain't that I have hard feelin's ag'in you, but you have so confounded many things what belongs ter me that when I come it kind o' makes me homesick."—Pittsburg Times.

Plumpness Makes Health

Thin People Heed This.

If you are too thin; if you are pale and sallow; if what you eat seems not to strengthen you; if your lips and cheeks are colorless, it is because your blood is deficient in red corpuscles and disease can easily overcome you, as you have no reserve strength or nourishment to uphold you.

A pharmaceutical product, called Sargol-nuclene tablets, is much prescribed for these conditions, and if taken for several months, rapidly increases weight and improves the color. Buy in sealed package of any well stocked apothecary shop.

TESTIMONY IN TIMES TRIAL

Outlining the Plans of Defense and Prosecution

FORMER WILL CLAIM ALIBIS

Assertion That Incriminating Letters Alleged to Have Been Written by J. J. McNamara Were Not Written by Him—Prosecution Has Other Evidence Than Confession of McManigal—Will Have to Show That Dynamite Caused Explosion

Los Angeles, Cal., May 12.—In arguments on the minor legal technicalities before Judge Bordenfell the lines of battle planned by the defense and prosecution in the dynamite cases have been revealed. The prosecution will present its case in this order:

Testimony of victims and of expert witnesses to establish that the Los Angeles Times building was destroyed by an explosion of dynamite.

Testimony of relatives to establish the number of victims.

Corroborating evidence and the confession of Ortie E. McManigal. This will be followed by the identification by seventeen witnesses who will swear that they knew J. B. McNamara as J. B. Bryce here and in San Francisco during September and October of last year.

An endeavor will be made to trace the prisoner almost to the building at First street and Broadway, where the Oct. 1 explosion occurred.

The case against J. J. McNamara will be centered upon correspondence furnished by McManigal, the books found at McNamara's office and the clocks and wire found in Indianapolis. In this matter Detective W. J. Burns will be called as a witness.

The defense will attack the allegation that the building was destroyed by dynamite, will assert that the explosion was caused by gas and will call experts. In attacking the McManigal confession the defense will call witnesses to establish an alibi for J. B. McNamara and J. J. McNamara. In every instance where the two brothers are identified by McManigal at a certain time and place the defense is expected to call witnesses to show that the men were in other localities. Testimony of the lodging-house keepers of San Francisco and the employes of the Giant Powder company will be attacked.

Experts on handwriting will be called to prove that letters alleged by McManigal to have been written by J. J. McNnamara were not written by him, but were written by some person who attempted to simulate the writing of the union leader. A handwriting expert gave it as his opinion that McManigal registered at the Hotel Rosslyn under the name of T. F. McKee, Dec. 19 last year. McManigal has admitted that he registered at the Hotel Rosslyn under the name of McKee.

It required a minute and expert comparison between the hotel register signature and McManigal's known handwriting to determine from an independent source that McManigal spoke the truth. Under the law a confession is not admissable as evidence unless corroborating facts can be established.

FORTUNE HIDDEN IN BANKS

Ohio Man Supposed to Be Poor Was Worth Nearly $100,000

Akron, O., May 12.—A search made in deposit vaults of banks here yesterday disclosed that Frederick Patterson, an eccentric old man who died supposedly without means, had hidden away a fortune estimated at nearly $100,000.

Sacks in a box at the Second National bank, where Patterson had held a box for years, were found to contain gold and bills to the extent of $20,000. In vaults at other Akron banks were found boxes in Patterson's name which contained large sums of money.

In a will of 100 words, probated yesterday, Patterson left his fortune to a daughter, Mrs. Ellen Johnson of Cuyahoga Falls, who was ignorant of the fact that her father was wealthy.

BETWEEN DOG'S PAWS

How the Ashes of Lafayette the Great Will Be Placed In Tomb

London, May 12.—In accordance with a wish revealed in his will, the body of Lafayette the Great, the eccentric vaudeville performer who lost his life in the fire that destroyed the Empire music hall at Edinburgh Tuesday, will be cremated and the ashes placed between the paws of his trained dog "Beauty."

The body of the dog rests in a pretentious tomb in Piers Hills cemetery at Edinburgh.

Wendling Gets Life Sentence

Frankfort, Ky., May 12.—Joseph Wendling, convicted of the murder of 8-year-old Alma Kellner, must spend the remainder of his life in prison, according to a decision by the Kentucky court of appeals, affirming the life sentence of the lower court.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

In the eighth and final weekly offering of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company at the Boston Opera House, for the week beginning next Monday night, the management are heralding the most unique and attractive presentation of their entire series, the first presentation in Boston, in English, of Jacques Offenbach's last and admittedly his greatest opera comique, "The Tales of Hoffmann." This charming composition was first presented in America a score or more years ago but was never repeated until Oscar Hammerstein revived it as a novelty during his first season at the Manhattan Opera House. Shortly after Hammerstein's production of "Les contes d' Hoffmann" in French, Milton and Sargent Aborn presented the first production of the same opera in English in the same city under its translated title, "The Tales of Hoffmann." Both of these productions of Offenbach's masterpiece were signally successful, and Messers Aborn kept it in their repertoire in succeeding seasons with increased success. As many as possible of the original American cast have been secured again for their former roles, including the noted coloratura soprano, Elly Barato, who has returned from Europe especially to sing this opera. Homer Lind, the noted German-American baritone, and equally celebrated as a character actor, has also been specially engaged for the roles of Dr. Miracle and Coppelius both of which he was the first to sing in English.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

At the Hollis Street Theatre for two weeks beginning Monday May 15, S. T. King offers Aphie James and her own company in a new comedy drama of the romantic Seventeenth Century period entitled "Judy O'Hara" by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett. Mrs. Burnett has four successful plays to her credit: "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" "The Little Princess" and "The Little Sister of Jose." This new play is in the vein of the author's best works. It has an exciting plot, a romantic love story, Mrs. Burnett's characteristic humor and a strong sympathetic appeal. It is a picturesque costume play of the Georgian period, having to do with the endeavors of ames Stuart's supporters to place him on the throne of England. The locale of the play is first in the old Clanfergus Castle in Ireland then in Lord Saxton's home in England and last in James Stuart's retreat near London. Miss James has been favorably known to the theatre-going public of the larger cities in the South and West, as a joint star of her late husband, Louis James, with whom she appeared so successfully in the lighter roles of his repertoire for a number of years. The most scholarly reviewers of Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago have referred to the charm and delight of Miss James' art in unstinted praise, placing it on the highest plane reached by any of the world's actresses. As Judy O'Hara, the leading character of this new play, which Miss James plays with a delightful sense of humor and dramatic finesse, she is reputed to reveal the best work of her artistic career, appearing as a rollicking Irish girl, a loyal hearted lady of quality, a dashing highwayman and an ideal woman. Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given during Miss James' engagement.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

On the evening of the 27th of August, last, Manager Lindsay Morison promised his audience at American Music Hall that he would this summer again bring back to his many friends Miss Eleanor Gordon and Mr. Wilson Melrose and his well known stock company. This promise he has fulfilled, as he will open at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, Monday matinee, May 15th, with Miss Gordon and Mr. Melrose, Miss Rose Morison, Miss Juliette Atkinson, Mr. William Hasson, Miss Valerie Valaire, Mr. Edward Nannary, Mr. Rockcliffe Fellows, Mr. Harry Brooks, Fraunie Fraunholz, William De Wolfe, Francis Woodbury, Graham Velsey and a host of other Boston Favorites. By personal arrangement with David Belasco, Mr. Morison will open his engagement at the Majestic Theatre with "The Girl of the Golden West." The entire production, as regards scenery, will be a new one. "The Girl of the Golden West" will be followed by the famous play, "The Man of the Hour" which has never been produced by any stock company in Boston. Mr. Morison wishes it to be understood that this coming season is going to be a record one, as he has already engaged a notable list of new plays, many of which have not been seen here in "stock." Performances will be given every afternoon and evening. At Monday matinees patrons will receive a beautiful souvenir box of chocolate bonbons.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Next week the play at the Castle Square will be "The White Sister," dramatized from Marion Crawford's novel of the same name, and originally played by Viola Allen. From beginning to end it is alive with sensation and emotion. It has been highly commended as one of the most vigorous of Marion Crawford's plots. Mr. Crawford is an accomplished romancer, he is at home in the Italian atmosphere, and his play is a vivid series of pictures of Italian life. To have made so good a play from a novel, so that it may be enjoyed both by those who are familiar and unfamiliar with it, is no small achievement, and that is what has been accomplished in "The White Sister." It is a play that will be thoroughly enjoyed by those who like to see incident on the stage, and who are impressed and moved by emotional acting. The leading roles will be acted by Mr. Craig as Severi, and by Miss Gertrude Binley in the title part of Giovanna. Following "The White Sister" during the week of May 22nd, will come a revival of Sheridan's brilliant comedy, "The Rivals," with Donald Meek returning to the Castle Square stage in the part of Bob Acres after an absence of several months.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

One of the most sensational novelties ever imported for the B. F. Keith circuit will be introduced in Boston next week. It is called "The Magic Kettle," with which the most extraordinary feats are performed, such as heating water without the aid of fire, burning ice, and a number of other feats that are done in full view of the audience and all of which seem incredible. On the same bill next week will be Bessie Wynn, the beautiful songstress who returns after a long absence touring the West, where she has made one of the most sensational hits of her career. Still another attraction, one that will be seen here for the first time, will be Frank Milton and the De Long Sisters, in a musical comedy called "Twenty Minutes Layover at Alfalfa Junction," Agnes Scott and Hary Keane are also on the bill with a new sketch called "Drifting." Bert Fitzgibbon, the eccentric comedian; Goldsmith and Hoppe, the musical comedians; Inge and Farrell, two pretty girls who are newcomers to Boston; and an extraordinary European transformation company called the Four Charles, will complete one of the strongest bills shown in Boston in a long time.

LETTER FIGURES IN TRIAL OF MRS. DODGE

No Evidence of First Degree Murder, Says Judge

Guildhall, Vt., May 12.—For six hours yesterday Florence M. Dodge sat and listened to Harlan B. Howe and County Attorney Amey battle for and against her. Both men became very heated in their arguments.

Presiding Justice Hall announced that when he charges the jury he will instruct it that the three possible verdicts it can consider will be murder in the second degree, manslaughter and acquittal. He said that the law of Vermont required that premeditation must be shown to warrant conviction of first degree murder. This he said the prosecution has not shown.

The letter alleged to have been written by Mrs. Dodge will be the strongest feature in the state's case. It was brought out in the argument of Amey that not only the handwriting was similar, but the incorrect spelling of two words was the same in the original letter and the copy written by Mrs. Dodge Wednesday at the dictation of Attorney General Sargent.

Mrs. Dodge spelled the word "cellar" with an "s" and the original letter was the same. In both letters the word "layed" was spelled the same.

RECIPROCITY CONFLICT

City and Country Arrayed Against Each Other at Hearing

Washington, May 12.—Country and city were arrayed against each other at the Canadian reciprocity hearing before the senate finance committee. The conflict was sharp.

Farmers from Minnesota and North Dakota denounced the agreement as inquitous, while members of boards of trade from cities along the international boundary indorsed it unqualifiedly.

The cityites were headed by a large delegation wearing badges a foot long inscribed: "One hundred percent stong for reciprocity. Buffalo."

Big Majority For Income Tax

Harrisburg, May 12.—The house of representatives has voted, 139 to 4, in favor of the ratification of the proposed income tax amendment to the federal constitution. The resolution will be sent to the senate for action next week.

Retired Soldier Killed In Duel

Berlin, May 12.—A fatal duel between officers was fought in a forest near Berlin. Baron Oswald von Richthofen killed Wilhelm von Gaffron, a retired officer.

—The recent decision of the Supreme Court is deciding that a retail druggist has the right to put any price he chooses onto proprietary medicines, upholds the contention of the cut rate drug stores, who have been selling such goods at a price below that fixed by the makers. It is not improbable that the Court will make a similar ruling on food products, for the manufacturers have in some cases attempted to hold the retail store to a price fixed by the former. The Court finds that when a retailer buys goods he is at liberty to sell them at any price he chooses, a finding which will be concurred in by the customers.— Old Colony Memorial.

The Bloodletting Branch.

Not every pun is as good as one credited to a Dublin gentleman of long ago by the author of a book entitled "In Many Lands." George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon.

"In what branch of the service is that magnificent looking man?" asked his majesty.

The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the king was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer.

"Sire," he replied, "he is a general in the lancers."

Merely a Test Case.

A burly negro came to the doctor of a West African missionary settlement, dragging his reluctant wife with him.

"Doctor, pull one of my wife's teeth out," said he.

The doctor examined the woman's mouth and found only sound teeth.

"Oh, that makes no difference," said the interested negro. "Pull one anyway. If it doesn't hurt her too much then you can pull my tooth that is aching."—Success Magazine.

Needed the Money Badly.

A newspaper man of Washington was approached one morning by a friend who wanted to borrow $5. The newspaper man, assuming an expression of great sorrow, pulled 20 cents out of his pocket and remarked:

"I'm sorry, old man, but you've struck me just before pay day, and I'm broke."

Having made this crafty excuse, he, mentally speaking, pinned a gold medal on himself for having evaded the prospective borrower.

"When is your pay day?" asked the friend.

"Tomorrow afternoon," replied the newspaper man.

"All right," said the friend. "I'll come around then."

And he did.—Popular Magazine.

How Sheridan Paid a Debt

No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy theatrical management of his did he extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the greenroom to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid.

"My dear lord," said the impecunious manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her."

The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and the debt was canceled.—London Standard.

SPORTING NOTES.

Quincy High vs. Wendall Academy at Merymount park this afternoon at 3.30.

Two reverses occurred in the Grammar school league Thursday afternoon, the only team that had not won a game was victorious and the only team that had not lost a game was badly defeated. The scores:

Lincoln 9 Quincy 6.
Willard 17 Adams 2.

The principal ball game scheduled for Saturday will be that between the Fore River Apprentices and Manet social club which will take place at Merrymount park at 3.30. There is a great rivalry between these two teams and some good ball may be expected.

Other games for Saturday:

St. John's A. A. vs Jamaica Plain at Jamaica Plain.

Adams A. A. vs Sodality A. C. at East Boston.

Y. M. C .A. Intermediates vs Clapp Memorial at Merrymount park, Lower field, 3.30

Quincy Adams club vs Braintree at Braintree.

In the opening round of the tournament for the Country club cup at Clyde park, Brookline, J. H. Churchhill of Wollaston was tied for sixteenth place at 92 with A. G. Lockwood Allston, A. J. Wellington, Woodland, and L. J. Malone Woodland. In the play off, L. J. Malone won the right to meet M. F. O'Connell in the first round of match play this afternoon. Among the other Wollaston enteries in the tournament were E. C. Tarbell, V. M. Smith, R. R. Freeman, G. Wright, S. H. Lawton, John Morrill and R. J. Dunkle.

NEW KIND OF PARTY.

A mother who wished to entertain schoolchildren gave a guessing party that was rather out of the usual run. Boys and girls were invited for an evening with celebrities and their haunts. Nothing more explicit was said, so the young people were eager to know what was in store.

After being received by the hostess the party was ushered into a library, across one end of which was a huge white sheet. In a few minutes the room was darkened and a figure appeared dressed to represent Mrs. Jarley, of the waxworks, and in a witty speech announced the appearance of the celebrites.

She first distributed to each guest a card with pencil attached. These were lined and numbered to correspond with the celebrities to be shown.

In a few minutes a picture of Bluebeard was thrown on the sheet and 30 seconds given to guessing who he was.

The celebrites varied from heroes of fiction to monarchs, pugilists and football stars, noted actresses, poets, musicians, to well-known places and buildings.

The pictures were made as different as possible, and when those that might be unfamiliar were given the showman elucidated them in a clever little speech.

At the end of the display the cards were numbered and passed in to a committee of awards. Each boy and girl having most correct guesses received a prize. There were also second and third prizes.

Such an entertainment is not hard to arrange if one can get the use of a lantern and some one to run it. It is essential to display the pictures rapidly.

The slides can be rented; or, if you have a collection of postals, they can be made into slides at small cost.

FEAR ABSENT IN RING CHAMPIONS

Title Holders Possess Absolute Confidence In Their Ability.

LACK OF FAITH BEAT JEFF.

When He Met Johnson He Was Scared to Death—Years Before He Thought No Man Could Beat Him—Confidence and Determination Made Johnson and Nelson.

What is it that makes a fighter a champion? What is it that lifts him above the common plane of his division into that sphere of undivided excellence wherein he towers above his competitors like a Goddess of Liberty? Is it that his physical ability is so much superior, is it that his mental power is so much keener, or is his individuality, his faith in himself, so much deeper than that possessed by others whom he passed in the race for distinction?

None of these elements alone is responsible. All of them, blended properly, combine to make a champion of a man, and luck, too, in the final analysis, is an undeniable factor. Luck has bestowed many a fighter with a halo of kingship. Luck has likewise removed many a crown.

But, despite the fact that a champion must have several essentials, there is one thing far ahead of all the rest that even a second rate pummeler needs to possess. That is absolute fearlessness, or, turned around, perfect twelve inches to the foot confidence. No gloveman who lacked this important attribute ever ascended to the apex of his class, or, if he did, remained there for any length of time.

Many Gymnasium Fighters.

No coward ever made a fighter. No coward ever held a championship for very long, nor a man whose duct of confidence was not proportionate to his other assets. There are a thousand boys today who can give a dazzling exhibition in a gymnasium, but who when they set foot in a public arena to fight in earnest are awful disappointments. Why is this? They fear themselves, they underestimate their ability, and when their gloves fly out there is not the cocksureness back of them. They do not unsheath all their physical force, for the simple reason that they are afraid to, and their mental faculties do not perform proficiently for the same reason.

Fear whipped Jim Jeffries last July. A study of the photographs of the big fellow when he was in his prime and just before the Reno fiasco shows two entirely different characters. When Jeff met Fitzsimmons, Corbett and Sharkey he was all determination. The facial expression, the self reliant pose, gives every evidence of his great confidence in himself. Now see him at Reno, a much changed man. There is an air of uncertainty about him. His face bears a hesitating look. It seems as though he has given much thought to the Johnson part of the fight. Back a few years ago he did not concern himself so much about the caliber of an opponent. He imagined there was no man but what he could beat, and, although he disliked fighting, when he took his seat in the one corner of the ring he was supremely certain of himself.

Nelson Was Not Fearful.

Bat Nelson took many terrible wallopings during his career, but he did so because that was his method of fighting and because he was positive of what the end would be. He believed his physical power was greater than that of his antagonist, and he was sure that ultimately the result would favor him. It could not be otherwise. He entered the ring for every battle with his spirit crying for victory. It was to be his victory, not the other fellow's. And so he won and continued to win until he opposed a boy whose confidence was just as great as his.

Nelson is not the same man today, it can be wagered. Wolgast took some of the nerve from him, inspired him in a slight degree with fear. Possibly Nelson did not realize it when he met Moran, but he was inclined to doubt his ability just a little, and he was more timid. A beating makes cowards of us all. The Battler still declares he is as good as ever, but down in his heart something tells him he is not.

Jack Johnson is confident to the point of egotism. He has an exceedingly high and lovely opinion of his really great prowess. If he hadn't he would not be champ today. Because of his indubitable faith in himself he chased Tommy Burns half way around the world to secure a match with him. During the preparation for the Jeffries contest last summer he was a care free negro, who seemed to worry little about anything. When he doffed his bath robe on that hot July afternoon he was a big, courageous man-animal.

What is it that makes a fight? Confidence on the part of both participants. When confidence meets confidence there is always sure to be a throbbing battle. But if one man fears himself ever so little that man is going to be beaten.

BREECHES AND BEAUTY.

The harem skirt, so called—the oriental trousers in reality—is now on a tour of exhibition in the smaller cities, having come and gone from the larger ones. It seems to excite more curiosity among the men than enthusiasm among women; and when they had a demonstration of the bags in a Lowell shop the other day more men gathered about than women.

I don't think they'll be a "go," for a woman wants her garments ornamental as well as useful, picturesque as well as practical. It is a question of aesthetic appeal, and the balloonlike bags are devoid of all those dainty little touches that appeal to the soul of the sex. If they were voluminous, lace trimmed, beribboned and cut off at the knee like the knickerbockers affected by Charles I., they might go with certain ladies whose Corinthian columns are graceful and shapely enough to stand the test; but the average woman is not constructed on Corinthian lines.

The fact remains that the orinental bags, idiotically termed the harem skirt, are just baggy, ungraceful and ugly; they are just the sort of things to drape chair legs, piano foundations and the nudes that excited the disgust and horror of Senator Norman White. Sultanas of drama and opera reclining on divans may make a go of the bags; Fatima, Lalla Rookh and Zelica may look good to us in poetry and painting; but in the common, everyday experiences of life would we enjoy seeing Mary, Kate, Ethel, Miriam and Gertrude shinning along a mucky street in a pair of ready-to-wear bags with a pair of overshoes stuck out at the end of them with nothing to hide their sheer ugliness? Bad enough when new and fresh from the baggery, they would be fatal when they began to fray at the edges and show the wear and tear of use.

Fat women—and some women are fat—rigged out in these things would make angels weep; thin ones would look like badly rolled umbrellas of uncertain age; and much of the mystery and daintiness of the sex which appeal to man would vanish with the coming of the monstrosity which is neither skirt nor trousers, pantaloons nor pantalettes, and which ought to be called pantaloots. Man ceased to be picturesque, graceful and artistic when he was forced into trousers; aesthetically he is a horror. Preserve on therefore, the sex with her draperies, ribbons, laces, plumes and all her irresistible daintiness, and save us from the baggy, bundled ugliness of the harem skirt.—Joseph Smith in Boston Herald.

FLY TIME SUGGESTIONS.

Keep the flies out of dwellings. Get screens for doors and windows. Be on guard all the time against them.

Keep screens over articles of food. Don't let flies get near the pantry, kitchen or dining room.

Be doubly careful about keeping flies out of sick room. They are likely not only to bring complications of new diseases, but to carry the invalid's disease to many others.

The fly season will soon be here, and those who put in their screens promptly will be taking the best of precautions against having disease germs introduced into their homes by flies.

"Health is wealth" and 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

There is more health in a house well screened than in many a doctor's visit.

The only safe way is to keep out the flies.

GRAND RECEPTION TO REV. CHARLES B. AMES

First Church Chapel the Scene of Brilliant Social Gathering

Retiring Assistant Pastor Given Purse of Gold by Friends

Rev. Charles Bulkley Ames, assistant pastor of the First church, who has recently resigned his pastorate was given a reception Friday evening in the chapel by the Hospitality committee of which Mrs. W. B. Nichols is chairman. The reception was very largely attended and in its way was quite a social event.

Seldom if ever has the chapel looked more attractive than on this occasion. Miss Georgiana C. Lane, had charge of the decorations and had transformed the chapel into a sort of conservatory. Magnificent large potted plants and ferns were arranged about the chapel little clusters, here and there of carnations, adding to the effectiveness of the decoration.

The reception party stood in the northeast corner in front of a high bank of palms and ferns, where for two hours, Rev. Mr. Ames was wished all kinds of future success in his chosen calling.

In the receiving party with Mr. Ames were Rev. and Mrs. Ellery Channing Butler and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon. Both Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Faxon carried large bouquets of pink sweet peas.

The ushers who were members of the junior societies of the church were Jack Pfaffmann, Walter Nichols, Donald Crane, Chester Bennett, Winslow Sears, Richard Crane, Fred Schenkelberger, Paul Blackmur, Albert Parker, Kenneth Edwards, William C. Edwards and Abbott Johnson.

While the reception was in progress there was music, with William E. Weston at the piano, Ralph E. Brown, viclinist and E. B. Packard, 'celloist.

In addition to this there were contralto solos by Mrs. Bertha Carlson Potter, tenor solos by Frederick J. Maypes and bass solos by Ralph E. Brown.

While the reception was at its height Rev. Mr. Ames was presented with a purse largely of gold. In presenting this purse Mrs. Nichols said it came from the different organizations of the church and members of the parish. It was given as an expression of appreciation for what you have done for us, and with it we give our best wishes for your future success wherever you may go.

As Mr. Ames put out his hand to receive the box Mrs. Nichols retained her hold on it for a moment saying "A gift without the giver is bare."

In receiving the purse Mr. Ames extended his heartiest thanks. There was nothing he could say other than from the bottom of his heart he thanked the people of the church for all the kindnesses that had been shown him since he had been in their midst. Nothing speaks more than what you have done here today and I am very grateful. I shall remember the pleasant time I have spent in Quincy. This means much to a young man just starting out in life. The ties we make then are things of value and stay in our hearts and give us real joy, and are one of the pleasures of living. I thank you all.

The purse was arranged in a series of boxes. The first which contained a small sum had the sentiment. "Little at the first, mighty at the end." Each box had its sentiment the last being "All is not gold that glitters." This contained a fifty dollar bill.

During the evening lobster salad, rolls, cake and frappe was served. The dining room looked particularly attractive with its decorations of potted plants and carnations.

The young ladies who served were: Miss Elsie Turner, Miss Georgiana Waldron, Miss Mollie Harris, Miss Marie Bass, Miss Miriam N. Marsh, Miss Dorothy Edwards, Miss Alice Arnold and Miss Catherine Saville.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin N. Hardy were among those to call during the evening to extend to Mr. Ames their best wishes for his future success.

As noted above the reception was given under the direction of the Hospitality committee of the church who are: Mrs. William B. Nichols, Mrs. Edward B. Marsh, Mrs. Albert Parker, Miss Mary Holden, Mrs. John Christiansen, Mrs. Laurance Sturtevant, Mrs. Perry Lawton, Miss Lucy Spear, Miss Mary Nightingale, Mrs. John L. Gow, Mrs. Arthur Hall, C. Eaton Pierce, Clark Saville, William B. Nichols, Arthur Hall, Henry Holden and Edward B. Marsh.

FUTURE AMERICAN CITIZENS.

Friday morning as a well known Quincy merchant was transacting business at the Ledger office two bright faced urchins watched him from the doorway and as he started to leave accosted him asking for a match to light a cigarette stub which they had evidently picked up in the street. They did not get the match but were asked why they were not in school to which they replied they "hadn't any use for it." Just how old the boys were we do not know but they were pretty young and precocious.

—A mill treasurer says that cotton would be 16 cents or more a pound if the ladies had not changed the fashions. He figures the average dress takes three yards less, and under the prevailing styles 1,000,000 women in this country have substituted petticoats of silk for the former spreading cotton petticoats.—Adams in New York letter.

GLORIOUS FOURTH TO BE CELEBRATED

General Committee Meet and Outline Plans for Celebration

This Years Affair to Eclipse that of Last Year. The Committees

Quincy is to have the biggest and best and busiest Fourth of July in her history in 1911. The committee has so decreed it and if enthusiasm is of any value the decree will be carried out to the full.

The first meeting of the committee was held in the Board of Trade rooms last evening. The by-laws adopted by the committee are as follows:

ARTICLE 1.

Section 1—This organization shall be known as the Quincy Fourth of July association and its meetings shall be at such times and places as the president or three members of the executive committee shall decide.

Section 2.—The title of the officers of this assoication shall be President, vice President, Secretary, Treasurer and Executive committee, who shall be elected annually. A majority of members present shall be necessary to elect.

ARTICLE 2.

Section 1.—It shall be the duty of the President to preside at the meetings of the Association and to judge impartially of every transaction that may come before it. He shall have the power to call meetings whenever in his judgment the business of the association warrants such action.

Section 2.—It shall be the duty of the Vice President to preside at the meetings in the absence of the President and he shall be chairman of the executive committee with power to convene said committee at any time when necessary.

Section 3.—It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to receive all money due the association giving his receipt for same. The treasurer may draw no money or pay any bills until such bills shall be approved by a majority of the executive and finance committees present and voting.

Section 4—It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep a true and correct record of the proceedings of the association in such a manner that they may be accessible at any time to any officer or member of the association and to conduct its correspondence. He shall also keep a true list of all members.

Section 5. The Executive committee shall be composed of the President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, together with the chairmen of the various committees.

Section 6—In order to protect the association and its members from suits that may arise from accidents or other causes it shall be the duty of the executive committee to secure such accident liability insurance that they deem necessary or advisable.

Section 7—All contracts made by this association shall be signed by the chairman of the committee making the contract on the approval of the executive committee.

A vote of thanks was sent to the Somerville Fourth of July association for its courtesy to the chairman of the Quincy committee, E. R. Stone.

It was voted that an invitation be given the organization in Atlantic to join with the City in celebrating the Fourth. The whole thing should be centralized and all the citizens should

NEW PASTOR AT HOUGHS NECK

Rev. W. J. Sayre Called to Mission Church

At a special meeting held at Union chapel, Houghs Neck, this week it was arranged to call Rev. W. J. Sayre of Boston for permanent pastor. The people feel that they are very fortunate in securing him. Mr. Sayre preached last Sunday and met with great approval from the congregation. He will devote much time to parish work.

His subject tomorrow morning will be "Let us exalt His name together" and in the evening, "Erecting immortal monuments." A large attendance is hoped for to welcome the new pastor and encourage him in the interests and work of Union chapel.

THE NOON ALARM.

The alarm from Box 26 at 1.33 this noon was for a fire in a large box of waste paper in the rear of Thompson's restaurant on Depot street. The box or enclosure was up against the board fence which took fire and made quite a blaze. There was a great scattering of rats when the fire broke out into a blaze.

MRS. CLEMENT B. NASH

Clement B. Nash has the sympathy of many friends his wife passing away on Friday after a brief illness. Mr. and Mrs. Nash had recently settled in their new home on Poplar avenue, Post Island and were looking forward to a happy summer.

For the past four summers they have been coming out from Boston but this year they moved into the new permanent home. Mrs. Nash was taken into the Boston City hospital on Tuesday to be operated upon but was unable to recuperate from the nerous shock and died of heart failure Friday afternoon. She is survived by her father and husband.

Mrs. Nash was a member of Mizpah Chapter O. E. S. of Marboro, Mass.

GOOD BEDDING PROLONGS LIFE

There is nothing you can buy that will give you so much value and satisfaction for your money as really good bedding.

The reason so many people do not have good bed comfort is not because they do not want it but because they do not know where to get it at a reasonable price.

In buying bedding you have to rely a good deal on the honesty of the man who sells it to you. Everything that counts for quality and durability is covered up.

H. L. KINCAIDE & CO., will guarantee its bedding in just the same unlimited way that it does all of its furniture. You can be sure of getting bed comfort and bed quality when you purchase any outfit from us.

It is your interest to look into the question of bedding very thoroughly, especially when one-third of your life is spent in bed.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It appears to be as painful to be shot on the border as elsewhere.

Douglas, Ariz., was for a while on both the boundary line and the firing line.

The congressman will also have to explain to his constituents why those garden seed didn't sprout.

Now it appears that Atlantic City has an election scandal as well as a board walk.

If we were Miss Spring we'd be ashamed of ourselves for letting winter linger there so long.

Why not abolish the umpire and have direct decisions by the people at baseball games? Is there no progressiveness in Baseballdom?

Another trouble is that the average prominent citizen becomes so much less excited about election frauds than about those perpetrated by the umpire.

Maybe that Los Angeles girl who is being exploited as having signed a contract with her employer not to marry for ten years is as ugly as a mud fence, so there is nothing remarkable in the incident.

The proposal of make a public park of the Dr. Everett estate, known for many years as the Miller place, lying between Elm street, Miller Stile road and Cherry avenue, is meeting with approval not only from residents in that vicinity but by townspeople who believe that a city cannot have too many breathing places. The location of this property makes it especially suitable for park purposes. Our city council is looking into the matter and several members have personally inspected the premises.

Tomorrow is Mothers' day, a day set apart each year to honor the best mother who ever lived, your own. That is the purpose of Mothers' day and it is fitting that young and old should pause one day in the busy 365 and think of what his or her mother's influence has been in the home life and upbuilding of its inmates even unto the least worthy. So tomorrow wear a flower, a white one in memory of the mother who has passed into heavenly rest and a bright one to honor the living. If away from home mother would appreciate a letter as she might not know you were wearing a flower in her honor.

Alfred W. Donovan of Rockland, who gave the Quincy merchants quite a jolt a year or two ago in an address delivered under the auspices of the Merchants' Association is still doing missionary work. The Rockland Standard says editorially this week: "The people of Brockton have certainly not been so stirred up in years as they have been this week since Alfred W. Donovan of Rockland boldly stood up at the Board of Trade meeting in that city the first of the week and told them plain facts. Mr. Donovan told them that the business men of that city are asleep and that the meeting resembled a sewing circle. He said that it would take a cannon ball rolling down Main street to wake them up. He said that the golden opportunities are passing right by their doors and they are so sleepy that they cannot see it. He urged them to open their eyes and get busy. All in all, Mr. Donovan was blunt and to the point as he sees it. His remarks have been the talk of the shoe city since and criticisms both pro and con have been handed back and forth since then. The Brockton papers have backed up Mr. Donovan in excellent shape and say that a great deal of what he said is true. Even the merchants in Brockton have awakened and one big advertiser comes forth with an offer of $1,000 in cash and $100 each year to start something worth while—a 'realty company or investment company or any other wohty object that will help the city. Good for you, Mr. Donovan. You have the faculty of doing things and we believe that your hot shot at Brockton will be of lasting benefit."

THE HOME MERCHANT NO. 2.

A full line of well kept retail stores is a great public convenience. It enables our home people to make purchases and take the goods home the same day. It enables them to take their own time for inspection of goods, when they are not cut short by the hurry of a trip to some distant city.

Gail Hamilton, a well known writer of some years ago wrote a book called "Twelve Miles from a Lemon." It was a humorous description of the inconveniences one encounters in living in a place where the conveniences of retail business are not good.

People think of those things when picking out a residence town, and they hate to locate in a place lacking good stores, just as they dislike to go to a place lacking good water and lights and streets and sewers.

In order to get public conveniences of any kind, we have to tax ourselves. Even if it could be proved that one must occasionally pay a little more to buy goods at home, this tax necessary to get a good system of local shops is but slight compared with what we pay for other conveniences. But it does not cost more to buy at home.

FOURTH OF JULY

join in making the day a memorable one.

The resignation of Henry L. Kincaide as chairman of the Parade committee was accepted and George A. Wardwell was appointed in his place.

The churches will be asked to cooperate with the association in giving publicity to the celebration. Last year there were so many salient features to the idea of keeping everyone busy that many of the clergymen in the city have expressed their desire to cooperate. On the Fourth of July 1910 there was only one arrest for drunkenness in Quincy and fire alarms were scarcer than in previous years. The celebration plan makes for a healthier spirit among all the citizens and should have the support of the churches.

The committee has planned this year for a $3000 celebration that is $2000 will have to be raised outside of the city appropriation.

There will be athletics sports, a mammoth parade, music, fireworks, a balloon ascension, airship flights and a grand display of fire works in the evening, exceeding that of last year if possible.

E. R. Stone and George A. Wardwell were appointed a committee to look into the advisability of having a battleship come to Quincy and of having the sailors take part in the parade.

This will be done if it is found that the cost will not be too much.

The ward chairmen of the finance committee will be announced at the next meeting, Thursday, May 18.

A year ago everything was new and the celebration plan met with some opposition, but its unparalleled success will do away with unfavorable comment this year.

The finance committee will start in work very soon and the citizens in general are asked to contribute. The names of contributors will be published in the papers or if a person does not care to have his name in print, his contribution will come from 'A friend."

The officers of the association are:
President—Eugene R. Stone.

WHY HIGHER IN QUINCY?

Editor of Daily Ledger:

Quincy is a queer place to live in for some reasons. A few days ago I received a card containing a price list of ice for the coming season. The rate quoted was 40 cents per hundred. The Boston Ice Co. has announced that in the district which it covers it will sell ice to the family trade for 25 cents per hundred. The Dorchester Ice Co. is selling its family trade ice at thirty cents,—the same price which our Quincy dealers asked the first of this season before boosting the price to the present forty cent rate. The Weymouth and Braintree family trade is served at thirty cents.

I understand that all of the ice sold in Quincy is cut within the city limits, so there is no loss from shrinkage occasioned by a long railroad haul. All of the Boston and Dorchester ice in cut at a distance from the city limits and hauled into Boston by railroad, thus entailing a considerable initial loss from shinkage by railroad transportation. But, notwithstanding that, Boston and Dorchester ice is put into the family ice-chest at from ten to fifteen cents per hundred less than we have to pay in this city for the home-made product. I am rather poor at household economics and am unable to figure why there should be such a discrepancy in the price of Quincy's home-made product (which sometimes contains particles of foreign substances) as compared with the prices charged by dealers in surrounding towns.

I will admit that I must be pretty thick headed to be unable to grasp why our 35,000 people are compelled to pay more for ice, more for gas, more for water, more for electric lights and a higher average tax rate than the people of many of our neighboring towns and cities. What is it about Quincy that should make these prices so abnormally high? Why should Weymouth and Dorchester people pay thirty cents a hundred for ice and we Quincy people pay forty. It is beyond me to answer. I wish some of our good citizens who are used to dealing in figures, such as our mayor or city solicitor or City Council, would take a pencil and pad of paper and answer these questions.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Boston Men Deny Plot to Bring Chinese Into the Country

Boston, May 13.—Goodman Phillips and George M. D. Gardinier pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging them with conspiracy to smuggle Chinese from Jamaica into the United States, when arraigned before Judge Dodge in the United States district court.

Captain Harvey C. Dailey and Dr. Gin Fuey Moy, their alleged co-conspirators, will be arraigned on Tuesday, when the case comes up for trial.

Dr. Moy of New York is said to have been the go-between in the arrangements. Moy is now under arrest in New Jersey awaiting extradition to Boston.

MRS. E. A. PACKARD.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Packard, widow of Col. Abner B. Packard, passed away at her home 1452 Hancock street Friday afternoon after a long illness in her 81st year.

Mrs. Packard was born in Quincy Nov. 1, 1830 and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Newcomb, and she has always made her home here. In November, 1849 she became the wife of Col. Abner B. Packard.

From her early childhood Mrs. Packard developed a love of flowers and she was never more happy than when working among her gardens. Later Col. Packard built a large conservatory for her near their home on Hancock street and here Mrs . Packard spent most of her time, preferring to pass her hours among her flowers rather than in the amusements which usually have an attraction for women.

Not only were her greenhouses models in their way but she saw to it that the grounds about their homestead were made beautiful and often during the summer have passers stopped to admire the beautiful grounds with their numerous floral plots.

While not in the floral business for personal gain, the demand for her blossoms became such that it became necessary to make a charge for them, yet withall Mrs. Packard gave away many of her choicest flowers and for years some remembrance from her has found it way in a quiet manner to the casket containing all that remained of some veteran of the civil war particularly of those who had served in the Fourth regiment under Col. Packard.

Since the death of her husband Mrs. Packard has carried on her husbands large business with the assistance of her two sons Frank C. Packard and Walter M. Packard.

Funeral services will be held from her late home Monday at 2.30.

TELLER $25,000 SHORT

Alleged Confession of Employe of Woonsocket Savings Bank

Woonsocket, R. I., May 13.—An alleged shortage of about $25,000 in the accounts of H. Besette, teller of the People's Saving bank of this city, is announced. It is alleged that Besette has made a confession. The bank is solvent, according to a statement by Bank Commissioner Goodwin.

The People's Saving bank is one of the oldest financial institutions in the city, having been incorporated in 1857. It has about 5000 depositors with deposits aggregating a little more than $2,000,000.

Severe Thunder Storm

Somersworth, N. H., May 13.—Accompanied by a gale of wind which blew down poles and did other damage, a thunder storm swept over the city last night. Lightning destroyed a barn and carriage house.

Princess Must Pay Dressmaker

Paris, May 13.—While the Belgian courts are busy listening to the claim of Princess Louise to $8,000,000 from the late King Leopold's estate the Paris courts have drastically ordered the princess to pay a dressmaker's bill of $350.

More Money For China

Washington, May 13.—The Red Cross sent $5000 additional by cable to China for the relief of the famine sufferers.

DANCING PARTY

A very pretty private dance was held in Alpha hall under the auspices of the committee, Perley E. Barbour and Elmer F. Ricker. Everything was arranged to a nicety from the order of dances to the daintily served refreshments furnished by the MacDonald, Weber Co of Boston. Magee's orchestra of Boston furnished the music.

During the intermission, the guests adjourned to Union hall where the refreshments were served. The table was decorated in green and white with an occasional dash of red by way of contrast. The menu included: strawberies, fancy ices, fancy cakes and coffee.

Dancing was resumed at eleven o'clock and was continued until the "wee sma' hours."

AUXILIARY ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian association was held in the assembly hall of the association yesterday afternoon.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. James Matheson. Mrs. L. F. LaRose read a very interesting paper on "The Relation of the Auxiliary to the Association."

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. E. I. Beal.

1st Vice President—Mrs. W. F. Cummings.

2nd Vice Presidents—Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Mrs. T. B. Pollard, Mrs. Albert E. Rhodes.

Recording Secretary—Miss Addie Park.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. David H. Goodspeed.

Treasurer—Mrs. John F. Roache.

It was voted to apoint a visiting committee to look after the domitory men when they were sick.

The reports of the committee showed one of the most successful years in the history of the association.

CALLS FOR PROBE OF CUSTOM HOUSE

Washington, May 13.—Representative Sulzer of New York introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of custom houses.

"For several years," said Sulzer, "serious complaints have been made concerning the conduct and administration of immigration matters. There is no well known or established system for interpreting and executing fairly and reasonably the immigration laws, a condition which has of late been condemned by several judges of the United States courts. Moreover, the press of the country is constantly demanding a reform of the existing un-American practices and policies in connection with this subject. So, in my opinion, it is high time a thorough investigation was made and the evils complained of remedied."

Mr. Sulzer's resolution calls for an examination of the administration of the New York, Boston and other important custom houses, especially in regard to the manner in which the laws are interpreted.

AVE MARIA COUNCIL BALL

First Annual of New Council a Great Success

One of the prettiest parties held in West Quincy in a long time was the first annual concert and ball of Ave Maria, Council Knights of Columbus, which was instituted several months ago. The affair was held at St. Mary's hall and was very largely attended, upwards of 125 couples participating in the grand march. The hall itself looked particularly attractive with its decorations of the national colors, potted plants and colored electric lights.

From 8 to 9 o'clock there was a promenade concert by Sculy's orchestra, whose program was:

March—Ave Maria.
Selection—Chocolate Soldier.
Intermezzo—In Roseland.
March—Thoroughbred.

At a little after 9 o'clock came the grand march which opened the ball and a very pretty affair it was. The march was led by Grand Knight, Charles J. McGilvray and Miss Annie McGilvray, who were followed by John J. Mahoney the floor director and Miss Mary Heaney, Mayor William T. Shea and Miss Rita Lyons and Grand Knight John J. Cunniff of Quincy Council and Mrs. Cunniff.

One of the pleasing features of the ball was the moon dance. For this a large moon had been fashioned over the stage which threw a subdued light over the scene when the lights of the hall were dimmed, the colored lights on the wall adding to the effectiveness of the scene.

At midnight an appetizing menu was served in the lower hall which was also very prettily decorated.

There were several guests present from councils of nearby cities and towns whose wants as well as those of the participants of the ball were carefully looked after by a large reception committee of which John J. Joyce was the chairman, his assistants being: Dr. John H. Ash, Patrick F. Cain, John W. Burke, Thomas Connors, Stephen Connors, James E. Geary, James J. Kelley, George A. McDonald, Fred L. McDonald, John P. Minahan, Thomas F. O'Brien, Bernard M. O'Neil, Charles A. Shortle, Robert J. Teasdale, William H. Teasdale, John F. Walsh, James B. White, John J. Barry, Angelo P. Bizzozero, John Casey, George Reinhalter, Edward Monhan, Charles Morrill, Harry Pineo, Alphonse Paradise, John E. Reinhalter, Timothy Shea, John Cashman, Charles F. McGilvray, James Whalen.

Grand Knight Charles J. McGilvray was the floor marshal, John J. Mahoney the floor director and William J. Corcoran, Martin A. King and Frank S. Hebert assistants. The marshal wore a purple badge, the director blue, the assistants red and the following aids heliotrope: Thomas J. Shortle, John E. Buckley, Leon A. Garrity, Matthew A. Morrisey, Edward King, John D. Smith, Charles C. McHugh and John F. Boyce.

The committee of arrangements to whom the success of the ball was due were: Thomas J. Shortle, chairman; Frank S. Hebert, secretary; Matthew A. Morrisey, treasurer; Dr. John T. Reynolds, Daniel Falvey, Daniel F. Fitgerald, Edward J. Forbes, Henry C. Hamil, John J. King, William Leary, Michael J. Mahoney, Daniel McLaughlin, John D. Monahan, John Palisi, William R. Teasdale, Lewis J. White, Fred H. White, Ernest Bizzozero, Cornelius Crowley, Patrick Cormack, Edward Dillon, Vincent Reardon, John S. Dolan, Thomas H. O'Neil, Thomas H. Fahey, Jeremiah Dineen, James P. Dillon, Ed. J. B. Desmond, Michael McDonald, James A. Flaherty, Joseph Fitzgerald, J. Harry Gates, Henry Hughes, Michael Martin, Ambrose Milford, Joseph R. McGilvray.

BRIEFS

Christ Church Boys' club is to give two plays on Thursday night "Looking for Trouble" and "Paddle Your Own Canoe." They are said to be clever comedies full of bright lines and promise to be well interpreted by the boys who have been coached by Mr. Osgood.

A co-partnership was formed May first between Hon. Charles H. Porter of this city and S. T. Emery to continue the insurance business of W. Porter & Co., of Boston, which was established by Mr. Porter's father in 1849. The firm name is to remain the same but the new co-partnership has more commodious offices in the Mason building at 40 Kilby street.

Mrs. Elizabeth A., widow of Col. A. B. Packard passed away early Friday afternoon at her home on Hancock street, after an illness of several months' duration. Funeral services are to be held from her late home on Monday afternoon at half past two.

The annual business meeting of the Ladies Benevolent society was held in parlor of the Memorial church Wednesday afternoon. Officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President—Mrs. S. C. Butler, vice president—Mrs. Harry Read; secretary—Mrs. Ida Hayford; Treasurer—Mrs. J. H. Anderson; auditor—Mrs. Roger H. Wilde. The meeting was followed by a social hour and refreshments of ices and cake were served.

Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church will observe "Anniversary Day" on May 21st. A special program will take the place of the regular evening service.

Mrs. Daniel C. Miller will not return from the Homoeopathic hospital to her home on Willett street until next week. Flowers have kept her room sweet and cheerful and the attendents named it the "Flower room," Mrs. Miller appreciates very much these tokens of affectionate thought. Her many friends are wishing her a speedy convalescence.

NORFOLK COUNTY W. C. T. U.

Norfolk County Woman's Christian Temperance Union is to hold its annual institute on Thursday, May 25, at the Universalist church at South Weymouth.

Better Values Than Ever

Regal Shoes have been recognized as the best values obtainable since the first day they came on to the market. They were built to be the best shoes possible to sell at the customary "round figure" prices—$3.50, $4, $5, etc.—and they were.

But now they are better values than ever, because the Regal Company have abandoned sticking invariably to those "round figure"prices, and Regals are now sold at

URGES ARMY RESERVE

General Wood Says Disarmament of Nations Is a "Dream"

Washington, May 13.—"Disarmament of nations is a dream of dreamers," declared Major General Wood, chief-of-staff of the United States, before the house committee on military affairs.

In opposing a change in the term of enlistment from three to five years, Wood urged as an alternative his plan for the establishment of a permanent reserve corps of regular soldiers, who have retired after three years of service.

He declared the army should be on a stronger war basis, notwithstanding the persistent movements for disarmament and permanent peace through arbitration. With the establishment of a reserve corps there would be within call of the war department within seven years 270,000 men.

PROVIDES HEAVY PENALTY

Bill For Punishing Get-Rich-Quick Men Becomes a Law

Boston, May 13.—Governor Foss signed the bill which provides drastic penalties for the publication of false or misleading reports concerning corporations or properties, regarded as one of the severest blows yet inflicted on promoters of get-rich-quick schemes.

The bill, which was introduced in the upper branch by Senator Tinkham of Boston, provides a penalty of $5000 fine or imprisonment for not more than ten years or both for any person who wilfully or with intent to defraud makes or publishes false, misleading or exaggerated statements concerning the affairs, pecuniary condition or properties of any corporation, joint stock association, partnership or individual.

GIRL IS SHAMEFULLY TREATED BY BOYS

One of the Accused Is Said to Have Confessed

Lynn, Mass., May 13.—Seven-year-old Estelle Gaulet complained to the police, alleging that she was lured to the woods, attacked, kicked and thrown into a pond by 10-year-old Fred Henderson and 14-year-old Guy Hart.

To the attack in all its brutality, as she described it, young Henderson is said by the police to have confessed upon being brought face to face with the girl, and to have implicated Hart.

The boys have been summoned to arraignment in the children's court next Wednesday.

The girl says the boys tore her clothing, beat her on the head with sticks, and when she screamed, dragged her by the leg to a mud pond and threw her in; and when she climbed on a rock pelted her with stones and did not let up in their attack until a woman passing along frightened them away.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Rumored Verdict of Jury In the Trial of Mrs. Dodge

Guildhall, Vt., May 13.—The jury that has listened to the evidence and the arguments in the trial of Florence M. Dodge, charged with the murder of William A. Heath, has agreed upon a verdict.

This was announced late last night, but the verdict was not made public, the members of the jury retiring after having reached an agreement. The court will receive the verdict today.

While the jury has made no report to the court and its verdict is a secret, well defined rumor declares Mrs. Dodge has been found guilty. It is further reported that the jury's verdict rests upon the manslaughter count in the indictment.

ACCUSED OF BRIBERY

University Head Said to Have Offered $10,000 to Labor Leader

Portland, Ore., May 13.—Charging that P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon, had offered him a bribe of $10,000 to burn or destroy the referendum petition on the famous $500,000 state university legislative grab, H. J. Parkinson, secretary of the Portland labor organizations, revealed the latest political scandal in the state.

"I was offered my own price," he declared. "The offer later was made definite and $10,000 was the amount named. Campbell made the offer to me personally."

Railroad Company Fined $1000

Pittsburg, May 13.—The Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad Company entered a plea of nolo contendere in the United States district court here, to charges of violating the interstate commerce act, and Judge Orr imposed a minimum fine of $1000.

SECRETARY OF WAR RESIGNS

Had Been No Hint That He Contemplated Retirement

SPECULATION AS TO CAUSE

Friends Say He Wishes to Devote Time to Coal Company In Which He Is Interested, but There Is Gossip of Friction In Cabinet—Stimson, Roosevelt's Friend, Is Given the Vacant Place

Washington, May 13.—Jacob M. Dickinson of Tennessee, secretary of war, has resigned from President Taft's cabinet, and simultaneously with the announcement made late last evening by President Taft, Henry L. Stimson of New York, recently Republican candidate for governor and backed by former President Roosevelt, was appointed as his successor.

The retirement of Dickinson was entirely unexpected by the public, although his resignation had been in the hands of President Taft since April 28. His resignation his friends claim to be due to the fact that a coal company in which Secretary Dickinson's personal fortune is largely invested is in the hands of a receiver and Dickinson desires to give this his attention.

Mr. Dickinson is a Democrat. His presence in the cabinet of a Republican president has not been looked upon with favor by some of Taft's political advisers. They thought the office of secretary of war should be held by some one of the president's own party, and they also pointed out Dickinson might prove a source of embarrassment when the presidential campaign of 1912 begins.

Naturally Dickinson also found the discussion in the cabinet of party measures often a personal embarrassment.

There were others who thought that Dickinson incurred some criticisms by his conduct of the department. Recently there have been reports of friction over the Mexican situation between the state department and the war department.

In some quarters, it was asserted, Secretary of State Knox was being overshadowed by Dickinson and there were reports that the former contemplated resigning, but these met with official denials. There had been no hint that Dickinson contemplated retirement.

The appointment of Stimson to be secretary of war was not the only appointment yesterday for the purpose of uniting the Republican forces of the state of New York for the campaign of 1912. The president at the same time that he announced Stimson's appointment made public his selection of Charles S. Millington of Herkimer to be assistant treasurer at New York city at a salary of $8000.

Mr. Stimson is appointed as a Roosevelt man pure and simple. He was Root's law partner and was appointed United States district attorney by Roosevelt. Roosevelt at Saratoga last September nominated Stimson for governor of the state against the heroic opposition of the old guard, all of whom predicted Stimson's defeat. He was defeated, and 1911 was the first time the New York Republicans lost the governorship since the election of 1891.

Charles S. Millington, who has been appointed as an assistant treasurer at New York, was elected to the Sixty-First congress to succeed James S. Sherman, who was then running for vice pesident. Roosevelt issued the dictum that his nephew, Douglas Robinson, Jr., should be nominated for congress in the Twenty-Seventh district, instead of Millington. Millington won the nomination, and the Roosevelt faction in the state slaughtered him at the polls, causing the election of Charles A. Talcott, Democrat. Mr. Millington is a financier. For thirty-five years he has been a banker.

SUSPECTED OF THIEVING

Cousin of King of Italy Is Expelled From Naval Academy

Rome, May 13.—The Prince of Salem, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, has been expelled from the naval academy at Leghorn under circumstances which have given rise to gossip amounting almost to scandal.

The prince was suspected of appropriating money belonging to his fellow students. He is very extravagant and to his repeated requests for funds his mother, Princess Maria Litizia, occasionally remitted small sums, quite inadequate to meet the prince's expenditures.

LADY DECIES UNDER KNIFE

Former Miss Gould Is Operated Upon For Appendicitis

London, May 13.—A successful operation for appendicitis was performed upon Lady Decies, formerly Miss Vivian Gould, yesterday afternoon.

Although Lady Decies was in normal health apparently, having been introduced at court this week and taking part in the routine of society, it was deemed advisable by her physician that she undergo the operation.

—The Boston requirement that all foodstuff exhibited for sale in markets shall be covered to protect them from flies and dust is also good. The pity is that legal compulsion is necessary thus to conserve the public health in some cities—and that even legal compulsion is lacking in others.—Manchester Union.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Quincy women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden Bachache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of he stealthy appreach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Quincy woman's words:

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, as I knew of many other people who had used them with success. The contents of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE.

Th annual meeting of the Quincy Playground Committee of One Hundred will be held at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Tuesday, May 16th, at 8 P. M., for the election of officers, the presentation of reports on the work of last year, the consideration of the work to be done the present year, and such other business as may come before the meeting. All interested in the playground movement in our city are invited to attend.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Will Twelve a Week Suffice Five Adults?—Magnus Alexander's Estimate of Cost of Living Stirs up Bay State—Chinese Trees for New England Hillsides Are Imported by Boston's Arboretum—The Late Col. Higginson was a Life Long Radical—Conservatory Alumni Are Urged to Write a Suitable College Song.

More treasures for the American Kew, Boston's Arnold Arboretum at Jamaica Plan which has just been enriched by the accession of thousands of rare trees and shrubs from China. The famous living tree museum, about which an expert from Kew Garden, London, has recently written enthusiastically, is henceforth to be the nursery for many new flowers, strange fruits and useful plants which it is hoped may thrive and grow in this climate and in time become accepted features of New England gardens and forests. Collector Wilson of the Arboretum staff has lately returned from an extended search throughout China bringing species of conifers and other groups which resemble in some respects the trees of our native land and give promise of acclimating themselves easily. Hubbites who take their friends for the fascinating annual trip through the Arboretum in lilac time will find many surprises awaiting them in the presence of these foreign acquisitions.

Little Johnny Bostonbeans awaits with impatience the blast of the bugle announcing the approach of "the two Bills" with their exciting and mysterious wild West and far East shows. Col. Cody, like Madame Patti, firmly believes each tour to be "positively his last appearance" and this year he has added to the attractions of his own show the newer features of Pawnee Bill's Far East—Pawnee Bill, also, being about to celebrate his last visit to this community as an exhibitor. From the moment the band wagon appears at the head of the procession until the last tent pole is struck the average Boston boy and girl will be as ecstatically delighted as in similar circumstances would be contemporary youngsters of Youngstown or Kankakee.

The late Col. Higginson was not only one of the last survivors of literary Boston of the nineteenth century, but one of the venerable men who never grow old. His youthful optimism kept him a moderate radical to the last, interested in equal suffrage, trades unionism and socialism, though always without acrimony or fanaticism. His "suffragism" was of long standing. One of the essays with which he created a considerable stir when the subject of woman's voting was less widely discussed than now was "Ought Women to Learn the Alphabet?" in which he took the ground that the equality of woman with man was conceded when the former was allowed to learn the alphabet. The Colonel was influential a few years ago in starting an organization to promote the study of socialism among the colleges.

Are you spending more than $12 per week, Mr. Familyman, to support your wife and five children? If you are, it is indicative that there is ignorance or wastefulness somewhere. At least, so says Magnus Alexander of Lynn, member of the Massachusetts commission on workingmen's compensations. "If we should today advance the worker a dollar or two weekly," he said, "it is doubtful if we would materially reduce his poverty. It is more than likely he would only add to his economic wastefulness." True, Mr. Alexander, is the retort that has risen to many lips, if "economic wastefulness" means a sufficiency of nourishing food, decent clothing, average education, provision for the future rainy day, and a wee amount of healthful recreation, in order that the growing generation may be useful and intelligent citizens. A New York charity worker has challenged the Lynn man's figures as they apply to his city and others are saying that the basis of $12 per week may be all right in a few centres of population where the cost of living is unusually low, but it doesn't sound very promising for a normal, healthy citizenship in the next generation, nor for the comforts of old age for the present one.

A college song suitable for conservatory students and teachers to warble at banquets, picnics or class reunions ought to be a good one, musically speaking. It is no wonder, therefore, that a prize needs to be offered by the New England Conservatory Alumni Association for words and music suitable for a "Conservatory Song." Just any cheap doggerel set to bars of harmonious claptrap may suit the purposes of collegians. Most of the jingles in the college song book, it is suspected, are what the trained musician would call trucky. Their banal commonplaceness has been challenged by no less distinguished a lay critic than President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard. Presently, it may be expected, more of Dr. Lowell's students will take advantage of the reciprocal relations between the university in Cambridge and the Conservatory in Boston to get a thorough grounding in the practice of musical composition before undertaking serious or comic songs. In the meantime twenty-five dollars in gold await the graduate or former pupil of the greatest of American music schools who sends in the best song before the first of next year. The judges will be five carefully selected members of the Conservatory faculty, who will reserve the right to reject all compositions if no one of them measures up to a standard high enough to insure permanency as a "Conservatory song." The financial reward may not seem to be exactly that which greets the composer of such popular successes as "Somewhere" or "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," but the honor of writing a song for a prosperous and kindly Alma Mater will undoubtedly stimulate many of the alumni and alumnae of the Boston institution to their most tuneful efforts.

SHERMAN LAW UPHELD

Meat Packers Must Stand Trial on Criminal Charges

Chicago, May 13.—In a ruling handed down by Judge Carpenter in the federal court he held that the Sherman anti-trust law was constitutional and the ten meat packers indicted individually on criminal charges growing out of the formation of the alleged beef trust would have to stand trial on these indictments. The court overruled demurrers filed by the packers.

This was the fourth unsuccessful attempt of the packers to evade trial on the indictments. In each case the ruling has been unequivocally against them.

CHIEF OF CAMORRA FACES HIS ACCUSER

Latter Says He Will Be "a Lion of Accusation"

Viterbo, Italy, May 13.—The great crowd that pressed into the court of the assizes in anticipation of a violent scene between Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, and Enrico Alfano, whom the former has denounced as the guiding spirit in the Camorra, was disappointed.

The informer repeated his accusations against Alfano to the effect that he was the actual if not the acknowledged head of the Camorra and so primarily responsible for the murder of Gennaro Cuoccolo and his wife. Alfano denied every charge.

Turning to the former Alfano said: "The truth is that you are the real murderer. We are your victims, but we will reply as lions."

To this Abbatemaggio responded: "I will be a lion of accusation."

WARD AWARDED $1000

Former Baseball Player Wins Slander Suit Against Johnson

New York, May 13.—A jury in the supreme court returned a verdict awarding John M. Ward, lawyer and former captain of the old New York baseball team, $1000 from Ban Johnson, president of the American league, for slander. Ward sued for $50,000.

Johnson, it is alleged, called Ward a "trickster" in a newspaper article. The article contained reference to the case of George Davis, a ball player, for whom Ward drew up a contract.

It was Ward's relations with Davis and his contracts that Johnson is alleged to have referred to.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

Mrs. L. R. Holbrook of Holbrook avenue was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. I. P. Bent of Quincy Point last Sunday.

The members of the Amana Rebekah lodge held a whist party in I. O. O. F. hall Thursday evening directly after their regular meeting.

Sympathy is extended to Dr. J. William Watson who with his family were called to New Hampshire on Monday to attend the funeral services of Rev. Albert Watson.

The Pond street cemetery association met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. Herbert Annis of Grove street. The ladies busied themselves with sewing and the hostess served refreshments.

Last evening the Braintree Council Knights of Columbus worked the first degree in I. O. O. F. hall. The local degree staff officiated under the direction of Dr. C. A. Sullivan, G. K.

Miss Gertrude A. Kelley at one time the mayor of the Noah Torrey school city system has been awarded a diploma for the best specimen of the new Palmer method of hand-writing at the Braintree high school.

Thursday afternoon at two o'clock an alarm from box 147 sounded for a fire near Mr. Johnson's farm off Pond street. There was little damage except to fences but the department was busy until 4.40 o'clock fighting the brush fire which covered some sixty acres or more.

Monday afternoon the Noah Torrey base ball nine played the Monatiquot team on French's common. Many are showing considerable interest in the games which are being played by the Grammar school league. The score was 10-7 in favor of the Noah Torrey.

The funeral of Master Antonio Chicallo of Central avenue who was drowned near his home last Friday was held Sunday afternoon at St. Francis church. Services were conducted by Rev. Andrew J. Fitzgerald and the interment was in St. Mary's cemetery at Randolph.

William J. Walsh the popular lecturer who has been heard in Quincy on several occasions before large and delighted audiences is coming to Music hall on the evening of May 21st. He will have the support of his Scenic Concert Co., in addition to the sweet voiced lyric tenor John Z. Kelley.

REBLS MARCH ON CHIHUAHUA

City Has Been Insolated For Practically Two Weeks

COMMUNICATION IS CUT OFF

Federal Troops In Large District In Many Instances Stand by Utterly Helpless While Towns Have Been Invaded and Property Destroyed—Rebels Reported Ready to Strike at Diaz In Mexico City

El Paso, Tex., May 13.—Two thousand insurrectos, part of the band operating in the districts south of here, are reported to be marching on Chihuahua. Already the advance guards are encamped around the city. An armed mob entered Nombre de Dios, a suburb, looted all the stores and took all the horses and escaped, despite the presence of 1500 federal troops in nearby barracks.

Santa Eulia, an important mining town, twelve miles east of Chihuahua, has been abandoned by all the municipal officers because of the approach of the insurrectos. The place is now regulated wholly by Americans employed in the mines.

Chihuahua, long in dread of attack, is now in greater fear than ever, because of the extreme violence by the insurrectos in their northward march.

The whole district, embracing Durango, Torreon and intermediate towns, has been in a state approaching anarchy. To conceal their movements the insurrectos destroyed all the remaining telegraph and railroad lines so that Chihuahua City, with its 35,000 inhabitants, has been isolated for practically two weeks. This dispatch was sent 225 miles overland by automobile to El Paso.

In the territory adjacent to and south of Torreon towns have been invaded, stores looted, railways and telegraphs destroyed and the jefe politicos have been killed off with something like monotonous regularity, while in many instances the federal troops stand by utterly helpless.

Those in authority do not conceal their belief that the conditions about Torreon and the larger section of the interior, embracing the cities of Zacatecas, Durango, Agua Calientes and Parral, is fast becoming a greater menace to the federal government than Madero's forces.

Attack on Mexico City Expected

Mexico City, May 13.—Fifteen hundred members of the revolutionary party are said to have been secretly armed and are awaiting an order to rise and seize the government buildings. The cabinet has been disrupted by President Diaz' refusal to resign, following the fall of Juarez, and affairs at the capital are rapidly approaching the crisis that is expected to result in desperate fighting in the streets.

Continued pressure has been brought to bear on President Diaz by members of his cabinet to abandon his office and his refusal is said to have so angered Senor de la Barra, minister of foreign relations, that he resigned. He was later induced to withdraw his resignation, and another cabinet meeting was called. The result of this was not revealed, but rumors were circulated that Diaz had shown signs of yielding.

Despite this, residents of the capital are preparing for a siege. Though part of the revolutionary legion has been assigned to guard the foreign section, the houses are being barricaded and windows boarded up.

Arms May Go Into Juarez

Washington, May 13.—After the cabinet meeting yesterday, Colonel Steever, at El Paso, was instructed by the secretary of war to permit all regular shipments passing through the customs house to enter Juarez. This means that the military will not interfere with any supplies cleared by the customs house, whether they be arms, ammunition or food.

SUNK IN COLLISION

Steamer Merida, Bound North From Havana, Rammed by the Farragut

Boston, May 13.—The United Fruit company's steamship Admiral Farragut ran down and sank the Ward liner Merida, about thirty-five miles off Cape Charles, Va.

This information was received by wireless messages which were picked up at the Charlestown navy yard.

The passengers of the Merida, which was on her way north from Havana and other points, were transferred by lifeboats to the Farragut without mishap so far as is known.

The ship sunk in in thirty-four fathoms of water soon after the collision. The cargo and the baggage of the passengers were lost.

Pledged to Arbitration

London, May 13.—A committee representing 400 members of the house of commons of all parties, organized for the purpose of giving support to the Anglo-American arbitration movement, adopted a resolution pledging themselves to do all in their power to further the progress of the movement.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve, every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say "Prove it." We'll welcome the opportunity.

BEST GAME OF SEASON

Quincy High Wins from Wendall by Score of 1 to 0

Quincy high defeated Wendall academy in the best game seen on Merrymount Park this season yesterday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. Rice pitched a good game getting 10 strikeouts and allowing only three hits, one of which was caused by slow fielding. Manning played a good game at short, handling some hot ones "wid ease" and Blackmur picked a hot liner off the air some distance back of his position.

Holmes distinguished himself at the bat and in the field getting three flies one of them a difficult catch and making two clean hits over second. Holmes also scored the only run assisted by a clean single off Blackmur's bat.

The game was surprisingly free from errors on the Quincy side, M. Chapman made one poor throw and L. Chapman misjudged one fly but aside from these, the fielding showed grade.

For the visitors Culhane in left field, played a rattling good game pulling down four long flies in difficult catches.

Social Realm

The Ladies Whist club of Atlantic concluded their series of parties with Mrs. George Richardson, Wednesday night. The final distribution of prizes was made and the evening finished with a dainty supper.

• • •

At the Bertha Cushing Child concert Monday evening a group of songs composed by the brilliant young Boston writer, John H. Densmore, will be sung by Mrs. Child. Mr. Densmore will add interest to the attractive program by playing the piano part of his own composition. Miss Worden, the composed of the Celtic song cycle, arrived from New York this afternoon and will give the soloists forming the quartet the benefit of her personal direction. The singers are greatly interested in the Celtic songs and as this is the first public performance of the new work, each artist is anxious that it shall have a flawless interpretation. The list of patronesses contains over one hundred names and it is very evident that the Child concert is to be the musical and social event of the season.

ST. MARGARETS GUILD.

Mrs. W. E. Burke gave a very bright and interesting address to members of St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church last evening. In the course of the address Mrs. Burke gave a resume of a lecture on Russia given by Miss Hersey of Boston who has travelled in Russia quite extensively.

A very pleasant evening was spent by all present.

EXPRESSMEN OVERHAULED

Inspector Goodhue finds All Living up to Law

Inspector Goodhue one of whose duties is to look after the enforcement of the liquor law stationed himself at Atlantic Saturday afternoon and held up every expressman coming into Quincy. Saturday is one of the days when large amounts of liquor are brought into Quincy, and it is on days like that when the best idea of how expressmen are conducting their business can be learned.

Inspector Goodhue said this morning that he did not find any of the expressmen but who were complying with the law in every respect. Their books corresponded with the goods on the teams which was evidence that the expressmen were living up to the law.

RECEPTION.

The reception given at the Holden home on Adams street, on Saturday evening by Mrs. John O. Holden and Mrs. Edward Russell of Russell park, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beale Holden, nee Russell of Paris, was a most delightful affair. From eight until eleven o'clock the house was thronged with guests, not only from Quincy but from neighboring towns, who enjoyed greeting Mr. and Mrs. Holden after their absence of several years abroad. Ices were served in the dining room and an orchestra mingled its sweet strains of music with the hum or social intercourse.

Mr. Holden returns to Paris the last of the month, while Mrs. Holden contemplates staying on this side until fall.

RESIDENTS ENTER PROTEST

Oil Dust on Hancock S'reet Great Nuisance

Hancock street, is in a deplorable condition as far as dust is concerned and there is a universal kick on the part of the residents on the street. The street has been oiled all right but the trouble was that the street was not scraped or the paving swept before the oil was applied. The result has been that the oil has not served to lay the dust but has given it a dark brown color and this the wind blows about in great clouds much to the discomfort of pedestrians as well as to housekeepers for the oily dust comes through the open window and ruins upholstered furniture.

What the residents would like to see is for that street sweeper, preceded by a watering cart go over the street and clean it. Then the oil dust preventative would do some good. As it is now it is worse than none at all.

RINGLING BROS. CIRCUS.

Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows will give two performances each day in Boston during the week of May 29. For many years the Ringling Brothers have maintained the most popular as well as the best show. This year they are more than ever giving patron's their money's worth. Among the many great attractions under the twelve acres of canvas are Prof. Emory's troupe of trained baby elephants, the wonderful Schuman performing horses from the Circus Schuman, Germany, "Toque" the dog marvel of England which does a somersaulting performance on the back of a swiftly running horse; the wonderful Alex family of French aerialists; the great Crocker family of Gypsy riders; the Deltorelli family of Hungarian clowns, once entertainers in the court of theShah of Persia; the Bonsetti family of Italian acrobats, the Castrillion family of Spanish acrobats, the Hodgini family of Italian equestrians and the fifty greatest clowns on earth.

In the managerie is found Tiny Tom Tinker, the smallest elephant ever seen in America. In all there are forty elephants and 1,200 other wild beasts, comprising the rarest of zoological specimens. The morning parade is the greatest street spectacle ever devised for circus purposes. There are three miles of it and every mile a mile of wonders.

SHOT THE DOG.

Officer Broberg shot a large scotch collie dog in the rear of the house at 30 Euclid avenue Sunday afternoon. The dog had been in the neighborhood all the forenoon and was suffering greatly evidently from the effects of poison. An effort was made to find the owner but the dog had no collar and inquiries did not avail. The animal showed signs of neglect and looked as if he had to scavenge for his living. It was light brown in color with considerable white and a little black on the tail.

—The old saying that anybody can make a living if he is willing to work for it seems to have been forgotten in these strenuous days. We notice frequently in the daily press reports of people ending their lives because they are discouraged at inability to get work. It is heartrending indeed to acknowledge that such conditions can exist in this country but it seems as though they are happening all too frequently nowadays. It is hard lack indeed for the unemployed and unless a man is a specialist it is a hard job to find employment especially in the big cities where acquaintance is practically unknown. And yet we hear that the farms in the west cannot get help enough. It would be impossible for one to get west, or anywhere else when he is wandering about without a cent in his pocket, to say nothing taking a job with which he is entirely unfamiliar.—Rockland Standard.

BRIEFS

A Peace day observance by the W. R. C. is to be held Thursday night in the Council chamber.

DR. E. N. HARDY SAYS FAREWELL

Bethany Church Hears Pastor for Last Time

Bethany church was filled to overflowing Sunday morning with church members and friends among whom the retiring pastor has ministered, assembled to hear the farewell sermon. Dr. Hardy said that there were two customs generally followed on an occasion of this sort. One was to give a resume of the work accomplished during the pastorate and the other an expression of ones feeling at parting. "But, he said, "I am going to follow neither of these for both of us know that the the other has tried to be faithful and my feelings are such that I would not attempt to tell you how sorry I am to go. Instead I am going to preach upon the same text that I used 16 years ago this coming June when I preached my first sermon from this pulpit. Rom. 1:16 "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ." Though the text is the same it will be a different sermon fo r my conception of the gospel has grown much broader in these 16 years of service with you."

We will not attempt to quote the sermon or even to give it in brief, but will instead reprint a farewell address which appeared on the church calendar for Sunday.

"The pastor wishes it were possible to express to each organization, family and individual the appreciation felt for countless expressions of kindness, affection and esteem made in the past few months. These expressions of good will, and substantial gifts have come from every part of the city and from all ranks of society. The pressure of other duties has made it impossible thus far to properly acknowledge them. The fact that my work begins at once in LaGrange with special services to which all the churches of the city are invited for next Sunday, somewhat crowds these parting days with work which must be done. Yet I am glad to begin at once my work elsewhere as it will somewhat lessen the pains of separation from a churchpeople and city which have become very dear to us.

Let us say here how deeply we appreciate not only the consideration, generosity and love which have marked these closing days of our pastorate, but which have been so conspicuous throughout the sixteen years. You have been extremely patient, responsive and loyal and I consider fortunate the man whom you may select to be your pastoral leader. It is our hope and expectation that the best days for Bethany church are those of the future and it will be a satisfaction in the coming days for those of us who have served you to know of your successes and advancement. None outside the profession can understand how deep is the interest of the minister in the individual life of those whom he serves.

The minister being very much like other people is subject to limitations, errors of judgment, and indiscretions of act and speech. He proclaims the message as it comes to him, he shapes the policies of the church in accord with his highest wisdom, he makes choice from countless demands upon time and strength those which seem to him most sure of advancing the real interests of the kingdom of God in the world. He has his ideals of the ministry, the character of the church, and Christian citizenship and endeavors fearlessly and enthusiastically to make the real, that which actually is, match up to the ideal. He must interpret truth as it is revealed to him and translate as best he can into the language, thought and life of men now about him. The main thing is the incarnation of Christian principle into the human life of today. That consecrated men see these ideals and the methods of their realization from different view-points is to be expected. There could be little progress other wise. I am profoundly grateful that you have so generously permitted your pastor to work out his ideals. Conscious that much more might have been done with this splendid opportunity I have this only to say in farewell, forgive all that has been done amiss in the work of your pastor; forget not that the great diversity of tastes and needs of this parish present real difficulties, and kindly remember your pastor as one who for sixteen years has tried to be faithful in the discharge of his duties.

I am confident that there will be mutual interest in each other as our paths separate. The work which has been here attempted is not done, for the best fruits will appear we believe in years to come. A pastorate does not come to an end with the retirement of the pastor from the field. The best results of the work of the pastor and the church abide and continue, and will blossom and hear fruit in years to come. We have been sowing the

CLASS OF 1912 WINS MEET

Good Sport at Field Meet of Woodward Girls

The class of 1912 at Woodward Institute by winning the sixth annual athletic meet of the school at Merrymount park on Saturday earned the right to keep the silk flag for the third successive year. At the close of the morning events, 1912 lead 1914 by four points. The afternoon events were all won by 1912 and she also was awarded first prize in the singing contest bringing the total up to 56, 1914 was second with 30, 1911, third with 23 and 1913, fourth with 20. The Sophomores showed that even if they could not do as well in cavorting about the field ,they excelled in having an artistic eye for the green and white booth was awarded first prize. The decorating committee was Misses Ethel Thomas, Edith Ames, Lucy Waite and Katherine Merrill.

The Freshman athletes showed great promise in the meet and next year will make the thrice winning class of 1912 hustle still more.

The Maypole dance was significant in that it is the first time a May pole has been planted on Merrymount since Thomas Morton did the deed in the early sixteen hundreds.

The dancers were: Misses Kathrene Adams, Louise Emery, Blanche Hay-

LIFE SAVER'S BILL.

Boston, May 1911:—Strong efforts will be made to secure the passage of a pension bill for the benefit of members of the United States Life Saving service either during the present or the next session of Congress. Representative Norman H. White of Brookline, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, has become interested in this matter, and he has agreed to do everything in his power to assist the campaign which will be carried on to this end.

Mr. White has been in communication with prominent members of the life saving service for some time past, and as a result of the information he has obtained from them, and at their request, has promised to do all in his power to further their cause. Should the question not be acted on by Congress this session Mr. White will continue to give his assistance to the campaign and endeavor to secure the passage of the pension bill during the next session of the National Congress. In this campaign he hopes to have the active co-operation of representative citizens in the various life saving districts.

"I am very much interested in the attempt now being made to secure pensions from the United States government for our life savers," Mr. White remarked during a recent interview. "I have already promised to do everything in my power to aid their campaign to this end, for I firmly believe there is ample reason for the passage of such legislation.

"The bill which the life savers desire to see enacted contains two distinct propositions, and with both of these I am in full accord. It will create a retired list, upon which will be placed all superintendents of life saving districts, keepers of life saving stations, and all members of life saving crews, after they have reached sixty-four years of age, or earlier, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. Those so retired will receive from the government annually seventy-five per cent of the annual compensation of the grade held by them at the date of their retirement. The bill will also provide for a ten per cent increase in pay every five years.

"The passage of the proposed bill will, I believe, greatly increase the efficiency of the service, and will result in providing a competence during their declining years to the men whose heroism, devotion and fidelity have served to make the United States life saving service superior to that of all other countries.

"I fail to see where any reasonable excuse can be offered for longer delay to take some action on behalf of these men who have accomplished so much in the interests of humanity and commerce, and to the credit and honor of the nation. It is surely time that some action was taken to relive them of the ever-present disheartening apprehension of ending their days in want."

SONG RECITAL.

Miss Magdalen S. Worden, the talented composer of the Celtic song cycle which will have its first public performance at the Bertha Cushing Child concert tonight, had her final rehearsal Sunday afternoon with the soloists forming the quartet. Miss Worden was much pleased with the fine work of the singers and complimented them warmly upon their artistic interpretation of her composition.

The concert is most interestingly arranged. The first part is made up of solos and duets by Mrs. Child and her assisting artists.

Mr. Kingman, the 'cellist has studied with Leo Schulz of the New York Philharmonic orchestra and plays with much feeling and artistic finish. Mr. John H. Densmore, the Boston composer will accompany some of his songs to be sung by Mrs. Child.

Mr. Berry, the tenor soloist of Kings Chapel, Boston, will sing an attractive group of songs.

Mrs. Slade our widely known and well liked soprano and Mr. Chalk the Boston baritone will give great pleasure with their finely trained voices. Both are vocalists of much experience and their selections of song are very interesting.

The concert will be one of the best that has ever been given in Quincy and all who are interested in the better grade of entertainments will be well repaid by attending.

COUNCIL MEETING.

A large number of important matters are scheduled to come up for consideration at tonight's meeting of the City Council.

Many of the important matters pending before the Finance and Street committees have been considered since the last meeting of the Council and many of these will be reported upon.

In addition a public hearing is scheduled on the acceptance of a number of new streets.

THE CALL OF THE CAR.

Minna Irving.

When the lilac trees are budding,
And the roads are warm and dry,
Then I long to see the landscape
Like a ribbon reeling by;
And to hear the engine throbbing
With a strong and steady beat,
With the wheel beneath my fingers,
And the brake beneath my feet.

Gliding up the hills so rocky,
Sliding down the valleys long,
Humming o'er the level places,
Drumming out a reckless song;
Scooting round the lonesome corners,
Tooting gayly on the horn,
Waking up the sleepy hamlets,
Making merry in the morn.

Oh, it's pleasant in a hammock,
Swinging in a shady place,
And a joy to skim the billows,
With the spray upon your face;
But the maddest, merriest rapture
On this time worn, earthly star,
Is a spin across the country
In a speedy auto car.

—Mrs. John B. Dodd of Spokane, originator of "Fathers' day," is making arrangements through clubs in various parts of the United States for a national celebration on Sunday, June 18, when those who desire to show their respect for "dad" will wear a rose, a colored flower for the living and white for the dead. Mrs. Dodd succeeded in interesting several thousand men, women and children in the Northwestern country in observing the day last year, when some of the local ministers preached special sermons, extolling the worth and virtues of "the old man." Since then the Spokane woman has received sheaves of letters from prominent men and women in various parts of the country, including governors of 38 states and executive officials at Washington, D. C., commending the plan and urging her to continue the campaign with a view to making the celebration a national event. So far more than 100 cities have decided to join in the celebration, and Mrs. Dodd expects there will be more than 3,000 in line this year.

MADERO RULES AFTER MUTINY

Arrest of Rebel Leader Was Ordered by Military Men

DEMONSTRATION IS OVERCOME

Demand For Execution of Federal General Is Refused and He Is Whisked Out of Danger by His Foe —All Is Now Said to Be Harmonious After Serious Clash Between Military and Political Authorities

Juarez, Mex., May 15.—The supreme test, the clash between the military and political authorities, was experienced by the provisional government of Mexico, and Provisional President Madero is complete master of the situation.

After a day of thrilling incidents, during which the lives of Madero and his chiefs were in danger, because General Orozco, in a moment of passion, ordered the arrest of the little rebel leader and demanded the resignation of the provisional cabinet, the capital of the provisional government is quiet.

General Navarro, the defeated federal commander, whose life was threatened by angry mobs of insurrectos, was spirited away by Madero in person to the American side of the Rio Grande and is safely ensconsed in the home of friends in El Paso.

A plot, quiet and deeply laid, is suspected by the rebel leaders as the cause of what was almost a riot in front of the Madero headquarters, and some of the Maderos assert it was a sinister scheme by those who are trying to break up the organization of the revolution to foster the opinion throughout Mexico that the movement is one of anarchy. In a public statement Madero charged Orozco's actions were incited "by persons interested in bringing about disunion among us."

There are all sorts of stories in regard to the clash, but at bottom it was apparent that dissension among the military chiefs was the cause of the disturbance. Colonel Villa was said to have insisted on Navarro's life, while Orozco was said to have been displeased with the naming of a civilian as minister of war. Now, all is harmony, Madero has impressed upon Orozco that the choosing of a cabinet and the management of a government is quite outside the functions of the military.

Apprehension for the safety of Navarro stirred the sympathy of Madero after the incident at the municipal building and he determined at the risk of his own life to save the federal commander. He was whisked away in an automobile to where Navarro has been staying since he was captured, and after a brief explanation conveyed Navarro to the river front, where the latter waded the river and was soon safe on the American territory.

General Navarro gave his word of honor that he would return to Mexican soil when required to do so by Madero. If the feeling against Navarro among the insurrectos, because of alleged acts of cruelty in previous battles, becomes stronger, it maay be a court martial will be ordered.

ADOPTS MARRIED WOMAN

Brooklyn Man Wants Old Friend to Get Share of His Estate

Brooklyn, May 15.—County Judge Dike signed an order permitting George G. Lockwood of Brooklyn to legally adopt Mrs. L. M. Warner of Lakeville, Conn. The petition states that since she was a baby and up to the time of her marriage Mrs. Warner resided in the home of the petitioner, and has always been regarded as one of his own children.

Though Mrs. Warner is now 45 years old, Lockwood asks that he be allowed to adopt her so that she may get a share of his estate, which he says is small.

DOORS CLOSED FOUR TIMES

Throng of 45,000 Visits "The World In Boston" Exposition

Boston, May 15.—All attendance records went by the board Saturday at Mechanics' hall, when 45,000 men, women and children attended the great "World in Boston" exposition.

Four times the doors were closed upon the inpouring throng and the unreserved seats in the Pageant hall were all taken as early as 12 o'clock.

But aside from the pageant it was a great day in the main hall. All day long delegations were arriving from distant points.

Overcome by Sleeping Potion

Budapest, May 15.—Franz Molnar, the Hungarian playwright, was removed to a hospital suffering from the effects of an overdose of a sleeping potion taken, he said, through mistake while he was suffering from insomnia.

Drowned on Flower Hunt

Wellesley, Mass., May 15.—While picking mayflowers a short distance from the academy of the Assumption, where he was a pupil, John Skiffington, aged 6, fell into a pond and was drowned.

COUPLE CARRY OUT THEIR DEATH PACT

Binghampton, N. Y., May 15.—After notifying friends where their bodies would be found, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Harrington divided a vial of poison on the bank of the Chenango river here and died together in a clump of trees.

Harrington was a newspaper man, broken in health and finances, and his wife had been his devoted companion throughout a long married life. Friends receiving the farewell letters rushed to the scene of the suicide, but death had already taken place.

The double suicide had been carefully planned. Not only were friends told by letter where the bodies would be found, but subsequent inspection of the Harrington apartment showed they packed their treasured belongings with care and addressed them to old friends as mementos.

KILLED BY A FALL

Son of Ex-Secretary of State Bayard Meets Tragic Death

Washington, May 15.—Philip Bayard, son of the late Thomas F. Bayard of Delaware, formerly secretary of state, met a tragic death here at the Garfield hospital, where he was being treated for a bad attack of acute indigestion. In a moment of delirium, while his nurse was absent from the room, he either jumped or fell from a third-story window.

Mr. Bayard, who was a resident of Wilmington, Del., served as United States vice consul general at Morocco several years ago. Since that time he had taken an examination for the consular service and expected later to serve as consul when there was a suitable vacancy.

KILLING OFF PRAIRIE DOGS

Fifty Millions of the Pests In Texas to Be Destroyed by Poison

Spur City, Tex., May 15.—Charles D. Moore is engaged in poisoning 50,000,000 prairie dogs on the Spur ranch and 463,000 acres in Dickins, Kent, Garza and Crosby counties.

These ground squirrels will cut down and carry away a field of grain in a night. Their destructive propensities are wonderfully developed. They store their winter supplies in the fall.

Allowing from 100 to 300 to an acre, they soon denude the land or grass of any growing vegetables or grain. They are like the Indians, buffalos and antelopes. They can't live where the white man holds sway.

Pennsy Rowers Defeat Yale

Springfield, Mass., May 5.—In the first varsity boat race rowed over the historic course on the Connecticut since 1877, Pennsylvania defeated Yale by five lengths. The distance was two miles. Pennsylvania's time was 9:10 2-5, Yale's 9:29 4-5.

Child Burned to Death

Bingham, Me., May 15.—In the presence of six other children, Ruth Cates of Moscow, aged 4, was burned to death. The child was near the kitchen stove and her clothing caught fire.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve, every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say "Prove it." We'll welcome the opportunity.

SUIT SALE THIS WEEK.

THE SHIRT WAIST STORE

DANGER OF SHINGLED ROOFS.

The danger of wooden roofs in cities was proved again by the Bangor fire. The initial fire, according to the reports of insurance experts, was under control and the loss would not have exceeded $50,000, but for the shingles to which sparks were carried by the wind. So many roof fires were started that the department was unable to extinguish them, and the result was the destruction of property worth at least $3,500,000. It has been proved again and again that shingles should not be tolerated in the business section of a city, and now that Bangor has paid the usual penalty of wooden construction it is possible that the rebuilt area will be kept free from this menace, regardless of the opinions of lumber dealers.

There are so many substitutes for shingles that property owners have no valid excuse for using inflammable roofing material. Slate, gravel, tin and copper are not set on fire by cinders and sparks; and manufacturers now are producing fireproof shingles which look as well as stained or painted cedar. In close building districts the compulsory use of such construction is no hardship if owners of buildings prefer the general effect of a shingled roof. While it is not practicable to order the immediate tearing down of old wooden structures for the purpose of reducing the conflagration risk, it should be possible to prohibit the further use of combustible shingles in making repairs.

The safety of every city will be enhanced by placing a ban upon roofing material from the saw mill, except, perhaps, in residence districts. Another fire like that of Bangor should not be required to bring about this salutary regulation. — Providence Journal.

—Not many days to Memorial day This will be a half century anniversary of the Civil war. Let the day be observed in a fitting manner. Let a portion of the day be given over to the G. A. R. exercises. One day in the year surely ought to be solemnly and reverently celebrated. The memory of the old soldiers should be so dear to us all that we ought to join in the exercises of the day.—Mansfield News.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Anncouncements For Coming Week

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Following the scripture lesson by Rev. Joseph Walther from John 4 and 7 and concluding with "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And he that heareth, let him say come, and he that is athirst, let him come: he that will, let him take the water of life freely." The Rev. Preston Gurney preached a sermon on "The value of the overflow," from Psalm 23:5, which touched the hearts of many.

Promptly at 12.15 the Walther and Rand classes, 87 men, sung their opening song followed by a short prayer by Rev. Jacob Mills of Montana. A beautiful feature, and one much appreciated, was the reading of "Let it pass," "Which are you" and "Alabaster boxes of Sympathy" finely rendered by Miss Gertrude Estelle Cleaves. The subject for discussion "Isaiah's Vision and call to service, and ours" was one that appealed to every man.

The announcement that Theophilus King of Quincy will give the classes a talk next Sunday at 12.15 was warmly received.

Junior Endeavor meeting at 3.30 o'clock in the chapel, Mrs. Kendall F. Harriman in charge.

Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "The Universal Duty of Making Pledges." Ps. 61: 5-8. Meeting in charge of Lookout Committee.

In the evening the sermon by the pastor. Subject: "Mother" was a touching tribute to mothers. That sweet song "Just as I am without one plea" by Miss Ruth Louise Hardy was much enjoyed.

This evening at 6.30 the Walther Men's class will have a supper in the chapel. Following the supper at 7.30 in the auditorium, Rev. F. W. Padelford will give an illustrated lecture on the Passion Play.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 the women's prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dresser, 18 South Central avenue and also at 3 the W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. A. D. Albee, 80 Prospect avenue. Subject: "Flower Mission." Leader Mrs. Harvery Black.

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wilson, 186 Belmont street. Mr. James C. Porter will lead.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 the Women's Home Mission society will meet at the parsonage, 81 Prospect avenue. Subject: "Mexico." Leader, Mrs. George F. Pinkham.

Thursday afternoon at 3.30 the annual junior banquet will take place in the chapel.

Friday evening at 7.45 the regular meeting for Praise, prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel. Subject: "The Idols of Civilized Lands." What is idolatry? What are some good things that may become Idols? What are some of the signs and consequences of Idolatry? What is the sin in it?

PARK AND DOWNS.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor delivered an excellent sermon on "Brotherly love."

In the evening the topic of the sermon was "The Average Man." Taking his text from the story of the talents he spoke chiefly upon the man with the two talents contrasting him with the man who was higher up and the man who was lower down, namely the man with five talents and the man with one.

There were good attendances at both services. In the morning Miss Merle Daniels sang a solo and the vested choir rendered a selection.

In the evening music was rendered by the vested choir.

On Tuesday evening, the Men's club will be addressed by Dr. Boos of the Massachusetts General hospital on the topic "Sex hygiene."

The Building committee will meet Wednesday evening in the vestry.

At the meeting of the Women's Missionary society, Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Littlefield will give an address on "Foreign Missions." The meeting will be held at 2.30 in the vestry.

The choir will meet for rehearsal Thursday evening.

On Friday evening the regular church prayer meeting will be held at 7.45.

The corner stone of the new church will be laid on Sunday, May 28 or on June 4.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor preached at the Sunday morning service taking his text from John 17:9-17. "Christ's Intercession for His Own" was the topic.

In the evening the pastor preached from the theme "Conditions of Discipleship." Matt 16:24 was the text.

Three conditions were pointed out by the pastor in his address, (1) surrender of will, (2) self denial and (3) following Christ.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

The pastor was one of the speakers at the ordination of Rev. Clement Mortenson in Brockton on Saturday.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

The pastor preached at the Sunday morning service using as his subject "Jesus prays: 'Father keep them'" An anthem was well rendered by the choir.

In the evening the pastor spoke from the theme: "Whosoever shall come to me, him I will surely not cast out."

The Dorcas society will meet with Mrs. Askelund, 156 Glendale road, Tuesday evening at 7.30.

The Young People's society held a very successful and enjoyable social in Protection hall Saturday evening. An auction of fancy and useful articles took place early in the evening after which games and refreshments were enjoyed. An entertainment consisting of declamations, songs, dialogues and recitations concluded the evening's program.

FIRST CHURCH.

"Consider the lilies, how they grow, they toil not neither do they spin" was the subject of Rev. Ellery Channing Butler at the First church Sunday morning. Music of the usual high order was rendered by the quartette choir.

Sunday was the last Sunday for lessons in the Sunday school until fall. Next Sunday May 21, will be preparations for floral Sunday and on the 28th an appropriate service to commorate Memorial day will be held. Floral Sunday will be held June 4. in the morning at the time of the usual morning service.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The words found in the 6th chapter of Micah 8th verse furnished the text for the sermon preached by Rev. Carl G. Horst at the morning service of the Wollaston Unitarian church. "Religion is not for one day" declared the preacher "but for every day; is not a part of life, but the life of the whole man; not a garment to be put on for a special service to God and man, but is possible in any walk in life however humble and obsecure. Religion is in the life of man what the leaven is in the measure of meal, a silent and living force which permeates every part; it is like light, not confined but shedding abroad an influence and a help to all who see it.

Religion demands of man his whole nature, must have a place in his home and his business, his work and his play; seeks rather than shuns contact with the hard problems of life, and enobles the humblest task performed in a religious spirit. Religion is the life of God expressed in the soul of man, and calls not away from life and all its many and often perplexing details, but to life, and in a deeper sense and with more abiding devotion than comes from any other source.

And so the text comes to be the first and still the best definition of religion the world has known, the final answer to the questions rising from the heart to the lips of man—"He hath showed thee oh man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

The annual May meetings will be held the week beginning May 21. Mrs. Charles A. Adams, Mrs. Walter E. Simmons and Rev. Carl G. Horst will represent the Wollaston Unitarian society at the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23-24.

The installation of the Rev. Abraham Mitric Rihbany as associate minister of the Church of the Disciples in Boston occurs Thursday, May 18, at 7.45 P. M.

The summer meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches, to which the Wollaston Unitarian Church belongs, will be held in Needham, June 7,.

A mass meeting of Unitarian laymen will be held in Tremont Temple, Wednesday, May 24, at 7.30 P. M. Dr. Charles W. Eliot will preside and the speakers are the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, Chaplain of the United States Senate; Adelbert Moot, Esq., of Buffalo; Hon. Hugh Mck. Landon of Indianapolis; and Hon. William E. Chandler of Washington, D. C.

We are always glad to see members of out-of-town Unitarian churches at our services of worship. Yesterday we welcomed fellow-believers from Montreal.

The Unitarian church Helpers will hold their regular meeting in the vestry, Thursday, May 18, at 2 P. M.

The Junior Lend-a-Hand club will meet for the last time this season Tuesday, May 16, at the home of Mrs. E. J. Cummings, 123 Winthrop avenue.

A food sale will be held by the Women's Alliance in the vestry, under the direction of Mrs. Charles S. Adams Saturday afternoon.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

A Worldwide vision of the Messiah's kingdom" was the subject of the sermon preached Sunday morning by the pastor. Two texts were used Dan. 2: 44 and Rev. 11:15. The attendance at the service was good.

The Sabbath school exercises were well attended.

Miss Marion Russell led the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6.30. The attendance at the service was fairly good.

In the evening the pastor delivered a sermon on the topic "The Influence of Good Mothers." Henry Patterson sang a solo which was well rendered and well received. The attendance at the service was good.

The children of the Sabbath school will meet in the church Wednesday evening at 6.30 to begin preparations for Children's Sunday.

The officers and teachers of the school will meet at 7.30 for regular business.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

"Thou art and thou shalt be" was the topic of the pastor's sermon Sunday morning John 1:42 was the text.

In the evening a Mother's day address was given by the pastor from the text Luke 2: 41-52. Most of the congregation wore white carnations.

The attendance at both morning and evening services was large.

The Ladies Aid society will have a special meeting Wednesday evening.

At the Thursday evening meetings, Rev. S. M. Gillam of Cawnpore, India, now serving in The World in Boston will be the speaker. Mr. Gillam will speak at both the young peoples and the regular prayer meetings.

The Y. P. S. C. E. May festival will be held Friday evening at 7.45. There will be a social and entertainment together with a sale of ice cream and candy.

FAREWELL SERMON

seed and others will glean the harvest; may God make it an hundredfold. Then too, these delightful friendships knit together and made strong by increasing mutual esteem and affection are not to be severed today, but will hold fast for the coming years for true friendship never dies. Our life paths separate, but we shall often greet each other as we pass on in the pilgrimage of life. We have no intention of permitting distance to form a barrier so insurmountable that we shall not continue to maintain a deep interest in each other's welfare. Rather than, to unduly grieve that this farewell comes let us rejoice that it has been so long delayed and our fellowship so peaceful and fruitful. We shall follow each other in the unfolding days of the future—praying for each other that the Divine blessing may be lavishly bestowed upon each, believing that the same God who brought us so happily together sixteen years ago and who now has summoned us to different tasks will still be with us to bless.

Several passages of Scripture which we have enjoyed together come now to mind. Permit me to leave them as a reminder of the past and as a help for the future. "As thy days so shall thy strength be." God will give to each one of us daily strength, and a little over, for the daily need. "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." To those in the royal highway all things work together for good. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." Make the spiritual supreme and first things first and all else will fall into line in accordance with the Divine plan. "One is your master and all ye are brethren." The supremacy of Christ as the revealer of the will of God, as the interpreter of the purpose of life and the real guide, the only safe teacher, the perfect leader for the life which now is. Follow the gleam and it will bring us to the light supernal and it will bring us nearer to each other till at length God's people shall all become one."

"Stonewall's" Comment.

At a council of generals early in the civil war one of them remarked that Major —— was wounded and would be unable to perform a certain duty for which he had been suggested. "Wounded!" said old Stonewall Jackson. "If that is really so I think it must have been by an accidental discharge of his duty."

It is the peculiarity of a fool to be quick in seeing the faults of others while he is blind to his own.

Fleeced the Queen.

When George IV. was crowned it was feared that the discarded Queen Caroline might appear and create a scene at Westminster abbey during the ceremony. A gentleman of the name of Chutneigh offered to go into the anteroom where Caroline was waiting and keep her engaged until the conclusion of the ceremony. That was a time when nearly everybody gambled, and the discarded queen was no exception to the rule. After a few casual remarks about the weather Chutneigh took three cards from his pocket and invited Caroline to "spot the lady." Time and again she backed her judgment with money and each time lost. Then she played higher stakes in the hope of retrieving her ill fortune. Her last guinea had been taken in by Chutneigh before she remembered her intention to be at the coronation. But it was too late. The ceremony was over, and the new king, "the greatest blackguard in all Europe," was on his way to the palace. To Mr. Chutneigh, who thus holds the credit of introducing the three card trick into England, a pension was granted.

Obeyed Directions.

One of the small theaters in Pittsburg at which moving pictures and vaudeville sketches alternate recently changed a sign which read: "Ladies that remove their hats will find mirrors and all conveniences on the room to the left as they pass out. Thank you for removing them." Some of their patrons acted too literally on the sign. Just before it was changed one of the employees saw a woman of rustic appearance and a happy expression leaving with several combs, a brush and two small hand mirrors.

"Say, what do you think you're doin' with those things?" he demanded.

She was taking them home, she informed him.

"Naw, yer not," said the man; "we don't put them things in there for you to take away."

"Well, of all things," exclaimed the indignant dame, "an' didn't I read with my own eyes that you would thank ladies to remove them. And ain't I a lady?"

Then the sign was changed.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier. "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades. At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground.

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Bishop's Opinion.

"The late Bishop Whitaker," said a Philadelphia clergyman, "had very little sympathy with ultra high church leaning. A young divine once said to him at a Lenten lecture, 'Bishop, suppose I should burn a few pastilles during the service, do you think anything would happen?'

"Bishop Whitaker smiled dryly, and, passing his hand down his white beard, he answered:

"'A good deal would happen, my young friend. Your congregation would be incensed, your vestrymen would fume, and it's more than likely that you yourself would go up in smoke.'"

The Family Cat.

"Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a redhot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

Facing the Inevitable.

"Is it selfish ambition that inspires your eagerness to rush into official responsibility?"

"Not at all. It is merely a generous willingness to go to the front and stand my share of the harsh criticism that patriotic effort always receives."—Washington Star.

Knew His Business.

"She had him arrested for kissing her, and he was fined $500."

"Yet they are good friends now."

"Yes; he announced in open court that it was worth the price."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

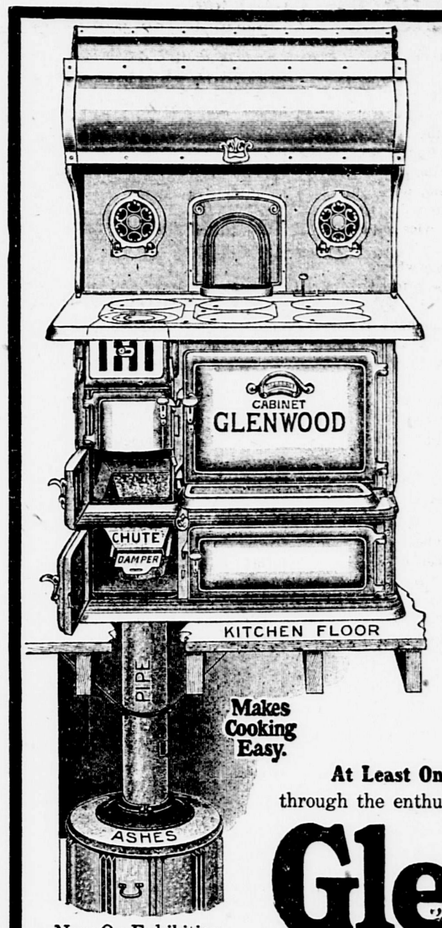
A Life Position.

Annette—Ethel is about to accept a lifetime job of twenty-four hours a day. Florence—Indeed! Annette—Yes. She is going to marry a man to reform him.—Chicago News.

Never Saw One.

Urchin—Paw, what is an accommodation train? Parent—I don't know, Robby; I never saw one.—Chicago Tribune.

The world is a comedy to those who think, a tragedy to those who feel.—Horace Walpole.



Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

CHILDREN'S MOTOR TRIP.

The motor trip for the blind, crippled and orphaned children of Boston, under the auspices of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association will be held Monday, June 5.

Over 500 automobiles are necessary to transport and care for all the children, but each mail brings assurances to Chester I. Campbell, who has charge.

Many cash donations have also been received from those unable to help otherwise. Those contributions will be applied to hiring extra transportation and to defray the expenses of luncheons for the children.

The chauffeurs and drivers will be well taken care of this year. Luncheon will be furnished and games will help fill out the day. A number of prizes has been donated for the different athletic events. All donations for cars, or other help should be mailed to Chester I. Campbell, secretary, Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, under whose direction the event is held.

HIS HIDING PLACE.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Co. A, 23d Massachusetts, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier. "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead.

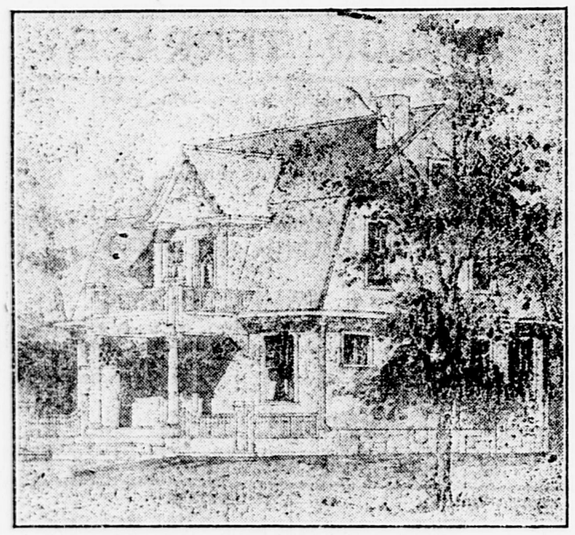
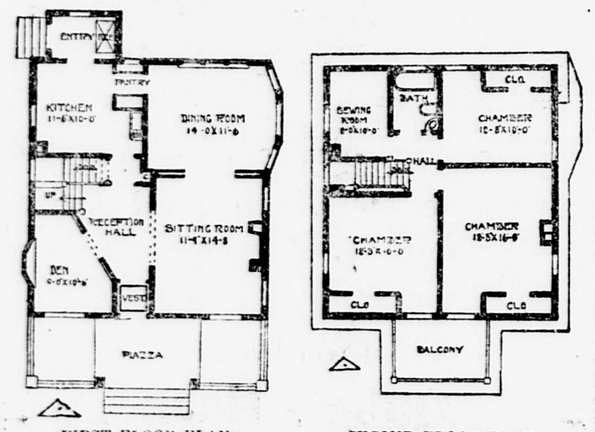
A POPULAR COLONIAL DESIGN.

Design 399, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.



PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This design has proved very popular owing to its delightful colonial exterior, the double pitched roof, piazza and terraces. The interior arrangement is deserving of comment. From a vestibule one enters a reception hall. A grille partition incloses a den at the left. At the right is a sitting room and separated from it by sliding doors a very liberal dining room. The second story provides three chambers, a bath and sewing room. A gambrel roof always provides more space in the second story than a single pitched roof. Size 26 by 28 feet. The stories are nine feet and eight and a half feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $2,200.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 399 for $15.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Grow Smiles and Keep Young.

See to it that, when young, smiles rather than frowns appear most frequently on your faces, for you are provided with muscles that by their use will leave lines which will tell the story of your lives. Do not borrow trouble about the irregularity of your features, but see to it that you use the facial muscles so as to leave a story of kindness and sweetness of disposition. In order that the mask may be a truthful one, make sure that you are really kind and loving, and then you will not have to think of the record of the face. While young learn that you have to a certain extent the modeling of your face.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Erland Debes and family of Revere road are moving today to Cushing street, Wollaston.

Mrs. James E. Neary and Master Eugene left Sunday night for a visit to Mrs. Neary's home in Ithaca, N. Y.

A lawn party is to be held on the grounds of St. Chrysostom's church on the afternoon and evening of June 17.

Miss Harriet Johnson of Chestnut street, Boston, was a week end guest of the Misses Wainwright of Hancock street.

Miss Carrie Barnes who has many friends in this city has been a guest for a few days of her brother's family, the Henry Barnes of Highland avenue.

T. L. Sturtevant's power cruiser the Grey Duck is to be lengthened 18 feet. The yacht cruised all winter in southern waters returning north in April.

An organ recital by Henry King Fitts, organist of St. John's church, Roxbury is to be given Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at Christ church with Arthur C. Peverly as soloist. All seats are free.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stetson of School street made a week end trip in their touring car to their summer home at West Harwich on the Cape, preparatory to going down in a few weeks for the season.

The Quincy Yacht club minstrel show on Thursday evening will attract the yachtsmen. Vice-Commodore Crane will be interlocutor and ex-Commodore Robbins will appear in topical songs. The circle will be made up of eight well known yachtsmen as end men and some dozen or more tars.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Holden of Orange, New Jersey, have been in town a few days coming over for the reception on Saturday evening given at the Holden home on Adams street for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beale Holden, who recently came over from Paris for a few weeks' visit at their old home.

Reporter—How many men were killed in this morning's affray?

Mine Superintendent—Three, I believe.

Reporter—Who were they?

Mine Superintendent— Fifty-seven was one. The numbers of the others we did not get.

MAY BE FREED WITH A FINE

Jury Report That Mrs. Dodge Caused Death of Heath

VERDICT OF MANSLAUGHTER

Many Unique Features of Famous Murder Case—Woman Never Technically Arrested and Was Never in Cell—Nephew and Son-in-Law Her Guards at Times While She Was Under Surveillance

Guildhall, Vt., May 15.—Hardly a trace of emotion crossed the face of Mrs. Florence M. Dodge of Lunenburg, widow of J. M. Dodge, who was high sheriff of Essex county, when, in the Essex county courthouse here, she heard from the lips of the foreman of the jury she had been found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of William Heath, a painter, of Dalton, N. H., who was shot on Sept. 17 last while at work in Mrs. Dodge's home at Lunenburg.

The imposing of sentence in the case was deferred in order to allow Mrs. Dodge's counsel to study the exceptions noted by them during the two weeks that the trial has been in progress. Mrs. Dodge in the meantime was remanded in the custody of the sheriff.

The trial of Mrs. Dodge brought to the attention of the lay mind differences in the laws of Vermont and Massachusetts.

Under the statutes of Massachusetts the court is given power to sentence a person guilty of manslaughter to the maximum of twenty years' imprisonment, or may impose a fine of $1000, in which case it is compulsory to add a term in jail of not more than three years. There must be a commitment. In Mrs. Dodge's case, however, imprisonment ranging from a year to life may be imposed, or she may be fined any sum up to $1000.

In Massachusetts the defendant in a capital case is not admitted to bail under any circumstances. The fact that Mrs. Dodge, indicted for murder in the first degree, was enjoying her liberty pending her trial, under $12,000 bonds, and for a time after the shooting on bail as low as $5000, gave rise to the impression that she was being specially favored.

Many people in Lunenburg, where she has resided the last twenty years, and in neighboring towns, were open in their criticism of the authorities at the outset. There was talk of a petition to demand heavier bonds. This agitation made it appear to those unversed in the Vermont statutes that perhaps Mrs. Dodge was enjoying special privileges because of the position that her husband had held, and because of the fact that her nephew and son-in-law were both deputy sheriffs.

Naturally the news that she was charged with murder, after the enviable reputation she had borne all her life, particularly in recent years as a philanthropist and church worker, shocked the community.

In consequence there were doubt and sympathy, intensified by the elements of mystery that veiled the death of the industrious and inoffensive painter, who lived with his wife and children four miles from the scene of the tragedy. The absence of motive made the case all the more baffling. Interest was added by the social prominence of the accused.

There was full authority to admit her to bail, because the statutes of Vermont provide that in cases where no motive is advanced by te state and none is mentioned on warrant or indictment, the court has the power to give the accused liberty under bonds.

Certain other features of her case, however, were unique. For instance, it is reported here that she was really never technically arrested, but that her detention in her home, guarded by two deputy sheriffs, following the discovery that Heath did not commit suicide, was more in the nature of nominal apprehension.

At times while she was under surveillance at her home her guards were her nephew, J. N. Dodge, and her son-in-law, John Bell. She was given the freedom of the house. One afternoon she stood on the porch while a deputy sheriff cut the grass on the lawn at her request.

She has not served an hour in jail during the nine months intervening between the shooting and her trial, which began May 1 and lasted two weeks. Another departure related to her arraignment. She was not brought into the district court, as was expected by the curious. Judge Brown went to her home, where the preliminary court proceedings were held.

Thursday morning Judge Hall, who presided at the trial, instructed the jury not to consider a verdict of murder in the first degree, as no premeditation had been shown, in the judgment of the court. This ruling removed Mrs. Dodge from the shadow of the gallows.

PROCEED WITH SECRECY

Both Sides In Dynamite Case Are Carefully Guarding Evidence

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—With extreme secrecy, both the prosecution and defense are preparing for trials of John J. McNamara and his brother, James B., charged with a series of murders by the use of dynamite.

The prosecution considers that it made a great gain in partly substantiating the alleged confession of Ortie McManigal by the location of a photograph of which he said was taken while he was here in December, prior to the explosion at the Llewellyn iron works.

The photograph showed him in the shade of a palm tree in front of the San Gabriel mission, and according to the records of the photographer who took it he was there Dec. 23, 1910, two days before the explosion.

Chinaman Deported After Year and a Month In Custody

Boston, May 15.—After remaining at the Long wharf immigration station for a year and one month, during which time his case was carried to the United States supreme court, Chin Jem Yuen, who was in the first party of Chinamen to reach here after Boston was made the Atlantic port of entry to the United States, was deported to China by Uncle Sam on the steamer A. W. Perry, which sailed for Halifax Sunday.

Boston, after July 1, will no longer be the port of entry for Chinamen for the eastern part of the United States. The examination will then be done at Vancouver and Chinese will be almitted at other points on the initial certificate given there.

MRS. TAFT SUFFERS A NERVOUS ATTACK

Is Confined to Bed at Home of Her Brother-In-Law

New York, May 15.—Mrs. William H. Taft suffered an attack of nervous trouble in this city similar to that with which she was seized two years ago. That attack caused her abandonment of social activities for months thereafter.

The first lady of the land came to New York with the president and attended with him a banquet at the Hotel Astor. It was during the dinner that Mrs. Taft first felt ill, but she remained until after the president had finished his address and went to the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft. It was after midnight when they reached there.

Henry W. Taft said last night that the president's wife remained in bed all day and that there was nothing at all perturbing in her condition. It was hoped she would be able to return to Washington in the course of three or four days.

SAVED AT LAST MOMENT

Law Permitting Unions to Discipline Members During Strikes

Boston, May 15.—Governor Foss at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, with only fifteen minutes to spare, signed the bill advocated by organized labor permitting unions to impose and collect fines from members in order to enforce lockouts and strikes. The governor had until 4:45 o'clock in which to act on the bill.

Organized labor had a bill introduced in the legislature in 1909 making it lawful to impose and collect fines. The bill was beaten that year and the next. This year it was introduced again and passed in the house and senate by a big majority. It is considered a big piece of legislation for labor unions.

ENDLESS CHAIN SMOKER

Aged Bavarian Ruler Cannot Spare Time to Go to Theatre

Munich, May 15.—The prince regent explained to a celebrated actress who begged him to attend one of her performances why he goes so little to the theatre.

"I am an endless chain smoker," he said, "and can't bring myself to sit for hours without a cigar or pipe."

This 90-year-old man smokes from twenty to twenty-four cigars or pipes per day, that is between the hours of 5:30 a. m. and 11 p. m. He takes a cold bath every morning and lights his first pipe the moment he has breakfast.

Third Victim of Man-Eater

Springfield, Mass., May 15.—In the a man-eating lion which is being exhibited at Homer, near here, added a third victim to his list when he attacked and fatally wounded his keeper, Thomas Wilmoth. Kruger killed a man seven years ago in Chicago and another three years ago at Coney Island.

BREAK AMONG REPUBLICANS

Figures Directly In National Campaign of 1912

SENATE IN HOPELESS TANGLE

Opposition of Progressive Republicans to Election of Gallinger as President Pro Tempore Has Resulted In Serious Deadlock—Culmination of Divisions Over Tariff, Railroad Bill and Makeup of Committees

Washington, May 13.—Senator Lodge is expected to preside over the senate until the election of president pro tempore is decided. The situation [illegible] with no likelihood of a [illegible] solution. The insurgents are not expected to vote for any regular, and the regulars cannot change their position. Unless a president pro tempore is elected the senate cannot do business without Vice President Sherman, and with him in the chair a vote cannot legally be taken on a president pro tempore.

Mr. Frye was once elected president pro tempore with Vice President Fairbanks in the chair, but senate authorities today hold that action to be illegal. Lodge is presiding officer only under suspension of a rule and by unanimous consent and he might continue as such indefinitely if the senate agreed, but with the election pending it is a question whether the senate could transact any other business.

During the Garfield administration Vice President Arthur held off the election of a president pro tempore for a long time during the fight between the stalwarts and the half-breeds. How long this awkward condition will continue may depend somewhat on how long Sherman is willing to remain practically a prisoner in the Capitol while the senate is in session.

The suggestion has been made that a compromise might be reached on Lodge or Nelson, but the regulars do not expect this. The little group supporting La Follette have demonstrated their power to tie up the business of the senate and they will use it to the utmost. The election of Bacon of Georgia might be accomplished in several ways, but not without embarrassing political results. The regulars are admittedly powerless.

The bitterness of both sides is unprecedented since the insurgent issue arose in congress. This split is the culmination of Republican divisions first over the tariff, then on the railroad bill, lastly on the makeup of the committees.

The present is a break which, in the opinion of politicians here, figures directly in the national campaign of 1912 and foreshadows a breakup of the Republican party, the results of which cannot be predicted. The Democrats might relieve the Republican majority by absenteeism and probably would do that were the issue regarded as simply one of senate administration. But their best chance to do this has passed and if they fail to stay away from the chamber henceforth, it may be taken for granted by the country that they see a national significance in the insurgent deadlock.

The incapacity of the Republican party in the senate to control its caucus, without the aid of the progressives, was demonstrated when, after more than two hours' effort and seven ballots the senate failed to elect Gallinger as president pro tempore to succeed Frye. The deadlock was due to the opposition of the progressive Republican senators.

A Costly Tuft of Feathers.

On the apex of the crown worn by the Prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or, rather, tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter set out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest. The costly tuft is of periwak feathers, and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the periwak, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.—Chicago Tribune.

DIETZ GUILTY OF MURDER
Other Members of Family Freed of Charge Against Them

Hayward, Wis., May 15.—John F. Dietz will spend the remainder of his natural life at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Waupan, by the verdict of the jury, for the murder of Deputy Oscar Harp, in the battle of Cameron Dam on Oct. 8 last.

The jury declared Hattie E. Dietz, his wife, and Leslie Dietz, his son, not guilty of murder in the first degree.

FIREBUG WORKING UNDER POLICE EYES
Spreading Consternation In North End of Boston

Boston, May 15.—An alert, mysterious and apparently crazy firebug at the North End kept scores of families awake all last night through fear that his next effort might endanger their lives.

All night long a score of city and state officers patrolled the district on the watch for the unknown person, who within twenty-four hours added seven fires to the already large number which have been set since Easter.

In each case the fire was found in a tenement house in a thickly settled district. And in each case but one, the same methods were used in setting the fires.

Altogether thirty fires have been set in the district during the past month. Six of these were set since Saturday night, and five of them yesterday in the same house at 8 Prince street.

DICKINSON IS PACKING UP
Stimson Is Expected to Qualify For Office Early This Week

Washington, May 15.—Secretary Dickinson is engaged in closing out his administration of the war department, preparatory to his relinquishment of the office to Henry L. Stimson.

Mr. Dickinson says he does not know when his successor will qualify, but it is generally accepted that the change will occur during the first part of this week.

The retiring secretary was besieged by officers of the army and officials of the war department, who expressed their genuine regret at his departure.

CUT OFF FROM CHURCH
Six Prominent Men Interdicted by the Bishop of Portland

Biddeford, Me., May 15.—Six members of the Roman Catholic churches of Biddeford and Lewiston, all prominent, were interdicted by Bisop Walsh of the diocese of Portland, in a general letter to the clergy read at churches here and elsewhere in the diocese yesterday.

The action, which is without precedent in the annals of the church in this state, follows the introduction into the last legislature of a bill providing for the abolition of the corporation of the Portland diocese, which is vested in Walsh.

TRAINS MEET ON SINGLE TRACK
Disastrous Collision on Devil's Curve In Vermont
FIVE MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

One Engine Piles on Top of the Other and Wreckage Takes Fire—Smashup Occurs During Dense Fog and Is Said to Be Due to Overlapping of Orders—Three Wrecks at Same Point Within Ten Years

White River Junction, Vt., May 15.—Speeding in opposite directions on a single line of track, operated jointly by the Boston and Maine and Central Vermont railroads, two freight trains came together on the bank of the Connecticut river two miles south of here in a heavy fog, killing four trainmen and seriously injuring three others.

A fifth death occurred while wreckers were clearing the track. The wreckage caught fire and some of the bodies were badly burned before they could be removed.

The trains in collision were a Central Vermont south-bound local freight, bound from White River Junction for Springfield, Mass., and a northbound Boston and Maine freight, with consignments from Springfield for distribution at White River Junction.

The dead are: R. I. Webber of Ware, Mass., 22 years, fireman of the Boston and Maine north-bound freight; Ralph H. Fairman, 24, head brakeman on the Boston and Maine train; James M. Livingstone, 40, of Greenfield, Mass., a brakeman on the Boston and Maine train; Roy Kendall, of Brattleboro, Vt., brakeman on the Central Vermont south-bound freight; a man named Mackay, 45, of Concord, killed by falling of derrick while removing wreckage.

The most seriously injured, all of whom are expected to live, are William T. Pellissier of Northampton, Mass., engineer of the Boston and Maine locomotive; E. McDonald of St. Albans, the Central Vermont engineer, and W. G. Wenlech of New London, Conn., fireman on the Central Vermont engine. Others of the trainmen also received injuries, but they were not such as to prevent the men from assisting to rescue the bodies of their more unfortunate fellows and in fighting the flames which attacked the wreckage.

Overlapping of orders, by which both trains are said to have received official word to continue in opposite directions over the single track, is understood to have caused the collision. Both engineers say they did not see the other's headlight and that their first knowledge that there was another train on the track came with the rending impact of the collision.

The Central Vermont train, running down grade from White River toward the station of Evarts, to the south, at at rate of about thirty-five miles an hour, crashed into the north-bound Boston and Maine train, toiling up the grade at about twenty-five miles an hour, at Devil's Curve, the worst on the line. There have been three wrecks at this point within ten years.

The dense pall of fog was soon partly pierced in an unexpected and, to the searchers for the missing, a fearful manner. Tongues of flame, arising from the pulp and hay which had been emptied from the wrecked cars over the locomotives and which had become ignited by the engine fires, burned their way through the mantle of fog which enveloped the wreck.

To quench the flames, which soon began to lick at the debris scattered about and threatened to run a line of flame along the pile of wreckage which strewed the tracks for more than 150 yards, the White River Junction fire department was called upon. An engine responded and with water pumped from the Connecticut river maintained a steady drenching of the blaze. It was many hours, however, before the debris cooled sufficiently to allow a search for the bodies.

The wreck made a bad tangle which tied up traffic for hours. The tender of the Boston and Maine locomotive was thrown bottom upwards on top of the Central Vermont locomotive, which had been headed south, but which, in the collision, was turned completely about. Both engines left the irons, ripping up the tracks for nearly 150 yards, and piling on one side most of the thirty-five cars which both had been pulling. Strangely, almost all of the cars were tossed to the side of the track away from the Connecticut river. Had they been thrown the other way they must have toppled into the water.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Asparagus Patties. Make a sauce of three level tablespoonfuls each, of butter and flour, and half a cup, each, of chicken broth, cream, and the water in which a bunch of asparagus has been boiled. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs, a teaspoon of lemon juice, salt and pepper, and a bunch of hot asparagus, cut in small pieces and cooked until tender. Serve in hot puff paste shells, in cases made of fritter batter, or in bread croustades.

French Rolls. Sift two quarts of flour, while would be eight measuring cups full, with a level tablespoon of salt and one-half cup of sugar. Heat two cups of milk to the scalding point, add one-quarter cup of lard, and when lukewarm turn in one-half yeast cake dissolved in a little cool water. Make a hole in the center of the flour, pour in the mixture but do not stir cover and set away to rise light. When risen mix and knead and let rise again. Repeat the rising and cut down, then roll out, cut in rounds, brush half of each with melted butter, fold over and let rise in a pan set closely together. Bake in a hot oven.

Liver and Bacon. Do not fry these together but cut the liver in little slices and cut slices of bacon in halves. String them alternately on long steel skewers and set across a baking pan, then place in the oven to cook until the bacon is crisp and the liver cooked through.

Potted Meat Sandwiches. Some of the potted meats, especially game, are extremely good as sandwich filling. Olives chopped or sliced thin and mixed with cream cheese are good, as are also green peppers and nuts chopped and mixed with mayonnaise. A sprinkling of choped onion is a delightful addition to many fillings.

Broiled Codfish Flakes. Take a portion from the thickest part of salt codfish and split it into long flakes. Freshen them for a few minutes in cold water. Then lay them on a broiler, or directly on the clean coals, and cook until well browned. Pour a very little water over them, add a good bit of butter, a dash of pepper and serve with baked potatoes. This is an old-fashioned relish for supper, but it often proves more appetizing than many of the rich sweet dishes usually prepared for that meal.

Chicken Salad. Cut the meat of a cold boiled chicken in small pieces, place it with an equal amount of fine-cut celery in a salad bowl, pour over some mayonnaise and mix all well together. Smooth the surface, giving the salad a dome shape, and cover with mayonnaise. Garnish with lettuce leaves and hard-boiled eggs.

Peach Meringue. Put half a dozen large canned peaches over the bottom of a dish that will bear slight oven heat. Heat one cup of milk, stir in a level tablespoon of cornstarch wet in a little cold milk, and cook 10 minutes. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs and three rounding tablespoons of sugar. Cook three minutes, or until a smooth custard is formed, then pour over the peaches. Beat the whites of three eggs stiff with one rounding tablespoon of powdered sugar and spread over the peaches and custard. Brown slightly in a cool oven.

SATURDAY FIELD SPORTS

MANET 4; FORE RIVER 3.

In the most exciting finishes seen at Merrymount park this year, the Manet Social club defeated the Fore River Apprentices by a score of 4 to 3, Saturday afternoon. With the bases full and two out, Gillis came to bat for the Manets and hit out a long fly which Costello misjudged. Three runs came in and Gillis himself was tagged out at home plate after circling the bases. Up to the ninth the game was a pitcher's battle. The Fore River team looked practically sure of victory at the end of the eighth with two runs to the good but a two base hit gave Manet the victory. Kerr, last year's pitcher for the Apprentices was in the box for the Manet's and gave a good account of himself. Williamson pitched a strong game also getting the same number of strikeouts as Kerr.

The fielding of the Manets, especially of the infield, was remarkably good. McCarthy played brilliantly getting some hard ones at a distance from his position.

For the Apprentices Lang pulled down some hard ones in left field and Boyle played well behind the bat. Caine did some good work in the field and Blackwood did some good hitting getting a three bagger over first base.

SPORTING NOTES.

In the Dartmouth 1914—Worcester Academy dual track meet held at Worcester Saturday afternoon, Franz Marceau captured the mile run in the fast time of 4 min. 35 3-5 sec. He won over Bosworth of Worcester academy by three yards. The time compares very favorably wtih that of other big college performers made Saturday. Jacques of Harvard covered the distance in 4 min. 35 4-5 sec., one-fifth of a second slower than Marceau. Jones of Cornell, considered the fastest man in the college world today did it in 4 min. 3-1-5 sec.

In the semi-finals for the director's cup at Montclair, J. H. Churchill beat C. S. Bates 6 up and 5 to play and James H. Stetson won from C. M. Hart by 1 up.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates were defeated by Clapp Memorial Saturday at Merrymount park 10 to 9. Tirrell pitched a fine game for the Y. M. C. A. but was given wretched support.

The Quincy Adams club defeated the Braintree nine 7 to 4 in a fast 10 inning game, "Tiser" Carlson played well at shortstop and Carl Carlson pitched a good game.

Adams A. A. was defeated by the Sodality A. C. at East Boston on Saturday by a score of 5 to 4. Knight pitched a good game for the Quincy team. The defeat was partly due to conditions in the field, which was largely occupied by the spectators and many plays were spoiled by interference especially in the outfield. A return game will be played in Quincy on July 1.

The Colonials defeated the Middlesex A. A. of Cambridge 17 to 11 in a loosely played game on the Cambridge diamond Saturday afternoon. Joyce and Leary were the battery for the West Quincy team.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

Letters remain unclaimed at the Quincy Post Office for: Richard Abbott, Miss V. Barbour, Frank Barrett, Mrs. G. Christee, John J. Fraser, Lorenzo Gramozio, J. Jeffers, Dumnpeuo Kobaxebrery, 'Smithie' McDonald, Chas. E. McFarland, Giuseppe Morelli, Miss Della Nestor, Alex Paterson, Miss J. M. Raymond, Mark B. Wadsworth, John Walsh, Mr. White and Miss Grace Whitney.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumferance of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

The Prince's Death.

Husband (reading the paper)—I see that Prince Harold is dead. Wife (an Anglomanic, inexpressibly shocked)—Is it really possible? It seems too sad for anything. What was the cause of his death? Husband—He trotted a mile in 2:26¾ and then died of blind staggers.—New York Sun.

CLASS OF 1912 WINS

den, Isabelle Donahue, Susie Flahive, Margaret Taylor, Edna Shay, Clara Coombs and Phyllis Smith of 1914, Margaret Goodspeed, Elizabeth Furnald and Natalie Scott, 1913 and Ella Whitehead and Amy Fallon, 1912.

Misses Annie Byorkman and Annie Thomas, May Shea and Jennie Hedman, held the ribbons and Miss Emma Walker '10 and Mary Beal '12 furnished the music on violins.

The mascots of the different classes attracted a great amount of attention. The classes of 1911 had a little boy and girl decorated in their class colors, 1913 had little Mary Plummer dressed as a May queen in green and white, 1912 claimed as their mascot Eleanor Ricker who was bedecked with the silk flag won by the class for the third time at this meet. A Chinese Charles spaniel with a wide blue ribbon about his neck was another mascot of the winning class.

The class of '14 had a pony and phaeton gaily decked in red and white and a small automobile similarly decorated. Barbara Johnson was the driver and Frances Adams the chaffeur.

While the sports were going on original yells and cheers were given by the different classes and during the noon hour after lunch, the singing contest took place and 1912 was adjuded superior to her sister classes in harmony and originality of songs.

The meet was run under ideal weather conditions and it was considered by all one of the happiest occasions in the history of the school.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

Wanted to Wake Himself.

"John," said the foreman unexpectedly, "we have decided to raise you $5 a week."

John made no answer, but appeared to be looking for something on his desk.

"Why don't you say something? Aren't you satisfied?" demanded the foreman.

"I'm trying to see if there's an alarm clock here," said John.—Buffalo Express.

SUNDAY SERVICES

QUINCY POINT CHURCH.

The pastor preached an unusually fine sermon Sunday morning on "The Gospel" taking no special text as a basis. This is the third of the series of sermons on the spirit of things.

In the evening Rev. Edward Norton, acting pastor of the South Congregational church, Braintree, preached a very fine sermon from John 6:27. "Strive not for the meat that perisheth."

The Ladies' Aid society met for the last time this season, this afternoon at 2.30.

The Men's club has been invited to join with the Wollaston Methodist Men's club in an entertainment Thursday evening.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

The annual May festival was by far the most successful ever held by the Ladies' Aid society. A greater amount of money was cleared than in previous years when the festival lasted two days.

CALVARY BAPTIST

Owing to the illness of the pastor, two visiting clergymen supplied in the pulpit on Sunday. In the morning Rev. Howard B. Grose editor of "Missions" gave an excellent sermon on "Brotherly love" taking his text from Isa. 41:6.

In the evening Rev. Illsley Boone, associate editor of Missions gave a fine discourse from the text "Come and see". Three points were brought out in the sermon,"the universality of the faith," "the power of the influence of faith" and 'the peace that comes of faith."

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening.

The pastor hopes to be able to occupy the pulpit next Sunday.

SWEDISH BAPTIST

The pastor preached at the Sunday morning service from Heb. 11:26-27 emphasizing the reason why Moses endured, namely because he had the invisible One in sight.

In the evening the pastor preached from Col. 3:3 "Our life is hid with Christ in God."

The Young Peoples meeting was led by the pastor. "The duty of making pledges" was the subject and the pastor took the opportunity to encourage his young people in taking a new stand for the church. Many testified and it was a very helpful meeting.

The choir will meet for practice on Tuesday evening at the usual hour.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30.

The Kings Daughters will meet with Miss Agnetta Hedman, 48 Common street next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

CHRIST CHHURCH

The usual order of services was carried out at Christ church Sunday. Holy communion was held at 8 o'clock and morning service and prayer at 10.30 and evening prayer and address at 7 o'clock. Rev. Richard E. Armstrong officiating at all the services.

The second organ recital in the series arranged by Prof. Wrigley, will take place Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Henry King Fitts of St. John's church, Roxbury will be the organist and Arthur Peverley, the soloist. The recital is open to the public.

Galahad Brotherhood will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The question of increasing the dues will be the principal object of discussion.

The last meeting of the year for the Women's Guild will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2.30.

The next meeting of the Men's club will take place Wednesday evening. A debate will take place under the direction of Arthur L. Thomas.

The Boy's club dramatics will be given in the Parish house Thursday evening.

"Looking for Trouble" and "Paddle your own Canoe" are the farces which are to be given.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subject of the morning sermon at the Hall Place M. E. church was "Mehushtan, or progress by destruction." The text was staken from 2 Kings 18-4, "And he called it Mehushtan."

Sunday school was held at 12.15, and Junior League at 3 P. M. Miss Catherine Hodgkinson lead the Epworth League Devotional service at 6.15.

At the evening service the subject was "A message from the garden to the gardener." The text was taken from Isaiah 28-25 "Doth he not cast in the principal wheat?"

Wednesday evening a supper will be given in the vestry. No price will be charged but a free-will offering, to buy stock to paint the parsonage, will be taken. Rev. C. L. Bare, President of Lucknow University, one of best speakers at the world in Boston, will given an inspiring address.

Prayer meeting Friday evening at 7.30.

First Flying Ambulances.

A valued servant and friend of the great Napoleon, Dominique Larrey, first established that system of "flying ambulances," which carried the wounded to the rear almost as soon as disabled. The staff numbered about 340 men with four heavy and twelve light two and four wheeled ambulances to each division. Napoleon reviewed this arm of the service with the greatest interest and once exclaimed to Larrey: "Your work is one of the most important conceptions of our age. It will suffice for your reputation." For the Egyptian campaign Larrey secured the services of 800 qualified surgeons in addition to the regular force. At Alexandria General Figueres was severely wounded, and on his recovery wished to present Napoleon with a splendid Damascus saber. "Yes," said the emperor, "I accept in order to give it the surgeon in chief, by whose exertions your life has been spared." This saber, engraved with the words "Abouklr" and "Larrey," was taken from the great surgeon by the Prussians at Waterloo.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

Turning the Turtle

Turtle hunting is not without excitement. The method of capture consists of the simple act of turning the turtle on its back. Once in this position it is quite helpless. Its only defense is to cover its captor with sand thrown up by the powerful front legs or flippers. These are brought into action in an instant, and woe betide the captor who has his eyes and mouth open at the moment, for the sand is hurled with great force. When turned over the captive is dragged up the beach to above high water mark, and this is no easy task, for it weighs about four hundredweight.

ORDERS FOR LARGE SUMS REPORTED IN CITY COUNCIL

Permanent Sidewalks, Surface Drainage, Public Dock and Streets

Order for Half Holiday for City Laborers and Mechanics Passed. Debate on Paving Blocks

Many important matters were acted upon at Monday night's meeting involving the expenditure of large sums of money. Principal among these were orders calling for nearly $25,000 for permanent sidewalks and $11,000 for surface drainage.

The meeting was marked with quite a warm discussion over paving blocks during which there was an echo of the last municipal campaign during which paving blocks was an issue.

Another matter was the order for a half holiday which was passed. For three years efforts have been made by Councilman Smith to get such an order through the Council but not until Monday night was he successful. There was some little argument over the question but the order was finally passed and if signed by the Mayor the laborers to be benefitted by the order owe their thanks to Councilman Smith.

Another important matter was the public hearing on the acceptance of new streets at which a number of citizens appeared. Every member was present at the meeting.

UNITED STATES JURORS.

A venire was received for the drawing of United States jurors. The Mayor and City Clerk assisted by Councilman Branch drew the following: John Evans, Edward H. Richardson, John H. O'Brien, Henry M. Granahan.

A communication was received from George E. Pfaffmann president of the Cranch Parents and Teachers Association favoring the acceptance by the city of a private foot way leading from Avon way to Glendale road Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition for repairs on Parker street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Petitions from the Telephone and Electric Light companies for attachments and location for poles were referred to the Committee on Streets.

Applications to keep gasoline from the W. A. Bradford Co. and C. H. Penniman were laid on the table until later when orders for public hearings June 5 were adopted.

An application of Albert G. Olney for an Auctioneer's license was laid on the table until later when it was granted.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of minor licenses. These included innholders licenses to Etta J. Moses, Squantum Inn and Lee's Inn .

On motion of Councilman Gardner the orders for Innholders' licenses were laid on the table. The other orders were adopted.

POLE LOCATIONS.

The Committee on Streets reported orders granting the Telephone Co. a location for poles and attachments. Ordered to a second reading.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $1,570 for surface drainage on Faxon avenue, Taylor street, Beale street, Glendale road, Elm avenue, Marlboro, Cleaves, Sachem, Cranch, East Squantum, Reardon, Common, Franklin and Liberty streets, Newbury avenue, North Central avenue, Prospect avenue and Edison park. Read to Finance Committee.

HANCOCK STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported

COUNCILMAN JOHN D. SMITH
Father of Half Holiday Order.

an order for a hearing on the widening under the betterment act of Hancock street between Granite and School streets and the laying out of a new street from Furnace brook parkway to Common street. Adopted.

SCHOOL STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $700 to widen School street at the corner of Franklin street. Referred to Finance Committee.

GARFIELD STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $250 to widen Garfield street. Referred to Finance Committee.

CROSSWALKS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $250 for crosswalks at Adams Square. Referred to Finance Committee.

LOAN ORDER.

The Committee on Streets reported a loan order for $1,200 to provide funds for the orders above. Referred to Finance Committee.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on the acceptance of Euclid avenue, Dimmock, Phillips, Marlboro and Kemper streets, West Elm avenue and a footway leading from Avon way to Glendale road. There was some objection to the acceptance of East Elm avenue and to the acceptance of the footway under the betterment act. The orders were recommitted.

A public hearing was held at 8.10 on petitions of the Telephone Co. for underground conduits, etc. After the hearing the order was laid on the table until later when Councilman Gardner offered an order granting the locations petitioned for which were referred to the Committee on Streets.

At 8.20 a hearing was held on the petition of the Gas Co. to lay mains. There was no opposition and the order was recommitted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on several applications for junk licenses. That of Eddie Asnes was laid on the table and the others given leave to withdraw.

INTERVALE STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $1,900 to pave a part of Intervale street.

Councilman Sandberg moved to amend by striking out the words City paving block and inserting in place therefor the words, paving blocks from 9 to 14 inches long, 7 to 8 inches in depth and 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 inches wide. It was for the Council to say what kind of paving blocks should be used.

Councilman Leslie thought we should get what we paid for.

Mayor Shea said the term city paving meant nothing. There was no such thing as city paving. He never knew an order to specify the size of block.

Councilman Smith asked where the city did not get what it paid for and Councilman Leslie replied Hancock street. He could not say he saw the blocks but understood they were not city paving blocks.

RETRACTION DEMANDED.

This brought Mayor Shea to his feet saying that he objected to the statement of the gentleman from Ward Five, that the city did not get what it paid for. He asked that the gentleman prove his statement or retract it.

Councilman Cherrington moved to lay on the table. Motion lost.

Councilman Leslie asked the Mayor if in any contract the size was specified on Hancock street.

Mayor Shea replied yes to both questions .

Councilman Sandberg said he was surprised to hear the Mayor say he would put in rough blocks if he could not get large ones. He asked if there were not three kinds of blocks, rough, city pacing and what is known as the Philadelphia block.

Mayor Shea replied that he wanted it understood he did not say he would allow rough blocks. Twenty-five years ago we heard of city blocks but not for years. The block used is what is called for in the specifications.

Councilman Sandberg said the blocks on Copeland and Water street looked like chips.

Mayor Shea replied that they had been in use twenty years and were worn out.

The amendment was accepted on a rising vote of 13 yes and 7 no and the order then passed.

EAST SQUANTUM STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $6,000 to complete East Squantum street. Rules suspended and order passed.

CHANNING STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $2,300 to build Channing street. Rules suspended and order passed.

KENT STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $2,000 to build Kent street. Rules suspended and order passed.

GLENDALE ROAD.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $800 to complete the rebuilding of Glendale road. Rules suspended and order passed.

LOAN ORDER.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the loan order for $13,000 to cover appropriations made by the above orders ordered to second reading.

DEATH OF MRS. J. Q. ADAMS

Passes Away at Boston Home this Morning

Mrs. Fannie C. Adams, widow of John Quincy Adams, died this morning at her winter home on Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Mrs. Adams was a member of the Crowninshield family and for years has made her home in Boston winters and at the beautiful Adams farm on Sea street during the summer months . She was a woman of quiet and unassuming manner and took great delight in her home in Quincy.

Her husband John Quincy Adams who died several years ago was a son of Charles Francis Adams, at one time ambassador to England. Mr. Adams always took an active interest in local affairs and was for years moderator at the old town meetings.

Mrs. Adams leaves two sons and a daughter. Her sons are Charles Francis Adams 2d who served the city as Mayor in 1896 and 1897. He is also one of the most enthusiastic yachtsmen in Massachusetts Bay and owner of the Harpoon which last year won the Quincy yacht club challenge cup. Her other son Arthur C. Adams is also an enthusiastic yachtsman. Her daughter is Mrs. Robert Homans.

MRS. E. A. PACKARD.

The funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Packard were held from the old home, 1452 Hancock street, Monday afternoon. Quite a large gathering of friends and relatives were present to pay their last tribute to her who had passed on. Rev. Ellery Channing Butler conducted simple services and then the body was taken to the old Hancock cemetery and placed in the family vault.

Many beautiful floral tributes were sent which seemed to have a special significance covering the casket of one who spent her life among flowers.

COUNTRY MINISTER.

The Country Minister, a five act comedy, will be presented in Quincy Music hall Wednesday evening by the Quincy Adams club. The play is full of amusing scenes which are carried through very effectively by a well balanced cast. The part of Gregory Heath, a gentlemanly villain is taken by "Tommy" Veale while Everett Clark appears as Jud Pardoe, an out and out desperado. Timothy Hodd, a little weazened old rustic is impersonated by "Charlie" Bishop and Deacon Potter who is "a leetle deef" by "Doodle" MacDonald.

Then there are the typical country boys, barefoot and full of mischief, William Henry alias Walter Morrison and Tom Sparrow alias "Bob" King.

Of course no play could be a real success without the ladies and Jerusha Jane Judkins' petrified face is the first one that appears. Everett Howie takes the part of this fussy old maid to perfection.

Helen Burleigh is strikingly handsome and fashionable young lady is impersonated by Miss Ruth Kemp. The part of Roxy, a fresh air kid direct from the Bowery is admirably taken by Miss Louise Prout and Miss Georgianna Michael wins our approval while Granny Grimes, the old hag, is winning our contempt. Fannie, the comely maid is no other than Miss Helen Kennedy and Filkins the "cop" fell into learned hands when given to Carl Carlson. Last but by no means least comes the country minister Rev. Ralph Underwood, a jovial and whole hearted representative of the clergy impersonated by Lester H. Clee. The cast is an especially good one and the play is all that can be desired in a bright and pleasing comedy.

—A Melrose man has been fined $10 for removing a contagious disease card from his house which had been placed there by the local board of health. He thought the card was a joke, but learned better when the court got through with him.

WALTHER MEN'S CLUB

Hear Illustrated Lecture on the Passion Play

A supper and lecture was held under the auspices of the Walther Men's class in the Wollaston Baptist church on Monday evening.

At 6.45 members of the class and their guests sat down to a hearty roast beef supper served by the following young men: Chester Barlow, Lester A. Porter, Fred Oxner, Earl Church and George Drew.

The evening meeting which opened at 7.30 in the church auditorium was well attended a general invitation having been extended.

Speaking on the Passion Play and augmented by the stereopticon Rev. F. W. Padelford of Boston delivered a most impressive and well rounded lecture.

The views which accompanied it showed with remarkable clearness and beautiful coloring the many scenes and tableaux that form a part of this wonderful production.

In witnessing the "Passion Play," said Mr. Padelford, "I have satisfied one of the desires of my life. At Oberamergau my dream was realized and there was no disappointment. It was easily the most impressive day of my life.

Speaking of the institution of the custom Mr. Padelford told of the pestilence that was brought to the town in 1663 and of the vow to produce a Passion Play every ten years.

The town itself was described, beautiful in situation, a joy of the whole land with its overhanging roofs, freshly painted houses and parish church.

In former years the Passion play was given in the open but for that of 1900 a building was erected with a capacity of 4,000. There is an immense stage on which there is plenty of room for the more than 700 people that appear on it at one stage of the production.

The play is in three portions, the triumphant entry of Jesus into Jerusalem and his subsequent seizure by the guards, his condemnation and lastly his ascension. It is in eighteen acts and twenty-two tableaux.

Would it be right to produce the Passion Play on the American stage, asked Mr. Padelford. Never. In Oberamergau amidst its beautiful scenery and upright people I consider it proper. f

The speaker brought vividly before his audience the familiar scenes which took on a new meaning as they were related.

Denouncing as a base fabrication the statement that the inhabitants were becoming commercialized the speaker referred to the character of the people.

The lecture ended with a view of the ascension, the tableau that closes the Passion Play. In charge of the evening was a committee composed of Kendall F. Harriman, H. L. Wilson, J. Arthur Jewell, W. F. Chase and William Waring.

"Did your uncle remember you in his will?"

"Yes dear old fellow! He left me his best wishes in a special codicil."

FIRST PERFORMANCE OF CELTIC SONG CYCLE

Miss Worden's Group of Irish Songs Enthusiastically Received

Informal Reception to Artists at Home of George E. Pfaffmann

Alpha hall was filled Monday night with an appreciative audience of enthusiastic music lovers as well as a number of professional musicians from Boston. The beautiful gowns and conventional evening clothes offered mute testimony of the audience's desire to do honor to Bertha Cushing Child, the contralto, Miss Magdalen S. Worden, the composer of the Celtic Song Cycle and the assisting artists.

It was a social event of considerable magnitude as well, for after the concert about seventy-five guests were taken in automobiles to the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, 65 Goffe street where a reception was given, that the guests might have an opportunity to meet the artists.

After refreshments had been served, Miss Worden was urged to repeat informally parts of her fascinating Cycle which she graciously did, with the cordial cooperation of the soloists. As many of the guests were either amateur or professional musicians, the informal repetition at the Pfaffmann's reached a very appreciative audience, so naturally, the composer and soloists were showered with richly deserved compliments and congratulations. During the reception G. I. Morrison, Jr., of New York, who came over to hear the manuscript performance of the Irish songs, sang a number of Miss Worden's songs with his well trained and smpathetic baritone voice.

The list of artists follows:

Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, contralto; Miss Magdalen S. Worden, composer and painist; Mrs. James H. Slade, soprano; Mr. Benjamin E. Berry, tenor; Mr. Louis Schalk, barione; Mr. Russell B. Kingman, violoncello; the accompanists were Miss Mabel Adams Bennett and Mr. Charles Lewis Greene.

The concert was opened by Mr. Kingman who gave an unusually fine rendering of Bach's celebrated air. His superb tone and intelligent phrasing caught the audience with the first note from his splendid 'cello. He gracefully declined an encore.

Mrs. Child's appearance was the signal for a storm of applause for she is a strong favorite in Quincy where her delightful voice is so often heard. She gave a group of songs by Densmore who was announced to play his compositions but failed to appear. Mr. Greene took his place at a moments notice.

Mr. Schalk the baritone made a host of new friends by his remarkably intelligent interpretation of such widely different songs, the first being an old Italian air, called Caro Mio Ben; the second was the more familiar Widmung by Franz, followed by Bruno Huhn's Invictus. His diction is unusual the words of each song being clearly understood throughout the hall. His voice shows the result of long training under able teachers and a wide concert experience.

Mrs. Slade, our well liked soprano gave a group of interesting songs by Cadman, LaForge, and Clough-Lelter. Her clear, bell like voice gave much pleasure and her careful and painstaking interpretation of songs is well known to our readers.

Mr. Berry the tenor of King's chapel made a fine impression with his energetic handling of "Onaway! Awake Beloved" by Coleridge-Taylor. His voice is strong and his future success will be watched with keen interest.

Mrs. Child and Mr. Schalk gave the delightful Barcarolle from Tales From Hoffmann by Offenbach. This well known number was extremely well sung and gave much pleasure.

Mr. Kingman added much interest to Mrs. Slades' number by Hollman, by his sympathetic 'cello obligato which supported her voice admirably.

Mrs. Child's last group of songs included "Longing" by Magdalen S. Worden, Berceuse De Provence by Gideon and LaCloche by Saint-Saens. Her rich voice and good judgment in phrasing added much to the charm of these well written songs. Her encore number was a little Irish song, that caught the fancy of the audience as a result of her delicate playful rendering.

The first part was closed by Mr. Kingman's 'cello. He gave "The Swan" by Saint-Saens and "Scherzo" by Van Goens. The strenuous applause brought him out for a repetition of the sprightly Scherzo.

The accompaniments for Mr. Kingman, Mrs. Child, and Mr. Schalk were very ably played by Charles L. Greene who gave the artists plenty of support without covering the voices. Miss

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Dr. Paul Haupt speaks of Eve as if he knew the family quite well.

The chief difference between the men who "own the earth" and others is that the others want to and can't.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma does not see how the government can control the trusts when the trusts control most of the judges.

The ex-King of Portugal finds his chief diversion in moving pictures. Comes natural to him to take to sudden moves.

San Antonio wants a carnival. Aren't 10,000 wearers of brass buttons sufficient unto the days thereof?

The Hartford Courant says: "Double taxation is not desired." Nor any other sort so far as we have been able to disclose.

Perhaps the Chicago judge who declined to recognize poker as the "great American game" had come out of the small end of it after a night's setting.

The editor of the Spencer Leader says: "If the conservatives want a safe and sane Fourth of July, isn't it about time for them to begin to plan to provide a proper substitute for the old variety? Let's try to have something to keep the people at home and to keep them amused on public holidays." That is just what Quincy's Fourth of July committee is planning to do and last year's success and the early start made this year promises an observance of the day in Quincy in a sane and happy way. e

PUT IN SOME FLOWERS.

While Quincy is giving attention to the more material matters of business growth, let us not forget the aesthetic side of life. It's as true today as of old that "Man does not live by bread alone." In order to live the larger life and up to his opportunities the spiritual, mental and finer side of life must be cultivated and satisfied. Whatever appeals best to the higher senses helps to do this. So much for the abstract. Now for the concrete application which we have in mind at the moment. It is flower gardens.

We have no desire to see Quincy a mere industrial hive like a mining camp, without the refinements of life. Let us constantly keep in view the many opportunities in this direction, but not too many at a time. Just now it should be flowers. It is the time of the year to get them started. Do not let your premises be without some flowers. If it is only a single plant it will help some, but keep as many as you can. Do it now. It will pay you well and help to keep alive the best in your nature. It will become a part of your children's life now and forever. Put in a tree, a shrub, a vine and some flowers.

After tulips and hyacinths and other early flowers are by, have pansies and the many others which come in their season. It is a part of good citizenship to help beautify your town and help refine your own life and those around you. It is a mark of quality. Put in some flowers. Do it now and take good care of them.

WHISKERS VS. BALD HEADS.

The above portentous theme was debated at the National Press club with Nick Longworth and Bob Taylor for the bald heads, and Tom Carter and Uncle Joe Cannon for the Whiskerites.

Congressman Nick said whiskers are a lodgment for germs and other herbivorae, Uncle Joe quoted Shakespeare that "he that hath no beard is less than a man."

While wearing a beard is usually considered merely a matter of fashion, yet certain underlying temperaments lead men to adopt or reject it.

Whiskers are appropriate to a philosophic temperament. The man with a long flowing beard gives an impression of calm retreat from strife and turmoil. The beard must be appropriate to such a temperament since it is a great deal more common in the country than in the city, rural surroundings being more conducive to refletcive philosophy.

Pure logic undoubtedly advises whiskers. There is essentially no more reason for shaving the particular hairs that ornament the chin than for shaving those that surmount the eye or that cover the scalp.

It takes a great deal of time to shave oneself, or if one is too indolent to propel the razor himself, he must pay a heavy tax to the barber. In the latter case, the hours spent in the barbers' shop must in a year amount to nearly a week of working time.

On the other hand, the smooth face gives an impression of greater alertness. Alexander the Great instituted shaving, so that his antagonists might not be able to grasp his soldiers by the hair. As the hairless man looks younger he feels younger, and very likely more than gains the 15 minutes a day which the habit of shaving costs him.

While the whiskerite can point to an illimitable number of illustrious examples, few young men of today are wearing whiskers. It is an age for speed, and a bewhiskered man running for the train gives an impression of a nature at war with itself and its surroundings.

"There was an old man with a beard,
Who said "It is just as I feared;
Two crows and a wren,
A jay and a hen,
Have made their nests in my beard."

MEMORIAL TO KEY

Statue of Author of "Star Spangled Banner" Unveiled In Baltimore

Baltimore, May 16.—With appropriate ceremonies the Francis Scott Key memorial statue was unveiled late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. William Gilmore, a granddaughter of the author of the "Star Spangled Banner," drew a cord releasing the drapery and W. S. Symington delivered the dedicatory address. Mayor Mahool accepted the memorial for the city.

The memorial takes the form of a fountain, the widest portion of the basin being about thirty-eight feet. The figure of Key has been given a secondary place in the scheme, as he stands on the gunwale of a rowboat, his hat off and his features turned to a statue of Liberty.

CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

Mrs. Taft May Return to Washington Within a Few Days

New York, May 16.—President Taft left for Washington over the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday. Dr. Evans, the Taft physician, told him just before he left the house of his brother, Henry W. Taft, that Mrs. Taft's condition had shown such improvement that it would be safe for her to follow him Thursday morning.

Dr. Evans said that Mrs. Taft continued to improve and her condition was "very satisfactory."

EUROPEANS LEAVING FOREIGN DISTRICT

A New Revolutionary Uprising In Canton Is Feared

Hong Kong, May 16.—There are alarming rumors of a revolutionary uprising at Canton and the surrounding districts. Europeans in Shamien, the foreign district of Canton, are prepared to leave. The restlessness is widespread and tens of thousands of persons are fleeing from the disturbed section to this city.

The revolt is said to cover a wide area and to be led by relatives of high Chinese officials, who have been educated in Japan. More than $1,000,000 is said to be available to the rebels. The leaders of the revolution declare that they have enough dynamite to blow up the city of Canton. Decapitations of rebels and suspects occur in Canton daily. The relatives of those executed do not dare remove the bodies from the streets and as a result there is a horrible situation.

Two British gunboats, one French, one German, one American and one Italian are now off Canton.

KAISER VISITING LONDON

With His Wife and Daughter He Receives a Hearty Welcome

London, May 16.—Emperor William, Empress Auguste Victoria and Princess Victoria Louise, who arrived at Sheerness on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern Sunday night, entered London yesterday and were welcomed with an enthusiasm which fully demonstrated the emperor's personal popularity with Englishmen.

The German royal guests are here for a week's visit to King George and Queen Mary, and primarily to be present at the unveiling of the national memorial to Queen Victoria, the emperor's grandmother.

Alleged Slayer Kills Self

Burlington, Vt., May 16.—The shooting affray Sunday at Fort Ethan Allen, in which Private John P. Adair was killed, was completed yesterday with the suicide of Private Martin C. Ellis, who was charged with the crime.

Forty-Seven New Postal Banks

Washington, May 16.—Postmaster General Hitchcock announced the designation of forty-seven additional postal savings depositories, making a total of 176 postal banks since Jan. 3.

Pope Suffers From Gout

Rome, May 16.—Pope Pius X is still feeling the effects of his recent attack of gout. His general condition, however, is giving little alarm to his physicians.

The Horrors of Thirst.

In the oasis of Mogara, says L. Dow Covington in the Wide World Magazine, we had a first experience of the desert traveler's great enemy—thirst. We were seated in front of a Bedouin chief's tent, our two baby camels enjoying their first drink of water since they had left Cairo, when, from across a sand dune, a Bedouin came staggering and tottering toward us. His eyes were bloodshot, his lips twice their natural size, while his tongue, blue and dry, hung out of his mouth. Evidently he had lost himself, had wandered around for days in search of water and had stumbled upon the oasis in the very nick of time. To allow him to drink would have been his death. In spite of his frantic struggles, he was held by four men, while a fifth allowed a few drops of water to trickle down his throat. It was as though he were a redhot boiler which would have to be allowed to cool off before being filled if an accident was to be avoided.

Objected to Publicity.

Old Brother Brown had been approached several times by the colored deacons of his church and asked to pay his church dues. He had promised to "pay up" just as soon as he sold a calf which he owned. Several months later he sold the calf. The next Sunday morning at service the congregation sang the old familiar hymn:

The half has never been told
Of life so full and free.

Brother Brown, somewhat deaf and conscious of his failure to pay his dues, understood the words to be:

The calf has never been sold,
But when it's sold he'll pay.

When the hymn was finished the old colored man, very indignant, arose and said:

"Bredren and sistahs, I has sold dat ca'f and heh's yo' ten dollahs! But I didn't ca' about de whole chu'ch singin' about it."—National Monthly.

CAN'T BE LOST.

For a man can lose neither the past nor the future, for how can one take from him that which is not his? So remember these two points—first, that each thing is of like form from everlasting and comes round again in its cycle and that it signifies not whether a man shall look upon the same things for a hundred years or two hundred or for an infinity of time; second, that the longest lived and the shortest lived man, when they come to die, lose one and the same thing.—Marcus Aurelius Antoninus.

CELTIC SONG CYCLE

Mabel Adams Bennett accompanied Mrs. Slade and Mr. Berry most acceptably. Her wide experience and success in this field of work keeps her in constant demand by Boston singers.

When Miss Worden appeared the audience gave the attractive composer a cordial welcome and with a few lines of introduction the quartet gave the song "Bring from the Craggy Haunts of Birch and Pine." This was followed by the interesting soprano solo, "A Song of the Wind." This was particularly well written and well liked.

The baritone solo, "A Connaught Lament" is a splendid setting of a lyric by Nora Chesson and aroused much enthusiasm. This was followed by a contralto solo "The Falling of the Leaves," sombre and pathetic. The unaccompanied quartet "A Sunset's Moulded Cloud" was very effective and splendidly sung.

"Down by the Salley Gardens" was a delight and sung by Mr. Schalk as though he enjoyed it as much as the audience.

The tenor solo "Had I the Heavens' Embroidered Cloths" is a fine piece of writing and shows the composers fine grasp of her subject. This led at once to the contralto solo "O would I were the cool wind" beautifully sung by Mrs. Child.

Mrs. Slade sang the next number "The White Birds" so well, that she was compelled to repeat the difficult solo. This is easily the most exacting solo in the Cycle and it is pleasant to know that our townswoman scored such a success for herself as well as the visiting composer.

The Cycle is brought to a most effective close by a quartet in which each voice repeats a portion of a preceding solo, all women together so ingeniously that the audience got the impression of several solos being sung at once, the combined efforts resulting in a charming quartet. Miss Worden reecived an ovation and was delighted with the cordiality with which her composition was received. Space does not permit an extended review of her Cycle but there is every reason to believe that when this work is published it will become extremely popular with the more intelligent class of concert goers who as was the case Monday night, can appreciate merit and musical worth and originality that does not rely upon hideous discords to attract attention. The work has a most promising future and we congratulate the composer.

Beautiful bouquets of flowers and loud, long and frequent applause attested to the cordial appreciation of the music loving audience.

A REAL HERO.

In the eyes of his fellow employees of the Old Colony street railway company Thomas J. Donohue foreman of the East Weymouth car barn is a hero and deserving of a Carnegie medal for but for his prompt action a little girl might have been drowned in the herring brook Monday morning. The little girl, scarcely over four years of age was playing near the brook when she lost her balance and fell in. Fortunately Mr. Donohue was near at hand and saw the girl fall and heard her screams. Without giving a thought of getting a ducking he hastely ran to the brook and jumping in rescued the litle girl from perhaps a watery grave. His name has been placed on the honor roll of the street railway employees.

CHARITABLE TEN.

The last meeting of the season for the Charitable Tens Circle of Kings Daughters was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank S. Davis, 25 Elm street. It was one of the largest and most successful of the year and the afternoon was very pleasantly spent by all.

An appropriation of $50 was made for Pond home, the special charge of the Norfolk county King's Daughters, the money coming partly from the treasury and partly from contributions of members.

The Circle assumed the responsibility of furnishing fruit for patients at Mount Pleasant camp for sixteen weeks.

Gordon Rest will be given $6 for a special need and the board of a sick girl will be paid for two months by the Circle.

After the business session, Miss Carrie Follett Spear sang two solos and a lunch was served by the hostess.

A RED HEIFER

It Was the Cause of an Absurd Mistake

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"It certainly has our brand," persisted Gabriel, referring to the solitary red spot in the landscape.

"As well as three other brands," added Jim Lewis.

"Then why does the Widow Clancy lay claim to the critter?" demanded Jim Lewis scornfully.

"She says it's a 'stray,'" explained Harry Barry. "Seems her foreman told her that a critter that had as many as four different brands could rightly be claimed by anybody that found it."

"Who's the foreman?" asked Gabriel incredulously.

"Peter Henny."

"I'm wondering how he managed to fasten his thieving claws on the widder's money bags."

"She come out pore in health with a snug little sum that had been left to her by Clancy, who was in the building line somewheres east. I don't think she's a 'lunger' exactly, but Mrs. Clintock said she'd wore herself out over taking care of Clancy, who fell from the ninth story of a building he was putting up and lived ten weeks afterward! You can imagine what a tough specimen Clancy must have been, and you might know 'twould wear the buxomest kind of a woman to skin and bones to take care of him." The Crane puffed solemnly at his cigarette after this long explanation.

"How'd you come to know so much about the Widow Clancy?" demanded Harry Barry suspiciously.

"I talked with Mrs. Clintock about her. Seems Mrs. Boss she'd been over to call on the widder," said the Crane innocently.

"Anybody seen the widow yet?" inquired Jim.

There was silence for several seconds, and all eyes turned toward the Crane, who was staring out across the range.

"For the Lord's sake," he broke out irrelevantly, "the confounded critter's making off for Satan's gulch! Whoopee!"

His horse swung around to a quick touch, and before the others could draw breath he was dashing after the red spot, which was gradually becoming smaller. In another instant they were all after him.

The red heifer switched her tail saucily and capered joyously ahead of the pursuing cattlemen.

"Crane," panted Jim Lewis in that gentleman's ear when he had come abreast of him, "you're running the red heifer off the widder's range!"

"I'm not. The critter's running away, and I'm trying to catch her before she breaks her neck in the gulch," Crane tossed back over his shoulder.

The red heifer gamboled in the van, occasionally pausing to bellow back an impudent defiance to her pursuers. Gabriel explained in breathless shouts the different brands borne by the heifer as if all the Lone Bull men were not acquainted with the itinerant creature's marks of identity.

The red heifer had been the pet amusement of all the cattlemen in Pulardo county for six months past. Lately her sudden appearance among a herd was the signal for a stampede for the branding iron that would mark her for the time being as the possession of the ranch whose latest brand she bore. As these brands merely singed the thick hair on her body, they were obliterated as rapidly as her coat lengthened. Where she came from nobody could positively say, but it was believed that she was a wild cow which had joined some herd on the ranges unknown to the tenders.

Ever since the Three Star ranch, which adjoined the Lone Bull on the west, had been purchased by the widow of one Daniel Clancy, late of New York city, the red heifer had apparently staked a claim on the widow's property, for it mingled with her herds and seemed content to remain among the rather scrubby lot of cattle which Peter Henny had picked out for the newcomer.

The Lone Bull people had known very little about the Widow Clancy except that occasionally they had described a lone female figure galloping along the distant ridges on a buckskin pony. Mrs. Clintock had told them that the widow was like all widows—fair, fat, forty and fascinating. "Also red hair," the boss' wife had added with a twinkle in her eye.

"Not for mine!" Harry Barry had ejaculated, and the others had echoed his sentiment. As by one accord they all avoided the Three Star property and the well defined trail which had once marked the neighborliness between the ranches was now hidden with several months' growth of rank grass.

Now the spirit of mischief had suddenly possessed the solemn Crane, and he had deliberately led the pursuit after the red heifer that had been peacefully grazing on the widow's range for several weeks.

The spirited horses took fences whenever there were any, and it was not long before the red heifer grew to larger proportions in their sight until at last Crane's lariat went singing through the air and rippled into circles that straightened into one that was taut around the red heifer's neck. Crane had accomplished his task so skillfully that there was but the merest shock when the lariat tightened.

The red heifer plunged at the other end of the rope and bellowed angrily. The men laughed and drew together around the beast.

"I reckon you're going to turn her loose in the widder's corral," suggested Jim Lewis.

The captor smiled sardonically. "The red heifer goes to the branding iron tonight," he said emphatically. "I ain't had my hands on her for three months. If the Widder Clancy has the conscience to claim this critter with five brands to its credit, why, she's the widder's meat!"

"Ain't been ironed for some spell," remarked Gabriel, critically surveying the heifer.

"She'll go forth tomorrow with an unmistakable brand," said Crane significantly.

"Then you're not going to send it back to Mrs. Clancy?" inquired Harry Barry.

"Not until the Lone Bull mark is agin her once more." And Crane flapped the lines about his horse's neck and moved forward, the other straggling behind in friendly converse over divers matters of interest.

They did not hear the soft thud of small hoofs behind them, and it was not until a clear, bell-like voice sounded close at hand that they all turned and stared at a girl riding a buckskin pony.

She was unmistakably a pretty girl. She sat her horse with careless grace. Her hair was red, and her skin was pink and white, with a powdering of tiny freckles across her lovely nose. Tipped back on her mass of radiant hair was a wide soft black hat. Her riding skirt was black, and her shirt waist was crisp and white. From the peak of her hat to the tip of her little brown riding boot she was a picture to admire.

The Lone Bull boys gasped and whipped off their hats. Harry Barry maneuvered for a position close to the newcomer and got it.

She surveyed the startled group with soft gray eyes that wandered from one to another with friendly interest until at last they alighted on the mildly protesting form of the red heifer.

"What are you doing with my heifer?" she asked gently. She looked at Crane reproachfully.

"Your heifer?" repeated Crane stupidly.

"Of course it's mine. I saw you running it off my range. I am surprised! I am surprised!"

"This here is a lost critter," protested Crane wildly. "It belongs to whoever brands it. I saw it running away, and I went after it."

"It's my heifer," said the girl calmly. "You see, I'm Mrs. Clancy, and this heifer was grazing on my range when you drove her off."

Crane blushed violently and looked at his mates. They were all sitting open mouthed, wide eyed, absorbed in the pretty picture made by the charming widow—all save Harry Barry. That handsome youth had dismounted and was stroking the nose of the buckskin pony with an air of delightful intimacy.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," stammered Crane at last. "It was something in the nature of a joke. This here red heifer has been branded by every outfit in the county"—

"Oh, no," smiled the widow sweetly. "I am sure you're mistaken because this red heifer only arrived two days ago. My cousin in Wyoming sent her to me as a birthday gift. If you will examine her you will see that she bears only two brands—the Double B of my cousin's ranch and my own, Three Stars."

Silently Crane slid to the ground and inspected the belligerent creature. When he looked up a sheepish grin widened his face.

"You're right, Mrs. Clancy, and I humbly beg your pardon. Might I ask what became of the red heifer that grazed with your bunch last week?"

The widow dimpled. "Oh, some of the men from the Circle C outfit ran her off my range last Saturday night," she said demurely.

"Then our work's cut out for us," said Crane grimly. "Them Circle C chaps has got two brands on her, and we can't let 'em have another one. Shall I drive the critter to the corral, ma'am, or turn her loose here?"

"Perhaps Mr. Barry will drive her to the corral," hesitated the widow Clancy with a fleeting smile at that youth, "after he has introduced me to my neighbors."

After a general introduction, which took place amid much laughter and merriment, the Lone Bull boys declared that the old trail that led to the Three Star ranch must not be allowed to remain grass grown.

"'Pears like I'd noticed it was being trod some," drawled Gabriel, with a side glance at Harry Barry.

Harry Barry smiled defiantly, and the widow blushed as she shook hands with all of them. "I hope you'll all help to keep that trail clear," she called back as she rode away with Harry.

"You bet we will," they sent back in lusty chorus.

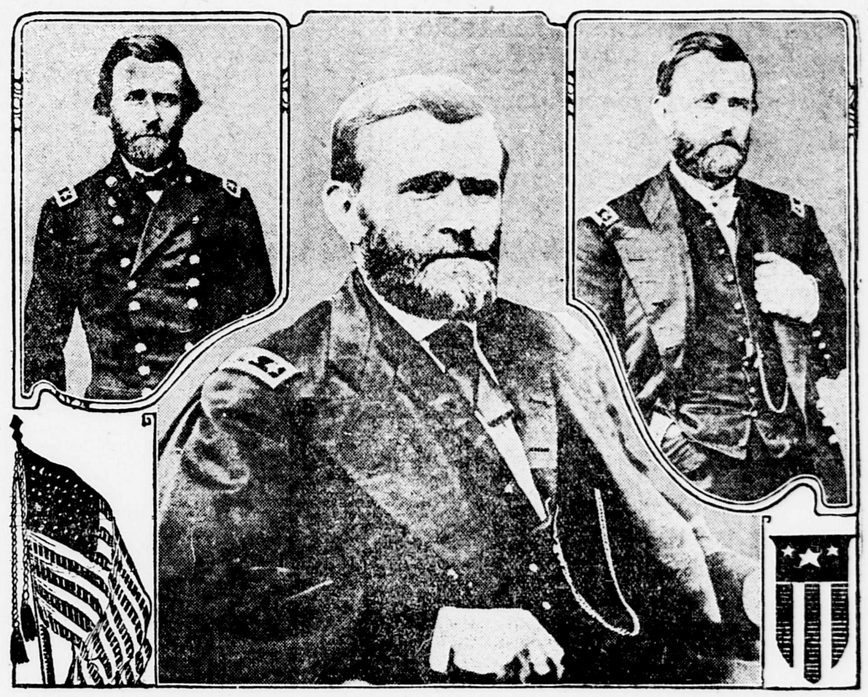
As the two graceful figures went away, the red heifer prancing ahead of them, Gabriel fetched a long sigh.

"Him next, I suppose," he said. "First Jim, then Tim here, and now it's Harry Barry."

"Three Star ranch," mused Jim Lewis with all the sentiment becoming a newly wedded man. "The widow Clancy is certainly one star!"

"And it looks like Harry and the heifer are the other two stars," laughed Tim.

Fifty Years Ago---Wartime Photos of Grant



THESE three pictures, each showing a different view of General Ulysses S. Grant in uniform, are highly valuable pictorial records. They show the commanding general of the northern armies as he looked when in the midst of his herculean activities in the field. In each photograph, particularly the one in the center, the firm set lips almost speak the determination, "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

THE ARMY OVERCOAT.

He was idle as a boy, he was shiftless as a youth,
He was slovenly in dress, and his manners were uncouth.
The neighbors looked their scorn when they saw him passing by
His father used to scold, and his mother used to sigh,
But he volunteered the day he was old enough to vote,
And they hardly knew the fellow in his army overcoat.

For he braced his lazy shoulders with a military air,
His aimless face grew firmer. Said the neighbors, "I declare!"
His father took his hand, his mother beamed her pride,
The winter day he marched away a foolish maiden cried.
Full fifty folks forgot their sneers, full fifty roughly smote
With friendly slap the back that bore his army overcoat.

HIS FATHER TOOK HIS HAND, HIS MOTHER BEAMED HER PRIDE.

He sent his parents letters they were long in making out.
He was faithful as a sentry; in the fight his heart was stout.
The day he saved the captain's life, that day he lost his own
And spoke some manly parting words and died without a groan.
The captain closed his eyelids with a choking in the throat
And sent him to his mother in his army overcoat.

The meeting house was crowded full upon his burial day,
And scores and scores passed down the aisle to see him as he lay.
The foolish maiden noticed on his hand a ring of bone,
The Union shield cut on it, and wished it were her own,
And after prayer and hymn and speech and wartime anecdote
The earth received the soldier and his army overcoat.

Now when Memorial day comes round a flag they always put Above his head and deck his grave with flowers from head to foot,
And here his worn old father and his mother, bowed with years,
Stand sadly by and listen to the chaplain's voice with tears,
And an ancient foolish maiden sees before her mem'ry float
The vision of a soldier in an army overcoat.

Help for All

Andrew Carnegie once suggested as an epitaph for his own tombstone what he said was the secret of his success: "Here lies a man who surrounded himself with men abler than himself."

Many able people are working for you, scientists, inventors, manufacturers, all trying to make something you want. Do you use their brains and their efforts—"surround yourself with them"—or do you plod along by yourself, years behind the times?

Take your own home. Have you your share of modern improvements there—money-saving, labor-saving, health-promoting? One of the most important of these is a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection stove never overheats a kitchen. It saves your strength. It saves fuel and time. With the New Perfection oven with the glass doors you can go on with your ironing or any other work, and still be sure at a glance the joint is roasting properly.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Take Care of Your Teeth.

Great care should be given to the selection of powders or pastes used for cleansing the teeth. In view of the fact that a woman's beauty may be marred if not made by her teeth, it is wise to pay attention to whatever is applied to them. There are many cleasing agents in which cuttlefish bone, ground, is a part. Used once a week this would be harmless, but there is sufficient roughness in the material to wear the enamel if the former is applied every day. Be it understood that once the enamel, which is a thin shell covering the tooth structure and not the tooth itself, is injured, cracked or worn, trouble is bound to ensue. The tooth beneath the enamel is spongy, absorbing all liquids and crumbling to pain and destruction.

BRIEFS

Playground committee meets tonight at the Y. M. C. A.

The annual reception to the Senior class of the Quincy Mansion school is to be given tonight by Mrs. Horace M. Willard from eight until eleven o'clock.

Henry King Fitts, the well known organist of St. John's church, Roxbury is to give an organ recital tonight at Christ church assisted by Arthur C. Peverley, soloist.

The wisteria is unusually beautiful this spring the vines being a mass of lavender clusters. There seems to be a lot of it in Quincy and it certainly adds to the beauty of the residential sections.

At Mr. Wrigley's concert in Alpha hall on Friday the 26th, Miss Edna E. Spry will sing also the Granite City quartet. There will be cornet solos by Mr. Newcombe and glees and part songs by the boys and men of Christ church.

—A civic committee has been organized in Hyde Park to begin a campaign for betterment of the town. The organization is made up of two representatives from each of the prominent clubs of the town as follows: Hyde Park Business Men's association, Current Events club (ladies), Evening Current Events club (ladies), Thought club, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Clarendon Congregational churches, Phillips Brooks club, Cebra Tennis club, Readville Improvement association, Hazelwood and Clarendon Hills Improvement association and East River Street Improvement association. The membership of the combined organizations numbers into the thousands and great good is expected to result. Several committees were appointed, one being to ascertain the feasibility of placing shrubbery at needed locations, including the railroad stations of the town.

IS ORDERED TO BE DISSOLVED

Supreme Court D cid s Aga'nst Standard Oil Company

CORPORATION IS A MONOPOLY

Built Up on Such Vast Scale as to Be Menace to Commercial Life—Sherman Anti-Trust Law Must Be Executed Regardless of Circumstances—Company Given Six Months to Reorganize to Comply With Law

Washington, May 16.—The supreme court's finding sustains the decision of the lower court, from which the Standard Oil company appealed, and under this decision the giant corporation must be dissolved. The Standard Oil, however, is given six months in which to wind up its affairs.

Justice White, who read the decision, characterized the record of Standard Oil as a "jungle of testimony," a "babel of conflicting views." He declared two main points involving the Standard Oil company were in restraint of trade and creating a monopoly.

The supreme court declared that the Sherman anti-trust act was a wise and good measure; it must be observed in all particulars, said the court. The founders of the Standard Oil company showed a commercial genius unexampled in modern times, but the corporation they have built up is so vast as to be a menace to commercial life, declared White.

"The law is plain," declared the chief justice, "both in restraint of trade and monopoly, and the attempts to monopolize the oil business of the United States.

"There are eighty volumes of testimony in this case, and we do not propose to go into the testimony as to whether there was any wrongdoing or not on the part of the Standard Oil in building up this monopoly.

"It is quite possible that monopoly could have resulted from lawful acts, but the law prohibits monopoly. Whether the acts were lawful or not was not material.

"It is our duty to execute the Sherman anti-trust law regardless of consequences. That duty will never be performed unless now and for all time we look the issue squarely in the face and decide this case according to the law, regardless of what the commercial result may be.

"There are scores of charges of conspiracy, not even one-fourth of which we have had time to analyze. It would be beyond the human mind to take all this vast jungle of evidence and from its confusion decide the case as to whether commercial crime was committed.

"There is only one point on which the contending forces agree. That is the fact that this corporation is a monopoly, or practically a monopoly, of the oil business.

"How masterly its organization is we do not go into at this time.

"At least we believe, however, in dissolving this corporation that far more than thirty days should be allowed it to arrange its business in accordance with the law. This is all the time the lower court has given it. We believe that six months' time should be given it to dissolve and reorganize. With this last modification the decision of the lower court is affirmed."

Justice Harlan dissented from the opinion of the chief justice. His dissenting opinion, however, was to the effect that the opinion was not sweeping enough. Otherwise the decision of the court was unanimous.

The government's case against the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its subsidiary companies was started when suit was filed against the alleged trust Nov. 15, 1906, in the United States court for the eastern division of the eastern judicial district of Missouri.

From the time that the case was first brought before the courts until its adjudication by the United States supreme court, Frank B. Kellogg and C. A. Severance, attorney generals, have fought out the government's contentions in every court. Owing to the magnitude of the case, and the millions of dollars involved, the attention of the whole world centered on the fight.

On the side of the "trusts," the most brilliant legal talent that could be obtained was provided. Through legal fencing by these men, the government was successfully stopped from bringing the case before the higher court until after three years of delay. The decree of the circuit court was not handed down until Nov. 20, 1909.

When it was announced, the decision was reflected by the slump in the various stock markets throughout the world. The Standard Oil company, however, immediately appealed to the United States supreme court, on writ of error.

The testimony taken in the case covers twenty-eight bound volumes of 1500 printed pages each. Arguments and briefs submitted by counsel on either side number nearly fifty separate volumes of varying length.

DEATH OF CHARLES HAMLIN

Civil War Veteran and Prominent in State of Maine Affairs

Bangor, Me., May 16.—General Charles Hamlin, son of Hannibal Hamlin, who was vice president under Lincoln, and who was himself a former speaker of the Maine house of representatives and a noted veteran of the Civil war, died at his home here. Death followed an illness of several months.

General Hamlin was one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Penobscot bar, a former reporter of decisions of the supreme court of Maine, and for some years United States commissioner. He was born in Hampden, Me., Sept. 13, 1837.

In 1862 he assisted in organizing the Eighteenth Maine infantry, afterward reorganized as the First Maine heavy artillery.

He was married in November, 1860, to Sarah P., Thompson. They had four sons.

REITERATES INNOCENCE

Mrs. Dodge Gets Not Less Than Four Years In State Prison

Guildhall, Vt., May 16.—Without showing the least sign of emotion, Mrs. Florence M. Dodge of Lunenburg heard sentence pronounced in the county courthouse here yesterday afternoon, which ordered her sent to the state prison at Windsor, to serve a term of not less than four years nor more than six years at hard labor for the killing of William Heath, a Dalton, N. H., painter, in her home on Sept. 17 last. Mrs. Dodge was convicted of manslaughter last Saturday.

When asked by Judge Hall if she cared to make any statement in connection with the sentence, Mrs. Dodge replied:

"I have nothing further to say than I have said all of the time. I am innocent of this crime."

THREATS TO BLOW UP DRAPER PLANT

Result In Costello Being Sent to State Prison

Worcester, Mass., May 16.—Frank H. Costello, after pleading guilty to the charges of sending "Black Hand" letters to officials of the Draper company at Hopedale, and threatening the life of former Governor Draper, was sentenced to serve not less than five years and more than seven years in state prison by Judge Sanderson.

The sentence was on the last charge. Costello had threatened in the letters to blow up the Draper plant.

George Draper, treasurer of the company, testified that $10,000 had been spent in guarding the Draper property and in taking other precautions induced by the letters.

Costellon is 21 years old, a native of Milford, where his father lives and works for the Draper company.

BESSETTE IS ARRESTED

Bank Teller Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Embezzlement

Woonsocket, R. I., May 16.—Hermengilde Bessette, for ten years teller of the People's Saving bank, who, it is alleged, confessed to being responsible for the shortage of $25,000 in the bank's funds, was arrested last night in North Brookfield, charged with embezzlement.

Bessette was brought to Woonsocket, where he was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. His counsel moved that hearing be continued until May 27, and bail was furnished in the sum of $10,000.

According to the bank officials the teller admitted that he was responsible for the shortage, which was brought about by bad investments.

VETO BILL IS PASSED

Enthusiasm In House of Commons as Long Fight Is Ended

London, May 16.—The fight in the house of commons over the parliament bill, also designated the veto bill, for the curtailment of the powers of the house of lords, ended last night.

An amendment moving the rejection of the whole bill was defeated by a vote of 363 to 243, and a motion for the adoption of the bill on its third reading was carried, 362 to 241.

The announcement of the figures was received with a tremendous outburst of applause from the government supporters. It is expected that the bill will go to the house of lords at an early date.

Indian Restrictions Remain

Washington, May 16.—Three centuries of civilization have not brought the full-blood Indian to the point where his rights are equal to those of the white man. Such was the decision of the supreme court of the United States in holding constitutional the twenty-five-year restriction on the sale of Indian lands.

JUST IN TIME

Some Quincy People May Wait Till It's Too Late.

Don't wait until too late.
Be sure to be in time.
Just in time with kidney ills.
Means curing the back.
Before backache becomes chronic;
Before serious urinary troubles set in.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do his.
Here is Quincy testimony to prove it.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time. Often while at work, sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LAND COURT.

To the Quincy Savings Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the Quincy Co-operative Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in said Quincy; Jessie Scoular, Daniel Scoular, Jr., Nancy J. Hayden, Charles W. Strattard, Lodiski H. Winne and Louisa F. Chubbuck of said Quincy; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Ellen J. Bushnell of said Quincy, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, bounded southwesterly by Washington Street seventy-five and 2-10 (75.2) feet; southeasterly by land of Jessie Scoular and Daniel Scoular, Jr., two hundred and ninety six and 2-10 (296.2) feet; northeasterly by land of Nancy J. Hayden and of Charles W. Strattard, seventy nine and 36-100 (79.36) feet; and northwesterly by land of Lodoiski H. Winne, of said petitioner and of Louisa F. Chubbuck, three hundred and five and 8-10 (305.8) feet; containing 23,210 square feet of land. Being lots "A," "B," "C" and "D" as shown on a "Plan of Land in Quincy, Mass., surveyed for Ellen J. Bushnell"; dated March 1911, by Frederick E. Tupper, C. E., filed with said petition.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way in Washington Street (public highway) as now established in common with others entitled thereto; also rights of way in Hersey Place (private way) as shown on said plan, in common with the owners of land adjoining said land on the northwesterly side thereof, and other rights as created by an agreement dated June 3, 1901 and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 954, Page 473; said private way being fifteen feet in width and one half over the land of each party to said agreement.

Petitioner admits that the entire parcel is subject to a right of way over a strip 7 1-2 feet in width along the northwesterly boundary line (being one-half the width of said Hersey Place, private way) as set forth in said agreement dated June 3, 1901, recorded as aforesaid, also subject to the restrictions recited in said agreement, to wit, that no house to be erected on the premises shall be built within fifteen feet of said Hersey Place, and no such house shall be built to cost less than $1800; also subject to the right granted to the city of Quincy to construct and maintain a sewer in said Hersey Place.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are herby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-ninth day of May A. D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

ANOTHER MOVE TOWARD PEACE

Madero Thinks Trouble In Mexico Will Soon End

HE MEETS FEDERAL ENVOY

Latter Has New Instructions From Government, the Original Demands of Insurrectos Not Being Cordially Received In Mexico City—Question of Resignation of Diaz Shelved as Result of His Announcement

Juarez, Mex., May 16.—Provisional President Madero announced last night at the conclusion of a conference with Judge Carbajal, the federal peace envoy, that there was a strong probability that peace would be restored in Mexico within a short time.

Carbajal asked for the conference with Madero and it was known that he had received a long telegram from Mexico City, giving him new instructions.

All day it was evident that communications were passing back and forth respecting new proposals. These culminated in the meeting of Carbajal and Madero last night, their first since they met in "Peace Grove," about three miles away, and marked out a neutral spot for the negotiations which were destined to last but one day.

The original demand of the insurrectos, that the ybe allowed to name fourteen governors of the twenty-seven states, and that they be represented in a new cabinet by four members, had not been received with enthusiasm by the federal government, although the question of the resignation of President Diaz has been shelved as a result of Minister Limantour's explanation of Diaz' announcement as to his retirement.

What the federal government is disposed to offer the rebels is only ten governorships and one member in the cabinet, without reorganizing it.

MOY PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Wealthy Chinaman Is Held For Alleged Smuggling Scheme

Boston, May 16.—Charged with conspiring to smuggle several shiploads of Chinamen into the country from Jamaica, Dr. Jin Tuey Moy of New York pleaded not guilty and was bound over in $3000 by Judge Dodge in the United States district court for trial.

Moy, who is said to be one of the wealthiest Chinamen in the country, has retained former Assistant United States District Attorney Ham to defend him. Captain Harvey C. Daly, another of the alleged conspirators, also was held in a like amount. It is alleged that Moy is the power behind the throne in numerous recent attempts to smuggle Chinamen into the country.

WOMAN MARRIES NEPHEW

Ceremony on Her Death Bed That He May Inherit Her Property

Decatur, Ills., May 16.—Death brought success to the effort of Mrs. Laura C. M. Barry fittingly to reward her nephew, James A. Barry, by making him her sole heir in an estate of about $12,000.

On May 8, knowing that she would be unable to survive more than a few days, she made known her wish to marry her nephew so that nothing could happen to prevent his getting her property.

Propped up on a pillow she uttered feebly the words making them man and wife. An invalid since the death of her second husband a year and a half ago, Mrs. Barry had been cared for by Harry with singular devotion.

ONE YEAR AND A DAY

Sentence Imposed Upon Man Who Tried to Get $14,000 by Threat

Boston, May 16.—Judge Dodge in the United States district court sentenced J. K. Dunberg, alias J. K. Dunbar and James Stanley, to one year and a day in the Cambridge jail for attempting to blackmail Daniel W. Field, a Brockton shoe manufacturer, of $14,000 on penalty of death.

Dunberg had pleaded guilty to the indictment and he had written to Field for leniency. After the arrest of Dunberg as a result of the efforts of the Burns Detective agency, he was willing to plead guilty.

TRAMP KEEPS HIS WORD

Woman Who Loaned Him a Dollar Is Paid Back Ten Fold

Beverly, N. J., May 16.—Mrs. Eileen MacCurdy of South Beverly believed the story of a tramp two years ago who had knocked at her door and begged for food, that if she would lend him a dollar to help him on his way to Wheeling, W. Va., where he had a family, he would swear off drinking.

Last night she received a brief letter inclosing a $10 bill, thanking her for her kindness and stating he had given up drinking and was prosperous. The letter was signed "Jim Royce."

FOSS SENDS FOUR VETOES

Disapproves More Legislation of the Bay State Solons

Boston, May 16.—Governor Foss again "took his pen in hand" yesterday and sent four veto messages to the legislature. One veto, sent to the senate, was of senate resolve No. 60, authorizing the incorporation of a medical milk commission.

A second, received in the house, was of house No. 350, relative to the distribution and sale of milk.

A third, also received in the house, was of house resolve No. 1592, providing for printing additional copies of the report of the Massachusetts commission on the cost of living.

In the fourth veto the governor withholds his approval from the bill authorizing the police commissioner of Boston to reinstate certain members of the department.

LITTLE GIRL CHIEF WITNESS FOR STATE

Alleged Slayer of Mrs. Fine Is Placed on Trial

Providence, May 16.—Ten-year-old Anna Balkevitch was in the superior court as the chief witness when Clifford Thompson was called to trial for the murder of Mrs. Minka Fine. He is accused of stabbing the woman to death in the little grocery shop she kept at 4 Ambrose street, for the $4 or $5 which she was carrying in a handbag at her waist.

The child, by whose testimony the state hopes to convict, identified Thompson as the man who met her at the door of the store when she went there on Jan. 7, and told her to go away. A little later Mrs. Fine's body was found. Chief Inspector Horton says that he obtained a confession from Thompson.

AFTER LONG SEPARATION

Woman Is to Live With Her Husband and His Second Wife

Pittsburg, May 16.—Separated by the Chicago fire in 1871, Peter C. Sharp of this place and his wife, Anna C. Sharp of Oakland, Cal., will be reunited here during the present week. Mrs. Sharp is now on her way to Pittsburg.

The ending of the forty years' search made by Mrs. Sharp was brought about by application to the pension office at Washington. It was then that she learned that her husband, an old soldier, had married again and applied for a pension.

Nevertheless she wrote to Sharp and he replied, asking her to come to him and make her home with him and his second wife.

ANOTHER BALLOT FAILS

Gallinger and Bacon Tied For President Pro Tempore of Senate

Washington, May 16.—Continuation of the deadlock in the attempt to elect a president pro tempore of the senate became apparent when the first ballot resulted in no choice.

Senator Gallinger, the Republican caucus candidate, polled thirty-three votes, his Democratic opponent, Senator Bacon, the same number, while six progressive Republicans voted for Senator Clapp.

VICTORY FOR UNION LABOR

Supreme Court Sets Aside the Sentence of Leaders

FINES WERE ONLY POSSIBLE

Court of Appeals and Supreme Court of District of Columbia Erred In Treating Contempt Proceedings Against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison as Criminal Case and Not Civil One—Damage Suits Are Possible

Washington, May 16.—Setting aside the sentences of imprisonment imposed by the supreme court of the District of Columbia, for alleged disobedience to a boycott injunction, the supreme court of the United States held that Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, president, vice president and secretary, respectively, of the American Federation of Labor, had been erroneously sentenced to jail on a charge of contempt of a local court.

The court unanimously held that the only sentence that could be imposed upon the labor leaders were fines. In so holding the supreme court of the United States found that the court of appeals of the District of Columbia and the supreme court of the District erred in treating the contempt proceedings as a criminal case and not a civil one.

The effect of holding the proceedings a civil one was to make jail sentences impossible. Hence the jail sentences had to be set aside. To correct the error the case was sent back to the local courts with direction that it be dismissed.

At the same time the court expressly made it possible for civil proceedings to be instituted in the form of damage suits against the labor men by the Bucks Stove and Range company, at whose instance the original contempt case was brought.

The court was led to hold that the contempt proceedings in this case must be civil in nature because criminal punishment is exercised by courts to force persons to do acts commanded. In the present case the court took the view that the labor men were being sent to jail, not to make them do something the court ordered, but because of "something they had done."

Inasmuch as all the differences between the labor men and the Bucks Stove and Range company have been adjudicated, including the "boycott" out of which the contempt proceedings arose, the decision is probably the last heard of this famous action.

Samuel Gompers returned from New York late yesterday. He said he was gratified that the supreme court had reversed the decision of the lower tribunal and added that the Bucks Stove and Range company and the Federation now were on good terms and he did not believe the company would take advantage of the opening for civil action made for them by the supreme court.

This is one of the most sweeping victories for union labor in its history in the United States.

The defendants were not in court, but the news was quickly conveyed to them at American Federation of Labor headquarters, where a large number

How to Gain Flesh

A simple but sure way to increase the weight, it is asserted by several well known physicians, is to take regularly for several months, one or two 3 grain hypo-nuclane tablets after each meal. These little tablets have the distinguished merit of increasing the red and white blood corpuscles, aiding digestion and promoting assimilation and absorption of the elements in the food which go to make blood and solid tissues. They are obtainable in sealed packages from physicians and well stocked apothecary shops.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve, every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say "Prove it." We'll welcome the opportunity.

It will be three weeks before the City Council again meets.

Up to May 15, the City Clerk has received nearly $600 for license fees.

The first copies of the annual city reports have been received by the City Clerk.

Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church will meet in the Parish house for a business session this evening.

The St. John's Church bazaar which was opened two weeks ago is still in progress and the attendance does not seem to diminish any.

The Dorcas society of the Swedish Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. Askelund, 156 Glendale road, this evening at 7.30.

Dr. Boos of Massachusetts General hospital will address the Men's club of the Park and Downs church, this evening on the subject "Sex Hygiene."

Quincy chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting in Electa hall Monday evening. Refreshments were served after the business was transacted.

Miss Magdalen S. Worden the composer and pianist who has been a guest for a few days of Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann of Presidents hill, leaves this afternoon for New York.

Several members of Paul J. Revere W. R. C. and friends are to visit the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea tomorrow, leaving City Square on the 11 o'clock electric.

A large delegation of officers and teachers from St. Chrysostom's church attended the annual meeting of the South Shore branch of the Sunday School Union at St. Paul's church, Brockton, Monday afternoon.

A hearing was held this morning before the railroad commissioners on approval of the grant to the street railway of a branch off track on Washington street to the proposed trolley freight depot.

CITY FINANCES

The statement of the City Treasurer for the month of April shows cash on hand April 1, $200,843.05, receipts during month $73,260.58; expenditures $139,631.77, cash on hand May 1, $134,471. 86. The total expenditures of the year including water service deposits of $970 refunded to have been $623,194. 70.

MONDAY FIRES.

Two fire alarms called out the fire department Monday afternoon. The first alarm was sounded at 4.09 from Box 331 and was for a slight fire in the attic of the old Hardwick house on Franklin street occupied by a family named Driscoll. The fire was quickly extinguished and did but little damage.

At 6.13 an alarm was sounded from Box 16 and was for a slight fire in the cottage of James Powers on Parkhurst street, Rock Island. The cause of the fire is unknown.

WOLLASTON STATION CLOCK.

Editors of Ledger:

A good many Wollaston people are protesting against the disfigurement of the tower clock on the R. R. station by the men who have recently been at work repainting the trimmings of the building. Ever since the station was built, some twenty-five years ago, the clock face has been in the regulation black and the numerals and pointers in gilt,—the standard tower clock scheme throughout the country. Much to the surprise of the good Wollaston citizens the railroad's painters have changed the face to an indescribable green and the pointers to a sickly yellow, making a sort of "Greeneryyallery" combination of Gilbert & Sullivan fame. It is presumed that this change was made in the interest of the New Haven's retrenchment policy. If that surmise is correct it will be rather tough on the scores of suburban towns where the villagers are doing everything within their power to make the surroundings of the railroad stations attractive, especially to newcomers who are prospecting for suburban places.

In a readable brochure, which the New Haven has recently issued, President Mellen is quoted (Page 36) as "appreciating the practical worth of artistic quality and has heartily encouraged the evolution of the New Haven into the railway beautiful." This sounds rather ironical in view of the mess which has been made of the Wollaston station.

MRS. ANNA ROVEDER.

The funeral services of Mrs. Anna Roveder of Arthur street were held at the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street this afternoon at 2.30. Mrs. Roveder has been a resident of Quincy for over 30 years, coming to this country from Norway while a young woman.

The services were conducted by Rev. G. H. Palmgren pastor of the church. A large number of friends of the deceased were present at the funeral and many beautiful flowers were sent. Interment took place at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

TO RAISE FLAG.

A flag pole has been given to the city by the Park commissioners for the Ward 3 playground and the pole will be set up in the near future. It has been suggested that the flag be given by citizens of the district and donations for that purpose will be received by Councilman George A. Bolster at the drug store at Brewer's corner. The flag will cost about $15 so that only small contributions will be needed. Anyone wishing to contribute any amount however small may leave their donation with Mr. Bolster and he will see that it is used for the right purpose.

MRS. WALTER F. NICHOLS.

Mrs. Walter F. Nichols, wife of ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols passed away this morning at her home on Newport avenue. Mrs. Nichols who was about 60 years of age has been in poor health for some time and her death was not unexpected. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter by her first husband, who is the wife of Dr. Wyman H. Streeter of Lincoln and two sons and a daughter by Mr. Nichols.

ARGENTINA FRIENDLY

At the opening of parliament May 12 at Buenos Ayres, President Pena's message declared that the Argentine Republic was on the most friendly terms with all foreign Powers, and that the present situation in the country proved that order had been re-established for all time. The recent demonstrations, he said, proved the brotherly concord which existed between Brazil and Argentina, while the participation of Argentina in the exposition at Roubaix, France, was a mark of the country's consideration and sympathy for the great Latin republics.

The message recommends prudence in t he administration of the finances of the country, especially in the negotiation of a loan of $60,000,000 gold, which is necessary to carry out public work contemplated. The imports during the last fiscal year amounted to $351,770,656 gold, and the exports to $372,626,055 gold. The circulation of paper money has reached a total of $738,000,000 guaranteed by $226,000,000 gold. The internal debt at the end of 1910 was $92,500,000 gold and $129,000,000 paper, while the foreign debt was $306,000,000 gold.

NURSING AS A CAREER.

It is said that nursing is one of the most inviting fields of human service and that its financial return surpasses any other occupation open to young women. It develops all the native graces of womanhood and leads the way to positions of trust and influence. The demand for more nurses is a world wide call.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses, located in Philadelphia, Pa., has undertaken to meet this demand by offering free scholarships to young women in all parts of the country. Room, board, laundering, incidental expenses, special financial assistance and railroad fare home on completion of the course, are provided. Length of course two years. Also a special short course and a Home Study course for those who must quickly prepare for self-support.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses is a benevolent institution conducted without hope of gain or profit in the interest of ambitious young women. Readers of this paper can full information by writing the school.

A Phillips Brooks Story.

In the Christian Endeavor World the Rev. Francis E. Clark writes of his attending Andover Theological seminary with John Cotton Brooks, brother of the famous Massachusetts bishop and rector, the Rev. Phillips Brooks. The writer says:

I recall one repartee which John Brooks ascribed to his brother Phillips A famous but sensational Boston preacher, who soon afterward fell from his high estate, being a great sportsman and decidedly "horsy," had written a much advertised book entitled "The Perfect Horse." "Yes," said Phillips Brooks, "'The Perfect Horse,' by the perfect ass." This was the only sentiment bordering on ill nature that I ever heard attributed to this most genial and kind hearted of men, and this could easily be forgiven when one remembers the skyrocket preacher of whom it was said.

The Yankee Knack

THE story of American industrial development has no more fascinating or impressive chapter than that devoted to the discoveries and improvements resulting from the extraordinary inventive genius of the New England workman.

He is never content with things as they are. He is forever experimenting — and successfully. He searches until he finds the soul of the machine, and from this intimate acquaintance he begins to eliminate and improve. He accomplishes the paradox of perfecting a perfect article. If there is a practicable way to make one part do the work of two, if some added device will simplify a process or improve a product, he will not rest till he has worked out the problem.

This passion for invention has been from the first a vigorous characteristic of the New England mind. The early settlers were artisans rather than tillers of the soil; and when by a bitter struggle with an undeveloped country they had supplied their immediate wants, they naturally turned again to manufacturing; and this mechanical bent, stimulated to alertness by a vigorous climate, resulted in course of time in an almost incredible mechanical ingenuity — the "Yankee Knack."

This genius for simplification of processes, this wonderful knack of devising machinery which will do the work of the human hand, has multiplied the output of our factories: and this in turn has increased wages and decreased the hours of labor, and so brought a great uplift into the lives of our workmen; given them the power to provide better homes for their families, better education for their children, and greater leisure in which to work out a broader destiny for themselves.

As in the past, so in the present and the future. The "Yankee Knack," which long since turned New England into a vast workshop, is still at its age-long task — simplifying, improving; lowering cost of production, ever raising quality of product — and all to the end that the average American family shall enjoy today what were luxuries but yesterday, and gratify in their turn the yet undiscovered desires of tomorrow.

SPORTING NOTES.

Quincy High goes to Groton for its annual game with Groton school Wednesday afternoon. A year ago the Quincy team won very handily and Rice had the Groton batsmen at his mercy. There is no reason why the performance should not be repeated this year. The prospects of a good feed for a victory will be some incentive to the Quincy players.

Walter Lonergan got a battling bee in his bonnet yesterday and sent out three singles. The fourth time at bat he made a sacrifice hit. Brockton surely did well to get the former Quincy captain.

Patsy Duggan covered centre field for Lowell on Monday in the game with New Bedford. The Lowell team lost but it was no fault of Patsy's.

The annual interclass athletic meet of Quincy high school will be held Saturday morning, May 20 beginning at 10 o'clock.

The annual quarter mile run for the Y. M. C. A. championship will take place on the morning of Memorial day on the Adams street course.

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr. de Sangay, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here; this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, May 12, 1911.

The national legislative body now in session in Congress is proving to be an unruly team. The Republican majority in the Senate cannot elect a president pro tem. The insurgent Senators have the balance of power and led by Senators La Follette and Cummins were able to defeat Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the caucus nominee.

The Democratic house is well organized and aggressive, and with its powerful majority acting as a unit, is passing much important legislation. It has passed the Canadian reciprocity bill and the farmers' free list bill, and these measures are now before the Senate. Delegations of farmers professing to be representative are besieging the Senate and the President in an effort to kill the Canadian reciprocity bill, but on the other hand there are delegations from the west and northwest, including agricultural representatives, much more numerous, urging the passage by the Senate of the reciprocity act.

Chairman Underwood is confident that a much more important tariff program than has yet been presented to the lower House will be passed by this body, the majority of whom it appears are in favor of free wool. The wiser heads of the Democratic majority are in favor of materially reducing the tariff on wool, but are opposed to so drastic a measure as admitting it duty free. The wool shedule is an important source of revenue to the government, and to materially reduce the tariff will increase this revenue and will at the same time enable the millions of wearers of wool garments in the United States to dress more elegantly and more comfortably. The bill is of course objectionable to the Wyoming Senator, whom the late Senator Dolliver said was the greatest shepherd since Abraham, and a few herdsmen in the sparse settlements in the northwest. It will also interfere with the Massachusetts factory monopoly but it will result in great benefit to ninety-nine one-hundredths of the population of the United States.

One of the most important investigations ever made by the Interstate Commerce Commission is that of the express companies of the United States. This investigation is now under way. The commission has before it much material which it is at present studying and arranging. It is thought that the outcome will be a complete change in the express business of the country. Quite recently there was held in Washington a convention relative to the much talked about and written about parcels post. This was attended by distinguished men from various parts of the country. Some of them have made a thorough study of the express situation. It is somewhat remarkable that the resolution was passed by the convention favoring the complete absorption or control of the express companies by the government. Assuming that half the things complained against the express companies are sustained, it will not be strange if the demand for government ownership will be urgent after the Interstate Commerce Commission's report has been published. In the states of Iowa, Minnesota and California railway commissioners have recently made investigations into the operations of these companies.

Business interests throughout the country are urging an examination relative to the express companies, insisting that their rates are exorbitant and that their practices are unfair. Last fall, two hundred and eight commercial organizations petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to make the inquiry which is now under way. This commission, let it be unerstood, has full authority over express rates, regulations and practices. It is claimed by those who have thoroughly studied the subject that there is no reason whatever for the existence of express companies independent of railroad companies, and it is a well known fact that the railroad companies themselves are extensive stock owners, if they do not actually control the majority of stock of the express companies, and that they are using these companies to enormously increase their profits with the result of enormously oppressing the millions who have to resort to them as common carriers. The profits in the case of some of the companies it is known are as high as 200 per cent to 300 per cent. There is no reason why the United States should not carry express packages under the parcels post system for the benefit of all the people of the country.

GROWING BETTER.

That conditions are growing better instead of worse is proved by the exposures and the relegating to private life of those who would serve two masters. When men in public life become imbued with the idea that they are the servants and the people their masters, then will this country enjoy representative government.—C. E. Broughton.

BRANCH-OFF TRACK LOCATION

Hearing Before Railroad Commissioners

The question of granting the street railway a branch-off track location to the proposed trolley freight terminal on Washington street which was so thoroughly gone into by the City Council before the permit was granted was again thrashed out Tuesday before the railroad commissioners when the hearing was practically a repetition of what had taken place before the City Council.

The railway was represented by Paul R. Blackmur and by Mr. Garfield. Mr. Blackmur presented copies of the order as granted by the City Council and suggested that as the petitioner had made out a prima-facia case that the objectors be heard to which the commission agreed.

Brooks Adams spoke in general terms his argument being that if there was to be a trolley freight it should be under ground in a tunnel. Other speakers in opposition were Charles H. Hardwick E. S. Beckford, Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Arthur W. Stetson, Robert Hardwick, Dr. Sydney Hardwick and Councilman John R. Richards.

In his argument Charles H. Hardwick said that the Council did not represent the people and talked of other locations. He also said that after the thing was in operation the Council would remove the condition about a man with a flag or lantern.

The commission interrupted to say that it was not for them to consider other locations but whether the location was a dangerous and improper place.

That the City Council could not revoke any of the conditions without the approval of the commission.

A representative of the Wilde estate undertook to tell about land which he had for sale on Hancock street for $15,000 but when the Commission found he was talking about a matter foreign to that under discussion he was shut off.

President Bryant of the City Council was called and said that no question ever before the City Council had been so thoroughly gone into as had this. The public had been given every opportunity to be heard. His argument was a clear one and he stated clearly why he considered the location a good one and why it was not dangerous.

Chairman Gardner of the committee on Streets said the question had been gone into thoroughly and he considered that the Council had driven a hard bargain with the street railway.

During all the hearing there were no new facts in addition to those advanced before the City Council, brought out.

Before the hearing adjourned the commission announced that before taking action it would visit Quincy and view the proposed location, so as to form a personal opinion as to whether or not it would be a source of danger to construct the branch off track.

STATE FEDERATION.

Quite a number of local club women will attend the annual meeting of the state organization, which will be held at New Bedford by invitation of the New Bedford Woman's club, May 24, 25, 26. The business sessions will be of special concern, and reports of officers and chairmen of various committees will be given.

The guest of honor will be Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation and among the speakers will be Miss Alice Lakey of New Jersey, a member of the national pure food committee. A musicale by the hostess club, a reception, an organ recital at the Rogers Memorial church in Fairhaven are among the scheduled features which will prove delightful to the club women.

It has been announced that luncheon will be provided on May 25 and 26. Application for luncheon tickets at 50 cents each must be made to Mrs. Horace K. Nye on or before May 22 and must be accompanied by an addressed and stamped envelope for the return of the same. Special rates may be obtained from any point in the state to New Bedford and return.

CASE OF SMALL POX.

There was quite a scare at Houghs Neck Tuesday when it was learned that a 15 month old girl residing on Centre road who was supposed to have been ill from indigestion died of small-pox. The child whose name is Wickens came to Quincy with her parents from Dorchester, May 4, and has been at Houghs Neck ever since.

Since the child has been ill there have been quite a number in and out of the house who have necessarily become exposed. Our Board of Health has taken all precautions however to prevent the spread of the disease and it is not thought that there will be any cases develop from it. The child was buried Tuesday night.

No guess work about these new Regal prices. The price is stamped right on the shoe—at the factory. And it isn't stamped on until chartered public accountants have figured the cost of manufacture and of marketing and added the Five Per Cent. Commission.

These accountants pay no attention to the old-fashioned superstition of "even money" prices. All they care about is an accurate, close-fitting price.

The chief thing that Regal designers care about is to put just as much Value—just as much Style and Comfort and Wear—as they can squeeze into each shoe.

ORGAN RECITAL

Henry K. Fitts Interprets Masterpieces

The second organ recital in the series at Christ church was held Tuesday evening with Henry King Fitts at the organ and Arthur C. Peverley as soloist.

The opening selection was Guilmant's "Grand Choeur" his best known piece.

Mr. Fitts played it with rare ability and gave a splendid interpretation of this well known composer's masterpiece. Block's "Serenade" and "Musette" by Lemare were both rendered in a masterful manner. A "Minuet" from a Suite by Boellman was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Mr. Peverley was at his best and his vocal contributions were both beautifully rendered. "My soul is athirst for God" from Gaul's "Holy City" and Wooler's "Hear my Prayer" exquisite in themselves were made still more beautiful with the assistance of Mr. Peverley's well modulated voice.

The fifth rogan selection was one which is more played than any other piece "The Question and The Answer" by Wolstenholme. The composer is the blind organist who was in this country recently and gave a recital in Jordan hall. Mr. Fitts gave an excellent rendering of the piece so that one not well versed in music lore could interpret the meaning for himself.

"Laus Deo" by Dubois is too well known to require any introduction. The grandeur and majesty of the Omnipotent were brought out in contrast with the subdued tones of the pleader and in conclusion the joyful outburst of praise and thanksgiving "for His mercy and loving kindness to us and to all men" gave a splendid ending to a thoroughly enjoyable recital.

The next and last recital will take place Wednesday evening May 31. Prof. Frank Wrigley will be the organist and Mrs. James Slade the vocalist. Prof. Wrigley will play "The Storm" by request.

The program of last night's recital:

Grand Choeur	Guilmant
Serenade	Block
Vocal—"My Soul is athirst for God"	Gaul
"Holy City"
Musette	Lemare
Minuet	Boellman
Vocal—"Hear my Prayer"	Wooler
The Question, The Answer,	Wolstenholme
Laus Deo	Dubois

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE

Coddington School Grounds Wanted for Summer

The first meeting of the Playground committee of One Hundred for 1911 was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors Tuesday evening. L. F. LaRose was appointed secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ernest G. Gay. A very earnest discussion was held with regard to the location of the playground. The Coddington school playground was suggested as the best place and a committee was appointed with D. King as chairman to confer with the proper authorities with reference to securing the use of the grounds.

L. F. LaRose will have charge of the work for boys and probably Miss Ruth Bass, who graduates from Dr. Sargent's school this spring, will be in charge of the girls. Another meeting will be held in the near future.

IT WAS IN WOLLASTON

The Observant Citizen of the Post says;

A newspaperman came very near "getting in bad" down in Wollaston a few nights ago. He was walking through the streets waiting for details on a certain story, when one of the peaceful citizens of that burg looked out the window and saw him. It was a trifle chilly and the reporter had his coat collar turned up and his cap pulled down over his eyes. It was so late—nearly 10 o'clock—that the resident summoned a policeman by phone, and it required some little strategy on the part of the reporter to keep himself from being brought to the station house.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS ASSO.

Annual Meeting of Wollaston Association

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Parents and Teachers association was held Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade gave her excellent lecture on "Diet for Schoolchildren" after which a very profitable discussion was held concerning the subject matter of the lecture.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham.
Vice President—Albert N. Murray.
Secretary and Treasurer—Mrs. Eben M. Barstow.

The new directors elected were Charles W. Bailey, Mrs. Phillip Dresser, Mrs. Eric Ewertz and Miss Evelyn Farrington.

HOWARD N. NEWELL.

Howard Nelson Newell who died yesterday at his home 157 Vassall street, Wollaston, has been deputy collector of the Port of Boston for a number of years. He was originally a resident of Springfield and his body will be taken there for burial.

Services will be held at the home in Wollaston at 4.30 this afternoon. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Springfield.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Another argument against woman suffrage is that a woman is apt to ask to have her ballot returned in order to add a postcript.

The fact that a contract for street paving was given to the lowest bidder in Philadelphia has created a commotion in that city. They usually went to the biggest grafters.

Wellington and Napoleon are the names of two towns in the same county in Kansas. And now, midway between them the new town of Waterloo has been started.

"Blue is said to be the strongest eye and gray the next." Yet when it comes to enabling a man to see double "red eye" has them both beaten out of sight.

Representative O'Neill, who indulged in a fight in the Minnesota legislature, may be planning to become the "white man's hope" but the legislature chamber is a poor place in which to train.

Wisconsin has passed resolutions condemning one of its Senators for voting for Lorimer and commending the other for voting against him. Massachusetts wouldn't do such a thing as that!

LABOR MEN'S CASE IS IN COURT AGAIN

Action Against Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell Renewed

Washington, May 17.—A commission was appointed by Justice Daniel Wright of the District supreme court to determine whether Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison were guilty of contempt, and upon its decision further action in the case will be based.

Justice Wright is proceeding on the instructions of the United States supreme court in the decision of Monday, which set aside the jail sentence, but indicated that it did so without prejudice.

Justice Wright, appointed as members of the commission J. J. Darlington, Daniel Davenport and James Beck, all of council against the labor leaders in the original contempt proceedings. He ordered the commission to investigate the entire proceedings on which the labor leaders were sentenced.

TO "PLAY UP" RELIGION

Magazines and Newspapers Will Aid In Spreading Gospel

Omaha, May 17.—"The age of muckraking is coming to an end and the magazines and newspapers are going to turn their attention toward religion," said James G. Cannon, president of the Fourth National bank of New York, in an address before the Ministerial union here.

"If there is not the greatest ingathering to the churches it will be the fault of the men of the churches, for we are going to have the subject of religion so 'played up' in the papers and magazines that the man who wants to promulgate religion will not have a single excuse for failing to get busy among his friends and neighbors."

LECTURE ON SEX HYGIENE

Important that Children Should be Told Truth

Before the members of the Park and Downs Union club on Tuesday evening Dr. William F. Boos of the Massachusetts General Hospital delivered a lecture of high interest and instructiveness taking for his subject "Sex hygiene in a medical and moral light,"

This is the age of preventative medicine, said the speaker as he told of the strides made in the prevention and cure of diphtheria, tuberculosis and other dread diseases.

Dr. Boos gave many statistics of the diseases of the sexes showing the vast toll exacted in useless humanity every year. The public drinking cup, the barbers' razor and the practise of kissing were given as the most usual causes of their spread.

The way to prevent this is to begin with the children. They should be told the truth, the whole truth. Sex health at present is not taught by the parent or teacher to any great extent but the children left to learn from companions in the most wretched and distorted fashion. They should be guided and regulated. True religion lies in the exaltation of life and giving of life.

The speaker told of the many effects of bad habits and said that it was a mistake for a young man to delay marriage for a great number of years simply because he was not earning what he considered sufficient income. An excellent custom is that of the Germans in which the assistance of the girls' father is procured at a time like this.

The freedom from prudishness of the people in Sweden, Japan and other countries was referred to and the speaker urged that more time be devoted to the study of botany, zoology and physiology. Such knowledge is worth a thousand times that of grammar, history, rhetoric, algebra, Latin or Greek.

It is a problem that parents have got to face. They should teach cleanliness and that self control is the sign of manliness and strength. Boys should be directed in healthful occupations and should be given ideals to work for.

Dr. Boos mentioned the system of story telling which has been inaugurated by the German to enlighten the child on nature's most important laws. Several examples of these were given which were related in a simple and beautiful way telling of the birds, animals and flowers.

With the aid of the stereopticon methods of propagation and generation were explained beginning with that of plant life and extending through the insect, fish, bird, animal and human organisms.

Dr. Boos was accorded a hearty vote of thanks and the club adjourned for refreshments.

At the business meeting that preceded Herbert Tucker reported for the committee appointed to look into the crossing of fields and sidewalks by wagons and other conveyance. It was voted by the club to request the police to secure the names of offenders and make an example of them.

Resolutions were passed on the sudden death of Howard N. Newell of Vassal street. Mr. Newell was an active and interested worker in the club and even as late as last week took part in the first evening's entertainment of the club. His death is much regretted by the club and the community.

An invitation from the Methodist Men's club to their meeting on Thursday, at which Norman H. White of Brookline will speak, was read and a letter of thanks moved.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

GET THE HELP QUINCY GROW HABIT

IN FASHION'S REALM

Linen Is Giving Way to Mohair for Tailored Summer Suits.

Different Weight Materials a Necessity in Changeable Summer Weather.

The real need for thin clothes is with us; we are approaching June, planning for vacations, and have pretty well decided where we are to spend the Summer. The problem of what to have for the hot months is never as easy as what to have for the cold months. The latter are of longer duration and one is apt to know just what is needed.

The social life is rarely an important question, for women judge the future by the past. They can plan for good coat suits, a top coat of fur or cloth ,one ornate indoor frock, or as many as one needs. Their life is well scheduled. There is no possible way of arranging for emergencies; often the most stay-at-home woman is compelled to take part in some formal social function, but if she has not a gown ready for this the ways and means are at hand to get one.

This is not true of the Summer, when people go out of the city and out of touch with the shops as much as possible. And they want to guard against the emergency which would compel them to go into town and shop for a gown when the thermometer is over 90 in the shade.

When planning clothes for the Summer one not only has to take into consideration the week at home, but the days spent on the train, in hotels, or at friends' houses. One never knows what will arise. The gowns that will do for one resort will not do for another; and if one contemplates a trip abroad, the whole subject must be gotten at from a different viewpoint.

These are not the only difficulties in choosing the Summer wardrobe. As every one is not a millionaire, it is not possible or judicious to buy recklessly. When money is put into a good gown the majority of women must wear it whether or not they like it. They can't turn it over to poor relations because it does not happen to suit them as well in July as it did in June. The usual run of women are compelled to struggle with an unbecoming frock in order to make it becoming; they must use all the ingenuity at their command, and often listen to the suggestions of their friends to make this gown wearable. They may be disgusted with the result of their effort, but they keep on hammering at it until it presents a more desirable state.

Few women are so wedded to the country lanes in Summer that they can escape buying one or more coat suits to see them through days when they must be formally clothed. Shirtwaists and linen skirts in any number keep one going through the majority of hours if one lives out of town, but they are not economical or fashionable for the city streets.

One can choose frocks instead of coat suits, but women have found it wiser to have one suit in their wardrobe than to try to go without it. It is quite true that the fashion for one-piece frocks has turned the thoughts away from the coat suits more than for years, and the tailors say that their orders for the latter are almost divided in half this season. Yet their orders for top coats have made up the deficit on the other side.

The popularity of the one-piece frock has brought about an era of home dress-making which for a long time was abandoned when women of all classes and conditions wore coats and skirts when ever they left the house in the daytime. The multiplicity of good patterns, the cheapness and variety of Summer fabrics and the belief that it is unwise to put much money into hot weather gowns, are factors that contribute to the making of home frocks. Possibly the most important factor has been left out in this summary, which is the lack of boned linings, the simplicity of the peasant waist, and the elimination of boned stocks.

These were the stumbling blocks of the home dressmaker, but the tea-gown style of clothes we now wear has given every woman the belief that she can have them made at home as well as she can buy them.

It is a fallacious theory, but it holds among the majority, and it is quite true that certain types of women can wear these frocks with distinction, no matter how carelessly they are made. It would not be wise, however, to entirely cut out the coat suit, even for hot weather.

The important question is what material to get. Pongee has not made good except in the matter of weight and coolness. It quickly looks crushed and in need of ironing. The heavy grade called rajah is somewhat better, but until we get the right grade of Chinese pongee we will not find it available for the kind of wear which the American woman puts on it. Linen is the coolest and cheapest of all coat suit materials, and we have learned to avoid the kind that has any glace and to go in for the home-spun weave with its lack of dressing and its rough threads.

Often this kind of a suit requires constant trips to the ironing board and unless one has a good laundress in the house it becomes expensive to send the suit to a professional presser every week or two. The tailors again say that their orders have fallen off for linen suits more rapidly this season than for years, and they attribute this to the fact that a woman would prefer to wear a one-piece frock on hot days and wear mohair or thin Summer tweed on cool days.

She can drop out the linen suit from her list, because a gown of linen or foulard is cooler and less expensive, and because her coat suit is to serve for days that are too cool for linen. This theory sounds plausible, and the Summer will teach us how it works out.

The choice of well-dressed women has gone toward the extra-thin Summer tweed and serge, with a fine hair-line of black on a gray surface. The stripes are wide apart but definite. Dark blue serge is taking the same conspicuous place that it did last Autumn.

The choosing of one-piece frocks is a more interesting task, and one that does not involve as much expense or nicety of cut and tailoring. Foulard is too fashionable to be passed by; peau de soie is very much to the front, not only with a plain surface, but with a hairline stripe. This Summer serge is also being made up into snappy looking frocks, with peasant sleeves finished with cuffs or eyelet embroidery and a voluminous cape collar of the same, edged with lace or bound with satin ribbon.

There is a chemisette and stock of thin white muslin; the latter is separate from the chemisette, so one may go without a collar when the days are hot. The skirt of this frock is high-waisted, straight over the hips and trimmed with two wide folds piped with black satin. Elbow-length chamois gloves are worn with this gown, and a small hat of rough blue straw trimmed with immense silk morning glories.

It seems to me such a costume would appeal to any woman who likes to dress in a distinguished way. The advantage of it is that it will last through the Fall, and can even be worn in Winter under a top coat.

The polka dot foulard frocks appeal to many, although the striped and plain ones are more in fashion. These materials are a bit dull, or rather they lack distinction when not enlivened by trimming. They need far more ornamentation than a linen gown does. Usually a good deal of foulard in another design is used for folds or piping, and the peasant blouses are touched up with deep sailor collars of Venetian or Irish lace, tea-tinted, not white.

Guimpes of maline lace are worn under them. Some women use tucked white net instead, but I should advise against it. It has not the artistic charm of the cream laces and spotted nets.

Point d'esprit is back in fashion, and is widely used instead of lace for these neck and sleeve accessories. These one-piece frocks are not lined. The serge ones, and sometimes the silk ones, may have a washable detached lining of white china silk, which is finished independently of the gown ,is caught at armholes, neck and waist, and can be taken out and laundered to the satisfaction of the wearer. It is a newer, cleaner method than the one of putting a boned lining into a frock and having to wear it all Summer without change.

There are days, however, that are entirely too hot in this country for any thought of coat suits or serge frocks. To meet this we must prepare clothes that wash and do not add weight or warmth to the skin.

All white is not much worn. No one gives a reason for it, but every one accepts it. It is a season of color, and therefore, for the first time in many years, the striped and figured colored muslins are back in fashion.

Stripes are in the lead and peppermint candy muslin is popular. Blue and white striped dimity and lawn are used, and the opportunity here for trimming is an attractive one. A blue and white striped lawn that has been greeted with admiration is made with a modified peasant waist, with a small sleeve—remember that point, for it is quite important, as the large kimono sleeve has proved useless—and a skirt that is narrow, is slightly gathered and is fastened at the side front with white braid buttons through a one-inch strip of blue cotton marquisette.

This band with its buttons runs up on the blouse and down each sleeve. The cuffs and shaped collar are of white eyelet embroidery, buttonholed here and there on the design with blue mercerized floss. There is no belt, as the skirt and blouse are joined under a gathered cord.

This latter trick, by the way, is one that is worth adopting, as it is newer than the belt and is more becoming to a number of figures. It was originated a year or two ago on chiffon and satin gowns, on which the silk cords were visible and were knotted at the side, then finished with long ends.

This is not practical on wash gowns, so the waistline is merely accentuated by the material gathered over a cord that comes for that purpose in the shops.

Often when a woman has mastered thelines and cut of the new frocks and has made her choice of materials she is keen to know the small touches that individualize the costumes. The use of eyelet embroidery has already been referred to, and if one wants to try a new thing in it, then she can dye the white embroidery into any color she wants to use. For instance, king's blue is used on a blue and white striped frock, and geranium red on a peppermint candy muslin.

Among the other new touches is the use of fringed ruchings of plain or changeable taffeta. These are very attractive. They are put on the edges of cuffs, sailor collars and folds on the skirt.

A dark green etamine frock which is made up without lining for hot days and goes over a princess slip of cream silk, which the wearer uses under most of her thin frocks, has a skirt slightly gathered at a high waist line to one of the new thick cords mentioned above, and as it narrows rapidly at the knees it is met with two wide folds of the material edged with half-inch ruchings of green and blue taffeta.

The peasant blouse opens in front and is invisibly fastened, the loose edge finished with the ruching. This also goes around a small sailor collar at the neck, and three bands of it are used on the three-quarter sleeves, which are cut to a slight point at the back and fall from a puffed sleeve of thin French lace. There is a collarless guimpe of this lace with pink-net, according to the prevailing fashion.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

RACE ENDS IN BROKEN LEG

Was Trying to Elude Grasp of Officer Thorne

Patrick Flannigan, a Fore River workman residing on Laurence street is at the City Hospital suffering from a broken leg as a result of a drunken spree Tuesday. It was in the vicinity of 4 o'clock this morning that Officer Thorne saw a man acting suspiciously on Washington street. He started for him and as he did so the man ran. Immediately the race was on. The man ran into Cleverley court, thence into the barn of Edgar Hayden with Officer Thorne close upon his heels. Up into the hay loft the man went and as the officer was about to grab him he jumped out of the window landing heavily on the ground and breaking his leg. The officer called the auto patrol and sent the man to the City Hospital.

LADIES' NIGHT MEN'S CLUB

Lieut. Wilson Talks of Life on a Battleship

The ladies' night of the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's parish was held in the vestry on Tuesday evening. This is an annual event and closed the fourth and most successful year of the club.

The evening opened with the reading of the secretary's report by John L. Hamilton and was followed by a program of music and readings.

Mrs. A. E. Holland rendered vocal solos which were pleasing to those present while the readings of Miss Bennett also found favor. Vocal solos and duets were contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Y. Follett.

A lecture on the navy by Lieutenant J. D. Wilson of the U. S. Battleship "New Jersey" was enjoyed.

The speaker gave an interesting running account of the daily happenings on board and spoke of the make-up and different classes of battleships.

Many anecdotes were told and the interesting customs when "crossing the line" were described. The stations of the officers and men in action and the manner in which a large ships is taken care of were described in detail.

A comparison of the old ships and the new and the relation of past with present efficiency in the handling of ships, men and guns brought to a close the interesting lecture.

The results of the plank and nail scheme for raising money was announced and although but half of the cards have been returned over $125 has been realized toward repairs of the church vestry.

The serving of refreshments ended an evening that was voted by all to be a decided success. In charge were a committee composed of A. E. Holland, Eleazer F. Drew, Percy L. Davidson, W. D. Purdom and W. H. Spooner.

Mention should be made of the elaborate and artistic decorations, the work of a committee headed by George L. Bean, which in consequence of the nature of the lecture consisted of the familiar red, white and blue.

TO WINDY TO FLY

Although W. Starling Burgess was slated to fly at the aviation field in Squantum Tuesday he did not go up It was too windy. A breeze swept the projection of land all day varying from 10 to 35 miles, so the aviator said it was impossible to fly with his pupils.

Mr. Burgess has but one machine at the field, but expects the one now being repaired at Marblehead will be shipped to the field in a few days, while the number will be augmented probably tomorrow by Charles K. Hamilton, who has a Burgess-Wright type. Mr. Hamilton will test it on the field before taking it to New York.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel J. Moran was sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Quincy. Henry MacLaughlin was fined $5, Gust Holmberg and Gotland Lofgren $10 for the same offense.

RECEIVED STOLEN GOODS

Charge Upon Which Prominent Lawyer Is Placed on Trial

New York, May 17.—In the same courtroom where twice he acted as counsel for Harry K. Thaw, who was charged with the murder of Stanford White, Daniel J O'Rielly, once an assistant district attorney, was placed on trial, charged with receiving and holding stolen goods.

The indictments against O'Reilly grew out of the robbery last March of Aaron Bancroft, an aged broker, who lost $85,000 in securities.

LOST HIS CAPS

A messenger from Boston on his way to Quincy Tuesday with half a dozen letter carriers caps met with a peculiar loss while on the way. Entering the smoking car of the train he placed the box containing the caps on the floor and settled back for a comfortable smoke.

Suddenly a fellow passenger noticed smoke arising from the box and called the owners attention to it, then it was discovered that the contents of the box was on fire. When the fire was stamped out all that remained of the caps were the visors.

YOUNG SHERIDAN'S FATE

May End His Days In Leper Colony In Hawaii

Pawtucket, R. I., May 17.—Harry Sheridan, the 15-year-old boy who is afflicted with leprosy, may become a patient at the Molokai colony for lepers in the Hawaiian islands, under the direct charge of the United States government, if the plans of the Rhode Island officials go through. City Physician Richards has sent a letter to Dr. Wyman of the United States hospital at Washington, asking that the federal government take the boy in charge.

It seems almost certain that the Massachusetts officials will do nothing in the matter.

The boy is still at his home under police guard. Had the boy remained at the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston instead of being taken home by his father the chances are that he would by this time have been admitted to the leper colony at Penikese island, it is believed by the local authorities.

KING DELIVERS EULOGY

Marble Memorial to Late Queen Victoria Unveiled by Grandson

London, May 17.—The great marble memorial to Victoria, fronted by a statue of the late queen and surmounted by a gilded winged victory, on the Plaza before Buckingham palace, was unveiled by Vivtoria's grandson, King George V.

The ceremony was conducted in the presence of Emperor William and other descendants of the queen, numerous members of the British and German royal families, members of the cabinet, colonial representatives and many other prominent persons. The archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of London performed the religious rites.

King George delivered a speech in eulogy of Victoria.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN TOTALLY WRECKED

Dirigible Aircraft Meets With Disaster Upon a Roof

Dusseldorf, Rhenish Prussia, May 17.—After a career of six weeks the Deutschland, latest of the models of Count Zeppelin's ill-fated dirigible balloons, stranded on the roof of its shed, a total wreck. The finish of the airship was less spectacular than that of its predecessors, but more complete.

The accident occurred as the Deutschland was being released for a passenger trip. Eight passengers had seated themselves in the cabin, the crew were at their posts and 200 men on the ground clung to the guide ropes as the powerful craft emerged from her berth, and under pressure of over 500,000 cubic feet of gas struggled to be free. Just as the airship cleared the shed a violent gust of wind drove her back against the entrance. At the impact several of the balloonettes burst and the released gas destroyed her equilibrium.

The army of men at the guide ropes were powerless against the wind and another gust lifted the airship bodily and dropped her on the roof of the shed, her back broken and the hull left dangling over one edge.

O'Brien who is now in Rome was born in West Quincy and is a gold medalist and gradutte of Adams Academy in 1902. He then entered Boston college graduating in the class of 1906.

While at Boston college he won the Fulton and other prizes. In the fall of 1906 Fr. O'Brien went to Rome to finish his education and has been there ever since. He will return to America soon.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

Maple lodge, Knights and Ladies' of Honor observed its thirty-third anniversary Wednesday evening and while there was no set program for the observance of the event the members had a jolly good time. After the regular business of the evening had been disposed of there was a spirited bowling match the prize for the best score being secured by Edward B. Langley. There was great sport when it came to the guessing contest. The guess was on the number of beans in a bottle. Mrs. Elector Field said 369 which proved to be the exact number and she secured the prize. Edward B. Langley was also given a prize for being so far away from the correct number. A social hour followed during which ice cream and cake were served.

CHRISTIANS AND MOHAMMEDANS

The two Meet at Quincy Point and Trouble Follows

The Christian and Mohammedan Syrians at Quincy Point clashed Wednesday night and as a result five of the latter were arraigned in court this morning for assaulting Louis and Mary Daas.

The parties under arrest for the assault are Nellie Hassian Niaz Hassian, Amey Hassian, Abeler Hassian and Eunice Hassian.

The trouble took place in the building on South street formerly used as a church, and arose over the fact that the two Christians were occupying a bed that the Hassian's claimed belonged to them. The Daas were ordered to get up and get out but refused. Then the Hassians put them out. Officer Thorne was notified and arrested all five. The two men he locked up and the women were summoned to appear this morning in court.

They failed to appear however and the patrol wagon was sent after them. The cases were continued until Friday morning for hearing.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert T. Conway was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Salvatore Inpocine was arraigned for assult at Cohasset. Case continued until May 25.

Nellie Allic, Niaz, Amez, Abeler and Eunice Hassian were arraigned for assault on Louis and Mary Daas at Quincy. Cases continued until Friday.

GRANITE SHIPMENTS.

Returns from the two railroad shipping terminals for the month of April show the amount of rough and finished granite shipped that month to have been 15,773,572 pounds, not quite as much as shipped in March. Of the amount shipped 8,521,870 pounds were forwarded from West Quincy and 7,251,703 pounds from South Quincy.

JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION

Committee Makes Plans for Raising Funds

The general Fourth of July committee held a meeting Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade. No special action was taken at the meeting the discussion being on plans for raising funds, for upon the amount of money contributed depends the success of the celebration. The more money the better the show. It is desired that at least $3,000 should be raised to carry out the program outlined.

Before the meeting adjourned a letter soliciting funds was drawn up and this will be mailed to a number of prominent citizens in the different parts of the city. In addition to this the finance committee will arrange to have canvassers for funds in each ward.

Every litle sum will be welcome, so that no one need hesiate about contributing, that the celebration this year shall eclipse that of a year ago.

It was announced at the meeting that Clarence Burgin treasurer of the Quincy Savings bank had consented to act as treasurer of the committee.

A GOOD WORK.

Mr. Editor:

Any new movement which appeals to the public for both moral and financial support, must first give reasons for its appeal.

The Quincy Women's club now have the floor to present one of the most important matters that has ever demanded public consideration. With the increase in population which the last census gives us, of which we are justly proud, there are loud calls for a work that should be done scientifically and sympathetically. This is the care and relief of certain needy ones throughout our city. The larger part of such persons should be looked after quietly and patiently, and protected from publicity. These constitute a class quite distinct from those cared for by the Overseers of the Poor. Even with this classification the public must be safeguarded against duplication of assistance, and the inevitable tendency towards protracted relief.

It was a revelation to the writer to listen at the monthly meeting of the Associated Charities, under the Philanthropy committee of the Women's club Tuesday, to the various reports from friendly visitors of different families in which they were interested. The time, the tact and the patience required demand too much of these good ladies, and it is no wonder that this condition has compelled the club to consider the employment of a paid visitor, who shall be on duty at all times.

Following somewhat the work as it is done in the larger cities, a central office is a necessity, with district conferences in the other wards of the city. One thousand dollars will set the machinery in motion, so that inside of a year, with no additional expense, the needs of every part of our city can be compassed. A portion of this has been already pledged, and it cannot be doubted that when the proper appeal is made, the rest of the money will be forthcoming.

BEGINS FLYING AT SQUANTUM

Burgess Biplane Made Two Flights Wednesday

W. Starling Burgess in the newest Burgess-Wright biplane made two flights over the Squantum Aviation field Wednesday morning and swooping down to within twenty-five feet of two clam diggers and gave them the scare of their lives. The men did not hear the buzz of the motor until it was quite near them. Then they dropped their hoes in the mud and took to their heels.

The two flights mark the beginning of a series of attempts at flying for this season.

A few minutes before 6 o'clock the biplane was released from the hold of the mechanicians and started on its first trip aloft.

The pilot followed the course around the point used at the meet, rising shortly after the start, to a height of about 100 feet. Out at the end of the point he swung out in a short arc over the bay, but within gliding distance of the shore.

The flight with the machine on an almost even keel, continued past the space occupied by the grandstands last fall and past the starting point again for two more circuits of the course.

On the third circuit Burgess wheeled wide of the course over the west end of the field, and came down the straightaway with speed increasing to about 40 miles an hour. The landing was without a jolt.

About an hour and a half later he mounted the pilots' seat a second time. He followed the same course as before save that he made a little foray above the dominion of John Beck, the old clam-digger known as "Mayor of the Island."

The mayor had thrills such as he never experienced before, judging from the way he sought a safer place than the flats on the end of the point, for Mr. Burgess was flying low.

During the second flight the wind was growing in strength and becoming more gusty as it increased, and further ascensions were put off.

Charles K. Hamilton, the daring aviator, hero of the New York-Philadelphia and return flight arrived in Boston Wednesday.

He immediately hastened to the Atlantic aviation field where he mapped out the course of a series of flights.

The Burgess-Wright biplane which Hamilton smashed at New Britain a fortnight ago is on the field, having been repaired at Burgess's factory at Marblehead.

There are now two Burgess-Wright aeroplanes on the Atlantic field one being the property of Burgess who may fly today in the event of the wind dying down.

Mr. Burgess remained on the field about three hours, and before he left he said that he would have the "Flying Fish," his last season's aeroplane, at Atlantic today and that it would be used by pupils for making 'jumps." This is affer the idea of the French flying schools, where pupils are first given instructions in "jumping" the machines before they attempt even a short flight. By jumping is meant getting off the ground a few feet and sailing through the air two hundred or three hundred feet. Thus will the pupils at the Burgess Company & Curtis school of flying begin their lessons. Among the pupils expected to be on the field for practice work within a few days is A. A. Merrill who was secretary to the Harvard-Boston meet last year and who now is working at the company's aeroplane factory in Marblehead.

The weather was the best so far this season, there being Wednesday hardly a breath of wind and the sky clear. Some residents of Atlantic who happened to be up early saw the flights from a distance, but most of them were deceived as to the altitude. Few thought that the aviator was up more than seventy-five feet and most of them guessed fifty feet. Besides the merchanicians and a few workmen, the only spectators on the field were Louis Mitchell of Memphis, Tenn., and a friend. Mr. Mitchell had ordered this particular machine and he was enthusiastic when he saw what it could do. He had deposited $5,000 in a Boston bank in escrow with the understanding that the order to pay it to the Burgess Company & Curtis should be given as soon as it had proved its worth in flying. As soon as Mr. Burgess had landed after the second flight Mr. Mitchell stepped up to him and gave the order for payment of the money.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB SMOKER

Season Opens Tonight With Minstrel Show

The members of the Quincy Yacht club who miss the minstrel show to be given tonight at the opening smoker at the club house will always be sorry for it will be the hit of the season. A dress rehearsal of the show was held Wednesday evening at Colonial hall and those permitted to hear it say it is a rattler. Henry W. French is the director of the show and he has trained his circle well. The eight end men are artists in their way and are sure to make a hit.

The ends are Commodore Whittemore, George Tupper, Stod. Hardwick Bill Hudson, Stan. Duncan, Harry Winslow whole show in himself, Andy Burrell, and Ed. Graham, they are brim full of jokes and full of fun and with Vice Commander Crane as interlocutor and the chorus they form an aggregation that would make many professionals blush for shame.

Elmer E. Ricker is the accompanist and besides solos by several of the end men ex-Commodore Robbins, Jim Hector, J. B. Frauenfelder and Stan Duncan will contribute.

Then the Quincy Yacht Club, instrumental trio will contribute a number. The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock and after the show there will be a chowder, doughnuts and coffee.

Ira Whittemore, the clubs commodore will be very much in evidence and the club year under his leadership promises to be a prosperous one.

AUTO CHEMICAL.

Mayor Shea has received word that the auto chemical combination fire wagon will be shipped this week and should arrive in Quincy by next Monday. Ex-Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., the father of the order for the new piece of apparatus will be given the opportunity to drive it on its first public appearance in City Square.

HENRY E. NELSON.

Henry E. Nelson, for many years foreman for the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., passed away Wednesday afternoon at his home 40 Berlin street after an illness of some duration.

Mr. Nelson was a very enthusiastic yachtsman and has owned some very fast yachts. He was formerly connected with the Squantum Yacht club but latter became associated with the Wollaston club and was most active in all their events. He had been employed by the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., for many years and was held in high esteem by the firm and employees of this firm. Mr. Nelson leaves a widow.

THE COUNTRY MINISTER

Comedy Drama by South Quincy Extension Club

The villain is outwitted, the waif comes to her own, love gets its reward and the Country Minister proves that virtue reigns supreme, such, in brief, is the plot of the best amateur production seen in Quincy for many a day presented in Music hall, Wednesday evening, by the South Quincy Extension club of the Y. M. C. A.

"The Country Minister" is a five act comedy full of life, humor and pathos, love and hate, misery and great joy all intermingling to hold the audience.

The comedy elements are furnished by Timothy Hodd, Deacon Potter and Jerusha Jane Judkins. William Henry and stuttering Tom Sparrow also contribute considerable fun in their disputes over Roxy and when they were not fighting over her, Timothy and the deacon were going at each other to decide the supremacy in the contest for Jerusha Jane.

Gregory Heath and Jud Pardoe, the gentlemanly villain and the convict, together with Granny Grimes, the old hag furnish the foil for the hero and Roxy the fresh air kid is the connecting link between the garret on the East side in New York city and the quiet little village of Mullenville.

Helen Burleigh, a wealthy heiress and Rev. Ralph Underwood, the country minister, discover that in union there is strength and together they work out the solution of the problem in which all the others are concerned.

The acting of each member of the cast was considerably above the average. The parts of William Henry and Tom Sparrow, regular barefoot country boys, were made true to life in the hands of Walter Morrison and Robert King.

Charlie Bishop showed that he had not forgotten his basketball experiences in taking the part of Timothy Hodd, who went through all sorts of acrobatic stunts when he was "hoppin' mad."

"Deef" old Deacon Potter was given justice at the hands of George MacDonald. Jerusha Jane Judkins, the bone of contention between these two, was very well impersonated by Everett Howie.

The part of Roxy, the fresh air kid was taken admirably by Miss Louise Prout.

Miss Georgie Michael had one of the most difficult parts, that of Granny Grimes and the success with which she carried it through was surely great. In character work disguising voice and manner and assuming the bent posture of an old hag, she won the heartiest approval of the audience.

The part of Jud Pardoe the convict, who proved to be Roxy's father and Miss Burleigh's brother-in-law was well interpreted by Everett Clark and Gregory Heath was made a very clever and lifelike rogue in the hands of "Tommy" Veale. The part was by no means easy but Mr. Veale carried it through capably and made his audience forget his own identity.

Fanny a comely and unobtrusive little maid was impersonated by Miss Helen Kennedy and Carl Carlson made a formidable looking officer.

Miss Ruth Kemp assumed the part of Helen Burleigh very readily and gave it an excellent interpretation.

Lester H. Clee as "The Country Minister" was at all times, master of situation. In convicting the villain and in convincing Miss Burleigh he was equally good and he assumer the disguise of the little old man who rescued Roxy, with similar success.

The whole play was very well acted and the cast had the audience with it from the start.

Music was furnished by the Quincy Point orchestra, the members of which gave their services. Erastus Osgood coached the cast with his usual efficiency. The poultry which appeared on the stage was loaned by the Nubian hennery, William Wood, proprietor and the furniture was loaned by W. G. Shaw. H. C. Hallowell, Jr., rendered efficient service as make-up man.

The hall was well filled and all the audience were enthusiastic over the success of the play. Miss Kemp received two handsome bouquets during the performance.

The cast:

Rev. Ralph Underwood, the country minister, Lester H. Clee
Gregory Heath, of the world at large Thomas Veale
Jud Pardoe, a wreck on the ocean of life, Everett Clark
Timothy Hodd, who would rather whittle than work, Chas. Bishop
Deacon Potter, "Just a trifle deef" George McDonald
Wm. Henry, Walter Morrison
Tom Sparrow, Robert King
Mr. Filkins, an officer, Carl Carlson
Helen Burleigh, from the city, Miss Ruth Kemp
Jerusha Jane Judkins, the postmistress, Everett Howie
Roxy, a fresh air kid, Miss Louise Prout
Granny Grimes, Miss Georgie Michael
Fanny, a maid, Miss Helen Kennedy

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Two clam diggers were pretty well frightened Wednesday morning as they were digging clams on the shore off Squantum by W. Starling Burgess who swooped down within twenty-five feet of them in his biplane. We are wondering if they should not have been frightened for other causes as we are under the impression that clam digging is not allowed in Boston harbor.

THE GRADUATION GOWNS.

The choice, purchase, and construction of the gown for Miss Fluffiness, the sweet girl graduate, is a harassing problem in many homes just now.

It frequently happens that the mother of the family goes without any new gown for the summer, so that the youngster can have two for the high jinks of graduation time.

Formerly one good looking dress enabled a girl to climb on the social bandwagon for these scholastic functions. But increased power of discrimination in matters of clothes is costing us more dear today. For reasons unknown to Mere Man, a dress that is good enough to get your diploma in, and in which to undergo the critical observation of friends, neighbors, trustees, and school boards, is not somehow right to get by some of these auxiliary functions that cluster about the close of a school career. Hence the bill for two frocks where one used to do.

The worst of it is that it is the families that can least afford it that are apt to pile the most costly gew-gaws on their daughters backs. It is a part of the game of social bluff with them. Somehow they derive satisfaction from the endeavor to convince their neighbors that their income is double its actual figures. Consequently they must spend more money than wealthy neighbors in order merely to prove that they can.

All this creates grinding pressure upon simple hearted people who never masquerade in any peacock feathers, but who strain themselves to the breaking point so that their beloved children shall not seem too badly handicapped.

When a girl walks on a platform all radiant in silks and satins, while her mother has been coarsening her hands at the wash tub to pay for them, there is a grotesque and sickening incongruity that teachers, parents, and school boards should unite to veto.

If anyone is to have the fine feathers, let the toiling mother have them, while the fledgeling does the wash tub act.

Among all sensible people, it is generally recognized that the expense of public school functions should be gauged to the possibilities of the slenderest purses.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The Lowell Courier-Citizen has started on a crusade for a "safe and sane" graduation day in the schools so far as concerns graduation day gowns. The Courier-Citizen starts nobly on its work of reform. Let us hope it may have results sometime, but we feel doubtful. A lot of people believe that on the great day when young folks are in many cases making their last appearance before t he public before settling down to a lifetime of steady, everyday toil they ought to be given a chance for a fine appearance and a fine and joyous day that they will remember long, and their freinds as well. Anyway, that is about the way it works out in practice. Here and there we read of a class solemnly agreeing—that is the girls of course—to be very economical in their class day expenditures for costumes. But when the great day comes they manage somehow to look just about as chic and fresh and altogether pleasing as any classes that preceded them, and there is just as much evidence of care and good judgment and loving parental assistance as ever. And we don't know that we blame the young folks or their parents either for the brave showing on graduation day.—Brockton Enterprise.

AS HE SAW IT

A school teacher was trying to make a class understand what a volcano is like. In reveiwing the lesson she drew upon the blackboard her own conception of a flaming mountain, using colored crayons with extraordinary effect.

"What is it? she asked. The scholars shook their puzzled heads.

"What does it look like?" she pursued.

"It looks like hell, ma'am," returned a small boy, soberly.

WHERE BRASS WON'T GROW.

The biggest problem in some gardens is to get something to grow in shaded places, such as under trees. Grass will not grow under the dense shade of a Norway maple, or under many trees having a less dense crown, when they are on the north side of the building. One of the best plants for such situations is lily-of-the-valley, which will succeed even under oak trees—a position in which many plants seem to fail. The leaves will remain green just as long as the neighboring grass growing in sunlight, and, in addition the plants flower in May.—Suburban Life.

FOR A BUSIER BEE.

Movement to Treble Capacity of the Honey Harvesters.

To produce a bee that will not sting and that will at the same time be twice or three times as industrious as the bee of today is one of the most important tasks undertaken by the new beekeeping bureau of the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst.

Professor Burton N. Gates, state inspector of apiaries, is in charge of the work and is beginning a series of investigations and practical experiments which promise to promote beekeeping not only in the country, but in cities.

That there is room for bees that will produce ten times as much honey and wax as are now harvested is a theory of Professor Gates, and he has begun a campaign of education which is carried on by a correspondence school and which will be strengthened by a special course in beekeeping at the state apiaries in Amherst.

HER MISTRESS' VOICE,

Long Distance Telephone Talk With Polly Cost $30.

Overcome by a desire to hear her parrot's voice, Mrs. W. H. Wall of Atlanta while on a visit to Cincinnati employed the long distance telephone to converse with her pet in Atlanta. When connections had been made between Cincinnati and Atlanta Polly perched near the mouthpiece, while Mrs. Wall held the receiver to her ear.

When her mistress spoke Polly responded. She talked freely, becoming almost garrulous, in fact. Other members of the household could not get the other side of the conversation, but they think from the expression on Polly's countenance it ran much to "Doll baby" and other endearing terms.

Incidentally the connection cost $30.

The Earliest Cold Storage.

In Macaulay's essay on "Lord Bacon" he points out that in 1626 the subject of his memoir tried the experiment of stuffing a fowl with snow to prevent it from putrefying and in carrying out the work caught cold, from which he died. Macaulay adds: "In the last letter that he ever wrote, with fingers which, as he said, could not steadily hold a pen, he did not omit to mention that the experiment of the snow had succeeded excellently well." If, however, we turn to nature there are instances in Siberia of mammoths preserved in ice so that their flesh is still eatable from a period probably coeval with the first appearance of man on this globe. If the Romans brought to their banquets the dainties of the known world, had they not some knowledge of cold storage?—E. H. Hill in London Spectator.

Those Wedding Celebrations.

"It's a ridiculous idea," a man who has been married eleven months tomorrow confided to us, "to celebrate your diamond wedding when you have been married seventy-five years. I'm going to have it reversed. The diamond wedding should come first, then the golden, and so on. Let's have these things while they do us some good."

He is right at that. And yet social custom is going to compel this impecunious couple to celebrate their paper wedding next month. They need a few rugs and gold pieces, but somebody will bring 'em writing paper and a new deck of cards.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ABROGATION OF PRINCIPLES

Objections to Power Assumed by Rules Committee

HOUSE ROUSED OVER RULES

Chairman of Committee Tries to Make Resolution Naming Investigating Committee a Personal One—Says He Used "We" In Editorial Sense—Henry and Fitzgerald Engage In Bitter Personal Colloquy

Washington, May 18.—The old row over the selection of committees broke out in the house, with Republicans and Democrats alike showing a remarkable bitterness of feeling.

Chairman Henry of the rules committee was denounced by Chairman Fitzgerald of the committee on appropriations with having made an "unwarranted assumption of authority" for the rules committee. Other Democrats declared that the action of the rules committee, if ratified by the house, would be a complete abrogation of the principles for which the Democrats had stood, namely, the selection of committees by action of the Democratic caucus.

The trouble was caused by the attempt of Henry to jam through a resolution naming a committee to investigate the sugar trust. Democrats protested because Henry had not submitted the personnel of the investigating committee to a Democratic caucus, and Republican insurgents protested at the procedure which enabled Minority Leader Mann to name the minority members without consulting his party. Bitter feeling was shown on both sides, despite the plea of members that the matter be disposed of without delay and without further debate.

When the matter came up in the house Tuesday objection was made by several members to the method of procedure by which the investigating committee was selected. At that time members of the house got the impression from a speech made by Henry that the personnel of the committee had been agreed upon by the rules committee after consultation with members on the majority side and with Minority Leader Mann. Yesterday Henry declared that he, in his individual capacity and as a member from the Eleventh district of Texas, selected the members and placed them in nomination in the form of a resolution.

The statement brought forth copies of Tuesday's proceedings in the Congressional Record. Mr. Martin of Colorado and Mr. Alexander of Missouri read from The Record for the purpose of showing that Henry told the house that the rules committee had made the selections. This was denied by Henry, who declared that in using the word "we" he used it in the editorial sense.

"If I must be exposed to unjust criticism," he said," I shall discuss things in this house as they should be discussed. Members on this side who are opposing this resolution must come out into the open with their motives and purposes and let us understand each other. I want to say now that if this resolution is sent to the committee on rules it will not be reported back to the house."

A reference to objections made Tuesday by Representative Fitzgerald of New York brought the New York man to his feet with the result that he and Henry became engaged in a somewhat bitter and personal colloquy, during the course of which Henry declared that there was a possibility that he might be compelled to reveal to the house the nature of conferences had by him with members of the New York delegation. Fitzgerald declared this statement to be an unjust reflection upon him, inasmuch as Henry had never consulted him about the mater.

The matter was finally smoothed over by Henry announcing that he had withdrawn any language which might be offensive to Fitzgerald and the chairman of the committee on rules admitted that he had not conferred with Fitzgerald.

Three of Five Men Elected In Tacoma a Year Ago Are Out Now

Tacoma, Wash., May 18.—Two city commissioners, who have been under fire, were recalled at yesterday's election. Recently the city recalled Mayor Fawcett and elected W. W. Seymour.

Of five men elected a little over a year ago, just after Taconea adopted the commission form of government, two remain in office and three have been recalled.

MANN BOOMS CLARK

Republican Praises Speaker as Candidate For the Presidency

Washington, May 18.—Champ Clark, speaker of the house, received a most flattering compliment when the house broke into prolonged applause at the suggestion that he might be the Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1912. The suggestion came from Representative Mann, the Republican leader.

Applause started on the Democratic side was taken up by the Republicans and in the galleries and in a moment the house was shouting, cheering and every desk top being banged vigorously.

When the demonstration had subsided Mann started another one by declaring: "The Democratic party can make no better selection that the present speaker of the house."

This was the first time that presidential candidates have been mentioned in the house at this session of congress and the enthusiasm displayed at the mention of Clark's name was flattering in the extreme.

OFFICERS QUIT CLUB

Resignations In the Metropolitan Follow Criticism by Taft

Washington, May 18.—The resignations of two members of the board of governors and the secretary of the Metropolitan club of this city since a speech by President Taft Tuesday night at the Jewish temple, in which he denounced "small-headed men," who, in clubs, attempt to manifest their greatness by blackballing men of prominence proposed for membership, have stirred official and social Washington to the core.

President Taft, who is a member of the exclusive Metropolitan, was reported to have felt some resentment over the exclusion from the organization of several newly elected congressmen and senators, proposed for membership by some of the most influential men in the club. Among the men excluded was one of whom the president is said to be particularly fond.

ARBITRATION PACT SUBMITTED BY KNOX

Inaugurated With France As Well as Great Britain

Washington, May 18.—The principle of arbitration of practically all disputes between nations, including even question of vital interest and national honor, assumed vitality when Secretary of State Knox submitted to the British and French ambassadors at Washington the draft of a convention to serve as a basis of negotiations.

The fact that this world movement would be inaugurated with France as well as Great Britain was a great surprise, for it was generally understood that only the United States and England were concerned in the initial steps.

Secretary Knox has evolved an instrument which has received the approval of the president, and the other members of his cabinet, providing that all differences which are internationally justfiable shall be submitted to arbitration. It expands the scope of the existing arbitration treaties by eliminating the exceptions referring to "questions of vital interest and national honor."

VETOES OVER FORTY BILLS

Governor of Rhode Island Cuts Off Appropriations of $467,674

Providence, May 18.—Governor Pothier exercised the strong arm of the veto power with sweeping effect when he penned his disapproval of more than forty bills, carrying appropriations aggregating $467,674.

The action was anticipated following his declaration to the general assembly in its closing days that unless it provided additional revenue for the state to meet the appropriations he would exercise his prerogative of the veto to prevent a deficit in the state treasury.

Only eighteen bills, amounting to $75,679, received his signature, and this sum can be paid out of the state treasury without the necessity of borrowing money.

DO NOT PAY EXPENSES

Boston and Maine Railroad to Cut Out Several Trains

Boston, May 18.—The management of the Boston and Maine railroad will, before June 1, issue orders to discontinue eighteen or more trains of the system, "because they do not pay," as was expressed by General Manager Ferguson of the Boston and Maine railroad.

This new move, with the promise that many other trains which have done service running into Boston for many years past may be discontinued, may cripple seriously the mail and express service in addition to the passenger service.

Another Aviator Killed

Los Angeles, Cal., May 18.—A. V. Hardlee, an amateur aviator, was killed at Dominguez field while trying out an aeroplane. Hardlee had made several successful flights.

The interclass athletic meet will be held Saturday morning at Merrymount park. The competition is expected to be keen both between classes and individuals and a close and exciting meet is expected. It is said that several records will probably be broken.

H. Fratus '13 is out on account of illness.

Louise Prout, "Bob" King and Helen Kennedy, Ruth Kemp '08 "Tommy Veale '09, Everett Howie and Walter Morrison took part in the production of 'The Country Minister" at Music hall Wednesday evening.

Quincy high made a good showing against Groton on Wednesday and it is unfortunate that she did not bring home a victory. The game with Hingham tomorrow afternoon at Hingham should not be nearly as hard a game but Quincy must not be caught napping or she will receive another black mark. The game with Brockton next Tuesday will be Quincy's big home game and an effort should be made to show the visitors what school spirit is. Get a good crowd of rooters down to the field and have some cheering especially if things are not going Quincy's way. Oftentimes a show of spirit on the part of the rooters turns defeat into victory for the team which feels that the school is right with them all the time.

There has been some talk about reviving the old custom of having a girls outdoor athletic meet similar to the one held by Woodward Institute last Saturday. Many of the girls are greatly interested and the meet would undoubtedly prove a good thing if carefully supervised by the heads of the physical department.

Mr. Howlett has been going to the different grammar schools during the week telling the 8th grade pupils about the work at High school and advising them about courses.

Interclass baseball games are popular at the Cranch school. Teams have been formed in the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th grades and 18 games have been played. The 6th grade has won the largest number of games, seven in all.

David H. Goodspeed, master of the Massachusetts Fields school accompanied 25 of his pupils on an outing on Saturday. In the morning they visited The World in Boston and in the afternoon went to see "The Merchant of Venice" at the Castle Square theatre.

Memorial day exercises are being prepared at the Coddington school as usual and parents will be invited to attend.

• • •

Mr. Howlett, headmaster of the High school and Mr. Rice, principal of Woodward Institute, are making a round of the schools explaining about the work to be started in the fall to 8th grade pupils.

• • •

An ice cream sale will be held at the Cranch school Friday afternoon at 3.30.

• • •

A cake and candy sale will be held in the Gridley Bryant school Friday afternoon.

• • •

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Adams Parents and Teachers association to look over available sites for the new school building will meet with the executive committee Friday evening in the schoolhouse.

The Misuse of Vinegar.

Dr. Mansell Maullin, M. A., writing in the London Lancet on the causes of gastric ulcer, mentions vinegar as one cause. "In many of these instances, especially those which occur in young women, the effect of this chronic septic poisoning is intensified by the habit so many of them have of swallowing quantities of vinegar. Information with regard to this is very difficult to obtain and is never volunteered. It has to be drawn out bit by bit, but I have met with many instances in which a pint a day has been consumed and a few in which the quantity was occasionally much larger. The effect is probably greater because it is often taken between meals on an empty stomach under the curious impression that it will improve the complexion."

PATRIOTISM.

In ceasing to remember their martyrs the Greeks became corrupt and in their corruption found their grave. That our country might escape a like fate I would advocate the observance in our churches and in our homes of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays as sacredly and as conscientiously as our religious festivals are observed. Had I the power I would ordain that the period intervening between the first and last of these days be set aside in our schools and churches, in our political and civic clubs, in our fraternal and literary organizations, for a review of our nation's rise and growth, for a comparison between it and other nations, for a consideration of whatever dangers may threaten the commonwealth and of the means to be employed in overcoming them, to the end that the nation might thus annually experience a revival of patriotism. — Rabbi Krauskopf.

STIMSON, NEW WAR SECRETARY

Able Lawyer and Former Partner of Senator Root.

CLOSE FRIEND OF ROOSEVELT.

Won Distinction as Prosecutor In Sugar Fraud Cases—Sent Charles W. Morse to Prison—New York Now Has Two Men In Taft's Cabinet.

THUMB NAIL SKETCH OF THE NEW SECRETARY.

Age—Forty-four.
Education—Yale, academic; Harvard, law.
Occupation—Lawyer.
Political Experience—United States attorney for the southern district of New York from 1906 to 1909; resigned to engage in private practice; named as special assistant United States attorney general to prosecute the sugar trust; fines of more than $2,000,000 imposed on that monopoly through his efforts; convicted Charles W. Morse; secured conviction of five railroads for rebating; defeated by John A. Dix for New York governorship last year.
Military Experience—Member of Squadron A.
Affiliations—Former law partner of Senator Root; close friend of Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot; friend of Attorney General Wickersham.

Henry L. Stimson, the new secretary of war in President Taft's cabinet, first came prominently into the public eye when as United States district attorney he conducted successfully a notable series of prosecutions against half a dozen of the big railroad systems for giving rebates to the sugar trust. Those prosecutions closely followed his appointment by President Roosevelt early in 1906. After he had twice convicted the New York Central before a jury, the Rock Island, the St. Paul and the Central Vermont all pleaded guilty, and the Great Northern, which held out, met the same fate as the New York Central in a jury trial.

There followed in close succession the prosecutions of various paper combinations and the beginning of the cases against the American Sugar Refining company, which resulted in verdicts of guilty against the trust itself as well as against Charles R. Hieke, its treasurer; the superintendent of the Havemeyer & Elder refinery in Williamsburg and various men under him. The sugar trust customs frauds cases and other prosecutions for violation of the customs laws brought $3,435,363 in fines and back duties into the United States treasury.

Prosecuted Morse.

The other big financial case of the Stimson regime in the United States attorney's office was the prosecution of Charles W. Morse and his conviction for wrecking the National Bank of North America. Mr. Stimson was still engaged in winding up the sugar cases when he resigned and was succeeded by Henry A. Wise in the spring of 1909. He continued as special counsel to the government until the last sugar trust defendant was convicted. Then came a period of the practice of law, in which he had been engaged from the time of his graduation from the Harvard law school, in 1891.

When the New York Republican progressives got control of the Saratoga convention last summer Theodore Roosevelt made Mr. Stimson his candidate for governor and brought about his nomination, which was followed by his defeat.

Since the first of the year Mr. Stimson has delivered several addresses that attracted attention, in which he placed himself in the progressive wing of his party. In state affairs he has declared himself a believer in the policies that Governor Hughes advocated.

Was Root's Law Partner.

Mr. Stimson is forty-four years old and a member of the law firm of Winthrop & Stimson, of which Senator Root was a member before he entered President McKinley's cabinet as secretary of war.

Mr. Stimson's appointment gives New York two places in the cabinet, George W. Wickersham of that state now holding the office of attorney general.

President Taft selected Mr. Stimson for the war portfolio on his own motion. The president has a high regard for the New York man, whose record in the office of United States attorney for New York was eulogized by Mr. Taft in the campaign last year. Otto T. Bannard, candidate for mayor against W. J. Gaynor, was under consideration for the appointment for a time.

It was explained in behalf of the retiring secretary, Jacob M. Dickinson, that most of his private fortune is invested in a coal company in Tennessee. The concern was recently placed in the hands of a receiver. In order to protect his interests Mr. Dickinson decided to resign. It is his purpose to return to his home in Tennessee.

LIVED TWELVE YEARS WITH A BROKEN NECK.

Walter Duryea a Marvel of Surgical Science—Part of Spine Cut Out.

After living twelve years with a broken neck Walter Duryea, son of the late Edgar E. Duryea, the starch manufacturer, is dead. His case was one of the marvels of science. An operation was performed on his spinal cord. Parts of the fifth and sixth vertebrae of the neck, which had been wrenched out of place, were cut away, and although the patient was said to be beyond recovery and was given up he regained almost complete bodily power.

Mr. Duryea was forty-four years old. He broke his neck on Aug. 7, 1899, while swimming at Oyster Bay. He was an athlete and a member of the Seventh regiment of New York. He was swimming with James Durand of Glen Cove, N. Y., and the accident was caused by his slipping from the steps which led to the water at the old Oyster Bay casino. He struck the sandy bottom of the bay with his shoulder, and his neck was twisted. His companion dragged him out, and he was carried to a hotel and later to his home at Glen Cove. From there he was removed to Roosevelt hospital New York.

All sensations of the body were cut off, and he could feel nothing below the neck, yet he was in full possession of his senses. A month later Dr Abbe of the hospital staff, assisted by Drs. Robert F. Weir and Arthur L. Fisk, surgeons, and Drs. Pierce Bailey and Edward D. Fisher, neurologists, performed the operation. Duryea was too weak to take ether, so he went under the knife knowing that the slightest move or mistake meant death. The operation took nearly an hour. The back portions of the two vertebrae were removed, laying the sheath of the cord bare and relieving the pressure. Then the incisions were closed. The parts of the bone removed were replaced with a kind of gristle which grew perfectly, protecting the cord.

For days after the operation Duryea felt nothing, but finally nervous sensations began to return and increased in force. His breathing improved and his digestion became stronger. Then he began to take solid food, and after a time he was placed in a reclining chair and wheeled about the hospital.

The angle at which he lay was gradually increased until within a few months he was able to sit upright. According to the physicians who examined him later full muscular power was not restored, but the patient was able to move around with ease.

TURN TO TEA AND COCOA.

Americans Drinking Less Coffee Because of High Prices.

That many Americans have been turned to the greater use of tea and cocoa by the prevailing high prices of coffee is indicated by the imports of those three commodities. Imports of tea and cocoa for the fiscal year ending June 30 next bid fair to be the largest in the history of America's import trade.

Coffee, which is showing the highest import prices since 1897, has fallen in the imports. Since last July there have been imported 644,000,000 pounds, a full hundred million less than was used in this country during the corresponding time last year.

At the present rate of importation it is probable that the tea imports will aggregate 115,000,000 pounds, and cocoa will exceed 140,000,000 pounds. The bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor estimates that the average import price of coffee this year is 10 cents a pound against 7 cents last year.

A Short Story.

Chapter 2—I wonder how much she wants.

Chapter 3—And he gave it to me without fussing a bit. I wonder what he has been up to.

The Mysterious Shadow

By H. SANBORNE BROWN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Notwithstanding that this is a rational age there has not ceased to be a border line between the spiritual and bodily elements. There are as strange things happening today as ever happened—stranger things, for we will believe nothing now unless we can eliminate every possibility of fraud.

I am a country doctor. Formerly I used a horse and buggy to make my round of visits, then a bicycle, then an automobile. When I was using my bicycle I was called to see a patient one moonlight evening in early summer. Hanging my medicine case to the handle bars, I started off on a very smooth road to go a couple of miles. The night was still, and the air was soft. I did not need my lamp. I could have heard a leaf fall among the trees beside the road.

A bicycle in good condition moves very silently. Nevertheless, though mine was in perfect trim, it was not without some sound on this very still night. I was riding with my back toward the moon, which stood high in the heavens and shone down obliquely over my right shoulder, casting my shadow before me, inclined a little to the right. Suddenly another shadow came into my field of view, gaining on mine very slowly. I did not turn my head, keeping watch of the object following in my wake by its shadow. When I could trace on the ground a distorted human figure riding a wheel not six feet away from and abreast of me I turned my head, expecting to see a fellow traveler.

Neither figure nor bicycle was there. I dropped my eyes again to the road, and there was the shadow.

I'm not going to describe my feelings, for there are no words for the purpose. I was recalled to myself by the wabbling of my bicycle. Then somewhat recovering my equanimity, I studied the shadow beside mine. It was so bunched that I concluded it belonged to a woman, especially since there was a part which fluttered by passing through the air. I listened for the slightest sound, but notwithstanding the proximity of the mysterious and invisible object casting its shadow I heard nothing.

Spook lore is full of cases of shadowless beings, but never before had I heard of a shadow with no intervening object between it and the light that cast it. I turned my wheel to the other side of the road, but the shadow turned with me. So absolutely did it follow mine that it occurred to me that it must be a duplicate of mine. I turned in my saddle and looked behind me to see if there was any object to produce such a result. The space at my back was free from any intervening object.

By this time my nerves were all in a quiver—not that there was anything to be afraid of, and I did not fear the invisible, but I would have given ten years of my life to get rid of the thing simply because it was uncanny. It would not be got rid of. If I turned it turned; if my wheel wabbled it wabbled; if I slowed down it slowed down; if I went faster it went faster.

For a time it did not occur to me that I might have received some brain shock. A single minute drop of blood breaking through a vessel of the brain will produce strange results. Paralysis is the most common, loss of memory is another, and we do not know how many hallucinations occur from that cause. I fancied that one of these drops of blood might have impinged upon my eye in some way to cause me to see a duplicate shadow of myself. But in that case it would have been an exact duplicate, and in the present the other was not mine.

I entered a place where overarching trees cast their own shadows and mine, and my attendant was lost. I prayed that when I emerged into the moonlight mine would alone remain. Alas, I was doomed to disappointment. It was there as perfect as when I entered the archway.

A few hundred yards ahead the road forked. Would the invisible traveler take my road to the left or go by herself to the right? I watched with bated breath. Nearer and nearer we neared the fork; faster and faster beat my heart. At last a point was reached where my companion must make a turn. When I saw our shadows show the faintest deviation I heaved a deep sigh. Wider and wider grew the distance till all doubt as to our following different roads was removed.

I had got rid of the thing, and that is what I most wished for. Nothing was accounted for, but I felt that from this divergence the shadow was something independent of me; that I had not created it, nor was I in any way responsible for it.

Once and once only I saw it again. The two roads came together just before I reached the house where lay my patient. The shadow joined me for a few moments in unobstructed moonlight at the road's junction; then it was lost under overhanging trees.

I found my patient to be a girl about twenty years old. She was in a trance that had come over her during an illness. I had been sent for to see if I could bring her to consciousness.

"Does she ride a wheel when well?" I asked.

"Constantly."

This is the end of my story, for as yet there is no explanation for it. But the day may come when both its cause and effect will be as plain as the transmission of a wireless message.

Sentenced For Attacking Teacher

Worcester, Mass., May 18.—Judge Sanderson imposed a sentence of from fifteen to twenty years at hard labor on Frank McCullen of Philipston after McCullen had entered a plea of guilty to an attack upon Miss Lucy Shepardson, a school teacher of that town.

Handy With the Whip.

Teamsters are prouder of their skill with the whip than of anything else in the world. A group of teamsters were talking one night.

"Out on the plains," said one young fellow, "I used to cut down a steer with my whip, skin him and divide up his carcass."

A red headed fellow said his uncle could take two whips and write the Lord's Prayer on the bark of a birch with the left hand one, at the same time playing operatic selections with the other on a tin can at seven paces.

"That's pretty good work," said a veteran, "but my old father used to draw corks with every flick of the lash."

Then a cross eyed stranger spoke up. "Gents," he said, "I know there's men can even hair cut and shave ye with a whip—I know it, for I've seen it done—but the only man that ever found the whip real lucrative was Tom Fallon, from Sag Harbor. Tom with his whip made a real nice little pile."

"How so?" the red headed man asked.

"Pickin' pockets," said the stranger.—Los Angeles Times.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Breathing Through the Mouth.

Breathing through the mouth instead of through the nose, as nature intended, is generally caused by the swelling of normal tissue in the nose or by growths in the nose, such as polypi, etc., and by the growth in the throat of adenoids and tonsils. The removal of these obstructions by surgical means is the only rational method to secure natural breathing. This is not dangerous, and injury to the speech or singing voice never occurs. On the contrary, through the presence of these obstructions in the nose and throat the hearing and the intellectual and bodily development often become seriously impaired.

FOSS FAVORS STATE TAX ON INCOMES

Also Urges Graded Tax on Forest Land In Bay State

Boston, May 18.—Governor Foss sent to the legislature his long-expected message, suggesting changes in the taxation laws of the state. The governor comes out in favor of:

First—A state tax on incomes from whatever source derived.

Second—A state tax on forest land. This tax to be graded.

The governor asks the legislature to pass resolves amending the state constitution to put into effect these changes in the taxation laws.

The governor declares that forest lands should be taxed along a graded plan based upon whether or not they return an income to their owners, and he lays down the principle that they should not be taxed so heavily as developed real estate. By this means, the governor declares, the conservation of the natural resources of the state—forest lands, in particular—will be encouraged.

The state income tax recommendation caused no surprise on Beacon hill, as it has been known that the governor favored this form of income raising, whether the federal income tax amendment goes through or not.

LEARN WAYS OF WORLD

Ministers May Then Talk Intelligently on Subject of Religion

Lynn, Mass., May 18.—"Instead of spending their time in the Sunday schools and ladies' sewing circles, ministers of the gospel should get out and learn the ways of the world so that they can talk intelligently on the subject of religion," declared President Hamilton, D. D., of Tufts college, in his address at the Universalist convention in this city.

President Hamilton went on to say that many ministers should "come out their shells" for, he argued, there is no longer any halo about the profession, people having often gotten over the idea of worshipping a man because he wears clothes of a clerical cut.

BOGART PLEADS GUILTY

Vice President of United Wireless Confesses to Mail Fraud

New York, May 18.—Samuel S. Bogart, vice president of the United Wireless company, pleaded guilty to the charge of using the mails to defraud. He had previously pleaded not guilty when placed on trial with President Wilson and four other officials of the concern.

Victims of the company are alleged to have lost hundreds of thousands of dollars through its operation.

DIAZ' TERMS ACCEPTABLE

Mexican President to Resign Before First of June

ARMISTICE IS AGREED UPON

Belief That Permanent Peace Agreement Will Be Made Within Five Days—Government Affairs Will Be Directed by Madero and De La Barra Until New President Is Elected—Surrender to Insurrectos

Mexico City, May 18.—A general five days' armistice between the revolutionists and the federal government was agreed upon last night at Juarez, to take effect immediately throughout Mexico on receipt of formal authorization from here.

It was signed by Judge Cabarjal, teh federal peace envoy, and Dr. Vasquez Gomez, Jose Pino Suarez and Francisco Madero, Sr., the members of the rebel peace commission.

This is the first geneeral armistice agreed upon since the revolution began last November, and is expected to call a halt upon warfare in central and southern Mexico. It is believed that within five days a permanent peace agreement will be made.

The armistice was decided upon by Provisional President Madero immediately upon the receipt of a dispatch from Mexico City that President Diaz had agreed to resign before the end of the present month.

News of vigorous warfare in central and southern Mexico, which Madero held to be unnecessary in view of the progress made toward a peaceful settlement of the revolt, also induced the rebel chief to act quickly to prevent further loss of life. Both Madero and Cabarjal express the belief that the five days' armistice will be superseded by the signing of a definite peace agreement that will restore Mexico to complete tranquility.

President Diaz and Vice President Corral will resign before June 1 and Minister of Foreign Relations De La Barra will become president ad interim, according to official announcement.

Francisco I. Madero, Jr., the revolutionary leader, will be called to Mexico City to act as De La Barra's chief adviser and to serve as the greatest guarantee possible that every pledge made by the government to end the revolution will be carried out. As viewed by the public it will be virtually a joint presidency pending a new presidential election.

The cabinet will be reorganized. The minister of war will be named by De La Barra. The foreign office will be in charge of a sub-secretary also selected by De La Barra. Other cabinet members will be chosen by De La Barra and Madero acting jointly.

A new election will be called within six months and political amnesty will be recommended to the chamber of deputies.

The foregoing are the conditions on which Diaz will compromise with the rebels. Virtually they are admitted in high quarters to be a complete surrender to the revolutionists.

The resignation of Diaz and the "joint regency" of De La Barra and Madero are said to constitute a guarantee so complete that the original insurrecto demand for fourteen governors no longer need be considered.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL PASSED

Clause Which Was Declared Unconstitutional Is Stricken Out

Boston, May 18.—The senate yesterday afternoon passed to be engrossed the so-called eight-hour bill, which provides that no employe on public works in Massachusetts shall work more than eight hours a day. The passage of the bill came after section 5, known as the prima facie clause, had been stricken out. This clause was declared unconstitutional recently by the supreme court of the state.

The bill will be effective thirty days after it becomes a law. The bill was sent back to the house for concurrence in the senate's amendments.

The bill was twice vetoed by Governor Draper.

FINDS A CRIME WAVE

Third New York Grand Jury to Report Advises Use of Clubs

New York, May 18.—The March grand jury, which has been investigating the reign of lawlessness since March 27, filed a presentment with Judge O'Sullivan in general sessions.

In the presentment the grand jury found that a crime wave exists in New York and suggests that policemen be given more license in using their clubs upon lawless persons.

This is the third grand jury to report on the present crime situation. One of the other two found that a "crime wave" existed and the other decided that it did not.

MADRIZ DIES AS REFUGEE

Former President of Nicaragua Succumbs to Bright's Disease

Mexico City, May 17.—Jose Madriz, ex-president of Nicaragua, and since December a refugee here, is dead of Bright's disease. It is a coincidence that Jose Estrada, who drove Madriz out, is expected here in a few days, himself a refugee. Since leaving Nicaragua Madriz had refused to discuss politics. He left four small children.

When Zelaya was forced to give up the presidency of Nicaragua he named Madriz as his successor, and the latter was elected to that office on Dec. 20, 1909. Madriz sought to have the United States recognize him as the president of Nicaragua, but Secretary Knox informed him that diplomatic relations between the two countries would not be resumed until Madriz could prove his government satisfactory.

MONETARY BOARD PROVES EXPENSIVE

It Has Cost the Government $207,130 In Two Years

Washington, May 17.—The National monetary commission, of which former Senator Aldrich is chairman, and which was created at his suggestion two years ago, has cost the government $207,130.48, according to a statement to the house by Secretary MacVeagh in response to a resolution of inquiry.

The largest item of expense was the preparation of monographs by means of which the commission launched an educational campaign in financial matters, the total cost of preparation and distributing being $86,861.92.

The next heaviest item of expense was in the salaries paid to members of the commission, $43,750 being expended in that connection. Traveling expenses for members of the commission, their clerical assistants and attendants cost $45,412.34; clerical salaries, $29,791.82; library expenses, $8795.70, and miscellaneous expenses, $2518.70.

ALFANO FACES ACCUSER

Says He Had No Fear of Revelations of Abbatemaggio

Viterbo, Italy, May 17.—Enrico Alfano was again confronted by Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, yesterday.

Attacking the testimony of the informer, Alfano said in substance: "According to his own statements Abbatemaggio had knowledge of the alleged plan of murder and so might have prevented the crime had he seen fit to do so. It is absurd to say that 400 francs ($80) was given to Abbatemaggio, who took no part in the affair, and only 150 francs to the real murderers."

Here Abbatemaggio interrupted with the remark: "Alfano intended to buy my silence." Alfano replied: "If I had been in a position to fear your revelations, I should have given you 400 stabs instead of 400 francs."

HOTEL GUEST KILLED

Fifty-Foot Drop Crushes the Skull of a Traveling Salesman

Boston, May 17.—John J. McCoy, 30 years old, a traveling salesman for a Philadelphia liquor house, last night fell or jumped from a sixth story window in the rear of the Adams house, sustaining injuries from which he died while being taken to the relief station. He landed head first on the concrete flooring of an alley.

The police believe that the man became faint while leaning out of the window, and losing his balance, fell more than fifty feet to the alley, his head being crushed as though by the blow of a piledriver.

DEGENERATE WITHOUT WAR

Bishop Codman Says Nation Would Become Effeminate

THE TALK OF DISARMAMENT

Thinks We Should Be on Guard Lest We Carry It Too Far—War Developes Statesmen, Manliness, Moral Courage, and Is a Power For Good In Other Ways—Nation Becomes Effeminate Without It

Portland, Me., May 18.—A plea for war as a means of developing the nobler side of men and women, delivered by Bishop Codman of Maine, startled the Episcopal conference in this city.

"While we all hate the evils and horrors of war," he said, "we may agree on the unquestioned value of such an international code and the development of a code of international equity; yet I believe we should be on our guard lest we carry the talk of peace and disarmament too far. War is indeed an evil and cannot be carried on without frightful suffering and horrible consequences.

"War, like the principle of evil, is in the world for the development of manliness. It is a training in moral courage, in self-discipline, in zeal of righteousness, in patriotism, in the sense of the value of unity, and in the contempt for social vices that destroy national strength.

"The world has never got along without war, as it has never got along without evil, and war has certainly developed noble soldiers, noble statesmen and noble women. Without war a nation would degenerate, would become effeminate morally and physically.

"Surely when we realize that one of our names for God is the Lord of Hosts, and inspired Scriptures tell us how the Lord of Hosts led His people to battle; when we bear in mind that the profession of a Christian is that of a soldier enlisted to fight under the banner of Christ, who is called the Captain of our salvation; when we have learned by experience that one of the best ways to develop Christian manhood in the boys is to organize them under military discipline and place before them military ideas, we ought to be very careful lest in preaching peace and disarmament and international arbitration, we shall so discourage the warlike nature of our boys that we shall find ourselves utterly unprepared to defend our honor and our homes in case of an attack by those who have been tried in military discipline and tactics.

"Sometimes I think that the Episcopal church is altogether too respectable and over-refined, because our clergy are so carried away with the beauties of the prayer book service and the ritual and ornate ceremonies, or so anxious to have guilds and organizations, where they meet over and over again the same souls, that they forget the greater object of winning the masses."

TO AMEND SHERMAN ACT

Cummins Has Plan to Define What "In Restraint of Trade" Means

Washington, May 18.—Senator Cummins of Iowa says that the decision of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil case confirmed an opinion he has long held that the phrase "in restraint of trade" in the first section of the Sherman anti-trust act is so vague and indefinite as to mar the efficacy of the law.

He will, he says, seek to perfect the law by the introduction of a bill intended to clarify the first section by defining as clearly as possible what "in restraint of trade" means. He would frame the proposed revision with a view to enforcing, as far as possible, real competitive conditions.

Senator Cummins is a leading progressive, a member of the judiciary committee and recognized as one of the ablest lawyers of the senate, hence any bill of this character introduced by him under present conditions in the senate would attract unusual attention.

WATCHING FOR FIREBUG

But Boston Police Fail to Land Their Much-Wanted Man

Boston, May 18.—Following the orders issued from headquarters to leave no stone unturned in their efforts to capture the firebug who has caused a reign of terror among the residents of that district, Captain Kimball of the Hanover street station at rollcall last night ordered nearly all his day officers to report for early morning duty.

Every fire alarm box has been under the eyes of police officers for the past week and nearly every street in the fire zone has been under the guard of a police officer, but despite their watchfulness, the firebug has succeeded in getting in his work.

Greater Berlin Measure Passed

Berlin, May 18.—The Prussian diet has adopted the Greater Berlin bill, which will combine the capital and the suburban municipalities, forming a metropolitan population of 3,500,000.

FAIR EXCHANGE

A New Back for an Old One. How it Can be Done in Quincy.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Quincy residents would do well to profit by the following example.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass., says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change in my condition and I gladly recommend them."

EXPERTS SHOWING UNCLE SAM SOME WAYS TO REDUCE TRAVEL EXPENSES

Mileage Books Would Save Part of $12,000,000 Annual Outlay

Every Dollar Spent by Government Being Analyzed and Located

FOR nearly a year a commission headed by Frederick A. Cleveland, an economy expert, has been at work, under the direction of President Taft and his secretary, investigating the system under which the United States government spends $1,000,000,000 a year.

The experts have reached their first conclusions—something can be saved. If it is only 1 per cent of the whole it means $10,000,000 a year—a tidy sum, even in the present day of big figures. If 10 per cent can be saved it means an annual return to the pockets of the American people of $1 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

The experts now finishing their fiscal year and entering upon the most important stage of their work have gone at the problem with the idea of interfering with no phase of the government's work, but of seeing that that work is performed with the greatest economy of men and money and that the government gets 100 cents' worth of work for every dollar spent.

As a pleasant little curtain raiser for the big show that is to come later they have poked their finger into Uncle Sam's traveling expense account and have declared that it is too big. Chairman Cleveland of the economy commission pointed it out to Mr. Norton, then the president's secretary; secretary Norton explained it to President Taft, and President Taft took the country into his confidence.

Think of spending $12,000,000 a year simply for traveling expenses—enough to give every one of Uncle Sam's 500,000 employees a first class trip from New York to Chicago, with Pullman fare thrown in and something left to tip the porter; enough to give the population of a good sized city a trip around the world!

It was as much a surprise to the president and his advisers to see this bill for travel as it may have been to the public. Appropriations have grown so rapidly in the government departments and they are distributed among such a variety of subjects that no definite idea of the amount spent in any one class of service has been possible until Mr. Cleveland and his experts had reduced the whole fabric of expenditures to a scientific basis.

Travel Never Summarized.

"Never before was it known how much the government expended or expected to spend in travel expenses in any one year," said Mr. Norton recently. "Travel expenses are buried away in miscellaneous and contingent expense accounts, where they cannot be reached and cannot be analyzed. The very fact that so much as $12,000,000 goes into traveling expenses arouses curiosity, and, although the inquiry has hardly begun, it has already been discovered that in many well run bureaus the government gets the benefits of the lowest mileage rate, while in one of the greatest departments a system of transportation orders results in that department paying 10 per cent more for a trip from Washington to New York and return than an individual would have to pay."

Here is the key to the whole situation. The waste of money, if there has been any in the matter of traveling expenses to carry on the government business, has been a waste due to the complexity of systems followed in the different departments rather than to the padding of expense accounts by government employees.

Did you ever try to pad an expense account for the government? There is no item of "entertainment of customers," nothing for incidental expenses, nothing for taxicabs or theaters. To pass a padded account successfully through the censors of a government bureau at Washington is a feat that few employees in Uncle Sam's establishment can boast of.

Most of the departments pass upon every travel account at least four times before it is finally approved and the bill paid. There are bureaus in those departments where much traveling occurs equipped with all the latest passenger fare tariffs and with the rates of the Pullman company between all points.

When an expense account comes in the items for tickets are carefully checked up on these rate sheets When the rate clerk finally approves the expense statement it is proof that the charges for the tickets and Pullman have agreed exactly with the published rates between the points named.

Then there is a definite standard of expense allowed for each legitimate item. You may have your laundry done once a week at government expense in some departments when you are traveling, but you may not have your trousers pressed "on Uncle Sam." Clean laundry is considered a necessity, carefully creased trousers a luxury. Other departments do not allow even the weekly laundry bill as an item of legitimate expense.

You may use a cab from the depot to destination in a strange city. The employee who lives in Washington, however, and takes a cab from his home to the depot there will find that the vigilant eye of the censor of expense accounts has cut out this item and allowed only 5 cents for a street car ride to the depot. The traveler is supposed to journey as he would at his own expense.

A tip of 25 cents a day is allowed for the Pullman porter. If tips are given to waiters they must be included in the price of the meals, and these must always be within reason. Tips to the coatroom boy, a dime to the bootblack and similar little items come out of the employee's pocket and not out of Uncle Sam's.

In view of these rigid interpretations of traveling expenses that have prevailed for some time in most of the departments in Washington, President Taft's desire that the first test of economy be made on the traveling expenses of the government has aroused some consternation among the men who travel regularly in the service of the government. These include the revenue, postoffice, treasury and customs inspectors, pension examiners, secret service men and special agents of the department of justice and others whose duties keep them on the road most of the time.

Sources of Waste.

The blow is not likely to fall here, however. The real waste in government traveling expenses, according to leading officials of the government, comes from two primary causes—first, trips that are not vitally necessary, and, second, travel that could be purchased for a less figure than is actually paid for it.

"Suppose we find that one of the bureaus is spending $1,500,000 for traveling expenses," said Norton, "and we find that there are ten or fifteen or twenty ways in which traveling expense money can be spent—first class single trip tickets, mileage, round trip tickets, etc.—and we put an expert to work and he finds that the bureau spent only $350,000 for mileage, whereas it spent $1,150,000 for first class single trip tickets.

"From the analysis and the questions which would naturally follow it is found that it is the custom of the department to issue transportation orders to the railroads to issue tickets, which orders, in turn, are honored and settled for at the first class single trip rates. This would mean that the department spends, let us say, $10 for a ticket to New York and back, $1 more than a private individual would spend by the use of mileage.

"The individual buys perhaps $50 or $100 worth of such transportation where the government buys $10,000,000 worth and pays for such a trip as I describe 10 per cent more than the individual would. If there is any appreciable portion of $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 on which 1 per cent or 2 per cent or 10 per cent can be saved that is an item of waste for which an administration might well be held justly responsible and an amount large enough to engage the attention of congress."

But back of the economy in purchasing transportation is the bigger question of what travel is necessary. The president's demand for a test of economy in the travel department is likely to be followed by a tightening of the lines and the reduction of some of the travel that has been developing during the last few years.

Such an economy would undoubtedly hit the agricultural department with considerable force. One statement from the economy experts shows that the travel of this department amounted to about $1,300,000 for the last year.

Good Results Expected.

President Taft's inquiry will undoubtedly determine the most economical method of handling travel expenses. It will result in the cutting off of many trips; but, most important of all, it will put the travel of the government upon a scientific basis, where the cheapest rate is obtained for every item of expense.

The travel expense, although it has been thrust forward by the attention given it by the president, is actually only a small item compared to the great developments that are to come from the board of experts. Chairman Cleveland has with him now William F. Willoughby, until recently assistant director of the census, and Merrit O. Chance, former auditor for the postoffice department. There is a further advisory board on "economy and efficiency" from the departments. Each department has its own board of economists, and under Chairman Cleveland is a big staff of experts.

Every dollar spent by the government is to be analyzed and located.

The succession of Charles D. Hilles to the post of secretary to the president transfers to his shoulders the work of supervising the inquiry. Within the next few months interesting facts are likely to come from the Cleveland board as to the real sources of waste in the management of a billion dollar government.

GENERAL GRANT

Army Officer Who Will Soon Succeed Carter In Texas

WILL SUCCEED CARTER

Grant Is to Head Maneuver Division of Army In Texas

Washington, May 18.—Major General Grant soon will succeed Major General Carter as commander of the maneuver idvision of the army in Texas. The purpose of the war department is to afford an opportunity to command the division to as many general officers of high rank as possible during the maneuvers, which it is said now probably will continue until next winter.

General Carter has done splendid work, the department officials declare, in mobilizing the forces and getting them in condition for the actual field work which is now beginning. The change probably will not be made until conditions in Mexico become less acute than at present.

HARD FIGHTING NEAR MOROCCAN CAPITAL

Fez Is Completely Cut Off From Communication

Tangier, May 18.—A courier who recently left this city for Fez returned here yesterday and reported that he was unable to get within ten miles of the southern capital, having been turned back by the rebellious tribesmen.

A fierce battle was waging around Fez. The sultan's troops had left the city and were engaging the rebels in the environs. Both sides were fighting desperately. The rebels admitted having suffered heavy losses. All road communication out of Fez is cut and and couriers are menaced with death.

Neither of the two relief columns of French forces now aiming at the capital has made much progress, both having been hampered by the difficulty of transport and the attacks of the rebel tribesmen.

HELD UP BY RED TAPE

Cruiser Without Coal, Although Near Millions of Tons of Fuel

Cordova, Alaska, May 18.—With unmined millions of tons of first-class coal only fifteen miles away, legal red tape is causing the United States cruiser Buffalo to lie here with empty bunkers, practically helpless, for want of coal.

It is expected here that the government will send a collier from Puget Sound navy yard, about 1600 miles, with coal. Efforts to secure a supply in Alaska waters proved unavailing.

The cruiser sailed from San Francisco to establish wireless telegraph stations in Alaska. The Bering river coal fields, near here, cannot be touched until title to these fields, claimed by private individuals, is decided.

SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL

Lad Who Brutally Assaulted a Little Girl Is Sentenced

Lynn, Mass., May 18.—George Hart, 14 years old, was sentenced to the Lyman school, Westboro, for a brutal assault on 7-year-old Estelle Gaulet in the Lynn woods last week, by Judge Lummus. His mother entered an appeal.

The case of 10-year-old Fred Henderson, also charged with the assault, was continued. The girl was beaten, kicked and thrown in a mud pond and is still ill on account of her injuries.

GIVES IMPETUS TO TAFT PLAN

Supreme Court Decision an Aid to Federal Incorporation

AMENDMENT TO SHERMAN ACT

May Be Attempted by Those Who Side With Harlan's Dissenting Opinion In Standard Oil Case—Trust Question Will Be Issue In National Politics Next Year—No General "Trust Busting" by the Administration

Washington, May 17.—President Taft's plan of federal incorporation of concerns doing an interstate business is expected to receive an impetus through the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Standard Oil case.

Leading members of the cabinet and others informally do not hesitate to express their personal opinion that federal incorporation will offer important if not the most feasible relief to corporations from the uncertainties in which the decision of the highest tribunal still leaves the trust question.

The dissenting opinion of Justice Harlan has arrested public attention seriously and caused some deep thinking. The gist of this opinion is that the supreme court, in reading into the law the principle of discrimination between good and bad trusts, has done what congress and only congress could and should do. Democratic and progressive public opinion is inclined to side strongly with Harlan, a fact which would seem to point to a determined attempt to amend the Sherman act.

Under the circumstances it would seem that the decision would not take the so-called trust question out of politics. There is already a demand on the part of public men who approve the decision without reserve that congress should so amend the anti-trust law as to make it conform to the decision of the court.

The progressives point out that in asking for legislation of this sort the conservatives confess that the supreme court has written into the law the phrase "not unreasonably restrictive of competition." The progressives, both Republican and Democrats, will move for legislation that will so amend the law as to make it impossible for the trusts to hide behind this phrase "not unreasonably restrictive of competition."

It will be no surprise if the decision makes the trust question one of the issues in national politics next year. Unquestionably the progressive Republicans intend to make an issue of their demand that the anti-trust law shall be strengthened, and if the progressive wing of the Democratic party can have its way in the national convention that party will make the same demand.

It may be said, after having pointed out how the political statesmen divide on the opinion, that, generally speaking, the opinion of the court is approved by public men of both political parties. It certainly has the unqualified approval of the business interests of the country, if the comment of the day is a fair reflection of the prevailing view.

The Taft administration will be slow to make any move based on the court's decision. The department of justice will watch the developments attendant upon the compliance with the court's decision by the Standard Oil company.

It is the expectation of the Taft administration that other great combinations will not fail to take notice of the court's decision that the Standard Oil company is doing business "unreasonably restrictive of competition." The administration expects other great combinations to begin at once to put their houses in order.

No lash is to be applied by the department of justice immediately. In course of time, if certain great combinations do not mend their ways, the department of justice will attempt to apply to them the provisions of the anti-trust law as interpreted by the court. Some of the ablest lawyers connected with the administration believe, although they are not saying so publicly at this time, that under the decision of the court it will not be possible to dissolve many corporations.

Bankrupt Concealed Assets

Boston, May 17.—For concealing assets in bankruptcy Charles H. Gifford of Attleboro, novelty manufacturer, was sentenced in the United States district court to one year and a day in the New Bedford jail. Gifford had pleaded guilty to the indictment.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

"Dancing In the Barn."

BRIEFS

Minstrels tonight by the brave tars of the Quincy Yacht club.

The Boys' club of Christ church give two plays tonight in the parish house.

The Odd Fellows dance tonight. There will be ladies there of course but no odd ladies.

The Quincy Catholic club entertains friends and prospective members tomorrow evening at Colonial hall, it being called guest night.

A party of ladies of the Women's Relief corps paid a visit to the Soldiers Home in Chelsea Wednesday. Arriving at the home the ladies gave an entertainment which was greatly enjoyed by the old veterans.

The last meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ church for the spring was held in the parish house Wednesday afternoon. Plans were made for the big sale to be held in the fall. Meetings will be resumed in October.

Mrs. Robert T. Johnson of Maple street and her three youngest children left Wednesday for a few weeks' stay at Ashland N. H. Miss Beatrice Johnson will stay with her aunt Mrs. Isabelle Davis of Spear street during her mother's absence.

Owing to the fact that a large number of stewards from Christ church served in the World in Boston Wednesday evening, it was thought advisable to cancel the Men's club debate which was scheduled. A short business meeting was held and adjournment took place early.

RECENT FIRE ALARMS

The alarm at Box 126 Wednesday afternoon at 2.50 was rung in for a fire at the home of James F. Allen, 1 Johnson avenue. The fire was in the furnace where quite a lot of rubbish was being burned. The drafts were not fixed right and the smoke came out through the rooms, oozing up through the floors and filling the house with smoke. The inhabitants of the house became alarmed and the fire department was called to the scene. Everything was back to normal by the time the department arrived and it made a quick run at that. The only damage done was to the knuckles of the boy who pulled in the alarm, which were cut breaking the glass on the box.

The alarm at box 39 at 7.33 this morning was false.

—The tree planting campaign in Providence, R. I., was given a big boom when John Shepard, Jr., of Providence and Boston contributed 50,000 one-year-old catalpa trees for public school pupils. The board of education accepted the gift and the trees were planted May 12.

SUPPER, SOCIAL AND ADDRESS

Ladies of Hall Place Church Good Providers

The plans of the Ladies Aid of the Hall Place M. E. church for the supper on Wednesday evening, were carried out in a very successful manner when a large number sat down to the well ladened tables in the vestry of the church, at 7.15 o'clock. Prayer was offered by the pastor of the church, Rev. T. C. Martin. A good time was enjoyed by all during the supper and social hour.

At 8.15 o'clock, Rev. T. C. Martin introduced the Rev. C. L. Bare, president of Lucknow University, India as the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Bare spoke of his work in India and of the work that is being done there. Among other things he said that while India only covered about two-thirds of the territory of the United States yet it had three times the population or over three hundred million people. He spoke briefly on their customs, told of some of their religious beliefs and the great result that the bringing of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to this darkened land has brought about and told of his vision for future work. He cited several instances of the power of Christ in the individual lives of this people that has brought about glorious results.

Dr. Bare proved himself to be an excellent speaker, holding great power to move his audience.

At the close of Dr. Bare's most interesting address Rev. T. C. Martin gave a very brief history and figures of the work of the Hall Place church for the past 25 or 30 years, and presented a five-fold plan of work for the coming year.

1—Adoption and working of the "Duplex envelopes for current expenses and benevolences.

2—Raising of money to buy the stock for painting the parsonage, work to be given.

3—Raising, by conditional subscriptions, the debt.

4—Moving the barn and annexing it to the church to make a parish house.

5—Spiritual interests of the church. A free-will offering was taken at the close of the evening to pay for the work on the parsonage, there being no charge for the supper.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

HOUGHS NECK

Mrs. Fred Wade of the Samoset cottage who has been quite ill is improving.

The Catholic Lyceum club is planning another dance to be given in the Bungalow Saturday evening, May 27.

A business meeting of the Lady Associates was held in Associates' hall Wednesday evening. After the business of meeting a social evening was spent a feature being a doughnut race. Mrs. Medros received a prize for disposing of the most doughnuts.

The Bungalow dance was held Wednesday instead of Thursday evening of this week.

C. Harrison Leonard of Dorchester is spending a few weeks at the beach.

On account of the strong tides and heavy east winds the launching of several boats has been postponed.

The supper given by the Ladies' Aid at Union chapel Wednesday evening was well attended. Rev. W. G. Sayre of Boston who accepted the call as permanent pastor was present and expressed his pleasure in seeing the place so well represented.

Mrs. H. L. Jones of Medford who has been the guest of her sister Mrs. O. G. Fosdick has returned home

The Casino is undergoing considerable repairs in preparation for the new management Beginning May 30, M. F. Farrel of Brockton will open the hall for dancing with Milo Burkes' orchestra and continue Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

The opening event of the Quincy Yacht club will be given in way of minstrels this evening. The entertainment will be given in the hall, followed by a smoke talk which will be enjoyed by the members.

The Q. Y. C. has its new brass plate on the outer gate of the club enclosuer.

Several families rae under quarantine on Center road for what was supposed to be small-pox; the patent being a young child, who died Tuesday morning. There is considerable doubt as to whether the cause of the child's death was really smallpox. The family physician stated that the child did not have small-pox, that it was teething and was brought here for the change.

GROTON WINS BY CLOSE SCORE

Hits and Errors Cause Quincy High Boys Defeat

Quincy High was defeated by Groton school at Groton Wednesday afternoon in a close game by a score of 5 to 4. During the first five innings neither team scored but in the sixth, hits and errors gave Groton five runs. The Quincy team made a valiant attempt to win, getting one run in the 6th and three in the eighth but could not squeeze out a victory. Rice and Hardwick pitched about evenly through most of the game the former getting 8 strikes out and the latter 7 but in the fatal sixth Groton had a batting bee getting two three baggers and a number of singles. With the exception of that inning Rice was effective. H. Chapman played the best game for Quincy getting three hits and doing well behind the bat. Josephs of Groton with a total of four hits was the star batsman of the game-"Kike" Hardwick, a Quincy boy who pitched for Groton played a strong game and aided very materially in securing the victory for his team.

AN OLD SONG.

Laura E. Richards.

"We are coming Father Abraham,
Three hundred thousand more!"
Do you remember, comrades?
It rang from shore to shore,
You left the farm and left the forge,
Left wife and sweetheart, too,
And set your faces to the South,
To join the boys in blue.

"We are coming, Father Abraham."
You saw him face to face;
Smiling you marked the craggy height,
The lack of port and grace.
Yet now—ah! next to wife and child,
The thing in life you prize
Is the one glance that met your own
From those sad, patient eyes.

"We are coming, Father Abraham!"
He saw his children come.
He saw them march, his gallant lads,
With trumpet and with drum.
He saw them fight, and bleed and die,
And to his breast he took
The bayonet and the rifle-ball
With that same patient look.

"We are coming, Father Abraham!"
With victory they came.
They laid their laurels at his feet,
They thronged to bless his name.
The ransomed land breathed deep and free.
The darkness grew to light,
When sudden fell the thunder-stroke
And wrapt him from our sight.

Ah! long ago, dear comrades!
And life has fleeted fast.
Year by swift year the gate we near
Through which our captain passed
Through death to life! our willing feet
Draw near the eternal shore;
We are coming, Father Abraham,
Three hundred thousand more!

Drilled to Perfection.

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him. Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles. One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swinging into a fierce charge upon the enemy. By daylight the Russians and Poles, who had thought to eat him up, were virtually annihilated.—New York Press.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB MINSTREL SHOW

Yacht and Arm Chair Skippers Black Up for the Opening Smoker

All Hands go Below for Chowder and Doughnuts After Show

If the opening smoker of the Quincy Yacht club Thursday evening is a sample of what the entertainment committee of the club intends to provide for the members the coming season, the sailing and arm chair yachtsmen are assured of getting their money's worth. As usual the club opened its season with a smoker which this year took the form of a minstrel show which afforded the musical members of the club an excellent opportunity to show their talent.

The street railway ran extra cars and the line of automobiles near the club house gave the appearance of a garage.

The show has been in preparation for some time under the direction of Henry W. French and frequent rehearsals had made the troupe well nigh perfect.

It was a little after 8 o'clock when Elmer W. Ricker came from behind the scenes and took his position at the piano as accompanist.

On the stage behind the large American flag which served as the curtain could be seen the figures of the circle getting into position. Then came a strain of music and Trapper Nash slowly drew the curtain to one side disclosing a double row of shiny black faces that looked as though they had been polished with a shoe brush.

There were eight end men with tambos and in the centre sat Vice Commodore Harry W. Crane in a gaudy uniform of an admiral. Four of the ends wore gaudy costumes that consisted of a short yellow skirt with tight fitting red waist with a yellow ruffle about the neck and red stockings. Their hair was done up in the latest and most improved fashion whereby one with little hair has the appearance of having an abundance. These four ends were Commodore Ira Whittemore, George Tupper, Stoddard Hardwick and Bill Hudson.

The other four ends had costumes of varied kinds. Eddie Graham resembled a plantation negro, Andy Burrell a clown, Harry Winslow a fat school boy and Stan Duncan a German lad.

Back of this circle was the chorus in white duck trousers, navy blue jackets and Quincy Yacht club caps.

In this circle were Ernest Norteman, William Norteman, Capt. E. P. Barrow, F. R. Cowling, Eddie Williams, D. E. McDonald, Howard Andrews, Harold S. Morse, Ralph E. Winslow, E. P. Plummer and George Hudson.

The program opened with a solo "Kiss Me" by Andy Burrell and from then on for two hours there was something doing.

Soon after the opening song Tom Furnald came around with cigars and everybody settled back in the hard bottom chairs and tried to make themselves comfortable.

Between the several numbers on the program there were the usual number of end mens jokes which were as a rule at the expense of some member of the club and they of course caused no end of laughter.

The second number was a song by ex-Commodore Herbert W. Robbins who sang pathetically "When I walk to the strains of the wedding march."

He was the only soloist to receive a bouquet, a large bunch of lilacs being handed to him as he stepped forward for an encore.

Eddie Graham came next with that popular song "Quincy Bay." Eddie has a fine voice and his number was among the best.

Jim Hector then stepped from the circle and sang "Every little movement has a meaning of its own."

At this point something wrong was noticed with Harry Winslow and inquiry brought out the reply that he "Was ready to quit and be good" which was the title of his selection, and Harry did it well.

Henry French the director then took the boards and recited a topical song which had plenty of local color.

"Put your arms around me honey" as rendered by Bill Hudson seemed to have a new meaning and he did it well.

Jack Hallowell and George Newcomb relieved the tension at this point with a banjo duet and then gave way to Commodore Whittemore who sang, "I love it" and everybody thought he did by the feeling of expression he put into his singing.

Eddie Rouse was not in the circle but was one of the special artists. He sang "A longshore man" and for an encore "My Rose"

"Sugar Moon" as sung by George Tupper seemed to have a new meaning for he sang it well.

The next number was by J. B. Frauenfelder the second special solos. Mr. Frauenfelder sang "Go to sea" and for an encore "In cellar cool" both of which were enthusiastically encored.

Then Stoddard Hardwick appeared in the lime light and sang "Stop, Stop, Stop" in such a manner that left no doubt to his hearers that he meant it.

The Quincy Yacht club trio composed of Jack Hallowell, George Newcomb and Carl Christenson played a couple of selections on the mandolin and guitars, and Stan Duncan came forward for his solo, "Under the Yum Yum Tree."

Without joking Stan has a fine voice his song was among the best of the circle.

Before the grand finale Commodore Whittemore removed his wig and formally opened the club house for the season. He hoped that the members would encouraeg and support its officers. The success of the show had been due to the personal efforts of Henry W. French and Elmer W. Ricker who had given much of their valuable time and at his suggestion the club stood and gave them three rousing cheers.

The grand finale was by the entire company and was entitled "Honey girl."

The show over all hands went below where Bill Norteman and his sons were kept busy for an hour serving hot clam chowder, doughnuts and cheese.

From now on until the end of the season there will be something doing at the club house for the list of socials and racing events is a large one. The first scheduled race being May 27.

PEACE AND ARBITRATION

Relief Corps Observe its First Anniversary

A Peace and Arbitration meeting was held in the Council chamber at City Hall Thursday evening. The room was decorated in the national colors and the dove of peace with the peace flag in its bill appeared on the rostrum.

The color bearers escorted the members of Post 88 to their seats and then assisted by the aids Commander Ring, Mrs. Emma E. Marnock, persident of the Women's Relief Corps, Mrs. E. Jennie Holton, chaplain of the corps and Frank H. Stoddard of the Sons of Veterans were escorted to the platform.

Mrs. Anna J. Gould, patriotic instructor of the Corps conducted the meeting.

After the Scripture reading from Matt. 5 by the chaplain, Mrs. Nason sang "Lead Kindly Light." During the singing little peace flags were passed around. The peace flag is the national flag with a white band around it.

Mrs. Gould spoke briefly telling about the flag and emphasizing the fact that Peace and Arbitration day was a new patriotic day.

Mrs. Blaisdell told of the Origin of Peace and Arbitration day. On Wednesday, August 4, 1898, the Czar of Russia introduced the idea to the world and in the following April, invitations were sent to all the nations of the civilized world to meet at the Hague. On May 18, 1899, one hundred representatives from twenty-six different countries gathered there and for over two months or until July 29 secret sessions were held daily.

Mrs. Belle Morton sang the Star Spangled Banner and when she came to the chorus, the audience joined in at the same time waving the little peace flags.

Miss Ethel Brown gave a pleasing little recitation entitled, "The Morn of Youth" after which Miss Leah Edgerly rendered a piano solo.

Commander Ring of Post 88 was then called upon for a few remarks. He said that those who had fought in the Civil war, (and there was nothing civil about it) knew better than anyone else how barbarous and brutal a thing war was. And all who have seen its affects do not want to see any more war. General Sherman said "War is hell but we ought to have thought of that while the foundries were running night and day making shot and shell."

General Robert E. Lee once said during the war that his fondest desire was peace.

Commander Ring said that he hoped the time was not far distant when all nations would get together and have universal and everlasting peace.

Mrs. Emma E. Marnock then told of "The Need of Today."

Mrs. Nason then sang another song "The Brave Boys" which was well received.

Miss Lucy Morton then gave a recitation and upon its conclusion a large bouquet of violets was presented to her as a token of appreciation of the part she took in the exercises at the Sailors Home in Chelsea on Wednesday. Ethel Brown gathered the violets which were presented to Miss Morton.

Remarks were then made by Frank H. Stoddard of the Sons of Veterans.

The patriotic instructor read extracts from some of the great orations on Peace.

It was voted that a letter of appreciation be sent Mayor Shea for giving the ladies the use of the Council chamber.

A vote of thanks was also extended to Mrs. Anna J. Gould, the patriotic instructor.

The emblem of peace which was on the rostrum was loaned by Mr. Johnson of the City flower store.

In concluding the meeting the flag salute was given by the Corps and also by the children who were present and after the singing of "America" adjournment took place.

RECEPTION TO MRS. POLLARD.

A very delightful little gathering took place at the home of T. B. Pollard, Edison street, Thursday afternoon, when a number of the ladies of the parish of the Washington street Congregational church joined in giving a farwell reception to Mrs. Alice Pollard, mother of Mr. T. B. Pollard. who leaves Quincy today for good, going to Camden, N. J. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent by all. Music was furnished by Mrs. Charles P. Marshall and Mrs. Arthur B. Foster and refreshments were served in the latter part of the afternoon.

Mrs. Pollard will be greatly missed in the parish for she has rendered efficient service in many ways and has endeared herself to all with whom she has served..

AMERICAN ODD FELLOWSHIP

Quincy Lodges Join in Celebrating Anniversary

Mr. Wollaston lodge Manet encampment and George L. Gill Rebekah lodge united at Alpha hall Thursday evening to celebrate the ninety-second anniversary of American Odd Fellowship. Members of the three lodges as well as many guests from lodges in the immediate vicinity united in making the celebration a fitting one. During the first part of the evening there was a very pleasing entertainment program which was followed by refreshments and dancing until midnight.

The program opened with a selection by John Hancock lodge orchestra and was followed by an address of welcome by Past Grand George C. Ela who introduced Past Grand Patriarch and Past Grand Representative to the Sovereign Grand lodge, William H. Mitchell who gave an interesting and instructive address on Odd Fellowship from its earliest conception up to the present time when it has become one of the leading fraternal organizations doing an untold amount of good among its members.

Following the address William Mackie of the vaudeville team of Mackie & Walker gave a monclogue and songs.

Phil LeBurge a comedy and novelty juggling exhibition and Sullivan and Gordon a specialty act in comedy singing, talking and dancing.

Before the entertainment closed Mr. Mitchell was presented with a handsome bouquet.

Ice cream and cake was then served after which there was general dancing.

The great surprise of the evening was when the members of the order received their ice cream to find on each plate an emblematic napkin.

The committee of arrangements were Mrs. T. J. Smith chairman, George C. Ela, secretary, William A. Richards treasurer, C. S. Jones, Matthew Swanson, Walter H. Walker, Charles H. Wood, Abel Gomez, E. L. Goodridge, Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell, Mrs. James S. Baker and Miss M. Lizie Furnald.

Reception committee, Charles H. Barron, W. H. Walker, Miss Bernice Clark.

Twelve sisters of the Rebekahs acted as ushers.

BRIEFS

The Jolly Sixteen hold their next meeting Tuesday evening with John Smith, Baxter street.

Delegates from Quincy were present at the state convention of Universalist churches held in Lynn on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Boys Club of St. Chrysostom's church held its regular meeting in the parish room of the church Thursday evening.

At the meeting of the Sons of Veterans this evening further arrangements for Memorial day observances will be made.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Mexican army proves to be about as effective in maintaining order as a single policeman in dealing with a bunch of July 4 celebraters.

Florida watermelons have reached the Northern markets, and the demand for Jamaica ginger is encouraging to the trade.

The per capita circulation of money is $34.55, and if the socialists would quit talking about a divy and go to work, it might be $34.56.

Alfred Austin is writing a coronation ode, which relieves us of the fear that he will offer us any spring poetry before 1912.

A Jap ball team from Waseeda university is beating our Western college teams. This is a portentous sign of the decline of American education.

Theodore Roosevelt is mentioned for ambassador to Germany. This shows what a man's chances are if he is only willing to wor a year as a newspaper reporter.

Wellesley students are opposing the reception of Mr. Rockefeller's money. Although it would be worth several meals to write him sassy letter, $1,500,000 seems a high price to pay for the privilege.

The principal test for candidates in the election of 1912 is going to be their ability to cram good legislation down the throats of the bosses so far that it will squash out of their boot heels.

THE LOOT OF ANCIENT RELICS.

The Ark of the Jewish covenant, the seven branched candle stick, and the tables of the Jewish law, according to a newspaper story, have been stolen from the Mohammedan Mosque of Omar and are now on a yacht bound for Great Britain.

It is one of the tragedies of the Christian religion, that all the physical vestiges of its sacred shrines should have fallen into the hands of a heathen faith.

The Crusaders of the Dark Ages made a good try for the recovery of this treasure. It was more needed at that time when the externals that appealed to the eye were more necessary than they are today.

Even if many of the old Jewish and Christian antiquities could be recovered, there is no way of determining if they are genuine. The fragments of the true cross that are carefully preserved and venerated would make a big wood pile.

We have not the least doubt that many of the so-called sacred relics are genuine since it has been the custom of mankind in all ages to preserve such mementoes.

But never again will any human being be able to distinguish the true from the false ,and future generations must depend on producing the fruits of religion, not on its external husks.

THE OHIO GRAFT CHARGES.

The every day citizen who pays his debts and would rather sleep nights than sponge a dollar out of others that does not belong to him reads with a sickening disgust the story of alleged graft in the Ohio Legislature.

Taken in connection with the Lorimer election, the Adams county, O., scandals, the Pittsburg graft cases, etc, one soon acquires the cynical feeling that American politics is a putrid garbage heap.

Meanwhile, the average business firm soon finds out that it must give dollar for dollar or there will be a gravestone over its remains in a capacious industrial cemetery.

The grafters when you look at them, seem just about like average people. You find their names on the philanthropic subscription papers, their bankers certify to their financial orthodoxy they often sit in high priced pews at church.

Why is it that the American people beat the world on making steel and cotton and bridges and locomotives, but are turning out such a job lot article in the way of government?

A big problem for a little article. Here are three reasons.

1.—To much politics in local government. We used to feel that unless a man agreed with us about the tariff he was not capable of building streets and sewers. But the voters are fast getting by that period of their political infancy.

2—The practise of secret pledging of convention delegates. The voter walks up to the caucus ballot box with a chesty feeling of patriotic citizenship, and votes for some delegate who purposes and is pledged to act directly contrary to the desire of the men who voted for him. The voters are tired of having it possible for office seekers to get into power, merely by "seeing" some boss.

3—The sluggish, sleepy, phlegmatic indifference of many supposedly good citizens. They will remain away from the caucus to save a dollar's worth of time, while the rats of municipal knavery are wasting $10 in taxes direct and indirect.

AKIN NO DEMOCRAT.

Congress Directory Late Because He Was Not Properly Listed.

The delayed publication of the Congressional Directory for the extra session of congress was caused by the fact that the editor had trouble in listing the political faith of Dr. Theron Akin, representative from the Twenty-fifth New York district. In his campaign Dr Akin was described as a Democrat by some, but since going to Washington he has sat on the Republican side of the aisle and calls himself a progressive Republican. It is said he didn't know that he had been classed as a Democrat until he went to the postoffice department to ask about certain patronage. Then he was told he was a Democrat, it is related, and that he had been so listed in about 18,000 Congressional Directories that had been put out.

His very next call was on the printing committee of congress. Several committeemen tried to effect a compromise, it is reported, so that "progressive" would be omitted and "Republican" stand. But Dr. Akin said no. Somebody had called him a Democrat and it had to be taken back. So these directories were recalled as far as possible, and there was a new print.

PLAYS MARBLES WITH TOES.

Cincinnati Financier So Ordered by His Doctor.

M. E. Moch, vice president of the Cincinnati Trust company, has been directed by his doctor to play marbles with his toes every night and morning.

Mr. Moch is one of Cincinnati's big men. Recently he began to feel a numbness in his right foot. He got scared and hurried to Dr. Albert Freiburg. The doctor felt the foot all over, then smiled, took a boy's marble out of a drawer and dropped it on the floor.

"Pick it up with your toes," he said to Mr. Moch. The latter tried for half an hour, then sat down, red in the face and blowing like a porpoise.

After an hour's practice at his home the financier was able to pick the marble up between his toes and toss it to the ceiling. The foot will be all right when it is limbered up, the doctor says.

SQUANTUM Y. C. OPENING NIGHT

Chowder Supper and Vaudeville the Features

A rousing smoker at the club house on Thursday evening opened the yachting season of 1911 for the Squantum Yacht club.

Over 200 members and guests made a hearty meal of one of Captain Badger's famous clam chowders which was served with all the "fixings."

The after dinner speaking opened with a word of welcome by Commodore George W. Hinkley. Speeches by Commodore Louis E. Crosscup and Vice Commodore Frank F. Taylor of the Wollaston Yacht club were heartily in favor of the movement on foot to consolidate the two clubs.

A fine vaudeville program was enjoyed among the artists being Messrs Dadmun and Johnson who contributed a roaring comedy sketch bringing into play instrumental music.

As a humorist William Foote filled the bill receiving much applause. Impersonations in black face and Irish parts were given by Herbert A. Clark who was also responsible for a sketch incorporating telling hits on various club members.

During the repast incidental music was played by Quigley's orchestra and popular tunes found ready response from those present.

In all the smoker was a huge success and opened the club's summer quarters most auspiciously. Among other guests present were Vice Commodore Frederick L. Baker of the Orient Heights Yacht club and representatives of the Quincy Yacht club.

The present officers of the club in club Commodore George W. Hinkley, Vice Commodore Eleazer F. Drew, Rear Commodore W. E. Kimball and Secretary Alex F. Tobin.

STREET IN BAD SHAPE.

Editor Daily Ledger:

As a resident of Trafford street South Quincy I wish to enter a protest against the present disgraceful condition of that thoroughfare, and I am sure from investigation that I am presenting the opinion of all the property owners and residents of this neighborhood. Such a grossly incompetent piece of work I have never seen performed.

About a month ago the street was torn up and the dirt piled up on the sidewalks a mixture of cobblestones and clay and at the upper end of the street broken stones were dumped along the walks of all sizes, and sharp enough to cause serious injury to children falling over them. The city may have some damages to pay if this condition remains much longer.

There is no excuse for leaving a street in such a deplorable state for so long a time, it is said the intention is to finish the work at some future time but why this delay? It simply goes to show that those in charge of the work are not capable of making calculations so that their work will be carried out in a systematic manner and not occasion an inexcusable delay of this kind. A remark made to me by a number of people about here shows that the idea prevails that the city officials think anything is good enough for South Quincy as it is supposed to be the slums, and that such a condition of affairs would not prevail in a more aristocratic neighborhood. As a number of protests to city officials seems to have no effect I thought a few lines in your paper might do some good.

NORMAN WHITE AT WOLLASTON

Was Speaker at Wollaston Men's Club Meeting

At a meeting of the Wollaston Methodist club on Thursday evening, to which the members of men's clubs in Wollaston and Quincy were invited and present, Norman H. White of Brookline was the speaker.

At the meeting the annual election of officers took place. Following is the list for the coming year:

President E. H. Ewertz.
Vice President—J. A. Sedgwick.
Secretary—S. N. Belcher.
Treasurer—Henry B. Dimmock.
Executive Committee—F. A. Sutermeister, George Crothers, Wesley Rhodes, F. G. Bennett, T. M. Lane, Editor Wollaston Herald—J. A. Sedgwick.

Following the reports of the secretary and treasurer a breezy edition of the Wollaston Herald was read by Editor Sedgwick telling largely of his recent trip to the northwest.

Upon recommendation of the nominating committee the office of president emeritus was created and George Taylor who has been the club president for a number of years was presented with this title.

Mr. White taking for his subject the present condition of the state's budget arraigned the action of the present executive in the employment of experts to examine and make recommendations on the management of state institutions when the law recently passed was simply intended to cover the finances of these.

The speaker took up the problem of meeting the present tuberculosis situation in Massachusetts and told of the deplorable conditions on the Cape and elsewhere.

He told of a bill for which he is working that provides that each city or group of towns shall erect and maintain a hospital for advanced cases of the disease thus leaving Rutland and the three other state institutions for the treatment of incipient cases.

Mr. White gave what he termed a story or history of railroad monopoly in Massachusetts. He spoke of the law enacted in 1874 that provides no railroad shall hold stock in any other company unless permission is obtained from the legislature.

The various illegal acts of the New Haven road in direct defiance of the above law and its present tight grip upon the transportation in New England were gone into in detail.

At his conclusion the speaker was accorded a heary hand of applause and a rising vote of thanks. Refreshments in the vestry followed.

No Room For Him.

Several relics of exceptional value and of unusual interest to archaeologists were discovered in a small town near Nuremberg, and as soon as the news reached him the director of the Nuremberg Historical museum went to the village and introduced himself to the mayor, saying:

"I am in charge of the museum at Nuremberg, and I'd like to"—

"You're too late, my good sir," interrupted the mayor. "We've already got here several merry-go-rounds, a bearded woman, a theatrical company composed of apes, a troupe of trained dogs and a band of Hungarian musicians, so you can readily see that we've got no room for your museum."

And with these words he nodded to the director and went away.

RESPOND TO RIOT CALL

Policeman Hustle and Witness Closing Scene at Wedding Ceremony

Pittsburg, May 19.—A riot call sent from the office of Alderman Abernathy brought a squad of policemen, followed by an expectant crowd, to the scene. The officers bravely entered the building prepared for all sorts of trouble, except the kind they witnessed as they entered the door.

Struggling as if wishing to escape paying the reward exacted by some cruel magistrates after tying the nuptial knot, Mrs. George Lloyd, who a few minutes previously had been Miss Irene Wiley, was seen by the astonished officers in the act of being kissed by the alderman. Then the whole affair filtered through their brains and the officers backed out of the office.

The bridegroom was George Lloyd. An uncle of the girl is Police Sergeant Daniel Harmon, who escorted this niece to the alderman's office. The call was sent in by a practical joker.

NOT HIS FIRST MURDERS

New York Negro Kills Two Men and Wounds Eight Others

New York, May 19.—John Cain, the big negro who ran amuck with a razor on the upper West Side and killed two men and wounded eight others, has admitted that he is the man who killed Richard Ball, a newspaper man, eleven years ago. Ball's slayer said that he killed his man for stepping on his toes. He was released from Sing Sing a few weeks ago.

Cain went wild when a white passenger on the platform of an elevated train objected to his smoking. The two who died in the hospital covered with slashes from Cain's razor were John Hall of Weehawken and Saxon Surrell. Chauncey DeGraff, a policeman, and August Liebman are in serious condition and may die. Cain himself has a bullet hole through his lungs, but probably will recover.

ASSIGNEE'S AUCTION SALE OF MAGAZINE

"Human Life" Knocked Down to New York Man For $2500

Boston, May 19.—A "Human Life" brought $2500 at an auction sale here. At 394 Atlantic avenue J. E. Conant sold for the assignee, H. H. White, this monthly, established in 1905. The purchaser was E. F. Hackett of New York.

Mr. Contant had a hard time in selling the magazine. He stated that the purchaser would get the good-will and assets of the publication, which included the business, the actual paid-up subscription list of at least 75,000, about 900 paid-up new subscriptions now in hand ready for acceptance if the magazine is to continue, list of recent expirations and new addresses of 50,000, over $10,000 in advertising contracts for 1911, office equipment, safes, etc. (cost $2000), photographs, half-tone cuts and, in fact, all the property now owned by the magazine.

The purchaser stated that he acted for himself, that he was not now a magazine publisher, but had been, and that he proposed to issue the June number at once.

ANTIQUES AT AUCTION

Mummies Thousands of Years Old Fail to Bring Good Prices

London, May 19.—Mummies apparently are a drug on the market, judging from the small prices offered at the sale of the teasures of the late Lady Meux. The most strenuous work of the auctioneer brought a bid of only $11,000 for the whole collection of Egyptian antiquities, though it included several mummies and coffins with dates ranging back 2000 B. C. The antiquities were withdrawn and will be auctioned separately later.

The Elizabethan carved oak staircase, said to have been trodden by Queen Elizabeth, James I and Charles I, was purchased by Claude Lowther, Unionist member of parliament, who paid $4625.

NEW JOB FOR BRANDEIS

He Will Assist In Inquiry Into the Postoffice Department

Washington, May 19.—Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston attorney who conducted the prosecution in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy and who volunteered to save $1,000,000 a day for the railroads of the country, will assist the house committee on the postoffice department to aid in the inquiry into that braneh of the government service.

At a meeting of the committee to formulate plans it was declared that his services would be voluntary. Brandeis probably will report to the committee today.

POLISHING MILL DESTROYED

Makes Spectacular Early Morning Fire

The polishing mill and sheds on Water street formerly operated by James Craig were destroyed by an incendiary fire at 4 o'clock this morning making a spectacular blaze that illuminated the sky and could be seen for miles.

The fire was discovered by a milk man coming down Liberty street who ran to Box 39 and gave the alarm. Evidently the fire had been under way for some time for it had made good headway.

At the time of discovery the fire seemed to be in the centre of the polishing mill near the engine but quickly spread in both directions. By the time the fire department arrived the whole polishing mill building was a roaring mass of flames as was also the end of the cutting shed adjoining. The steamer was located at the foot of Pleasant street and the burning building was surrounded with streams of water.

In the rear of the polishing mill and but a few feet away are the cutting sheds of John L. Miller. These sheds took fire several times but Chief Williams had a line of hose carried to this section so that the only damage to the Miller sheds was a few shingles.

The locality here is a dangerous one as the burning building is surrounded by a lot of wooden structures and it was only by hard work that a conflagration was prevented.

The burned plant has not been in operation for several years. At the time that Mr. Craig went out of business it was sold and passed into the hands of his creditors among whom are J. J. Gallagher, Eben W. Sheppard and Benjamin Johnson. Some of the machinery had been sold but there remained two large boilers, the engine and more or less shafting.

Of late the polishing mill has been used for a loafing place for "Weary Willies" and it is reported that gangs of toughs gathered there nightly. Some of the boarding has been torn away and has repeatedly been nailed up again.

The loss will probably not exceed $4000.

NEW ORGAN WANTED.

There will be a meeting of all those interested in purchasing a new pipe organ for the Atlantic Memorial church, Monday evening, May 22 at 8 o'clock in the church. Some money has been received for this purpose but the fund is not nearly large enough and it is the desire of many of the church members to have the organ installed early in the fall. It is felt that the new church will not be complete without the pipe organ and plans will be formulated Monday evening for raising the necessary funds immediately.

—We cannot have clean streets without some attempt on the part of the citizens to make them so. We are improving in our sense of the fitness of things, yet there are still too many persons who have no compunction in littering a street or a park with paper and other refuse.—Boston Post.

BOY'S CLUB DRAMATICS

Two Laughable Farces Given at Parish House

The Boys Club dramatics at Christ church were given Thursday evening in the Parish house with great success. Under the direction of Mr. Osgood, the boys had mastered their parts and each did his share toward making the evening very enjoyable for the audience.

The first play "Looking for Trouble" was well acted, each boy representing the type called for in the play very cleverly. An author, a tough, a very obsequious Frenchman, an American tar an Irishman and a gentleman of color all did their share in keeping the audience laughing throughout the performance.

The cast:

Mr. Thomas Trouble, an author — Orestes Cleveland
Sammy Slang, a tough — Calvin Moyle
Chevalier Jacques De Hombog, a Frenchman — Stanley Ross.
Tom Topsail, an American sailor, — Roy Westland
Terence Brady, from the Emerald Isle — Sam Prout
Rainbow, a gentleman of color — Fred Carson

The second comedy was entitled "Paddle Your own Canoe." This like the first play was exceedingly funny and kept the audience in an excellent humor from start to finish.

Dr. Rubber Dam, the dentist was very capably impersonated by James Smith and John Vergobbi did splendidly as Bob Ridley, a colored boy. The part of Buskin Socks an amateur tragedian was well taken by Henry Brown.

The part of Tin Wah, the Chinaman was splendidly interpreted by Ralph Prout.

Calvin Moyle had a good make up in the part of Mrs. Morey the landlady and did well in the part.

George Schools as Kate the daughter of Croesus, the nabob, was the belle of the play and looked quite beautiful in the pretty costume.

Alfred Rendle made a very pretty Milly Morey.

The cast:

Dr. Rubber Dam, a dentist — James Smith
Orpheus Beethoven Joyful, a musician — Walter Halvosa
Christopher Croesus, a Nabob — Harold Nightingale
Bob Ridley better known as Dr. Ridley, a colored boy — John Vergobbi
Buskin Socks, an amateur tragedian — Henry Brown
Larry Lanigan, an Irish Porter. — Sidney McLaughlin
Tin Wah, a real Chinaman — Ralph Prout
Mrs. Morey, Dr. Dam's Landlady — Calvin Moyle
Kate Croesus, Christopher's daughter — George Schools
Milly Morey, Mrs. Morey's daughter, — Alfred Rendle

—The less Massachusetts hears of Jesse Pomeroy, the better it will be all around. The unspeakable crimes of which he was guilty years ago call for no mushy gubernatorial sentiment at this day. Gov. Foss has shown such weakness in dealing with prisoners that undoubtedly the friends of Pomeroy see in him great hope. The State Prison officials are well qualified to deal with men of the Pomeroy brand, far better qualified than Mr. Foss.—Boston Herald.

OLD JACK, A WARTIME HERO

By J. H. ROCKWELL.

MOST men like a horse, but only a cavalryman takes a horse into full partnership or gives him that admiration which heroes deserve. Love for Old Jack began at Gettysburg, when he saw the captain who rode him cut off from his command and called upon to surrender. He shouted his defiance, gave Old Jack the spur and that horse brought him over seven fences and a great ditch back to his company. A bullet had raked the gallant steed, and the men cheered him as they wiped the blood away with their handkerchiefs.

Late that fall after a slashing fight on a Virginia meadow one afternoon we found Old Jack standing over the dead body of his master. Other horses were galloping wildly about here and there, but Old Jack stood unmoved by the excitement about him. Wounded horses approached to beg for sympathy, but he drove them away for fear they would injure the man at his feet.

He was with the army up and down the Shenandoah valley during a long campaign, and one night when a terrific storm stampeded 300 horses over to the enemy he alone returned. He raided and fought through that memorable year of 1864 and was wounded twice, but when the last campaign came he was ready for it, and when the final surrender of the enemy was made the white flags almost brushed his nose. Only a day or two before this a piece of shell had given him a severe hurt, but when driven to the rear with hundreds of other wounded horses he literally fought his way back to the front.

When he returned from Appomattox at the close of the war a quartermaster got hold of him, but when it became known by his old brigade that they were to go west Old Jack was put on the active list again and went with them. At Fort Leavenworth, where they weeded out the horses preparatory to the long trip to the Colorado line, Old Jack was led away to be branded with the letter "C" and sold to the highest bidder at public auction. Company A, to which he had been attached, resolved and protested and argued against it, but to no avail. However, before the degrading iron had touched his shoulder Second Lieutenant K. bought him, and he was brought back to his old place in the ranks, where he was given such a reception as only an old comrade could have counted on.

Far up the Platte, after the army had got well into the Indian country, a dozen men were cut off from the command one day. It was a race for life. The horse of a trooper fell with a broken leg, and Lieutenant K. took the man up behind him. Old Jack came in carrying double, an arrow grazing his quarter as he made the last half mile.

Farther west it was Old Jack who suddenly raised an alarm one midnight just in time to save the troop from attack. A week later he was bitten by a rattlesnake, and he was ordered to be shot, as has been done in a score of like cases, but Company A would not have it so, and, Providence sending a heavy rainstorm to stop the march, heroic doses of whisky were poured down his throat, and in the course of a few days he was all right and kicking up his heels as of yore.

Not long after this, one day while the brigade was marching along up between the forks of the upper Platte, Old Jack's rider ventured too far from camp, and he was rushed by half a dozen Indians. He dismounted and covered them with his revolver over the saddle. The horse stood like a rock. The savages yelled and waved blankets and fired their rifles, but they could not stampede him. In the midst of the excitement he saw the relief party while it was more than a mile away and neighed a shrill call of recognition and a warning to ride fast. Is it at all strange that the men of his company loved him as thoroughly as they loved their fellows? There were just fifty-five men in Company A out on the plains, and had they some day been obliged to accept fifty-five hardtack for a full day's rations Old Jack would have shared equally with the men. That's how much they thought of him.

In spite of his many narrow escapes

VILES--OLNEY HOME WEDDING

Largely Attended Reception Follows Ceremony

One of the first of the early summer weddings was solemnized Thursday night at Wollaston at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Olney 137 Grand View avenue, the bride being their daughter Edith and the groom Walter Eugene Viles of Lynn.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Walther of the First Baptist church, only the immediate family being present at the ceremony. Mrs. Frank Schwindt at the piano played the wedding march from Lohengrin for the entrance of the bridal party and Mendelsohn's wedding march for the recessional. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The house was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride, Miss Bessie Black, Miss Frances Colgan, Mrs. Nettie Ayers, Mrs. Lufkin, Miss Marjorie Gould, Miss Gertrude Lacey and Miss Minon Lacey who also served later in the dining room during the reception. The main entrance hall and stairway was in lavendar, wisteria and lilacs being used profusely. In the living room were palms, sweet peas and roses; the dining room, yellow daisies and the parlor in which the ceremony took place was in green and white, palms and white lilacs being used. The bridal party stood beneath a canopy of white lilacs with a background of palms and ferns, which made a beautiful setting for the bride in her gown of white satin and duchesse lace.

Following the ceremony there was a reception from eight until ten o'clock which was largely attended. A wedding supper was served and there was also a display of handsome and costly gifts of silver, cut glass, china and pictures, which attested to the popularity of the young people.

The ushers were Arthur C. Briggs of Newton, Alfred Luard of Newtonville and Edward L. Russell of Lynn.

Mr. Viles is connected with the business department of the Christian Science Monitor and has many friends in Boston and his home town Lynn, and the bride is well known and popular, having a wide circle of friends in Wollaston as well in the city.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Viles will make their home at 19 Chester street, Allston where they will receive their friends after July first.

SPOKANE MAN WILL CONDUCT GAME FARM.

Doctor Will Raise Mink and Muskrats For Their Fur.

Two thousand acres in the lake district north of Athabasca landing, in the province of Alberta, have been leased by Dr. T. J. Burgen of Spokane and his associates in eastern Washington, who purpose operating a mink and muskrat farm as a commercial enterprise. The work of preparing the farm and stocking it with animals will begin early in June. Dr. Burgen said of the project:

"I do not recall having heard of a similar experiment anywhere in Canada, but I have devoted all of my spare time for seven years to careful investigation, and I am convinced that the undertaking will be a financial success.

"I was over the ground recently and chose the location. We are arranging to place 5,000 rats in the lake, which is well stocked already. Dark rats will be used, as the pelts are of a higher commercial value than the lighter varieties.

"The rats require no food other than what they can get themselves except in unusual cases. We shall prepare for emergencies by growing carrots, which will be fed to the animals if necessary. The muskrat pelts are worth from 50 cents to $1 each.

"It is a much more difficult problem to handle mink, as special pens are necessary, and the net must be sunk deep into the ground so they will not escape. We shall obtain 500 animals when we begin operations in June and should have several thousand for commercial purposes a year from next winter. The mink will be fed on fish, which are abundant on our lease. We shall also handle some cattle, horses and dogs in connection with the fur farm."

Could, but Would He?

"I have called," said the young man, "to ask for your daughter's hand in marriage."

"Can you support her in the style she has been accustomed to?"

"Yes," answered the young man.

"But will you?" demanded her father, who was already supporting two sons-in-law.—Detroit Free Press.

"THE HAT DID IT"

By JANE PINCKNEY BENNETT

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"Here is the ring you gave me; take it. I do not wish to see you or it again."

She was striding back and forth, her cheeks aflame, her eyes flashing anger. She slipped a solitaire diamond ring from her finger and handed it to him. But instead of walking away in high dudgeon he sat down in an easy chair, rested his head back on the cushion, his elbows on the arms, and, holding the ring in his hands before his eyes, examined it critically. She cast a glance at him and uttered an exclamation of anger at his indifference.

"I must change that," he said to himself, though aloud. "Can't use this one again. I must get another."

"If you are saying all that for my benefit," she said, "you are having your trouble for nothing."

"I must apologize for having given you a stone with a flaw in it. I was deceived."

"I don't see that it makes any difference now."

"But the ring can't be used again."

"Used again! What do you mean?"

"Why, I have promised Sue that if you ever got huffy and returned it she should have it."

Sue is my sister.

"She said that, did she?"

"Oh, yes; she predicted this."

"Oh, she did!"

"Yes."

"And you're going to give her the ring?"

"Oh, no; not this one. I'll get her a perfect stone. This is worthless."

"I have not noticed any blemish in it. Let me take it a moment."

"No; it was given you as a token, a seal to a contract. That contract is broken by its return. You have no more interest in it than you have in a glass marble."

"I may have some curiosity, mayn't I?"

"All you like."

"Then let me see the ring. I wish to know if the man I have been engaged to had the effrontery, the meanness, to palm off on me a stone with a flaw in it."

"What has been in the case of a broken engagement concerns no one. It belongs to a dead past. By your returning the ring you annulled your interest in my past and my future. It doesn't make any difference to you whether there is a flaw in it or not."

"Perhaps you will condescend to tell me what you propose to do in the case."

"Of the ring?"

"Yes."

"I shall take it back to the man of whom I bought it and ask him for another, a perfect stone; that I shall have set according to Sue's taste and give it to her."

This was very mean of him. She remembered the day he had given her the ring; how beautiful the rainbow colors that sparkled from it; her thrill of joy at possessing it not only for itself, but for what it represented.

"Since I gave it to you," he went on brutally, "I've taken in a hundred dollars I don't know what to do with. I'll add that to the price and get a handsomer stone."

"Do you still care enough about me to grant me one favor?"

"I will grant you any favor you ask."

"Then don't give the ring to Sue."

"Why not?"

"I always liked Sue. I know sisters-in-law don't often agree, but I believe Sue and I would. This changes all that."

"Well, supposing I don't give it to her, who would you prefer should have it?"

There was no answer to this.

"I don't see why you should feel enmity to Sue for merely predicting that you would get huffy. You have got huffy, haven't you?"

"And what girl wouldn't get huffy at being treated so brutally?"

"How brutally?"

"Well, for one thing, of course, you know, didn't you say I looked horrid in that new hat I had taken so much pains to hunt up and have trimmed?"

"I said the hat was horrid. What else?"

She thought a moment, then said, "I don't exactly remember the next thing you said, but it was worse than the first."

"Do you remember the next thing you said?"

"Why, no, but I'm sure it wasn't very bad."

"Not especially so. It was simply that I was bereft of the slightest gentlemanly instinct."

"There was nothing in that."

"Nothing whatever—a mere pat of a velvet paw."

There was silence for a few minutes, when she said, "I've made up my mind as to the person I would like to have the ring."

"Well?"

"I think I would like it myself."

"What, with a flaw in it!"

"Don't be silly; there's no flaw in it."

"How do you know?"

"Because I looked for one when you gave it to me. Do you suppose a girl is given an engagement ring without making a careful inspection of it?"

"I was not aware of that."

It was his turn to be astonished.

"And I don't believe Sue said what you said she did, either."

"To be truthful, she didn't."

The rest of this story contains nothing new. Kisses are old as the hills.

They were discussing their husbands, neither of whom was distinguished for his domesticity.

"My husband amuses me," said the hostess, "by the excuses he has for being detained downtown of evenings Sometimes I can almost hear his brain working out an excuse as he tiptoes up the stairs.

"My husband," said the caller, "is different. He is a very systematic man, you know, and some time ago he wrote out a list of various excuses and numbered them. Now, when he comes in he just calls up the stairs, 'No. 4,' or 'No. 20,' or whatever the number may be."—Judge.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Turpentine For Seed Warts.

Common turpentine is said to be a sure cure for the worst cases of large and so called "seed warts." Have a bottle of it with a small camel's hair brush through the cork and touch the warts with it, if possible, morning, noon and night. For a time nothing seems to happen, but all of a sudden the warts will be looked for and will not be there, they go so quickly. No special care is required, as turpentine is harmless. It should, however, be carefully kept away from lights or fire of any kind.

NORTHFIELD SUMMER CONFERENCES.

All is activity on the campus of the Northfield seminary. June 10-13 will be "red-letter-days" in East Northfield when will be held the commencement exercises in this school founded by D. L. Moody 32 years ago. This event always draws large numbers of the friends of christian education; and Northfield has abundant facilities for caring for all who come, either in the buildings on the campus or in "The Northfield." The program announces, in addition to the usual chorus recital and sacred concert, the graduating sermon and address at the commencement exercises by the Rev. F. B. Meyer, who is expected from London, England.

During the period from June 10 to 17 Rev. Dr. Meyer will also deliver several addresses in the chapel of Mount Hermon School across the river. The Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas D. D., professor of Old Testament Literature, Wycliffe college, Toronto, conducts bible classes 5 days in week bible classes five days in the week from June 42 to July 21, and the Rev. James A. Francis, D. D., pastor of the Clarendon Avenue, Baptist church, Boston, will conduct the classes from July 21 to 29. Rev. G. A. Johnston Ross will also conduct a class during the general conference.

The Student Conference, which will open on June 23, running till July 2, inclusive, will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first summer Conference for students called by Mr. Moody. It will be presided over again by John R. Mott, who has been absent at the time of the summer conferences for two years past. The Conference this summer will have the opportunity of learning directly from his lips, in his striking incisive style, bristling with figures and facts, concerning the progress of the world-wide Christian movement among students. Mr. Robert E. Speer will also be here having been absent last year at the Edinburgh Mission Conference, and the preceding summer having of South America. Northfield will certainly be stirred as other conferences have been, when hearing his report on the need and present opportunity of that much neglected continent.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

Found by Committee Which Probed Lorimer's Election

FINAL REPORT IS SUBMITTED

Judge Who Ended Usefulness of Investigators by Ruling That They Had No Power to Subpoena Witnesses or Take Proof Is Censured—Illinois Senate Favors Reopening of Case In United State Senate

Springfield, Ills., May 19.—Senator Helm, chairman of the senate bribery investigation committee, offered in the senate yesterday a resolution requesting that the United States senate reopen the Lorimer investigation. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 39 to 10.

The final report of the bribery investigating committee, which was made to the senate previous to the introduction of the Helm resolution, holds that the election of Lorimer to the United States senate "would not have occurred, had it not been for bribery and corruption," and censures Judge Petit of Chicago for ending the usefulness of the committee.

The report was a voluminous document, containing testimony taken by the committee, the report of the United States senate sub-committee's evidence in the Lorimer case and the transcript of various bribery trials, all of which have resulted in verdicts of acquittal.

The committee report intimates that most of the persons accused seem to the committee to have been acquitted without sufficient evidence of guiltlessness. For the most part the report reviews evidence that has heretofore been printed.

Judge Petit ruled that the committee "had no power or authority to subpoena witnesses or take proof, because of the fact that the scope of said inquiry included not only members of the senate but of the house as well; and that in the passing of said resolution (creating the committee) the senate sought to embark upon an inquiry over which it had no jurisdiction."

The report avers that the action of Petit in releasing subpoenaed witnesses on writs of habeas corpus, on the foregoing grounds, was an "unwarranted and unlawful interference on the part of a member of the judiciary with a legislative branch of the government."

The whole question of bribery and corruption charges is placed by the committee before the senate for whatever action the members deem fit.

SALEM HAS $250,000 FIRE

Four Hundred Employes of Shoe Factory Flee For Their Lives

Salem, Mass., May 19.—The fire department of five cities and towns combined in fighting a fire which started on a bridge between Louis M. Tigh's leather factory and a storehouse of the American Hide and Leather company late yesterday afternoon. The fire threatened to wipe out the entire leather district of the city, and caused a damage estimated at $250,000.

In the rush of the 400 employes of the Cass & Daily Shoe company to get out of the five story factory, which caught fire and was threatened with destruction, a number of the men were overcome by smoke and had to be carried out. Aside from these there was no injury to persons reported.

VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Claim of Father and Brother of Young Man Found Dying

Worcester, Mass., May 19.—The local police say that the death of Hugh A. McCann, 24 years old, who was found unconscious on Shrewsbury street and died in the City hospital without telling how he received his injuries, was accidental, but William E. McCann, the man's father, and William, his brother, claim he was robbed and murdered.

An autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Baker and Dr. Bigelow showed that McCann had suffered a fracture of the skull and that death was due to hemorrhage of the brain.

The medical examiner said that there was nothing about the wounds on the man's head to show how they were received.

MADERO IS INVITED TO MEXICAN CAPITAL

It Means the End of Long Fighting In the Republic

Juarez, Mex., May 19.—After six months of bloody fighting the civil war between the Mexican government and the forces of Francisco I. Madero was declared at an end with the result of a complete victory for the revolutionists.

Judge Carbajal, peace envoy of the Mexican government, extended to General Madero an invitation to go to Mexico City and act in an advisory capacity when Francisco De La Barra assumes the office surrendered by Porfirio Diaz after twenty-six years of service.

Madero accepted the invitation, but said that he could set no date for his departure from Juarez.

Worcester Is Shown Petition Alleging His Unpopularity With Filipinos

Manila, May 19.—Dean C. Worcester, secretary of the interior, has nothing to say respecting the petition to congress signed by many preminent Americans which Representative Slayden of Texas has submitted to the house.

This petition charged that Worcester had become notoriously unpopular among the natives, and Slayden asked for a searching examination of the affairs of the Philippine islands.

Secretary Worcester was about to leave on his annual inspection of the non-Christian tribes in North Luzon, when shown the press dispatches. He declined to comment or discuss the situation in any way.

GOVERNMENT IS CRITICISED

Canadian Reciprocity Comes Up In House of Lords

GREAT BRITAIN'S INTERESTS

Earl of Selborn Thinks They Were Not Properly Safeguarded by Agreement With America—Government Replies That Canada Has Right to Promote Prosperity In Whatever Way She Thinks Best

London, May 19.—The government was sharply criticised by the Earl of Selborne in the house of lords last evening for what he termed their "extraordinary supineness" in failing to safeguard the interests of the United Kingdom in the American-Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The earl referred to President Taft's "very remarkable speech," and declared that when Mr. Taft said the annexation talk was bosh, all accepted the president's word; nevertheless, the agreement formed a precedent capable of very large extensions.

It was the first time in the history of the empire that one part had obtained better terms from a foreign country than had the United Kingdom, and the step between receiving and giving better terms was a short one. If the dominions got accustomed to receiving better terms, the earl continued, they might come to think that it was natural to give foreign countries better terms than they gave the United Kingdom or the other dominions of the empire.

Ratification of the agreement, the earl said in conclusion, would place this country in a position of extraordinary difficulty.

Baron Lucas, parliamentary undersecretary to the war office, replying on behalf of the government, declared that the Earl of Selborne greatly over-estimated the damage to the trade of the United Kingdom and the difficulties that might arise as a result of the reciprocity agreement. Canada was perfectly within her statutory rights and the government could not interfere.

The United Kingdom, the baron said, could never offer Canada the same advantages as could the United States. Canada and the United States were complementary to one another in a degree to which Canada and Great Britain never could be.

If Canada and the United States wanted a reciprocity agreement this county could not prevent it. Great Britain must give Canada a fair field for promoting her own prosperity in whatever way she thought best, and it was on these lines, Baron Lucas concluded, that the government was watching the reciprocity negotiations now going on.

PARSEVAL II WRECKED

Adds Another to Long List of Disasters to Dirigible Airships

Bitterfield, Saxony, May 19.—The Parseval II, the new German military dirigible balloon, while returning from a trial trip, was blown against the hangar and wrecked. Two passengers on board the airship suffered sprained ankles.

The Parseval VI, a passenger carrier, was badly damaged on April 21, when it went ashore on a tree during a flight from Berlin which aimed at Amsterdam. Last Tuesday the sixth Zeppelin was destroyed, and a couple of weeks ago the British national fund airship, built by the Lebaudy brothers in France, was wrecked.

The long line of disasters which has overtaken dirigibles confirms the opinion which many have held that this type, so far as it is at present constructed, will never prove successful.

REBUKE FOR CODMAN

Boston, May 19.—The Episcopal ministers of eastern Massachusetts rebuked Bishop Robert Codman of the Episcopal church, who said war was a good thing, by passing resolutions against war, and the resolutions commend the Lake Mohawk conference on international arbitration for its high peace aims and noble work towards getting all international disputes arbitrated instead of fought.

Before the motion was put, Rev. W. H. Dowty of Malden said: "In the face of what one of our bishops (Codman) has lately said about war, I most heartily second the resolution."

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

For the second week of his summer stock season at the Majestic Theatre, Manager Lindsay Morison will present his popular players, headed by Eleanor Gordon and Wilson Melrose, in Broadhurst's famous play, "The man of the Hour," by special arrangement with W. A. Brady. The season opened with conspicuous success last Monday afternoon and evening, with the elaborate production of David Belasco's "The Girl of The Golden West," and it is no more than justice to the members of Mr. Morison's exceptionally brilliant company to say that this stirring drama of the West was never better presented in Boston. Beginning Monday afternoon, "The Man of The Hour" will be the play every afternoon and evening for the week. The royalty paid for this play is undoubtedly the largest ever demanded in the history of stock productions in Boston, and this will be the first time that "The Man of The Hour" has ever been seen in this city at popular prices. It is promised that this production will be in every respect equal to the original presentation in Boston. The entire strength of the Lindsay Morison Stock Company will be utilized. Mr. Wilson Melrose will, of course, play the part of the young Mayor, Alwyn Bennett' and Miss Eleanor Gordon will be seen in the leading role of Dallas Wainwright. The tremendous political story in "The Man of The Hour" is too well known by this time to require repetition here; but while it has its serious significance, it fairly teems with bright comedy. The subscription sale for the season has been most flattering but it is still possible to make good reservations of season seats in both orchestra and balcony. At every Monday matinee all patrons will be presented with beautiful souvenir boxes of chocolate bon-bons.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

Boston theatregoers are to witness another Viennese operetta at the Shubert Theatre, Saturday night, May 20th, for an indefinite engagement. The piece in question is "The Kiss Waltz" which the Messrs. Shubert have prepared for a summer run in New York. The operetta (originally played for two season in Vienna under the title of "The Love Waltz") is expected to take rank with "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier," both of which proved such great successes. The cast as one may judge from the names is exceptionally capable. The scenes, three in number, are laid in the Riviera. The first shows the Hotel Elektra, the second the Villa Wildenberg, and the third a wayside tavern. Guido Spini, a young musician has composed a world famous "Kiss Waltz." The comedy falls upon Charles Bigelow, the well known comedian who was with Anna Held for so many seasons, and inimitable Eva Davenport who was last seen here in "The Paradise of Mahomet" and "Old Dutch" Van Rennsalaer Wheeler will be seen as Guido; Maud Lambert, of "Midnight Sons" fame, as Nella; Edith Bradford, late of "The Chocolate Soldier," as the Countess; Charles Angelo recently seen here as the husband in "Madame Troubadour" Elsa Ryan, always a musical comedy favorite, as a simple girl from the country; and Edgar Atchison Ely, late star of "Billy," as an impecunious baronet.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Opening at the Colonial Theatre on Monday evening, Ralph Herz will appear as a star in "Dr. DeLuxe" under the direction of Joseph M. Gaites who has been giving to Boston such excellent attractions as "Bright Eyes," "Three Twins," "The Girl of My Dreams," and "Katie-Did." "Dr. De Luxe" is by Otto Hauerbach and Karl Hoschna, authors and composers of "Madame Sherry" as well as the above attractions that Mr. Gaites has played in Boston. "Dr. DeLuxe" is a novel musical comedy that introduces a new theme. After rescuing a child from being run down by one of the idle rich, John Truesdale, afterwards known as Dr. DeLuxe makes his entrance. Marjorie Melville sees his heroic deed and persuades Dr. DePaw to take the newcomer on his staff. Miss Melville is the daughter of a real doctor and Dr. DeLuxe being called to the house to treat a sick dog is mistaken for an assistant that Dr. Melville has ordered from Bellevue and without being allowed to explain his business he is forced to become a real doctor and after treating a few women who do not know what is the matter with them and having very little knowledge of medicine he discovers the dog powders that have been given him by the veterinary to treat the sick dog with, he administers these to the young ladies. The funny complications that arise during the mix-up causes the audience to scream with delight. "Dr. DeLuxe" comes direct from the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, where it has had a successful and profitable engagement.

B. F. KEITH'S TREATRE.

What promises to be in many respects the most pretentious bill of the year is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. It is headed by Irene Franklin, who is by common consent the greatest character singer now on the stage, and her song "Red-head," will be remembered for all time. Miss Franklin was recently the star of Lew Fields' "Summer Widowers,' and her return to vaudeville will be marked by a sensation even greater than that of previous years, as her songs are all new and the types presented by her entirely different from anything she has done before. This bill will contain a number of features new to Boston. It will include J. C. Nugent, the western actor, and a splendid company in a comedy called "The Squarer." There will also be Stepp. Mehlinger & King, three boys from the western coast who have created a sensation in New York with their rag-time singing, piano-playing and impersonations. The week will also mark the first appearance in vaudeville of Anton Torelli, unquestionably the greatest double bass player in the world, who was brought to this country by Director Russell of the Boston Opera House and during the past season played with the Opera Company. He has just finished a successful season with Fiorencio Constantino, the great Opera House tenor, who has been on a concert tour. Other features will be Hill & Sylvani, balancers; Paul LaCroix, "the" man with the hats;" Gordon Brothers, singers and dancers; and LaToy Brothers, comedy acrobats.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Sheridan's famous comedy, "The Rivals" will be given at the Castle Square next week. There is a fund of merriment in this play that is inexhaustible, and in every character it abounds in agile wit and clever sayings. It is a play to test the skill of any company of players, and Mr. Craig and his associates will triumph in it as they triumphed last season. Its role of Bob Acres, a country squire who although a coward at heart is inveigled into a duel with the audacious Sir Lucious O'Trigger is a character to command the skill of any clever comedian. In this part Donald Meek made a distinct success last season, and he will reappear in it before Castle Square audiences after an absence of several months. The cast will also be notable in every detail. In addition to Mr. Meek as Bob Acres, Mr. Craig will appear as Captain Jack Absolute, Mr. Hassel as Sir Anthony, Walter Walker, as David, Frederick Murray as Sir Lucius, Kate Ryan as Mrs. Malaprop and Gertrude Binley as Lydia Languish. "The Rivals" can be given for a period of only one week.

A man recently advertised for competent persons to undertake the sale of a new medicine, and adds that "it will be profitable to the undertaker." No doubt he knows its worth.

GRAND ARMY PARADE WITHOUT JACKIES

Retaliation For Barring Men From Portsmouth Halls

Portsmouth, N. H., May 19.—Captain Wilner, commanding the Portsmouth navy yard, gives this city another slap through the Grand Army.

The surprise of their life was what Rear Admiral Foster, retired, and Captain Sanborn, both members of the Grand Army post, got when they called on Wilner for the usual detachment of sailors and marines to take part in the Memorial day exercises as has been the custom for nearly fifty years.

Captain Wilner declared that the Grand Army could have none of the enlisted men on that occasion, neither would he appear himself at the exercises, and would have absolutely nothing to do with the ceremony of the day in Portsmouth.

He gave as a reason for this declaration that the enlisted men were refused admittance to dance halls in uniform and that the citizens and city government upheld the managers of these places of amusement.

SPEED LIMIT REMOVED

Automobiles May Run at Any "Reasonable" Speed In Bay State

Boston, May 19.—An automobile may run at any speed so long as it is "reasonable," in this state, according to a decision handed down by the full bench of the supreme court.

The decision was to the effect that there is no absolute or fixed speed limit at which automobiles may be operated in this state, and if the jury finds that the rate of speed was reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic, use of the way and safety of the public, they should find for a defendant, no matter at what rate of speed the automobile has been run.

New Hospital Dedicated

North Conway, N. H., May 19.—A memorial hospital, presented by Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Merriman, was dedicated here yesterday afternoon. The nearest hospitals previously were at Portland, Me., and Portsmouth. The hospital is designed to meet the needs of a territory with a population of 10,000 people.

Expelled From Medical Society

Boston, May 19.—A trial board or jury of the Massachusetts Medical society found that Dr. George W. Galvin is guilty of the charge that he violated the bylaws of the society when he advertised in Boston newspapers, and decreed that he should be expelled from membership in the society.

BEAUTY AND FAITH.

One of the noblest words in the English language is "faith"—not the faith of the makers of creeds nor the signers of creeds, but a bigger faith by far than this; not faith in a pope nor a priest nor a preacher; not faith in a book nor a church nor a man, but faith in the infinite God and in the utter reasonableness of the universe; a faith that can face the contradictions of life, its injustices, its tyrannies, its vices arrayed in purple and its virtues clothed in rags—and still believe that God is good; the sort of faith that, looking back over years of blasted hopes, can still face the future bravely and with a dauntless spirit.—Rev. Robert Goldsmith.

TWO DECISIONS OF IMPORTANCE

Massachusetts Supreme Court Disposes of Milk Cases

WHITE CROSS COMPANY WINS

Not Violating Statute When It Adds Water to Milk Concentrated In Their Vermont Plant, as It Is a Manufactured Product—Court Holds That It Is Not Really Milk—Exceptions of Graustein & Co. Are Overruled

Boston, May 19.—The full bench of the supreme court has decided that under the statutes a milk dealer who takes standard milk, concentrates it by certain formulas, brings it to Boston from another state, adds water to the concentrated product and sells the result as milk, without distinguishing marks, is not liable to a fine. The court was divided in its ruling on the case.

This important decision was made in the case of the Boston White Cross Milk company, which was fined $50 in the superior court for selling milk prepared in just that way under revised laws, chapter 56, section 55, which reads in part:

"Whoever, himself, or by his servant or agent, has in his custody or possession with intent to sell . . . adulterated milk or milk to which water or any foreign substance has been added shall be punished by a fine, etc."

The point raised by the defendant at the trial was that its "concentrated milk" was not milk within the meaning of the statute and the supreme court upholds this contention.

Inspector of Milk Jordan said that he sees no reason why, under this ruling of the court, all milk dealers cannot concentrate their milk in this way, add water from Boston faucets and sell the product as milk.

The Boston White Cross Milk company was indicted for having such milk on sale on June 21, 1909. A few days previous to that date officials of the company told Inspector Jordan that they were selling 500 cans of their milk a day in Boston. By the process of concentration, done in the company's plant at Randolph, Vt., "a milk resulted which looked, tasted, smelled and curdled like cow's milk and could be used for every purpose that cow's milk could be used."

The construction of the statute referred to was the point at issue before the supreme court.

Another decision was made on an appeal from a lower court decision by Graustein & Co., milk dealers, who were found guilty by a jury of having in its possession with intent to sell milk which contained stable sweepings from the cowpen. The company was found guilty and fined $100, and it then appealed. The supreme court upholds the verdict of guilty and the company must pay the fine.

The supreme court says in the Graustein case: "In many cases it would be practically impossible to prove that foreign substances had been purposely added, nor does it make any difference to the consumer in what way it had been added. The intent is to see that impure milk be not sold, irrespective of the question of how or in what way it became impure.

"In view of the history of the legislation on this subject, the emphasis placed by the legislature upon the need of protecting the community from impure milk and the fact that whether the foreign substances gets into the milk through a positive act, intentional or unintentional, or by accident attributable or not to negligence, is entirely immaterial so far as respects the health of the consumer, which is the ultimate thing to be protected. We are of the opinion that the statute is not limited to cases where the foreign substance was added by a previous voluntary act of some person."

LIVED AS A BACHELOR

Death of War Veteran Who Had Aided Comrades In Need

Boston, May 19.—Colonel George W. Nason, an officer in the Civil war, and who during the past few years, it has recently become known, spent a considerable fortune in aiding needy comrades, died yesterday at the City hospital after a five days' illness. He was 77 years old and kept bachelor apartments at 36 Bromfield street.

Colonel Nason was born in Franklin, Jan. 11, 1834, and was married May 10, 1854, to Harriet A. Kilburn at Lunenburg. His wife died in April, 1866, and since then he had lived as a bachelor. His one son was killed in an elevator accident in 1874.

Kaiser to Get Ancient Estate

Berlin, May 19.—An estate at Lehnin, Brandenburg, notable for the ruins of its Cisterian abbey, founded in the twelfth century, has been purchased by an anonymous buyer for presentation to Emperor William.

Gift of $25,000 From Carnegie

London, May 19.—Andrew Carnegie has given $25,000 to equip the medical institute of the university college of London.

BRIEFS

The Unitarian church Helpers of the Wollaston Unitarian church held their regular meeting in the vestry Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The West Quincy All Stars would like to arrange games with any strong base ball nine in Quincy. William Belanger, manager, 354 Copeland street.

William J. Walshe who was to have lectured Sunday evening at Music hall has canceled his date for reasons which he will satisfactorily explain next week.

At a meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Park and Downs church on Thursday, Mrs. Littlefield gave a very interesting adres on "Foreign Missions."

The G. A. R. meeting was adjourned at 8.15 Thursday evening so that the members of the Post could attend the Peace and Arbitration meeting in City hall.

Rev. S. C. Gillam of Cawnpore, India, spoke at the meetings in the First Presbyterian church, Thursday evening, giving a very illuminating discourse on mission work in India. Dr. Gillam is in charge of the Indian exhibit in "The World in Boston."

The many friends of Mrs. Odom of Independence avenue sympathize with her in her recent bereavement in the sudden and unexpected death by an accident of a very dear and only sister, Mrs. H. B. Abbott of Berkeley, California.

Speaker Joseph Walker addressed the Men's club of the South Congregational church of Braintree Wednesday night. His subject "Good Citizenship" was well handled and he made a good impression on his listeners.

Dr. Joseph Clarke, one of the missionaries who has come to Boston to assist in the great missionary exposition, spoke at the meeting in Bethany chapel Thursday evening. Dr. Clarke gave a very interesting and instructive address telling of his work in the Congo district of Africa.

SOCCER FOOT BALL.

The Fore River, meet the McGregors Saturday on the Fore River grounds at Quincy Point, in the second round of the Williamson challenge cup, competion. Both teams having won their games, last Saturday. The winners of this game will meet Charlestown or Boston-Americans in the final game. As both teams are going strong a fast game should be put up by both teams. Fore River's team will be chosen from Malcolm, Neil, Lewis, McDonald, Elliott, Campbell, Bonner, Carruthers, Ross, Rennie, Richardson, J. McDonald, Hughes, Moran, Melville, Dunlop and Ritchie.

NO FIXED SPEED LIMIT

Automobiles Can go at Any Rate of Speed

The supreme court handed down a ruling Thursday that is of the greatest interest to owners of automobiles inasmuch as the ruling says there is no fixed limit of speed. The laws today provide that the limit of speed in thickly settled sections shall not exceed a certain limit and thousands of dollars have been paid in fines throughout the state by automobile owners who it was alleged have been exceeding the limit. This is particularly true in Hingham where numerous traps have been set by the police and in Milton where the town maintains an automobile for the police department to trail speeders.

The decisions handed down were in the case of the commonwealth vs. Daniel Cassidy accused of operating an automobile at a rate of speed that was greater than was reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic, the use of the way and the safety of the public.

The supreme court says: There is no absolute or fixed speed limit at which automobiles may be operated in this state, and if the jury finds that the rate of speed was reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic, use of the way and safety of the public, they should find for a defendant no matter at what rate of speed they find he operated.

If a jury find a defendant operated an automobile in excess of 15 miles an hour for one-eighth of a mile within the thickly-settled part of the city, the jury should find for the defendant if they find the rate of speed was not greater than was reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic, the use of the way and the safety of the public.

The superior court had refused to give the rulings, the substance of which are above, and the full bench holds the trial judge erred in so refusing, for those propositions state the law in this commonwealth.

Defendants exceptions are sustained.

BANQUET OF JUNIORS.

The annual banquet of the Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Wollaston Baptist church was held Thursday afternoon.

After the banquet there was a short program consisting of piano solos by Edna Gray and Gertrude Bullock and a recitation by Vivian Dresser. After Edna Gray had played her solo she was presented with a bouquet of pinks by Mrs. Kendall F. Harriman, superintendent of the society, as a token of appreciation for her faithful services as pianist during the year.

Muriel Dresser gave the secretary's report and Miriam Goodspeed read the treasurer's report which showed that over $40 had been raised during the year for missions and current expenses.

Samuel Drew, president of the society then introduced the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther who spoke briefly and also Mrs. Kendall F. Harriman the superintendent who made a short address.

About 50 children sat down to the banquet which was served by a committee of ladies, Mrs. Kendall F. Harriman, Mrs. J. Arthur Jewell, Mrs. Lawrence Wilson and Mrs. Elford Durgan.

At the close of the banquet the Juniors gathered around the pastor and cheered the officers and the banquet committee and others.

ELECTRIC BOAT COMPANY.

Operations have been begun at the new plant of the New London Ship & Engine Company at Groton, Conn., where are to be constructed the engines and machinery for the submarines which the Electric Boat Company is about to build for the United States government. One hundred men went to Groton last week from Quincy. In about a week the new plant will be in full operation.

SPORTING NOTES.

Baseball games on Saturday:

Makaria vs. Hamiltons of Lynn at Merrymount park, 3.30.

Y. M. C. A. vs. Quincy Adams club at Merrymount park, lower field, 3.30.

Fore River Apprentices vs Clapp Memorial at Weymouth.

Manets vs. Atlantic A. C. at Lynn.

The Makaria game should bring out a good crowd of fans Saturday afternoon. The Hamiltons of Lynn won the title of amateur champions of the state last year and same team represents the club this year. Makaria had no game last week but put in their time in practice and the team should be fit for a victory.

The Wollaston and Harvard golf teams had a 3 to 3 tie match on the Montclair links Thursday afternoon. R. R. Freeman had little difficulty in defeating Hollins and E. C. Tarbell and T. M. Claflin won by closer margins.

Messrs. Gallagher, McLaughlin and Fuller were defeated by the college men matched with them. The summary:

R. R. Freeman, Wollaston, beat McKim Hollins, Harvard, 5 and 4.

D. E. Nugent, Harvard, beat J. E. McLaughlin, Wollaston, 3 and 1.

T. A. E. Harris, Harvard, beat J. J. Gallagher, Wollaston, 3 and 1.

E. C. Tarbell, Wollaston, beat W. V. Booth, Harvard, 1 up.

T. M. Caflin, Wollaston, beat T. M. Smith, Harvard, 2 up.

S. C. Davison, Harvard, beat T. R. Fuller, Wollaston, 6 and 5.

In t he grammer school league, the games for Thursday resulted as follows:

Cranch 9 Hancock 3
Quincy 9 Williard 8

Games for today:

Lincoln vs Washington
Wollaston vs Coddington

Quincy High will cross bats with Hingham high school at Hingham this afternoon. Quincy should experience little difficulty in winning if she continues to play the same quality of baseball displayed in the Wendell academy and Groton sch ool games. The most prominent fault in the Groton game however should be done away with immediately, namely the tendency of every batsmen to try to knock the cover off the hall.

A delegation from the registry department of the Boston post office where Walter Lonergan has worked for a number of years went to the Brockton-Lynn game at Lynn yesterday. Just before the game he was presented with a handsome traveling bag. Walter responded by playing a winning game for Brockton getting two hits which counted in the run getting and accepting seven chances in the field without an error.

The annual interclass track meet of Quincy high school will take place Saturday morning on the third field at Merrymount park.

The events will be:

100 yards dash, 220 yards dash, 440 yards dash, 880 yard run, 1 mile run, running broad jump, running high jump, hop step and jump and shot put. The meet should be the closest and most exciting in years owing to the number of dark horses. White the freshman athlete should win the jumps and possibly the weight event.

In the mile and half mile, Manning and Sutermeister will fight it out for the supremacy.

Tirrell is looked upon as a dark horse in the 440 with Trask, Cranshaw and Estey as the most formidable competitors, Holmes is considered the fastest man in the short sprint.

The meet is called for 10 o'clock Teachers and prominent alumni will act as officials.

The Fore River Apprentices want a game with a strong amateur team for the afternoon of May 30. The manager has the permit for the upper field at Merrymount park but has been disappointed in the game he expected to get. The full expenses of the visiting team will be paid.

SUCCESSFUL IN THE WEST.

Friends of Thorpe Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Babcock of this city, will be interested to hear of his promotion to the position of secretary of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association. This is the second largest lumber association in the United States and is national in its responsibilities, as reciprocity with Canada and trans-continental freight rates come among other things within its scope. Mr. Babcock will probably be one of the delegates to the convention to be held at Chicago this month. An article from his pen was published recently in the Lumberman's Journal, dealing with differentials in lumber prices, illustrated by a chart of Mr. Babcock's drafting.

SUNBEAM CLUB.

The Peak Sisters, an entertainment that embodied a program of music and recitation formed the annual entertainment of the Sunbeam club held in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church on Thursday evening.

The young ladies were gowned in black with white kechiefs and tall pointed paper hats. Miss Helen Jones took the part of the eldest sister.

In connection with the program a candy sale in charge of the young ladies netted a tidy sum. The club is made up of young girls of the Congregational Sunday school.

In the cast on Thursday evening were:

Misses Eleanor Jones, Gladys DuPlessis, Lucy Waite, Mary Broughton, Florence Rowebotham, Elizabeth Schroeder, Lillian Jones, Ramah Baker, Marion Orcutt, Muriel Warner, Miriam Addison, Lucy Falconer, Velma Haskins and Pauline Randall.

—Nearly time for the "Sane Fourth" people to begin their pleadings. The great day is not far off and care should be exercised in celebrating this great holiday. What man of mature years cannot look back on his boyhood days, and with a smile of satisfaction recite occurrences of those glad days when discretion was cast aside and every noise producing instrument was used to make the eagle's screaming effective. All this was punctuated with other forms of strenuous exertion ,and all joined in making the occasion memorable, for it was the nation's birthday and was a vent for pent up enthusiasm that required more means for exit than is furnished at a strawberry festival or a quiet retreat in the open country. Those when-we-were-boys days will never be forgotten.—Mansfield News.

Dr. Johnson's Revenge.

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most liberal manner. Johnson heard him some time unmoved, but at last, losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor. Osborne alarmed the family by his cries, but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir until he had exposed him in that situation and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—From Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

GUEST NIGHT CATHOLIC CLUB

Two Act Comedy Mr. Bob Makes Hit With Ladies

Fortunate indeed were the ladies who were privileged Friday evening to attend the annual guest night of the Quincy Catholic club at Colonial hall and witness the presentation of the comedy entitled "Mr. Bob."

The evening was in charge of a committee composed of Miss Mary R. Lyons, Miss Anna J. Walsh and Miss Helen H. Gavin who certainly proved that they were well chosen. The affair was exclusively for ladies the only exception being a few newspaper scribes who however only ventured as far as the door.

The special invited guests of the evening included Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, president of the Quincy Women's club, Mrs. R. J. Teasdale, vice president of St. Mary's guild, Mrs. Thomas A. Addison, secretary of the Quincy Charitable society, Mrs. Cocagnio, and Mrs. Bonita, two of the ladies of the Argentina party who are in Quincy during the building of the battleship.

The members and guests were welcomed by Miss Mary L. Gavin, the enthusiastic president of the club who briefly referred to the work the club had accomplished during the past year particularly from a charitable standpoint and her apreciation of the support which the members had given the officers of the club. The entertainment for the evening, Miss Gavin announced, would be the presentation of a comedy by some of the club members entitled "Mr. Bob."

Of the presentation of the comedy, too much in praise cannot be said. Some of the characters called for the ladies to appear in garments, somewhat unfamiliar to them, but they carried out their parts to perfection the appreciation being frequently shown by the audience who were most hearty in their applause.

Particular mention however should be made of Miss Lulu T. Crowley's interpretation of the character "Philip" Miss Anna J. Walsh as "Robert" and Miss Mary R. Lyons as "Jenkins" the butler. Of the other characters Miss Helen H. Gavin, Miss A. Gertrude Crowley, Miss Mary G. Heaney and Miss Helen F. Galvin were also equally as good although gowned in the costume alloted to ladies.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Philip Royson — Miss Lulu T. Crowley
Robert Brown, — Miss Anna J. Walsh
Clerk of Benson and Benson
Jenkins, — Miss Mary R. Lyons
Miss Rebecca's butler.
Rebecca Luke, — Miss Helen H. Gavin
A maiden lady.
Katherine Rogers, her neice,
Miss A. Gertrude Crowley
Marion Bryant, Katherine's friend
Miss Mary G. Heaney
Patty, Miss Rebecca's maid,
Miss Helen F. Galvin

The scene of the comedy is laid in Miss Rebecca Luke's home, she is expediting her architect with plans for her home, which she expects to convert into a home for deserted cats. There is also a missing codicil, which if found will give some money to Miss Luke and if not found the money will go to some charity.

Mr. Robert Brown, clerk for Benson & Benson lawyers, comes down with the missing codicil. He is taken for Mr. Saunders, a college friend of Philip Royson's. Mr. Bob a friend of Katherine's, Mr. Brown the architect. The situations are very ridiculous.

Marion, Katherine's friend is nicknamed "Bob" and she is a good yachtsman, Katherine and Marion try to induce Mr. Brown to sail with them but he faints at the sight of the water. Philip has made a promise to Aunt Becky that he will not sail his boat in the race and "Bob" sails the race for Kitty. Phil knows nothing of the arrangement and thinks that Mr. Bob or Mr. Brown is sailing he brings Mr. Brown in on his shoulders as the victorious yachtsman and is told that he is not "Mr. Bob." Marion or Mr. Bob is introduced, and Mr. Brown is finally allowed to tell "why he came down."

At the conclusion of the entertainment Miss Gavin, was presented with a handsome bouquet of carnations by the club in appreciation of her work as president of the club. Miss Gavin briefly expressed her thanks at the expression of good will and wished the club all future success in its chosen line of work.

Ices and cake were then served by the refreshment committee.

THE MAID OF JAPAN

Tuneful Opera to be Heard Next Week

"The Maid of Japan" a tuneful opera written by Matthew Ott of St. John's church which is to be presented for the benefit of St. John's parochial school next Wednesday evening is sure to make a hit.

MRS. MATTHEW OTT
As Namiko

The scene is laid in Japan in the garden of Nishayme and deals with present day conditions of affairs between Americans and Japanese. Secret service men of the little brown race sent to America to photograph American fortifications are closely followed by American secret service men.

Of course running through the whole is a pretty love story of which Neeta, the charming daughter of Shula Topalia and Namiko daughter of Tekeo Nishiyama are the heroines.

Neeta falls in love with Stafford Wardwell an American secret service man while Namiko falls in love with his valet. The opera sparkles with wit and humor.

The chorus a particularly strong one will have no end of pretty girls in brilliant costumes of old Japan, and jolly gowned men to make the scenes lively.

FIVE INITIATED.

At the meeting of the Sons of Veterans last evening five new candidates were initiated. The men were appointed to assist at the memorial exercises in the different schools and plans were made for observing Memorial day. It was voted that 450 plants be purchased to be used in decorating the soldiers graves. Special exercises will be held at Col. Abner Packard's grave.

RESPONSIBLE POSITION.

Jesse B. Baxter of East Milton has resigned his position as paymaster of Walter Baker & Co., Milton and been elected vice president and a director of the Blue Hill National bank. He will take up his new duties June 1. As vice president, Mr. Baxter will devote his entire time to the bank.

Regarding this change President Robert F. Herrick of the Blue Hill bank says:

"The need of an active vice president was recognized when we became interested in the bank, and we have been looking for some time to find a man of suitable training and sufficient local information and interest to make him the right man. We think we have found this in Mr. Baxter. He knows town affairs intimately, has a wide acquaintance with all the people in Milton and vicinity, and further, by reason of his banking training and experience in Boston, has a large general acquaintance. With him we are hoping that the bank will become even more useful to the citizens of Milton and vicinity than it has in the past."

Although born in a house on Adams street, Quincy, about 200 feet over the Milton line, Mr. Baxter has lived in this town practically his whole life, and now resides at 644 Adams street, East Milton. He has been prominent in many different lines of activity in Milton and has a wide acquaintance throughout the town. He is thirty-eight years of age and was educated in the Milton public schools, being graduated from the High School in 1889. He entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the class of 1893 and after leaving there taught school for a year in Kansas City, Kansas.

He has had a wide banking experience, beginning his career in this line at the International Trust Co. in Boston. During the period of the various bank consolidations in Boston, Mr. Baxter was conneted with different National banks. He resigned his position as discount clerk with the Freeman's National Bank in December, 1906, to become paymaster of Walter Baker & Co., a position he has since occupied.

Mr. Baxter has served the town in various offices being auditor 2 years and a selectman 6 years from 1904 to 1910. He was chairman of the board from 1907 to 1910. He has been a member of the Republican town committee for 16 years and has been chairman for the past four years. He was elected treasurer of the Milton Savings Bank in December, 1909, and has since held that position. Mr. Baxter is treasurer of the East Congregational church and president of the Men's club of that church. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Savings Bank Treasurer's club, the Bank Officers' Association of Boston and various other local societies and clubs. In 1898, at the outbreak of the Spanish War Mr. Baxter enlisted in Light Battery A. M. V. M. and served three years. He was married June 29, 1909 to Miss Katharine Woodbury, formerly of Oxford, Mass.

The Blue Hill National Bank is nearly 80 years old. As the Dorchester and Milton Bank, a State institution, it was organized in 1832. Its quarters were in a wooden building on the east side of Washington Street opposite River street, Lower Mills. In 1851 the name Blue Hill Bank was adopted and in 1864 it became a national bank. The bank has had six presidents, Gen. Moses Whitney, Hananiah Temple, Asaph Churchill, E. J. Bispham, Samuel Gannett and Robert H. Herrick. The cashiers have been Hananiah Temple, Joseph L. Hammond, E. J. Bispham and Sarell J. Willis. The last time there was a vice president was 1890 to 1893 when Samuel Gannett occupied that office. —Milton Record.

THE ANNUAL RECEPTION

Senior and Junior Classes Receive at High School

The annual Senior-Junior reception of Quincy High school was held in the gymnasium last evening with an attendance of about 75 couples. The "gym" was decorated in national colors and the corner in which the Chaperons sat had the big school flag for a background. Miss Norma C. Lowe, Miss Clara E. Thompson and Miss Louisa R. Holt acted as chaperons.

The regular order of dances was carried out with the Wollaston orchestra furnishing the music and the moonlight waltzes were especially enjoyable.

Punch was served during the evening in the lower corridor.

Quite a number of teachers attended the reception as well as the pupils of the two upper classes and the evening was called one of the most enjoyable of the year.

This is the last social event of the school for the year with the exception of the graduation reception and the class party which is for Seniors only.

The committee for the reception last evening consisted of the following: Marion Bolster, Elizabeth Sayward, Paul Blackmur, Harold Chapman and William Cranshaw.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

MANUFACTURING STATISTICS.

Census manufacturing statistics for two places in Norfolk county were issued this week by the census bureau in Washington. They are for Quincy and Weymouth and the figures are for 1909 as compared with 1904. In Quincy the value of manufactured products increased from $8,982,000 in 1904 to $10,505,000 in 1909, a gain of 17 percent. The number of establishments increased from 161 to 183, a gain of 14 percent: The increase in capital invested was 30 percent, and in average number of wage earners employed 2 per cent.

Weymouth showed a more rapid growth than Quincy. The value of manufactured products grew from $4,922,000 to $6,627,000, an increase of 35 per cent. The number of establishments dropped from 46 to 41, a loss of 11 percent. There was a 51 percent increase in the capital invested and an 8 percent increase in the average number of wage earners employed.

THE LOGICAL YOUNG MAN'S BANK
The young man's bank should be the bank that will, by its sturdy character and solidity, dignify his relations with it and his standing in the business world. Young men who habitually bank their earnings and surround their incomes with banking safe-guards will find their habits of thrift improving steadily. If you don't see why, call and talk it over.

A good many things have happened since we entered the grocery business several years ago, and so a good deal of experience goes into our business.
When we started in business it was in the times when success was built on Quality— Quality alone—and failure on the lack of it.
And we have never gotten away from the idea of Quality first —we are still doing business on this bases, and we always will, for we know in the bottom of our own hearts that it is the reason why we are today the leading food shop of Quincy.
Don't plan a hot dinner these warm days. Buy some of our cooked meats and take life easy.

FRIDAY CLUB ANNVERSARY.

Friday club celebrated its twentieth anniversary Friday, May 19, by lunching at the Parker house, Boston. Nearly all the active and several of the honorary members, were present; among the latter, was Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, who enjoys the unique distinction of being the only woman outside the membership list, to whom this courtesy has been awarded.

The large, oval table presented a most beautiful appearance, with its decorations of ferns and pink Killarney roses, individual souvenirs, and place cards, on each of which was an apt quotation. The president, Mrs. John F. Welch presided and extended cordial greetings to those present.

After the five course luncheon had been served, the guests enjoyed a short program, conducted by the president, consisting of two original, humorous poems, one clever poem written especially for the occasion, a response on behalf of the honorary members by one of their number Mrs. Frederick A. Tupper, and a composite story by Miss Edith Randall, bringing in the names of all the guests, which caused great merriment.

The good cheer and spirit of amity which prevailed, were emblematic of the tone of the club, throughout all these twenty years.

The meeting came to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

BRIEFS

Mrs. J. A. Bamford of Hancock street is rapidly recovering from a recent severe illness.

On Thursday, Ascension day, holy communion will be celebrated at St. Chrysostom's church at 10 A. M.

St. Chrysostom's Woman's Guild its last meeting for the season on Wednesday afternoon at half past two in the parish house.

Dr. Fred E. Jones, who is a Major in the Fifth regiment leaves Monday for Mexico where the trouble has been. The Major is anxious to get on the firing line.

Rev. Richard E. Armstrong of Christ church and Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra of St. Chrysostom's church are to exchange for the Sunday morning service.

Mrs. Daniel C. Miller of Willet street came home from the Homoeopathic hospital, Boston, this week, where she has been for the past three weeks. Her many friends are glad to have her with them again.

Today is carnation day in Lynn and all over the city are charming flower girls selling the fragrant pinks. The sale has become a yearly feature and is for a worthy charity, the anti-tuberculosis camp at Swampscott.

BRIEFS

The late Miss Rachel M. Golding was a loyal church woman and a beloved associate of St. Chrysostom's branch of the Girls' Friendly society and as a fitting mode of expressing their sense of her worth, the society wishes to erect a lowing memorial to her, and the concert to be given at Alpha hall Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Fowler and family will start a fund for that purpose. There will be vocal and instrumental trios, duets, solos and a sextet besides a chorus of fifteen voices which is out of the ordinary when composed of one family.

The Rev. Jason G. Miller a former pastor of the Memorial Congregational church, visited Atlantic friends Thursday. Mr. Miller has held a pastorate at Ashburnham since he left Atlantic.

The delegates from First church to the annual business meeting of the American Unitarian Association on May 23 and 24 are Rev. E. C. Butler, Rev. C. B. Ames, and Mr. C. H. Johnson.

Mrs. William Hill and family have leased the Hinkley house on Newbury avenue.

Walther Men's class meets Sunday at 1.15 in the Wollaston Baptist church. Great chorus of men, 90 men were present last Sunday. Short snappy address by Hon. Theophilus King of Quincy. Subject: "Scoring." Solo by Miss Ruth Louise Hardy. Lesson discussion, "Vineyards Ancient and Modern," and "Some Great Questions Concerning Temperance and Intemperance." All men invited.

Several well known young people have formed a walking club and for several Sundays have made all day tramps into the Blue Hill district and surrounding country. The girls take box lunches. All enjoy the outdoor air and exercise.

At an ice cream sale held recently in the Quincy school, the sum of ten dollars was realized. This will go toward purchasing a picture to be presented to the school by the graduating class.

BRIEFS

The Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church will hold its anniversary service Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock. Special music, a review of the year's work by the retiring officers, installation of the new officers, the outlook for the new year by the new officers, an address by the pastor, are some of the features of the service, which it is hoped will prove both helpful and interesting.

The grading of the grounds around the Memorial church will greatly add to the fine appearance of the building.

Rev. Thomas Roscoe of Norwell will occupy the pulpit at the Universalist church on Sunday morning. Mr. Roscoe is well acquainted with many in the parish and it will be a pleasure to hear him on Sunday.

The Sunday school of First church is to rehearse at its session Sunday noon the music for Floral Sunday which comes on June 4th.

For the accommodation of those who wish to attend church services at Quincy Sunday morning a car will leave Squantum street upon the arrival of the ten o'clock car from Squantum going by way of Norfolk Downs through Quincy to School street.

HOUGHS NECK

The house owned by Dr. Taylor on Great hill has recently been sold to Mr. Wenners.

The Men and Lady Associates are planning a supper to be given in June

W. H. Fanning and family of Roxbury have returned to their cottage on Rogers street for the summer.

Mrs. Eugene Tessier's dog is to be entered in the Boston dog show.

Tom, Tom, the Piper's son, stole the washboiler for a drum,
But his Mother laughed—she washed today
Without any boiling, the Fels-Naptha way.
And found it so easy and quickly done,
Tom can have the boiler for his fun.

Some "don'ts" for women who have their washing "done out."

Don't blame your washwoman if your clothes come home yellow or streaked and bearing a nasty odor.

The responsibility is yours.

She may not have heard of the Fels-Naptha way of washing in cool or lukewarm water which makes clothes whiter, and clean and sweet.

You have.

She may be boiling the life out of them, rubbing till her back nearly breaks with the ordinary old-fashioned kind of soap because she doesn't know any other way.

It is your duty to tell her; to see that she uses Fels-Naptha soap.

Then your clothes will come home as snowy and fresh as you could wish and they'll last longer.

And your washwoman will thank you for making her work easier.

Just see that she gets Fels-Naptha soap and tell her to follow the simple directions on the red and green wrapper.

Endorsed at Home

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Quincy Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Quincy adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

John R. Duffy, 14 Copeland St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am so favorably impressed with Doan's Kidney Pills that it gives me pleasure to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint. I am fully convinced that this remedy will do all that it is claimed to do. If anyone would like to obtain further details regarding my case, I will be glad to answer any questions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's— and take no other.

MAY FESTIVAL.

The May festival of the First Presbyterian Y. P. S. C. E. was held in the lecture room of the church last evening and it proved to be a very enjoyable affair to about 100 young people.

Early in the evening, charades were given by members of the committee. Emigrants, Bargain sale and Baggage were acted out in pantomine.

After the audience had guessed these a vocal solo was rendered by Mr. Hegie. Mr. Meekum gave two enjoyable readings and George Wilson told some funny stories.

When the program was completed all joined in playing games and later refreshments were served. Music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Miss Jessie Shirley, piano, Miss Edna Crokett, violin and Wendell Clark, cornet.

A sale of ice cream and cake netted a considerable sum.

The committee on arrangements was Misses Lillan McIntosh, Jennie Norrie, Mary Morison, Margaret McIntosh, Ruth Kemp and Messrs George Craig, George Shirley, Wendell Clark, William Michael and Lawrence Butler.

JOSEPH MEIR MURDERED IN QUARREL OVER GIRL

Vincenzo Baggarozzo Plunges Knife Into Breast of Victim in Girl's Presence

Murderer Escapes after Committing Deed but Arrested later in East Boston

Joseph Meir aged 25 years of 9 Brook road was stabbed and killed by Vincenzo Baggarozzo aged 17 years of 66 Penn street early Sunday evening on Penn street in a quarrel over Annie Johnson a 16 year old girl of 57 Penn street. Baggarozzo made his escape after inflicting the deadly wound but was later captured at the residence of a relative in East Boston where he had taken refuge.

The stabbing took place almost in front of the girls house a few minutes before 8 o'clock. Baggarozzo who boards at 66 Penn street had been studying English with the girls father and had spent the greater part of the day at the girls home, to whom he was most devoted. Late in the afternoon he went home and putting on his best clothes started to make an evening call upon the girl. As he approached the house he saw Meir in the yard of a Spanish boarding house at 55 Penn street talking to Annie over the fence.

The sight of Meir talking to his girl threw Baggarozzo into an uncontrolable rage and began to berate him and warn him to keep away from the girl. Meir talked back and soon there was a bitter quarrel in progress. The Italian claimed later when arrested that Meir first drew a knife and attempted to stab him but the story told the police by those nearby was that the Italian drew a knife from his pocket and thrust the long keen blade four times into the breast of Meir who gasped and staggered away from the fence. Each of the four wounds had penetrated the region of the heart and Meir lived but about ten minutes.

The girl at the stabbing screamed and staggered toward her home on the verge of fainting.

When Meir fell on the steps of the Spanish boarding house the boarders rushed out and seeing his condition one ran for Dr. McLennan and others ran to the depot where a train was about due to head off the murderer if possible.

After committing the murder however Baggarozzo ran to his own boarding house but as his hands were covered with blood and held the knife in his hand. As he attempted to enter the other boarders seeing his condition cried out "Get out of here. You can not come around here fighting and making trouble. Get out."

Baggarozzo then ran out of the house and took the railroad tracks toward Braintree.

When the two Spaniards who had gone to the depot found that the Italian did not take the train for Boston they ran to the police station and notified Chief Burrell. Much valuable time however had been lost which gave the fleeting murderer quite a start.

Police headquarters Boston Station 11, Dorchester and the police of surrounding towns were notified by telephone to look out for the man although but very little description of the man wanted could be given and at that time even his name was not known.

In the meantime a police call followed by one round of Box 39 the box nearest the scene of the murder, had been sounded. This called all available policemen to the station.

HOUGHS NECK.

At the Men Associates' whist party Friday evening, honors were awarded to Mrs. Wall, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Stooper and Mrs. Morey. Mr. Antony Medros, Frank Boutilier, Mr. Baker, Mr. Wall and Mr. O'Brien.

A yacht race is scheduled for Saturday, May 27th the first of the season.

On account of the recent small pox scare every child and teacher in the Atherton Hough school has been vaccinated, although some were vaccinated only a few months ago, they were obliged to go through the same ordeal again. Even though this was done for the welfare of the place and people, many of the parents are much angered that they were not consulted or given an opportunity to employ their own family physician.

An unsecure staging on which Edward Jarvis was working in West Quincy Friday gave way and he fell about 25 feet. He was brought to his home on Sea street and a physician summoned. No bones were broken but he was badly bruised and shaken up.

Mrs. J. Quimby of Brockton has taken the Georgeanna cottage on Taber avenue for the season.

A fancy hat party is to be given in the Bungalow May 27, for the benefit of the building of the new Catholic Lyceum.

MRS. HILDA MALIN.

The funeral services of Mrs. Hilda Malm were held in the Swedish Lutheran church, Sunday afternoon at 2.30. The pastor, Rev. S. N. Elvin conducted the service and preached a sermon on "Faith, Hope and Love." Selections were rendered by a trio.

The casket was covered with flowers sent by the many friends of the bereaved family. Interment took place at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

HENRY E. NELSON.

The funeral of Henry E. Nelson was held Saturday afternoon from his late home on Berlin street and was very largely attended a large delegation of the employees of the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., being present. Services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Walther. During the services Mrs. Estes presided at the organ and there were vocal solos by Miss Ruth Hardy. There was a wealth of beautiful flowers including a large set piece from his fellow employees. The burial was at Milford.

HALF HOUR TIME.

Commencing Monday May 29 half hour time will be run on the Norfolk Downs line between Quincy and Neponset. Cars on this line will leave Quincy on the hour and half hour during the morning and at 5 and 35 minutes past the hour in the afternoon.

BRIEFS

Percy Taber of Baxter street left Saturday for Hartford, Conn., to accept a position in that city.

Mrs. Leonard C. Hewson and daughter Marion of Newcomb place spent the week end in Ashland.

Miss Ethel Schools of 42 Centre street left Saturday for Albany, New York, where she will visit her uncle Alexander Rose formerly of Wollaston.

"Diamonds and Hearts" a three-act drama is to be given in the parish house, Christ church, this evening in aid of Reapers Circle, King's Daughters. The play is an amusing one and should bring out a large audience of members and friends.

Mrs. Roger H. Wilde and Mrs. Ida F. Waterhouse of Atlantic are to attend on Tuesday the state convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Worcester, as delegates from the Abigail Phillips Quincy chapter of Wollaston.

Announcement is made by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad that the summer timetable schedules of passenger trains on all divisions will go into effect Sunday, June 4, at 12.01 A. M. Timetables giving full particulars will be in the hands of ticket agents Friday, June 2.

Among the officers of the Massachusetts militia to be sent to the manoeuvre camp of regular forces at San Antonio as announced Saturday by Adjt. Gen. Pearson, is one from Quincy, Dr. Frederick E. Jones of the medical corps. Ten officers are to make the trip leaving Boston today.

TWO FLIGHTS AT SQUANTUM

New Burgess-Wright Biplane Moth a Success

W. Starling Burgess with Charles K. Hamilton a pupil as passenger made two successful flights at the Squantum aviation field Saturday in the "Moth" the new Burgess-Wright biplane for which Mr. Hamilton paid $6,000.

The flights were made at 6.30 P. M. in the presence of a number of people interested in aviation, including students from various colleges, schools and universities, who are on the field with their gliders, preparing for the glider meet the last three days of this month.

Cromwell Dixon, the dirigible balloon pilot, who has gone into aviation and will fly a biplane this season, was also among the spectators, as was Louis Mitchell of Memphis, Tenn, the wealthy southerner who is here to learn to fly.

At the moment when the Moth was taken from the hangar to the getaway, the fog had lifted, the sky was without a cloud, there was scarcely any wind and the sun looked like a blood-red ball as it hung in a smoky haze in the west. Hamilton can fly a Curtiss machine with anybody, but the Wright machine is different as he found out two weeks ago when he attempted to fly this machin e at New Britain, Conn., and wrecked it when he attempted the first turn and bank.

There are more levers to be looked after in the Wright machine and the warping device is not worked on the same mechanical principle as the allerons on the Curtiss machine. The elevator is behind in the Wright and in front on the Curtiss and the rudder is worked differently. The power is also differently controlled and there are two propellers on the Wright, while there is only one on the Curtiss.

These differences bother Hamilton so he is learning to fly all over again in the Wright machine and is confident he will have it mastered in a few days under the careful tutelage of W. Starling Burgess. He believes this new machine is more stable in the air than any machine he has ever been in.

Both the aviators stepped into the machine after the power had been turned on and after a run of about 200 feet the Moth rose gracefully as a gull into the air and headed for Squantum head. When over the water Mr. Burgess made a turn and came downthe course to the western end at a 40-mile clip and at a hight of about 60 feet. He turned again, flew across the short end, turned again, came down to the getaway and landed like a feather.

In a few moments the machine was started again up the getaway and rose from the ground more quickly than the first time. This time Mr. Burgess sailed wide over the water and over the Neponset river toward Atlantic, making two wide circles around the field, when he alighted again in the same easy and graceful manner as he had the first time—without jar or shock.

Hamilton was immensely pleased with both flights and with the way the machine acted. He and Mr. Burgess will be on the field again early this morning to make some more fights if the conditions are favorable.

When Hamilton gets familiar with the machine there will be some flying at high altitudes over this field, probably early next week.

BUSH HAMMER THIEVES.

Bush hammer thieves have been rather active of late and several granite yards have had hammers stolen. Some of these were recovered last week in Boston by Lieut. McKay and Saturday five others were recovered at the store of John Evans on Copeland street. Later in the afternoon Lieut. McKay arrested Lueigi Ceshini for the offence. He was arraigned in court this morning and the case continued until Tuesday morning.

NOTICE.

There will be a special meeting of Div. 5 A. O. H. tonight (Monday) in their hall to take action on the death of Bro. Stephen Swain.

CITY SQUARE CAR ACCIDENT

E. B. Fletcher of Dorchester Has Leg Broken

E. B. Fletcher of 49 Dix street, Dorchester, had his right leg broken Sunday afternoon in a peculiar manner. Fletcher was riding on the inside running board of an inward bound Dudley street car due in City Square at 2.55. As the car came into the square a car bound northward came along. It is thought that Fletcher became confused for he jumped from the running board and was caught between the two cars.

The result was that his legs became pinched between the cars. Fortunately the cars were moving slowly and were quickly stopped.

Many of the passengers on the cars were women who screamed loudly and Ernest Pool a 19 year old Weymouth boy fainted from fright. He was taken to Kittredges store and restoratives applied by Mr. Kittredge and Stanley Duncan after which he was removed to his home in a carriage.

Dr. H. C. Hallowell was called to treat Mr. Fletcher and he was later removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance when it was found that he had suffered a fracture of the right leg.

BODY RECOVERED.

The body of Henry E. Teasdale, the young attorney, who has been missing for four weeks, was found floating in the old Prout Quarry hole on Sunday by an Italian. The police were notified immediately and after considerable difficulty it was recovered.

On the evening of April 23, he was calling on friends in Dorchester and missing the late car from Milton Lower Mills started to walk home over his usual route. The night was unusually dark and well as he knew the path, he missed it and fell into the quarry hole When found he was fully clothed with hat and gloves on.

Mr. Teasdale was prominent in West Quincy where he made his home with his family at 8 Cross street.

He graduated from Boston university law school two years ago and set up a practice in the Adams building, Quincy and in Boston. He was a member of Ave Marie council K. of C. of West Quincy.

INFORMAL TEA TO TENNIS CLUB

President King Entertains Members at Club House

Mr. Delcevare King, president of the Quincy Tennis club gave an informal social tea to club members and their friends at the clubhouse on Saturday from 4 to 5.30.

About 100 were present and with the courts filled with players and with the clubhouse steps, the piazzas and the adjacent lawns filled with members and their friends it was a pretty sight.

The idea of the tea was not so much to have a pleasant social time for a single afternoon as to get the friends of the members as well as the members in the way of dropping around afternoons in order that this summer the clubhouse may be even more of a social centre than heretofore.

To further carry out this idea the club will serve lemonade Saturday afternoons and Mrs. Wallace Carr and Mrs. Carl Sheppard are the committee in charge for next Saturday.

A HOT DAY.

Most everybody thought Sunday a hot day and they certainly thought right for the temperature at noon registered 86 degrees. There was good air however which tempered the breeze somewhat. Today however the weather is still warmer for at noon the mercury had climbed to the 91 degree mark. The air was hot and stuffy and felt as though thunder showers were not far off.

Today also is the hottest May day for more than fourteen years as during this period the highest temperature at noon has been but 90 degrees which was in 1908, 1903, and 1900. In May 10, 1896 the temperature climbed to 93 degrees at noon.

STEPHEN N. SWAIN.

Stephen N. Swain one of South Quincys long residents died Sunday afternoon at his home Phipps street after a long illness. Mr. Swain was for many years engaged in the boot and shoe business but of late years has conducted a variety store at South Quincy being one of the Daily Ledger agents in the section. He leaves a widow two sons and a daughter.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Twenty-one nations give Carnegie a gold medal for promoting peace. If they don't look out he will try to work off a library on some of them.

The Bangor fire loss has been whittled down from $10,000,000 to $3,000,000. The trained fire reporter always divides the first estimate by two.

Seventeen Baltimore students have offered to be subjects to test a cancer cure, while most of us cross the street to avoid a friend who has recently had the measles.

Solomon's crown is said to have been found by archaeologists. Perhaps King George could buy it cheap at second hand, instead of having to invest in a new one.

Waltham is planning to rival Quincy in aviation contests this summer and will open its new aviation field on June 15 with a grand meet which will continue daily for five days. The longest stretch on the flying field from the southeast to the northwest corner is one half mile. This is much greater than the longest stretch on the Squantum field which is 1000 feet.

It is easy to understand why Dr. Grenfell is so successful in his missionary work in Labrador for he is very human. In addressing some 5000 people Wednesday afternoon at "The World in Boston" he said: "I believe that I can serve God as effectively by cutting out the sufferer's appendix as I can by preaching the gospel to him," he said. "We must learn that as missionaries we must give the people what they want, not what we think they want, for it is not what we get out of life but what we put into it that counts.

"I hate to think of Jesus Christ coming to earth as an insurance ticket instead of as a teacher and a help. And we in Labrador try to teach and help in as simple ways as did Christ. Some of our lieutenants who are Harvard graduates are teaching the Eskimos and fishermen how to make corn cakes, and how to open the window and let the air in and in doing so have the true missionary spirit."

THE HOME MERCHANT, NO. 8.

The impression prevails with some people that it is cheaper to buy of mail order houses and of merchants in distant cities, then at the home store.

By buying at home, however, you avoid a share of the enormous rentals and taxes of some vast metropolitan establishment. You also save your share of the army of clerks that it takes to run that distant and complicated machine.

If the distant emporium keeps a larger assortment than the home store, the customers have to pay for it. Such extended lines can not all prove to be of staple value. Many of them are put out as an experiment, to test popular desire. When they fail to meet the demand of the hour, they are withdrawn and sold at a great loss. The staple lines that people do want have to be sold at a higher price enough to pay the bills for keeping freak and fancy goods.

The big mail order houses sell runs of goods that are very largely seconds. Their customers are too far away to come in and kick, consequently goods can be worked off that would be rejected as trashy if offered by the home merchant. Such goods are costly in the long run.

Death of Artist Vinton

Boston, May 22.—A noted American portrait painter passed away in the death of Frederic P. Vinton, after an illness of not more than a week, at his home in this city. He was born in Bangor, Me., in 1846.

SMALL PORTS ARE EXPENSIVE

Uncle Sam May Drop Severa In New England

OPERATED AT A HEAVY LOSS

Nantucket Custom House Had No Receipts Last Year, Yet Its Expenses Reached $366—York, Me., Collected $2.50, For Which the Government Paid Out $502—Records of Some Other Non-Paying Places

Washington, May 22.—If congress adopts the recommendations of the secretary of the treasury custom houses at a number of small ports in the New England states will be done away with entirely or consolidated with other districts.

Assistant Secretary Curtis, representing Secretary MacVeagh, has given the house committee on expenditures in the treasury department an outline of the plan the department has worked out. More minute details will be furnished the committee this week.

For many years custom houses have been in operation in various parts of the country whose receipts are a great deal less than their expenses. This is true of a number of places in New England and it is this class that MacVeagh wishes to do away with. Attempts have frequently been made to cut down the list of custom houses, but political influence has always prevented, even though a good deal of money might be saved.

The New England ports that are marked for discontinuance or consolidation are the following:

Masaschusetts—Barnstable, Edgartown, Nantucket, Newburyport, Salem and Beverly.

Maine—Belfast, Castine, Frenchman's bay (Ellsworth), Kennebunk, Machias, Saco, Waldoboro, Wiscasset and York.

Rhode Island—Briston and Warren.

Connecticut—New London.

The worst record made by a New England port last year was Nantucket, where there were no receipts at all. All the customs official did was to issue eleven documents to vessels. The cost of operation was $366.70.

York, Me,. has the worst record of those New England ports in which collections were recorded. The total receipts at York were $2.50. It cost $502.60 to run the custom house, or $201.04 for every dollar collected.

The records for the New England ports that are under the ban are as follows:

Massachusetts—Barnstable, receipts $769.99, expenses $3703.48, cost to collect $1, $4.81; Edgartown, receipts $613.49, expenses $2405.13, cost to collect $1, $3.92; Nantucket, no receipts, expenses $366.70, cost to collect nothing, $366.70; Newburyport, receipts $501.53, expenses $600, cost to collect $1, $1.19; Salem and Beverly, receipts $5648.25, expenses $6514.86, cost to collect $1, $1.15.

Maine—Belfast, receipts $8128.52, expenses $3708.69, cost to collect $1, 45 cents; Castine, receipts $464.31, expenses $4294.24, cost to collect $1, $9.24; Kennebunk, receipts $268.48, expenses $314.55, cost to collect $1, $1.17 ;Machias, receipts $522.02, expenses $4456.54, cost to collect $1, $8.53; Saco, receipts $9.08, expenses $753.92, cost to collect $1, $83.03; Waldoboro, receipts $1817.01, expenses $5397.57, cost to collect $1 $2.97; Wiscasset, receipts $360.22, expenses $3004.50, cost to collect $1, $8.43; York, receipts $2.50, expenses $502.60, cost to collect $1, $201.04; Frenchman's bay, receipts $728.94; expenses $3636.56, cost to collect $1, $4.98.

Rhode Island—Bristol and Warren, receipts $47.63, expenses $344.90, cost to collect $1, $7.24.

Conecticut—New London, receipts $4081.58, expenses $7508.05, cost to collect $1, $1.83.

CAR KILLS WHOLE FAMILY

Hits Buggy Containing Man, Wife and Their Two Daughters

Newark, O., May 22.—The family of D. W. Dodson of Hebron was wiped out when an electric car struck their buggy and killed Dodson, aged 30; Mrs. Dodson, of the same age, and their two little girls, aged 7 and 4.

The Dodsons were riding along the highway which flanks the electric line, a mile east of Hebron, and were passing a car, when their horse became frightened and plunged across the track in front of the car.

PEACE NEAR AT HAND

Diaz Expected to Relinquish the Presidency This Week

Mexico City, May 22.—A peace proclamation that will settle the war finally, it is believed, will be made today, the date of the expiration of the armistice between the federal troops and Madero's insurrectos.

It is believed that President Diaz will step down and out for good on either Thursday or Saturday next, and that then there will be a complete transfer of the government.

Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

GRANT TO TECHNOLOGY

State Will Give a Million Dollars to the Institute

Boston, May 22.—Governor Foss has signed the million dollar state grant to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The bill gives the institute $100,000 a year for ten years.

The governor gave out a statement shortly after signing the bill, in which he said that because of the peculiar relation of the Institute of Technology to the commonwealth, the present grant can be applied, but that it is not a precedent for similar action in the case of other institutions.

The governor also gave out extracts from letters received from President Maclaurin of Technology, President Lowell of Harvard and other prominent men in favor of the grant.

LEVY IS BLACKBALLED

Hebrews Are Not Wanted In the Exclusive Metropolitan Club

Washington, May 22.—Jefferson M. Levy, newly elected representative in congress from New York city, has failed of admittance to the Metropolitan club here, thereby sharing the fate of Representative Martin W. Littleton of New York, and making the second New York congressman barred from that organization since the beginning of the extra session of congress.

The reason ascribed for the rejection of Levy's name is that he is a Hebrew. The some minority members of the governing board objected to Littleton because he was a "self-made man."

Granite Strike Settled

Milford, N. H., May 22.—The strike of the Paving Cutters' union, which began March 1, was settled yesterday. It is stated the bill of prices is a little higher than at most granite centres.

"L" CHANGED TO "W"

In the forthcoming Boston Division Telephone Directory (forms close next Friday, May 26) the letter "L" in all telephone addresses will be changed to the letter "W."

After today, all new installations or changes from present service, that ordinarily would be assigned the letter "L," will be given the letter "W."

Neither subscribers nor occasional users will be inconvenienced in the slightest degree by these changes, as they will be made automatically and without interference with the service.

This notice is intended simply to keep patrons informed of such changes as may be of interest to them, and to assure them that this one is made to avoid confusing letters that sound somewhat alike by telephone and to promote correct operating.

It would be well to give your order early if you intend to install a telephone for the summer or to make a change in your telephone address.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

FIRST PRESYTERIAN.

At the service Sunday morning the pastor preached from the text, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

In the evening the pastor's subject was "Poor Investments."

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was led by Mrs. James A. Matheson.

The children of the Bible school will meet for rehearsal of Children's day exercises on Wednesday.

The regular young peoples prayer service and the church prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening.

QUINCY POINT CHURCH

"Spirit in Service" was the subject of an unusually good sermon by the pastor at the Sunday morning service.

In the evening another fine sermon was given on the theme "Christian Citizenship." One of the most noteworthy things said by Mr. Marshall was "There should be an eleventh commandment, Remember the week day to keep it holy.

On Wednesday evening, a delegation from the Men's Club join the North Weymouth church in lestening to an address by Charles Reynolds Brown, the dean elect of Yale and known the country over as the great California preacher.

The regular church prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther on "Three Great Changes" was a masterpiece. Under these three divisions, Regeneration, Sanctification and Glorification, he drew a lesson that was an inspiration.

The Walther and Rand Men's classes listened to a short, snappy address by Hon. Theophilus King of Quincy. Subject: "Scoring." The 75 men present were well entertained. A song service under the leadership of A. D. Albee and a solo by Miss Ruth Louise Hardy preceded the address.

The lesson for discussion was Vineyards, ancient and modern, and some questions concerning temperance and intemperance.

Mr. King, Mr. Albee and members of the class entered into the discussion of these questions.

Junior Endeavor meeting at 3.30 o'clock in the chapel, Mrs. Kendall F. Harriman in charge.

Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Growing into larger work." Mark 4:26-32. Meeting in charge of Mrs. Harriman.

Evening worship at 7 o'clock in the auditorium. Short sermon by the pastor. Subject: "Some Inspired Withouts."

Tuesday afternoon at 3 the Women's prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dresser, 18 South Central avenue.

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street. The pastor will lead.

Thursday evening at 6.30 the Rand class will have a supper for its members in the chapel.

Friday evening at 7.45 the regular meeting for praise, prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel. Subject: "The May number of Missions." Please read the magazine carefully and come prepared to tell what you find interesting and helpful in it.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

In exchange with Rev. Carl G. Horst, of the Wollaston Unitarian church, Rev. Harold Green Arnold of Bridgewater occupied the pulpit Sunday morning. "Specialization of Efforts" said he "is one of the characteristics of modern civilization and while in a sense, it shuts the doors and windows of man's house of life to give him power of concentration upon his own work, the sub-division of labor makes for the ultimate large interests of mankind. The greatest danger in concentration of labor is that so the outlook into larger interests is lost, but in the co-operation of many men in the same cause there is an inspiration to those doing the less important parts of the labor, and a sense of interdependence in enterprise. In isolation and detachment of workers lies the danger that, contributing but a small part to an unseen and often uncomprehended whole, the individual lose the joy of doing creative work which is so necessary an antidote to monotony. Comprehension of the service given to mankind is one of the greatest impulses to inspired labor, and the church aims to insure for the world's workers a wholeness and holiness of life.

This week is Anniversary week, during which all of our national societies will hold important meetings. There will be morning prayer in King's chapel daily at 9 A. M. and vespers in the First church at 5 P. M. The annual reception will be held at the hotel Somerset at 8 P. M. this evening. Tuesday, 10 A. M. in South Congregational church the annual meeting of Women's Alliance.

Tuesday, 2.30 to 7.30 P. M. in Tremont Temple meetings of the American Unitarian Association.

Wednesday 7.30 P. M. in Tremont Temple, mass meeting of Unitarian laymen. Speakers Dr. Charles W. Ellit; Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, chaplain of U. S. Senate; Adelbert Moot, Esq., of Buffalo; Hon. Hugh McK. Landon of Indianapolis; Hon. William E. Chandler of Washington, D. C. Seats will be reserved for Wollaston Unitarian laymen.

Thursday, 10.30 in King's Chapel eighth annual meeting of Unitarian Historical society. 3 P. M. in King's Chapel, meeting of the Unitarian Temperance society. 2 P. M. and 7.30 P. M. in South Congregational church, annual meeting of the Young People's Religious Union.

Friday, 10 A. M. and 2.30 P. M., Unitarian Sunday School society meetings in King's Chapel. 6 P. M. Unitarian Festival in Tremont Temple.

The fourth annual lawn party of our church will be held on Safford street, Saturday afternoon and evening, June 10th.

Children's Sunday occurs June 18. All who intend to present children to be christened, please confer with the minister.

The summer meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held with the First Congregational society in Needham, Wednesday, June 7. This church has just celebrated its two hundredth anniversary.

A public meeting of the Federation of Churches in Greater Boston will be held in Trinity church, Copley square, Tuesday, May 23 at 7.45 P. M. Speakers: Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., Rev. Charles R. Brown.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

The pastor delivered the Sunday morning sermon from the theme, "Jesus prays that Christians should be united." Special music was rendered by a mixed quartet.

In the evening the subject of the sermon was "God's Lachrymal."

The Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs. S. N. Elvin, 48 Euclid avenue, Thursday afternoon.

The Young People's Society will go to Waltham Thursday evening to carry out a program before the society of the Lutheran church of that city.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor took the text of his Sunday morning sermon from I King 18: 41-45 "An old Testament Prayer" was the subject. Two selections were rendered by the male choir.

At 4.30 in the afternoon a roll call meeting of the Young People's society was held Rev. G. H. Palmgren was the leader.

The subject of the Sunday evening sermon by the pastor was "Omnipotence." Miss Signe Wilbas sang a very pleasing solo.

A concert will be given in the church on Thursday evening by the mixed choir of the Boston Swedish Congregational church, assisted by the male choir of the local church. There will be solo and selections by a quartet as well as the pieces rendered by the choir.

Mr. Erickson of Everett, a pupil at the New England Conservatory of Music will render selections on the piano. The concert is for the benefit of the Sailors Home in East Boston.

Rev. G. H. Palmgren, Miss Esther Danielson and Miss Ruth Danielson were the delegates from the Young Peoples society to the delegates meeting in Boston on Saturday and Sunday. Rev. G. H. Palmgren gave an address at the service Saturday evening and was elected chairman of the committee to plan for the big meeting on Labor day.

CHRIST CHURCH.

Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston conducted the Sunday morning service. The text of his sermon was "He who is not for me is against me."

In the evening the rector took for his subject, "Lessons from the pageant of Darkness and Light."

The dramatics under the auspices of Reapers' Circle of King's Daughters will be given in the Parish house this evening at 8 o'clock.

The last meeting of the Junior Auxiliary for the season will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3.45.

The Boys' club will meet on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock in the parish house.

Holy communion service will be held on Thursday Ascension day, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

St. Margaret's Guild will hold its regular meeting Thursday evening at 7.30.

BETHANY CHURCH.

Rev. W. A. Pulsifer of Oak Park, Ill., conducted the services on Sunday. In the morning he preached an inspriring gospel sermon. Splendid music was furnished by the choir and soloists.

In the evening, Mr. Pulsifer preached on "Active and Passive Christianity."

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was led by Miss Agnes Fisher. It was a union meeting with the Junior society and had as its subject: "Growing into larger work."

PARK AND DOWNS CHURCH.

The pastor preached a sermon Sunday morning on the subject, "Confidence as the condition of Christ's work," the faith, the capacity and the willingness to receive his teachings.

The anthem solos were rendered by G. A. Smith, A. M. Dingwell and Miss Sass. S. Musgrave rendered the solo.

In the evening the pastor preached upon the theme, "Voices of God," the sixth sermon on John the Baptist. Among the main points of the sermon were:

(1) The word of God came to John the son of Zaccheus in the wilderness. (2) Mankind is the manifestation of the moral figure of God the power of the one life to express its character. (3) John the Baptist voicing the will of God concerning Christ and the power of each life so voicing the nature of Christ by obedience to His will.

The Women's Missionary society will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2.30.

The bi-monthly pay social of the C. E. society will be held in the vestry Thursday evening. Games, an entertainment, refreshments and a general good time will be had. All are welcome.

The regular mid-week prayer meeting will be held Friday evening.

The corner stone of the new church will be laid on June 4. The delay is on account of the steel spans which have not arrived.

SWEDISH BAPTIST.

Rev. G. A. Dahlquist of Portland, Maine, exchanged pulpits with the pastor, Rev. A. P. Hanson on Sunday. In the morning the subject of the discourse was: "In Partnership with Jesus." The text was taken from 1 Cor. 1:1-9.

In the evening the text was found in John 19:27. "My Mother" was the subject of the sermon. The speaker pointed out the great influence of parents in leading their children to paths of righteousness and in making them useful men and women.

Jesus pointed out to John what his mother has been to him and what she would be to him in the future.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held on Wednesday evening of this week instead of Thursday.

The conference of Swedish Baptist churches of New England will be held in Brockton on Thursday and a large number of delegates from Quincy are planning to attend.

Japanese Villages Destroyed

Tokio, May 22.—Forest fires in Hokkaide, the northernmost of the islands of Japan, are devastating a vast territory of the land. A number of villages already have been destroyed.

MURDER

A squad of officers was sent to Braintree in the auto patrol and others were sent to look over electric cars should he attempt to escape by this means. Other officers were dispatched to Boston to watch New York trains. Officer Farrell even got as far south as Montello.

About 9.30 a correct description of the murderer and his name was obtained also the fact that he had relatives living somewhere in Boston. On learning these facts Chief Burrell immediately got in touch with police headquarters, Boston, and gave them the information.

The name was a peculiar one and the Boston police discovered that a family by that name resided at 121 Cottage street, East Boston.

Lieut. Hines of station 7 was notified and he detailed four officers to search the house just before midnight. Sergt. McGrath and Patrolman Goodman went to the front of the house and Patrolmen Murphy and Lannigan at the rear door. As Sergt. McGrath and Officer Goodman went to the door they heard loud talking on the inside. Pounding on the door they demanded admission. Getting no answer they shouted that they were policemen and unless the door was opened they would break it down.

Then they heard a shuffling of feet and someone say get out. The two officers guarding the rear entrance were notified and they rushed up the dark hallway as Baggarozzo the man wanted rushed down stairs clad only in his shirt and trousers. He resisted the officers but was handcuffed and taken to the police station.

On the way to the station the Italian claimed that he and Meir had quarrelled over the girl and that the Spaniard drew a knife and attacked him. He said that he took the knife away from Meir and stabbed him. As evidence of the truth of his story he showed a bad knife wound on his left hand and another on the forehead.

Baggarozzo was locked up for the night and was brought to Quincy this morning.

Medical Examiner Jones was notified as soon as the murder was reported and ordered the body removed to Hall's undertaking room.

Miss Johnson is prostrated by the shock at witnessing a horrible murderous fight between two of her friends.

Joseph Meir the murdered man had been in Quincy for about ten years. He was a stone cutter by trade and recently opened a yard of his own on Columbia street where he was doing a good business.

Inspector Goodhue who was immediately sent to Boston to watch the outgoing New York trains stationed himself in the South station and searched all of the New York trains. He then went to East Boston and requested the police of Station 7 to search the house on Cottage street. It was than that he learned that Baggarozzo had been brought in a few minutes before and was then locked up.

This morning the prisoner was brought to Quincy in an automobile and was arraigned before Judge Avery.

Assistant District Attorney Katzman appeared for the government and Jesse M. Gove for Baggarozzo. He plead not guilty to the complaint for murder and was held without bail until Friday.

Baggarozzo's story of how he got away from Quincy only goes to show how easy it is for a man to get away from the immediate scene of a crime. He says that after he had been turned away from his boarding house he ran across the tracks to Franklin street, thence through Faxon park to Quincy avenue where he boarded a car for Quincy. Arriving in City Square about the time the police alarm was sounded he boarded a car for Boston.

When the conductor came around for his fare he requested him to take the money out of his pocket as he did not want the conductor to see the blood on his hand, he was thus able to keep his hand out of sight.

Arriving in Boston he went to a house at 772 Columbus avenue where he had friends but as soon as they learned that he had been in some kind of a cutting scrape they refused to have him there. Leaving a bloody handkerchief behind him he went from there to East Boston where he was later arrested.

He still sticks to the story that Meir first attacked him with a knife and that in order to protect himself he wrested the knife from him and stabbed him. Cuts on his hand and forehead testify that he was cut during the affair.

Shortly after the police call had sounded a young man acting in a strange manner was seen near the car barn on Hancock street. He was a young man and wore a light cap and dark clothing and in other ways resembled the murderer. The fellow came from behind a house and when he saw a woman watching him he began to run. He ran up through Carruth street and across the railroad track onto Newport avenue. While Baggarozzo says that he boarded the car in City Square it is thought that the man seen near the car barn was he and that it was on Newport avenue that he boarded the car.

There was a large crowd of spectators in the court room this morning when he arraigned but it was very orderly. The prisoner speaks English fluently and when the complaint was read to him entered his plea of not guilty in good English.

TERMS FOR A RECESS

Democrats Demand Vote on Canadian Reciprocity and Tariff

Washington, May 22.—What is practically an ultimatum was served in the senate by the Democratic leaders of the house, that there must be a vote in the senate at this session on the Canadian reciprocity, on the farmers' free list bill and on the revised wool tariff.

Provided these terms are met the house will agree to a recess from July 1 to Oct. 1. Otherwise the senate will be held in continuous session throughout the dogdays by the house refusing to adjourn.

The Democrats do not expect that the senate will ratify all their tariff legislation, but they want a record vote on the three principal measures —reciprocity, the free list and the wool tariff.

Daffy Down Dilly has come up to town,
In a fine petticoat and a green gown;
Starched is the petticoat, spick and span white,
"Twas done up with Fels-Naptha, that's why it's so bright."

Did you ever look at a piece of linen under the magnifying glass?

Or any other kind of cloth?

You'd see a multitude of small threads woven together with tiny open spaces between.

When soiled clothes are boiled, the dirt is just softened, not loosened.

When you rub them on the washboard, the soft dirt is partly rubbed into the tiny spaces between the threads and you might rub till Doomsday without getting it all out.

That's why clothes washed in the boiling, hard-rubbing way are so often muddy or dull-looking.

They're not wholly clean.

Fels-Naptha cleanses clothes perfectly because it attacks the dirt and dissolves it.

Breaks it up into particles which are easily rinsed out of the cloth meshes.

Fels-Naptha Soap does this in cool or lukewarm water.

No boiling; no hard-rubbing; takes less than half the time of the old way.

Saves the clothes; saves fuel.

When you've once tried the Fels-Naptha way of washing in the Winter or Summer you'll never go back to the wash-boiler and hard rubbing.

Try it next washday.

Follow the easy directions printed on the red and green wrapper.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

PERJURY CASE IS WON BY COX

Ohio Boss Was Deprived of Constitutional Rights

JUDGE DICKSON SO DECLARES

Quashes Indictments and Accuses Prosecutors of Entering Into Conspiracy to Rush Ohio Politician to Batavia Without Any Hearing Whatever—Accused Man Lays Down Leadership of Hamilton County

Cincinnati, May 22.—Declaring that the county prosecutor, a judge of the court of common pleas and perhaps the January grand jury conspired to deprive George B. Cox of his constitutional rights, Judge Dickson ordered the indictments against the Republican leader quashed.

Prosecuting Attorney Hunt took steps to have the case appealed, his object being to prolong the life of the indictments and force Cox to trial on charges of perjury.

"The undisputed evidence shows," Dickson said, "that the grand jury and the prosecuting attorney and the judge of the court, Frank M. Gorman, entered into a conspiracy deliberately to deprive the accused of his constitutional rights and to have him rushed to Batavia, Clermont county, O., without any hearing whatever.

"The affidavits of Hunt are long. Thus it was impossible for Gorman to have read or have heard them read, as the law requires. The whole transaction did not occupy five minutes. It is to be hoped the grand jury were innocent and misled, and were not parties to that conspiracy."

Prosecutor Hunt, in a formal statement, declared Dickson's "action" was no surprise to people of the country. His decision was not the law, he said, and would be held erroneous by the supreme court of Ohio.

In an official statement, which was published Sunday, Cox announces his retirement from politics. The Enquirer said:

"Affirming the unalterable faith in Republican principle and leaders, George B. Cox yesterday laid down the reins of leadership of the Republican party in Hamilton county, a leadership that for more than a quarter of a century he has held with none to dispute his authority, and incidentally resigned a commanding place in the councils of that party in the state of Ohio.

"Mr. Cox, spurred by the conviction that the supremacy of the Republican party in Hamilton county, and possibly in the state of Ohio, required his retirement, has resolved to remove himself."

AIDS THE CLARK BOOM

Olmsted Has Something Nice to Say About the Speaker

Washington, May 22.—During a debate in the house on the Arizona statehood resolution Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania, Republican, referred to a newspaper report that three-quarters of the Democratic members of the house favored Woodrow Wilson for the presidency.

"I do not agree with that," said Oldmsted. "I believe that four-fifths of you on that side favor the nomination of Champ Clark. But I believe that if we are to have a Democratic president next time, which God forbid, four-fifths of the members on this side of the house would rather see Champ Clark occupy that high position."

London, May 22.—The attention which Emperor William, during his visit in London, paid to the Prince of Wales, and the official announcement that the prince will visit Potsdam during the present summer, has given zest to the gossip regarding the possibility of a marriage between the Prince of Wales and Princess Victoria Louise, the only daughter of the German emperor.

The princess, while confiding to an intimate friend, is quoted as saying: "I don't want to be Bavarian, a Wurtemberger or a Viennese. I want to be English."

PAYNE MEMORIAL.

A memorial to John Howard Payne, the author of "Home Sweet Home" is now being erected at Schenectady, N. Y. upon the campus of Union College where he spent his student days a little over one hundred years ago.

The memorial is a gateway, to be erected at the entrance to "Library Lane," the most beautiful of the college roadways, and to be dedicated to the memory of him who has charmed the whole world with the melodious lay of "Home Sweet Home" and whom his Alma Mater now delight to honor. It will be completed within a month, and its dedication will be one of the distinctive features of the one hundred and fifteenth commencement of the College, June 11-14. Dr. George Pierce Baker, professor of Dramatic Literature at Harvard, will deliver the main address at the dedicatory ceremonies.

The idea of a college memorial to Payne originated at the annual dinner of the Union College Alumni Association of New York City a year ago, when C. E. Franklin '83, one of the Assistant Superintendents of Schools in New York City, suggested that the centenary of Payne's college days at Union be observed by the erection of a fitting memorial. The proposition met with enthusiastic endorsement.

John Howard Payne was born in New York City in 1791, but most of his boyhood was spent at East Hampton, L. I., and, later at Boston. Because of his great desire to go on the stage, his father secured for the boy a clerkship with a New York business firm, thinking thus to turn him from his theatrical inclinations. While in New York young Payne secretly started a paper called "The Thespian Mirror," which attracted the attention of William Coleman, editor and founder of the New York "Evening Post" and of Charles Brockden Brown, the novelist. Through the kindness of one of Mr. Coleman's wealthy friends, John E. Seaman, Payne was sent to Union College at the age of thirteen to receive the discipline of a classical education under Dr. Nott. After a brilliant, but rather erratic, course at college, he was obliged to return home on account of the death of his mother.

With his father's consent he now turned toward the stage as a profession. His success was instantaneous, and his career as actor, playwright, poet, and author, was brilliant, though fitful and unremunerative. In 1842 he was appointed consul at Tunis. Here he died in 1852, attended by two sisters of charity and a Mohammedan man-servant. In 1883, through the influence of President Arthur, himself a Union Alumnus, Payne's body was brought to his native country and reinterred at Washington, D. C.

Although there has been much error and misconception in the popular stories that Payne was a tramp and a pauper, it is true that during his wandering life he never had a real home after he left college. It is eminently fitting, therefore, that the college which was the last home of the author of "Home Sweet Home" should honor his memory.

NATURAL ICE PURE

Melted Natural Ice Endorsed by Eminent Authority for Drinking Purposes

During the next few months the quality of the public water supply in many towns and cities will be questioned, as the sources are lowered by droughts or flooded by an excess rainfall. While it is true that public supplies are seldom injuriously affected by the foreign vegetable matter when the lakes or reservoirs are low, or by the turbidity following torrential rains, nevertheless the public is loathe to drink water so changed from its normal clear state. Frequently health authorities in these emergencies recommend boiling the water.

It is news to many that in the water obtained by melting natural ice there exists a perfectly satisfactory source of drinking water always available in every community. Such ice is from 90 to 99.5 per cent purer than the water on which it forms. As John C. Sparks, B. Sc., City Water Expert for New York City, says: "In the neighborhood of 50 per cent of the mineral matter in solution is eliminated, making the water of which the ice is made, more pure, both from the removal of matter in suspension and a portion of the matter in solution." Bacteria in the water are eliminated from the ice, the latter containing 90 per cent less bacteria than the water and as all natural ice is stored anywhere from four to twelve or more weeks before being used, there is a further reduction of over 99 per cent of any bacteria in the ice during this storage period, so that, as Dr. E. H. Porter, State Commissioner of Health of New York State reports, it is practically sterile when delivered for consumption. This purification makes the water from melted natural ice a very desirable source of drinking water supply.

Dr. Wm. T. Sedgwick, of Boston, America's leading sanitarian, is accustomed to advise his classes of engineers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology when they go out in the world and get to places, as he puts it: "Where the water supply is suspicious and the milk supply, which is always suspicious, is as suspicious as the water or more so, then you can get a safe drink by melting down clear natural ice; because in 99 cases out of a hundred clear ice when melted gives a pure water."

Other authorities might be quoted but these are sufficient to show that there lies at the door of every community a cheap, always available and perfectly safe source of drinking water supply, in the natural ice which local ice dealers have on hand. Such melted ice is cheaper than the water often bought by the gallon for family use and the ice being in a solid form does not absorb impurities in handling. Eight and a half pounds of ice melted will give a gallon of water at a cost less than 5 cents a gallon. As Prof. Sparks says: "A more extensive use of natural ice as a drinking water would aid in the reduction of typhoid fever and make a useful and easily attainable supply of safe drinking water within the reach of everyone."

HALF A MILLION SAW "WORLD IN BOSTON"

Great Missionary Exposition Ends Its Record Run

Boston, May 22.—Saturday night marked the close of the "World in Boston" missionary exposition at Mechanics' hall—the greatest exposition of its kind the country has seen. The 30,000 attendance figures of Saturday brought the month's record up to approximately half a million persons.

For a month missionaries from all parts of the world have been in attendance daily, telling their stories and making appeals for aid in all corners of the earth. Likewise have the thousands of young men and women given their time to help in the great success.

Just after closing time the participants in "The Pageant of Darkness and Light" enjoyed a farewell reception. During the exercises several of the principals were presented with loving cups and flowers.

KILLS FRENCH WAR MINISTER

Monoplane Gets Beyond Control of Its Operator

PLUNGES INTO DIGNITARIES

Berteaux, Who Aspired to the Presidency, Is Badly Mangled, While Premier Monis and His Son Are Injured—Aviator and His Companion Escape Unhurt In Disaster at Start of Paris to Madrid Race

Paris, May 22.—France has paid another and terible toll in her endeavor to attain supremacy in the art of aviation. A monoplane, the driver of which had lost control, plunged into a group of members of the cabinet who had gathered to witness the start of a race from Paris to Madrid, killing Henri M. Berteaux, the minister of war, and injuring Prime Minister Monis, his son, and Henri Deutsch de la Meurthe, a well known sportsman.

A large number of other persons of note had narrow escapes from harm. The accident occurred on the aviation field at Issy les Molineux and was witnessed by 200,000 persons.

M. Train was piloting the monoplane. With him in the car was M. Bounier, a passenger. Neither was injured. The machine was wrecked.

Minister of War Berteaux was terribly mangled. The swiftly revolving propeller sheared off his left arm, which was found ten feet away from the spot where he was struck; the back of his head was crushed in, his throat was gashed and the whole of his left side was cut and lacerated.

Premier Monis was buried beneath the wreckage of the monoplane. He sustained compound fractures of two bones in the right leg, his nose was broken, his face badly contused, and there were bruises on the breast and abdomen. Deutsch and the younger Monis were not seriously hurt.

Premier Monis and Berteaux and their party arrived at the aviation field shortly after Garros, Beaumont and Gilbert had started in the race, which was headed in the direction of Angouleme, capital of the department of Charente.

The great line of spectators bordering the flying field was being held rigid by a large force of soldiery, who, however, permitted the ministerial party and some fifty other persons of distinction to walk across the field to a point where they could get a better view down the course and see the airmen as they arose from the starting point and fly in their direction.

While the great assemblage cheered madly the ministers saw Pierre Verdine, who had been picked by many as the probable winner of the race, mount easily from the ground and head down the aerodrome. But suddenly his machine capsized and he fell, but emerged unhurt from the debris. Train, whose monoplane caused the disaster, had meanwhile taken his position at the starting line, levers in hand, with Bounier beside him.

The breeze had been steadily freshening and the meteorological observer in the Eiffel tower telephoned that his gauge showed a velocity of close to thirty miles an hour. The members of the aviation committee were discussing the adverse conditions as Train left the ground. Ascending swiftly he circled the great field, swooping around to the starting line and then flew down the course at a 40-mile-an-hour gait. The machine rocked as he did so in the gusty wind.

At this moment it was observed by the commandant of the troops that the crowds were breaking the line formation on one side of the field, and he dispatched a troop of cuirassiers to get them back in order. The cavalrymen galloped across the field, breaking into double lines as they went. Here Train's monoplane dived toward the earth under the impulse of an air flurry, and it appeared as though the aviator was about to collide with the horsemen.

The pilot's attention seemed momentarily to have been diverted from his course, and he made a quick turn to the left toward where the party of officials were standing. Then he lost control of the craft altogether and it dashed violently into the ministerial group.

The impact knocked Berteaux ten feet away, where he lay in a pool of blood, badly torn. Under the wreckage of the monoplane lay Premier Monis, his son and Deutsch. Train and Bounier emerged from the remains of the machine uninjured.

There are various versions as to the cause of the accident, but everyone seems to agree that it occurred with such terrible swiftness that there was no time for Berteaux, Monis and the others to escape.

The ministerial party was hidden from the pilot's view by a detachment of cuirassiers. In avoiding these Train crashed down upon the group like a bolt from the sky.

Henri M. Berteaux was one of the most prominent men in France engaged in political life. He had held the portfolio of minister of war once before, but though he relinquished this he had devoted himself to army affairs. He accepted that office again in the Monis cabinet, which was formed March 2 of this year. He acquired a fortune in finance, and it was no secret that he cherished the ambition of becoming a candidate for the presidency in 1913. His death is especially untimely for France, for with M. Cruppi he was directing the present delicate Moroccan question, which is still far from settlement.

Minister of War Killed In a Monoplane Disaster

STABBING AFFRAY OVER YOUNG WOMAN

Slayer of Quincy Man Confesses Committing Deed

Boston, May 22.—Joseph Muir, a 25-year-old granite cutter, was killed in Quincy last night on the doorsteps of the girl over whom he had been quarrelling with Vincenzo Baggarezzo, an 18-year-old shoe worker.

Baggarezzo was captured this morning in East Boston and readily admitted killing Muir. Muir received four stab wounds, all near the heart, dying almost imemdiately. The discovery of the body on the steps of Annie Johnson's home aroused the neighborhood.

The quarrel started about 8 o'clock. The Johnson girl was standing at her gate talking to Babbarezzo when Muir came along. Muir accused Baggarezzo of stealing his place in the affection of the young girl.

Baggarezzo, who is an Italian, resented the insulting remarks of the other, who is said to have been a Spaniard, and the argument waxed hot. The girl, frightened at the stream of foreign imprecations which she could not understand, ran into the house and the stabbing occurred soon afterwards.

BETROTHED PAIR DROWN

Girl's Clasp Carries Down Fiance as Their Canoe Upsets

Springfield, Mass., May 22.—Elwyn R. Mecum, 22, and Anna Rooney, 23, both of this city, engaged to be married, were drowned in the Connecticut river Sunday afternoon when their canoe, in which were Mecum's sister' Ruth, and Earl Warner, capsized.

Warner and Ruth Mecum caught the sides of the overturned canoe and hung on until help from the launch Phyllis had arrived.

Mecum was a good swimer and in all probability would have saved his fiancee had it not been that in her terror she grasped him around the neck and clung to him so firmly that he could not do anything.

GARDNER PLANS FIGHT

Defends Contractors Who Are Supplying Army With Shoes

Washington, May 22.—While at the White House Representative Gardner of Massachusetts insisted he would press his investigation into the Deifenderfer charges against the Massachusetts shoe people who supply the army and would yet vindicate his friends in Boston of the imputation of securing government contracts through questionable means.

Mr. Gardner said the charges would be libelous if made anywhere but on the floor of the house.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Horse at Hotel Banquet is a Boston Variant on the Monkey Dinner—Moralizing on Mother's Day—Destruction of Landmark on Site of Old Boston Jail Where Pirate Kidd was once Confined—Investigation of Bay State Working Girls—Woman Suffrage Movement from Aspasia to Sylvia Pankhurst is Described at a Hub Playhouse.

Apes at society dinners and luncheons given for dogs and monkeys have often scandalized the nation, but several hundred Bostonians were only amused and not at all shocked by the unusual spectacle of a splendid thoroughbred horse attending a banquet given by the hunt club. Gasps of astonishment followed by cheers of admiration greeted the blue ribbon "Darkey" a beautiful black mare, as, with her owner on her back, she jauntily mounted the twenty stone steps from the street to the hotel lobby, gracefully made her way through the lobby into the elevator and stood in dignified calm while the elevator shot up to the floor above. Then she walked down the hall and into the banquet room, maintaining a polite silence while her rider sang several hunting songs, receiving her own ovations with gracious bows and finally retracing her steps to the street amid the open-eyed awe of the hotel attendants and the plaudits of the populace.

Mother's Day was observed with increased enthusiasm and widespread interest this year. A perfect parade of white carnations indicated the love and esteem in which everybody's mother is held and the Boston girl cannot be convinced that it was her imagination which lent an unusual degree of attention and thoughtfulness to the manners of many sons and daughters whom she saw on Sunday outings with sweet faced happy or careworn mothers. There are many sons and daughters who need no reminder that mother should have consideration and love for they believe that every day of the 365 should be filled with thought for her but for those who sometimes forget the years of devotion which have brought the grey hairs it is just as well that a special observance should be made once a year in her honor. One need not necessarily confine its observance to the wearing of a white carnation.

Massachusetts working girls and women will be much interested in the appointment of the commission in the near future which will investigate the conditions of poverty and degradation surrounding shop girls and others who have to work long hours and for small wages. Governor Foss has signed the act which was instituted by John Golden of Fall River, who has long been trying to get legislation for the benefit of the underpaid female employees. One member of the commission, according to the law must be a woman, and it is thought that Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly, friend of the working girl and identified with many important welfare movements, may be appointed. The report of the commission must be in by the second Wednesday in January and strong hopes are felt that it may begin the betterment of conditions under which many women at present are working.

Another of Boston's famous landmarks the Old Court House, is to be razed, and only a couple of months remain of its existence. The building is not of a very good period of architecture, and it has long been regarded as a back number so far as its usefulness is concerned. Yet as plans appear for its destruction and replacement by a modern municipal building ancient traditions are recalled and famous incidents remembered. Many illustrious names are associated with the stern old edifice and many noted cases have been tried there. It was considered the handsomest public building in Boston at the time of its erection and was built on the site of the old brick jail, in which were held 300,000 prisoners in 100 years during which our goodly Puritan ancestors dwelt in this pious little town. Most of these law breakers were locked up for intoxication, for New England rum tangled many feet in the good old days. One illustrious prisoner incarcerated in the old brick jail was Captain Kidd who was held there until the time of his hanging.

The Hub's summer dullness has broken out ahead of time. Already everybody is out of town—except, of course, the ninety-nine people out of a hundred who have to work for a living. The Back Bay began to take on its annual look of desertion just before the assessors appeared. Today drawn shades and boarded doors indicate the exodus of fashiondom to the shore and mountain, or to Europe, and whole blocks of houses closed for the summe give Beacon and adjacent streets an abandoned farm sort of look which is, to say the least, depressing to the "common person" who revives his or her drooping spirits by a walk in the direction of the Charles River esplanade during a lunch hour.

Activities galore are under way among the suffragists. Aside from numerous local meetings there was a notable affair at the Hotel Tuileries on May 17th, when Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw of the New York Woman Suffrage Party was the principal speaker, with Mrs. Charles Park, Secretary of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association and Mrs. John Leonard, chairman of the Woman Suffrage Party of Massachusetts as brilliant seconds. Much interest is felt in a feature running at Keith's Bijou theatre—a lecture on historic women and the suffrage movement, in which the lecturer covers in a remarkably comprehensive way the periods from the time of Aspasia down to Sylvia Pankhurst, with the accompaniment of 50 lantern slides—all in the space of about fifteen minutes. A dramatic entertainment at Huntington Chambers Hall is taking the time and attention of local members of the National College Equal Suffrage Association. This affair i s to come off May 19th and includes an address "Who Should Vote" by Mrs. Richard Y. FitzGerald, and the one-act play "How the Vote Was Won."

Mrs. Page, secretary of the Massachusetts Association brings back glowing accounts of the big parade in New York. She was in position to observe the sentiment of the people, as the Massachusetts delegates marched directly behind the Men's League of New York—a body of about 200 of the most distinguished men of the metropolis, lawyers, business men, writers, who were apparently somewhat unprepared for the reception they got. They were cheered all along the line by the women and by many men, though they met with ridicule and jeers when the hoodlum element was encountered in the rougher portion of the city. It was somewhat amusing to the women who participated in the parade to see the amazement and chagrin with which the gentlemen met this jeering, something which the women had been receiving at their hands for many decades. As the procession reached Union Square the women stood in line and as the men marched through cheered and applauded them with all their might. Mrs. Page was particularly impressed by the perfectly tremendous crowds which greeted them at every point, and by the participation which every individual seemed to take, either cheering, laughing or jeering. Her own feeling and that of other suffragists she expresses as one of solemnity, almost religious fervor, and the sensation of having arrived at a goal toward which women have been struggling many years. An interesting letter from Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, who marched among the authors in the parade, says: "Wasn't it great, Saturday? And to think of all the ages that the music and banners and swinging glory of marching thousands, with the answering throb of watching thousands, was all for men! We could look out the window at it!" Ethel Angier.

Mrs. N. B. Furnald of Washington street had a very enjoyable birthday on Saturday when she reached the age of 79. Post cards, letters, many bouquets, as well as callers, testified to the loving thought of friends. Although Mrs. Furnald has not been in the best of health for a few years at the present time she is remarkably well.

The hot day Sunday brought hundreds to the Wollaston beaches. The bay was dotted with hundreds of yacht many of them being out for the first time. The broad piazza of the Squantum and Wollaston clubs were the renderzoons of many members in the afternoon and evening. Scores of bathers took their initial plung and the boulevard was popular all day as a promenade.

AGAINST MIXED MARRIAGES

Formal Opposition Expressed by Anglican Prelates of Canada

St. John, May 22.—In all the churches of the Angelican communion there was read yesterday a pastoral letter signed by Rev. Samuel P. Matheson, D. D., archbishop and metropolitan of the Province of Rupert's Land, and Rev. Charles Hamilton, D. D., archbishop and metropolitan of the Province of Canada, discouraging mixed marriages.

This pastoral has also been caused by the decisions by judges of Quebec, who hold that marriages of Roman Catholics by the clergy of other denominations are null and void.

SUNDAY SERVICES

CALVARY BAPTIST.

At the Sunday morning service, Rev. George B. Huntington of Wollaston preached on the subject of "The Aggressiveness of Christ," "Christ's policy and its application" was another wording of the subject. He raised the standard of Christian living, urged self forgetfulness and service of others. By applying these three principles to our lives today there would be no dearth of missionary zeal and there would be a greater number in the quest of right living.

L. H. Clee of the Y. M. C. A. gave a very helpful address to the members of the Men's class.

In the evening Robert Farquhar gave a stirring address on the topic "Escape for your lives."

The Bible class meets in the church Tuesday evening.

The regular prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening. The pastor Rev. R. J. Davis hopes to be able to conduct this service. He is recovering slowly from his recent illness but is still lacking in strength.

The Ladies Circle will meet on Friday afternoon with Mrs. Carrie Foss, 114 Granite street.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

At the Sunday morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "The Balm of Gilead," Jer. 8:22. There was especially good singing at the service.

The attendance at Sabbath school was especially good.

A very good meeting was held by the Christian Endeavor society at 6.30 Miss MacLennan was the leader.

In the evening the pastor spoke from John 3:16 "God's love for the world," was the topic. H. Marr sang a solo "No Burdens Yonder" which was splendidly rendered.

The prayer meeting on Thursday evening will be led by James MacDonald.

The pastor leaves on Tuesday for Washington, Pa. to attend general assembly of the First United Presbyterian churches of te United States lasting from May 24 to May 31.

WEST QUINCY M. E.

Sunday was observed as "young people's day" at the Hall Place M. E. church. In the morning the pastor preached on the text, "Whereupon, Oh king, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."

At 7 P. M. the Epworth League held their anniversary service opening with the marching in of the Junior and Epworth Leagues singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" which was followed by singing, "Stand up, stand up for Jesus." Rev. T. C. Martin offered prayer. "He will hold me fast" was sung, with solo by C. A. Goucher and chorus by the Leagues.

The president, Joseph M. Francis then read a brief history of the Epworth Leagues. Reports by the retiring vice presidents were read by Ada M. Williams, first vice, C. B. Hodgkinson, second vice, May Williams, third vice, M. E. Hodgkinson, fourth vice.

Officers for the ensuing year were very impressively installed by the pastor as follows: President, J. M. Francis; first vice president, Hilda Francis; second vice president, Cyde Hannaut; third vice president, M. E. Hodgkinson; fourth vice president, C. B. Hodgkinson; secretary, Camille Fuller and treasurer, Ada M. Williams.

A reception of new members was held the following being received: Lillian Williams, Harold Norris and Lawrence Martin.

The newly installed vice presidents presented the outlook and plans for their departments for the coming year.

The pastor gave a very encouraging as well as inspiring address at the close of the exercises, urging each one to love their tasks that they might the better succeed in their work.

The service closed with singing "God be with you till we meet again" and the Epworth League benediction.

The church was very prettily decorated in the League colors, red and white, with an abundance of flowers. Two striking features of the decorations were the emblems of the Epworth League in red and white and the League motto "Look up, Lift up," in gilt. The decorations were in charge of Miss C. B. Hodgkinson, Miss Hilda Francis and Mr. Clyde Hannaut.

SPORTING NOTES.

Other scores in local games:

Wollaston 6, North Quincy 2.

Clapp Memorial 14, Fore River Apprentices 3.

The interclass track meet of Quincy high school which was scheduled for Friday has been postponed until next Thursday. A change will be made in the general scheme of things to encourage a larger number of entries. The meet this year will be handicap and it is expected that by giving the less prominent athletes a good handicap in the different events there will be more entries and better performances by the men on scratch.

A members handicap medal play tournament was held Saturday afternoon on the Montclair links, the players making the best 16 gross scores to qualify for match play for the club championship. T. M. Claflin made the best gross with a 75. T. R. Fuller playing from scratch got a 79. J. S. Phelps won the trophy for medal play getting a net score of 67. H. L. Doten was second with a 71.

The Pioneers defeated the Ferguson A. C. on Saturday by a score of 11 to 9. "Pete" Williams was the star of the game, hitting a home run with three men on bases.

Quincy High vs. Brockton at Quincy tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 in the upper field at Merrymount park. This will be the big home game of the year for Quincy and a large crowd is expected.

Grammar school games today:
Hancock vs. Willard.
Coddington vs. Washington.

The last games of the season take place one week from today. The game which should arouse the greatest interest is the one scheduled for next Friday afternoon between the Massachusetts Fields and Willard school teams. These two will probably fight it out for the championship.

The Whitwell Stars defeated the Cranch A. A. Juniors in a 12 inning game on Saturday by a score of 22 to 20. Both pitchers were hit hard. Blackmur did some heavy hitting.

The Whitwell Stars desire games with any 12-13 year old teams in the city. Address S. Johnson, Ryden street, Quincy.

SOUTH QUINCYS WIN.

The South Quincy Extension club, defeated the Y. M. C. A. Intermediates on Saturday at the Ward 3 playgrounds by a score of 5 to 3. The game was well played and exciting throughout and was one of the fastest played in the city this year taking only 1 hour and 7 minutes.

The features of the game were the hitting of Spargo and the fielding of Robertson and White.

HAMILTON 13 MAKARIA 12

Ten Inning Contest. Other Saturday Games

In one of the most unusual games seen in Quincy this year Makaria lost to the Hamiltons of Lynn Saturday afternoon by a score of 13 to 12 in a ten inning contest. At the end of the 5th, the score was 6 to 0 in favor of Makaria. Bates had held his opponents to no hits and only one man had reached first base. Troupe and Bates were working splendidly together and the home team had secured six hits off the opposing pitcher. At the opening of the 6th, the Chapman brothers went in. Bates slacked up on his speed and the Hamiltons got 4 hits and three runs The 7th inning was still more disastrous for a hit two bases on balls and two errors gave the Lynn team 5 more runs. Makaria braced up, Nicoll led off with a hit, Stan Bates got a base on balls and "Honey" Curtis hit out a slashing three bagger to the gate in right field, coming home on a fielders choice on Ganzel's grounder.

The Hamiltons came to bat in the first of the 8th with the score 9 to 8 against them. Hits by Curran and Opie and a poor throw home by Bates gave them one run. Makaria went out in one, two, three order and the ninth opened with the score a tie. Bishop, the first man up for Lynn got a hit, Eggleton cut off what promised to be a three bagger by a beautiful catch in deep centre field and Bishop was caught on home on a throw-in by Curtis. Bates showed good headwork by passing Curran who got a hit in the previous inning and struck out Barter who had fanned twice before.

Makaria should have scored in her half but Curtis was caught at second and Eggleton was doubled on the same base after a strikeout by Ganzel.

In the 10th a combination of hits, bases on balls and errors, gave Lynn four more runs and things looked hopeless for Makaria when Manning and H. Chapman flied out in the last of the 10th with McKenzie on first, Mil Chapman came up with a Texas leaguer and then "Matty" Nicoll sent out his long three bagger scoring "Mac" and "Mil." Matty came in himself on a poor throw to third. Makaria began to look up then but "Stan" was unable to get a hit and the game went to Lynn 13 to 12.

BIGELOWS REORGANIZE.

The Bigelow base ball club has reorganized for the coming season under the management of "Jep" Saunders. The team will consist of players that have represented the club in past years. "Bill" Avery will be seen behind the bat as usual. So far this season he has participated in about seven games but he hasn't shown his true form. The old familiar form of Lefty Ford will not be seen in the box this year but "Jep" Saunders, known as the "come back" pitcher will again try his luck.

"Pat" Costello who needs no introduction to the Quincy Point fans will cover first base. Costello, Oliver and Cain three Fore River Apprentice players will perform on the Bigelow team and will be a decided loss to Jim Neary's team. "Rus" Oliver will try to live up to his reputation as being a second Larry Lajoie on second base. Our old friend "Mart" Mahoney will be seen on his old stamping ground at shore stop. "Billie" Cain will cover third base and the way this boy has been clouting the ball has opened the eyes of the Managers around Boston. The out-field has not been decided upon as yet. Manager Saunders expressed himself on being satisfied with the showing the boys have made so far. He says he has some promising looking outfielders but the chances are that he will dispose of about six of them before the season opens. Any team wishing to arrange a game with this team can address Edmund Saunders, North street, Quincy.

MANET 3; REVERE 3.

At the Ward 6 playgrounds on Saturday the Manets and Revere Athletics ended their game in a dispute in the 8th inning with the score 3 to 3. The Revere umpire called Creswell's home run drive, which went over the post office, a foul and the Manets took exception to his decision.

The game had been close up to the 6th, the Manets being ahead, 1 to 0.

Aitken hit two men and the third man was safe on a fielders choice. Aitken then let loose with a wild pitch scoring 2 men. The third man scored on a bad throw to third. Kerr went in at the opening of the 7th and held the Revere team. Last season the same team was beaten by the Ramblers, 4 to 3 and were not satisfield then without putting up a fight.

All the Revere team were willing to finish the game Saturday with the exception of the captain who said he would only go by the umpire's decision.

"Sid" Duggan made his first appearance with the Manets and made good, catching 4 men who tried to steal and getting a long two base hit. Revere's battery worked fine, Murphy having a good assortment of curves and good control.

Howley, Gillis and McCarty, played a snappy fielding game Howley got 5 assists and a timely put out.

The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Manet B. B. C.	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	2	—3
Revere Athletics	0	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	—3

Batteries—Aitken, Kerr and Duggan. Murphy and Teugren.

FORE RIVER 2—McGREGORS 1.

WILL NOT RETURN HOME

Young Boston Girl Has Mapped Out Stage Career For Herself

New York, May 22.—Miss Gertrude Quimby will not return to her mother's home in Boston, from which she mysteriously disappeared last week, if she can help it. She refused to listen to advice that she reconsider this determination.

She is bent on a stage career and will make every effort to attain her ambition. "I believe I am fitted for just such a career," she says.

Gertrude is apparently very bitter against her stepfather, saying that she will not live in the same house with him again.

The theatrical people and the newspaper men who have met the 14-year-old girl cannot be convinced that she is not 17 or 18 years of age.

READ ACCOUNT OF HIS DISAPPEARANCE

Memory of Man Who Wandered Away Is Thus Restored

Somerville, Mass., May 22.—Albert H. Grimshaw, the Somerville druggist, who disappeared March 2 and discovered himself in Pueblo, Col., a few days ago, after a long lapse of memory, has returned to the home of his mother in this city. His wife and two children, who have been living in Quincy since his disappearance, met him. Grimshaw's mother says that he is in wretched mental and physical condition.

Grimshaw left his store March 2 with about $300, for the purpose o paying some bills in Boston. Th bills were not paid and the man dropped out of sight. He was nex heard from when the Pueblo police wired that he had presented himself to them in straitened circumstances. He said he had lost his memory and recalled nothing until he read an account of his disappearance in a druggists' journal.

RETIRES TO SANITARIUM

Dr. Pearsons to Watch the Effect of His Many Good Deeds

Chicago, May 22.—After having given to colleges and charity about $6,000,000, Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons today retired to the Hinsdale sanitarium, there to pass the remainder of his life in the society of a few friends, to walk and to watch the effect of the good work he has been doing for the past twenty years.

A month ago Pearsons rounded out 91 years; he is still hale and hearty, and his object of going to the sanitarium is to secure the best of attention. Out of the millions he once called his, he has kept about $100 a week as sufficient for his worldly wants.

FIRST OFFICIAL INSPECTION

Monday a Red Letter Day of Quincy Commandery, K. T.

Monday was a red letter day in the annals of Quincy commandery Knights Templar. It was the third stated conclave of the new commandery and was the occasion of an official visitation from Em. Sir. R. Walter Hillard of Cambridge, Grand Warden and Inspecting officer.

The business of the conclave was the Order of the Temple and the meeting opened at 2 o'clock. During the afternoon and evening the degree being conferred upon twenty companions.

At 6.30 there was a short recess during which a banquet was served. The evening conclave convened at 7.30 at which time the Grand Warden was received with due honors.

He was accompanied by Em. Sir. George Knowlton of Joseph Warren commandery as Deputy Grand Warden and the following suite Em. Sir Fletcher Tirrell Past Commander of St. Omer commandery of Dorchester, Em. Sir Dr. Charles E. Prior Past Commander of Bausaent commandery of Malden, Em. Sir Arthur W. Burr Commander of South Shore commandery, and Em. Sir Luther Gowles of Natick.

These officers with Em. Sir. Arthur W. Stetson of Quincy commandery and Sir Henry P. Furnald of South Shore commandery assisted in the work of the evening session.

The order of Malta was also conferred on the new Sir Knights by Em. Sir Dr. Charles E. Prior, Past commander of Bausaent commandery of Malden.

At the business session a commandery badge was adopted and it was voted to participate in the summer outing of South Shore commandery June 24.

The Grand Warden brought the greetings of the Grand Commander of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and congratulated Quincy commandery on its work and predicted for it, that it would become one of the banner commanderies of the state.

The ship Jack one of the two submarines now under construction by the Electric Boat company at the Fore River yards will be launched Saturday at 10 o'clock. Her sponsor will be Mrs. Brattles, wife of Naval Constructor Brattles now stationed at the yard.

The two submarines now under construction at the Fore River plant will probably be the last of this class of vessels to be built here as the Electric Boat Co., has moved its plant to New Haven.

MERCHANT'S WEEK.

A special meeting of the Merchants Association was held Monday afternoon at the rooms of the Board of Trade. The meeting was called to discuss plans for the coming Merchants week. The main discussion of the afternoon was in relation to the advertising sheet which the association is to get out. At a recent meeting it was decided to have band concerts during the week but at Monday's meeting this vote was recinded.

During the meeting President Crane resigned as president of the association as he felt that he was not able to give the time to the office that was required.

Braintree Dramatic Club Present Play

The three act drama "Diamonds and Hearts" was presented in the Parish house of Christ church Monday evening under the auspicese of Reaper's Circle of Kings Daughters. The cast was composed of members of the Braintree Dramatic club. All the parts were well taken but special mention should be made of the splendid acting of several of the leading lights. Mrs. Sadie Schraut as Bernice Halstead did exceptionally well. Her part was long and difficult but Mrs. Schraut carried it through with precision and ability. Ernest Clark as Dwight Bradley, the fortune hunter, likewise did especially well in a difficult part. F. C. Allen as Sammy, the darkey bell boy was fine and kept the audience laughing continually while he was on the stage. The part of Abraham Barnes, the yankee farmer was taken by Conrad W. Carlander in a very able manner. He simulated the nasal twang and the mannerisms of the traditional "down easter" with splendid success and his efforts met with the heartiest approval of the audience.

Between the first and second acts, F. C. Allen sang a couple of songs with good effect and at the conclusion of the second act, Miss Marion Brown gave some very pleasing vocal selections.

The cast:

Bernice Halstead, A young lady of eighteen, Mrs. Sadie Schraut
Amy Halstead, her sister two years younger Miss Fannie Foster
Inez Gray, a young lady visitor, Miss Clara Day
Mrs. Halstead, a widow Miss Lida Tuppre
Hannah Mary Barnes, or Sis, a maiden lady Miss Josie Foster
Dwight Bradley, a fortune hunter Ernest Clark
Dr. Burton, a young physician Dr. W. B. Robbins
Sammy, the darkey bell-boy in the Halstead house F. C. Allen
Abraham Barnes, or Bub Conrad W. Carlander
Attorney C. Haven Belcher
Sheriff, Alton Wood

SITE SELECTED

At the meeting of the committee appointed by the Adams Parents and Teachers association to look into the matter of the site for the new school all the members of the committee were in favor of the site between Phipps street and Madison avenue bounded on the south by Kendrick avenue. This property which is owned by the Adams Real Estate Co., has been offered for sale at a reasonable price. It is situated on the side of a hill so that there will be plenty of fresh aid and sunshine and the location is in the exact geographical centre of the district. There is enough land for the building and a big playground as well and the spot seems to be the ideal location for the new building.

FORE RIVER BRIDGE.

The joint commission composed of the County Commissioners and the trustees of the Fore River bridge, who have charge of the repair of the bridge and the widening of the draw, met Monday afternoon in the office of Mayor Shea at City Hall.

At this meeting the contract for the cement work about the piers was awarded to Hiram F. Phillips and the contract for the steel cylinders about the piers to the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

Plans for the work were approved and the engineer was instructed to advertise for bids for the repair work on the fender piers.

The matter of widening the draw has not as yet been disposed of but as stated in a recent issue of the Ledger the work of widening the draw will not be commenced until September as it is not desired to close the bridge during the summer months

FUNERAL OF MURDER VICTIM

Several Witnesses Found Who saw the Killing

The funeral of Joseph Meir the victim of Sunday's murder was held this morning from St. John's church mass being said by Rev. Neil Paul Brennan. The services were attended by many of the friends of the victim and a delegation from the Granite Manufacturers Association. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Further investigation by the police Monday into the killing of Meir, Sunday evening brought out the fact that the deed had been witnessed by four girls, including the Johnson girl and young Italian known about South Quincy as Montpelier Tony. They will be summoned as witnesses to the hearing which will be held Friday morning. This hearing will probably be but little more than a preliminary one to determine if there is probable cause to hold Boggarozzo for the grand jury.

Miss Johnson the girl over whom the two men are reported to have quarrelled is reported to have stated that she had been keeping company with Meir and that she intended to marry him in the fall when she became 16 years of age.

Monday afternoon an autopsy was held by Medical Examiner Jones, Dr. Sheahan and Dr. Blanchard and showed four deep wounds in the left breast.

BRIEFS

The Bible class of the Calvary Baptist church meets in the vestry this evening at 7.30.

The last meeting of the Junior Auxiliary of Christ church will be held this afternoon at 3.45 in the Parish house.

The South Quincy Extension club will hold its regular meeting this evening in the vestry of the First Presbyterian church.

The Womens prayer meeting of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held with Mrs. Dresser, 18 South Central avenue this afternoon.

Norfolk lodge, A. O. U. W. held its meeting in Poland hall Monday evening. P. G. M. W. James J. Reedy was the principal speaker.

Rev. Joseph Walther will lead the cottage prayer meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street this evening.

Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church leaves today for Washington, Pa., to attend the general assembly of United Presbyterian churches of the United States. The assembly will have its first session on Wednesday and adjournment will take place on Wednesday, May 31.

Rolland Hughes of the granite firm of Hughes & Johnson and Mrs. Hughes are planning a visit to Wales, the birthplace of Mr. Hughes early in June. They will be absent about two months. Mr. Hughes left his native place twenty years ago and this is his first visit since that time and he is looking forward to it with much pleasure.

George Brackett who died Monday in Brooklyn, New York, was a member of the Brackett family of this city; a cousin of Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett of Boston. Mr. Brackett went to Brooklyn when a young man and for years conducted a private school for girls. He was well known in Brooklyn and New York. He was about seventy-five years old.

INTERCOLLEGIATE GLIDER MEET

At Squantum Aviation Field May 27 to 30

The first intercollegiate glider meet in New England is scheduled to take place at the Squantum aviation field this month between the 27th and 30th. Sunday excepted. It is to be held under the management of the Harvard aeronautical society.

In addition to the glider contests it is probable that there will be regular flying-machine flights by W. Starling Burgess and Charles K. Hamilton in Burgess-Wright biplanes.

Many of the gliders are already on the field and housed in the old Harvard hangar that was built for the Harvard I biplane a year ago. A tent hangar 90 feet long will be set up on the field for the use of the rest of the gliders that are expected today and Wednesday.

Some of these gliders are very nearly as large as a regular biplane. Such is the Harvard glider, which was built by R. M. Allen, manager of the Harvard aeronautical society and a member of the class of 1911. It is the best looking glider on the field so far and is built on the principle of a Wright biplane, with the same kind of a warping device for the main planes and the elevator and a double rudder that is worked by the feet.

There are several other fine gliders on the field, including one from the Volkmann school, two from Tech, one from Tufts and one from the university of Pennsylvania.

The entries to date are Harvard aeronautical society, Massachusetts institute of Technology, Cornell, Williams, Worcester polytechnic, Tufts, University of Pennsylvania, Haverford, Waltham aeronautical society, Swarthmore and Volkmann school.

The contests will be for duration, distance and accuracy in landing. Cups will be awarded for prizes. The club receiving the most points will win the meet.

The first day, the 27th, will be devoted to exhibition flying. The contests will be held on the afternoons of May 29 and 30 from 4 till 7.30 P. M.

For contestants who wish to enter the meet not representing any educational institution a prize of a silver cup will be given for the best all-round performance.

First place in each event will count five points; second, three points; third one point.

The officials of the meet are: A. A. Merrill referee, R. M. Allen clerk of course, W. H. Capen assistant clerk, M. C. Allen inspector, A. W. Carpenter timer, J. H. Taylor measurer, A. G. White announcer.

The contest committee comprises E. C. Brown, S. K. Rindge, A. A. Merrill, R. M. Allen and E. N. Fales. The reception committee consists of F. C. Cummin and M. C. Allen.

W. Starling Burgess and Charles K. Hamilton made two successful flights in the Moth, Mr. Hamilton's new Burgess-Wright biplane about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, when the wind was about four miles an hour from the south.

The first flight consisted of two large circles around the field and a part of Dorchester bay at a height of about 100 feet and covering nearly five miles. Mr. Burgess worked the levers during this flight.

During the second flight which quickly followed the first, Mr. Hamilton managed the machine with Mr. Burgess ready to grasp the levers in case of necessity. Hamilton flew in even larger circles than were described in the first flight and made a very good landing in the getaway.

If conditions are favorable Hamilton will probably fly the machine alone today. The weather conditions were ideal during both the flights, but the wind freshened and grew puffy after the second flight, so further flying was postponed much to the disappointment of Phillips Wirt Page, who was ready to go up with Mr. Burgess.

MT. WOLLASTON CEMETERY

Quincy's Home of Dead Looking Beautiful

Mr. Wolaston cemetery, Quincy's beautiful resting place of the dead never looked more beautiful than it does today. In fact this sacred spot seems to grow more beautiful every year under the guiding hand of James Nichol who has been its superintendent for many years.

One of the things that has largely contributed to this end is the lawn plan system for lots that was inaugurated some years ago.

It is too bad that the whole cemetery could not be laid out on this plan but the expense would be too great. The expense of this work is born by the lot owners and every year more orders are received for this work than the appropriation will permit. A few lots are added each year however and this work which was begun in a small way has now begun to show itself. It is indeed a beautiful sight to look at a large section comprising perhaps a dozen or more lots all laid out as one large lawn the only distinguishing mark between lots being a square stone bound set into the ground flush with the top so that a lawn mower can be easily run over it.

The old fashioned way or perhaps it would be better to say the original way in which the cemetery was laid out, was that each lot was raised with a path all around it. This not only made it difficult to keep looking well but it was next to impossible to keep the paths clean. The lawn plan does away with these paths.

Since last Memorial day a large number of granite memorials have been set. The majority of these are of medium size, about equally divided between the sarcophagus and cottage designs. Here again has the department taken a hand and all foundations must be put in by the department on a permanent base. That is the foundation is made of cement and granite and has a depth of five feet so that no frost will shift the position of the monument once it is set.

Mr. Nichol the superintendent is never so happy as when working among flowers and he takes a special pride in his work. There he spends the greater part of his time and the cemetery shows the work of his guiding hand.

DROP IN TEMPERATURE.

There was quite a drop in temperature today from what it was Monday. At noon Monday in City Square the thermometer on Pettengill's store registered 91 degrees. Today at the same hour it was 60 degrees or a drop of 31 degrees in 48 hours.

CARD OF THANKS.

WEDDING RING RECOVERED

Was Lost Eighteen Years ago on Parker Street

One of the most astonishing incidents which has come to our attention was revealed yesterday by Mrs. Oscar Olsen of Whitwell street. A little over 18 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Olsen were living on Parker street and one day the latter discovered that her wedding ring was missing. A painstaking search followed but the ring was nowhere to be found. As the years went on the loss was forgotten. Mr. and Mrs. Olsen moved first to Beacon street, then to Whitwell street and the incident was buried in the past.

Last week a man was digging in a garden on Parker street, on the property where Mr. and Mrs. Olsen once lived. While spading up the ground with his thoughts occupied on other things, he happened to look down and saw a strange sparkling in the dirt. Upon investigation it proved to be a ring and after cleaning it up the man noticed initials on the inside. Inquiry was made regarding the owner and after a time one who had lived on Parker street for many years remembered the incident of the lost ring. Mrs. Olsen received it from the hands of the finder with great joy. How the ring ever got a foot below the ground is a mystery but that is not worrying Mrs. Olsen very much. The recovery was so welcome and unexpected that little time has been spent in thinking how the loss came about. The ring was heavy and the finder seeing that it had considerable exchangeable value as well as great intrinsic value set about to find the owner.

MISSING MAN FOUND.

Albert H. Grimshaw, the Somerville druggist, who disappeared March 2 and discovered himself in Pueblo, Col., a few days ago, after a long lapse of memory, has returned to the home of his mother in Somerville where he has been joined by his wife and two children, who have been living in Quincy since his disappearance. Grimshaw's mother says that he is in wretched mental and physical condition.

Grimshaw left his store March 2, with about $300, for the purpose of paying some bills in Boston. The bills were not paid and the man dropped out of sight. He was next heard from when the Pueblo police wired that he had presented himself to them in straitened circumstances. He said he had lost his memory and recalled nothing until he read an account of his disappearance in a druggists' journal.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

This is Ohio's open season for snipping crooked lawmakers.

Many Americans are being presented to King George. They probably do their best to conceal the damning fact that they were born over here.

The people who vowed not to cut their hair until Senator Lorimer and President Diaz resign seem likely to save barbers' bills for some time.

After Mr. Madero becomes president, the idea that he alone should have the right to do any voting may look just as good to him as it did to Mr. Diaz.

It looks as though it was up to some one to make good on that concrete sidewalk in front of Johnson's building on Maple street which is caving in in spots alongside the building.

Congressmen are praising themselves in the Congressional directory. Who can blame them for kindling a little incense to offset the offerings of venerable eggs and vegetables?

If you have lost a gold ring any time within a quarter of a century do not give it up as lost, for two long lost rings have come to light in Quincy recently, one lost by a school boy, the other a valued wedding ring. Both were found while spading up the garden. If you want to find your ring call in the man with the hoe.

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14.

The American flag association in its annual circular calling attention to Flag day, June 14, says: "We respectfully appeal to the President of the United States of America, to the governors of all the states of our land and to the mayors of each American city to herald the coming and celebration of Flag day, June 14, by proclamation; we call upon every public officer, every teacher of the youth of our country, the editors of all newspapers, the daily instructors of the youth of our land to call public attention to arouse enthusiasm and to provide for public exercises and general celebration of the day.

"We earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making Flag day an event and its celebration in 1911 a great event. Let us from one end of our land to the other, fling the stars and stripes to the breeze on June 14, 1911. May it greet the rising and salute the setting sun and float all day long from every church edifice, school and building, public and private and however humble, through the entire land."

SANE FOURTH OF JULY.

Although Independence day is more than a month off, it is not too early to give the manner in which it is to be celebrated this year some consideration. A long step was taken in the right direction by many communities last year. They provided exercises, entertainments and amusements that more than compensated for any loss that might have been felt by youths or adults as a consequence of a radical departure from the conventional method of observance. Those in charge of the reformatory work were careful not to take anything away without providing something better as a substitute. The result is that in those communities the path is going to be much smoother this year.

Generally speaking, there has been too much of an effort to build up arguments based the selfish interests of the participants against the powder and dynamite method of observance. This course has not been very effective. People, and especially young people, are not thus deterred from joining in a foolish practise. The argument against the old plan that talks most eloquently is that which takes a practical view of the situation and turns the day to better account for the average person, doing it, too, in such a way as to leave no doubt with regard to its being an improvement.

There is not a community in the country that cannot, if it will, provide for its people a better way of observing this great holiday than that which has been followed generally in recent years. The matter everywhere might well be placed in the hands of committees composed of men and women who fully appreciate the meaning of the anniversary, and who are in hearty sympathy with the popular idea of making it an occasion of recreation, amusement and historic significance. A sane Fourth of July is one that should not make for dulness any more than for uproar.—Christian Science Monitor.

HIGH SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS.

Four scholarships in the high school preparatory to Boston college will be open for competition Saturday, June 24. Each scholarship will date from September, 1911, and will entitle the winner to free tuition throughout the four years of the High school course. The competition will be open to all boys who have successfully completed the regular Grammar school course, and to any others who shall have passed to satisfactory examination for admission to the High school. All competitors, not personally known to the faculty, must present a testimonial of good moral character.

The subjects of the competition, time allowed for each, and rating of each will be as follows:

	Time	Rating
Geography	9.00 to 9.30	10
Colonial and United States History	9.30 to 10.15	20
Arithmetic	10.15 to 11.30	30
English Grammar and Composition	11.30 to 1.00	40

The scholarships will be awarded to the competitors having the highest totals above 85 per cent.

The competition will be in writing, and in Quincy will take place, June 24, at 9 A. M., at St. John's school, Phipps street.

JAPANESE ADVERTISING LAW.

The advertising signs control bill, which has just been made law in Japan, provides for the abolishment of advertising signs, or the restriction of their display, when the authorities deem it "necessary for the preservation of natural beauty or attractive scenery," or when advertising signs are considered to be "dangerous to life or limb, or prejudicial to public security ,order and morals." In the interet of communities we presume such laws must be made and enforced in this country in the near future, though it would be much better if all persons were sufficiently mindful of what is best to make such laws unnecessary. Properly constructed, and properly placed, billboards, electric signs, and the like, are not unreasonable, and, in fact, they can be made attractive as well as useful. That there are dangers in such a censorship of outdoor advertising as in contemplated in Japan, or is sometimes urged in this country is entirely obvious. But thoroughly intelligent peoples should be able to avoid the dangers on the one hand and the abuses on the other.—New Bedford Standard.

CARE OF ANTIQUE SILVER.

How to Handle and Polish Without Making It Bright.

Do not give your silver a bright polish, for the vogue now is to have antique silver for the toilet table as well as for the dining table.

You will have to do the polishing cleverly if you do not want it to assume the brightness of newly manufactured silver, so you must know how to remove the discoloration without too much brilliancy appearing.

Do you know that a bath in soapy water that is boiling hot is quite as effective as polish if a little ammonia is added to the water?

After washing it should be rinsed in clear hot water, and you will find that all spots will have vanished. Too high a polish will not appear if wiped with coarse dry towels as each piece emerges from the bath.

You should make it a point never to leave a lot of silver to dry by draining, for some of the pieces will partly dry and the water collect on other sections, thus losing the clean look that is supposed to be supplied by the washing and quick drying necessary.

If silver which is in constant use is washed in this way it will not need polishing more than once a month at the most, and then the polishing should be done discreetly, so that the new appearance is not given to it.

In homes where gas is used as an illuminant the silver discolors soon, though if mantles are used on the jets it reduces this to some extent.

How to Amuse the Baby.

Put the youngster on a thick rug or blanket on the floor, dip his wee fingers in molasses and give him a feather taken from a pillow. He will sit contented and satisfied for hours trying to get the feather off his fingers. When one feather gets too sticky, substitute a fresh one and be rewarded by a smile of approval from his lordship.

PEACE RULES AFTER REVOLT

Hostilities In Mexico Formally Brought to an End

NEWS OF AGREEMENT SPREAD

Insurgent Forces Will Not Be at Once Dispersed, as They Will Help to Suppress Any Disorders Which May Occur—Only Trouble Feared Is In Lower California—Rebels' Demands Granted

Juarez, Mex., May 23.—Tranquility reigns in northern Mexico for the first time in six months. Messages are being flashed over all wires and by courier to remote parts of the country announcing that a peace agreement has definitely ended the hostilities between the revolutionists and the federal government.

Judge Carbajal, the federal peace envoy, has prepared to depart for Mexico City, his mission here being accomplished after nearly four weeks of parleys. Francisco I. Madero, Jr., triumphant leader of the revolt, has received scores of congratulatory telegrams on the success of the movement he initiated. He will now await the resignation of President Diaz, starting for Mexico City, within a week, when it is expected to become an established fact.

Though the peace agreement provides for the gradual dispersion of the troops, it is not believed any counter-revolts or disturbance will occur. The object of the gradual disbandment of the insurrectos, it is explained, is to maintain for a short time a good fighting force by which to keep order among the small scattered bands who might feel inclined to disregard the peace agreement.

Trouble is anticipated with the rebels in Lower California. Though the rebels there have never been allied with the Madero movement, the rebel chiefs here will send envoys or messages to Lower California urging the acceptance of the conditions agreed upon here. Should they refuse, an armed expedition will be sent to subdue them. Madero in his victory feels that he will now be responsible for the restoration of complete tranquility and will attempt to demonstrate that if he is not in control of some of the bands, he at least can subjugate them.

Though the peace agreement covers only the principal points negotiated thus far, it practically records the concessions by the government of those demands which started on Nov. 20 the armed revolution in Mexico.

The actual signing of the agreement took place under most extraordinary circumstances at night on the steps of the custom house. When the peace commissioners arrived they found the door of the custom house locked and no one there to let them in. Accordingly they gathered on the steps of the building and while newspaper men held matches, fountain pens were produced and the document signed.

Four automobiles turned their searchlights on the scene and when the signatures were affixed, the commissioners of both sides embraced joyfully. Judge Carbajal represented the federal government, and Vasquez Gomez, Francisco I. Madero and Pino Suarez acted for the revolutionists.

KILL 225 CHINAMEN

Slaughter Said to Have Been Committed by Mexican Rebels

Eagle Pass., Tex., May 23.—In a desperate fight between Mexican insurrectos and Chinamen at Torredon, 225 Chinamen were killed. This information was received here by Sam Wah, owner of the International hotel at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, across the river from here.

Details of the reported slaughter have not reached here, except that of the number of Chinamen killed were fifty of Wah's ranchmen. Wah has telegraphed the Chinese minister at Washington asking for protection.

As soon as the depredations against Chinese subjects at Torreon are officially reported to the Chinese minister at Washington, who is also accredited to the Mexican government, he will take steps to protest to Mexico.

PUNCHES A DOG KICKER

Judge Imposes and Executes Sentence Outside of the Court

Portland, Me., May 23.—Judge Connolly of the superior court was walking home from the court yesterday afternoon when a partly intoxicated man who was ahead of him without provocation kicked his bull terrier dog into the gutter.

Seizing the man by the shoulder the judge swung him around and gave him a blow under the chin which sent him to the sidewalk in a heap. Leaving the man's companions to attend to his needs, the judge proceeded homeward.

REVIVAL OF SILVER PLATE.

The amount of silver plate considered necessary in a well-appointed house has had numerous additions in the last few years. No dinner appointments are entirely complete without a silver dish for hors d'oeuvres. The favorite style is of plain silver and has four compartments, with a glass in each.

Silver servers go with this, and it makes also an attractive setting for sweets. It is a curious fact that while the taste for savories at the commencement of a dinner is growing, there seems to have developed an increased appreciation of sweets at the conclusion.

The most exquisite specimens of silver plate are copied from the days of Georg III., at which period the designing and working of silver reached its height. Spoons with long handles and rounded bowls and many patterns of the ornate period of Louis XIV. are seen. One sometimes sees colored horn handles for fish knives and fruit knives. This is a repetition of a fashion that existed in the days of George III, and gives to the table a dash of color, if one likes that sort of thing.

Among the new pieces added of late to table silver are slides for decanters or wine bottles. These are a revival of Sheffield plating of fully a century ago, and if one can get originals one is delighted, but if one is not so fortunate the copies are good and very attractive.

It is rumored that the individual salt cellars and pepper pots are to give place to the old-fashioned cruet for the centre of the table. These small salts and peppers have gained great beauty in recent days, and it seems almost a pity to give them up, except for the fact that a revival of this fashion of other days will bring to light many beautiful old pieces of silver and Sheffield plate.

Indians In Civil War.

Many Indians fought in the civil war on each side. As a rule, they were brave soldiers. Colonel Parker, who copied in ink the pencilled draft of the terms of surrender at Appomattox, was an Indian. The Federal muster out rolls show some interesting Indian names. The following are typical:

Captain Tul-se-fix-se-ko, killed Feb. 1, 1863.

Captain Ah-ha-la-tus-ta-nuk-ke, died at Camp Moonlight, Ark., March 23, 1863.

Captain Ta-ma-tus-ta-nuk-ka, cashiered Dec. 3, 1864.

Captain Ak-ti-yah-gi-ya-ho-la, deserted Dec. 27, 1862.

Captain Spring Frog, mustered out May 31, 1865.

Captain Eh Tadpole, died of disease April 15, 1863.

Lieutenant Andrew Rabbit, resigned July 12, 1863.

Captain Jim Ned, missing since Aug. 31, 1862.

Captain Dirt Throw Tiger, resigned Aug. 1, 1863.

Captain Daniel Grasshopper, died Oct. 3, 1862, of wounds received in action.

Lieutenant Redbird Sixkiller, mustered out May 31, 1865.

Some of the Soldiers.

Memorial day has come to be a national institution, and this is as it should be. The ranks of the veterans have thinned out since last May, and with each succeeding year they will grow smaller and smaller and the number of graves will increase, but the sons of veterans take the places of the fathers, and the memorial exercises in the schools will continually recruit the ranks of those who honor the memory of the brave fellows who died in defense of the nation and who are interested in the associations of the years of civil strife, though they themselves may have had no part in it.

ENGLAND'S NAVAL AIRSHIP LAUNCHED

Christened Mayfly and Is Expected to Do Great Things

Barrow-In-Furness, Eng., May 23.—Great Britain's first naval airship, the construction of which has been surrounded by much secrecy, was successfully launched here and is now anchored behind wind screens erected in the harbor. The airship was christened the Mayfly.

The airship, which is 502 feet in length, is of the rigid type, with a blunt nose tapering to a pointed stern. A feature of the construction is the provision for two separate gondolas for the engines. The airship is specially designed for naval purposes, and can be moored on the water.

The outer covering of the upper half of the dirigible, which is forty-eight feet in diameter, consists of silk treated with a special waterproof dressing, over which aluminum dust has been sprinkled. The lower part of the bag is of yellow silk, treated with the same waterproof material, but without the aluminum. The framework contains eighteen gas bags filled with hydrogen.

OFF FOR ATLANTA

Three Prisoners Leave Boston For the Federal Penitentiary

Boston, May 23.—Chief Deputy United States Marshal Morse and two assistants started for Atlanta this morning with three prisoners for the United States penitentiary. The prisoners are:

Timothy F. Sullivan, mail clerk, who confessed to stealing a registered package of $8000 in bills consigned from New London to the First National bank; J. K. Dunberg, a Brockton milkman, convicted of blackmail, and William Fountaine, convicted of burglarizing the postoffice at Hebronville.

Sullivan and Dunberg were each sentenced to a year and a day, and Fountaine to eighteen months.

—At least a train load of Christian Endeavorers will go from Boston to the National Endeavor convention at Atlantic City on July 6. It has been rather hard to tell how many Bostonians would go, as Atlantic City is a different proposition from any other convention city yet chosen. A seashore resort appealed strongly to the westerners but, of course, it is no novelty to Bostonians.—Boston Record.

RECORD MAY TORRID WAVE

Mercury in Some Places Climbs Above 100 Mark

As noted in the Daily Ledger Monday was the hottest May day on record for fourteen years. At noon in City Square the thermometor registered 91 degrees and it seemed as though the afternoon was even warmer. Reports from different sections of the city placed the glass at 98 and at one place 102 degrees. The wind, what there was of it, for the most part was from the southwest. At one time however it got round to east but that d id not seem to cool the air any. Occasionally however there would be a little breeze and people would breath easier for a few minutes. The wind however soon went back to the south west and everybody sweltered.

During the early evening the sky looked threatening and there was a prospect that a shower might bring some relief. None came however and people continued to swelter until late in the night when the wind shifted and the morning dawned cool so cool that many who on Monday discarded heavy undergarments got them out again.

Many heat prostrations were reported all over the state but as far as known Quincy escaped any prostration.

People did all manner of things to keep cool. Some sought the beaches while others found a cool breeze while riding in electric cars. The soda fountain and ice cream places did a rushing business all day and during the evening until closing time.

This morning was a great relief and although the sky looked somewhat threatening the predictions were for generally fair and somewhat lower temperature today and Wednesday.

COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS.

Four scholarships in Boston college will be open for competition Saturday, June 24, scholarship to dat e from September 1911, and entitles the winner to free tuition throughout the four years of the regula r College course. Competition will be open to graduates of the high school preparatory to Boston college, to graduates of other High schools in good standing, and to any other young man who shall have passed a satisfactory examination for admission to the Freshman class of Boston college. Competitors, not personally known to the faculty, must present a testimonial of good moral character.

The subjects of the competition, time allowed for each, and rating of each will be as follows:

	Time	Rating
History	9.00 to 9.45	20
American History from 1763 to 1865
Algebra (Quadratics)	9.45 to 10.30	20

English Composition	11.45 to 1.00	30

The scholarships will be awarded to the competitors having the highest totals above 85 per cent.

The competition will be in writing, and for Quincy will take place June 24, at 9 A. M., at St. John's school, Phipps street.

KILL OFF DEGENERATES.

Preacher Pleads For the Lethel Application of Anaesthetics.

That the degenerates in Massachusetts institutions should be killed with an anaesthetic was the idea offered by the Rev. George W. Cutter of Boston.

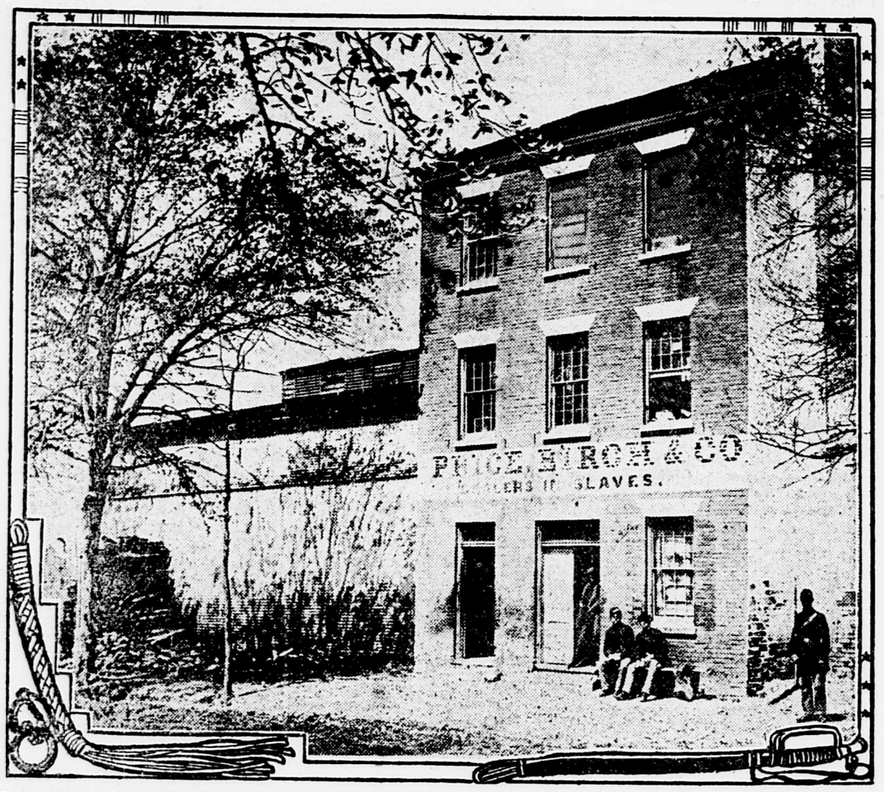
"The boards of health of cities should hold physical examinations of applicants for marriage licenses, and only upon their approval should licenses be given," said Dr. Cutter.

"As it is now every boy who can get a dollar and the consent of his parents can get a marriage license, and often through the marriage propagates degenerates, criminals and insane people.

"There should be some anaesthetic used to eliminate the degenerates. Any one who has, like myself, spent any time in institution work knows that many who are in our state institutions would be better dead than alive."

—Governor Foss thinks a month's vacation with pay is too much for state employes, and he is right. Only the federal government is rich enough to stand such a practise, and it, too, should curtail the free time of its help. A fortnight's leave of absence is about the proper limit for workers in public offices. That is what those employed in private business get, when they get a vacation at all. It is all that employers can afford and all that in decency should be expected. If the state hands are cut to two weeks they will not quit the service.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

Fifty Years Ago---Slave Dealers' Headquarters



READ the sign painted on the front of the building in the illustration, which is from a warti.e photograph: "Price, Birch & Co., Dealers in Slaves." The building stood in Alexandria, Va., only a few miles from the national capital. The buying and selling of negro slaves was carried on there by Price, Birch & Co. through the years 1861 and 1862 to the end of slavery, which institution was blotted out on New Year's day of 1863 through the emancipation proclamation issued by Abraham Lincoln as a war measure.

ONE CENT LETTER POSTAGE.

New and novel methods of prosecuting a campaign for the passage of a congressional measure are to be followed by officers of the National One Cent Letter Postage association at next fall's session of congress when a bill providing for the lowering of the rate on first class postage matter, including all letters, from two cents to one cent, will be introduced.

Instead of maintaining an expensive lobby at Washington, to "gum shoe" among the legislators and to seek by corrupt means or otherwise to secure the reform which is sought, the officers of the association expect to bring sufficent pressure to bear from "home interests" to induce a majority of congressmen and senators to approve the bill.

The association now consists of hundreds of members, located in nearly every state in the Union. For the most part they are prominent heads of big manufacturing and mercantile concerns who realize that they are entitled to a one cent rate on ordinary letters.

From the association's headquarters in Cleveland these influential businessmen will be asked to swing their representatives and senators into line for the passage of a one cent rate bill. Letters and telegrams will pour into Washington by the hundreds from men whom the legislators cannot afford to ignore. Delegations will back them up. In this thoroughly businesslike manner the officers of the association expect to conduct their campaign.

To enable them to bring the necessary pressure to bear when needed the officers of the association are now busily engaged in building up the membership. Businessmen particularly are being interested in the saving they will realize, when a one cent letter rate is inaugurated. Some firms in the large cities of the country pay as high as $40,000 and $50,- a year for first class postage. With a one cent rate this expense would be cut exactly in half. There is not a concern in the country which would not receive direct benefit from such a reform.

Last year the postoffice department realized a profit of about $60,000,000 from the carrying of first class mail matter, most of which consisted of letters. At the existing rate business houses are paying $1,680 a ton to the government for carrying letters.

On an average of forty-two letters are carried to the pound, which makes the rate about 84 cents. This for short hauls, and city delivery as well as for long distance service. An enormous amount of first class mail matter never leaves the city where it originates and the profit is particularly large on this class.

The first batch of letters carried to Circle City, Alaska cost the government $450 apiece though carried by the two-cent stamp. But there are only a few letters of this sort carried and conditions throughout the United States are entirely different. There are 92,000,000 people in the country by the new census. Vast cities exist by scores and scores where important business concerns are spending millions per annum to make their wares known to the world. The people are entitled to postal service at cost, and government can carry letters at a one cent rate and still clear expenses. It seems right and just, therefore, that such a rate should be established.

"The outrageously exorbitant rates which businessmen are being compelled to pay for transporting their letters," declared George T. McIntosh, secretary of the association, "is indicated by the fact that the profits on first class mail are now in excess of $60,000,000 per year.

During the ten years from 1901 to 1910 inclusive first class mail produced a total revenue of $1,125,000,000 with a total weight of about 1,300,000,000 pounds. In round figures the government in that period made a profit of about $500,000,000. This sum would have wiped out half of the national debt of the United States which is only $1,046,449,185! Is it any wonder that the business men of this country are waking up to the economic burden they are being compelled to shoulder?

"Unjust taxation caused the secession of the United States from Great Britain. Yet what was the mere pittance being charged then compared to the enormous toll of $60,000,000 yearly which the businessmen of the country are now paying on first class mail matter! Isn't it about time that business men proceeded to investigate the manner in which their money is being spent by the government? tirade against unjust postal rates. Preaching against it will accomplish no more. What we have to do is to demand that congress pass a law reducing the rate on first class matter from two cents to one cent an ounce. Every time a person mails a letter he is paying the government a bonus of one cent which it has not earned and to which it is clearly not entitled. We want every businessman in America to become interested in this great movement and to write to 506 Chamber of Commerce building, Cleveland, Ohio, for literature concerning our campaign and the progress being made with it."

—Another futile legal decision is that of a Massachusetts judge who is reported as saying that "any husband, so long as he provides a home, has the right to expect his family to live where he wishes." As dry law, perhaps yes. But there will never be a true home where the husband does not act on the principle that his obligation to provide a home that will be congenial is quite equal to his right to have that home where he pleases.—New Bedford Standard.

MEMORIAL DAY.

As Memorial day approaches, the old question which has come up regularly for the last few years, as to whether the general public shall carry out the spirit of Memorial day or treat it as it has been treated, as a holiday, is again under discussion. To the veteran, with his memories of comrades gone before to whom he wishes to pay fitting tribute, it seems a desecration that the day be given over to sports. On the other hand, the people at large, in ever increasing numbers as the memories of the Civil war grow fainter, look upon the day merely as an opportunity for recreation.

The point of view of each is easily seen. The younger generation cannot appreciate the feelings of the veterans. If they realize them it is in a dim sort of a way, and they think that by doing the survivors of the war honor, by giving them every facility for decorating the graves of their dead with solemnity they have done all that is required.

It is suggested that the easiest way to reconcile the difference of opinion is to change the date of Memorial day to Sunday. The firemen have wisely set apart the first day of the week as the one on which their dead comrades shall be honored. There is no conflict of opinion, no act that can offend the most sensitive. If it be desired to retain the thirtieth of May as a holiday, well and good. Such a course would not interfere with the setting apart of—say the last Sunday in May as a day to commemorate the veterans who have fallen.—Framingham News.

"L" GIVES WAY TO "W."

When the next telephone directory appears, the letter "L" will have been replaced by the letter "W." When "L" was selected, "W" was considered, but as at that time the practice prevailed of using the word "double" in pronouncing certain combinations of numbers, "L" was chosen in place of a letter manifestly better adapted except for this other qualification.

As soon as it appeared that "L" and "M" were found to be confusing to subscribers because of their similarity when pronounced by telephone, steps were taken to remedy this cause of complaint. The first move was to change the system of calling, so as to avoid the use of the word "double" as applied to digits. The next was to substitute "W" for "L".

The change will be made automatically in the next directory. The line numbers will not be effected, and no confusion will result so far as the operators are concerned, as the same ringing key can be used for either letter.

"W" was selected out of the entire alphabet as the letter most available for the purpose. "A" would be confused with the letter "J," "B," "C," "D" and "E"" with the number 3, and so on. In nearly every instance there was a likelihood of confusion either with a number or with some other code letter. "W" was the least objectionable in this respect, and the abandonment of the word "double" makes Boston's method of calling conform to that of the other large cities of the country, so that wherever one travels the telephone practice remains the same.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Reaction From Cold Baths.

The beneficial effect of a cold bath is all in the reaction. Whenever reaction is feeble—that is, when a pleasant feeling of warmth after a bath does not come quickly enough—one should proceed somewhat as follows:

If the bath is to be taken in the morning rise a half hour earlier and recover the bed so that the warmth of the body is retained in it. Take your bath then, rub yourself briskly with a Turkish towel and return as quickly as possible to the warm bed. In the greater majority of cases the return to the warm bed will insure the necessary reaction; if not it is a sign that the body had not enough resistance for this kind of treatment, and a physician should be consulted.

BRIEFS

Many Quincy merchants have received invitations for Brocktons Merchant week, June 3-10.

CAUGHT SETTING FIRES

Boy May Be One of Gang Who Spread Terror In Boston

Boston, May 23.—In the arrest of Luciano Amartinio, 10 years old, of 372 Hanover street, who was captured in the very act of setting fire to the house in which he lives and who confessed his intent to Judge Baker of the juvenile court, the police are confident that they have checked the firebug terror in the North End.

In the boy's confessions he implicates an older boy whose arrest is momentarily expected and reveals a system of maliciousness on the part of several other boys whom the police are certain form the gang which has spread terror though the thickly settled tenement district of the North End.

OLIVE BRANCH HELD OUT TO ALL NATIONS

Japan and Germany So Informed by State Department

Washington, May 23.—The German government has been made aware by the United States that the same general arbitration proposition submitted to Great Britain and France is open to Germany if that country is interested.

This was learned at the state department, where it was reiterated that the tentative draft now in the hands of Great Britain and France constitutes a basis upon which this country is prepared to enter into negotiations with any power desiring to do so.

The draft, it was added, was sent to Great Britain and France simply because those governments had indicated their desire to discuss the question of negotiating a broad convention along the lines laid down by President Taft in his speech last December.

There have been informal discussions between the United States and Japan on the new arbitration proposition, but Japan has not yet definitely made known her intentions in the matter.

JUDGE TIGHE A SUICIDE

Loss of Place on Bench Causes Him to Take His Own Life

New York, May 23.—James G. Tighe, for twenty years a city magistrate and one of the most widely known characters in Brooklyn, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in his home. He was 68 years old.

Friends of the judge say that constant brooding over Mayor Gaynor's failure to reappoint him, on May 1, to the police bench really was the cause of his death. Tighe was to take up his duties as counsel to James S. Regan, who was recently appointed deputy state excise commissioner for Brooklyn. This place pays $3500 a year. As a magistrate he had received $6000.

FLAMES KILL FIVE GIRLS

Mother Mistakenly Uses Gasolene For Kerosene In Lamp

Utica, Kan., May 23.—Five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Roach of this place, ranging in ages from 7 to 16 years, were burned to death. The parents were badly burned. The mother mistakenly filled a lamp with gasolene. An explosion followed her attempt to light the lamp and the fire communicated to a two-gallon can of gasolene, sending a burst of flames up the narrow stairway to the room where the girls were sleeping.

Half an hour later the bodies of the five girls were recovered. All had died where they lay.

HE DISCUSSES RECIPROCITY

Declares It Improper For Chief Executive to Demand No Senate Amendments to Canadian Pact—Lodge Wants to Have Operation of Fishery Provisions Postponed Until Canada Abolishes Bounties

Washington, May 23.—Senator Nelson of Minnesota attacked President Taft before the senate finance committee for seeking to prevent the senate from amending the Canadian reciprocity bill. He declared that the constitution made it a part of the treaty making power of the country and offered several amendments to the measure.

Senator Nelson's amendments would reduce about one-half the existing tariff rates on most farm products. To put farm products on the free list, he declared, was legislating directly against the farmer.

"President Taft is evading the constitution of the United States," he asserted, "when he tries to force the senate to accept this agreement as it was presented. He is trifling with the senate of the United States."

Senator Nelson said that the senate had amended previous treaties and that there was no valid reason why it should not amend the Canadian agreement.

Senator Lodge has decided to offer an amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill postponing the operation of the fisheries provisions until Canada shall have abolished her bounties to Canadian fishermen.

This amendment, if adopted, would operate differently from the Root pulp and paper amendment in that it would throw the bill into negotiation with the Dominion government, whereas the Root amendment would not, as it would not affect the rates of duty and Canada has made no agreement as to the removal of provincial restrictions upon American pulp and paper, the Canadian commissioners expressly stating that they were powerless in that respect.

Under the present laws of the two governments covering th efisheries the bounties paid by Canada have been regarded as an offset to the American duties on fish.

One of the strongest friends of the Canadian reciprocity in the house, a Republican, expressed his approval of the general policy proposed by the Root amendment.

"On thinking the matter over," said he, "I am inclined to believe that it would be better administrative policy and bring better results for us to deal with Canada as a whole and not piecemeal; to let her people and all her governments understand that we will offer her a free market for her pulp and print paper when all her restrictions are removed and not to admit the product of individual provinces accordingly as they take off their restrictions. If is not good policy to have the legislation national on one side and local on the other."

QUARREL OVER CIGARETS

It Leads to Killing of Two Men by Boston Tobacco Dealer

Boston, May 23.—Arthur L. Boardman of 515 Main street, Charlestown district, is held by the police, charged with the murder of Arthur A. Munroe, 25, and John Murray, 16.

A dispute over paying for a box of cigarets is said to have been the cause of Boardman, who keeps a cigar store, shooting the two young men. Last night it was reported that he refused to employ counsel.

Boardman is 50 years old and is unmarried. Munroe leaves a wife and one small child. He was in the navy four years and since February has been working for the Boston Elevated railway.

NATURAL ICE PURE

During the next few months the quality of the public water supply in many towns and cities will be questioned, as the sources are lowered by droughts or flooded by an excess rainfall. While it is true that public supplies are seldom injuriously affected by the foreign vegetable matter when the lakes or reservoirs are low, or by the turbidity following torrential rains, nevertheless the public is loathe to drink water so changed from its normal clear state. Frequently health authorities in these emergencies recommend boiling the water.

It is news to many that in the water obtained by melting natural ice there exists a perfectly satisfactory source of drinking water always available in every community. Such ice is from 90 to 99.5 per cent purer than the water on which it forms. As John C. Sparks, B. Sc., City Water Expert for New York City, says: "In the neighborhood of 50 per cent of the mineral matter in solution is eliminated, making the water of which the ice is made, more pure, both from the removal of matter in suspension and a portion of the matter in solution." Bacteria in the water are eliminated from the ice, the latter containing 90 per cent less bacteria than the water and as all natural ice is stored anywhere from four to twelve or more weeks before being used, there is a further reduction of over 99 per cent of any bacteria in the ice during this storage period, so that, as Dr. E. H. Porter, State Commissioner of Health of New York State reports, it is practically sterile when delivered for consumption. This purification makes the water from melted natural ice a very desirable source of drinking water supply.

Dr. Wm. T. Sedgwick, of Boston, America's leading sanitarian, is accustomed to advise his classes of engineers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology when they go out in the world and get to places, as he puts it: "Where the water supply is suspicious and the milk supply, which is always suspicious, is as suspicious as the water or more so, then you can get a safe drink by melting down clear natural ice; because in 99 cases out of a hundred clear ice when melted gives a pure water."

Other authorities might be quoted but these are sufficient to show that there lies at the door of every community a cheap, always available and perfectly safe source of drinking water supply, in the natural ice which local ice dealers have on hand. Such melted ice is cheaper than the water often bought by the gallon for family use and the ice being in a solid form does not absorb impurities in handling. Eight and a half pounds of ice melted will give a gallon of water at a cost less than 5 cents a gallon. As Prof. Sparks says: "A more extensive use of natural ice as a drinking water would aid in the reduction of typhoid fever and make a useful and easily attainable supply of safe drinking water within the reach of everyone."

NOT IN THE TACTICS.

General Hardee's Encounter With a Witty Straggler.

While on a forced march in some of the army movements in Mississippi General Hardee came upon a straggler. The general ordered him forward, when the soldier replied that he was weak and broken down, not even having had half rations for several days.

"That's hard," said General Hardee, "but you'll have to catch up with your regiment just the same or the provost sergeant will take you in hand."

The soldier looked up at the general and said:

"Ain't you General Hardee?"

"Yes," answered the general.

"Didn't you write Hardee's tactics?"

"Yes."

"Well, general, I've studied them tactics and know 'em by heart. You've got an order thar to double column at half distance, ain't you?"

"Well," asked the general, "what has that to do with your case?"

"I'm a good soldier, general, and obey all that it is possible to obey, but if you'll show me an order in your tactics or anybody else's tactics to double distance on half rations I'll give in."

The general, with a hearty laugh, admitted that there were no tactics to meet the situation and, putting spurs to his horse, rode forward.

From Thin to Plump—Girls.

The expressions of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed the recently successful flesh forming product, known as three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, is related by a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary layman to learn the heart throbs of distress which seems to effect so many young people who are abnormally thin. Also to know that the weight can be so readily increased by the use, regularly for several months, of this peculiarly named preparation, now obtainable of the best physicians and apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.

DOWNWARD COURSE

Fast Being Realized by Quincy People.

A little backache at first.
Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak.
Urinary disorders quickly follow:
Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.
This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Quincy citizen.

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North street Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion o Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so severe at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, my case being of long standing, I was cured. Other members of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

MEMORIAL DAY

By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

[This poem was written in 1882, a very short time before the poet's death, which occurred on March 15 of that year.]

SLEEP, comrades, sleep and rest
On this field of the grounded arms,
Where foes no more molest
Nor sentry's shot alarms.

Ye have slept on the ground before
And started to your feet
At the cannon's sudden roar
Or the drum's redoubling beat.

But in this camp of death
No sound your slumber breaks.
Here is no fevered breath,
No wound that bleeds and aches.

All is repose and peace.
Untrampled lies the sod.
The shouts of battle cease.
It is the truce of God.

Rest, comrades, rest and sleep.
The thoughts of men shall be
As sentinels to keep
Your rest from danger free.

Your silent tents of green
We deck with fragrant flowers.
Yours has the suffering been;
The memory shall be ours.

and the warm affection of the men with whom he had served so faithfully and so long, the day came when there had to be a final parting. Two hundred of the men were pushing a fresh Indian trail when Old Jack, going at an easy gallop, put his foot into a gopher hole and broke a fore leg. Two hundred men groaned aloud at the sight of the poor beast standing there in the shadow of certain death. There was neither water nor grass for miles around, and, anyhow, the wolves would pull him down after a few hours, and he deserved a better death. And yet no one could be found willing to kill him.

"Strip off the saddle and shoot him."

That was the order that came back from the head of the column, and that was the order given by Captain K. to Sergeant B. The saddle was removed, and, although Old Jack must have been suffering intense pain, he did not utter a sigh, only his eyes seemed to open a little wider than usual, and he appeared somewhat worried and anxious as he looked around.

"Captain, I can't do it; I simply cannot," replied the sergeant. "Give that order to some one else."

A second and a third man were named, but all asked to be relieved of the unpleasant duty. Then a corporal stepped out and placed the muzzle of his revolver to Old Jack's ear, but a hundred men shouted in chorus, and he did not pull the trigger.

"Compliments of Colonel C., with orders to shoot that horse at once," announced a messenger from the front.

"Sergeant B., put that poor beast out of his misery," ordered the captain.

"I've got to do it or stand a court martial, I suppose," growled the sergeant, "but I'd sooner take a shot at somebody down in front. Perhaps he isn't so badly hurt after all and something can be done for him."

"Hurry up! Can't you see that the bone is broken square off?"

"It's the same thing as murder!"

Poor Old Jack was rubbing his nose against the sergeant's left hand and whimpering, as if he would inquire what it was all about. The face of every man present was turned away, and many stopped their ears to shut out the sound of the revolver. No one looked as the revolver cracked, and the column moved on its way.

Looking straight ahead and with a suspicious quivering of the chin, the sergeant was heard to whisper:

"I wish I hadn't done it. I wish I had taken arrest and court martial instead. Poor old comrade!"

All In the Family.

When the fighting was at its highest in the battle of Gettysburg a Union soldier captured a Confederate who happened to be his own brother. He turned to fire at a Confederate behind a tree when the prisoner said, "Don't fire on him; that's father."

PHYSICAL FACTS ABOUT CIVIL WAR SOLDIERS.

The average height of the Union soldiers in the civil war was five feet eight and one-quarter inches. Maine, Indiana, Iowa Missouri and Kentucky troops averaged slightly taller. Of about 1,000,000 recorded heights of soldiers 3,613 were above six feet three inches, some of them being more than seven feet tall.

The average weight was 143½ pounds.

Thirty per cent had brown hair, 24 per cent light, 13 per cent black, 4 per cent sandy, 3 per cent red, 1 per cent gray.

Forty-five per cent had blue eyes, 24 per cent gray, 13 per cent hazel, 10 per cent dark, 8 per cent black.

In complexion 60 per cent were light, 33 per cent dark, 7 per cent medium.

Forty-eight per cent were farmers, 24 per cent mechanics, 16 per cent laborers, 5 per cent in commercial pursuits, 3 per cent professional men, 4 per cent of miscellaneous vocations.

The average age was about twenty-five years at enlistment. More enlistments were received at eighteen years than at any other age. None above forty-five years was taken.

OVERRIDES MILK VETO

Massachusetts Senate Again Passes the Medical Measure

Boston, May 23.—By a vote of 27 to 4 the senate passed the medical milk commissioners' bill over Governor Foss' veto. Five Democrats voted with twenty-two Republicans to override the veto. Four Democrats sustained the veto.

The bill provides for the appointment of medical milk commissioners in various cities and towns for the purpose of supervising the production of milk. Five or more physicians, under the terms of the bill, may form a body and act with the local board of health in any city or town to supervise the milk industry. The commissioners are empowered to enter into agreement with dairy men for the production of milk.

MISS QUIMBY ARRESTED

Held by New York Police at Request of Her Mother

New York, May 23.—Gertrude Quimby, the 16-year-old girl who has been missing from her home in Boston since a week ago, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Broadway and Forty-Seventh street.

She was taken to police headquarters and examined, and was then sent to the Children's society, where she will be held pending her appearance before Judge Hoyt in the children's court.

The arrest was made at the request of the girl's mother, Mrs. A. S. Werner. The request was forwarded to the New York police a few hours after the girl had been located in the offices of a theatrical manager.

SIX NEGROES STOOD IN ROW AND KILLED

They Are Taken From Jail In Florida by Subterfuge

Lake City, Fla., May 23.—Six negroes were shot here after a party of more than a dozen men, masquerading as officers, had appeared at the county jail and obtained possession of the men by presenting a bogus telegram to the 16-year-old son of the sheriff ordering the release of the blacks to the alleged posse. The negroes were being held here for safekeeping on the charge of murdering B. B. Smith, a sawmill man, and wounding another man named Register.

The men, who had come from Tallahassee to Lake City in automobiles, took the negroes about a mile outside Lake City. They compelled the negroes to stand abreast and fired until every one of the six had been riddled with bullets.

The telegram which the leader of the mob showed the boy was supposedly from the sheriff of Leon county, and stated that the sheriff had received intimations that a mob was being formed to take the negroes from jail. The telegram appeared authentic, because the six negroes had been moved frequently.

GET A RICH HAUL

American Gem Thieves Work an Old Game on London Jeweler

London, May 23.—American thieves have stolen jewels valued at $7500, including a diamond tiara, from Halford Sons, jewelers, of Pall Mall.

Three Americans took rooms at a fashionable West End hotel at which an American steel magnate is stopping. The two went to the jewelry shop. There one posed as the secretary of the steel magnate and represented that he had been deputed to select jewelry for his employer's wife.

An assistant was sent to the hotel with the jewelry. The alleged secretary took him to a room where sat the alleged magnate. The assistant was then seized and locked in a dark room.

TIPPING OF BARBERS

Found to Have Driven Many Men to the Use of Self-Shavers

St. Louis, May 23.—A ban was placed on tipping at a mass meeting of bosses and journeymen barbers. The action comes as the result of investigation by the officials of the International Union of Journeymen Barbers of America.

Barbers have for some time complained because their patrons were joining the ranks of the self-shavers.

The issue became so pronounced in St. Louis that the attention of the national association was called to it. And the answer comes back that tipping is the reason why men shave themselves.

Daring Daylight Robbery

Boston, May 23.—The Waverly station of the Boston and Maine railroad was broken open in broad daylight and $200 in cash and several hundred dollars' worth of tickets were taken. The burglars gained access to the building by forcing open a window.

Providence, May 23.—The People's Savings bank of Woonsocket, incorporated in 1857, has been merged with the Woonsocket Institution for Savings, which was incorporated in 1845.

DEATH OF MRS. FOLLANSBEE

Woman Wielded Powerful Influence In Hub Politics

NAME A BYWORD FOR YEARS

Often Excelled Ward Bosses In Securing Positions For Friends—Was Financially Interested In Working of City Machinery by Mechanical Devices—Made Much Money In Politics, Nearly All Going to Charity.

Boston, May 23.—Mrs. Mary A. Follansbee, Boston's most famous woman politician, died last night at the age of 73. Death followed a protracted illness with pneumonia.

As an office seeker, promoter, politician, mayor-maker, lobbyist and vote getter she was said to have yielded more influence at city hall than any other woman. This was during the thirty-five years prior to the regime of Mayor Fitzgerald.

In Charlestown her name was a byword for years and the older residents of Charlestown remember her as a character about whom many interesting stories are centred.

Nearly all her money went to charity. She made it in politics in the days when politics were profitable. To Carney hospital she gave an endowment. Although herself a Protestant, most of her charity went for Catholics.

She rivalled and often excelled the ward bosses in getting positions for her friends. At one time more than half the employes of the street department claimed they owed their jobs to her. The public service corporations bowed to her will.

She was conceded to have been an important factor in the elections of Mayors Albert Palmer in 1882, Hugh O'Brien in 1885 and 1888 and Thomas N. Hart in 1889 and 1900. With these executives her "pull" was shown to be very strong.

Mayors Matthews and Quincy barred her from their offices, claiming she sought favors out of proportion to her political strength. She retaliated by making their campaigns for re-election hot for them.

About the streets of the city she was a familiar figure. She buttonholed the men politicians and with aggressive personality did not let them go until she had secured at least a promise.

It was just before the election of Mayor Palmer that Mrs. Follansbee was graduated from the ward-heeling class and became an out-and-out political force. From that time on campaigns received her undivided attention up to 1905.

Just at the time when the present mayor was making his first "whirlwinds" Mrs. Follansbee, already feeble and walking with a limp, fell ill. Although she partly recovered, since that time she had stayed in the background.

As a stump speaker Mrs. Follansbee made a reputation that no suffragette has yet, her friends say, equalled. Her ringing voice could keep crowds attentive in all kinds of weather and she could bring forth cheers for her candidates when others failed.

Mrs. Follansbee was connected with many plans for the better working of city machinery by mechanical devices. Her methods of promoting these mechanical schemes, in which she was financially interested, aroused much comment at the time.

In business schemes she was prolific and she invariably made money out of them. She brushed past office boys and clerks to railroad presidents and vice presidents to interest them in her schemes. She asked one president for a pass from Boston and San Francisco, got it, and while there formed a stock company, retired from it and then sold it, a patented pump.

As a picturesque figure about the business district she became well known to teamsters and car drivers, as well as to eminent bankers and brokers, before whose offices she stopped.

She rode often in an old basket phaeton, drawn by a hobbly pony, and as she herself was not comely in features was often accompanied by a beautiful maiden.

In her conversation she was always outspoken. She told people just what she thought of them and if they attempted to eject her from offices put up such a stiff threat of fight that she was allowed to have her say and depart in peace.

Killed In Cat Chase

Cranston, R. I., May 23.—Discovering a cat in his hen yard Owen McElroy, 55 years old, was pursuing the feline chicken thief with a shotgun when he tripped and fell, receiving the charge of shot in his abdomen. He died almost instantly.

L'Enfant Memorial Unveiled

Washington May 23.—On a green knoll in Arlington cemetery a memorial was unveiled to Major Pierre C. L'Enfant, the French engineer, to whose prophetic vision Washington owes its broad avenues and its symmetry of design.

Greenland's Exclusiveness.

Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and, so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and conservative in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect the Greenlanders from unscrupulous merchants. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

LOW AND HIGH.

That low man seeks a little thing to do,
Sees it and does it;
This high man, with a great thing to pursue,
Dies ere he knows it.
That low man goes on adding one to one,
His hundred's soon hit;
This high man, aiming at a million,
Misses an unit.
That has the world here, should he need the next,
Let the world mind him!
This throws himself on God, and unperplexed
Seeking shall find him.
—Robert Browning.

BRIEFS

A pupils recital is to be given at the Quincy Mansion school on Friday evening.

John Hancock lodge weeks the third degree upon a number of candidates at the rooms of Mt. Wollaston lodge tonight for Mt. Wollaston, John Hancock and Neponset lodges.

Mrs. J. Nathan of Curtis street, accompanied by her brother, left Boston on Tuesday for England and Germany. She will be gone about 4 months.

Cards are out for commencement week at the Quincy Mansion school which is to be the week of June 4, commencing Sunday afternoon at four o'clock with the sermon before the graduating class by Rev. Philip Mercer Rhinelander.

Councilman Bolster has ordered a handsome 8 by 15 foot flag for the Ward 3 playgrounds. The people of the district contributed generously and sufficient money was received to pay for the flag, ropes, pulleys and all the necessaries. The pole will be erected in the near future.

Councilman Ericson who recently purchased part of the Pratt estate on Spear street is developing its with good judgment. He has a most attractive two-family house well underway and the cellar started for another. There are to be three in all, each of different architecture.

The kindergarten and first primary class closes the year at Miss Spear's on Friday. Parents are cordially invited to inspect from 9 to 10.30 A. M. this week the work accomplished in clay models, weaving, cutting, color and design. The out door program has been most successful this year.

One of the most quiet but most efficient social workers in Boston is Delcivare King, who is connected with the Watch and Ward Society. His career reads like a romance. When he was graduated from Harvard in 1896 his father, who is a very wealthy man, and connected with 11 large corporations, told him he did not care to have him go into business, if the plan suited him, for 10 years. In this decade the father told the son he would provide ample funds so that the latter might do charitable work. The young man determined to work with the Watch and Ward Society, with which organization he has done most efficient work.—Boston Record.

BUSH HAMMER THIEF

Luelgi Cechini who was arrested Saturday night by Lieut. McKay for the larceny of bush hammers was given a hearing in the district court this morning. He was arraigned on two complaints for larceny of bush hammers from the yards of D. F. Fitzgerald and H. F. Geirs and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

QUINCYS OPENING GAME.

"Mike" Shea's Quincy baseball team will open the season on Memorial day with games both morning and afternoon.

The Riversides, formerly the Lincolns of the Old Colony league will be met at the Water street grounds in the morning and the Makarias will be the opponents in the afternoon. Glaze and Cotton will do the pitching and they will be supported by a first class team. The Old Colony pennant will fly from a temporary flag pole on the grounds until the new pole arrives.

The city officials have been invited to attend the opening game and Mayor Shea will pitch the first ball.

George Bolster is associated with "Mike" Shea in running the team and a successful reason is assured. The team will play all home games on Saturdays and holidays throughout the season. The opening games next Tuesday both promise to be first class exhibitions. "Johnny" Glaze the old Dartmouth twirler will pitch in the morning game and Cotton, a new man will oppose the Makarias.

SPORTING NOTES.

Grammar school games of Monday:
Willard 3, Hancock 2.
Washington 9, Codington 3.
Games today:
Wollaston vs. Gridley Bryant.
Cranch vs Lincoln.

The Quincy High—Brockton high game at Merrymount park this afternoon should be one of the hardest fought of the year. The weather conditions are not ideal for the pitchers but even so a good game may be expected because of the keen rivalry between the two schools.

Milton High goes to Revere today to meet the high school team of that town Milton has a good team this year and when Quincy and Milton clash next week a close and interesting game may be expected. Carson and Rice should be evenly matched on the pitching end so it will come down to a question of which team gets the fewest errors.

The High school interclass track meet will be held Thursday afternoon at 3.30 in the third field, Merrymount park. The handicaps have been adjusted by Mr. Robinson and Captain Cranshaw and a goodly number of entries have been made under the new system.

One of the most interesting games scheduled for the holiday will be that between the Manets and the Adams A. A. on the Ward 3 playgrounds. The teams are old rivals and are well matched. Kerr and Knight will have a pitchers battle which will be watched with much interest by many of the fans.

HOUGHS NECK.

Guy Harvey who sprained his hand about a week ago is suffering considerable pain from it. The hand is now so badly swollen that it is impossible to discover just what is the trouble, but he is under the care of a doctor and hopes for relief soon.

Premeditated.

"And why do you claim that it was with malice aforethought that the automobile defendant ran down the complainant?"

"On the morning it happened, your honor, I heard him say that he was going to take out his new auto and see if he could not run across a few people he knew."—Houston Post.

DO IT NOW.

Lose this day loitering, 'twill be the same story
Tomorrow, and the next more dilatory;
For indecision brings its own delays,
And days are lost lamenting o'er lost days.
Are you in earnest? Seize this very minute!
What you can do or think you can, begin it;
Boldness has genius, power and magic in it!
Only engage, and then the mind grows heated;
Begin it, and the work will be completed.

—Goethe.

"Frances," said that little girl's mamma, who was entertaining callers in the parlor, "you came down stairs so noisily that you could be heard all over the house. You know how to do it better than that. Now go back and come down the stairs like a lady."

Frances retired, and after the lapse of a few minutes re-entered the parlor.

"Did you hear me come down stairs this time, mamma?"

"No, dear. I am glad you came down quietly. Now don't let me ever have to tell you again not to come down noisily, for I see that you can come quietly if you will. Now tell these ladies how you managed to come down like a lady the second time, while the first time you made so much noise."

"The last time I slid down the banisters," explained Frances.—Harper's Bazar.

Y. M. C. A. WORK IN TEXAS CAMPS

Attendance at San Antonio Reaches 100,000 a Month.

THREE TENTS AT SAN DIEGO.

Competent Secretaries In Charge of the Work, With a Negro Secretary For the Colored Troops—Entertainment Other Than Religious.

Attendance at the Young Men's Christian association tents pitched at the camp at San Antonio reaches 100,000 a month. There are six secretaries besides some volunteers, all of them sent from the north and trained in the work. At the head of the association's army and navy branch in the field is George Avery Reeder, a veteran and a leader in this peculiar line. For the men of the Ninth cavalry there is a colored secretary, and a tent is provided for colored enlisted men.

Medical men of San Antonio have given addresses in the tents, some of them illustrated. Lectures on art subjects have also been given. Bible classes have been formed, and they have been well attended. The regular religious addresses on Sundays have been given by the secretaries and also by the local pastors of San Antonio. Week nights letter writing is indulged in by the men, no fewer than 1,500 letters going out from the tents on single days.

Additional Secretary Sent.

It appearing certain that troops must remain for some time at El Paso, a new secretary has just been sent there, Charles A. Dean, a veteran at work among soldiers. He is provided with a tent and will have the co-operation of the local association at El Paso. There are at San Diego three tents, and they are attended by quite as large numbers as those at San Antonio and El Paso. They are manned by secretaries sent from California, while the tents in Texas are manned by secretaries from New York and the east.

Just now there are no men on the battleships, but it is due to a transfer and the supplying of men in exceptional numbers for work in tents on land. It is planned to send one man with the squadron that goes to England to represent this country at the king's coronation.

The Army and Navy Work.

This army and navy work by Young Men's Christian associations was started at the suggestion and by the personal work of William B. Millar, now with the laymen's missionary movement at the breaking out of the Spanish war. Mr. Millar early had the help of the late Dwight L. Moody. Within ten years, growing in part out of the experiences of the Spanish war, marked progress has been made in providing buildings at Fort Monroe, Newport, New York and other navy yards, in sending secretaries upon battleships with cruises and in other lines, partly social, partly religious. Hearty approval of the work has been given by Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft and by scores of army officers.

When the Spanish war began American care for enlisted men when in camp and in the field and on battleships and in yards was poor indeed when compared with the homes, the social and other work done by English people for their enlisted men. One outcome of that war, backed by the association, has been provision for American enlisted men comparable with that afforded by England and Germany.

GIRL PAINTS INDIAN WOMAN.

Mother of Senator Owen Will Be the Central Figure.

Washington is awaiting with much interest the coming exhibition of a painting of the grandmother of Senator Robert L. Owen of Muskogee, Okla. The painting, which is being done by Miss Katherine Dabney, is descriptive of the early history of Virginia and the Cherokee Indians, the senator's mother being a relative of no less a person than President Thomas Jefferson of Virginia and also a descendant of the Cherokees.

Narcissa Chisholm, the senator's mother, was the granddaughter of a queen of the Cherokee tribe, a noted beauty of her race, called Queen Quatsis. Miss Dabney has portrayed the meeting of Queen Quatsis and her English lover as he comes through the forest riding his thoroughbred charger and discovers the Indian queen and her maidens gathering Cherokee roses. The queen, of the typical Indian type of romance, stands near a great rock, with the characteristic pose of the women of her race, listening to the hoof beats of the horse with its rider approaching her.

The horseman, attracted by her unusual beauty, as the stories go, fell in love with her at first sight. He wooed and won her and, marrying her, took her back to England with him, and she was presented at the English court much the same as the farfamed Pocahontas. Her picture is to be seen today hanging in one of the well known galleries of England.

Palestine and New York.

Palestine is about one-fourth of the size of New York.

HOW TO COOK CARROTS.

Humble Vegetable Can Be Made Into Appetizing Dishes.

The humble carrot has an especially good effect on the system at this time, and despite its strong taste it may be made into the most delicate dishes.

Winter carrots are slightly boiled in three different waters to remove this rankness, but the new spring sort is dainty enough to require one water only. Spring carrots, which begin to appear in March, are delicious when boiled plainly and served with maitre d'hotel—clarified butter sauce. A dust of finely chopped fresh parsley on top gives them a new piquancy to those who tire of the carrot taste.

Carrots served with cream are first boiled in plain water and then drained and warmed anew in the sauce that has been preparing. To make this sauce dilute a little of the boil water with two-thirds cream and thicken slightly with cornstarch; season with black pepper and salt and add a tablespoonful of butter.

Carrot fritters are made with the cold boiled vegetable mashed up and mixed with breadcrumbs and egg; enough cream to make a thickish batter is used and the fritters are fried in oil. Oyster plant and parsnips are also delicious when served in fritter form, the various ingredients used giving the vegetables a most delicate taste.

How to Roll Umbrella.

A badly rolled up umbrella, besides looking unsightly, does not wear half as long as it ought to. The process of rolling an umbrella up neatly is simple. The majority of people hold it by the handle and keep twisting the stick with one hand, while with the other they twist and roll the silk. Instead of this they should take hold of the umbrella just above the ribs of the cover.

These points naturally lie evenly with the stick. They should be kept hold of and pressed tightly against the stick and then the cover should be rolled up. Holding the ribs thus prevents them from getting twisted out of place or bending out of shape, and the silk is bound to follow evenly and roll smooth and tight. If an umbrella is rolled in this fashion until it is old enough to look rusty it will look as if newly bought.

How to Launder Black Clothes.

First, black clothes must never be washed in water that has been used for either washing or rinsing white things, as there is always fine lint in this water which sticks to the black, and no amount of after rinsing will get it off. Wash in hot, clean soapsuds and rinse in the ordinary way. To starch, take a cupful of white cornmeal, place in a frying pan and set next the fire in the range. Burn this until it is a black, sticky mass, stirring it steadily. When all is black, pour in boiling water, stirring all the while. Then strain and you have a splendid starch. Iron on the wrong side, and your shirt waists will be beautifully fresh and sweet.

Rev. Brown, a man of less than medium stature, possessed a high, squeaky voice.

Not long ago he was invited to exchange pulpits with a minister in a neighboring city. The church in which he was to preach was much more imposing than the home chapel.

Arriving early, he peered from behind the pulpit and watched what he considered an immense congregation with trepidation.

As the last notes of the organ voluntary died away his little head popped up from behind the desk, and without a word of warning he piped out, "It is I, be not afraid."—Lippincott.

ORDERS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Commander Ring Issues Order for the Day

In accordance with its usual custom Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. will observe next Tuesday, Memorial Day by decorating the graves of those of the Grand Army who have gone before with flowers, and hold appropriate exercises. The Commander of the post in General Order No. 1, urges all to observe the day in such a manner that all may be impressed with the sacredness of the day and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country, and above all to see to it that no soldiers grave be forgotten.

The exercises commemorative of the day will commence Sunday morning when the post and kindred organizations will attend devine services at Christ church.

Tuesday morning the post will assemble at headquarters in full uniform at 7 o'clock. Details will then be dispatched to decorate the graves of Col. Paul J. Revere and Comrade Samuel W. Spear at Mt. Auburn. A detail of two comrades under command of Senior Vice Commander Francis P. Loud with the chaplain of the day Rev. Richard E. Armstrong will visit the National Sailors Home and hold exercises, while a detail of twenty-five comrades under command of Junior Vice Commander Edward Lennon will visit Mt. Wollaston cemetery and decorate the graves there. Other details will decorate the graves in the Old Cemetery and the English cemetery.

At 9.30 the command will form in front of headquarters and headed by the Letter Carriers band will march to the junction of School and Franklin street where barges will be taken to West Quincy where appropriate exercises will be held at the Hall and Catholic cemeteries. This duty over the command will return to Faxon hall, where lunch will be served.

At 2.30 a line will be formed in the following order. Chief Burrell and squad of officers, John A. Boyd, camp Spanish War Veterans, Abner B. Packard camp Sons of Veterans, Officer of Day Warren Dunbar, Letter Carrier band, Paul Revere Post, invalid comrades in carriages, the several ladies auxiliaries and City Officials in carriages, and will proceed via of Hancock, Washington, Coddington and Sea streets to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where exercises will be held at the Soldiers monument. From here the command will go to the grave of Lieut. Edward Bumpus where services will be held by the Spanish War Veterans. From here the command will move to the Grand Army lot where exercises will be held by the Women's Relief corps. The line will then return to headquarters and be dismissed.

DEDICATION OF MASONIC HOME

Exercises to be Held at Charlton tomorrow

The beautiful new Masonic home at Charlton, Mass., will be dedicated Thursday and will be the occasion for the gathering of a large number of Masons through whose efforts the home has been made possible. Every Masonic body in the state has done its part toward making the home possible Wollaston and Rural lodges of Quincy each contributing a large sum. Every Mason is therefore interested in the home and many will doubtless plan to attend the dedicatory exercises.

District Deputy Grand Master of this district Hartley L. White informed the Daily Ledger this morning that many from the district would be present.

A special train for Charlton will leave the South Station at 8.30 which will give the brethern ample time to inspect the home before the dedicatory exercises which commence at 1 o'clock. The special return train will leave at 3.30. The price of the round ticket is something like $2.40.

Those intending to go to the dedication should bear in mind that they will have to provide their own lunch.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alma Cushing and Robert W. Brooks were fined $15 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Howard C. Brown and Duncan C. McEachen were fined $15 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. The former appealed.

Guy LaVina was arraigned for burning a building in the night time at Braintree and was held in $1000 until Friday.

BRIEFS

Quincy Loyal Orange lodge held its regular meeting in Wilson's hall Tuesday evening.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings meet Thursday evening.

The regular meeting of the School Committee will be held Saturday evening instead of next Tuesday which is a holiday.

The two gypsy moth sprayers of the city have begun their yearly round of the city spraying the trees along the sidewalks.

Charles F. Choate for many years president of the Old Colony railroad and a prominent lawyer died at his home in Southboro Tuesday.

The first race of the season of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Saturday off the club house at Houghs Neck starting at 2.30.

From the number of tickets already sold there will be a large audience at Music hall tonight at the presentation of the opera Maid of Japan.

The Assessors are now at work in Houghs Neck and are finding a large number of new cottages many of which seem to be not much larger than soap boxes.

C. L. Hudson, ticket agent at the Quincy station has given up his position to return to his home in New Hampshire where he hopes to recover his health.

It was stated this morning that it was not the intention to do away with band concerts during Merchants Week but that they would be given as originally planned.

The clever poem read by Mrs. W. E. Alden at the Friday club anniversary luncheon at the Parker house, Boston last week was written by her. It made a great hit and brought forth many congratulatory remarks.

ANNUAL MEETING OF Y. M. C. A.

Improvements Discussed Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association was held in the association building Tuesday evening. Appropriations were made for a bubbling fountain and for a new boiler to heat the water for the shower baths. It was decided that a summer membership be established at $3, including bath privileges, during June, July, August and September.

Mr. Vose of Corning, N. Y. a candidate for the position of general secretary was present at the meeting and looked over the ground. Mr. Vose has been general secretary of the Corning association for four years. He is being considered together with three or four other candidates for the position.

The executive committee will appoint the secretary, the boys work director and the committees of the association.

It was voted that a Senior baseball team be supported during the summer. A meeting of all Seniors interested in forming a team will meet Thursday evening June 1 at 8 o'clock in the association building.

The following officers were elected:

President—Richard D. Chase.

Vice President—George A. Sidelinger.

Secretary—Albert N. Murray.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The season of the sweet girl graduate and June bride is drawing near.

Some aeroplanes of unique models will soon be exhibited, but they will all end in heaps of kindling wood that look much alike.

Helen Taft attended the naval academy dance the other night, and as her father works for a living, she was mighty lucky to get into this aristocratic circle unchallenged.

Canadian reciprocity would make a lot of new business for us, but a certain class of producers think it is easier to tax the people than to bother to hunt up new customers.

The original document of the Constitution was inspected last week after being locked up nine years, but it must be longer than that since any of the Congressmen have read that instrument.

About the only people who want the United States to intervene in Mexico are the speculators who were not satisfied with the rates of interest paid by property protected by American laws.

Jack Johnson is going to the Coronation. He will probably be accepted over there as a better type of American culture than former President Eliot of Harvard, or Henry Cabot Lodge.

GOOD POLICE WORK.

In the arrest of Vincenzo Bazarazza for the killing of Joseph Miers, the Quincy Police department is entitled to a great deal of credit. Notice not having been received until most forty minutes after the deed, there was sufficient time for the culprit to have escaped by train or car by one of several routes.

Efforts by the officers to find out from his friends whether he had relations were at first futile; the friends refusing to tell either the reporters or the officers anything in this respect. By clever work it was developed that he had a brother Francesco who lived in East Boston and in a remarkably short time this house, all outgoing steam trains from Boston, all through cars and all through highways were covered by officers acting under the Quincy Police department.

Had this fellow been permitted to get twenty-four hours start, it would have been much harder to apprehend him as it is difficult to pick one of his race from his fellows.

The public demands quick action in this class of crime and are grateful for the efficient work rendered in this case.

STEPHEN N. SWAIN.

The funeral of Stephen N. Swain one of the Daily Ledger news agents was held Tuesday from St. John's church and was very largely attended by his friends and neighbors and a delegation from Division 5 A. O. H. of which he was a member. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick J. Scammell. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy. The bearers were Thomas J. Welsh, Daniel Manulx and John J. Kelley of Division 5, A. O. H. Thomas L. Elcock, Fabian Miller and Thomas H. McDonnell.

WRANGLE OVER A COMMISSION

New Hampshire Governor and Council In a Deadlock

CONCESSIONS MADE BY BASS

Changes Personnel of Public Service Board, Members of Which Are to Receive $10,000 Annually, In Attempt to Meet Approval of Council, but Confirmation of Appointments Is Refused—Executive Is Defiant

Concord, N. H., May 24.—Four tmes yesterday Governor Bass named the personnel of the new public service commission provided for by the last legislature, and four times the members of his council refused to confirm the appointments, although each time changes were made in an attempt to meet the approval of the council. The session ended in a deadlock, with the council suggesting three names for the makeup of the commission.

At the conclusion of the session Bass in an emphatic statement declared that "the governor will name this commission on his own initiative and refuses to make the appointments requested."

The commission is one of the most important which it has fallen to the lot of a New Hampshire governor to name in many years. The commission's most important immediate duty will be the consideration and settlement of the railroad rate controversy which the last legislature ineffectually struggled with, while in addition it will have the control and regulation of all public service corporations throughout the state. The three members of the commission are to be paid $10,000 annually and will have a similar amount to spend each year.

Today the council will start out on an inspection of the highways of the state, and it is not known whether the subject of the appointment of the public service commission will come up during the trip or not.

Raymond V. Stevens of Landaff, whom Bass named each time, was foremost in putting through the last legislature the bill providing for the settlement of the railroad rate matter. The law went into effect May 15, but will be inactive until the commission is named which has the work of carrying out the instructions of the law.

LEAVE MOTHER CHURCH

Minneapolis Christian Scientists Blame Board of Directors

Minnesota, May 24.—A. E. Smith, C. D. S., of the Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, here, gave the press a copy of a resolution adopted at a meeting of the church members by which the members decided to withdraw from the mother church of Boston.

The reasons given in the resolution are that "since the death of Mrs. Eddy the Christian Science board of directors has absolute authority to control the teaching," and that the board condemned Christian Science as taught by Abbott Smith, who was a personal student of Mrs. Eddy.

The statement also announces that similar action was taken by the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of Duluth.

BRIBERY TRIAL BEGUN

Ohio Legislator Charged With Soliciting Money For His Vote

Columbus, O., May 24.—Representative George B. Nye, who is a physician at Waverly, was placed on trial before Judge Kinkead, on the charge of soliciting a bribe of $500 from State Printer Crawford to vote for the bill which reapportioned common pleas judicial districts.

The bill was aimed at Judge Blair of Scioto county, who was instrumental in exposing the wholesale frauds and vote buying in Adams and Scioto counties.

Nye is under indictment on two other charges of soliciting bribes and is the first of the half-dozen or more members of the Ohio legislature to be placed on trial.

AMNESTY FOR MEXICANS

Measure Passed by Congress to Become Effective Immediately

Mexico City, May 24.—By an immense majority the chamber of deputies passed the bill providing amnesty to political prisoners. It becomes effective immediately.

Jorge V. Estanole, minister of the interior, presented to the chamber a report on the successful termination of the negotiations for peace, thus formally announcing to the body that the war is concluded.

French Premier Is Informed of Death of His War Minister

Paris, May 24.—The condition of Premier Monis, who so narrowly escaped death at the opening of the Paris to Madrid aviation race, when Train's monoplane killed M. Berteaux, the French minister of war, is regarded as so satisfactory that he was informed of the war minister's death.

For a moment it was feared that the shock was too much for the aged premier. Later, however, Monis recovered and talked incessantly of the qualities of Berteaux, who was an intimate friend of the premier as well as his associate in the cabinet.

ARCHIE BUTT TO WED

Army Officer to Become Brother-In Law of President Taft

Washington, May 24.—When President Taft leaves for the summer capitol at Beverly, Mass., this summer, the presidential private family will be augmented by a presidential brother-in-law-to-be in the person of Major Archibald Butt. The bride-to-be is Mrs. Lucy H. H. Laughlin, sister of Mrs. Taft.

Society has thus a satisfactory solution for the accumulation of household goods by the bachelor major, who holds the position as aide to the president.

Retired Broker a Suicide

Boston, May 24.—Dexter A. Hall, aged 68, a retired real estate broker who lived in Brookline, committed suicide by shooting on the Esplanade at the foot of Gloucester street. For a number of years he has been suffering from dyspepsia and nervousness and he had been meditating suicide for a long time.

HOUGHS NECK.

Weather like Monday is what is going to wake up the beach. Already several of the clubs have arrived. The "Brockton" club will occupy the Cycle cottage on Taber avenue this season.

As yet there are no signs of the spreading of what was supposed to be the small pox.

Mrs. Don C. White and son Don and daughter Geraldine are spending a few days with relatives in Somerville.

Harry W. Waite and family of Boston are to summer at the Bay Cliff cottage.

C. Harrison Leonard is training for a swimming match in which he will represent the O. A. H. S. He is also about to take another cross-country run.

The little speed boat Butt-in-ski, owned by C. Harrison Leonard will be launched today.

The Honor, a forty-foot launch owned by James Homes will cruise down to Portland, Me., this week.

Monday at noon the thermometer was 120 in the sun at Harvey's landing. This is the hottest ever known for May 22.

Edward Jarvis who fell with an insecure staging while working in West Quincy last Friday is able to be out.

Sunday was an ideal day for the beach. Three cars were in use, on fifteen minute time up to late in the evening.

Houghs Neck may be a small place, but it is interesting to know that we have some ingenuity here all our own. H. R. Benn has just delivered an auto which he painted for Mayor Shea. He has also recently completed the painting of an auto for millionaire Morse of Beacon street, Boston as well as for the leading furniture men and doctors of our own city. After all, great things may be expected from small places.

SIMPLER GRADUATION GOWNS

School authorities of Washington, D. C., are trying to induce the parents of the girls who shall graduate from the high school of that city in the early summer to dress them for the exercises attending that event much more simply than has heretofore been the custom. The school officials have no power at present to prescribe costumes for the graduates, but on their own account, to as great a degree as possible, they will discourage display. With this end in view, the graduation exercises are to be held in the afternoon, rather than in the evening, and the hope is entertained that this will help to eliminate such extravagances as flowers and carriages. Parents are to be requested not to provide specially-made costumes for the girls.

This reform has three ends in view, the doing away, with display of all kinds in connection with the public school system, the prevention of undue display by the rich and the prevention of extravagance among the poor. There is still another, and a very important, point to be considered. Often, young girl graduates whose parents cannot afford to indulge their fancy on such occasions, when all should be sunshine and happiness for them, are, by the indulgence of others, subjected to great humiliation. There are , of course, girls too sensible to be affected in this way, but they are not so numerous as those who feel keenly what they regard as a deprivation.

If the Washington school authorities, in conjunction with the Washington parents, shall solve this problem, or shall even succeed in making some progress in this direction, the rest of the country may well feel under obligation to them.—Christian Science Monitor.

PORCH PILLOW COVERS.

Some women have already begun to think about materials for covering porch pillows:

For use in the country and suburban houses one should not forget the humble gingham.

It is one of the best that can be obtained for cushions that have a great deal of hard wear in the summer.

They are cool and light, and as they are so easy to launder may always be kept fresh.

Oldfashioned seersucker and wash crepe is another material that is most attractive for summer pillows.

In any of the light shades trimmed with cotton fringe these make very smart-looking covers.

Lingerie pilliws for the summer boudoir are not so delicate as they have been the last few years.

There has been a return to handerchief linen of medium weight with much blind embroidery used instead of the eyelet work.

Nothing could be dainter for the guests' room than dimity pillow slips.

These may have ruffles of the material or borders of linen lace.

D. A. R. CONFERENCE.

A conference of the state society of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held Tuesday in Worcester attended by Mrs. Roger H. Wilde and Mrs. Ida Waterhouse of this city as delegates from the Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter of Wollaston.

Mrs. James G. Dunning of Springfield state regent in her annual report said:

"There are 76 organized chapters in the state, which with the members-at-large makes the total membership nearly 6000."

Abigail Phillips Quincy chapter of Wollaston, Mrs. Walter F. Jones regent, and the Natick chapter, Mrs. Charles Q. Tirrell regent, have been organized during the year. Gifts from various chapters to Continental Memorial Hall the past year amount to over $1200. Among other gifts is the picture of Washington at Dorchester Heights, painted by Darius Cobb and presented as a memorial to Mary A. Livermore.

Miss Susan B. Willard of Hingham state chairman of the committee on historic spots, has been instrumental in having the original names of the streets of Boston placed on the street signs, in old style lettering. under the modern name.

Mrs. Ida Louise Gibbs, chairman of the committee for prevention of desecration of the flag, has written a very brief story of the flag, telling what it should mean to every American citizen, and has been assured by the Governor of the state that the Legislature will order it printed upon the fly leaf of the histories used in the lower grades of the public schools.

Much other patriotic work has been done by the chapters, and the sum expended for such effort amounts to $10,335.50.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE ANNUAL.

The annual business meeting of the National Alliance of Unitarian and Other Christian Women was held Tuesday morning in the South Congregational church, Boston with over 800 present. Miss Emma C. Low of Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the Alliance presided. The election of officers and the reading of reports for the year was the business before the meeting. The report of Lucia Clapp Noyes, treasurer, showed a total of $10,147.12 cash on hand.

These officers were elected: Vice-president, Caroline S. Atherton of Roxbury (for New England,) Bertha L. Sargent of New York (middle states and Canada,) Hephzibah W. Churchill of New Orleans (southern states,) Emma N. Delano of Chicago (western states,) Perlina S. Davis of Denver (Rocky mountains,) Minerva M. Lommis of Portland (Pacific coast.)

There was a long list of directors chosen from all over the country among those from Massachusetts being Mrs. George G. Saville of Quincy and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Wollaston.

During the week these officers will elect a president, secretary and treasurer.

RAISINS VS SOUP.

"Children do not like cereal foods but prefer fruits, ginger cookies and graham crackers," said Miss Madeline E. Torrey, teacher of cooking in the Winthrop school, Boston, in discussing the subject of penny lunches for the school children. "I have given them carrot soup, potato chowder and every sort of cereal, but they will skip them every time and jump for the sandwiches made with chopped raisins or the crackers upon which peanut butter, has been spread. I find also that many children will prefer to buy the things which they can eat out of doors during the recess. For this purpose I have sandwiches wrapped in white paper." She then told in detail of the menus which she arranged for each day in the week, giving the children one regular luncheon and then having side combinations from which they might choose, such as gingerbread, oranges or peanuts.

"I am a thorough advocate of lunches for children during the forenoon," said Miss Torrey, "and find that in the children under my observation there has been a marked increase in their healthful appearance. As the lunch room is practically self-supporting all of the children are given tasks to do, such as cutting bread, preparing sandwiches and washing the dishes and I find that they love to work and what is most encouraging, will in time urge their mothers at home to adopt better methods in the kitchen. For one cent I give them a glass of skimmed milk with a sandwich or a cup of cocoa with three or four graham crackers, or, if they tire of these, a few dates, almonds or some fruit."

Two More Vetoes From Foss

Boston, May 24.—Governor Foss vetoed the elementary school teachers' bill, and the bill to extend Boylston street across the Back Bay fens. He vetoed the teachers' bill because of its mandatory clause on the school board, regarding it as an infraction of the home rule principle. He vetoed the Boylston street bill for personal reasons because he is a large property holder there.

☞The Northern Land Co., which handles some of the best land propositions in this city is to have a grand clearance sale this week of building lots at what is known as Paul Wild terrace. This is a level tract of land on Washington street, known for many years as the Paul Wild estate. The lots are to be sold at auction beginning Thursday afternoon and continuing through Saturday. $1000 in presents absolutely free.

Needles and pins, needles and pins;
When a man's married his trouble begins,
Unless his wife is the up-to-date kind,
Who saves her time, temper, fuel, body and mind,
By doing her washing the Fels-Naptha way,
And gets it all done in a fourth of a day.

Hard rubbing will wear away iron in time.

Ever notice a washboard that had been used a good while in the old-fashioned way of washing?

Zinc worn thin and wooden edges all worn round?

Clothes are much softer than zinc or wood.

Then just think how much your clothes must have worn away while the washboard was wearing out.

Clothes last twice as long when washed the Fels-Naptha way because there's no boiling to weaken them and no hard rubbing to wear them into holes.

The Fels-Naptha dissolves the dirt so it seems it just rinses out.

You don't need to hard rub it out.

Using Fels-Naptha soap saves fuel, time and health, too, but perhaps you don't care for these things.

You do want your clothes to last as long as possible and for that reason alone you should use Fels-Naptha soap. In Summer and Winter.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

BROCKTON 11 QUINCY HIGH 10

Game Marked by Heavy Hitting Two Home Runs Made

In a game replete with heavy hitting Quincy high lost to Brockton high at Merrymount park Tuesday afternoon by a score of 11 to 10. There was no excuse for the defeat either because Quincy got 16 hits to her opponents 8, but careless playing and a failure to take advantage of her opportunities with men on bases were responsible.

There was a high wind blowing from the east which made it difficult for the fielders to judge the flies and was in part responsible for Quincy's defeat for a misjudged fly in the 5th inning was responsible directly and indirectly for the five runs scored in that inning by Brockton.

Rice pitched effectively at times but did not seem to be able to get down to business at critical moments.

Practically every man on the Quincy team got a hit, Pfaffmann, M. Chapman and Hill getting two baggers and Rice a home run. The high wind was a great help in lengthening out the hits. Tevlin's home run in the 5th inning sent in two runs while Rice's only scored one beside his own.

In the field there were a number of spectacular plays, Holmes cut off a hit after a long run and Manning made a pretty stop of a grounder, getting his man at first. Blackmur also did good work running some distance back of first to stop a grounder and putting his man out at first. Spillane, shortstop for Brockton, caught a fly some distance back of second base and in getting it he had to reach so high that he landed on his face after making the catch. Pfaffmann also did a little acrobatic stunt in deep left field.

The game was an interesting one to watch owing to the number of hits but it was disappointing from a local standpoint since the Quincy team should have won easily. Brockton did all her scoring in the first, fourth and fifth innings while Quincy scored in each of the first five innings and in the ninth.

The next game is with East Boston high on Friday and it is to be hoped that Quincy will buckle down to business from the start and will not pat herself on the back until after the game.

QUINCY MAN AT THE HEAD.

Alexander McDonald Co., of Trenton, New Jersey, monumental dealers are extending their business operations. They have shipped work to Africa, and are now building a beautiful cross monument for shipment to Bermuda.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of this company Arthur R. Baxter was elected president of the corporation. As manager, Mr. Baxter opened the Trenton branch for the company thirteen years ago, and has been largely instrumental in bringing the business up to its present enviable standard. By hard work and honest treatment of their customers, he has made the business a success from the very beginning.

Mr. Baxter has made a life study of correctness in proportion and artistic combination, and has been a monumentalist from his boyhood, having been born in one of the oldest granite centres of New England. At the age of 18 he started with the largest monument manufacturing concern in Massachusetts, and worked up through all branches of the business. It is his complete education along this line that has made him so thoroughly familiar with the requirements for producing and erecting the highest grades of cemetery memorials, and eminently competent to satisfactorily handle all commissions placed with him.

The Alexander McDonald Company was very fortunate in securing such a man as manager, and realizing this and that others are quick to recognize true merit, they were very glad to make Mr. Baxter their president.

This company designed and erected the Mercer County Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, which stands in Cadwalader Park. They have furnished monumental work of the very highest type, and have among their patrons many of the very best families in the city, people in the class with those who formerly thought it necessary to purchase work of this kind from dealers in New York or Philadelphia. Not only have they done work for many prominent Trenton people, but also for people in a great many of the surrounding towns, and in New York and Philadelphia as well.

They are located "at the gate" of Riverview Cemetery, where they carry an unusually large stock of finished work, and where they have, probably, the largest collection in the State of the very best and latest designs and photographs from which to secure their customers ideas before making special drawings for individual cases. They are very glad to show their work, which speaks for itself, and also to submit designs, prices and suggestions to any prospective customers without placing them under any obligations whatever.

Mr. Baxter is a very genial man, and untiring in his efforts to satisfy the tastes of his customers, and those who know him personally extend congratulations and wish him success in his higher office.

Norfolk ss. Probate Court.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Fanny C. Adams, late of Quincy in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Charles F. Adams 2d, of Concord, Mass., and Arthur Adams of said Quincy, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bonds:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham in said County of Norfolk, on the seventh day of June A. D., 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted. And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in said Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-second day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

THE ORIENTAL OPERA
THE MAID OF JAPAN

Local Talent and Professionals Heard in Tuneful Opera

Given at Music Hall in aid of St. John's Parochial School

Without exception one of the best things heard in Quincy in a long time was the opera "Maid of Japan" given at Music hall Wednesday evening in aid of the St. John's parochial school. In brief it was on oriental comedy the text and music of which was by Mathew Ott of Wollaston and was produced under the direction of Walter Kee of the Boston dancing school.

The story of the opera deals with oriental life as well as the recent agitation of war with Japan. The principal characters in the comedy were taken as follows:—

Shula Topalis, A Japanese Lord,
John A. McGowan
Neeta, his daughter
Miss Josephine McCarthy
Tokeo Nishivama, a Japanese secret-service man, D. J. Seward McCurdy
Namiko, his sister,
Mrs. Mathew Ott
Kataoka Paul Avery
Chijiwa Kun, noble
James Grant
Hyoza Yamaki, noble
Fay Phalen
Kawashima, Frank Mahoney
Stafford Wardwell
Edward J. Sullivan
Kirby Noodle, his valet,
Mathew Ott

Of course there is a love story running through the opera which as usual has a happy ending. Neeta the pretty daughter of Shula Topalis is in love with Stafford Wardwell a United States secret service agent who by saving her life from a watery grave has won her everlasting gratitude. In fact it was a case of love on both sides.

Namiko, sister of Tokeo Nishivama, a Japanese secret service agent is also in love with Kirby Noodle, valet to Wardwell.

The scene opens in the gardens of Nishiyama when Tokeo returns with plans and photographs of fortifications in the United States which he turns over to Shula. At the same time he makes known to his lordship that an American secret service man has followed him to Japan. Wardwell is aware of the fact that he is known and to save himself and secure the photographs changes places with his valet who he urges to be a hero and informs him that his life will probably be sacrificed if he is captured. In the meantime Wardwell through his sweetheart Neeta seeks to get possession of the photographs.

This he succeedes in doing by persuading Neeta to secure them from the pocket of her father's clothes. While this is in progress Kirby, who has become known as Wardwell, is being closely watched by Japanese secret service men and when the papers are missed is placed under arrest and thrown into prison. In the meantime the papers are secured by Wardwell and turned over to the captain of an American steamer and safely got away.

All of this time Kirby is having a hard time and all manner of threats are used to make him disclose where the papers are but all to no purpose although he is threatened to be placed in hot water and boiled, he does not give up.

It eventually comes about that Wardwell is the man who had the papers and Lord Shula orders his arrest but is informed that the papers are safe from his hands. He threatens all manner of punishment but when he learns that Wardwell has been married an hour before to his daughter he says that he can not proceed against his own flesh and blood.

Kirby is not idle in his lovemaking and he and Namiko have frequent meetings at which kisses play an important part. Kirby who is the life of the opera in the meantime had succeeded in making his guard captive and had clothed him in a striped prison suit and subjected him to all manner of humilities.

NAMIKO, MRS. OTT
Who loves a hero.

The opera is full of life and laughable situations the small box produced by Shula which he called mental telegraphy, created no end of merriment, especially in the hands of Kirby.

There are several pretty singing scenes and some fine chorus work by the Geisha girls and Japanese students, the opera opening with a chorus Cherry Blossoms. Other choruses are Ensemble by Shula and the company, Ensemble "He Comes," comic quartette "Pussy Cat" by Messrs Ott, McGowan, Avery and McCurdy, duet "Mermaid and Merman" by Mr. Sullivan and Miss McCarthy, Ensemble "Serving tea" by the company, Osculation song by Mr. McCurdy and Miss Ruth Phelan, Milwaukee song by Mr. McCurdy. There were also other solos by Miss McCarthy who sang "Chop Suey," Mr. Ott who sang "Kirby Noodle," Mr. Sullivan who sang "I am a personage of tact" and final solo by Mr. McCurdy "When America invades Japan." This was the closing number.

In addition to these there were several specialty numbers by professional artists from Boston these included "The three singing Jacks" by permission of the Arcadian company, Mr. Williams by permission of Ward and Vokes, dance eccentric by Mr. Hugh Fay and Miss Elsie Maynne, by permission of Joseph Gaites and solo "My beautiful lady" by Walter Wilson of the Merry Widow Company and eight dancing girls from the Boston Opera House.

The applause was frequent and the audience were kept in constant good humor. Although this was the first production by this company the opera did not drag and there was not a dull

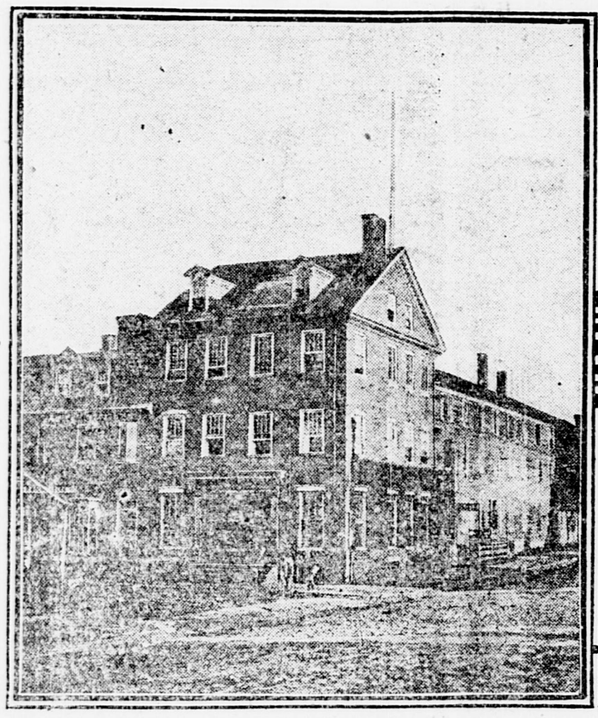
Fifty Years Ago---Where Ellsworth Perished



FIFTY years ago the north was shocked by the killing of Colonel E. E. Ellsworth of the New York zouaves. Ellsworth, only twenty-four years of age, a noted drillmaster and a protege of President Lincoln, occupied Alexandria, Va., with his regiment. He saw a Confederate flag flying from the roof of the Marshall House, a local hotel. Accompanied by one of his zouaves he made his way to the roof, seized the flag and was carrying it down the stairway when James T. Jackson, the landlord, shot him dead. The zouave killed Jackson immediately.

EIGHTH ANNUAL LADIES' NIGHT

Makaria Fraternity Hosts at Bethany Chapel

The eighth annual ladies night of Makaria Fraternity was held in Bethany chapel Wednesday evening with the usual successful outcome. In the first part of the evening a series of rollicking games were enjoyed under the direction of Delcevare King, founder of the Fraternity. Towel throwing, hustle circle with pins, Cracker and water, basket and handkerchief, handwrestling and carrying peanuts were among the things which kept the guests busy. Master Joe Beal entertained with stories and readings and Mr. King contributed to the general amusement by telling a few jawbreakers. At 9.30 all adjourned to the dining room where refreshments were served. Ice cream cake, fancy crackers and huge oranges disappeared with lightning rapidity. After the first course was consumed Sid Claflin had to pay a forfeit and then a number of one minute speeches were delivered by candidates for a second helping. Shame forbids our giving the names to these gormandizers. The young ladies who served the ice cream were Misses Agnes Fisher, Grace Fisher and Frances Murray. The committee in charge of the arrangements was George McKenzie, Matthew Nicoll, Hary Glover and Richard Jones.

WILL PROBATED.

In the will of Mrs. Laura Jones, late of School street, Richard Jones was the chief beneficiary because he had taken good care of his mother in her old age. The other sons and daughters, John T. Jones of Wales, Griffith Jones, Margaret A. Jones, Sarah J. Murray and Robert Jones were left $1 each.

The residue of the estate was left to Richard Jones. The will which was drawn up on March 28, 1911, about two weeks before her death read: "I have chosen Richard Jones as principal beneficiary by reason of his constant and special efforts to provide for my welfare."

About $200 in personal property was left and Richard Jones was appointed executor with sureties at $400.

WASHINGTON ST. BRANCH-OFF

Location Approved by Railroad Commission

It has now become an assured fact that the trolley freight depot will be located on the old Teasdale property on Washington street as the railroad commissioners have approved the grant for a branch-off track on Washington street leading into the new freight depot. Thus one of the much discussed questions has been settled. No question before the City Council for a long time was so thoroughly gone into as was the question of granting the street railway the location asked for. Even after the question was settled as far as the City Council was concerned the fight was gone over again before the railroad commissioners, who after the hearing came to Quincy quietly and unheralded and looked over the ground. Wednesday final action was taken in the matter and the location approved as shown by the following order:

May 24, 1911.

After notice and hearing and full consideration it is Ordered:

That the Board hereby certify that the location for a single curve branch-off track of the Old Colony Street Railway Company on Washington street, opposite Foster street, in the City of Quincy, established under an order of the City Council of said city adopted April 24, 1911 a copy of which order with accompanying plan is on file in this office, is consistent with the public interests.

(Signed) Charles E. Mann,
Clerk.

The street railway company has already commenced plans for the building of a freight house and a cargo of cement has already been received. It is the intention of the company to tear down the present stable and house and erect thereon a cement freight house that will be an ornament to the street. The yard will be paved and the street in front of the property will be paved with vitrified brick. When completed the building and premises will be a vast improvement over the present condition of affairs.

It is probable that the trolley freight will be put into operation before the end of the year.

In view of the present agitation for a public dock the trolley freight will be of untold benefit to the business interests of the city for there is no question that when a public dock is established it will be connected with the granite industry centre by trolley freight and will become a prime factor in the general increase in this line of business that is sure to follow.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harry N. Matthews was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton and Joseph F. Travers, Albert M. Davis and Samuel Libowich $10 each for exceeding the speed limit on the park reservation.

"I see three of the old Board of Education have had to give up. I didn't know the work was so exacting."

"It isn't; but they were all on the Cooking-School Committee, and they've had to go abroad to have their digestion renewed."

LATEST

SUICIDE AT BRAINTREE

Mrs. G. H. White Drowns Herself in Little Pond

Despondent over the fact that she was gradually becoming blind coupled with continued poor health is what probably prompted Mrs. Geo. H. White to end her troubles in the waters of little Pond shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. White resides on Towne street and her husband is a farmer. While he was absent from the house this morning Mrs. White left her home and went to the pond. She was seen to enter the pond at a shallow point by Robert Whitman and some companions. Walking in a short distance she lay dawn and placed her head beneath the water.

The boy thoroughly freightened ran home and told his mother. Getting out her opera glasses she looked at the spot where the boys indicated and seeing that something unusual was going on telephoned Dr. C. A. Sullivan.

In the mean time Bert Jones a grocery wagon driver was passing and seeing the woman in the water tried to pull her out. She is a heavy woman and it was with difficulty that he was able to draw her from the water.

By that time assistance had arrived and the woman was pulled out of the water. She was beyond recovery however although the physician worked over her for some time. The Medical Examiner was notified.

BRIEFS

Henry M. Faxon left last night for the Megantic camp in Canada.

Dr. Hardwick has gone to Maine on a fishing trip.

The City Council committee on Public Buildings meet tonight.

H. Preston Miller of Franklin street has gone to Scranton, Pa., to study linotyping.

A regular meeting of the West Quincy improvement association will be held tonight.

The family of Robert G. Reed are to move from Woodward avenue to Wollaston.

The little rain this morning was very welcome but gardens would have been much benefited if there was a days hard rain.

A private dancing party was held at Colonial hall Wednesday evening by the ladies of John Adams circle, Foresters of America.

Plans are being made for the annual lawn party of St. Mary's church to be held on the parish house grounds Saturday July 1.

The steel boxes for the vaults in City Hall have arrived and will be placed in position immediately. These boxes are for the better preservation of the records of the city.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Even New York has become imbued with the spirit of making a better Broadway.

Those Alaskans who threw the coal into the harbor seem to be taking rather radical means to avoid the smoke nuisance.

There are indications taht Senator LaFollette will be among those present at the next Republican national convention.

What will they do for excitement in the Gould family when all the members have been permanently married off?

It will cost $9,000,000 to remodel the Albany capitol grounds and Tam many would gladly place the contracts if asked to do so.

Democratic senators are planning to upset Bailey of Texas. This is cruel. And if they annoy him he might resign—terrible thought!

75,000 Americans are said to be in peril in Mexico. If they confine their remarks to the weather and the crops and quit talking politics they'll be all right.

Radcliffe college students are objecting to the rules for simple graduation dress. They might reflect on how formidable an elaborately dressed girl looks to the fellow who wants to get married, but dassent.

The postal savings banks are so successful that 50 to 100 will be established every month. It looks as if some people had taken to heart the valuable lessons learned by putting their money into 20 per cent investments.

MRS. TAFT.

There will be keen regret that the president's wife is again suffering from a nervous attack similar to that of 1909. It has been said that President Taft never would have entered the Whitehouse had it not been for Mrs. Taft's ambition. If so, her sensitive temperament is paying the penalty for her own desire for achievement.

In no sphere of life has Mrs. Taft been satisfied with the bounds in which ordinary people find contentment for their placid activities. If a road did not seem to be getting anywhere, she would climb the fence.

In the Philippines, when Mr. Taft was governor-general, there is a suspician that her velvety social touch had about as much to do in softening the Little Brown Brother as the rough blows of our soldiers. After a Filipino had run his legs off in the swamps with our soldiers an hour or two behind him, his views on independence were quite pronounced. After Mrs. Taft had deposited some lemon tea and pink wafers in his clamoring interior, and had asked him to come around and sit on the piazza while the band played, his political views were apt to undergo some modification.

Instead of contenting herself at Washington in the usual manner with dispensing mere social rule, Mrs. Taft has had her hands full with outside betterment work. She has served for instance on the welfare and sanitation committees of the National Civic Federation. One recent achievement was getting decent ventilation for the census office workers.

Few people realize the strain imposed by social ambitions on the president's wife. Washington is a whirlpool of social climbing. Social successes count more than elsewhere. New Congressmen's wives come bounding in, confident of invitations to dinner at the White house. Their aspirations sink to bitterness when they find that their husband has about as much to do with the government as the newspaper boy has with running a railroad train. The president's wife must soften acrimonies and pour sunshine on the storm of disappointed ambitions.

People who know Mrs. Taft speak of her highly strung and sensitive personality, with its more tender side screened by the most perfect poise that culture and knowledge of the big world's manners can give but the frailty of woman's physique is the weak point in so delicate an organism, and this has given way now, let us hope only temporarily.

THE CANOE ACCIDENTS

Ordinarily the canoe does not begin its slaughter until the summer boarder escapes from the office and the kitchen and confidently begins to monkey with the laws of the universe. But unseasonably warm weather in May this year has led to a toll of death on the first summerish Sundays.

The canoe is a beguiling little creature of barbaric temperament, whose stealth and mystery appeals to the traits of the Indian in us, which civilization can not wholly eradicate. It has all the treachery of the savage, as its graceful form and its silent and smiling motion lure you on.

In a moment you unwittingly jar the temperament of the individual canoe to whose friendship you have trusted yourself, and she kicks up her heels, deposits you in the deep, and goes laughingly her untamed way.

Some people treat a canoe as if it were a heavy wagon travelling along a sidelong road, in which by leaning far over the wheel they can prevent an upset. No wonder this sensitive water steed spies and rears in its anger at such a bungling driver, when all that is needed to retain equilibrium is some trifing inclination, much slighter than is necessary to keep a bicycle upright.

Canoe accidents usually happen to those who treat this sensitive playfellow of the summer wind as if she were a heavily keeled and ballasted rowboat. They need to learn that they must be their own ballast, nearly as immovable as the rocks deposited in the bottom of the phlegmatic scow with which they are more familiar.

The victims of these accidents are not usually those who own canoes and have studied the whims of the little Vandal. They are very frequently those who seek to while away a summer holiday by some sport unfamiliar in their home environment. And lovers whose nerves are itching for the hot tide of physical contact, would do better to select the steady going old row boats whose moods are not ruffled by the follies of young blood.

THE LUMBER TRUST.

The Lumber Trust is now to have its day in court. The public is groaning under advances in lumber prices, with which the higher labor have raised the cost of house construction 33 to 50 per cent. They want to know whether this advance is caused by the scarcity of forests or restraint of trade.

No legal power will ever prevent two or more merchants from agreeing to sell at a uniform price. But few of the combines have been satisfied simply with making such agreements.

There has always been a minority of dealers who did not care to enter into such deals. The trusts have had a perfect right to represent to this minority their view of the advantages of uniform prices. Had they contented themselves with simple argument of this type, the Sherman Anti-trust law would never have existed.

The whole trouble has been that they have invented a system of reprisals to discipline those who saw things in a different light. And punishment is a function belonging exclusively to the courts.

FIGURING ON TAFT TICKET

Stimson Suggested as Candidate For Vice President

IS LOOKED UPON WITH FAVOR

Many of President's Friends Want Progressive Republican For Second Place In 1912 Campaign, but No Senate Leaders Appear to Be Available—Hearst Says Clark Looms Large as Presidential Candidate

Washington, May 25.—One of the most interesting bits of political gossip Washington has heard in a long while is current here to the effect that the entrance of Henry L. Stimson of New York into President Taft's cabinet may mean that he will be Taft's running mate in the campaign of 1912.

President Taft, it is said, fully expects to be renominated and little consideration is given here to reports to the contrary. The friends and advisers of the president, in casting about for a man to head the ticket with him, are said to look with much favor upon Stimson, the new secretary of war. They appear to be particularly anxious to get a strong man from the progressive element on the ticket and prefer one from a pivotal state like New York.

There are plenty of other vice presidential possibilities being discussed by political leaders in touch with the White House, including Senator Cummins of Iowa and Senator Borah of Idaho. Many of the president's friends do not conceal their desire that there should be a progressive Republican on the ticket with him. At this time there seems to be little chance, however, that any of the progressive leaders in the senate will be available as vice presidential candidates.

President Taft's friends, it is said, think that Stimson, both geographically and personally, would prove a strong addition to the ticket. The Roosevelt influence behind Stimson in the New York gubernatorial campaign last fall undoubtedly is one of the elements being considered at this time.

Hearst Likes Champ Clark

New York, May 25.—William R. Hearst, sailing for Europe with his wife, said that Speaker Champ Clark loomed large as a Democratic presidential possibility. Hearst said he believed the Democrats would be successful in 1912. Asked who the thought the Democratic candidate for president would be, Hearst said:

"I think Champ Clark has done such good work in the house of representatives and is so largely responsible for the Democratic success that he is very conspicuous for 1912."

President Taft was the logical candidate of the Republicans, said Hearst. He thought the Democrats had made a fair beginning in this state.

RETURNS TO MAINE

Frye Expects to Resume Duties In Senate In December

Washington, May 25.—Senator Frye, after forty-one years of continuous service in congress, left Washington late yesterday for his home in Maine, because of his failing health. With his usual optimism the senator said: "I am coming back in December. The Maine air and a good rest will put me right again in short order."

Senator Frye has been suffering for several months with an abscess on his foot and his general condition became such some time ago that he was forced to relinquish his duties in the senate, resigning as president pro tempore.

"WITH COOK AT THE POLE"

Valet's Claim In a London Court Fails to Make a Hit

London, May 25.—When applying for reduction of bail on behalf of John F. Goodcliffe, a valet charged with malicious wounding, his solicitor put forward as one evidence of good character the fact that the defendant was the only Englishman who accompanied Dr. Cook "to the North Pole."

The magistrate declared, amid laughter, that he did not know that that was a testimonial of truthfulness, and dismissed the application.

O'REILLY FOUND GUILTY

Well Known Lawyer Convicted of Receiving Stolen Goods

New York, May 25.—Daniel J. O'Reilly, former assistant district attorney and well known as a criminal lawyer, particularly in the cases of Harry K. Thaw and Nan Patterson, was found guilty of receiving stolen goods by a jury in the criminal branch of the superior court. The jury reached a verdict in an hour and a quarter.

O'Reilly was remanded for sentence. The maximum penalty for the offense is five years' imprisonment and $250 fine.

MADERO FOLLOWERS START SERIOUS RIOT

Mob Fired Upon In Front of Diaz' Palace In Mexico City

Mexico City, May 25.—Soldiers and police last night fired on a mob of Maderists who had gathered in front of the national palace. The number of dead and wounded is not known. The mob was merely scattered by the shooting, continuing to parade through the streets, shouting "Viva Madero."

Mrs. Diaz said that her husband, the president, was seriously ill in the palace before which the mob gathered. His temperature is very high, but it is not thought that he is in immediate danger.

Thousands of men and boys, inspired by an apparently groundless rumor that Diaz will not resign, started the demonstration.

A mob gathered in front of the office of El imparcial, a government newspaper. Windows were broken with stones and one shot was fired. The crowd disappeared on the approach of a squad of mounted police.

FOUND WITH THROAT CUT

Decomposed Body of Connecticut Boy Discovered In Woods

Madison, Conn., May 25.—Whether Harold Ford, a 16-year-old Meriden boy, whose body was found in the woods on the outskirts of this town, decomposed and with the throat cut, was a victim of foul play, or took his own life, is the problem which the authorities are trying to solve.

Ford disappeared about three months ago with a companion, Harold Page, of about his own age. No trace has been secured of Page. No weapon was found near Ford's body, and although he drew $50 from the bank about the time he left home, there was only 3 cents in his pocket.

Chums Struck by Auto

Everett, Mass., May 25.—Charles F. Dillaway, Jr., 9, is dying and his playmate, Frank Etsell, 8, is confined to his bed with cuts and bruises, sustained when the boys were struck by an automobile last evening. The chauffeur, George E. Hodgdon of Swampscott, was arrested and later released on bail.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL.

The interclass track meet scheduled for this afternoon has been called off owing to the small number of entries. In previous years no entry fee has been charged but this year it was decided to charge a small fee in order that appropriate prizes might be purchased. This did not seem to meet with the approval of the studet body and the list of entries was too small to warrant having the meet.

• • •

Roy L. Sidelinger is confined to his home by illness. The doctor expects that he will be out at the end of the week.

• • •

A large number of High school pupils were present at the Makaria Ladies night Wednesday evening.

• • •

• • •

The game with East Boston high school has been called off so that Quincy's next game is with Milton. The team could well put in some good stiff practice during the remainder of the week especially in base running, although fielding and batting practice would not come amiss. it looks as if Quincy would need quite a bit of practice to defeat Milton if she keeps up the pace set in the last few games.

• • •

The entertainment committee of the Senior class are beginning to formulate plans for the Senior reception and the Class party. This is the same committee that gave the reception to the Junior class last Friday.

• • •

The music pupils of Miss Perkins will give a recital in the Greenleaf parlors Saturday evening. Among the High school pupils who will take part are Merle Daniels, Gertrude Meade, Jean Arthur, Winthrop Safford, Artemas Dingwell, Roy Sidelinger, Katherine Johnson, Henry Huston, Sdward Bullock. The double male quartet will also sing.

• • •

Hill is getting to be quite a heavy hitter on the school team. In several of the games recently he has had a total of three hits and seldom less than two were registered opposite his name.

• • •

Memorial exercises will be held the last hour on Monday. Dr. H. C. Hallowell has been assigned to the school but owing to ill health he may be unable to speak. There will be singing by the High school chorus and the quartet and recitations by several pupils.

• • •

Miss Kirmayer and a number of the High school girls are going to the Boston Arena Friday evening to witness an exhibition by pupils of Dr. Sargents school of Cambridge.

• • •

Maxwell O. Pinkham will be the violinist at Miss Perkin's recital Saturday evening in Hotel Greenleaf.

GRADED SCHOOLS.

A very successful candy sale was held at the Gridley Bryant school last Friday afternoon. Cake was also on sale and a substantial sum was realized. A large picture of The death of Ceasar was purchased with a portion of the money.

• • •

At the Massachusetts Fields school memorial exercises will be held Monday afternoon at 2.30. Mr. Nightingale of the Grand Army will speak. The exercises will be held out of doors in front of the school building.

• • •

The class picture of the eighth grade at the Quincy school was taken this morning on the school steps.

The patriotic services of the Coddington school will be held Monday afternoon at 1.45. Mr. Perkins, the new master who will begin work that day will have charge of the exercises.

• • •

The ice cream sale at the Cranch school last Friday afternoon was a record breaker. Twenty-five gallons were disposed of in twenty-five minutes.

The committee from the Parents and Teachers association of the Adams school appointed to select a site for the new building has been invited to meet with the Committee on Public buildings and Grounds this evening in City Hall.

Joseph Lapham one of the members of Paul Revere post, G. A. R. will speak at the patriotic exercises at the Quincy school next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. General exercises will be held with all the grades united. Parents will be welcomed to the school for this memorial day observance.

The seventh grade team of the Cranch school defeated the sixth grade team by a score of 11 to 9 Tuesday afternoon.

• • •

The "Orphan team" as the Coddington school nine has been termed although playing a losing game throughout the season has shown good spirit to continue without coaching. The fact that the school had no master did not deter the team from completing the season. Another praiseworthy thing about the team has been that after the defeat the players got together and cheered their opponents of their own accord. The last game of the season for the "Orphan team" was played yesterday.

• • •

The Massachusetts Fields team which is a candidate for the championship this year defeated the Blackfoot A. C. last Thursday afternoon by a score of 3 to 2.

• • •

An ice cream sale will be held at the Adams school within a week. The date has not been set as yet.

• • •

Mr. Chubbuck of Paul Revere post will be the speaker at the patriotic exercises of the Wollaston school next Monday at one o'clock. These exercises will be held out of doors.

• • •

At the memorial exercises of the Gridley Bryant school on Monday, Mrs. Exells will sing. Following the exercises an ice cream sale will be held in the school building.

The class of 1907 of Massachusetts Fields school held a reception in the hall of the school last evening. An entertainment was given and refreshments were served after a series of games had been played. Those present were practically all members of the Senior class in Quincy high school.

• • •

The executive committee of the Wollaston Parents and Teachers association held a meeting Wednesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Walter Pinkham. The program for the coming year was mapped out and committees were appointed. It was decided to hold all the meetings in the evening next season so that the fathers of the children might attend as well as the mothers.

• • •

The memorial exercises at the Willard school will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Commander Thomas Ring of Paul Revere post will be the principal speaker. Invitations will be sent out to the parents of pupils this week.

Massachusetts Fields defeated the Blackfoot A. C. 10 to 6 on Wednesday afternoon.

The memorial exercises at the Lincoln school will be held at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Asa A. Pope of the G. A. R. wil be the speaker.

• • •

A case of scarlet fever has been reported at the Wollaston school. During the epidemic there was a case in the same family and it has now broken out again in a mild form. The family is that of George Rice, Standish avenue.

• • •

The Quincy schoolmasters and masters assistants together with Mr. Barbour and about ten girls from High school and ten from Woodward Institute will go to the Boston Arena tomorrow evening under the guidance of Dr. J. Gardner Smith to witness a gymnastic exhibition given by pupils of Dr. Dudley A. Sargent's school of Cambridge.

• • •

The patriotic exercises of the John Hancock school will be held Monday afternoon at 1.30. Edward J. Lennon will be the orator of the occasion.

New England Will Be Diplomatic Capital During Hot Weather

Boston, May 24.—Not only will New England be the political capital of the United States this summer, but it will also be the diplomatic capital, as a majority of the embassies and legations will be transferred from Washington to Massachusetts and Maine in the course of the next few weeks.

The British embassy will go to Seal Harbor, Me., and have as near neighbors at Bar Harbor the Austrian embassy and the Venezuelan, Dutch and Greek legations. At Manchester, Mass., will be the French, German, Russian and Italian embassies; at Magnolia, Mass., will be the Mexican embassy, at Gloucester, Mass., will be the Persian and Siamese legations.

moment in it, Mr. Ott being a whole show in himself.

The effectiveness of the opera was greatly added to by the pretty costumes, the geisha girls being gowned in becoming Japanese costumes with large chrysanthemums in the hair and on the shoes while the students in long flowing gowns and painted faces resembled, true to life the students of the little brown race.

The geisha girls and students in the chorus were:

Geisha Girls—Miss Clara Brown, Miss Stella Brown, Miss Gilberte Bouchard, Miss Yvonne Bouchard, Miss Elizabeth McVay, Miss Mary Driscoll, Miss Anastatia Harkins, Miss Agnes Henchey, Miss Eliza Levangie, Miss Mildred Phalen, Miss Ruth Phelan, Miss Margaret Reveney, Miss Eva Rice, Miss Blanche Picard, Miss Evelyn Kelly, Miss Ruth Keating.

The attendance was unusually large and so successful was the production that it is probable that it will be repeated at an early date.

The committee in charge of the evening were Rev. Patrick J. Scammell, chairman, Edward D. Barrett, William T. Donovan, John W. Lynch, John J. Reardon, John W. Walsh and these acted as ushers.

DISEASES CAUSED BY MILK.

(By Milton J. Rosenau, M. D.)

The common market milk bought in a store in any of our large cities almost always contains more germs than may be found in fresh, rich sewage. If milk were a transparent substance such as jelly, gelatine, beef-tea, or beer, this vast growth of germ life would be plainly seen in the milk with the naked eye. No housewife would buy such stuff, for she would at once condemn it as mouldy or spoiled. Milk is opaque and, therefore, the enormous number of germs are hidden. We are not aware of their presence until they curdle the milk and turn it sour.

Milk often becomes infected with the germs of disease on the dairy farm or by those who handle the milk on its way to the household, and sometimes in the household. The cow may be sick and the milk may, therefore, contain the germs of disease as it leaves the udder, but we will here give attention only to some of those disease germs which come from man and are carried to his fellow men in the milk.

The germs of diphtheria, typhoid fever, and scarlet fever often get into milk. People who drink such milk are apt to become infected. It is now definitely known that many cases of contagious diseases and summer complaints in infants are caused by the germs in milk.

Milk bottles should never be taken into a sick room, for in this way the germs of disease may get into them and thus the infection may be carried back to the dairy or into another household. Disease is often spread by such carelessness.

The bacillus of typhoid fever grows very well in milk. A few typhoid bacilli will multiply in a few hours into millions without in any way changing the taste, color, odor or appearance of the milk. Milk may therefore be teeming with typhoid bacilli and the hidden danger is so much the greater because it gives no warning of its presence.

Diphtheria is another disease that is often caused by drinking milk containing the germs of diphtheria. Between the years 1895 and 1907, twenty-three epidemics of diphtheria have been reported as spread by milk. Fifteen of these occurred in the United States and eight in Great Britain. Milk-borne epidemics are rather rare upon the continent of Europe and in the tropics on account of the general custom of boiling the milk just before it is used in these countries. In the case of diphtheria, the milk usually becomes contaminated at the dairy farm, sometimes, however, at the distributing dairy, at the city dairy or the milk shop. In some of the epidemics it was found that persons suffering with diphtheria milked the cows. Other epidemics were caused by the same person nursing the sick and handling the milk.

The recent experience in Boston with a large scarlet fever epidemic which came through the milk is fresh in mind. There were, all told, about five hundred cases in this outbreak clearly traced to the milk. Up to the year of 1907, fifty-one scarlet fever epidemics have been reported as spread by milk, twenty-five of these occurred in the United States and twenty-six in Great Britain. There is some suspicion in the popular mind that scarlet fever in the milk may come from a diseased cow, but there is no proof of this, and all the epidemics studied have usually been traced to a mild case of scarlet fever or a convalescent.

Other diseases conveyed in milk, such as tuberculosis, dysentery, summer complaints of infants, foot and mouth disease, and malta fever are not discussed here for the reason that they are considered in other papers of this series.

Although these dangers may never be entirely eliminated, very many of them may be prevented by an efficient system of State inspection of the production and handling of milk, so as to furnish the consumer with a fresher and cleaner product.

LORIMER SLUSH FUND

La Follette Says It Will Be Found to Have Exceeded $200,000

Washington, May 25.—Revelations concerning the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois may be expected as the result of a second investigation into the bribery charges against Lorimer if the predictions made by Senator La Follette in the delivery of the third instalment of his argument in support of his resolution of inquiry are realized.

Mr. La Follette prophesied that more than twice the $100,000 heretofore alleged to have been used would be found to have been spent in Lorimer's behalf, and reiterated that Lorimer had personal cognizance of the use of money in his behalf.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Deficiency In White Bread.

No question in diet, except the meat question, has been so vigorously debated as that of the relative values of white and entire wheat bread. Some maintain that the fine white flour contains a larger per cent of nutriment than the entire wheat flour, quoting the analysis of a government chemist to prove it. They also insist that the coarse outer shell of the wheat is extremely irritating to the delicate lining of the intestinal canal, one physician, who writes extensively on diet, going so far as to say that it is better to use the white bread and take a "judicious pill" occasionally.

Milk as a food for adults is deficient in iron, which gives that "sand" that is necessary to bring the moral qualities into play. Now the standard analyses show that the percentage of iron in whole wheat is more than double that in superfine white flour. Sulphur and chlorine, highly essential elements of the blood, are entirely eliminated from white flour, and only a trace of sodium is left, which cannot be naturally supplied in common salt.

The ordinary white flour contains less than half as much fat as whole wheat and only one-fourth the mineral matter.

STATEHOOD BILLS PASSED BY HOUSE

Joint Measure Admits New Mexico and Arizona

Washington, May 24.—The joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico to immediate statehood, but withholding approval of the constitutions of both states until the people have voted on certain proposed amendments to them, passed the house of representatives yesterday afternoon.

The resolution requires Arizona to vote on an amendment removing the recall provision as it applies to judges; and requires New Mexico to vote on an amendment making its constitution more easily amendable in the future. Neither state is required to adopt the amendments proposed by congress. Whether they are approved or rejected by the proposed referendums, the constitutions of the new states will stand finally approved when the respective votes have been taken.

RAISING ALFALFA IN MAINE

Determined Effort Is Being Made In Somerset County

Bangor, Me., May 24.—Through the co-operation of the Skowhegan Jersey creamery, the United States department of agriculture, local business men and farmers, a systematic and determined effort to induce the culture of alfalfa in Somerset county is being made this spring.

To those patrons who have signed the necessary agreement the creamery has donated 500 pounds of agricultural lime to correct any soil acidity on an experimental plot of one-fourth of an acre. The department of agriculture has promised the necessary seed, together with cultures of the nitrogen-gathering bacteria, and a local business man is taking a general oversight of the propaganda.

Germany Is In Sympathy With Tender of United States

Berlin, May 24.—The Wolff Telegraph bureau, in an official statement, confirms the announcement, published here yesterday, of the declared willingness of the American government to enter into negotiations with Germany for a general arbitration treaty on lines similar to the proposition submitted by the United States to Great Britain and France.

"The German government," the statement says, "has received the announcement with sympathetic interest."

MYSTERIOUS INFLUENCES

Shot Through Air In Thought Waves by the Yogis

MAY BLESS OR BLAST LIFE

Belief of Members of Colony Who Held to Hindoo Teachings—Diet of One Glass of Milk and Six Almonds a Day—Other Curious Testimony Brought Out by Witnesses In the Bull Will Contest

Alfred, Me., May 25.—Testimony was introduced in the contest of the will of the late Mrs. Ole Bull that indicated that the exactions of the Hindoo religion and mystic lore which the Raja Yogi cult followed in the studio house of Mrs. Bull in Cambridge, Mass., wore members of the circle out physically, made others hysterical and drove at least one woman to an insane asylum.

Some of the members of the remarkable colony grew to believe that mysterious influences were shot through the air in thought waves and could either bless or blast a life, according to the will of the sender of the thoughts.

Letters were introduced which indicated that those who held steadily to the Hindoo teachings were bereft of their normal minds and filled with remarkable delusions.

Mrs. Stevens, a prominent member, became possessed of the idea, according to the testimony, that Mary W. Sewall, prominent in educational circles, was "a veritable demon," and one story was that she had such wonderful powers that she looked at a picture with such force that the eyes moved.

Secret rites practised by the Yogis, the witness' massaging of Mrs. Bull, her belief in the Yogi diet of one glass of milk and six almonds daily, her writing and hours for work were revealed by Nicolo Roberto, an Italian barber.

Roberto said Mrs. Bull was subject to violent changes in mood and manner, that at one time her face would be childlike, her voice low and sweet, and then in a short time her face would grow old and seamed, her voice loud and harsh and her manner excited and nervous. Her mood, said Roberto, would change instantly as she passed from one room to another.

Later, the witness, in answer to questions by Attorney Whipple for the contestant, said that Mrs. Bull had had him massage her fifteen times the first summer he was at her house in Cambridge, Mass., and in Eliot, Me.

At this point the attorneys on both sides in the will contest and Judge Hobbs went into a private room with Roberto in order to listen to some of the testimony about the happenings in Mrs. Bull's studio house in Cambridge, which the young Italian declined to tell about in public.

The testimony, it is said, if printed, would create a sensation. It related to the happenings that sometimes took place in the Cambridge Hindu mystic circle to which Mrs. Bull and her friends belonged.

Mrs. Bull told Roberto, he testified, that a Mrs. Briggs had such wonderful psychic power that while Mrs. Bull was undergoing an operation at a hospital she felt absolutely no pain because of the absent treatment of the woman.

It was brought out that Mrs. Bull charged that her daughter, Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughan, was constantly under the hypnotic influence of Mrs. Abbie E. Shapleigh, who had for many years been a member of Mrs. Bull's father's family.

BRIBE INQUIRY BLOCKED

Witnesses Refuse to Testify Before Investigators In Ohio

Columbus, O., May 25.—Attorney Charles J. Pretzman, former president of the Columbus chamber of commerce, and E. E. Cook, editor of a Columbus newspaper, were arraigned before Justice Bostwick on a warrant sworn out by Chairman Todd of the senate committee of ten appointed to probe the charges of bribery made against members of the senate.

They had been arrested for refusing to testify before the committee and the incident practically halted the investigation. The committee is now confronted with legal technicalities which may take days to settle.

HEINZE MUST PAY $325

Amount Asesssed by Jury For Assaulting New York Chauffeur

New York, May 25.—Fritz A. Heinze denied emphatically before a supreme court jury that he had unjustifiably punished Joseph B. Hubbard, a taxicab chauffeur, in this city. Hubbard, who sued the copper magnate for $5000 damages, says that the defendant knocked him down twice in a dispute over fare.

Heinze contended that the chauffeur overcharged him, and when he refused to pay the amount charged, followed him into a restaurant and struck him when he shook the man off. A verdict for $325 in favor of Hubbard was returned.

Crucial Point Will Come In the Elections Next Sunday

Lisbon, May 25.—As next Sunday, which is election day, approaches, rumors of conspiracies, royal plots and Republican factional differences multiply. Nevertheless, public order continues.

The government appears to recognize that the situation contains many uncertainties and military precautions have been taken, apart from the arrest of some of the royalist leaders and of the surveillance of others.

DOUBLE SALARIES ARE TO BE CUT OFF

Bill Hits Numerous Employes at National Capitol

Washington, May 25.—Numerous government employes, especially those carried on the government rolls at the Capitol who draw two separate salaries from the government, are to be dismissed from the service under the terms of a provision to be carried in the legislative judicial and executive appropriation bill.

This has been decided upon by the house committee on appropriations and was prompted primarily by the discovery that, in addition to drawing $5000 as assistant secretary of the treasury, A. P. Andrews has been paid a very substantial sum as editor of the National Monetary Commission.

While the contemplated limitation of the appropriations committee is aimed primarily at Andrew, it is stated that members of the committee have discovered that there are many men employed by the government who are drawing double salaries.

IVERNIA IS BEACHED

Damage to Big Liner More Serious Than at First Supposed

Queenstown, May 25.—The Cunard steamer Ivernia, which struck Daunts Rock in a fog, was beached last night, not far from where she had anchored and from where her 758 passengers were taken ashore.

It is feared that the big liner is more seriously damaged than was at first thought, water having penetrated three bulkheads instead of one as was first reported.

The first that was known of the accident was when the liner passed Roches Point at the head of Cork harbor. The fore part of the Ivernia was sunk deep in the water, her stern was high in the air, and she had a dangerous looking list to starboard.

BANKING LAWS MUST BE UPHELD

President Refuses Pardons to Morse and Walsh

WON'T SHORTEN SENTENCES

Business Methods of Both Men Are Scored In Long Opinion—Says Morse Realized More Keenly Than Did Walsh the Evil of What He Was Doing and Deserved Heavier Sentence Than Chicago Banker

Washington, May 25.—President Taft last night denied the applications for the pardon of Charles W. Morse of New York and John R. Walsh of Chicago, the two most prominent bankers ever convicted and sent to federal penitentiaries under the national banking laws. Not only did the president refuse to pardon either Morse or Walsh, but he also declined at this time to exercise any other sort of executive clemency in these cases or to shorten the sentences imposed upon the two men by the courts in which they were convicted.

In denying the pardons the president took a firm stand that the national banking laws or any other laws must be upheld when they affect the rich man, even more than when they affect the poor.

The record in the Walsh case, the president said, in a long opinion, "shows moral turpitude of that insidious and dangerous kind, to punish which the national banking laws were especially enacted."

In considering the case of Morse, the president said, "that from a consideration of the facts in each case, I have no doubt that Morse should have received a heavier sentence than Walsh. Indeed, the methods taken by Morse tend to show that more keenly than Walsh did he realize the evil of what he was doing."

In his opinion, in the Walsh case, the president protested against the failure to discriminate between legitimate business and improper gain. "The truth is," said he, "that in the mad rush for wealth in the last few decades, the lines between profit from legitimate business and improper gain from undue use of trust control over other people's property and money has sometimes been dimmed, and the interest of society requires that whenever opportunity offers, those charged with enforcement of the law should emphasize the distinction between honest business and dishonest breaches of trust."

The president's denial of the applications of Morse and Walsh for pardon does not mean that they must stay in prison until the end of their terms. Walsh began a sentence of five years in the Leavenworth penitentiary in January, 1910, and under the federal parole law is eligible for parole next September. The president's action has no bearing whatever upon future application for parole. Morse began his fifteen-year term in the Atlanta penitentiary in January, 1910, also.

In denying Morse's application, the president granted him leave to renew it after Jan. 1, 1913. Under the parole law Morse will be eligible for release in 1915.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Quincy People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Quincy.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes, I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

MEMORIAL DAY AND A REUNION

By FLORENCE A. MUNROE.

IT was told to me in the smoker as we rode into Omaha from Cheyenne. The narrator was a tall, gaunt man with the scar of a saber cut on his left cheek. He refused cigars, but when asked to tell a story quietly began. I knew instantly it was in some way connected with himself. We always hesitate a little when relating our own experiences, but never another's. Well, that man's story, as near as I can repeat it, was this:

In a small northwestern town one 30th of May service was held in the big Union church. Among the speakers was the Episcopal bishop of the state, who had worn the blue back in the sixties. The gray haired soldier was tall and strong yet. The burdens of life had not bent his muscular form, nor had the conflicts marked his calm, good face. But his eyes—they were the saddest I ever saw. When people looked deep into them they reflected such scenes of sorrow that women would cry and men did not care to look very long.

When I came to think of it afterward, the man in the car had the same kind of eyes. But, to get on with his story, just before the old bishop began his address a man had stolen in and seated himself in one of the back pews. Some eyed him suspiciously and wondered how he had escaped the ushers. He was a very ragged fellow.

When the old bishop stood up to speak the stranger gave his words the closest attention. First he told about the soldiers who were bivouacked in their green tents out on the hills. Then about those who hadn't any graves, but were left down on the bullet torn meadows of the south. Afterward of those who had gone away with their mothers' tears staining their new blue coats. Where were they all today? Some had come proudly home with gold stars glittering on their shoulders; others—God help them—had deserted from the right and were ashamed to come, but they would return some day if they were alive. Then he began to tell of his own son, a yellow haired chap who had carried the union colors up to the second battle of Bull Run. Till then they had fought together, almost side by side. But one day he saw the boy get a saber cut on the face and fall. It was hard to leave him, but the command was to advance. Since then he had not seen him. Once he saw his name among those who had deserted and were fighting on the southern side. Oh, that he might have been spared this! Better their true sons dead than his perhaps living, but— Still he would not wish him back unless he came as a good soldier, winning in the ranks of the Great Leader, a follower of the Christ.

At this point the ragged fellow got out of his pew and started slowly up the middle aisle. The ushers arose to put him out, but the speaker raised his hand and they stepped back. With great firmness he walked unconscious of the excitement until he reached the altar steps. For a moment those two men looked into each other's eyes. Then one fell down on his knees while the other laid his hands upon the bowed head. The church was silent. One could hear the clock hung on the railing near the organ loft ticking.

"My friends"—the bishop's voice was husky and strained—"you all see this man. I loved him once when he was a boy. Since then he has deserted his country's flag, stolen from his fellows, wronged his old father. But today he has come back and asks to be given a chance to begin again."

Gently he lifted the tear stained face so that their eyes met once more.

"Do you, in the presence of God and these people, renounce the life you have lived, and do you willingly take up the banner to fight against sin and yourself?"

"I do."

The answer was low, but it echoed through the church as the old bishop stretched his hands to heaven and cried:

"I have cast my prayers upon the waters and they have returned to me today, my son, oh, my son."

Just then the loud voice of the conductor called "Omaha." Some hurried to get their baggage, but I walked uptown with the bishop's son to see the Memorial day parade.

$600,000 MORE FOR TECH

Generous Gift to Come From Trust Fund Created by Greene

Boston, May 25.—Another $600,000 gift to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was announced yesterday afternoon by President Maclaurin. This made $1,600,000 which it had become known within twenty-four hours the institution is to receive.

The latest gift to Tech is a trust fund created by Francis B. Greene, who left a big bequest to Radcliffe college, but made no mention of the M. I. T. in his will. The Tech bequest trust fund had been created, however, by placing a big block of Clinton real estate trust stock in the hands of trustees under conditions that the institution should get its benefits after the death of beneficiaries of the income.

Tuesday the will of Mrs. Emma Rogers was filed for probate and it contains a bequest to Tech of about $50,000. The other $500,000 will come from T. C. Dupont, a Delaware millionaire.

IS READY FOR PEACE

Japan Willing to Take Up Proposed Treaty With United States

Tokio, May 25.—Japan is prepared to participate in negotiations for a general treaty of arbitration between the United States and this country, and is willing to submit proposals for such an agreement if invited.

Government leaders are deeply interested in the tentative draft of the arbitration proposal which the American government submitted to Great Britain and France. The proposal meets with hearty approval here.

It is the consensus of opinion that if negotiations looking to the participation of Japan with the United States, France and England, in the proposed arbitration treaty were successfully concluded, it would be an achievement of vast importance to the peace of the world.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY STEAM ROLLER

Fate of Flagman Who Was For Years an Artists' Model

Melrose, Mass., May 25.—Roslin Fish, 55 years old, for many years an artists' model for old men types, was crushed to death last evening under the wheels of a steam roller, before which he fell exhausted.

It was his first day's work in three weeks. Prematurely aged, unable to continue his work posing, the once-famous model had worked as a laborer for the street department of this city for three years. Three weeks ago he was compelled to quit work on account of increasing infirmities.

An easier job was found for him—carrying a red flag in front of the steam roller. At the end of the day, as he plodded along in front of the roller, he tripped or lagged, and the big front roller caught him, crushing out his life before the machine could be stopped.

Charles Marston, the engineer, who was arrested, was released without bonds, to be arraigned on the charge of manslaughter.

NOTHING FOR DEPOSITORS

Affairs of Provident Securities and Banking Company Wound Up

Boston, May 25.—One thousand dollars, all that remained of the assets in the hands of Receivers Hall and Weed after settling up the affairs of the Provident Securities and Banking company, have been ordered turned over to the receivers as a final payment for their services.

When the bank failed in 1908 there was on hand only $3500 cash to meet creditors' claims amounting to $274,000. No one of the 17,723 creditors ever received a single cent in dividends, although depositors in the department where little iron banks were provided as an inducement to save money for a rainy day alone lost $199,000.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury Finds Boyd Responsible For the Killing of Potter

Newfane, Vt., May 25.—A verdict of guilty of manslaughter was found in the superior court against Frank J. Boyd of Wilmington on account of the killing of John Potter in that town during a quarrel in a sugar house.

Under the Vermont law, the presiding judge may exercise his discretion in a sentence for manslaughter as to the term of imprisonment. The case has occupied the court's attention for ten days.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Said to Protect Standard Oil Men From Criminal Prosecution

Washington, May 25.—It is learned on good authority at the department of justice that there will be no criminal prosecution of officers of the Standard Oil company.

The statute of limitations is said to protect all of the officials, even should the government wish to prosecute them criminally. Attorney General Wickersham said as much at the White House.

THE TEXANS ARE SMILING AT UNCLE SAM'S TROOPS

What Was at First Exciting to Them They Are Now Poking Fun At

Soldiers Wander About, Drink Large Glasses of Beer and Eat Soggy Pie

WARLIKE enthusiasm has exhausted itself in San Antonio, and the soldiers have become a joke. They fairly crowd the streets, going about purchasing picture postcards and such other little things as the limited pay of the soldier will provide. The people now laugh at the breakfast table when they discuss this mobilization. They have begun to think the whole affair is funny.

The change in public sentiment is sudden and so typically American as to be worthy of comment. When the soldiers came they were a serious consideration. There are enough railroad men in Texas who have done service in Mexico to make a fairly big anti-Mexico party. Railroad men have seen the inside of about all the prisons there are in that country, and naturally they don't feel kindly toward it. They hoped the soldiers would stop here a day to furnish a base of supplies and move on into the country below the Rio Grande. But they didn't. They have interested the entire civilized world by their coming. They are 15,000 strong in San Antonio without taking into account the force at Galveston. They have caused the shipment of tons of ammunition and trainloads of supplies. They have used tons of supplies, but they haven't used any ammunition, and the Texas conception of a soldier is that he should use ammunition liberally, whether he has any supplies or not. The soldiers don't know what they are going to do next. The average Texan when he takes his gun in hand knows what he is going to do next, so he thinks the soldiers are in very much the position of a cigar store Indian with his tomahawk suspended in midair.

The Soldiers' Life.

In the interim the soldiers wander about through the camp, drink big glasses of beer from the newly constructed saloons and eat soggy pie at sorry looking pie counters constructed of rough pine boards. These saloons are picturesque. They look like the quick creations of the men who cater to the needs of home seekers rushing to newly opened public lands. The camp is almost surrounded by saloons and restaurants and newsstands of this sort. It looks as if the soldiers have been captured or at least surrounded and rather effectually penned in. They must pass through this barrier of pine boards and get away with what few nickels they can conceal if they want to reach the city.

The soldiers have been making themselves popular here. They are behaving excellently. It is a matter worthy of comment that soldiers have always behaved well at San Antonio. The city is a "wide open town," to use the western phrase. That is to say, a man can get into all the trouble he wants, and he does not have to look far for it. One fact which tends to prevent trouble is the small negro population of this city. As a result of this small negro population there is very little race feeling. In fact, one might say there is probably less race prejudice in San Antonio than in any other city in the south. There are still towns in this territory where the negro does not reside because he is not permitted to do so. But San Antonio is cosmopolitan.

Merchants Happy.

Merchants are still rejoicing at the enormous orders they receive from the government for supplies. The government is reputed to pay rather regularly and is looked upon as a good customer.

As the camp grows older the officers are more and more pleased with the preliminary arrangements made for the mobilization here. Considering the extremely small time allowed for planning the camp, the work is a monument to the progress of American army officers along this line. The officers are dignified persons who take a big share in the social life of the city and have an air about them which is different from the manner of the westerner in even the most select society. They are a bit formal, they suggest the east, they are probably as different from the westerner as the Englishman of an old family is from the American of New York, but they are making many friends here.

Regulars Versus Militiamen.

Military men here are inclined to take the militia and its instruction lightly. They will not on that account be any the less energetic in training the militia and instructing militia officers, but it is really remarkable what an imposing array of indictments can be drawn by regular officers against the American militia. The regulars are inclined to think a good wetting would put about 50 per cent of them in the hospital. It is also pointed out that the soldier needs about twice as much training now as he did half a century ago. The regulars are inclined to think a militiaman is a little better than nothing and that after a year in the field had decimated the force the remaining men would be fairly good soldiers.

The maneuvers of the artillery are by far the most interesting. Artillery going into action at full speed is about the most thrilling sight one can witness.

Rise and Progress of Mexican Revolt, Overthrowing Diaz In Six Months

THE Mexican revolution, now believed to be near an end, had its inception in the candidacy of F. I. Madero, Jr., for the presidency. He was seized and put in jail by order of General Diaz, who had been declared to be re-elected. Escaping, Madero made his way across the American border and directed the insurrectionary movements from San Antonio.

Following are the chief events to date in the Mexican revolution, showing its quick and remarkable spread:

Nov. 18 last—Madero proclaims from San Antonio, Tex., a new and provisional Mexican government. On the same day a battle is fought at Puebla, Mexico, in which 100 persons are killed.

Nov. 19—Madero crosses the border into Mexico, and the revolt spreads.

Nov. 21, 22, 23—Fights take place at Guerrero, Santa Cruz, Orizaba, Gomez Palacio Parral, and San Andres, in which several hundred persons are killed.

Madero is wounded in the engagement at Guerrero. The government holds Torreon and extends martial law.

Dec. 11—Seventy-five killed in battle at Cerro Prieta.

Dec. 17—Severe skirmish at Pedernales.

Dec. 22—Rebels capture their first passenger train. It is seized on the Mexican Northwestern road near El Paso.

Dec. 26—Rebels capture San Carlos.

Dec. 27—Rebels appear in force at American Mormon settlement at Casas Grandes. On the same day there is a battle at Mal Paso. The federal troops are ambushed and shot to pieces.

Diaz refuses to resign. Insurrection spreads through northern Chihuahua.

Jan. 4—Town of Cusihuriachie falls into rebel hands.

Jan. 15—Reports show many railroad bridges burned and small places attacked by rebels in the last two weeks. Rumor of secret treaty between Japan and Mexico is denied by both nations. It is said Japan wanted a naval base on the west coast of Mexico.

Jan. 20—Alberto Terrayas, governor of state of Chihuahua, resigns.

Marching begins toward Juarez.

Feb. 9—Aviators at El Paso shot at by Mexican riflemen.

A skirmish near Juarez.

Feb. 14—City of Juarez is rescued by the federal troops after days of skirmishing.

Feb. 27—Ladura captured by rebels after two day fight.

March 6—President Taft orders out 20,000 American troops to patrol the American boundary. The last of the soldiers reach the general camp at San Antonio, Tex., on March 16.

March 12—Battle at Agua Prieta; rebels whipped.

March 24—Mexican cabinet resigns. Diaz refuses to resign.

March 26-30—Battles at Tepic and Ures.

April 6—First effort at armistice fails.

April 13—English cruiser Shearwater lands a force at San Quentin, Lower California.

American officer crosses border into Mexico after several Americans are killed at Douglas, Ariz., by stray bullets from Agua Prieta fight. Mexico sends "sassy" protest to Washington, but recalls it later.

April 15—President Taft orders more troops to the border and warns combatants not to shoot over the line.

April 16—Battle near city of Chihuahua.

April 18—Diaz agrees to an armistice. It lasts off and on several weeks, but results in nothing.

April 30—Diaz is interviewed. He says he believes he is necessary to Mexico.

May 1—Federals drive away rebels besieging Ojinaga.

May 6—Armistice and peace conferences end and revolt goes on.

May 10—City of Juarez taken by the revolutionists.

May 11—Provisional President Madero names cabinet.

May 17—New armistice agreed to. Diaz agrees to resign.

May 22—Peace pact signed in Juarez.

Ralston Lasts Are Foot Moulded

The ordinary shoe last on which all other shoes (except Ralstons) are made is absolutely flat across the bottom. They would do very nicely if your feet were also flat across the bottom—but they're NOT.

In the Ralston last every curve every hollow of your foot bottom is duplicated. What is the result? Ralstons fit perfectly the first time you put them on. Unlike other shoes they require no breaking in. If you're skeptical come in and say Prove it. We'll welcome the opportunity.

BRIEFS

The Boy's club of Christ church held its regular meeting in the Parish house Wednesday evening.

John Adams Aerie of Eagles held its regular meeting in Protection hall Wednesday evening.

The choir of Christ church will sing partsongs and glees at Mr. Wrigleys concert in Alpha hall tomorrow night.

A delegation from the Quincy Point Men's club attended the meeting of the Pilgrim church Men's club, North Weymouth, Wednesday. Rev. Charles Reynolds Brown, the dean elect of Yale gave a brilliant address.

The excavating for the foundation for the new eight room school building at Montclair is progressing rapidly and contractor Crowley expects to commence work next week laying the foundation wall.

A special meeting of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church is called for Friday evening in the vestry at 8.30. The devotional meeting will be of special interest on Sunday evening and all members are urged to be present at 6.15.

The regular meeting of the Womans' Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans was held Wednesday evening in Grand Army hall. Final preparations were made for Memorial day with regard to decorating the soldier's graves.

The date of the baseball meeting at the Y. M. C. A. has been changed to Wednesday, May 31. An appropriation has been made to fit out a team and all among the Seniors interested in its organization are requested to meet on that evening at eight o'clock in the association building.

Henderson & Ross, Kimball building, Boston, report the sale for Owen Goldsmith, title coming through George R. Slader, of the large mansion house and stable and 75,258 square feet of land numbered 170 Adams street, Quincy, opposite the President Adams mansion and in the aristocratic section of the city. The property has a total taxed value of $37,500. James L. Brennan is the purchaser and buys for occupancy.

WOMEN'S GUILD.

The regular monthly missionary meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church was held in the parish room Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance and a number of the ladies spoke on subjects of interest in connection with the World in Boston. This was the last meeting of the Guild until fall.

FOURTH OE JULY COMMITTEE MEET

Word Received That Atlantic will go it Alone

A meeting of the general committee on the Fourth of July celebration met Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade. There was a general discussion on plans for the celebration and the form of letter, that is to be sent out asking funds was read and adopted. It is proposed to send this letter to prominent citizens soliciting funds also to send a letter to the different organizations of the city asking them to take part in the parade.

The question of prizes for the different events was discussed but no final action taken as this can not be done until it is known how much money the committee will have.

It is the intention of the committee if funds are forthcoming to have band concerts in the different sections of the city and to have a balloon ascesion and other features.

A letter was received from the Atlantic association stating that it had already begun to make its plans for a celebration in that ward and that it would not unite with the general celebration.

This action on the part of the Atlantic commitee was very much regretted as one celebration would give better satisfaction than two distinct celebrations. Another meeting will be held at an early date.

Convassers for funds will commence their work next week and it is hoped that everybody will give something. Even the smallest amount will be acceptable.

BRIDGE REPAIRS

A hearing was held before the Harbor and Land Commissioners Wednesday on the question of beginning work on the repairs to the Fore River bridge. The commission who are to make the repairs want permission to construct a temporary structure to be used during the process of construction. E. Bently Warren counsel for the street railway said that his company would not object if there would be no obstruction in travel during the summer months. Chairman Merrill replied that it was the intention of the commission to delay work on the reconstruction of the draw until fall. The matter was taken under advisement.

THE MISSING ONE.

S. E. Kiser,

I don't think I'll go into town to see the boys come back;
My bein' there would do no good in all that jam and pack;
There'll be enough to welcome them—to cheer them when they come
A-marchin' bravely to the time that's beat upon the drum—
They'll never miss me in the crowd—not one of 'em will care
If, when the cheers are ringin' loud,
I'm not among them there.

I went to see them march away—hollered with the rest,
And didn't they look fine, that day, a-marchin' four abreast,
With my boy James up near the front, as handsome as could be,
And wavin' back a fond farewell to mother and to me.
I vow my old knees trimbled so, when they had all got by,
I had to jist sit down upon the curbstone there and cry.

And now they're coming home again.
The record that they won
Was such as shows we still have men, when men's work's to be done!
There wasn't one of 'em that flinched,
each feller stood the test—
Wherever they were sent they sailed right in and done their best.
They didn't go away to play—they knowed what was in store—
But there's a grave somewhere, today, down on the Cuban shore!

I guess that I'll not go to town to see the boys come in;
I don't jist feel like mixin' up in all that crush and din!
There'll be enough to welcome them—to cheer them when they come
A-marchin bravely to the time that's beat upon the drum.
And the boys'll never notice—not a one of 'em will care,
For the soldier that would miss me aint a'goin' to be there.

—"The man who does not hope for better things, who does not believe that better things can be brought about, is not the man likely to bring better things about. Constant criticism and constant pessimism are productive of paralysis and stagnation." President Taft is responsible for this fine statement. It is a splendid bit of philosophy and worth pasting in the lining of your hat. Look at it occasionally.—Haverhill Gazette.

THE GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE.

The regular games will be played this afternoon, Adams vs Cranch and Hancock vs Lincoln. After that there will be no more games until next Wednesday when Gridley Bryant will meet Quincy and Massachusetts Fields will play Wollaston.

The final game in the league will be played on Thursday between Massachusetts Fields and Willard. It is very probable that Cranch will defeat Adams and that Massachusetts Fields will win from Wollaston. If Willard should defeat Massachusetts Fields in the final scheduled game all three schools, Cranch, Willard and Massachusetts Fields will be tied for the first place, that is provided Cranch and Massachusetts Field do not slip up in their games.

In the games played Wednesday afternoon, Coddington made a good showing against the strong Willard team holding it to 4 runs against 1.

Quincy and Washington had the most interesting game of the season which went two extra innings before Washington could win 5 to 4.

The standing in the Grammar school league to date:

	W	L	P. C.
Massachusetts Fields	7	1	.875
Cranch	7	2	.778
Willard	7	2	.778
Ahams	6	3	.667
Washington	6	4	.667
John Hancock	5	4	.556
Gridley Bryant	3	6	.333
Quincy	3	6	.333
Wollaston	3	6	.333
Codding ton	2	8	.200
Lincoln	1	8	.111

SPORTING NOTES.

The Quincys will play the strong Montello A. C. on the morning of the holiday instead of the Riversides of Lincoln as previously announced. This team is considered stronger than the old Lincoln team and the Quincys will have a good team to oppose them. Briggs will cover first Shaw will be on second and Daly on third. The short stop has not been decided upon as yet. Glaze and Fitzgerald will be the battery. In t he outfield there will be three familiar spirits, "Billy" Duggan, George Fallon and "Artie" Dunn.

The Senior girls of Milton high school defeated the Sophomores Wednesday afternoon by a score of 14 to 10. Miss H. Considine who pitched for the Seniors struck out 16 and got 3 hits. Miss Neilson and Miss Matthews of the Seniors got 3 hits apiece also and Miss G. Considine drove out 4 hits. For the Sophomores Misses Burke and Kelley did some good hitting. Although there were 8 errors made by Seniors and 13 by the Sophomores the game was very interesting and was witnessed by a large num- of enthusiastic spectators.

The schedule of games in the grammar school league for the rest of the season follows:

Thursday May 25
Cranch vs Adams
Hancock vs Lincoln
Monday, May 29
Mass. Fields vs Wollaston
Gridley Bryant vs Quincy
Wednesday, May 31
Mass. Fields vs Willard.

Quincy high will not play East Boston Friday afternoon but will meet Milton high next Wednesday afternoon at Merrymount park.

Some interesting scores of Wednesday:

Ringe 10, Cambridge Latin 2.
Medford 1, Melrose 0.
Newton 7, Dorchester 6.
Waltham 20, Arlington 1.
Stone 2, Milton Academy 1.
Lawrence 10, Groton 5.

Quincy has never been noted for her interest in track athletics but when it comes to a case of having to give up a meet because only 14 entries could be obtained the situation looks pretty queer. This is the case at Quincy high school this year. An entrance fee of ten cents was to have been charged but that surely ought not to keep anyone out. To the outsider it looks as if the schoolboys lacked the proper spirit of sportsmanship.

WHEN THE ARROW FELL

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Theodore Strickland, aged thirty-nine years and eleven months, stepped from a carriage at the entrance of his bachelor home, entered and seated himself before the remains of a fire in the grate in his library. He had been born and lived in the house, and from it had been buried every member of his father's family except himself. He had long been a member of a dancing club composed of the young men and women of the place and had just returned from one of their meetings. The result of his attendance was very depressing to him.

He had not only been left alone by the taking off of his brothers and sisters, but now he had discovered at the dancing club that he had grown beyond young people. He had had no romance in his younger days; therefore he was condemned to live singly. He looked the problem square in the face. Since he could not fall in love he must ask some woman to come into his house as wife and companion. The idea was repulsive to him. He had believed in a grand passion and waited for one. But what could he do? He could not inhabit the house alone. He must either get a woman in it or leave it.

Strickland was desperate and resolved to make a plunge. He thought over the maiden ladies of his acquaintance, made a list of them and resolved to ask one after the other to marry him until some one of them accepted. Had he realized his worth he would not have expected to get very far down the list. He wrote out the names alphabetically and began with the first name, which was among the B's, Burwell, a lady of thirty-seven or thirty-eight and devoted to missionary work. He had known her for some time, having met her at public places, but had never called at her house. Indeed, he wasn't quite certain where she lived. He wrote several notes in the spirit that was moving him—that is, without the slightest sentiment—and tore them all up. No true woman would accept him on such terms. Finally with an effort he wrote a very short one—"I love you; will you be my wife?" He sealed it so that he could not read it again and left it on the library table addressed simply to "Miss Burwell, City," intending to get the address in the morning from a directory.

But the next morning the spirit that had moved him was with him no longer, and he went to his office, leaving the note on the table. During the day he abandoned his matrimonial plan as absurd and went home, intending to burn the note. It was not where he had left it. He called his housemaid and asked for it. Supposing that he had forgotten it, she had given it to the postman when he called.

Strickland went out at once to a drug store, looked at the name Burwell in the directory and found twelve Burwells. There was a sense of relief such as a gambler might feel who had shut his eyes and covered a number on a faro table with his last dollar. Even if he didn't know a Miss Burwell into whose hands it should fall, there was nothing in it to indicate that it was not a genuine proposal. "I love you; will you be my wife?" was a statement that covered a good deal of ground. The woman might even infer that she had been worshiped by an unknown man.

Possibly he might get a reply the next morning, so he waited at home for the mail. A note addressed to him in a scrunched feminine hand set him trembling. Where had the lightning struck? He tore off the envelope and read:

When I left you after that whirl we had on Thursday evening at the dancing club little did I know of the happiness in store for me. If you only knew the thrill that ran through me the moment you touched my hand! It must have been mutual. I was out for my first evening as a young lady, and no one knows how a girl at such a time is delighted with attention, especially from an older man.

There was a good deal more of this in the same vein. Indeed, the letter was as expansive as his own was condensed. He remembered a girl to whom he had been introduced at the meet of the club, but had not caught her name. She was evidently a newcomer, had therefore little attention, and he had stuck by her. Indeed, he had secretly wished that he were young enough to make love to her. This must be the Miss Burwell whom his arrow shot out in the darkness had struck.

Strickland jumped up from his chair and yelled. "Hallelujah!"

There was no use in his attempting to attend to business that day. Getting out his horse, he drove into the country, dined at a road house, returned to his home for dinner, then looked at the clock every five minutes until a proper hour had arrived for him to make a call on the lady whom fate had tossed to him.

When he heard a rustle of skirts on the staircase his heart beat a tattoo. Then a blushing girl entered the room with averted gaze and, coming to him, waited for him to put his arms about her. When she turned her face up to him for a kiss he exclaimed inwardly:

"Great heavens! Am I Theodore Strickland, or am I old Dr. Faustus transformed by Mephistopheles?"

"I always believed," she said, "that I should know my mate the moment I saw him and that he would know me as well."

RECALL OF JUDICIARY

McCall Says It Would Mean the Destruction of Government

Washington, May 24.—Claiming that the incorporation of the recall into our state constitutions, especially as touching the judiciary, would mean the absolute destruction of both civil and republican government, Representative McCall of Massachusetts spoke in the house against the statehood measure.

Mr. McCall pointed out the perils that would accompany the powers of recall in periods of crises and great popular excitement. He quoted at length from a speech of Rufus Choate delivered in 1853 before the constitutional convention in Massachusetts on the tenure of the judiciary. McCall characterized Choate "as the most brilliant advocate that has ever spoken the English tongue."

He quoted at length from a speech of Rufus Choate delivered in 1853 before the constitutional convention in Massachusetts on the tenure of the judiciary. McCall characterized Choate "as the most brilliant advocate that has ever spoken the English tongue."

MASONIC HOME DEDICATED

Ceremony at Charlton Attended by Over 2500

Thousands of Masons from all over the state, and including several from Quincy were present Thursday at the dedication of the new and magnificent Masonic home at Charlton. It is estimated that fully 2500 were present during the day, in spite of the inclement weather and all were charmed with the home and the beautiful surroundings.

Special trains from Boston at 8.30 took many while others made their way to the home in automobiles and trolley cars.

Before the dedication the Grand Lodge met in the apartment that will hereafter be devoted to a lodge room. The dedication took place in front of the home in a space that had been arranged in the form of a large lodge room, the arrival of the grand lodge being heralded by a band. Music during the ceremony was furnished by a double quartette.

THE CEREMONY.

The hymn, "All Hail to the Morning That Bids Us Rejoice," was sung.

Past Grand Master Blake, relief commissioner, addressing the grand master, said: "On behalf of the Masons of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, whose contributions have made possible the establishment of this home for aged and infirm members of our fraternity and their dependents, I have the honor of asking you to dedicate and set apart this building and the estate upon which it stands, for its noble and beneficent purpose."

Grand Master Flanders replied: "It is with unfeigned pleasure and with gratitude to the craft in whose name you speak, and to the supreme providence which has guided their endeavors, that I accede to your request and will proceed to the dedication of the building and estate to their destined uses in accordance with the ancient customs and usages of the fraternity."

Grand Chaplain R. Perry Bush offered prayer after he and the craft engaged in responsive readings. There was a number by the eight vocalists; the deputy grand master and wardens by direction, made an examination of the building; the anthem: "Hail Sacred Fame," was sung; Grand Chaplain Horton faced the west at the altar and invoked the blessing of the great architect; Junior Grand Warden Sherman presented the cup of corn, Senior Grand Warden Hauser the cup of wine and Deputy Grand Master Blodgett the cup of oil, the grand chaplain reading from the ritual, the craft singing after each section.

The grand master announced that he dedicated the estate in turn to Free masonry, relief and brotherly love and universal benevolence. The anthem "Praise to God the Heavens Above Thee" was sung, the grand master delivered the charge, there was an impressive oration by Past Grand Warden Johnson, the spectators sang "America" and the final scene, prior to the proclamation was the unfurling of the flag that has been presented by Past Deputy Grand Master Pollard, by the daughter of Grand Master Dana J. Flanders.

The auxiliaries have paid into the state treasury $7500 and contributed 2500 books, 25 pictures, all draperies in the home, the table linen, dining room china of special design, colonial and chippendale glassware, kitchen and pantry furnishings, 100 pairs blankets, 62 bed spreads, 24 dozen each of silver knives, forks and spoons 40 dozen sheets, 50 dozen pillow cases, a concert grand piano, another musical instrument, beside many other articles of utility. The Worcester women have given $2000.

Joseph Walker, proprietor of the Aberdeen Granite Works has moved from Town Hill to the McDonald house on Elm street.

CONCERT BY FOWLER FAMILY

Delightful Program by 15 Members of the Family

An appreciative audience greeted the Howard D. Fowler Family of Wollaston at Alpha hall Thursday evening. The concert given by one family including fifteen members is entirely out of the ordinary, and a delightfully varied program was rendered, which showed not only their natural ability but careful training.

The solos rendered by Mr. Carl Fowler, Miss Jessie Fowler, Mr. A. Linde Fowler, Miss Edna Fowler and Mrs. Coupal were effectively sung and their encores caught the fancy of the audience. The whistling chorus as an addition to an encore to the mandolin duet proved an attractive feature, Masters Fowler and Coupal duet as well as their encore showed their remarkably sweet voices.

The duet by Mrs. Coupal and Mr. Raymond Fowler was encored. They sang extremely well and gave much pleasure. The Septet by the young ladies brought out each voice most effectively and they sang splendidly. The piano trio brought forth an applause. It was particularly well played. The chorus especially the Bridal chorus aroused much enthusiasm their voices blending perfectly showing the musical worth of this gifted family.

The accompaniments were very ably played by Mrs. Brooks and Mr. Carl Fowler. The concert was given to start a fund that St. Chrysostom's branch of the Girl's Friendly society may erect a memorial to Miss Rachel M. Golding that shall express their appreciation of her beautiful character.

The following program was rendered:

Chorus—Christian, the Morn — Shelley

Piano solo—Spinn Spinn! — Rossi
Percy Coupal

Solo—Love, the Peddlar — German
Jessie I. Fowler

Mandolin duet—Gloriana — Weidt
Miss Verne and Raymond Fowler

Solo—Go to Sea — Trotere
A. Linde Fowler

Septet—Doris — Nevin
Mrs. Coupal, Mrs. Brooks, Misses Verne, Christine, Jessie, Edna, Zoe Fowler

Duet—Forget-me-not — Gavotte
Waldo Fowler, Percy Coupal

Piano Trio—Overture to Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algieri" — E. M. Lott
Mrs. Coupal, Mrs. Brooks, Carl Fowler

Chorus—Shoogy Shoo — Ambrose

Solo—A Red, Red Rose — Hastings
Edna Fowler

Piano duet—March Russe — L. Janne
Mrs. Brooks, Carl Fowler

Solo—The Spanish Gypsy — Watson
Mrs. Coupal

Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Coupal, Misses Verne, Christine, Jessie, Edna, Zoe Fowler

Duet—Night of Joy — Macy
Mrs. Coupal, Mr. Raymond Fowler

Mandolin duet—Romancia — Odell
Miss Verne, Mr. Raymond Fowler

Trio—Waves of the Sea — Anderton
Mrs. Coupal, Miss Jessie and Carl Fowler

Bridal Chorus — Cowan

FRANK ROLLOU.

Frank Rollou a former West Quincy boy and a son of William Rollou died at the City Hospital Boston, Wednesday aged 36 years. Mr. Rollou was a painter by trade and up to a few months ago lived in West Quincy. He then moved to Roxbury. His body will be brought to Quincy for burial Saturday afternoon. He leaves a widow and two children.

"Is that your wife on a bicycle?"

"It is."

"I thought you said you would never permit her to ride one."

"I don't permit it, but what difference do you suppose that makes to her?"—Chicago Post.

LAUNCHING SATURDAY.

The launch of the submarine Skipjack at the Fore River yards Saturday morning will be in the nature of a private one, as it will be witnessed only by a few of the officials of the company. The sponsor of this new addition to the navy will be Mrs. Donald R. Battles, wife of Naval Constructor Battles who is stationed at the yards. The launch is scheduled to take place at 10 o'clock.

The other submarine that is about ready for launching is the Sturgeon and she will be launched in two weeks. Although many of the employees of the Electric Boat Co., have gone to New London it does not mean that the building of submarines at the Fore River yards has come to an end for this class of vessels of war will continue to be built here.

Contracts for four more of this class of vessels will probably be awarded in a few weeks and it is expected that two of them will be built at the Fore River yard.

The big event at the Fore River yard will be the launching of the dreadnought being built for the Argentine navy. This is announced to take place Thursday July 27.

RELIGION MOVEMENT.

The initial meetings under the auspices of the committee of Nineteen of The Men in Religion Forward Movement will be held in Ford hall today. The afternoon meeting for men will be held at 3.30. All men interested in work among boys will be welcomed.

At 7.30 in the evening, a mass meeting for boys will be held. The speakers will be Shubert Carleton and R. Alfred White of New York and Lewis A. Crossett of Boston. Mr. Crossett is chairman of the committee of nineteen. A large delegation of boys and a number of men connected with the Young Men's Christian association of this city are planning to attend the meeting.

FRANK OGLE.

The funeral of Frank Ogle was held this morning from St. Mary's church the services being largely attended, the Copeland club of which he was a member attending in a body. Mass was celebrated by Rev. William J. Duffy the Gregorian mass being sung by the regular choir. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery the hearers being Edward Desmond, Alexis Elcock, Frank Eagan, George Berry, Thomas Sullivan and Frank Martell.

MUSIC EVENING.

A party of music lovers gathered at the home of R. H. Allen, 34 Avon Way, Thursday evening to meet Herbert Field King of New York city, a young man well known in musical circles of that city. Mr. King favored his audience with a number of vocal selections rendering "The Rosary" with especially pleasing effect. He also sang a number of songs in German and Italian which were greatly appreciated by those present.

INQUESTS.

An inquest will be held tomorrow morning on the death of Joseph Meir, the granite manufacturer who was murdered on Penn street last Sunday evening by Vincenzo Baggarozzo. The murder case comes up for trial next week Friday.

Inquests were held in the district court before Judge Pratt this morning on the death of Mary E. Gantz who was killed by the cars at Weymouth Landing a month ago and on the death of John Morrison the king of tramps who was killed by the cars at South Quincy the early part of this month.

MAKARIA VS MALDEN.

Saturday the Malden City Team comes to the Park to play the Makarias. The Malden team is very fast and has not lost a game this season.

Last year these teams played two games and split even and Saturday they are out to win the odd game.

The batteries will be Bates and Chapman for Makaria and Hanlon and Thomas for Malden.

REUNION OF CLASS OF 1907

A Former Principal Among the Many Present

A most successful reunion was held by the class of 1907 of the Massachusetts Fields school in the school hall on Wednesday evening. A large proportion of the class were present and a jolly good time was enjoyed by all.

Opening the evening was a grand march led by the former principal C. Ralph Taylor and Miss Ruth Taylor with Miss Florence Luhman at the piano.

Games of all kinds and refreshments followed while dancing closed an enjoyable evening. This is the third reunion which has been held and was a decided success.

Among the teachers past and present which attended were C. Ralph Taylor, Miss Ruth Taylor, Miss Smith, Miss Virginia Rowell, Miss Annie M. Bennett, Miss Florence Gammons.

Many of the members of the class are to be graduated from the Quincy High school the present year. The class has been most congenial and the annual reunions are looked forward to with pleasant anticipation.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The beef trust has got a set back in the courts, which means more lawyers bills to be charged up to the price of meat.

Wheat speculators have lost $2,000,000, and this sort of thing will keep on as long as the banks would rather lend money for gambling than farming.

After the dust has been laid with the new street oil, you dimly recollect how the good old fashioned dirt never had a smell like a machine shop.

Daniel Frohman says the stage needs more writers. And some they have now are refusing to fulfil the leadings of Providence to become street car conductors.

President Diaz says all he has left to give Mexico is his blood, and at that he probably kicks when the Board of Health tells him to get vaccinated.

Five Pennsylvania counties lose $1,000,000 in forest fires. The campers bonfire gets away with far more of the savings of the country people than the defaulting bank treasurer.

Dr. Pearsons has given away $6,000,000, all his fortune but $100,000, and if he signs the subscription papers that are presented to him, the rest will be gone in a week.

The Reno divorce lawyers want all papers in divorce cases made secret. The marriage service should be changed from "until death do us part," so as to read, "until the newspapers can be hushed up."

King George will wear three different robes at Coronation. If any of our friends think of buying one afterward and giving it to us for Christmas, we hope they will reconsider in favor of a good bath robe.

If you wanted to see Woodrow Wilson, you once found him in the college library getting dust on his trousers from old books. Next fall you will see him carrying a torch, and cheering the house that has the most lanterns.

Stimson's appointment as war secretary is criticised on the ground that he doesn't know anything about war. In view of this inexperience, we suggest that if he will put the army in that town in Indiana that is right in the center of the United States, the enemy would not be able to get it.

MINCE PIE

An event of no slight significance occured Thursday, when Dr. H. W. Wiley, government chemist, had a meeting with 30 representatives of mince meat manufacturers. They came together to define what standard mince meat should be.

The government's pure food men say that meat should be an ingredient of mince meat. Most of the manufacturers contend that meat is not a necessary ingredient.

Mince pie minus meat will lose its unique character. Persons whose digestion is not robust enough to cope with a meat made pie can remain content with the less virtile satisfactions of pumpkin, apple, and other exclusively fruit pies.

It is probably true that pumpkin pie is most attractive to persons of a romantic and imaginative disposition. Not merely do such relish this creamy compound, but its golden color conveys subtile suggestions of the luxuriant vegetable garden of the old homestead, bringing with it twining memories that pull at the heart strings. Furthermore, it suggests the glorious rebundancy of the squash and pumpkin exhibits at the county fairs, indicating the lavish hand with which nature rewards the toiler in the fields.

The mince pie had glories of its own. The tang of meat prevades the bowels of the pie with a tonic like a sunshiny October day. It sets the virile forces of life pumping energy into your blod, its substantial nourishment sustains the toiler.

No wonder that the stern old Puritans of New England used to prepare long rows of mince pies at the time of Thanksgiving. Had the pie makers regarded chiefly the festal aspects of the holiday, the squash or pumpkin would have been preferred. But with the strain of a cold New England winter in prospect, it was seen that physical energy for coming storms was to be built on no less enduring basis than meat pie.

"Aroint three, witch!!" one may then well say to these adulterators and decadents who would substitute fruit juices and floury concoctions, which never can support human life in days of exhausting toil.

PROBLEM OF AUTOMOBILE SPEED

No one is more interested in the problem of controlling motor cars than the careful motorist, who realizes that more restrictive laws will be passed unless means are found to control reckless drivers.

A certain element of motorists consider that they are entitled to the right of way. They expect the same judgment and self possesion from a six years old child as can be looked for from a mature man.

The time has gone by for wholesale condemnation. The automobile is going to bring beneficial social changes, making rural residence as accessible to the world of public conveniences as the city street used to be.

One interesting theory is to require cars to made with an automatic alarm, which should go off when the speed exceeds the legal limit.

The essential trouble is that a speed speed of 10 miles an hour in a crowded street is far more of a menace than 50 miles an hour on a straight and quiet country road. There can be no rigid limit.

Perhaps the most effective means would be the withdrawal of licenses to operate an automobile from anyone who overspeeds.

How to Shoot a Revolver.

Forgetting all about what you thought was right or what you've seen somebody do or what somebody told you about pistol shooting, poise yourself with all your muscles at ease. right side toward some fixed point on the wall before you, right foot about twice its length from the left and pointing a little to the left of a line drawn from you to the mark on the wall, left hand on the hip, right arm fully extended. This does not mean with the crowbar rigidity of the drowning man grasping the straw nor yet that senseless crook often affected by the inexperienced revolver shot. Merely extend the arm at full length, as though pointing out some interesting object to a friend. See that no muscles are strained and that you are at ease. Take a deep breath and let it go. A couple of them help to steady you down. Now take a half breath and hold it. This is your shooting position and the shooting position of practically every expert revolver shot in the country. The "south paws" are, of course, reversed so far as the arm that is extended is concerned.—Outing.

How to Make Cleaning Compound.

Mix one ounce of borax and one ounce gum camphor with one quart boiling water. When cool add one pint of alcohol. Bottle and cork tightly. When wanted for use shake well and sponge the garments to be cleaned. This is an excellent mixture for cleaning soiled black cashmere and woolen dresses, coat collars and black felt hats.

Said to Have Made Some of Their Followers Actually Terror Stricken, Resulting In Mrs. Bull and Miss Farmer Losing Their Minds—Heart-Breaking Vigils In Efforts to Banish Baneful Influences

Alfred, Me., May 26.—Revelations of an amazing character are being made in the contest of the will of the late Mrs. Ole Bull relative to the Hindu love cult that had its home in Brattle street, Cambridge, Mass., on the street where President Emeritus Eliot once lived and in the shadow of Harvard university.

As the practices of the wierd, Oriental, incense-burning philosophy of Raja Yogi were described with much graphic detail by Nicola Roberto, formerly a Somerville barber, but who later became one of the great awe-inspiring psychic forces of the occult coterie, it seemed incredible that women of the national character of Mrs. May Wright Sewall, Miss Sarah J. Farmer, Mrs. Ole Bull and many others were its most ardent devotees.

The followers of Swami Vivekananda had mental and physical experiences that were shocking in their results. Stories of mental suffering in heart-breaking vigils that lasted all night long, in their efforts to banish baneful influences, were told in some of the letters that have been read at the trial.

Some of the women became actually terror stricken at the ghastly, impalpable figure of evil that emanated from the minds of some of their sisters in the faith. They became nervous wrecks, their minds abnormal.

Roberto, the barber-psychic, declared on the witness stand that the curious and exacting rites of the Hindu priests drove Mrs. Bull insane. Another woman, made ill by the practices, was finally sent to an asylum for the insane.

Roberto testified yesterday that when Miss Farmer lost her mind as a result of the Raja Yogi studies that they used to tie her down and leave her while they tried to treat the pitiful woman with psychic methods at the Eliot, Me., home of Mrs. Bull.

A number of letters written by various members of the cult were introduced, among them two attributed to Mrs. Bull.

The testimony bears directly upon the contention of Attorney Whipple that Mrs. Bull had been reduced to such a mental state by her Hindu practices that she was incompetent when she made her will and that the document was dictated by Miss Noble, who is now in Calcutta, having gone thither since the will contest started.

The number of prominent society women, all rich and aged and well known in Boston, who were mixed up in the mystic Yogi meetings in Mrs. Ole Bull's studio house in Cambridge, is amazing the spectators at the remarkable trial. Here are some of the characters:

Mrs. Ole Bull, widow of the famous Norwegian violin virtuoso. Prominent in Cambridge society. Died January, 1911, at 168 Brattle street, Cambridge.

Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughn, her daughter, who is contesting her will. Amount involved about $428,000.

Dr. Jagardis Chunder Bose, president of the Presidency college, Calcutta. Mrs. Bull left him $20,000. Mrs. Vaughn says he influenced her mother.

Miss Sarah J. Farmer of Dover, N. H. Founded Green Acre Conference at Eliot, Me., teaching of advanced thought. Entertained most noted religious scholars at the conference. Said to have lost reason through over indulgence in mystic exercises.

Edwina Vaughn, daughter of Mrs. Vaughn, whose spirit, it was said, had grown to womanhood in another world and who had become a great musician.

Nicolo Roberto, an Italian. Came to America in 1901. Was a barber in Somerville and ran billiard hall in Providence. Pupil of Mrs. Bull and later leader of the mystic cult.

Mary Wright Sewall, honorary president International Council of Women. Said to have power to look at a picture and make its eyes move.

Step Toward Federation of British Empire Is Delayed

London, May 26.—The imperial conference turned down the proposal of Sir Joseph Ward, premier of New Zealand, favoring the constitution of an imperial council of state, with representatives of all the self-governing British dominions to act in an advisory capacity to the imperial government.

Sir Joseph's proposal met with no support and was withdrawn after a debate lasting two days. The first step in the direction of the federation of the British empire was thus postponed.

MASS. STATE FEDERATION.

A large delegation of club women from all over the State arrived in New Bedford on Wednesday to attend the annual convention of the Massachusetts State Federation. The New Bedford Woman's club the hostess of the occasion, has done everything in its power to make its guests welcome. At five o'clock on Wednesday afternoon an organ recital was tendered them at the Rogers Memorial church at Fairhaven, being given by Mr. Alton B. Paull organist of the church. At eight in the evening the Old Dartmouth Historical society entertained the visiting delegates in its building, the rooms of which are most interesting with their historic treasures.

The convention proper opened in First Baptist church at eleven Thursday morning. After the address of welcome and the response from the Federation the session was given up to the annual reports of the officers and chairmen of special committees: badge, meetings, press and settlement work. At the afternoon session there were greetings from outside guests and the reports of departments of work:—conservation, civics, legislative and civil service reform, followed by an address by Mrs. Eva Perry Moore, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, who was present as guest of honor.

In the evening the New Bedford Woman's club share with its guests its annual musicale, the artists being Karle Barleben, violinist, and member of the Boston Symphony, J. Albert Baumgartner, pianist, and the Weber Male quartette. At the close the guests adjourned to Odd Fellows h all for a reception. Miss Mary E. Austin president of the club and Mrs. H. P. Wilson, president elect were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Eva Perry Moore, president of the General Federation and Miss Georgie A. Bacon, president of the State Federation.

This morning the session opened at 9.30 with the business and election of officers. Five more of the departments: industrial and social conditions, education, public health, home economics and food sanitation submitted their reports.

Administration of Tuberculosis Hospitals Criticised by Foss

Boston, May 26.—Governor Foss in a special message to the legislature sharply criticised the administration of the tuberculosis hospitals at Rutland, Westfield, Lakeville and Reading, and turned down the requests for special appropriations to make improvements in these institutions.

Basing his action upon an investigation conducted by experts, the governor informs the legislature that great discrepancies exist in the cost per capita in caring for patients in the different institutions, and that the number of employes per patient shows a striking variance. He believes the methods of administration need looking into.

Man Whose Daughter Was Killed Wins Suit Against Archbold

New Bedford, Mass., May 26.—The case in which John F. Archbold of New York was sued by William De Mello of Mattapoisett for damages for the death of his daughter, Guilherme, ended in the superior court when the jury brought in a verdict of $6100 for the plaintiff. It alowed $5000 on account of the child's death and $1100 for conscious suffering.

The jury reached the verdict after being out six and a quarter hours. The child was run down by an automobile owned and driven by Archbold.

COLD STORAGE EGGS REALLY THE BEST

Dr. Pennington Enlightens a Senate Committee

Washington, May 26.—The life, habits and characteristics of the great American hen, from nest or incubator to cold storage, were described to the senate committee on manufactures by Dr. Mary E. Pennington, chief of the food research bureau of the department of agriculture. The committee is investigating cold storage effect on food.

Dr. Pennington argued that chicken properly prepared when placed in cold storage were wholesome and healthful after a lapse of nine months or a year—"better," she said, "than those fresh killed and kept for twenty-four hours without care or refrigeration."

Eggs laid in winter and properly refrigerated six or nine months, Dr. Pennington declared, surpassed eggs fresh laid in summer and kept twenty-four hours before consumption. A big delegation represented the cold storage warehouse men of the country.

BATH HOUSE FOR WOMEN

Sketch of the Proposed new Building

Plans have been prepared by the Park Commissioners for the new bath house for women for the building of which the City Council appropriated $2,500.

The plans propose two wings on the southerly side of the present bath house the main wing 53 feet long and 15 feet 10 inches wide will extend along the beach while the second wing which is 31 feet 6 inches long and 15 feet 10 inches wide will extend toward the rear. Where these wings join the present building there will be a new office with boxes and seats.

The main wing contains 29 booths or lockers each 3 feet 5 inches by 5 feet 6 inches, and a good sized shower bath room, the top of the booths being covered with galvanized wire. In the smaller wing there are to be 18 booths of the same size as in the main wing.

In both wings the booths are arranged along the two sides of the building with a corridor 3 feet wide runinng the whole length of the building.

Commissioner Bainbridge said this morning that bids for building the wings would be advertised Saturday and it was proposed to have them ready for use early in June.

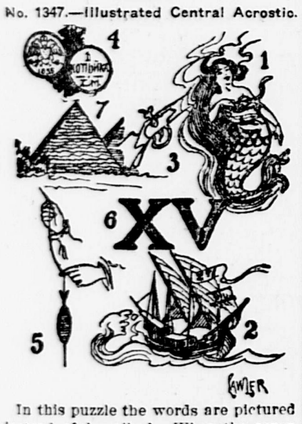
No. 1346.—Primal Acrostic.

This acrostic contains seven words of four letters each. If the words are rightly guessed and written one below another their initial letters will spell that which is worn by an actor. The crosswords are: 1. The lusty sound one hears in the barnyard of early mornings. 2. Where bread and cake are baked. 3. Part of a rose. 4. A melody. 5. Golden vases for vines and flowers. 6. Something of which bread is made. 7. Sin.

No. 1347.—Illustrated Central Acrostic.



In this puzzle the words are pictured instead of described. When the seven objects are rightly named and the words written one below another in the order numbered, the central letters will spell the name of a famous battle fought about fifty years ago.—St. Nicholas.

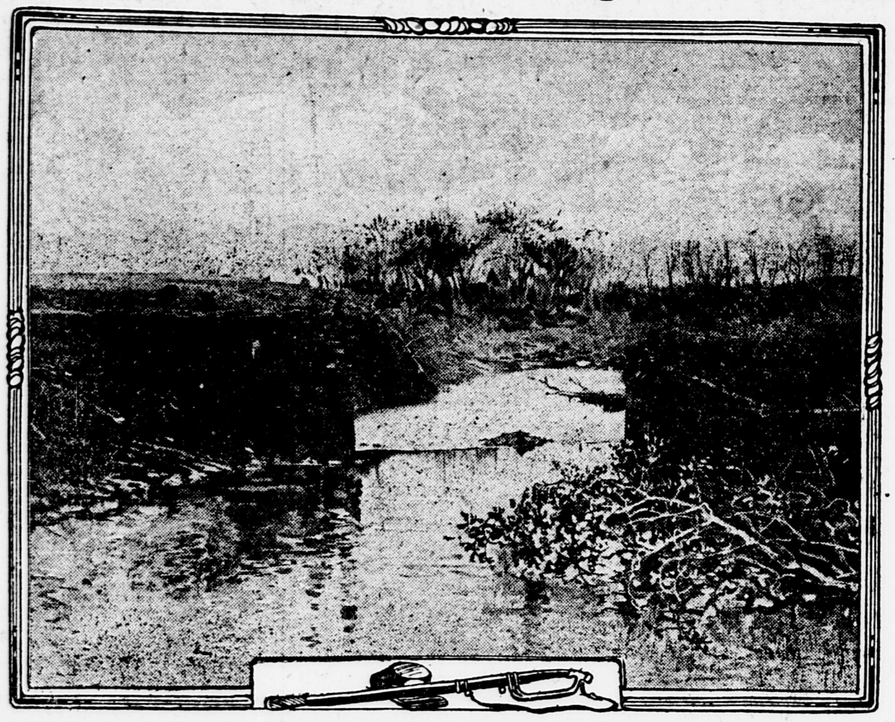
Fifty Years Ago---Stone Bridge at Bull Run



THIS bridge figured very importantly in both battles of Bull Run. At the first battle, Sunday, July 21, 1861, the Federal forces under General Irvin McDowell crossed this bridge to attack the enemy and then recrossed it in full retreat and rout after a disastrous defeat. The Federal army under General John Pope, defeated by the Confederates on practically the same ground Aug. 30, 1862, also retreated across the stone bridge, but in good order, a detachment from the rear guard destroying the famous bridge.

IMMIGRANTS HOME CONCERT

Pleasing Program by Choir and Male Chorus

A well attended and very enjoyable concert was held in the Swedish Congregational church Thursday evening. The choir of the Swedish Congregational church of Boston furnished the greater part of the program and were assisted by the male chorus of the local church and Ernest E. Erickson of Everett, a pupil at the New England Conservatory of Music. The choir from Boston rendered six selections in addition to selections by soloists and a quartette. Mr. Erickson played two piano selections very ably and gained the heartiest approval of the audience. The male chorus of the Garfield street church sang one selection. The last piece given by the choir was perhaps the best thing on the program. "Great is our God" was the anthem and it was rendered in an excellent manner. Rev. G. H. Palmgren, pastor of the local church opened the program with an address of welcome after which Rev. Oscar Lindegren, superintendent of the Scandanavian Sailors and Immigrants Home conducted the remainder of the program with the assistance of the choirs and Rev. D. Tornwall who read the scripture. The concert was given for the benefit of the Home above mentioned which is to celebrate its tenth anniversary in July. A secial effort is being made to cancel the debt if possible before the anniversary meeting. This home is the special charge of the Swedish Congregational churches of New England. At the conclusion of the concert ice cream and cake was served to the singers by the entertaining church. The concert was largely attended and was most successful from every standpoint.

How to Dye White Slippers.

For white kid slippers which cannot be cleaned successfully after having been previously cleaned buy a ten cent tube of ivory black art paint. To one-half cupful of gasoline add enough paint to make fluid consistency of cream. Apply evenly with small brush, allow to dry thoroughly and then polish with any good shoe paste. This does not harden leather and will not wash or rub off.

How to Wash Tires.

Under no circumstances should tires be washed with water in which kerosene has been accidentally or purposely mixed. It kills the rubber in a short time. When washing tires it is best to simply dampen a sponge with clean water, care being taken that the sponge is not soaked and dripping. Then wipe the tires dry with a cloth or handful of waste.

How to Clean Light Paint.

For cleaning light paint, rub well with a damp cloth dipped into fine oatmeal. Wipe with a damp cloth and lastly with a dry duster. This is especially useful treatment for finger marks on a door.

ANNUAL SPRING RECEPTION

Colonial Dames Receive at Dorothy Q. House

The annual spring meeting of the Colonial Dames was held in the Dorothy Q house Thursday afternoon with an attendance of about a hundred. The rooms were very prettily decorated and with the presence of the large number of handsomely gowned women to give life to the scene the sight was indeed an attractive one. Miss Elizabeth W. Perkins of Boston read a very cleverly written and interesting paper on "Colonial Days" after which a reception was held and afternoon tea was served by Dennett, a caterer of Boston. Boston society was well represented in the attendance and a number of people came over from New York to attend this annual meeting. Among those present were: Mrs. Agnes Blake Poor of Brookline, Mrs. Willliam L. Parker, Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge, Mrs. Maebon Gore Richardson, C. C. Lee and Miss Lee of New York, Miss Mabel S. Bradley and Miss Grace Richards of Hingham, Mrs. Cunningham of Milton, Mrs. Mabel Stedman of Brookline, Mrs. William S. Councilman, Franklin H. Beebe, Joseph Howard Chandler of Boston, Horatio A. Lamb and Miss Rose Lamb of Boston, Mrs. N. W. Appleton of Boston, Mrs. Charles A. Cummings, Mrs. Parkman of Boston and many others well known in exclusive social circles. Owing to recent deaths in the families, the Adamses and the Thayers of Worcester were not present.

HOW TO GROW PERENNIALS.

General Practice Is to Divide Them Every Two or Three Years.

Perennials as a rule are easy to cultivate. Prepare the ground to a depth of two feet and see that good drainage is provided. The roots rot quickly in the wet spring months unless the ground is well drained. Deep cultivation of the soil is advisable, as the plants have deep roots. Stable manure, well rotted, should be dug into the soil, and potash and phosphoric acid used in addition. Use only healthy plants and plant them at once if possible after their arrival from the nursery. The roots should be equally distributed in planting and the soil firmed well.

Most cultivated perennials need no winter protection, but are benefited by a light covering. Any suitable material may be used which will keep out the frost and will not be too close or moist. Straw is an excellent material when mice are not troublesome; when they are, a light covering made of leaves, manure rakings and weeds will be found satisfactory.

It is the general practice to divide perennials every two or three years, as they are mostly strong growing plants and deplete the soil food. Another reason for dividing is that the crowns flower only two or three years and then die, and as new crowns are formed continually, the growth will become scattered and loose.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A Municipal Dance at Which the City Not only Pays the Piper bu Buys the Lemonade—Savings Bank Insurance Shows Progress — Cambridge Coleopterists Are off Their Job—Harvard Elms Succumb to Beetles and other Blights—Bostonians Get Nickels Ready for Pay-Enter Cars.

The novel Massachusetts scheme for insuring wage earners at cost through the savings banks is steadily advancing with the kind of progress which is safe and sane. The present standing of the savings bank life insurance approaches the two million dollar mark, which is a good record for an insurance business carried on by voluntary solicitation. The two banks which have availed themselves of the opportunity to become direct agencies for the savings insurance business—those in Brockton and Whitman—have written respectively 2,124 and 2,197 policies, aggregating a total insurance of $1,741,578. It must be extremely gratifying to Louis D. Brandeis, the man who recently has had so many railroad presidents and other presidents by the ears, to count this humanitarian movement among his many public spirited projects.

"Tech" is getting its second wind. At least considerable wind has been raised for it in a very few days. What with the state's guarantee of $1,000,000 to assist in the running expenses of the next ten years, the gift of $500,000 by T. C. Dupont and the $500,000 left by the will of the late Mrs. Rogers, the famous institute should be in a fair way to regain its equilibrium and continue toward the goal of its ambitions. Bostonians await with interest the decision of the trustees as to where the new buildings of the Institute shall be located.

The city, it has been decided, shall pay the piper. Boston's first municipal ball, patterned after the now famous Milwaukee innovation, is scheduled to take place on June 10 in connection with the Dorchester Day celebration. Residents of Dorchester and their friends will have free admittance to the Roger Wolcott school's large hall where rich and poor will rub elbows, ice cream plates and possibly even flagon's of lemonade. It will all be on the city. The Hub's genial mayor has, of course, been asked to lead the grand march, as he will do in all probability. It is thought that he may even be induced to sing "Sweet Adeline" or "My Hero" to gratify an admiring throng. With such possibilities in view the affair may easily develop into a jam.

The coleopterists are off their job. Many an "old grad" of Harvard, returning for Commencement, will grieve over the downfall of the magnificent "college elms" in the University yard, due to the combined efforts of the elm tree beetle, the leopard moth and the elm bark borer. The coleopterists should be ashamed, for the chief beauty of the place, serving in part to hide the somewhat heterogeneous collection of college buildings, lies in the elms which for generations have kept Old Sol from spoiling pleasant hours spent beneath their branches. Such a loss as this at the venerable University should seemingly put new spirit into the fight waging against the pests which yearly destroy one of our most valuable assets.

It behooves the Boston girl to have her nickel ready. Some of the conductorless cars are coming. Meantime pending the arrival of the Boston Elevated Company's first consignment of pay-enter vehicles, it is rather astonishing to any one who is even superficially familiar with the street railway periodicals to note how many people appear to regard the type as something decidedly new, experimental and, possibly a local fad. Boston, as a matter of fact, while the leader in many rapid transit improvements, has notoriously adopted a waiting attitude as regards this type of transportation vehicle. The Elevated's attitude, apparently, has been one of not adopting the system even on a limited scale until its success elsewhere was absolutely assured. The rapid increase in the number of cars of this type has been one of the extraordinary developments of the past few years in the street railroading industry. The scheme was first put into operation in 1905 in Montreal, the credit of the invention belonging to W. G. Ross, formerly managing director of the Montreal Street Railway Company, and to Duncan McDonald, general manager of the same organization. The plan worked so well when tried experimentally in the Canadian city that the company very soon evolved a plan for applying it to their entire system. One of the pay enter cars was exhibited at a convention of street railway men in Columbus in 1906, and made a lot of talk, for nothing just like it had been seen before. Chicago was the first large city south of the Dominion to give the invention a trial, putting several of them into service in November, 1907. Buffalo followed a few weeks later with an order for 50 cars. In March, 1908, the Metropolitan street railway company of New York city installed 155 pay-enters and almost simultaneously the Public Service Company of New Jersey 150 of them. It is authoritatively stated that now there are upwards of 7,000 of these cars in daily operation among 72 electric railway companies of the United States and Canada and it is claimed that these have proved their acceptability under all sorts of working conditions. So that whether the pay-enter cars will or will not prove as satisfactory on certain of the Boston suburban routes as they have been found by experts to be in other cities the Boston Elevated Company at least is not undertaking a hitherto untested scheme.

How to Mix Whitewash.

At this season, when so much white washing is done, the following rule for preparing the wash, which is used by a large factory out west, may be found useful. Have ready one barrel of unslaked lime and add, while slaking it, three pounds of glue and three pounds of suet, tallow, lard or bacon cut in small pieces. The heat of the slacking will dissolve the fat, which acts like an oil. Add also a pound of alum and six pounds of salt. Half a pound of borax can be added later. Bluing may be added when the whitewash is used, allowing about one tablespoonful to a pailful. The whitewash should be prepared three or four weeks before using, as it improves with age, unlike most mixtures of the kind. Stir it every day up to the time of using. It has been used on outbuildings and wears well.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

That Throat Trouble.

If the throat is rough and the voice hoarse, relief can be had by packing it in wet cloths overnight. Wring out a thick washcloth from cold water, put it around the neck, covered by a piece of flannel and a thick towel or oiled silk. There is no danger in this remedy if one is sufficiently protected and the clothing is not allowed to get damp. This will also stop a hacking cough at night. A sore throat can also be warded off by immediate gargling with salt water or some good antiseptic wash. Use a flat teaspoonful of salt to a half pint of water. When there is tightness in the bronchial tubes or chest call a doctor, but if he is not to be had, rub well with turpentine and lard mixed, take a warm drink to induce perspiration and keep in a room of even temperature.

DECORATION DAY

By EUGENE F. WARE
(Ironquill)

[The author of this unique poem is a Kansas lawyer, formerly commissioner of pensions, and served through the civil war, being mustered out as captain of an Iowa cavalry troop. Mr. Ware has written many patriotic poems.]

IT is needless I should tell you
Of the history of Sumter,
How the chorus of the cannon
shook its walls,
How the scattered navies gathered,
How the iron ranked battalions
Rose responsive to the country's urgent calls.

It is needless that I tell you,
For the time is still too recent,
How was heard the first vindictive cannon's peal,
How two brothers stopped debating
On a sad, unsettled question
And referred it to the arbitrating steel.

It is needless that I tell you
Of the somber days that followed—
Stormy days that in such slow succession ran—
Of Antietam, Chickamauga,
Gettysburg and Murfreesboro
Or the rocky, cannon shaken Rapidan.

It was not a war of conquest.
It was fought to save the Union;
It was waged for an idea of the right,
And the graves so widely scattered
Show how fruitful an idea
In peace or war may be in moral might.

Brief indeed the war had lasted
Had it raged in hope of plunder,
Briefer still had glory been its only aim,
But its long and sad duration
And the graves it has bequeathed us
Other motives, other principles, proclaim.

Need I mention this idea,
The invincible idea,
That seemed to hold and save the nation's life;
That resistless and unblenching,
Undisheartened by disaster,
Seemed the soul and inspiration of the strife?

This idea was of freedom—
Was that men should all stand equal,
That the world was interested in the fight;
That the present and the future
Were electors who had chosen
Us to argue and decide the case aright.

And the theories of freedom
Those now silent bugles uttered
Will reverberate with ever glowing tones.
They can never be forgotten,
But will work among the nations
Till they sweep the world of shackles and of thrones.

It is meet that we do honor
To the comrades who have fallen,
Meet that we the sadly woven garlands twine.
Where they buried lie is sacred,
Whether 'neath the northern marble
Or beneath the southern cypress tree or pine.

Nations are the same as children—
Always living in the future,
Living in their aspirations and their hopes,
Picturing some future greatness,
Reaching forth for future prizes,
With a wish for higher aims and grander scopes.

It is better for the people
That they reach for an ideal,
That they give their future nations better lives,
Though the standard be unreal,
Though the hope meets no fulfillment,
Though the fact in empty dreams alone survives.

If the people rest contented
With the good they have accomplished,
Then they retrograde and slowly sink away.
Give a nation an ideal,
Some grand, noble, central project,
It, like adamant, refuses to decay.

'Tis the duty of the poet,
'Tis the duty of the statesman,
To inspire a nation's life with nobler aims,
And dishonor will o'ershadow
Him who dares not or who falsely
His immortal fruited mission misproclaims.

He Was Part American.

Not long ago a man in a faded blue uniform, wearing a wooden leg, approached the superintendent of mails for New York city and applied for employment. The superintendent looked him over and remarked inquiringly:

"You're an Irishman, I believe?"

"No, sor," replied the applicant, hesitating a bit; "it's an Irish American I am."

"Been over here quite a spell, then?"

"Indade, I have, sor, for I got me wooden leg at Chancellorsville, so I'm part American sure enough," said the veteran.

"And a good enough American," admitted the superintendent of mails.

FOUR HUNDRED LIVES LOST DAILY FOR FOUR YEARS.

In his introduction to "Campfire and Battlefield" Rossiter Johnson wrote this opening paragraph, which tells vividly the terrible tale of slaughter and disease in the civil war:

If any reader, taking up his morning newspaper, should learn that on the preceding day somewhere in our country a great calamity had destroyed 400 lives the news would sadden him all day. And if the next day he should read a repetition of the story, with some change of locality, and the next, and the next, he would surely wish to be told the cause of all that destruction of life, who was responsible for it and to what result it was tending. In the great civil war of 1861-5 the average destruction of life was 400 a day for the four years that the contest lasted. More than 2,000,000 men were called to the field. The theater of conflict covered nearly 1,000,000 square miles, and there were 2,400 engagements of sufficient importance to have a place in history.

MISCHIEVOUS MODIFICATION

Made by Supreme Court in the Standard Oil Decision

HARLAN FILES HIS OPINION

Ruling That Combination May Make "Normal and Lawful Agreement" Among Themselves Invades Right of Congress—Difficult to Prove "Unreasonable" or "Undue" Restraint of Trade Involved in Each Case

Washington, May 26.—Associate Justice Harlan filed in the supreme court his formal dissenting opinion in the Standard Oil case. Not satisfied with his oral dissent from the court's decision as handed down by Chief Justice White, Harlan entirely rewrote the stenographic report of his remarks from the bench. The oral dissent formed merely a framework for the final document, containing about 8000 words.

Justice Harlan brands as "mischievous" the modification made by the court in the decree of the lower court permitting subsidiary corporations of the Standard Oil, after dissolution of the combination, to make "normal and lawful agreement" among themselves. Chief Justice White had characterized this modification as a "minor matter."

Characterizing the majority opinion as "judicial legislation," because qualifying words had been written into the Sherman anti-trust law by the decision. Harlan asserts that, in his opinion, the decree allows the subsidiary companies of the Standard to join forces for the restraint of trade so long as it is not "unreasonable" or "undue."

Justice Harlan quotes from the words of the chief justice to support some of his contentions as to the limitation of corporation activity in the future. He also reviews dispassionately the condition of popular sentiment which led to the passage of the anti-trust law.

At the conclusion of his opinion Harlan acknowledged that his brethren had deemed it best to pursue a different course from that which he advocated. "They have now said," explained the justice, "to those who condemn our former decisions and who object to all legislative prohibitions of contracts, combinations and trusts in restraint of interstate commerce, 'You may now restrain such commerce, provided you are reasonable about it; only take care that the restraint is not undue.'"

"The disposition of the case under consideration, according to the views of the defendants, will, it is claimed, quiet and give rest to 'the business of the country.' On the contrary, I have a strong conviction that it will throw the business of the country into confusion and invite widely extended and harrassing litigation, the injurious effects of which will be felt for many years to come.

"When congress prohibited 'every contract, combination or monopoly in restraint of commerce, it prescribed a simple, definite rule that all could understand and which could be easily applied by every one wishing to obey the law, and not to conduct their business in violation of the law. But now, it is to be feared, we are to have, in cases without number, the constantly recurring inquiry—difficult to solve by proof—whether the particular contract, combination of trust involved in each case is or is not an 'unreasonable' or 'undue' restraint of trade."

The justice incorporated in his prepared opinion, in effect what he said orally, in dissenting in regard to the dangers of judicial legislation. "The supreme law of the land," he added, "which is binding alike upon all—upon presidents, congresses, the courts and the people—give to congress and to congress alone, authority to regulate interstate commerce, and when congress forbids any restraint of such commerce, in any form, all must obey its mandate. To overreach the action of congress merely by judicial construction, that is by indirection, is a blow at the integrity of our governmental system, and in the end will prove most dangerous to all."

DECLINES TO SERVE

Brandeis Will Not Conduct the Post-office Investigation

Washington, May 26.—Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston lawyer invited to conduct the inquiry by a house committee into the affairs of the postoffice department, has declined to serve.

Mr. Brandeis declared that an investigation such as is proposed would be of no avail. It should be undertaken, he said, by a joint committee appointed by both houses of congress, endowed with authority to recommend changes in the laws and methods of the postal laws.

Amateur Airman Killed

London, May 26.—An aviation pupil named Benson was killed at Bendon. An aeroplane which he was piloting capsized while he was attempting to make a turn.

FOSS' VETO SUSTAINED

One Vote Would Have Changed Result on Teachers' Salary Bill

Boston, May 26.—The house sustained Governor Foss' veto of the elementary school teachers' bill. The question was: "Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of his excellency the governor?" The roll-call resulted: Yes, 139; no, 71; pairs, 2. The Republicans saved the governor, aided by twenty up-state Democrats.

If one man who voted no had voted yes, the veto would have been overriden. It takes a two-thirds vote of those present and voting to override a veto. Excluding pairs, the total vote was 210, two-thirds of which is 140. The friends of the measure accordingly were just one short of the required 140.

Thinness Easily Overcome.

(From "Health and Beauty".)

Further evidence is being presented almost daily that a recent compound of new chemical elements combined in a tablet with hypophosphites is in reality proving a blessing to the abnormally thin men and women, for it can be demonstrated beyond doubt that a regular course of three or four months' treatment brings an increase in weight of from 10 to 30 pounds with a decided improvement of health and color too. For self administration the most popular form is to be found in three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, obtainable in sealed packages from the best apothecary shops, with full directions.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

SHUBERT THEATRE.

It only happens once in a very long time that a new musical production meets with such instant popular favor as has "The Kiss Waltz," the new Viennese operetta, which continues merrily on its way at the Shubert Theatre after its brilliant opening of last Saturday night. The second week will begin Monday May 29. New musical shows often grow into what are called successes after a week or so, but many more never achieve that coveted goal of the theatrical manager, but "The Kiss Waltz," with its super-staging in the matter of rich costuming, light effects, specialty numbers, and scenic investiture, seems to have struck the centre of the target at the very first pop of the gun. "The Kiss Waltz" itself has already achieved popularity and is heard hummed everywhere "Ta Ta Little Girl" the Fan song and the Hoop number are also great favorite song features. There are matinees on Wednesdays as well as Saturdays. Never have the Boston critics been so unanimously enthusiastic about a new musical production. It has a musical charm all its own and fine advantge is taken of the many comedy situations. And such girls. Their ravishing beauty fairly takes one's breath away.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

As a truly American drama, "A Gentleman from Mississippi" has few equals, and it will offer exceptional entertainment at the Castle Square next week. The title character is the junior senator from Mississippi, and he goes to Washington with little knowledge of the world, and a firm belief that his state is the centre of the universe. The dialogue is brilliant with wit, and its situations and incidents are cleverly amusing. The atmosphere of the South and of Washington is preserved throughout the entire play, and it is filled with a series of very realistic scenes. The authors of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" are Harrison Rhodes and Thomas A. Wise, the latter the well-known comedian who triumphed so emphatically in the title role. This play had a long run in Boston two seasons ago, but it has not been seen here since, its production at the Castle Square being its first time by a stock company and at popular prices. Mr. Craig could not have done better than by selecting George Hassell and Donald Meek for the leading roles. Mr. Hassell will appear as Senator Sheldon, the title character, to whom his personal size and his rotund vigor will give added strength, and the part of a lively, wide-awake newspaper correspondent will be played by Mr. Meek. "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be given at the Castle Square during only one week.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The first two weeks of the summer season of the Lindsay Morison Stock Company at the Majestic Theatre have been nothing short of phenomenal. During the first week with David Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West," the management was forced to put the orchestra under the stage every night after Tuesday in order to provide extra seats to meet the demand which could not be supplied otherwise, and still there were hundreds who could not secure seats. It pointed a good lesson, and that was that since the Lindsay Morison Stock Company is proving so popular and Manager Lindsay Morison is keeping his promise to put on plays never before presented here by stock companies, it is well to have seats reserved for you for the season. The past week "The Man of the Hour" has been presented every afternoon and evening and it has been received with the some degree of enthusiasm. Nevt week, beginning Monday afternoon, May 29, the play will be William C. DeMille's famous pay, "The Warrens of Virginia," secured by special arrangement with Mr. David Belasco. Manager Morison points with just pride to the fact that this play has never before been presented by a stock company in Boston. This will also be its first presentation in Boston at popular prices. It is promised that the production will equal the original in every respect.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

One of the most pretentious vaudeville bills ever offered at this time of the year is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, a feature of which will be Little Billy, the famous boy comedian, who proved such a tremendous feature in Boston a year ago last Christmas, when he appeared introducing the presents to the children. Billy is now offering an entirely new repertoire of songs and dances, and has become a greater favorite than ever. A comedy event of unusual importance will be the Ryan & Richfield Company, who have always been one of the greatest laughing combinations ever at B. F. Keith's in a new comedy by Will M. Cressy, entitled "Mag Haggerty, Osteopath." Another trio of favorites will be Louise Myers, Mildred Warren and Bert Lyon, in a comedy sketch called "A Little of Everything," in which Miss Myers plays her famous character of the maid. Frankie Carpenter and Jere Grady, who are great New England favorites, will also appear in a comedy called "The Butterfly," and other features will be Carle Stowe, the monologuist; the Exposition four; Pauline Walsh; Hill, Cherry & Hill, the comedy cyclists; and the Aerial Smiths.

MANY GOING TO CIRCUS.

Quincy will be well represented in Boston next week when Ringling Brothers' Circus pitches its twelve acres of tents there Monday. Two exhibitions and a brand new parade will be presented. It has a company of 400 of the greatest performers ever assembled and the acts they are presenting are of the most sensational kind. The menagerie contains over 1,000 strange zoological specimens. There are giraffes, camels gnus, yaks, nylghaus, ibexes, rhinoceri, vlak vaarks, tapirs, hippipitami, sacred cattle, zebus, water boks, porcupines, all varities of the deer, bear, cat and monkey tribes and the smallest elephant ever placed on exhibitions. There are forty elephants. Among these are twelve babies which are wonderful performers. They walk on rolling globes, stand on their heads, play tenpins, skip the rope, walk ropes and play on musical instruments.

There are no less than twelve thrillers. In fact the show is a long succession of thrills. And there is more comedy in the show than the average man encounters in a lifetime. Forty clowns, gathered from twelve countries, furnish the laughter and they are sure-fire comedians.

One big act among the riders is the Crocker family of English Gypsies. Their act is different from the equestrian specialities with which Americans are familiar. Nothing like it has ever been seen before in this country. There are also some wonderful acrobates, equilibrists, jugglers aerialists and gymnasts.

FAVOR LA FOLLETTE PLAN

Democratic Senators Consider Lorimer Case In Caucus

Washington, May 26.—A new turn was given to the Lorimer case when a number of Democratic senators declared in a party caucus called by Senator Martin that they would support the La Follette resolution, which would place the conduct of the proposed new inquiry in the hands of a special committee of five new senators rather than leave it with the regular senate committee on privileges and elections.

A majority of the Democratic senators as well as regular Republicans, however, are said to be in favor of the so-called Martin resolution which enlarges the scope of the new inquiry to include the now famous "jack pot" fund at Springfield, Ills.

MASONIC HOME OPENS

Accommodation For Aged and Infirm Members of the Order

Charlton, Mass., May 26.—The new home for aged and infirm members of the Masonic order in Massachusetts was dedicated here in the presence of a large crowd of Free Masons from every section of the state.

The new home is situated on the summit of a hill and commands a magnificent view for miles in every direction over central Massachusetts. The grounds contain more than 200 acres and the site cost $50,000. The home has thirty-nine rooms, with sleeping accommodations for fifty inmates. The home was built and is to be maintained through a fund subscribed by the Massachusetts Masonic lodges and their affiliated organizations.

Another For Knockout Brown

New York, May 26.—Knockout Brown, the East Side lightweight, stopped Tommy Murphy of Brooklyn last night in forty seconds of the first round of a bout scheduled to go ten rounds.

THE WYOMING LAUNCHED

Will Be One of the Finest Fighting Ships In the World

Philadelphia, May 26.—"Go, brave ship; I christen thee Wyoming!"

The voice of one of Wyoming's daughters rang out as a magnum of champagne was hurled by Miss Dorothy Knight against the great Dreadnought at the Cramp shipyards.

The battleship Wyoming, unsurpassed by any fighting machine in the world, was afloat. On the bridge with Miss Knight were dignitaries from Washington, a scattering of society from Washington and Philadelphia, and representatives of the state of Wyoming and other states in the union.

As the battleship was poised high in the air, nose up, in the ways, she towered above everything else but the steel crane which had been used in her construction. She looked like a veritable mountain.

BRITISH CENSUS FIGURES

Decrease In Population of Old Metropolitan Boroughs

London, May 26.—Provisional figures returned by the census officers give the population of England and Wales this year as 36,075,269, compared with 32,527,843 in 1901. While most of the cities and counties show an increase, there are many cases, particularly in Wales, where there has been a decrease.

Greater London's population has increased to 7,252,963 from 6,581,402 in 1901. This increase is entirely in what is known as the outer ring, showing that the people are moving from the more crowded centres. In fact, many of the old metropolitan boroughs and the city of London proper have lost their population to the suburbs.

ACCOUNTS FOUND TO BE ALL RIGHT

Cashier of National Bank Has Mysteriously Disappeared

Southbridge, Mass., May 26.—A search of western Massachusetts is being made for Ernest D. Hamilton, cashier of the Southbridge National bank, who mysteriously disappeared from here. Until six weeks ago Hamilton was teller in the Franklin County National bank at Greenfield. Officials of both institutions say that his accounts are correct.

That Hamilton's mind has been affected is the belief of friends. Hamilton had been teller of the Franklin County National bank for three years until six weeks ago, when he received a promotion to cashier of the local institution.

Last Tuesday he left this place supposedly for Greenfield to make arrangements to move his family here. When he did not appear in Greenfield a search was instituted, but no statement of his disappearance was made until yesterday.

SELLS AT BIG PROFIT

Hetty Green Disposes of Land Which She Kept Idle For Years

Chicago, May 26.—Mrs. Hetty Green yesterday sold for upward of $1,000,000 a tract of real estate here which she obtained in 1877 for $196,812.70. The land lies in the Gage park section, entirely unimproved. The purchasers were Cobe & McKinnon.

The property was taken over by Mrs. Green from Sarah Gage thirty-four years ago on an unsatisfied mortgage and has lain idle while the neighborhood has been improved by others. Mrs. Green fought every additional burden of taxation.

THROWS UP PULPIT JOB

Pastor Becomes Alderman and Will Devote Time to City's Welfare

Mount Vernon, N. Y., May 26.—Rev. James Berg, pastor of the English Lutheran church here and also a member of the board of aldermen of this city, has resigned his pulpit, the resignation to take effect on Sept. 1. He says he will devote his time to the city's interests.

Berg says he finds his pastoral duties conflict with his work as alderman, and he therefore has decided to give up his church work.

MOTHER AND SON LYNCHED

Mob's Vengeance on Oklahoma Negroes Who Shot Deputy Sheriff

Okema, Okla., May 26.—Laura Nelson, a negress, and her son, 16 years old, were lynched here yesterday afternoon. They shot a deputy sheriff who went to search their shanty for stolen goods.

The woman and her son were taken from the county jail by a mob, which had first gagged and bound Jailer Payne. The bodies were found hanging to the timbers of a bridge across the Canadian river.

DIAZ FULFILS HIS PROMISE

President of Mexico Formally Tenders His Resignation

NO DELAY IN ACCEPTANCE

Vice President Corral Also Relinquishes Office and De La Barra Is Chosen Provisional President—Legislators Mute, but Streets Are Filled With Jubilant Crowds When Bells and Cannon Announce News

Mexico City, May 26.—President Porfirio Diaz, in a letter read by the president of the chamber of deputies yesterday afternoon, resigned the presidency of the republic of Mexico, and at 4:54 o'clock the acceptance of the resignation by the deputies was announced.

Vice President Ramon Corral's resignation was also accepted, and Minister of Foreign Affairs Francisco Leon De La Barra was chosen provisional president, to serve until a general election can be held.

Everyone had expected an uproar when the announcements should be made, but within the chamber the words announcing the event were followed by silence. The deputies seemed awed by what had taken place.

In the streets, black with people, the news that Diaz was no longer the president was the signal for wild shouting and manifestations. There was no violence or destruction of property.

On the motion in the chamber to accept the president's resignation, 167 deputies voted aye, while no expression was made by Benito Juarez, a descendant of President Juarez, and Concepcion Del Valle. As their names were called, all other legislators rose and bowed their affirmation.

In similar fashion the resignation of Corral, now in France, was unanimously accepted, and similarly Senor De La Barra, recently ambassador to Washington, was chosen provisional president. De La Barra took the oath of office at noon today in the yellow parlor of the national palace.

Of scarcely less popular interest than the resignation was the assumption of military control of the federal district by Alfredo R. Dominguez, Madero's personal representative, insuring the handling of popular demonstrations by a leader of the new regime.

The one drastic speech of the day was made by Deputy Aspe. In introducing the president letter of resignation, Aspe made a brilliant oratorical effort. His voice was repeatedly drowned by applause, and the floor fairly shook with the demonstration that followed his preoration: "President Porfirio Diaz is dead. Long live Citizen Porfirio Diaz."

The speaker admitted that Diaz had been called to account for his errors by a people who had progressed faster than the author of their progress had realized, but he declared the good that Diaz had done his country would live forever in history and outweigh his mistakes. A long address on the constitutional points involved in the change of government was delivered by Deputy Melgarego.

To the city generally, the acceptance of the resignation of the president was announced by the clang of the bells of the cathedral and two discharges of cannon.

For many blocks on either side of the chamber the streets were black with people. Great crowds were scattered over the Zocalo when the ringing of the bells and the firing of the cannon announced the triumph of the revolution. With one accord they rushed toward the chamber, but their progress was halted by the multitude ahead of them.

As the crowd melted away after the session, they fell into irregular marching clubs. The marchers carried flags and banners of the national green, white and red, lithographs of Madero, laurel wreaths, brooms, apparently symbolic of the clean sweep of the rebellion; while hundreds of them shouldered staves and poles like soldiers with rifles.

A heavy guard of mounted police was maintained in front of the national palace, near which seven persons were killed and thirty-six wounded Wednesday night when the mob was fired on.

CONQUERORS BANQUETED

Reds win in Rand Class Red and Blue Contest

The aftermath of a Red and Blue contest of the Rand class of the Wollaston Baptist church took definite form Thursday evening when the defeated Blues gave a roast beef supper to their conquerors and the hosts gave positive proof that if they were defeated it had not affected their appetities for all of them were very busily engaged until the last course consisting of ice cream and cake had vanished.

Lester Porter acting as toastmaster called upon a number of those who had been prominent in the contest, other prominent members of the class the teacher, the pastor and one of the invited guests to respond to toasts.

Among those who spoke were: J. J. Floyd, William Bullock, L. F. La Rose, Alfred L. Durgan, superintendent of the Sunday school, Charles F. Roach, president of the Rand class, James L. Rand, teacher of the class, and the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther. After the speech-making was concluded the members of the class gathered in the corner where they were photographed by Kendall F. Harriman. The evening closed with the singing of war songs and college songs. The contest between the Reds and Blues was one of the most interesting ever held in the Sunday school. It was originally intended to have it run for six weeks and the Reds under William Bullock vied with the Blues under the leadership of Lester Porter for the supremacy. At the end of the six weeks it was found that the contest had resulted in a tie and the tie remained unbroken for two weeks when at length the Reds brought in one new member. A total of ten new members was added to the class by this contest.

PRECAUTIONS.

Henry M. Faxon is having all possible precautions taken to prevent the repetition of the occurrance two weeks ago when the rubbish heap in the rear of the Hancock house caught fire and endangered the neighboring buildings. Four big iron receptacles with cement bottoms have been sunk into the ground to hold the refuse and a cement house is soon to be built to hold the inflammable rubbish. The four receptacles are being enclosed by a brick house big enough for a wagon to go into so that the refuse may be taken away with greater ease.

FRIENDS ENTERTAINED.

A party of friends were entertained by Miss Pauline Swingle at her home on Hancock street Thursday evening. The time passed all too soon in the enjoyment of games and other amusements. Miss Marian F. Bill did some fancy dancing which was greeted with hearty applause. In the latter part of the evening refreshments were served. Among those present were Catherine H. Laing, Annie R. Allen, Marion F. Bill , Mary Stewart and Doris Straw.

FIRE BUG HELD

Guy Levira who was arrested by state officer John C. Scott for burning the building of Charles Cavanagh at Braintree last Monday morning, where he had a barber shop was given a hearing in the district court this morning before Judge Avery. A large number of witness were heard the defendent being represented by counsel. At the conclusion of the hearing Levira was held in $1,500 for the grand jury.

DRAWING EXHIBITON

An exhibition of the work of the Italian freehand drawing school of 1910 and 1911 will be held Saturday evening at the rooms of the school 125 Liberty street. This class has been meeting every week during the winter months and has made remarkable progress.

LADIES' NIGHT

Granite conclave, Improved order of Heptasophs, held its annual ladies' night in Protection hall Thursday evening. An excellent entertainment consisting of songs and readings was furnished by outside talent, both men and women contributing. A supper was served later in the evening under the direction of Joseph Mullen, chairman of the entertainment committee. At the conclusion of the banquet, Provost's orchestra took its position in the corner, the floor was cleared and dancing was enjoyed until one o'clock.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Chocolate Delights. Melt some fondant in a bowl over boiling water. Dip into it, using a fork, candied cheeries, little pieces of citron or preserved ginger and blanched nuts. Repeat the dipping after the first coat hardens until each piece is like a ball. Melt some unsweetened chocolate in a bowl over boiling water and mix with it an equal weight of triple X sugar. Dip the candies one at a time and set away to harden.

Plain Gingerbread. Mix four cups of pastry flour, one and one-half cups of molasses, two level teaspoons of ginger, one-half cup of melted butter, one cup of milk, one-half teaspoon of salt and one level teaspoon of soda dissolved in a little hot water. After mixing all well together pour into a buttered pan and bake in a moderate oven.

Chicken Sandwich. Chop cold or canned chicken very fine or mince with a knife and fork. Heat rich cream and mix with it, season with salt and spread. Instead of the cream, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter may be used.

Stuffed Veal Brisket. Procure from four to five pounds of veal brisket, if you can get it from your butcher prepared for stuffing and fill it with a stuffing made as indicatee below. Sew the brisket with a needle and coarse thread and place it in a pan with two tablespoons of butter over it, add one cupful of water and bake as you would a loin. Serve gravy in a boat.—Alice E. Whitaker.

Nut Bread. Scald two cups of milk, add one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth cup molasses, and when lukewarm add one yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup of lukewarm water. Then add two cups of white flour, three cups of entire wheat flour, one cup of walnut meats chopped finely, and enough more entire wheat flour to make it stiff enough to knead. Proceed as for bread. Knead until light and let rise until doubled in bulk; will require about three hours, then shape into loaves, let rise not quite double in bulk; will require about one hour. Bake about three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven.

DOING REAL HARM.

People who do us harm in the end are not the wrongdoers whom all execrate. They are the men who do not do quite as much wrong, but who are applauded instead of being execrated. The career of Benedict Arnold has done us no harm as a nation because of the universal horror it inspired. The men who have done us harm are those who have advocated disunion, but have done it so that they have been enabled to keep their political position; who have advocated repudiation of debts or other financial dishonesty, but have kept their standing in the community; who preach the doctrines of anarchy, but refrain from action that will bring them within the pale of the law, for these men lead thousands astray by the fact that they go unpunished or even are rewarded for their misdeeds.—Theodore Roosevelt.

QUINCY'S NEW AUTO CHEMICAL

Engine to be Given a Try Out Monday Afternoon

Quincy's new automobile chemical engine, built by the American La-France Co. arrived in Boston this morning and will be run over the road to Quincy sometime today. It will be placed in the Central Fire station until Monday afternoon when it will be given a try out.

The engine will be run to City Square in the vicinity of 2 o'clock Monday afternoon and it is planned that ex-Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., shall have the honor of running the car to the square, as he was the father of the order introduced into the City Council, appropriating the money for the engine.

After that the car will be taken in charge by officials of the LaFrance Co. and given a thorough try out. It will be run about the city and given a trial, particularly as to hill climbing. It is expected that this try out will be witnessed by a large number of firemen from other cities who are considering the purchasing of similar pieces of apparatus.

While it is not necessary to try out the chemical tank attached to the engine it will also probably be charged and played out.

A $3,000 JOB.

The Civil Service Commission announce a competitive examination to be held in Boston June 20 to fill a vacancy in the position of secretary of the Board of Health of the City of Boston the salary of which is $3,000. Any citizen of the state is eligible for the position. The applicant must be over 25 years of age and not over 40 years, a physician registered under the laws of the state and a man who has had technical and practical experience in dealing with matters relating to public health.

REAL BOSTON AGAIN.

The Massachusetts Senate Thursday passed a resolve providing for the appointment of a commission to consider plans for a Metropolitan Boston.

Representative White of Brookline, offered an amendment, which was adopted, providing that the commission shall have no power to recommend any change in the government of any city or town within the metropolitan district. This amendments is exactly in accord with the recommendation of the Chamber in its "Real Boston" bill, which contemplated the creation of an advisory council without taking away the independence or individuality of any community.—Boston Chamber of Commerce News.

CONCERT A GREAT TREAT

Not a Dull Number on the Whole Program

Music lovers were given a treat last evening at the concert given under the direction of Prof. Frank Wrigley in Alpha hall. The program was varied in contents but not in quality for every number was greeted with heartiest applause at its conclusion.

The opening selection a part song "Moonlight" was rendered in a most capable manner by the Christ church choir. The work of the younger people was greatly appreciated in the succeeding numbers and they had no inconsiderable part in them. Piano solos were rendered by Violet Smith, Irene Langhorne and Francis Gronberg and Stanley Ross, Calvin Moyle and Albert Rendle contributed solos and duets.

Miss E. Edna Spry of Boston who gained so much popularity in the Spring Revue, gained other laurels last evening in her songs "The Kiss" and "Good bye." The cornet solos by Mr. Newcombe were exceptionally well played and won much applause. The first piece was w ritten by Prof. Wrigley. Two selections by the Granite City quartette also met with the approval of the audience and were roundly applauded. The contributions of the Men's Club chorus were well received by the audience and the song and chorus with J. W. McLeod as the soloist was one of the best numbers on the program.

Miss Daisy Burnell won the audience by her readings, "The Three Bears" being especially good.

The proceeds from the concert will go toward the expenses of a summer camp for the choir boys.

The patrons of the concert were: Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. Harry L. Rice, Mrs. Herbert Lawton, Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant, Mrs. Russell A. Sears, Mrs. Nathaniel S. Hunting, Dr. George M. Sheahan, Mrs. Charles A. Price, Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker, Mrs. Walter E. Burke, Mrs. W. G. A. Pattie, Dr John A. Gordon and Dr. F. Ramon Burke. The ushers were: Misses Elsie E. Turner, Molly D. Braggdon, Daisy F. Burnell and Lillian Newman.

BIGGEST BATTLESHIP.

British pride received a jar in the House of Commons Wednesday when Reginald McKenna, the first lord of the admiralty, sorrowfully admitted, in reply to a question, that the United States battleship Delaware will be the largest ship at the coronation naval review, surpassing Great Britain's show ship, the Neptune.—Boston Transcript.

BOULEVARD BILL REPORTED

Bill Calls For Sum of $50,000 for Quincy

The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs reported a bill in the legislature Friday calling for an appropriation of $50,000 to further the work of the Quincy Shore boulevard. In the original bill of Representative Thomas the sum of $225,000 was asked for. The committee however cut this amount down to $50,000. While this sum will not be sufficient to complete the boulevard from the present end near the National Sailors Home to Hancock street it will do some of the preliminary work. Or it would complete the Furnace Brook parkway from Adams street to Hancock street. The bill has now gone to the Committee on Ways and Means.

LAUNCH OF THE SKIPJACK

Mrs. Donald R. Battles Sponser for Submarine

The submarine Skipjack was successfully launched at the Fore River yards at 10.20 this morning. The launch was in the nature of a private one and was witnessed by few outside of naval officers stationed at the yard and by officials of the company. As the submarine started down the ways Mrs. Donald R. Battles, wife of Naval Constructor Battles smashed a bottle of wine over her cigar shaped bow and gave her the name Skipjack. Immediately after the launch the new addition to the submarine navy was hauled along side of the dock where she will be completed.

DEGREE WORKED.

Old Colony encampment I. O. O. F. of Brockton paid a fraternal visit to Manet encampment at Quincy, Friday evening bringing with them five candidates for the Golden Rule degree. There were also two candidates from Manet encampment to receive the degree which was exemplified in an unusually fine manner by the degree staff of Manet encampment with Samuel Wood Jr., as degree master.

There were a large number of visitors from encampments in the immediate vicinity. Refreshments were served after the business of the evening.

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION

Business at Friday Afternoons Meeting

One of the best meetings in a long time of the Merchants' association was held Friday afternoon at the rooms of the Board of Trade. At this meeting Adolph Sandberg tendered his resignation as secretary of the association which was accepted as was also the resignation of H. E. Crane as president.

The vacancy in the secretaryship of the association was temporarily filled by the election of Charles C. Hearn.

The association then got down to business connected with the coming Merchants' week. It was voted to purchase a portable band stand and that six band concerts should be held during the week.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Mayor in relation to having a firemen's parade and play out on the last day of the week. This feature was a great success last year and is sure to draw a large crowd.

Several other matters of interest to the association but not of public interest was transacted.

☞Mr. Wrigleys pupil concert will be held in Colonial hall Wednesday evening June 1st. Tickets 35 cents at Hearn's and Walsh's drug stores.

DANCING PARTY.

A very pretty dancing party was given in Colonial hall last evening by Miss Edith Lovejoy of Butler road. About 20 couples were on the floor and the regular order of dances was followed with a number of moonlight waltzes and a Paul Jones to give added zest to the occasion. The hall was daintily decorated in Japanese style under the direction of Miss Dorothy Kitson. Even the moon sported a Japanese parasol and his eyes were more almond shaped than ever.

The hostess, Miss Edith Lovejoy, did the dance orders in Japanese style also, sketching pretty little Japanese scenes on one side. The party was matronized by Mrs. Edward Lovejoy and Miss Mary C. Parker.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Standard Oil has got to dissolve, but John D. would as soon have his dividends in 60 checks as one, provided it foots up the same total.

New York city dedicated a $12,000,000 public library May 23, but the metropolis is not much interested in literature other than the menu cards of the lobster palaces.

President Diaz may have resigned, but we should advise Gen. Madero to familiarize himself with the location of the back door before he makes an afternoon call at the palace.

The poets are offering us verses on the breath of summer. If they had the love of humanity in their hearts, they would have spent the time in the garden raising rhubarb leaves for our straw hats.

It is pleasant to see the interest that the pupils of the public schools are taking in the Memorial day season. The little chaps and lassies now in the schools are receiving much instruction in patriotism that will serve to be of benefit to them in their manhood and womanhood days. The old veterans of the Civil war are doing a good work in visiting the schools and telling the children of the actual incidents of the war.

THE HOME MERCHANT NO. 4.

One of the causes of high cost of living today, is the easy going custom of ordering by mail, and it is the testimony of experts that even the butcher never gives the same value to the telephone order that is given the customer who visits the store and sees the goods. It is not possible to get a good bargain by looking at a mail order catalogue cut. The photograph conceals more than it reveals. One glance at the goods would show the tawdry and flimsy character that the picture never suggests.

Even the personal visit to some metropolitan store, in the midst of a hurried shopping or sight-seeing trip, does not give the chance for the close inspection of the goods you can make in your home store.

Judicious and profitable shopping takes time. You can do it to advantage only when you feel free to talk and look as long as you want to. The purchase in the home store is apt to be carefully planned and adequately discussed. The purchase from a mail order house is made blindfolded. The purchase made personally at the distant metropolitan store is made in haste and repented at leisure.

HANDSOME MEMORIAL.

The contract for one of the handsomest and most costly memorials cut in Quincy for a long time has been been awarded Mesrs Long & Saunders of South Quincy. The job is what is known as the Hussey memorial to be erected on the Hussey estate in Beverly.

The job consists of a course of bottom bases that will be 29 feet by 18 feet. On this will rest a die which when completed will weigh in the vicinity of forty tons. The size of the die is 10 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 6 inches. On this die or pedestal will rest a bronze figure of a horse upon which is a bronze portrait of the late Mr. Hussey wearing the uniform of a Knights Templar.

The pedestal is to stand on a mound beneath which is a tomp in which rest the remains of the man for whom the memorial is erected. The cost of the job is in the vicinity of $10,000.

William Chapman, of Wollaston, is the architect of the memorial and the bronze work is to be made from models made by George T. Brewster, a well known New York sculptor. The granite work will be cut at the yards of Messrs Long & Saunders at South Quincy.

JUNE MAGAZINES.

POPULAR MECHANICS. Like the continuous film of the moving-picture machine which flashes to the mind scenes of interest that would require volumes to describe in print, Popular Mechanics Magazine each month presents a vivid panorama of the world's development in all matters pertaining to science and mechanics. In the June number 290 unusual illustrations and 275 terse articles portray the activities and achievements of inventors, scientists, airmen, craftsmen, mariners—in short, of persons in every walk of life nowadays, no occupation but contributes its discoveries and improvements. Apropos of moving pictures, the cover design for the June magazine uniquely reproduces the unfolding of a rose as depicted in colors on the film by a new process, in which color filters are used. Among the numerous features of the Shop Notes and Amateur Mechanics departments for June are: An Inexpensive Drilled Well; Felling trees by Fire; Home Made Motion-Picture Camera and Projector; Swimming Raft; Home-Made Guitar. All the articles are "written so you can understand it."

TECHNICAL WORLD.—The following timely articles are contained in the June Technical World: From Farm to Table—The Road of a Hundred Profits.—Agnes C. Laut; Trapping a Forest Fire Bug—Charlton Lawrence Edholm; Motion Pictures for Stereopticons.—Robert H. Moulton; $25,000,000 Bribe for Nature's Secrets. —Charles Frederick Carter; Making the Ostrich Over—and Why. —Coston Carver; Solving the Garbage Nuisance.—Katherine Louise Smith; Boy With a Paying Idea.—Charles Dillon; Household Electricity Meter.—Joseph B. Baker; Toads as Insect Destroyers.—Rene Bache.

SUBURBAN LIFE. The June number of Suburban Life is a big vacation number, and is filled with articles and suggestions for every one who is interested in this seasonable topic. The leading article, entitled, "My Vacation in a Motor Car," is a story of a woman's trip through New England and part of Canada. The story abounds in interesting adventures and amusing experiences. "A Houseboat on the Willamette" tells how many of the residents of Portland, Ore., spend their summers. Among other vacation articles are "Camping in a Rowboat," "A Vacation Trip by Canoe," "Twenty Dollar Vacation" and "Camping in the Santa Cruz Mountains."

Of course this number is not devoted entirely to vacation material. Among the other : articles are "Aquatic Gardens on a Small Scale," "Kite Flying Up-to-Date," "Photographing for the Civic Good." "In the Village of Beaux Arts," "Making the Most of Cut Flowers," "The Cost of a Home in Suburban Baltimore," "How Planting Transformed a Country Home," and "The Garden of Lure."

LIPPINCOTTS. Ellis Parker Butler, Molly Elliot Seawell, Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, Kate Masterson, Thomas L. Masson, Burton Egbert Stevenson, and a dozen other well-known writers are among the contributors to the June Lippincott's, which is one of the strongest issues this enterprising publication has ever gotten out.

The complete novel is 'The Privateer," an adorable tale of the Southland, wonderful in its word-painting, fascinating in its style. This is the first long story by the author, Eleanor Mercein Kelly, whose short-stories, however, have been attracting a great deal of attention. "The Privateer" has an absorbing plot, with some surprising happenings and a dominant love interest.

There are many short-stories, on a wide variety of themes, 'The Scoop," by Ellis Parker Butler, is funny, of course, but it has its pathetic side as well. Another happy yarn is "The Trail of the White Colt," by Lowell Edwin Hardy. "A Wireless Tragedy," by Molly Elliot Seawell, is an amusing tale of a near-tragedy on one of the great new ocean liners.

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION. The June Woman's Home Companion is interesting and useful in a great variety of ways. One of its splendid features, particularly entertaining and valuable at the present time, is a description of a large number of "safe and sane" celebrations of the Fourth of July which actually took place last year. These reports are full of ideas and suggestions which, as fast as they are put into effect, will save legs, arms and lives. There are six other special articles in the number. One of these is on "The Etiquette of Weddings." Another is on Infant Mortality. All of the articles are full of practical suggestions. One very interesting article is called "My Happiest Vacation."

The fiction in this month's Companion is notable. There is a splendid story by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the last piece of work written by this famous author shortly before her death a few months ago.

MCCLURES. The leading feature in the June McClure's is an article on "Some English Statesmen," by Sydney Brooks, the brilliant political writer. This article is a masterly study of Mr. Asquith, Mr. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne Henry Lloyd-George, and John Burns —five of the most interesting personalities in England today. The latest instalment of "Masters of Capital," by John Moody and George Kibbe Turner, tells of the rise of J. P. Morgan as the representative of the small security-holders of the country, one of the most remarkable developments in the history of modern finance. The special fiction features are "Sparks," a gripping and mysterious story of wireless telegraphy by John Fleming Wilson, and "A Life-Long Lock," a story of the harem, by Eleanor Stuart. Among the other stories are "The Governor of the Gaol ," another Miss Gregory story by Perceval Gibbon, "In the Glow of a Peat Fire," by Alexander Irvine, and "The Case of Richard Meynell," by Mrs. Humphry Ward.

THE ENGINEERS MAGAZINE. The leading place in The Engineering Magazine for June is given to the introductory paper of an important series of articles by Robert L. Streeter, which will review, with a wealth of illustration, modern developments in the machinery used in the iron and steel industry. The present instalment covers iron ore mining and transportation by rail and water, mechanical loading, unloading and handling devices, ore bins and furnace-charging arrangements, and coke ovens. Future articles will deal with the machinery used in manufacturing processes. Among other illustrated features of importance may be mentioned General W. A. Jones' description of the troubles caused by dampness in the concrete walls of the seacoast forts of the United States and of the methods of waterproofing available. The number carries also the full Review of the Engineering Press, and the Engineering Index.—The Engineering Magazine, New York.

IS IT A CIRCUS?

Waltham's city fathers are puzzled over the aviation meet in that city. They have received an application to hold an aviation meet there June 15. Some claim the license should be granted for a circus exhibition while others say a permit same as for an automobile race would be all right. A new bill may have to be drafted to fit the case.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of It in Quincy But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help.
Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.
Not one so important to health.
The kidneys are the filters of the blood.
When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.
There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.
Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.
It is the kidneys' cry for help. Heed it.
Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.
Are just what overworked kidneys need.
They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.
Read the proof from a Quincy citizen.
Mrs. E. Burke, 143 Quincy street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an excellent remedy for kidney trouble. I used them and the results were of the most satisfactory nature. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at the Cox Drug Store and have my highest recommendation."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NORFOLK COUNTY W. C. T. U.

The Norfolk County Women's Christian Temperance Union held its annual institute in the Universalist church, South Weymouth, Thursday. Mrs. Ida S. Brown of Wollaston, president of the union, presided, and devotional services were conducted by Mrs. C. A. Raymond of East Weymouth. Mrs. Justin Tilton president of the local union, welcomed the gathering and Mrs. Brown, the president, responded. Following the transaction of general business, Mrs. Myrtie Spooner, state superintendent of Sunday school work, spoke on "Sunday School Work."

At the afternoon session there was a roll call of local unions and an address by Mrs. Katherine Lent Stevenson, president of the Massachusetts union. Her subject was, "The Place of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Massachusetts Today."

AVIATION AT WALTHAM.

Many aviators who will compete in the meet to be held in Squantum the latter part of next August are now preparing for a season's activity at the new Metz Aviation grounds, Waltham, where the first aero meet of the year is to start June 15th.

Prof. Martin who was responsible for the first aviation meet in New England, that held at Squantum last year, is now returning to America after a course in Claude Graham-White's English school of Aviation. He is prepared to enter the leading events in America during the present season and much is expected of the Harvard professor.

Semeniouk, the Russian aviator is now at Waltham where he is preparing his monoplane for the flights. Although little is known of Semeniouk in this country his performances in France during the past year places him in the ranks with the leading aviators.

Cromwell Dixon, the boy aviator who flew in a dirigible from the Squantum field to Boston last year is also at Waltham and his new Standard-Curtis biplane will receive a thorough trying out. He has partly forsaken his pet dirigible for the aeroplane and expects this year to do practially all of his flying in this newer make of machine.

Earl Ovington will be one of the entrants in the meet, Joe Downey who is now at Mineola making daily flights in a Bleriot monoplane will leave for Waltham the first of the week and others of national repute will be included on the programme to be given on the old Gore estate.

The estate has been transformed it into what the aviators claim is the best aviation field in the country. A small lake on the property will afford an opportunity for some fancy exhibition flying, and before the season ends some startling exhibitions are looked for.

HOUGHS NECK.

A business meeting was held at Union chapel Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing the church. The by-laws were read and accepted It was voted to call the church The People's Union church. Thursday evenings beginning June 1st there will be a meeting for the study of the Bible, with Rev. W. J. Sayre. It is hoped to make this class a large one for it will be of interest and help to all. All are welcome. Mr. Sayre is to begin with the life of Paul. At the morning services a choir of older people will sing, and in the evening there will be a children's choir.

The new building of the Catholic Lyceum club will be about 30 by 50 feet. This however is to be an L the main building will be added later

"The Best in the World"

As the bride led her friends into her cool, spotless kitchen, they broke into a chorus of approval.

"Well, I am proud of it," she said, "and proudest of all of my stove. It's a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove, and I think they are the best in the world. They toast, roast, broil and bake equally well—really to perfection—and the kitchen stays much cooler and cleaner than with any other range. This stove cuts my kitchen work almost in half."

There is no wood or coal to carry for a New Perfection; no ashes to clean up. It is ready for use as soon as lit; out at a touch of the fingers—economical as well as quick and convenient.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

FINE FRUIT GARDEN.

The report of the Massachusetts Horticultural society for 1910 just published devotes a page to the fruit gardens of Dr. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic are follows:

September 13 the committee inspected the fruit garden of Dr. Walter G. Kendall at Atlantic. This estate covering an area of about one acre, is devoted almost exclusively to the production of high-grade fruits for private use. Dr. Kendall has been a constant exhibitor of the products of his garden at the exhibitions of the Society for a number of years and his name is well known in the list of prize winners. High quality is his motto and he gets it.

Among the varieties of fruits grown most of which were particularly in evidence on the day of the committee's visit were the following:

Apples—Maiden Blush, McIntosh, Gravenstein, and Hubbardston.

Pears—Dana Hovey, Bosc, Seckel, Bartlett, Worden Seckel, and Souvenir du Congres.

Peaches— Foster, Mountain Rose, Chair's Choice, Greensboro, and Carman.

Plums—Burbank, Jefferson, and October Purple. Dr. Kendall speaks very highly of the Jefferson, an old variety of a yellow plum. He considers it the most desirable variety for this vicinity.

Grapes.—Some sixty vines among the most noticeable being Campbell's Early, Salem, with unusually full bunches, Niagara, Worden, Green Mountain, Delaware and Moore's Diamond.

There were also gooseberry; currant, and strawberry plants.

The successful results obtained in this extraordinary fruit garden are won by constant attention and vigilance. The specimens of the various fruits were larger and finer than those usually seen in private gardens and were almost entirely free from blemishes and other defects of insect and fungous depredations, and a particularly savage looking bulldog ensures the owner of his full share of the products of his skill and labor.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Begin at Mansion School with Music Recital

The pupils' recital at the Quincy Mansion school in Livermore hall Friday evening marked the beginning of the Commencement exercises for 1911 and was enjoyed by relatives and friends. It was under the direction of Mr. William Howard, violin teacher, Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child vocal teacher and Miss Hermine Bopp pianist. The recital was given by the younger and intermediate classes in music.

The first number on the program was rendered by pupils who until January had not played a note; others had not been on a stage before, but it is Miss Bopp's idea that each must do something and her judgment clearly showed what careful training and practise will accomplish.

Just before the last number, Mr. Howard announced that Mrs. Child had consented to sing, her rich contralto voice and pleasing personality was thoroughly enjoyed as she sang 'Rosy morn" and the applause was appreciative. The program was as follows:

Piano Duet—Commencement March, Miss Marcia Chase Miss Pullman
Piano Solo—Mazurka Caprice Heins Miss Brown
Vocal solo—The Mission of the Rose, Miss Richards Cowen
Piano Solo—Idilio, Lack Miss Woodward
Violin Solo—(a) Melody, Ritter (b) Melody from "Don Giovanni" Miss Williams Mozart
Piano Solo—Au Matin, Godard Miss Briggs
Piano Solo—Fairy Polka Spindler Miss Child
Vocal Solo—The King of Thule from "Faust" Gounod Miss Pullman
Piano Solo—Valse in E flat Durand Miss Pike
Vocal Solo—Berceuse from "Jocelyn" Miss Townsend Godard
Piano Solo—Valse Gracieuse Orth Miss Kerr
Piano Duet—Serenata Moszkowski Miss Kerlin Miss Woodward

HALF HOLIDAY FOR LABORERS

Order was Signed by Mayor This Morning

There is rejoicing among the city laborers and mechanics today for Mayor Shea has affixed his signature to the order passed at the last meeting of the City Council which provides that city laborers and mechanics shall cease work at 12 o'clock noon on Saturdays during the months of June, July and August.

This measure is one that had been before the City Council for three years and was the particular order for which Councilman Smith, its father worked so hard.

The order came up on its final passage at the last Council meeting and was sent to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval. His Honer had ten days in which to sign, veto or allow the order to become a law without his signature and he took the full limit of time. The time limit expired today. The order however was one of the first things that the Mayor gave his attention to this morning.

Under this order the laborers and Mechanics will cease work at 12 o'clock noon which means that they actually get but three hours holiday on Saturdays, as the quitting time on other days is 4 o'clock.

DAY CUP RACES.

A series of interesting cat boat races is to be held in Quincy waters the coming summer when the Quincy Yacht club will be called upon to defend the Thomas Fleming Day cup which was won last summer in the series of interbay cat boat races in Narraganset bay by the Iris and Dolly III representing the Quincy club who must defend the cup this year.

The cape cat boat association met in the office of Frank F. Crane on Temple street last evening to arrange for the selection of the yachts that will defend the cup for the association.

It was decided to make the selection by the elemination process in races held between June 17 and Aug. 5 in six of the Y. R. A. races and two Quincy club races. All yachts intending to compete must sail in at least six out of the eight scheduled races.

Ireland's Population Decreasing

London, May 27.—Ireland has a population of 4,381,951, according to the census returns. This is a decrease of 76,824 since the last census was taken, ten years ago.

THE SHIRT WAIST STORE

THE woman who follows the styles closely is as easy to please with the AMERICAN LADY SHOES as the woman who thinks less of style and more of comfort. One gets style plus comfort—the other comfort plus style. They both get a quality that is not obtainable in any other shoes at the price.

We have a large line of AMERICAN LADY SHOES in the newest and best styles for summer wear. Come in and let us show you what real shoe satisfaction is.

GEORGE W. JONES
1 Granite Street, Quincy, Mass.
'Phone 555-L

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe,
She had so many children she didn't know what to do,
She had so much trouble to keep their clothes clean,
Till she got Fels-Naptha, with the wrapper red and green,
Now her washing's easy, clothes are cleaner, too,
Isn't it a good thing, she found out what to do?

Here's an arithmetic problem that's worth figuring out.

How many hours do you spend each week in washing clothes?

Multiply the number by 52.

Then divide the total into two parts and one of those parts is how much time you would save in a year by using Fels-Naptha Soap.

You would likely save more.

Most women who use Fels-Naptha Soap do their washing in less than half the time it would take in the old way.

And with one-fourth the work.

And without any extra expense for fuel because Fels-Naptha Soap cleanses clothes in cool or lukewarm water.

No boiling; no scalding; no steaming suds. Summer or Winter.

Don't spend more of your life than's necessary in washing clothes.

Do them the quicker, better way—the Fels-Naptha way.

BRIEFS

The Old Colony Driving Club will hold its next matinee at South Weymouth at one o'clock on Memorial day with forty-four horses entered in thirteen races. There will also be a ball game in the infield, Norfolk vs. Clapp Memorial and music.

Wednesday evening a meeting was held in the Memorial Congregational church to consider plans for placing a pipe organ in the auditorium. The two choirs are doing excellent work and an organ would add greatly to the musical results,

Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra of St. Chrysostom's church is to preach on Sunday at St. Marks church, Mauch Chunk, Pa., and the Rev. Benjamin W. Atwell, D. D., will be in charge of the services tomorrow at St. Chrysostoms.

A memorial service to Julia Ward Howe is to be held at the Church of the Disciples. Boston, on Sunday at eleven o'clock, to which all friends of Mrs. Howe are invited to the service.

Rev. Harry A. Weston of Randolph is to preach at First church Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. C. B. Ames. The Sunday school will hold Memorial day services at the noon session.

Parents day will be observed at the Quincy school Monday at two o'clock. Weather permitting the exercises will be held in the school playground. Each grade will contribute selections and there will be chorus work by the entire school. Exhibitions of the year's work will be displayed in the different grades for the inspection of parents.

A meeting was held in Atlantic Music hall Monday night to consider ways and means for celebrating the fourth of July. The celebrations for the past few years have met with such marked success that residents are very enthusiastic and expect this year to surpass their previous efforts.

Sunday June 18th will be observed as Children's day at the Hall Place M. E. church, the Sunday school will render its annual children's day concert in the evening.

Sunday will be observed as Mothers' day at the Hall Place M. E. church. The pastor will preach a sermon for mothers. All mothers especially invited, though all will find a cordial welcome. All are requested to wear a white flower.

Walther Men's class meets Sunday at 12.15 in the Wollaston Baptist church. Features for Sunday: Patriotic songs by chorus of men, patriotic address by Comrade L. K. Marston of Boston on "Present Day Battles" and a patriotic lesson on "Universal Peace and how to secure it." All men invited.

NORFOLK CONFERENCE.

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will hold its summer meeting on Wednesday, June 7, at 10 A. M., with the First Congregational Society in Needham. Rev. Joseph A. Puffer ,minister. In the morning session, Rev. W. H. Lyon, D. D., will give an address on "Use of the Bible in the Church Service," Mrs. F. K. Crooker, of Roslindale, will speak on "An Experiment in Organizing Young People for Church Work," and Mr. W. Stanley Campbell, superintendent of the Sunday School in West Roxbury will speak on "Efficiency and Co-operation."

In the afternoon session, Rev. Edward F. Hayward of Marlborough, will give an address on "What the Clergy expect from the Laity." Discussion will be opened by Mr. Frank E. Parlin of Cambridge.

The luncheon at 12.30 will be as usual, a box luncheon. A train leaves South Station, Boston, for Needham at 9.45 A. M., and a train returning leaves Needham at 3.45 P. M. Electric cars run from Forest Hills Elevated station, via West Roxbury, and Dedham.

COLONIAL TEA PARTY.

Saturday afternoon members of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter D. A. R. and a limited number of friends were invited by mistress Martha Washington (Mrs. Walter F. Jones) to meet her friend Mistress Abigail Phillips Quincy (Mrs. Roger H. Wilde) and her niece Maide Fannie Dandridge (Mrs. Seth Chilton Crocker) at the home of Mistress Washington 98 Beach street, Wollaston.

The guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Crocker quaintly arrayed in brocaded Watteau gown and introduced to the receiving party by Mrs. William S. Sayward and Mrs. Edward A. Chase in a gown of her great grandmothers time. Caraway seed cookies and tea in cups of willow ware were served by Mrs. Edward E. Jameson assisted by Misses Eleanor Jones, Mary Broughton, Muriel Warner and Katharine Kimball.

Mrs. Jones was a charming Martha Washington and many of the Chapter members wore dresses of the colonial times. Mrs. Mary True Taylor and Mrs. Antoinette S. Paige were especially noticeable for the elegance and quaintness of their brocades and laces, and Dorothy Q. (Miss Ruth Taylor) graced the occasion with her presence. The rooms were decorated with lilacs and other old fashioned flowers and doorways and staircase draped with large American flags. Music was furnished during the entire afternoon under the direction of Miss Ida Louise Poore, and consisted of several piano selections by Miss Rachel M. Paine of Southboro, violin solos and duets by Mr. Robert G. Paine of Southboro and Mr. Arvin Case of Brookline, and songs by Miss Paine with violin accompaniment.

In her usual charming finished manner with Miss Paine at the piano Miss Poore sung a number of old time English songs and ballads among them Bendermeers Stream by Tom Moore. Bonnie Doon, Robin Adair, Loves Old Sweet Song and Twickenham Ferry.

The guests of the afternoon pronounced the whole musical program specially pleasing and congratulated Mistress Washington upon the success of her first reception to the local Chapter D. A. R., about 150 being in attendance. Mrs. Crocker was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

POND HOME ANNIVERSARY.

On Saturday, June 3 occurs the ninth anniversary of the opening of Pond Home, that ideal home for the aged, founded and maintained by the King's Daughters of Norfolk county. The day has always been set apart as annual Donation day for for all interested friends of the home and this year two members of the board of directors, Mrs. Thomas Fenno of 538 Hancock street, Wollaston, Mrs. C. W. Guy of Butler road, Quincy, will gladly forward the contributions of all who cannot attend the celebration. No gift is too large for this cause, nor is any too small. The worth of work accomplished can only be realized through personal inspection of the home and it is hoped that many will take this opportunity of becoming familiar with it.

The ladies of the home are arranging to have an attractive table of fancy articles on sale as well as sandwiches, ice cream and cake, for the convenience of those who do not wish to carry lunches. A number of Unity Circle members have already planned to take the 12.07 train from South station, Boston, and their motto for June 3 is "The more, the merrier."

MILTON

Ralph Harriman has rturned from a three weeks' trip through New York, Maine and New Hampshire.

A food sale will be held in the East Congregational church tonight.

The East Milton station was robbed on Tuesday between the hours of 11 and 12 in the morning while Mr. Bearce the agent was at the freight house. As yet the thief has not been caught and the chances do not look overbright for his detention for he got out of town before the theft was discovered. The panel in the office door was broken and the lock was sprung from the outside by the burglar's reaching his hand in through the broken panel. All the money in the cash draw was taken. The thief had his plan well mapped out beforehand for it could not have been timed better. Mr. Bearce was at the freight house and no one was near the station at the time. The evidences point toward the burglar's being well acquainted with the situation and knowing when the agent was away from the station.

William Robinson is putting up two new houses on Reservation road near the corner of Edgehill road.

Walter Collins is erecting a new house on Reservation road.

Mother's day was observed in the Milton schools on Thursday and many of the parents attended the exercises despite the rain. Special programs were rendered by the pupils in all the schools.

The alarm at box 67 last Saturday evening at 11.24 was for a fire in the store at the corner of Adams street and Granite place owned by the Newcomb heirs. C. J. Mullen used the building for a store house. The roof of the building was destroyed and the contents was damaged somewhat. The loss is estimated at $500.

The alarm at 9.53 on the same evening was false.

Huntington F. Wolcott post, number 102, G. A. R., Women's Relief corps number 147, and Col. Oliver W. Peabody camp, Sons of Veterans will attend the Union memorial service to be held in the First Congregational church, Milton, Sunday morning. The organizations will meet at the Town hall and will march to the church where Rev. A. D. Smith will conduct the services and preach the sermon.

At 10 o'clock on Memorial day, exercises will be held in the Town hall by the three patriotic organizations of the town. At the conclusion of these, all will march to the cemetery where the usual services will be held.

BICKNELL FAMILY ASSO.

The Bicknell Family Association which held its annual meeting in Boston on Feb. 22 is to hold an early summer reunion on Saturday, June 10, at the family homestead in North Weymouth. The meeting is called for 10.30 A. M. There will be a basket luncheon and an interesting program.

Wise Men and Women Know that most of the sicknesses of life come from inactive bowels and from unhealthy condition of the organs of digestion. If your digestive system is not working right, your food does not nourish you—poor blood and weakness follow; if your bowels are inactive—waste matter poisons the whole system and serious sickness is sure to follow. To take promptly is to save yourself trouble and expense. Gentle, but quick; safe, but thorough, they enable the bowels to carry away waste matter naturally and tone up the whole digestive system. They will not injure the most delicate. They help you to get your bowels and your digestive organs in that condition when they can take good care of themselves and of you. Beecham's Pills

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Norfolk, ss. Probate Court.

To Rebecca M. Costello, Daniel H. Costello, John B. Costello, Mary E. Costello, Charles H. Costello, William F. Costello and Catherine E. Kelley.

Whereas, Timothy J. Carey, administrator with the will annexed of the estate of Mary Ann Costello deceased has presented to said Court a petition representing that he holds as tenant-in-common one undivided eighth part or share of certain real estate lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk, and described in said petition; wanted for the purpose of paying debts of his testatrix; and, as said real estate cannot be advantageously divided, praying that partition may be made among the tenants-in-common according to law; and that the commissioners who may be appointed to make said partition be ordered to make sale and conveyance of said real estate and to distribute the net proceeds thereof. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, on the fourteenth day of June A. D., 1911, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each person interested who can be found within the Commonwealth, fourteen days at least before said Court; and, if any one cannot be so found, by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in said Quincy the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-fourth day of May in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

When you're feeling sort of tired
And you don't know what to do,
Kind of feel you need the doctor,
Find yourself becoming blue,
Get to think you must be ailing,
Can't enjoy your special dish.
Drop your work and take to loafing—
Go away somewhere and fish!

FEARS FAILURE OF RECIPROCITY BILL

President Worried Over Prospect of Many Amendments

Washington, May 27.—The president in talking with his visitors is taking a very gloomy view of the reciprocity situation. He is much worried and fears that the bill will be amended to death. One amendment has been offered by Senator Root affecting the pulp and paper section, another by Senator Nelson to retain about 50 percent of the duties on farm products. Senator Cummins will seek to amend by adding certain manufactures to the free list and Senator Lodge will propose an amendment to the fisheries paragraph. The indications are that some or all of these amendments will be adopted.

WHIST PARTY.

A largly attended whist party was held Friday evening at St. Mary's parochial residence by the St. Mary's guild. The party was in charge of Miss Kate Shea, president, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Fennessey, Mrs. J. Monahan and Miss Susie Pickering.

Ten tables were in play the souvenirs for the best scores being awarded to Miss Sarah Monahan and Miss Esther Canavan. Refreshments were served and there were musical selections.

SPORTING NOTES.

The second game in the girls interclass baseball series at Milton was won by the Freshman who defeated the Juniors, 17 to 9 on Cunningham field yesterday. Miss Palmer of the winning team only allowed four hits, struck out seven and gave but two bases on balls. Miss Carter, who was in the box for the Juniors struck out 10 gave 3 bases and allowed 15 hits. Every one of the Freshmen got at least one hit and six of them got two apiece. Miss Geers of the winning team was the star batter getting a two bagger and a triple. Miss Geers also played a perfect fielding game getting 8 putouts without an error.

The grammar school league games scheduled for Friday were postponed on account of rain and four games will be played Monday afternoon, Adams vs Cranch, Hancock vs Lincoln, Wollaston vs Massachusetts Fields, Gridley Bryant vs Quincy. The final game will be played on Wednesday between Willard and Massachusetts Fields.

Baseball fans will have their fill of baseball on the holiday with games at the park and on all the playgrounds both morning and afternoon. A list of the games will be printed in Monday's paper together with the announcement of other sports in the city.

The games for today are:

Makaria vs Malden at Merrymount park.

Orients vs Fairview A. C. at Ward Three.

South Quincy club vs. Clapp Memorial at Water street grounds.

Colonials vs St. Rose Holy Name.

Fore River Apprentices vs. Manets at Ward Six.

The local yachting season opens today with a club race of the Quincy Yacht club. The outlook at present is that this will be the most successful season in the history of the club on account of the unusual interest manifested in the plans of the club.

In the final round of the Woodland golf tournament Ouimet the schoolboy golfer made a 71 which with his 70 of the day before makes the record breaking total of 141. H. P. Farrington, also of Woodland was second with 157. J. J. Daniels of Wollaston was the only representative of the local club to hand in a card. His net score was 151 going the round in 89 the first day and taking 90 strokes yesterday with a handicap of 14.

COMING EVENTS.

Under this heading The Ledger will print single line notices of future happenings of interest to Quincy people. Secretaries of clubs, societies and other organizations are requested to forward to The Ledger notices of their meetings, entertainments, etc.

If a report of the entertainment is desired send to this office tickets for the use of the reporters which will guarantee a full and accurate account in The Ledger the next day.

TAKES PLACE OF DIAZ

De La Barra Is President Until General Election Can Be Held

Copyright by Clinedinst.

DE LA BARRA HOLDS REINS

Temporarily Assumes Position as the President of Mexico

Mexico City, May 27.—Francisco D. De La Barra has formally assumed the provisional presidency of the republic. He will act as the chief executive in succession to Porfirio Diaz until a general election can be held.

Senor De La Barra was escorted from the national palace to the chamber of deputies, where the oath of office was administered by the members of the staff of former President Diaz.

The staff officials had resigned days ago, but had asked permission to escort the provisional president to the scene of his inauguration.

LA FOLLETTE ENDS FOUR-DAY SPEECH

He Argues For New Senators to Try Lorimer

Washington, May 27. —After devoting practically the entire session yesterday to discussion of the proposed reinvestigation of the election of Senator Lorimer the senate adjourned without action. It will again take up the question at its sitting on Monday.

Senator Lorimer concluded his four-day speech and announced that when the voting stage is reached he will so change his resolution as to provide that the senate shall elect an investigating committee of five from among the new senators.

In his remarks La Follette attacked caucus rule and denounced the practice of selecting standing committees by caucuses as un-American. The next investigating committee, he felt, must have the confidence of the people, which he did not believe the old standing committee on privileges and elections would have.

MURDER CHARGE DROPPED

Boardman Is Held In Two Counts For Manslaughter

Boston, May 27.—Manslaughter is now the charge against Arthur L. Boardman, who shot and killed two men in his cigar store, 515 Main street, Charlestown, last Monday. He was brought into the Charlestown district court and the change was made from murder. He was held in $5000 on each count for the superior court.

At the hearing it was testified that the quarrel started when Arthur A. Munroe, an Elevated conductor, refused to pay for some cigarets. It was also stated that he had tried to drag the cash register from the counter, when Boardman fired.

TAKE TO THE WARPATH

Shoshone Indians Seek Revenge For Extermination of Marauders

Reno, Nev., May 27.—A large band of Shoshone Indians, heavily armed and with an extra supply of horses, has gone on the warpath near Little Canyon, 150 miles from Reno.

Word is momentarily expected to reach here that they have taken their first toll in blood for the extermination last February of Red Mike and his eight marauders by the state police.

Ionian Island Shaken

Athens, May 27.—An earthquake occurred at Santa Maura, one of the Ionian islands. Many houses were destroyed and a large number of persons injured.

MacVeagh Won't Quit Office

Washington, May 27.—Reports that Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh is to retire from the cabinet on July 1 are denied at the White House.

GLIDER MEET BEGINS TODAY

Saturday was Busy Day at the Aviation Field

Lively times are expected on the Squantum aviation field this week at the intercollegate glider meet which begins this afternoon and will continue through tomorrow. Saturday there were a large number of college boys on the field getting their machines in readiness. It is almost as much work to set up some of them as it would be to set up an ordinary biplane.

The Tech boys were the first to get their machine set up, and they gave it several trials from the gliding tower, but the wind was so strong and puffy that they were not very successful. E. N. Fales was the aviator.

From the brief flights which they took it was possible, however, to get a line on the defects of the machine. In the last flight the machine was slightly damaged.

The Volkmann school boys took their glider to the tower, but did not attempt to make a flight. It is a much larger glider than that of Tech and will be a little more difficult to manage in any kind of a wind, especially in coming down the steep inclined plane. In fact these gliders are rather ticklish affairs and it would not be very safe to be much more than 10 feet off the ground in any of them, and even then it requires a nice sense of balance to manipulate them.

The Harvard glider, injured in a trial flight a few days ago, is almost in readiness again. This machine cannot be run from the gliding tower owing to the length of the tail and the acute angle of the runway. The Swarthmore, the Tufts and the university of Pennsylvania gliders are also nearly ready for trial flights.

William Longfellow of Allston set up his new monoplane of the Bleriot type on the field Saturday. The two-cylinder rotary motor does not work in a wholly satisfactory manner as yet, and the chassis will have to be slightly altered.

Early in the evening, about 7 o'clock W. Starling Burgess and Charles K. Hamilton made three circles of the field in the Moth, Mr. Hamilton's Burgess-Wright biplane. Both Burgess and Hamilton will fly during the glider meet.

SAILORS SERVICE.

A service to the sailor soldier dead was conducted Saturday afternoon at Quincy Point by the Women's Relief corps under the direction of Mrs. Emma Marnock, president of the corps assisted by 52 children of the Washington school with Mrs. Ella Hayden of Corps 103 as organist. The program included a song "Nearer My God to Thee" by Mrs. Nason; patriotic recitation by Bert Reed, "America" by the children, recitation "Our Flag" by Mary Roche, "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" by the school, recitation "Blue and Gray" by Miss Nellie Jones, "Ere-fadeless the Old Glory" by Mrs. Nason, taps by George Moody, salute to the flag by the corps and the children. At the conclusion of the exercises flowers were cast upon the waters to the memory of the sailor soldiers who are buried in the sea.

LOST CHILD.

The lost child call was sounded at 3.40 Sunday afternoon to solicit aid in searching for the two year old son of John Clark of 32 Bunker Hill avenue who had been away from home since morning. The little fellow went roaming through the woods of the Blue Hills reservation. When the boy did not return for dinner his parents became alarmed and begun to search for him. No trace of him was found however and as a last resort the lost child call was sounded. Soon after word was received from Samuel McCormick of Break Neck hill that the boy was with him. Mr. McCormick found the boy near what is known as Pike's peak and brought him home. When the police call sounded McCormick immediately notified the police and the boy was returned home.

DECORATION DAY.

By an old veteran.

We decorate the soldier's grave
To commemorate the day
No nobler deed can be performed
To silent and pathetic clay.

Some sleep within their favored spot
Near the place where born and bred
And some within the soldiers' lot
Reserved for unknown dead.

But for those upon the firing line
Who sleep near where they fell
Unknown and unremembered
Their valor nofe excel.

And while the lamp holds out to burn
To light us on our way
May we to God our thanks return
On Decoration Day.

The veterans are decreasing fast
By thousands every year
And every day the flag half-mast
Doth drape some soldier bier.

And who will decorate his grave
When the time for him shall come
Ever loyal to his country's flag
Lone veteran—of '61.

When—the last call has been made
And the bugle laid away
To him who careth for us all
Leave Decoration Day.

GIRLS GOOD BALL TOSSERS

Game of Season Saturday at Mansion School

In one of the most thrilling encounters seen on a Quincy diamond this year, the Chuck-a-Lucks defeated the Quincy Mansion school team on Saturday by a score of 32 to 31 despite the efforts of the umpire, Mr. Delcevare King to have the result to the contrary. It was only after 10 innings of sharp fielding and fine team work that the Chuck-a-Lucks were able to win. The young ladies on the Mansion school team played well and did some remarkably good fielding and base running but the fast work of their opponents was too much for them and they had to go down in defeat.

At the end of three or four innings the girls were ahead but by a superhuman effort the Chuck-a-Lucks rallied and tied the score or passed them by a run or two. The battery for the Mansion school team worked splendidly and deserves a great deal of praise. Miss Eleanor Drinker, the pitcher, was very effective at times and had not less than 10 strikeouts. Miss Elsie Brown made an excellent backstop and caught several men stealing home. At the bat the battery was the terror of the Chuck-a-Lucks driving out three baggers and home runs with great persistence. Miss Rachael Drinker played well on first base making a number of difficult catches. Miss Priscilla Briggs played a strong game at second getting a number of put outs and coaching the other players with great proficiency. On third base, Miss Clarice Doble and Miss Margaret Kerr shared the honors and Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth played brilliantly at shortstop. In the field, Misses Margaret White, Florence Arnold and Sentiss Kerlin cut off numerous long hits and gave a very good account of themselves at the bat.

The Chuck-a-Lucks changed positions so frequently that it was difficult to keep track of them for three pitchers were knocked out of the box by the girls and it was with diffculty that Tom Hardwick held them at the end of the game. The boys played left handed, underhanded and tossed the ball. According to the rules drawn up by the umpire, the batsmen were advanced a base if one of the Chuck-a-Lucks touched the ball with his right hand.

A tennis ball was used and a cricket bat was pressed into service as a bat. The young ladies did some fine hitting especially in the first part of the game when several three baggers and a home run were recorded. The boys were not very good hitters but became quite proficient in bunting and resorted to that mode of hitting almost entirely. Percy Sears started the game for the Chuck-a-Lucks but he was knocked out of the box and Tom Hardwick went in. He was relieved by Winslow Sears a little later and Paul Blackmur took a hand for a couple innings. In the 8th inning Tom Hardwick returned to the box and held the home team for the remainder of the game. John Nolan coached the batsmen very ably from the catcher's box and Winslow Sears and Fred Thayer did effective work on first. Sam Sears was shortstop, Percy Sears, second base, Walter Binnian third, and in the field were Fred Thayer, John Nolan, Alden Blanchard, Paul Blackmur and Winslow Sears.

The umpire's dictum was absolute and his interpretation of the rules original. Russell Sears was score keeper. A large gallery of ladies, gentlemen and girls watched the combat from the steps and piazzas of the school building and cheered the fair defenders of the honor of the school most vociferously when occasion demanded.

During the game lemonade was served to the players. When the contest was over a number of pictures of the teams were taken and Mr. King was given a ride around the yard on the shoulders of the fellows. The members of the winning team were each given a broom with a bow of lavender ribbon on it and the losers each received a chantecleer hat and a box of Huylers. Cheers were interchanged frequently during the afternoon and at the close of the game. Mrs. Willard, Mr. King and the team were given rousing cheers by the Chuck-a-Lucks and the Mansion school team in like manner gave resounding huzzahs for the umpire and the opposing team. As the victors were spinning out of the yard carrying the spoils of victory in their hands there wafter back to the young ladies this Parthian arrow: Chuck-a-Luck, Chuck-a-Luck, Sis Boom Ah, Hippity, Hoppity, Rah, Rah, Rah.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In view of the fate of the premier of France we have concluded that the best place to watch an aeroplane flight is a well armored barn cellar.

President Taft has received $33, from a conscience stricken smuggler, but if it had been $33,000, it would never have bothered him.

The Green Bag says the Standard Oil decision shows no attempt to frustrate the will of Congress. That's a serious charge.

The Mexican Insurrectos are to be allowed to have all the arms they can pay for. Judging by their pictures, the gun makers will accept orders only on a cash basis.

1000 girls in the census office declined the ice cream treat offered by Mrs. John Hays Hammond. We believe this to be a unique instance in the history of the female sex.

Any old place that has water scenery enough to support a small colony of bull frogs is urging its claims on President Taft as the summer capitol.

The old Standard Oil crowd is fast passing away. What will happen when 26 Broadway falls into the hands of the present generation of flannel clothed and golf playing youngsters?

Gage, Ok., is to ring a town bell 10 minutes before every train leaves. With such conveniences, we have no doubt that the entire population will go down to see the 10 o'clock train go through.

The first state ball under King George's reign has been held. As the King did not do the barn dance, we feel that it is just as well that we wrote him that we could not be present.

POINTS FOR THE MOTORIST.

Nearly every motorist has experienced the exasperating task of locating small punctures in inner tubes. The following suggestions may serve to lighten his trouble when he next meets with such a mishap.

In the first place the tube should be examined carefully to determine if the puncture is large enough to be seen. If not immediately visible the perforation may be very small, no larged than a needle point and in this case it is much harder to locate.

Inflate the tube slightly and hold it near the ground. Very often if the road is dry the puncture may be detected by the disturbance of the dust made by the escaping air.

If this test cannot be made or if it does not discover the puncture, present each portion of the tube to your cheek until you can feel the rush of escaping air. These methods failing to locate the puncture your only course is to immerse the tube in a pan of water, section by section, and watch closely for air bubbles. Where these bubbles rise is the point of puncture.

Sometimes even the water test will give no indication of a leak yet when the tube is refitted and inflated, the air pressure will again decrease slowly. You may then be practically sure that the trouble starts near the nut at the base of the valve. This is assuming that all other valve parts are in good condition otherwise when the valve was immersed in water, bubbles would have indicated the leak. An invisible leak of the nature described could be produced by screwing the nut at the base of the valve too tightly, or not screwing it tight enough.

In either case it is safer to return the tube to the manufacturer, for it is not likely that the motorist can make a satisfactory repair.

If no puncture is found in the tube, it would be well to re-test the valve. This can be done while the tire is mounted on the wheel. Simply turn the wheel until the valve is pointing straight down and immerse the valve in a glass of water.

This is accomplished by raising the glass until the valve is submerged. If bubbles rise to the surface of the water, examine the rubber security disk at the bottom of the cap and if this is damaged fit a new one in its place. If you have no regular rubber disk, use instead a small leather washer or one made of cloth asmeared with cement.

The Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey, publishes in two volumes a complete instruction book on the care and repair of tires from which the above notes are taken. Copies of these volumes are sent free on request.

THE WEST'S FREE ACRES.

The free acres of the far West are beckoning the homeseekers this spring. For several months a continuous stream of land seekers has been pouring through the cities of St. Paul, Omaha, and Kansas City, enroute to the "Golden West." These land hungry citizens are recruited largely from the middle west, and a large percentage have already chosen their location and will establish homes upon arriving at their destination. A majority of these people are well supplied with money, having sold their farms at good prices. The West welcomes their coming for its greatest need is people.

The public lands of the nation are rapidly diminishing, but the loss of acres is more than made up by the creation of individual homes and cultivated fields which replace the wide expanses of unproductive country.

On all the irrigation projects of the Government the influx of settlers is large, so large in fact the engineers are unable to extend the canal systems rapidly enough to meet the demands for additional farms.

Today only four of the projects contain available Government farms for which water is ready. On all the projects the large holdings are being subdivided as required by law, and numerous opportunities are offered to purchase desirable lands in the midst of old established communities where the newcomer may enjoy a settled neighborhood, with schools, churches, roads, and first--class markets. These lands are attractive to men with ample means, as the hard work of getting desert land ready for cultivation is largely eliminated.

The Reclamation service at Washington is rendering valuable assistance in supplying information concerning the opportunities for homeseekers on the several irrigation projects. As long as these favorable opportunities exist our patriotic citizens have no excuse for leaving their own country to take up homes under a foreign flag.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

Francis Miles Finch.

By the flow of the inland river,
Whence the fleets of iron have fled,
Where the blades of the grave grass quiver,
Asleep are the ranks of the dead:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the one, the blue,
Under the other, the gray.

These in the robings of glory,
Those in the gloom of defeat,
All with the battle-blood gory,
In the dusk of eternity meet:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the laurel, the blue,
Under the willow, the gray.

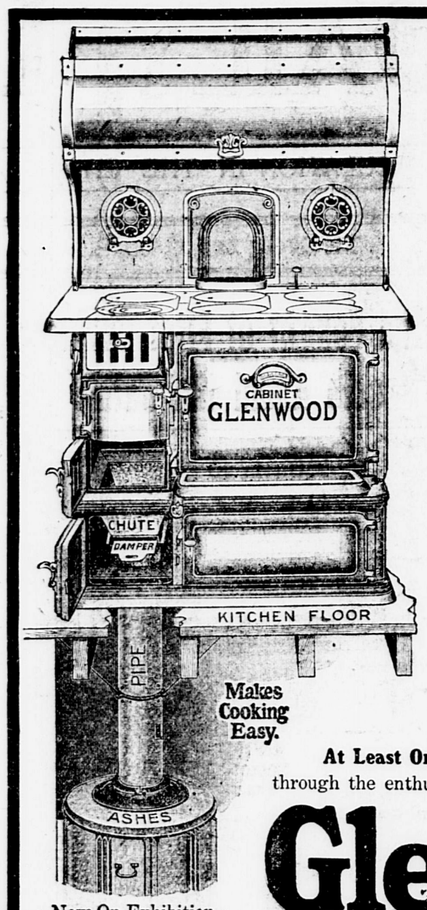
From the silence of sorrowful hours
The desolate mourners go,
Lovingly laden with flowers
Alike for the friend and the foe:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the roses, the blue,
Under the lilies, the gray.

So with an equal splendor
The morning sun rays fall
With a touch impartially tender,
On the blossoms blooming for all;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Broidered with gold, the blue,
Mellowed with gold, the gray.

So, when the summer calleth,
On forest and field of grain,
With an equal murmur falleth
The cooling drip of the rain:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Wet with the rain, the blue,
Wet with the rain, the gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding,
The generous deed was done,
In the storm of the years that are fading
No braver battle was won:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Under the blossoms, the blue,
Under the garlands, the gray.

No more shall the war cry sever
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead:
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Love and tears for the blue,
Tears and love for the gray.



Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

NATIONAL CHARITIES CONFERENCE.

Delegates from every state in the country ,from Canada, Mexico and Cuba,—over 2,000 in all—will be in Boston from June 7th to 14th during the 38th annual meeting of the National Conference of Charities and Correction. The Conference last met in Boston in 1880 under the presidency of Frank D. Sanborn. The local committee, under the chairmanship of John F. Moors has announced the preliminary program of the Conference, which will meet in Ford hall and Tremont Temple.

The first session, which convenes on Wednesday, June 7, will be addressed by Gov. Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, and Homer Folks, President of the Conference, ex-Commissioner of Charities of New York and Secretary of the New York State Charities Aid Association. The week's meetings will be divided among nine committees — Lawbreakers, Children, Drunkenness, Housing, Health and Recreation, Standards of Living, Securing Social Workers, the Church and Social Work, Families and Neighborhoods, State Supervision and Administration.

President Eliot will be the leading speaker at the Children's section, wherein he will read a paper on "Education in Sex Hygiene." Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, Director of the Boston School for Social Workers, will speak at the same session on "Care of Destitute Children in Boston," and Dr. George W. Goler of Rochester, N. Y., founder of the famous Rochester milk depots, will read a paper on "Medical Inspection of School Children."

Friday evening, June 9, Robert A. Woods of Boston, the Chairman of the Committee on Drunkenness, will preside, and a paper will be read by John Mitchell on "The Relation of the Liquor Question to the Labor Movemen." Other speakers will be Dr. S. M. Gregory, the founder of the Psycopathic Department in Bellevue Hospital, Prof. I. P. Hatton of Cleveland and Miss Alice L. Higgins of the Boston Associated Charities.

Lawrence Veiller of New York, the first tenement house commissioner of that city, is chairman of the Committee on Housing, Health and Recreation. Jacob A. Riis of New York, and Miss Mary E. Richmond of the Russell Sage Foundation, will deliver addresses on the different aspects of the housing problem, followed by a "Housing Symposium" which will include brief discussions of alleys, overcrowding, types of workingmen's homes, the enforcement of housing laws, and home owning by workingmen.

Dr. Richard Cabot, Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York City, Dr. W. A. Evans, head of the Chicago Department of Health, and Sherman C. Kingsley of the Chicago Bureau of Charities, will be the leading speakers in the health section. A moving picture "Health Demonstration" has been arranged, showing "The house fly as a carrier of disease," "The Campaign for pure milk," and "The fight against tuberculosis."

The Committee on Standards of Living and Labor will hold a general meeting on June 8, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Florence Kelley, the secretary of the National Consumers' League. Louis D. Brandeis will speak on "Standards of Provision for Old Age." and Paul U. Kellogg, Director of the Pittsburg Survey and editor of The Survey, on "Occupational Standards."

Miss Crystal Eastman, a member of the New York State Commission which "The Legan Aspects of Workingmen's sation Act, recently declared unconstitutional by the New York State Supreme Court, will read a paper on "The Legan Aspects of Morkingmen's Compensation," and Mrs. Raymond Robbins, who headed the shirtwaist strike in New York, will speak on "Standards of Payment for Women and Girls."

At another section meeting of the Committee on Standards of Living and Labor, the "Negro and Industry" will be discussed by Prof. Kelley Miller of Howard University and R. R. Wright of New York City.

The breadth of discussion of the National Conference is indicated by the section on "The Church and Social Work," which will be presided over by Rev. Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio. "The Function of the Church in Social Work" will be discussed by the Very Rev. William D. White, director of Catholic Charities in Brooklyn, Rev. Samuel McC. Crothers of Cambridge and Rabbi Moses Gries of Cleveland.

This Committee will conduct three section meetings, in which Rev. Charles Stelzle of the Department of Church and Labor of the Presbyterian Church, Rev. Frank Mason North of the Social Service Department of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. John Howard Melish of Trinity Church, Brooklyn, Rev. George Hodges of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, and Frederick Almy of Buffalo, N. Y., will speak.

When the National Conference last met in Boston the topics for discussion were devoted very largely to subjects of State administration. A committee of this year's Conference under the chairmanship of Rev. Francis Gavisk, of the State Board of Charities of Indianapolis, will have the same subject under consideration. Among the speakers will be Henry C. Wright of New York City, Dr. William S. Friedman of Denver, Robert W. Kelso, Secretary of the State Board of Charities of Massachusetts, George S. Wilson of Washington, D. C., and Allan D. Conover of Madison, Wisconsin.

The last general session of the Conference will be held on Wednesday evening, June 14, and will be in charge of the Committee on Families and Neighborhoods, with Porter R. Lee of Philadelphia, as chairman.

Edward T. Devine, Secretary of the New York Charity Organization Society, and head of the relief work which followed the Triangle shirtwaist fire, will be the leading speaker at this final meeting. Arthur H. Ham, who recently made a national investigation of loan sharks, Dr. Charles P. Emerson, the director of the Clifton Springs Sanatarium, and Robert Biggs, President of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of Baltimore, will be among the other speakers.

The Committee having charge of excursions has planned for a trip to Harvard University on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 14, and on one other afternoon of the week an excursion has been planned to two of the principal estates in Brookline, together with an all-day trip to Nantasket.

A CURE FOR DANDELIONS.

A reader of the Milton Record, who has had trouble in ridding his lawn of dandelions, sends the following remedy, which had its origin in a Colorado Agricultural college:

"Buy a few pounds of iron sulphate or copperas, which can be had at any drug store. Dissolve it in water in the proportion of one and a forth pounds to the gallon, and spray the lawn thoroughly with the s olution. It will not do to use a common sprinkler; to be most effective the solution must be put on in a fine spray, applied with some force. A common bucket spray pump is suitable providing it makes a fine forcible spray. Do not try to hit the dandelions only, but cover every square inch of lawn In this way all seedling plants will be killed, but the grass will be uninjured. Put on a second application in two or three weeks, and a third—possibly a fourth—late in summer if the dandelions start into growth again. The grass will be blackened for a short time but soon recovers, and after watering and mowing will be greener than before. Do not allow the copperas solution to get on cement or stone walks, as it produces a rather permanent yellow stain."—Milton Record.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Verdict of Jury Which Heard the Trial of Edwin Cook

Springfield, Mass., May 29.—Edwin F. Cook was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in the superior court for killing Herbert E White, in Ludlow, Feb. 13, 1910.

Cook, aged 22, and Lydia Amey aged 13, came to Springfield from the Adirondack region in New York, walking most of the way, in the fall of 1909. Cook found work in Springfield but the girl was taken from him by the Children's Aid society and placed with the White family.

Cook visited the White home and demanded that the girl be given up to him, but was refused, whereupon he shot White, who died four days later.

HUB FIREBUG ELUDES THE GRASP OF POLICE

Endangers Many Lives by Starting Another Blaze

Boston, May 29.—Residents of the North End put in another period of terror last night, due to the attempt of the firebug who has caused a reign of terror for the past few weeks in that section to burn up a tenement house at 16½ Cross street and endanger the lives of scores of men, women and children.

Despite the fact that for the past six weeks a police cordon of regular officers and plain clothes men has been thrown about the afflicted section, the firebug last night lived up to his reputation for fiendish activity and set a fire that caused several hundred dollars damage and caused injuries to two firemen.

Last night's blaze started in a pile of paper believed to have been placed in the hall under the stairway. It worked up to the roof and threatened with suffocation and death a score of tenants.

Wife Poisoner Who Has Lost $100,000 Going to Prison For Life

Spartanburg, S. C., May 29.—W. T. Jones, a rich planter, who will be taken to the penitentiary this week to begin a life term for poisoning his wife, has assigned his estate of 5000 acres to a trust company, as trustee with directions to use the income to pay his debts.

Attorney Sims, a lifelong friend of Jones, says that in an effort to recoup himself for the cost of his defense Jones speculated in cotton and wheat and was at first successful, but the tide turned and he lost $100,000.

Jones conducted his operations from the Union jail, where he has been confined since his wife's death on the night of July 4, 1908.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Water With Meals.

A difference of opinion has existed as to whether water should be drunk with food. Recent experiments have seemed to indicate that water may be drunk with benefit at mealtime. This is not finally settled, but it is certain that the practice of following a bit of food immediately with a mouthful of water or other liquid, washing it down without proper mastication and mixture with the saliva, is injurious. Children should especially be trained to avoid this habit. There is no doubt that in a case in which food is imperfectly masticated the drinking of a moderate amount of water slowly after eating would facilitate digestion, but the bit and sup habit is obviously bad.

TWO AERONAUTS FLY TO CHURCH

Unceremoniously Pay a Visit to Country Town

ACT COMMENDED IN SERMON

Minister Says They Set Powerful Example For Others Traveling Through Countryside on Sundays to Follow—Glidden and Van Valkenburg In an Early Morning Trip From Lowell to Topsfield

Boston, May 29.—Just as the people of Topsfield were getting ready for church yesterday morning two prominent Boston aeronauts dropped out of the sky, and after being helped by the church-goers to pack their balloon, as nonchalantly as if they had driven to church in their automobiles, attended services in the little Methodist church near the square.

Charles J. Glidden and John J. Van Valkenburg were the aeronauts. In the Methodist church in which they attended the Memorial day services, Rev. W. H. McLean, the pastor, made a brief reference to the feat, and remarked that the aeronauts by their church attendance had set a powerful example for others traveling by automobiles through the countryside on Sundays to follow.

The aeronauts started from Lowell, twenty miles distant. They announced to a group of friends who had assembled to witness their departure that they would land at some New England town or village and go to church. All would depend on the wind.

The ascension was made without a mishap and sailing eastward on a favoring breeze the balloon disappeared from the sight of the watchers.

When Glidden had attained a fair height he found so little wind that the balloon floated lazily along and had traveled about twenty miles when the sunrise disclosed the landscape beneath.

Two church spires loomed up at the same time that the aeronauts could see the sea glistening in the distance. Not caring to take any chances of a fresh breeze springing up with the sunrise, the aeronauts began to get ready to descend.

Many of the farmers were attending to their stock, and when the word was passed from house to house that a balloon was in sight, the morning chores were immediately dropped and all eyes were riveted on the huge airship.

Many of the farmers' sons chased through the roadways and fields to be on hand when the balloon landed and when the anchor rope was thrown out willing hands were ready to hold it and to draw the car safely to the ground. The landing was 300 feet from the Methodist church.

It was but a matter of minutes until the balloon was safely packed for shipment back to Lowell, and the aeronauts sought breakfast.

True to his promise made to his friends, Glidden, accompanied by Van Valkenburg, afterwards attended the services in the Methodist church.

"The trip was one of the most enjoyable I have ever made," said Mr. Glidden last night on his return to Boston. "We told our friends in Lowell that we would go to church in our balloon, but had not the slightest idea as to where we would go. We arose a height of 800 feet above Lowell and drifted to the eastward. Far away in the distance we could see the sea where it broke upon the rocky shores of Cape Ann.

"I believe that this is the first time that a balloon was ever used in New England to go to church with. The balloon we made the trip in was the 'Boston.'"

HEART TROUBLES HER

"Missouri Giantess" Is In Chicago For Medical Treatment

Chicago, May 9.—The tallest woman in the world has heart trouble. She came to Chicago for treatment.

She is 9 feet 1½ inches in height and weighs 385 pounds. Her name is Ella K. Ewing and she is famous as the "Missouri Giantess." Miss Ewing denied she expected to be married to a European giant.

This tallest of women lives at Gorin, Mo. She is 38 years old. She had intended to stay at the Auditorium hotel, but learned there was not a bed in the building large enough to accommodate a nine-foot sleeper.

DUEL WITH KNIVES

Combat Between Two Men Interrupted by the Police

Watertown, Mass., May 29.—Francisco Paparala and Frank Rich battled for nearly an hour last night, armed with knives, in a small room at 9A Mt. Auburn street, in a duel to settle a trivial dispute, which was prevented from being fatal by the timely arrival of the police.

The officers, summoned by neighbors who had tried to get into the locked room in which the two men were fighting, arrived just in time to save Paparala's life. He was severely cut in the neck, his arms were creased with slashes and his body gouged and scraped. Rich was also wounded, but not so severely, having a bad cut in his right arm.

Both men were taken to the police station, their wounds were dressed and they were locked up, charged with mutual assault with intent to kill.

HAMILTON FINDS HIMSELF

Cashier's Memory Refreshed by Reading of His Disappearance

Albany, May 29.—Ernest D. Hamilton, the missing cashier of the Southbridge, (Mass.) National bank, found himself at the railroad station here. He sat in the waiting room reading the story of his own disappearance, published in a newspaper, with his picture. He read it through and looked at the picture.

"That's me," he shouted. He walked across the room to a policeman and told him the same thing.

As it happened the policeman had just finished reading the same story. He gave Hamilton one look and then grabbed him.

Hamilton disappeared last Tuesday and a wide search has been made for him. He is mentally and physically exhausted.

NAMED TO SUCCEED ARCHBISHOP RYAN

Auxiliary Bishop Prendergast Promoted by the Vatican

Rome, May 29.—Rt. Rev. Edmund F. Prendergast, auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia, has been appointed archbishop of Philadelphia in succession to the late Aarchbishop Patrick J. Ryan, who died Feb. 11 last.

The appointment of Prendergast has caused great surprise here, as it was generally expected both in ecclesiastic and lay circles that Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college in Rome, would be chosen archbishop. As Kennedy is in high favor with the Vatican there is some speculation as to the reason for the change.

BENEDICT YACHT ASHORE

New York Banker and Friends Are Stranded Off Cuba

New Orleans, May 29.—A wireless message states that the yacht Virginia, belonging to E. C. Benedict, a New York banker, went ashore ninety miles north of Utlas Cay light, which is about ninety miles west of Havana. All are reported safe.

Benedict sailed in the steam yacht Virginia on April 5 last, for a two months' cruise up the Amazon river. His guests are Colgate Hoyt, James McCutcheon, Harry R. Shelley, Dr. F. M. Smith, H. E. Robinson, Lamont Dominick and Edward Beers.

The Virginia is a steel yacht, 200 feet over all, 165 feet water line, 26 feet beam and 16 feet draft, and is equipped with a wireless outfit. It is one of the most famous yachts in American waters.

BANKER IS THREATENED

Appeals to Police to Protect Him From Black Hand Writer

Boston, May 29.—Leonardo Squilliacotto, a North End Italian banker, has appealed to the police for protection against the attack threatened in a letter he recently received ordering him to give up $1000 under penalty of death.

The time set for the deposit of the $1000 under a stone specified in the letter, near the sidewalk on Bristow street, Lynn, was Saturday night. Acting under police instructions he failed to make the deposit demanded in the mysterious letter mailed in Lynn, and he is in constant fear of murderous assault.

TOBACCO TRUST RULING

Supreme Court Is Expected to Make It Public Today

Washington, May 29.—After a four years' contest, the so-called "Tobacco trust case" will probably be disposed of today.

Many regard this case as the most complicated suit that has ever reached the supreme court, as a result of the Sherman anti-trust act. Instead of there being only one combination to be dealt with, as in the Standard Oil case, the lower court held that there were five unlawful combinations.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Water With Meals.

A difference of opinion has existed as to whether water should be drunk with food. Recent experiments have seemed to indicate that water may be drunk with benefit at mealtime. This is not finally settled, but it is certain that the practice of following a bit of food immediately with a mouthful of water or other liquid, washing it down without proper mastication and mixture with the saliva, is injurious. Children should especially be trained to avoid this habit. There is no doubt that in a case in which food is imperfectly masticated the drinking of a moderate amount of water slowly after eating would facilitate digestion, but the bit and sup habit is obviously bad.

TWO AERONAUTS FLY TO CHURCH

Unceremoniously Pay a Visit to Country Town

ACT COMMENDED IN SERMON

Minister Says They Set Powerful Example For Others Traveling Through Countryside on Sundays to Follow—Glidden and Van Valkenburg In an Early Morning Trip From Lowell to Topsfield

Boston, May 29.—Just as the people of Topsfield were getting ready for church yesterday morning two prominent Boston aeronauts dropped out of the sky, and after being helped by the church-goers to pack their balloon, as nonchalantly as if they had driven to church in their automobiles, attended services in the little Methodist church near the square.

Charles J. Glidden and John J. Van Valkenburg were the aeronauts. In the Methodist church in which they attended the Memorial day services, Rev. W. H. McLean, the pastor, made a brief reference to the feat, and remarked that the aeronauts by their church attendance had set a powerful example for others traveling by automobiles through the countryside on Sundays to follow.

The aeronauts started from Lowell, twenty miles distant. They announced to a group of friends who had assembled to witness their departure that they would land at some New England town or village and go to church. All would depend on the wind.

The ascension was made without a mishap and sailing eastward on a favoring breeze the balloon disappeared from the sight of the watchers.

When Glidden had attained a fair height he found so little wind that the balloon floated lazily along and had traveled about twenty miles when the sunrise disclosed the landscape beneath.

Two church spires loomed up at the same time that the aeronauts could see the sea glistening in the distance. Not caring to take any chances of a fresh breeze springing up with the sunrise, the aeronauts began to get ready to descend.

Many of the farmers were attending to their stock, and when the word was passed from house to house that a balloon was in sight the morning chores were immediately dropped and all eyes were riveted on the huge airship.

Many of the farmers' sons chased through the roadways and fields to be on hand when the balloon landed and when the anchor rope was thrown out willing hands were ready to hold it and to draw the car safely to the ground. The landing was 300 feet from the Methodist church.

It was but a matter of minutes until the balloon was safely packed for shipment back to Lowell, and the aeronauts sought breakfast.

True to his promise made to his friends, Glidden, accompanied by Van Valkenburg, afterwards attended the services in the Methodist church.

"The trip was one of the most enjoyable I have ever made," said Mr. Glidden last night on his return to Boston. "We told our friends in Lowell that we would go to church in our balloon, but had not the slightest idea as to where we would go. We arose a height of 800 feet above Lowell and drifted to the eastward. Far away in the distance we could see the sea where it broke upon the rocky shores of Cape Ann.

"I believe that this is the first time that a balloon was ever used in New England to go to church with. The balloon we made the trip in was the 'Boston.'"

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Annouuncements For Coming Week

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. H. A. Weston of Randolph occupied the pulpit of the First church Sunday in exchange with Rev. C. B. Ames, Rev. Mr. Weston preached an interesting sermon on the Creative genius of man. In the chapel at noon a special Memorial day service was held under the direction of Supt. C. H. Johnson. This service was attended by a delegation from Paul Rever Post 88, G. A. R., the Spanish War Veterans and Women's Relief Corps.

The program included the singing of patriotic songs by the Sunday school, addresses by Commander Ring and Past Commander Phillips of the Grand Army. Commander Carman and Past Commander Wardwell of the Spanish War Veterans and the reading of a patriotic poem by Mrs. Blaisdell of the Women's Relief Corps.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

A powerful patriotic sermon was delivered by the pastor Rev. Joseph Walther. Subject: "The Three Great Conflicts of American History" based on 1 Timothy 6:12. "Fight the good fight of the faith, lay hold on the life eternal."

At 12.15 eighty men of the Walther and Rand Men's classes under the leadership of A. D. Albee sang inspiring patriotic songs, and were addressed by comrade L. K. Marden of Boston on "Present day battles."

The Junior Endeavor meeting which has usually been held at 3.30 will be discontinued for the rest of the season. The Juniors are cordially invited to attend the Senior meeting.

Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was held at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Missions in Japan and Corea."

Evening worship at 7 o'clock in the auditorium. Short sermon by the pastor. Subejct: "An Old Testament Model for Present Day Believers."

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street. Deacon George A. Brown will lead.

Wednesday evening at 7.30 the standing committee will meet in the chapel, all those who desire to be baptized should be present at this meeting.

Wednesday evening at 8 a meeting for stewards and other workers of "the World in Boston" will be held in Tremont Temple. The program will include a service of Thanksgiving at which the Rev. A. M. Gardner, Mr. E. B. Keith and others will speak and addresses regarding the Continuation Work by Rev. F. P. Haggard, D. D., Rev. D. Brewer Eddy and others. Dr. Samuel B. Capen will preside and solos from the pageant will be sung by the leading performers

Friday evening at 7.45 the Monthly Covenant meeting of the church will be held in the chapel. All the members of the church are urged to be present at this meeting and to help make it a source of power and blessing.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

On Sunday morning at the Wollaston Unitarian church Rev. Carl G. Horst preached a powerful sermon for international peace taking for his text "Blessed are the peace makers."

At the close of the service the following resolutions were adopted by a unanimous vote. Copies of the same will be sent to President Taft, Sir Edward Grey and to our representatives in the national senate.

"We, the members of the Unitarian society of Wollaston, Massachusetts gathered together for divine worship at our church on this Sabbath morning do express our heartfelt approval of the action of President Taft in declaring for international abitration and especially of his untiring efforts to promote a treaty of arbitration between our country and Great Britain.

"We earnestly appeal to all men and women to use all the influence they can exert to bring about the accomplishment of the proposed treaty so that war between our two great people so closely allied may be rendered, so far as it lies in our power henceforth and forever impossible.

"We believe that the president's declaration endorsed so earnestly and in such an inspiring manner by Sir Edward Grey has cleared the way for the first great step toward peace and good will among nations and we do reverently pledge ourselves, each and all to aid in every possible way this great and good work of making real upon earth the brotherhood of man.

The fourth annual Unitarian lawn party will be held on Safford street Saturday, June 10, afternoon and evening. A large number of committees is at work and extensive preparations are made to make this annual fete the great social event of the year in Wollaston.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers hold their last meeting of the season in the vestry, Thursday at 2 P. M.

The summer meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held with the Unitarian church in Needham Wednesday, June 7.

The Rev. Carl G. Horst has gone to West Upton to officiate at the funeral of Mrs. Leander A. Snow, a faithful member of the Unitarian church of that place.

Sunday, June 18. will be observed as Children's Sunday. A large number of children will be christened this year.

A cordial invitation is extended to our church people to attend the laying of the cornerstone of the new Park and Downs Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This church was organized by some of the members of our parish as the Park and Downs Union society and was to have unsectarian preaching. At one of the parish meetings a number of evangelicals were admitted to membership and these, outnumbering the liberal Christians, voted to turn the Independent Union society into a Congregational church.

At the morning service of worship the minister preached on "Arbitration" from the text "Blessed are the peacemakers." After the service the entire congregation inspired by the stirring sermon passed resolutions, welcoming the news that a treaty of arbitration is under the consideration of the government of the United States and Great Britain and pledging themselves to further the cause of peace in the world.

CALVARY BAPTIST.

The pastor was welcomed back to the church with much rejoicing Sunday morning after an absence of two weeks on account of illness.

His sermon was the third on the Beatitudes, " Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth."

The Sunday school services were well attended and the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was also attended by a goodly number. Mr. Gray led the meeting and gave the young people some inspiring thoughts.

The Junior C. E. meeting at four o'clock was conducted by Mrs. Davis and was attended by the usual number of children.

In the evening the pastor conducted the services to which members of all the patriotic organizations of the city were invited.

The organist, Miss Blodwen Walters played a march voluntary as the members of Paul Revere post, the Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans and their Auxiliary, and the Spanish War Veterans and Auxiliary entered the church. Congregational singing was led by a big chorus under the direction of Robert Farquhar and a solo was sung by Mrs. Hayden The scripture read by the pastor was found in 2nd Sam. 10:12 "Courage, when and where needed" was the subject of the sermon delivered by Mr. Davis and it was an inspired and inspiring address. After giving a cordial welcome to all the organizations represented Mr. Davis said that he could feel the subject very close to his heart for he himself was a son of a veteran and his father had often told him of the great war. The first part of the sermon was devoted to treating courage as displayed in the past. Our country was a country of liberty and our fathers displayed great courage in procuring it for us. Some of you men had to display courage in preserving it and in giving freedom to those who were dependent upon us. In speaking of the need of courage today he emphasized the need of moral as well as physical courage. After the war all the veterans gathered at Washington for the grand review and the roll call of troops showed many missing. In the great hereafter, there will be a grand review of a different kind and we want to see to it that we are there to answer to the roll call. In speaking of our duty with regard to patriotism, Mr. Davis said that it was the duty of every parent to teach his children the meaning of Memorial day. In Israel, the people made heaps of stone to mark the days of special significance so that the children could have as a heritage from their parents, something to remember the events of the past by. We too should emphasize more than we do these days set aside to honor those who have gone before whose lives were consecrated to the service of their country and their God.

The church was handsomely decorated with flags and flowers.

The Y. P. S. C. E. business meeting and social will be held at the home of Miss Minnie Trask, Pleasant street, this evening at 7.30.

The Bible study class will meet at the church Tuesday evening at the usual hour.

The regular mid-week meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.30. The subject will be "Divine Service" "What is it?"

SWEDISH METHODIST.

The pastor preached at the morning service taking his text from John 21:16. Jesus said to Peter: 'Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me." The subject of the discourse was "Love of Jesus." Harry Anderson sang a solo which was well received.

The Sunday school services were conducted by William Gelotte. David Wollander led the Epworth league meeting.

In the evening the pastor preached from the text Ex. 14:15. "And the Lord said unto Moses, 'Why criest thou unto me?" Miss Olga Olson sang a splendid solo.,

The choir will meet to rehearse the music for the Jubilee Wednesday evening at 7.30.

The committee from the Ladies Aid society which is to arrange for the Festival will meet at the home of the pastor Wednesday evening at 7.45.

The regular prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening at 7.45.

BETHANY CHURCH.

Rev. Langley B. Sears of Charlestown gave two very fine sermons at the services yesterday. In the morning the attendance was good and excellent music was furnished by the choir. In the evening Mr. Sears was especially good giving a sermon on "Loyalty." He spoke of the different kinds of loyalty and emphasized the superlative loyalty required of followers of Christ. Mr. Sears gave several splendid new thoughts in connection with the choice of subject for loyalty and urged his hearers to cleave to the higher things in making their choice. Mr. Sears will be the regular supply during the summer.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was led by Miss Annie Sandison and was well attended.

The Momen's Missionary society will meet on Wednesday. Mrs L. E. Wetherell will give a review of the book. The Immigrant Tide, its ebb and flow.

The regular mid week prayer meeting will be held on Thursday. Subject: "The joy of thinking.

A lawn party will be held at the home of Miss Saunders, Franklin street, Saturday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the King's Daughters.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL

The pastor spoke to a good sized audience in the morning taking his theme from Col. 3:1-10. "The Higher or the Lower Life?" was the topic of his sermon. Two selections were rendered by the male choir.

In the evening the pastor preached on "The work of the Church Universal." The audience was not as large as in the morning. The male choir gave two fine selections.

The monthly meeting of the church will be held this evening at 7.30.

The regular prayer meeting will be held at 7.30 Thursday evening.

A business meeting of the Young Peoples society will be held in the church Saturday evening at 7.30.

QUINCY POINT CHURCH.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor delivered an exceptionally fine sermon on the subject "War and Peace" taking his text from the beatitude "Blessed are the Peacemakers." The day has been called Peace Sunday and all the service was along the line of peace. The mixed choir under the direction of Mr. T. B. Pollard sang several appropriate selections.

In the evening the pastor delivered another excellent sermon on "Heroes."

The regular mid-week meeting will be held Froiday evening at the usual hour.

CHRIST CHURCH

The morning service was attended by a large body of the members of Paul Revere post and the Women's Relief Corps, The Sons of Veterans and the Spanish War Veterans and their auxiliaries. Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, the rector gave an unusually fine sermon on "Battles in War and in Peace. His text was taken from Heb. 11:34. In bringing the subject down to the present day he spoke of those who in times past had "quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight turned to flight the armies of t he aliens." He spoke feeling of the great civil strife which threatened to sever the strands which united the nation and illustrated with accounts of the greates battles the horror and glory, sorrow and joy and the results of the mighty conflict of brother against brother. In speaking of the batles of peace he emphasized the many differences between a moral and a physical conflict The lack of picturesqueness and the lack of tangibility in the former sometimes lead us to believe that it is less important but the victory in a battle of peace is by far the greater.

In the evening Rev. R. F. Cheney of St. Marks, Southboro preached a fine sermon.

The last meeting of the season for the Boys' Club will be held Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

The third organ recital will be given in the church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Wrigley will be the organist and Mrs. James H. Slade the vocalist. Mr. Wrigley will play the "Storm" by request.

St. Margaret's Guild will hold the last meeting of the season in the Parish house, Friday evening at 7.30 The election of officers will take place after which here will be a closing party at which an unusually good time is promised.

"A diller, a dollar, a nine o'clock school, what makes you come so soon?
Now you come at nine o'clock, you used to come at noon."
"Since mama washes with Fels-Naptha soap, she has plenty of time,
And always gets me ready, to come to school at nine."

Fels-Naptha Soap won't gather your soiled clothes, put them to soak, rinse them and hang them out on the line.

But that's about all it leaves you to do with the weekly washing.

It takes the place of boiling and hard rubbing and takes all the dread out of washday.

It saves your making a hot fire because Fels-Naptha Soap cleanses the clothes in cool or lukewarm water.

No stewing over a hot suds.

No roughening or reddening of the hands.

Isn't it worth while? Both in Winter and Summer.

More than a million women are doing their washing with Fels-Naptha Soap every week and thanking their lucky stars that they've found a so-much-easier way.

Better join them now.

All that's necessary is to get a cake of Fels-Naptha and follow directions printed on the red and green wrapper.

GATES TELLS STEEL SECRETS

Admits That Trust's Purpose Is to Choke Competition

U. S. CORPORATION WAS BORN

Carnegie's Plans Alarmed Morgan and Steel King Got Twice the Sum He Originally Asked For His Interests —Rockefeller Frozen Out When He Attempted to Enter Steel Business—Other Interesting Revelations

Washington, May 29.—Relating how Andrew Carnegie was forced to abandon plans for extending his steel business, John W. Gates frankly admitted to the house investigating committee the gigantic industrial combination known as the "steel trust" was formed to throttle competition, and he surprised the committee with the further information that when John D. Rockefeller sought to enter the steel business a deal was put through by which the Standard Oil magnate was forced to sell out for 40 cents on the dollar.

Characterizing Carnegie as "a bull in a china shop," Gates told of a midnight conference between himself, Charles M. Schwab and J. P. Morgan, at which the steel corporation was conceived, and how it resulted in Carnegie's getting $320,000,000 in the corporation's securities for his steel interests, which he had previously offered for $160,000,000 in cash.

Mr. Gates' revelations gave an illuminating history of the United States Steel corporation.

Having been at the birth of the greatest steel manufacturing concern in the world, he described how it was the natural outcome of what he described as the refusal of Carnegie to be bound by the "gentlemen's agreements" which marked the early days of open competition in the steel business.

He told also of millions lost and created, almost in a breath; how the Carnegie mills, being appraised at $160,000,000, were recognized as worth $320,000,000 almost within the time required to make the transfer to the corporation; the grim clash in the formative days when John D. Rockefeller was dissuaded from joining in the creation of the corporation, and the manner in which others were prevented from engaging in the steel trade.

Mr. Gates also told the committee of the taking over of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation during the panic of 1907, a deal in which he was interested as a stockholder of the Tennessee company. This, he declared, was a forced transaction, carried out by Morgan and other financial leaders to save from ruin the Trust Company of America, threatened by the fiancial upheaval because it had loaned too much money on stock of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company.

Plans made by Carnegie in 1899 and 1900 to circle his steel interests with a railroad of his own and to compete with the National Tube company, just organized by Morgan, by the erection of a tube works at Ashtabula, O., were the factors that led to the birth of the steel combine. Gates revealed how Morgan learned of Carnegie's plans, sought the advice of himself and James J. Hill; how Schwab, who, he said, was the only man who had influence with Carnegie, was called in to suggest a way to "stop Carnegie," and how the pioneer steel king of the country was curbed in his purpose, though greatly to his financial gain. He explained that the steel business was threatened with several demoralizing forces when Carnegie's plans became known, and that Morgan and others became alarmed and feared that Carnegie would demoralize both railroad interests and steel prices.

This was the situation as described by Gates, who is himself now a director in the Republic Iron and Steel company, when Morgan sent word to him through James J. Hill seeking a consultation to determine what could be done. Gates said he told Morgan that Schwab was the one man who could influence Carnegie. Out of that arose an all-night conference at Morgan's New York home, the outcome of which was the United States Steel corporation.

John D. Rockefeller's name came up in the hearing when Gates was describing Carnegie's desires to branch out after the organization of the National Tube company.

"Do you believe there is any tangible value in the common stock you hold?" Gates was asked.

"That I decline to answer," said Gates.

After Gates had described the obligations of the steel trust and told of the bonds of the concerns taken over the first mortgage bonds paid to Carnegie and bonds to cover purchase mortgages and prior leins, Chairman Stanley asked him:

"What is the tangible property behind those bonds and behind the common and preferred stock?"

"Oh, anywhere from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000," Gates replied.

MAY LOSE HIS POSITION

Hitch In Confirmation of Attorney Lewis' Appointment

Washington, May 29.—William H. Lewis of Boston, assistant United States attorney general, is said by members of the senate judiciary committee to be in danger of losing his position through the failure of the senate to confirm him. The commission sent to congress by the president says that Lewis is to be assistant attorney general in charge of Indian depredation cases.

The committee is about to take the position, it is said, that there is not enough of this litigation for an assistant attorney general, but that it should be handled by a special attorney. The confirmation has now been delayed practically two months, and is no nearer favorable action than it was in the beginning.

COLLEGE ATHLETES SET NEW FIGURES

Cornell Far In Lead In the Intercollegiate Meet

Cambridge, Mass., May 29.—Cornell's track team, reaping a harvest of 30½ points on Soldiers field, won the twenty-sixth annual intercollegiate championships, taking the honors of a great track and field contest. Five intercollegiate records were broken and three equalled.

J. P. Jones of Cornell made a new world's record, 4 minutes, 15 2-5 seconds, in the mile.

Ralph Craig of Michigan won both sprints, equalling his own world's record in the furlong dash.

George Chisholm of Yale captured both hurdle events, and Horner of Michigan made a new intercollegiate record in the shot put.

H. S. Babcock of Columbia defeated Yale's great pole vaulters and made a new intercollegiate record.

Cornell won the meet on account of the superiority of her distance runners, Berna of Cornell making a new record in the two-mile run.

LITTLEFIELD IS ACQUITTED

Man Charged With Killing His Mother Proves an Alibi

Newport, R. I., May 29.—Ex-State Senator Frank Littlefield of Block island was found not guilty of the murder of his mother, Mrs. Ann E. Littlefield, and was immediately discharged from custody.

The defendant presented an alibi which so impressed Judge Franklin of the district court, before whom the case was heard, that he made his finding immediately the attorneys had finished presenting their cases.

Mrs. Littlefield was found dead at the foot of the cellar stairs in her home in New Shoreham and the son was placed under arrest, charged with having caused her death.

LONG STRIKE SETTLED

Fifteen Hundred Men Have Been Idle Nearly Two Years

Springhill, N. S., May 29.—Announcement is made of the settlement of the coal miners' strike, which has been in progress for nearly two years.

This announcement means that 1500 men who have been idle since the strike begun will soon return to work. The strike was declared to secure union recognition and during its early stages was marked by much violence, necessitating the calling out of the militia on several occasions.

Agassiz Left Large Estate

Boston, May 29.—An inventory of the estate of Alexander Agassiz, made in connection with the adjustment of legacy and succession taxes, has been filed. It places a valuation of $2,267,851 on the personal estate and of $205,973 on the real estate as of date of death.

UNIFORM MILK LAWS LIKELY

To Result From Extensive Probe by Government

CONDITIONS IN UP-COUNTRY

Producers In New Hampshire and Vermont Who Are Not Amenable to Stringent Massachusetts Laws Will Receive Special Attention—Milk to Be Raised to the Regular Winter Rate on July 1

Boston, May 29.—That the activity of the United States government will be extended far beyond its present scope of investigation of milk carriers and dealers, and will eventually bring about uniform laws affecting all New England, and putting other states under regulations similar to those now in force in Massachusetts, is learned from those close to the situation.

Within a few days, it is declared, special agents from Washington will arrive in Boston to begin an independent investigation, which will especially be directed at alleged uncleanly conditions that exist among the producers in New Hampshire and Vermont, who are not amenable to the stringent laws of Massachusetts.

The discovery, however, is but one of the developments following closely on the heels of the wholesale indictment by the federal grand jury of six of the so-called "milk barons," who control 86 percent of the milk supply of Boston and New England.

William A. Hunter, clerk of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association, and one of those indicted for conspiracy in restraint of trade, announces that a secret meeting of the association, which represents approximately 6000 farmers, was held at the American house in this city and that the price of milk to the dealers is to be raised 7 cents a can—up to the regular winter rate—on July 1, regardless of whose pocket will have to pay the increase.

In speaking of the indictment he said that in view of the recent Standard Oil decision he and those he represents have nothing to fear, and that nothing he or they had done was in restraint of trade.

Simultaneously Mayor Fitzgerald came to the front with a claim for the credit of inaugurating the movement that has resulted in the indictment of the big dealers.

Hearings held in his office, the creation of the dairy inspection bureau, his selection of Dr. Mullowney for its head, were among the things on which the claim is based.

Dr. Mullowney was loath to comment on the matter, declaring he did not in any way wish to prejudice the case. He believed, however, the whole matter would probably serve to give confidence to the small producers, some of whom in the past have claimed they were unable to dispose of their product because of the alleged "trust."

FOSS SIGNS 54-HOUR BILL

Eight-Hour Measure Also Becomes a Law In Bay State

Boston, May 29.—Governor Foss signed the so-called fifty-four-hour and eight-hour bills at 5:40 Saturday afternoon.

The eight-hour bill provides that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for employes on public works.

The fifty-four-hour bill provides for a fifty-four-hour week for women and children working in factories, and in a statement issued by the governor, after he had made both bills law, he said that in signing the bill he was greatly influenced by an agreement, in the form of a communication, from prominent textile workers in Fall River and New Bedford, who pledged themselves to stop agitation for shorter working hours.

PAWTUCKET'S BOY LEPER

Foss Will Ask Law to Admit Sheridan to Penikese Island

Boston, May 29.—Governor Foss is to take a hand in the Sheridan leper case, and it may mean the Pawtucket boy will go after all to Penikese island, where there is another boy about the same age, who would be his companion.

Governor Foss has asked an opinion of the attorney general if a boy from another state can be transferred to Penikese. The attorney general says he cannot, and the governor will ask for special legislation to allow the boy this privilege.

FATAL JUMP FROM BUGGY

Man Lands on His Feet, but Severe Impact Breaks His Neck

Lancaster, Pa., May 29.—Christian Risser of Penryn drove to Manheim to meet his wife returning from a visit. Encountering a parade, his frightened horse bolted and the bit broke.

Risser leaped from his buggy, landing squarely on his feet, but so violently that his neck was broken and he died instantly. His wife heard the news when she got off the train.

ARDOR IS DAMPENED

Democrats Likely to Abandon Proposed Woolen Investigation

Washington, May 27.—Something has happened to dampen the ardor of the Demoratic members of the house who proposed to start an investigation of the American Woolen company. Present indications are that the company will not be the subject of an investigation at this session of congress.

When Representative Francis of Ohio introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the Woolen company it was referred to the committee on rules. That committee was prepared to make a favorable report on the resolution provided Francis could show the necessity for an inquiry.

Chairman Henry of the rules committee says the committee does not feel that it is called upon to take the initiative in the matter, and unless Francis makes a strong argument in behalf of his resolution it will rest quietly in the rules committee.

NEW MARRIAGE LAW

Elopers Cannot Hurriedly Wed In the Granite State

Concord, N. H., May 27.—The new law compelling notice of five days to the city clerk before he can issue a marriage license, enacted by the legislature at the recent session, goes into effect on June 1, and City Clerk Chamberlain is expecting trouble on and after that date.

The purpose of the legislature was to prevent couples from Massachusetts and other states coming across the border to be married expeditiously in New Hampshire, without restrictions as to the issuance of the license necessary.

Under the provisions of the new law a court can order the issuance of a license forthwith, but it is probably that very few will avail themselves of that remedy.

YOUTH HELD FOR BLACK HAND NOTE

Wrote Threatening Letter Demanding $1000

Lynn, Mass., May 27.—On the charge that he wrote a letter to Alden B. Sleeper, a rich manufacturer of Swampscott, demanding $1000, for the refusal of which he would have the blood of his two sons, Charles Bachelder, 17 years old, of Swampscott, was trapped by the police and arrested after they had laid in wait for him since midnight Wednesday. The police say Bachelder has confessed.

Bachelder was arraigned before Judge Sweetser. He was charged with attempted blackmail through the writing of a "Black Hand" letter. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000 bail for a hearing.

The letter received by Sleeper ordered him to place a pocketbook containing $1000 in cash under a stringer of the Boston and Maine railroad bridge that crosses the state highway in Swampscott.

HEAVY FINE FOR CONTEMPT

Costs a Woman $1933 For Failure to Keep Promise to Court

New York, May 27.—What was said to be the largest fine for contempt of court recorded in this state against a woman was imposed by Justice Schmuck in the city court.

Mrs. Sophie Shapiro, a real estate dealer, was the defendant and she was fined $1933, which includes a judgment of $1428 against her husband. Mrs. Shapiro's failure to make good her declaration that she could produce twenty-five witnesses to prove she was motoring at a time when she was alleged to have been served with a court order was responsible for the fine. She disregarded the order and was given an opportunity to prove that she had not been served, but produced no witnesses to substantiate her claim.

GUILTY OF HERESY

Charges Against Grant Sustained by Presbyterian Assembly

Atlantic City, May 27.—Rev. Dr. William D. Grant of Northumberland, Pa., has been voted guilty of heresy by the judicial commission of the Presbyterian general assembly. The verdict was reached after many hours of stormy discussion.

The commission reported to the general assembly, recommending leniency and suspension. Excommunication will not be demanded.

Dr. Grant's conviction has caused no end of talk. There is talk among his friends of opposing the verdict on the floor of the general assembly and demanding his exoneration.

SUNDAY SERVICES

WEST QUINCY M. E.

Sunday morning a Mother's Day service was held at the Hall Place M. E. church at 10.30. Music bearing on the sentiment of Mother was sung.

"Just before the battle mother" with solo by Miss Olive Grant was rendered by the choir. "Where is my wandering boy tonight" was also sung with solo by choir and chorus by congregation.

The solo of "Tell mother I'll be there" was sung by Miss Hilda Francis and the chorus by the congregation.

The pastor took for his text Math. 23-37. "How often would I have gathered thy children together even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings and ye would not." He showed the appropriateness of his text in connection with the subject of "Mother's Day" by comparing the qualities of the true mother with some of the feminine qualities of Jesus Christ, and by showing the masculine and faminine qualities combined in Christ, especially at the time he uttered the words of the text.

Sunday school was held at 12 M and Junior League at 3 P. M.

A splendid Epworth League Devotional service was held in the vestry at 6.15. Miss Hilda Francis led the meeting on "The Proof of Faith." A large number were present. The presence of some of the Cabinet officers of the Pilgrim Union proved an inspiration and help to many and meeting was one of the best this year.

A patriotic service was held in the evening. The pastor spoke on the text "Nation shall not lift up a sword against nation neither shall they learn war any more." He spoke of the time when universal peace shall reign over every nation. The music was appropriate to the occasion and was well sung.

PARK AND DOWNS CHURCH.

The pastor delivered a fine sermon at the Sunday morning service taking for his subject, "Sympathy." Two anthems were rendered by the choir and Mrs. Musgrave sang a solo. The audience was large.

Mrs. M. E. Gammons a missionary from China spoke at the Y. P. S. C. E meeting and gave a very interesting discourse on China.

In the evening the pastor gave an excellent address on character building. Mr. Bishop sang a fine solo.

There will be a meeting of the Sunday school board Wednesday evening.

The regular prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

The corner stone will be laid next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Delegates from all the neighboring Congregational churches will be present. there will be special music, speeches by well known ministers and laymen. The meeting will be held on the floor of the new church if the weather is good. Otherwise it will be held in the basement which will be finished off by that time.

WOLLASTON M. E.

Rev. Wesley Wiggin pastor of the Wollaston M .E. church preached a Memorial sermon Sunday morning. In the evening Rev. J. Mills of Montana spoke on the story "Lazarus." He has been 29 years a missionary, and twelve years a presiding elder, out in Montana.

All those who took part in the World in Boston will meet in the vestry this evening at 7.30. Miss Rea, will be present.

There will be an Epworth League rally in First church, Temple street, Boston, Wednesday night at 8.00.

Friday night will be the regular week night service for prayer at 7.45.

Board meeting same evening at 8.45.

The ladies will hold another food sale Satruday afternoon.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

The pastor preached in the morning from the theme: The relation of the world to the Kingdom of God."

In the evening the topic of his address was the "Ascension of Christ."

A June festival will be held in the church Thursday evening. A literary and musical program will be given and refreshments will be served.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Duncan McPhee secretary of the Evangelical Alliance preached at the morning service, taking for his text "Lord, let it alone for this year also." The sermon was a general one on Christian service was special emphasis on prayer and bearing fruit in Christ's vineyard.

In the evening Rev. Dr. Kellogg general secretary of the N. E. Conservatory of Music gave a fine sermon from the text Rev. 21:16. Mr. McLean sang "He giveth His beloved sleep" in a very pleasing manner.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting Mrs. James A. Matheson gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Corea, its land and its people."

Dr. McLennan D. D. of Boston will preach at the Thursday evening meeting under the auspices of the Men's League.

Rev. A. M. Thompson, the pastor will return from Washington, Pa., in time to attend the meeting Thursday evening. He reports that the assembly is one of the best he has ever attended.

—New York is said to be facing a water famine, but they'll never know the difference on the Great White Way.

QUINCY Y. C. OPEN SEASON

Ten Boats Enter in First Race of the Season

The Quincy Yacht club opened its racing season Saturday with a race off the club house at Houghs Neck for cat boats and dories.

There was a light easterly breeze but owing to the low tide the race was started from off Pig Rocks. The course for the cat boat class was twice around a triangular course to Bumkin island, to Peddocks island and home. The course for the dories was once over a corner from the starting point to Jackknife ledge buoy and return.

Both classes got away at the same time all being well bunched. The Mudjekeewis with a new sail soon set the pace for the fleet and held the lead throughout the race finishing with a lead of nearly three minutes. In the dory class, the Anemone won by nearly two minutes. The summary:

SPORTING NOTES.

The Whitwell A. C. defeated the Whitwell Stars on Saturday by a score of 13 to 3. Good catching by Byrn and Asklund, good pitching by Arbuckle and hitting by Norris were features. In the fifth inning the Whitwell A. C. had a batting rally scouring eight runs.

Without doubt the Adams A. A. and the Manet Social Club game on Tuesday will be the most interesting and hardest fought of the day. These two clubs have been bitter rivals since the season began, both clubs claiming to be the superior.

When we look over the lineup of the Manets it looks as if they had it on Adams. Canavan and Kerr pitchers, Pinel, Bennett, O'Brien, Artis, Conway, Smith and Gilbert for the outfield. Their infield is one of the best.

Caine will greatly strengthen Adams at third. Fitzgerald is not so slow either. Barry is due to play a good game on the receiving end while at short and first thye are pretty strong.

It is not known for sure who will do the twirling, some say Knight and others Grethe, both are good; although Knight has it a shade on Grethe.

Anyway the results of the game will be looked forward to --the odds on the game seem to be on Adams.

A good day and we will see "some" ball game.

Nine men have entered the contest for the quarter mile championship of the Y. M. C. A. which is to take place tomorrow morning at 9.30 sharp. Mr. LaRose says that if only one man shows up on time he will be allowed to go over the course alone and get the prize.

Sid Patterson will pitch for the Quincys in the morning game against the Montello A. A.

Bobbie Mitchell formerly of Danvers is playing shortstop on the Milford, N. H. town team and will pitch the big game tomorrow.

The battery for the Bigelows in tomorrow's game will be Saunders and Bill Avery.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates were defeated at Melrose on Saturday by a score of 26 to 9. When the Melrose team came to Quincy the home team administered a defeat of similar proportions. It was not the same lineup in the game last Saturday however and that accounts for the reverse.

The South Quincy club defeated the Clapp Memorial team on Saturday by a score of 12 to 0.

The Orients defeated the Fairview A. C. of Somerville at the Ward Three playgrounds on Saturday by a score of 16 to 2. Bradley and O'Brien was the battery for the Orients.

BOTH QUINCY TEAMS LOSE

Makaria and Atlantic Both Lose Saturday

Makaria lost another exciting game Saturday afternoon on a garrison finish by the Malden Athletics. The latter had a rally in the first of the ninth scoring 5 runs and then shut out the home team. Errors were largely responsible for the defeat for three errors combined with the hits gave the visitors their runs. Penley was in the box for Makaria and gave a good account of himself.

Eggleton and Penley led in hitting getting two apiece. Manning's one hit was a two bagger and Ganzel's a three bagger. The home team had the visitors guessing during the greater part of the game but the slump in the ninth brought about a repetition of last week's game.

For Malden Thompson and Kelley were the star batsmen and Elberle was good in fielding.

The score by inings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Malden	1	3	0	1	0	0	0	0	5—10

ATLANTIC LOSES.

The Atlantic team was defeated on Saturday by Hyde Park in the opening game of the season with a score of 5 to 3. Hawkins, pitcher for Hyde Park allowed but one hit which was made by Flynn, while O'Neil was touched up for nine hits. The latter had 13 strikeouts however while Hawkins got only five. The game was fast and well played and Manager Keohane should see his team through a successful season and give the local fans some good ball playing.

The summary:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Hyde Park	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	3	0— 5
Atlantic Pro	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0— 2

Runs made by Carroll, Mower, Hunter, McTierney, Margeson, Fallon, Flynn. Two base hits, Margerson, McTierney. Stolen bases, Flynn 2, Lyons, Hunter, Carroll, McTierney. Base on balls by Hawkins, by O'Niel. Struck out by Hawkins 5, by O'Neil 13. Sacrifice hits, Carroll, Lyons, Flynn. Double plays, Lawrence and Lyons. Umpire, Mulcahy. Time 1 h 30m.

SOUTH QUINCY--CAMBRIDGE.

South Quincy shut out Cambridge at Cambridge Saturday winning by a score of 3 to 0. Knight in the box pitched a no-hit, no-runs game for South Quincy allowing only one man to rush first. The score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

MANET—APPRENTICES.

Fore River lost the second game to the Manet Social lub on Saturday by the score of 11-5 in a game which was featured by the remarkable fielding of the Manets, which kept Fore River to their bases.

Fore River hit the ball harder but couldn't reach the plate Duggan played one of the best games in his career and kept Fore River in dread of his accurate throwing.

The heavy hitters of the game were Gilbert and Boyle each getting a triple. Duggan, Howley and Oliver connected for dobles. Williamson got the freak hit of the game in shape of home run, which went into a store door.

The Fore River infield was rather unsteady in tight places and coupled with Williamson's inability to find the plate made it rocky.

Kerr had fine control and was always sure with men on bases and striking out 9.

Howley and McCarty covered yards of ground getting all balls that came their way and making a neat double play.

Boyle showed some grit when he continued the game when he had his finger split by thrown ball in the 7th inning.

Outside of Boyle, Wilkins and Oliver played best on the infield. Costello was there on the fly balls.

Artis made his first appearance with the Manets in the outfield and behind the bat in the 9th; also doing well at the bat.

Harold Gilbert a newcomer batted for Conway in the 6th and hit the ball out in right field forthree bases.

QUINCY VS. MAKARIA.

On the afternoon of the 30th Quincy will play the Makaria and Manager Shea has decided to hold his best team in order to have revenge for the defeat which Makaria administered on April 19th. He will pitch Glaze, the best pitcher in the Old Colony League last year, and expects to give Makaria a trimming. Nevertheless the Makaria team will put up a strong lineup and have secured the services of "Jimmy" Michael, whose ability is well known to all the Quincy fans, to do the twirling.

The game will start at 3.30 at the Water Street grounds.

As an attraction for May 30th A. M. the newly organized Quincy Professionals will play the Makaria at the park. This team is made up of Quincy men and will have in their lineup such sterling players as "Jim" Elcock, Frank Hoyt, who has been playing with Lynn up to the present time, and Frank Flynn who was kept out of a regular berth with the Lawrence team by a sprained ankle.

Makaria will have their regular team and will have "Rice" the High school twirler to do the twirling. The game is at 10 o'clock A. M.

THE MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE IN QUINCY

Company of Regulars and Marines Take Part in Afternoon Parade

Impressive Service at Soldiers Monument and at Grave of Lieut. Bumpus

In accordance with its time honored custom, yet with ranks yearly growing thinner, the Grand Army devoted Tuesday to the sacred duty of decorating the graves of those comrades who have answered the last roll call on earth and have been mustered into that Grand Army above. The day dawned bright and clear yet early in the morning the sky became overcast so that while the air was somewhat oppressive the heat was tempered. With this was a light northeasterly breeze, so that unless rain interfered the day was an ideal one for the veterans to march in.

That the ranks of the post are rapidly growing thinner was clearly evident as was the fact that it will be but a few years more when the duty of Memorial Day will be devolved upon the Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans and they can be depended upon to see that the graves of the comrades of those stirring times of 61 are not forgotten.

Time has dealt kindly with the post during the past year, although they have lost four members by death.

Thomas Magee, Co. M. 1st Mass. H. A.

James B. Prouty, Co. E. 32d, Mass.

W. H. H. Willet, Co. B. 60th Mass.

John W. Moore, Co., M. 1st Mass. H. A

The Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans have lost no members by death during the year.

The post assembled at headquarters at 7 o'clock in full uniform and details were immediately dispatched to Mt. Wollaston, the Hancock and English cemeteries where the graves of comrades who lie buried there were decorated. A detail with the chaplain of the day also visited the National Sailors Home where appropriate services were held and the graves of the sailors decorated.

A detail also visited the grave of Col. Paul J. Revere and Comrade Samuel W. Spear at Mt. Auburn and decorated their graves.

At 9.45 the command formed in front of headquarters preparatory to visiting the Hall and Catholic cemeteries at West Quincy. The command moved in the following order to the junction of School and Franklin streets where barges were taken for West Quincy.

Quincy Fife and Drum Corps
Spanish War Veterans
Sons of Veterans
Letter Carriers Band
Grand Army

Alighting at the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets a short march was taken to the Hall Cemetery where after decorating the graves they formed about the Solomon Willard monument where services were held.

They then proceeded to St. Mary's cemetery where the graves were decorated and services conducted by Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church.

This year instead of two services at St. Mary's cemetery the Grand Army and Spansh War Veterans held a combined service. This included brief addresses by Rev. Henry T. Grady, Rev. Neil Paul Brennan, recently chaplain in the regular army and Mayor William T. Shea.

A delegation also visited the grave of John A. Boyd, for whom the camp of Spanish War Veterans was named and deposited a wreath. The exercises closed by taps by the buglar and three volleys by the color guard of the Grand Army.

The duty at West Quincy over the commands marched to the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets where the barges were taken for Faxon hall where lunch was served.

COL. PACKARD'S GRAVE.

At 1.30 the Sons of Veterans visited the Hancock cemetery and held a short service at the grave of Col. Abner B. Packard. These exercises included a brief address by Comrade Henry Chubbuck of Post 88 and prayer by Parker Souther chaplain of the Sons of Veterans.

AFTERNOON.

The parade of the day came in the afternoon. The command formed at 2.30 for a visit to Mt. Wolaston cemetery. It was one of the best parades held for years, as aside from the Grand Army, Spanish War veterans and Sons of Veterans it included a detachment from the 170th regiment of Coast artillery from Fort Strong, a company of the naval marines, Army of Philippine, Boy scouts and British veterans association. The order of the parade was as follows:

Detail of Police
Chief Frank E. Burrell
British Veterans Association
Lieut. Col. Thomas T. Stoke, Commanding
Quincy Fife and Drum Corps
Squad from Coast Artillery
Sergt. Kurtz, commanding
Naval brigade, M. V. M.
Ensign Howard Shaw, Commanding
John A. Boyd, camp S. W. V., Bumpus Camp Army of Philippines,
Walter F. Carman, commanding
Napoleon White commanding
Col. A. B. Packard, Camp S. of V.
Harry E. D. Gould, commanding
Atlantic Signal Corps
Lieut. Stocker, commanding
Officer of Day, Warren Dunbar
Letter Carriers Band
Paul Revere Post 88 G. A. R.
Thomas King, commanding
Barge of disabled veterans
Carriages containing Mayor W. T. Shea, Charles H. Johnson, Rev. R. E. Armstrong
Comrade James H. Webb
Assessors W. W. Adams, City Treasurer John Curtis, Comrade Andrew W. Gardner

Judge E. C. Bumpus, marched with Bumpus camp Army of the Philippines, the camp being named for his son Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus of the 9th U. S. Inf., who was killed at Samar in Sept. 1901.

The route of the parade was via Hancock, Coddington and Sea streets to the main entrance of the cemetery. Here the commands halted and came to attention while the Grand Army marched past.

At the entrance to the cemetery the veterans were met by the Women's Relief corps and ladies aid societies of the Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans.

Entering the main gate they marched to the Soldiers monument about which they formed. The exercises here opened with a prayer by the chaplain of the day. Rev. Richard E. Armstrong. Short address by Commander Ring of the Grand Army, Memorial address by Mayor William T. Shea. Short address by the chaplain. Depositing the red, white and blue wreaths, in the name of Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty by the Grand Army. The red, white and blue wreath by the Women's Relief corps and the star by the Spanish War Veterans.

Reading of Lincolns address at Gettysburg by Comrade Edward Lennon, taps by the buglers and three volleys by the firing squad.

Mayor Shea in his address spoke as follows:

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic: Once more we are assembled to pay our tributes of love and respect to the brave men, living and dead, who offered their lives in order that this grand, old flag might continue to wave over a united country in which ALL men could be free.

It is fitting and right on occasions like these that the Mayor of the city should join with you in observing this day made sacred by the blood of so many thousands of our fellow citizens; it is right that he should come here and bring with him the official appreciation of the citizens of Quincy. In the capacity of chief executive of the city I want to assure you men who went through that terrific conflict from 61 to 65 that the people of Quincy appreciate the sacrifices you made and are only too eager to extend to you their appreciative thanks and best wishes.

The observance of Memorial Day this year seems to have a special significance. It is just 50 years ago that the great civil war began. To those who belong to a generation born since that war began, there is coming this year a newer significance of what that war meant than it is possible to get out of the ordinary histories. Each day the newspapers are filled with despatches from the front, reprinted from the papers of 50 years ago, telling of the scenes and incidents pertaining to that awful struggle in a way so graphic that even the children of today can get some idea of the terrible sacrifices that you, and the sacred dead who sleep here, were obliged to make.

In our local papers there have appeared letters from the front written by our own Quincy boys who left home and family and all that life held dear in order that the flag might not go down in dishonor and that the republic might live, united, firm, ONE of many, as the seal of the republic reads and as the fathers of the constitution intended.

What an inspiration for those of the

BRIEFS

Mrs. Mae Flowers of Newcomb place is enjoying a two weeks' visit to Newport, R. I.

The Firemen's Relief association placed new markers in the shape of a firemen's badge on the grave of departed members.

Mayor Shea will be one of the guests of the Botson Letter Carriers' association tonight at Mechanics hall at their annual reunion.

A memorial mass for departed members of the M. C. O. F. was celebrated at St. John's church at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Paul Brennan.

Many former residents were in town Memorial day coming to decorate graves of departed relatives in the several cemeteries of the city.

Never has there been a larger display of American flags on private residences than on Memorial day. It seemed as though nearly every house had a flag out.

As an indication of how orderly things were in Quincy Memorial day it is only necessary to say that the police patrol wagon was called out but once during the day and evening. That time it was to take care of a drunk.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

One editor has not only come to a realizing sense that living is higher and that prices in his business have not advanced in proportion to cost, but he comes out frankly and says so. Fred H. Miller of Hingham announced in last week's issue of the Journal that on and after June 1st prices for printing and for advertising, will be advanced from 25 per cent to 33 1-3 per cent according to the nature of the work and the nature of the advertising, or where position is required or maintained.

PASSED ANOTHER MILESTONE.

Carl J. Johnson the well-known foreman for R. E. Foy passed another milestone Memorial day. He was much surprised and delighted when upon entering the house to be greeted with the merry laughter and shouts of nephews and nieces, (of which he has got quite a number) and the hearty congratulations and well wishes of his mother, sisters, and other friends, who made a happy party. Carl was the recipient of many handsome presents, one of which was received from his brother Fred, now located in Eureka, Utah. During the festivities refreshments were served including ice cream, cake and coffee.

TWO SAVED.

Prompt work on the part of Andrew Peterson saved two men from a watery grave at Squantum Monday afternoon. Charles Humphery and another young man were out in a sailing dory when a sudden puff of wind capsized them. The dory immediately sank and the two men started to swim toward the shore half a mile away. Mr. Peterson saw the dory capsize and immediately put out in a row boat reaching the two men at a time when they were nearly exhausted.

Mr. Peterson has quite a reputation as a life saver having rescued ten lives before the rescue of Monday and has several medals from the humane society in recognition of his work.

Red Eyelids---
A Result of Eyestrain

Red, irritated or swollen eyelids are usually caused by some form of eyestrain.

Astigmatism of the eyes is the most freque cause.

Persons having astigmatism can usually see well—do not realize that there is any imperfection in the eye. (The strain is there constantly!)

Our system of examination of the eyes demonstrates clearly as to whether you have eyestrain, and our scientifically fitted glasses will correct it!

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

Severe Hill Climbing Test For New Auto Chemical

Quincy's new automobile chemical engine arrived in town Monday and during the afternoon was given a try out in the presence of a large number of officials, from other cities and towns who included Chief Mullen of Boston, Mayor J. E. Barry, Edward A. Counuhan, Mayor's clerk and Timothy J. O'Hern chief electrician of Cambridge, Chief Fred Boyden, George E. Sandborn, Dr. T. F. Carroll and Fred E. Colburn of Norwood, Chief Ernest H. Wilkes and assistant Chief H. A. McKeen of Abington, and Charles T. Daly representing the Mayor of Medford.

On arrival in Quincy the engine was taken to the central station and from there to City Square, ex-Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, who introduced the order in the City Council last year to buy the engine, having the honor of driving it to City Square.

After affording time for in inspection of the engine parties with Mayor Shea and Chief Williams were taken aboard for a test of the engine's powers in hill climbing. Some of the worst hills to be found in the state are in Wollaston and here the hill climbing test was given.

No engine was ever put to a harder test than that given the new chemical Monday afternoon and she met every requirement.

Chief Williams and the visiting officials expressed themselves as very much pleased with the exhibition. Chief Williams said that the engine would be put into commission as soon as turned over to the city.

Jack and Jill went up the hill to get a pail of water,
For Jill to wash her Dolly's clothes, as Anty Drudge had taught her,
"Rub with Fels-Naptha soap and put them in,
They'll be as white and as clean as a new pin."

What time on washday do you get through with your washing?

Ten o'clock, noon, three o'clock or night?

If you do it the old-fashioned, boiling, hot water, hard rubbing way, you're lucky to get it done by sundown.

If you wash the Fels-Naptha way in cool or lukewarm water without boiling or hard rubbing, you can be done well before noon and take it easy all the time.

And your clothes will be cleaner, fresher, sweeter than ever before.

Fels-Naptha Soap is a great time-saver. In Winter and Summer.

A half-day every washday means twenty six days a year saved by washing with Fels-Naptha Soap.

Isn't that worth while in addition to the saving on clothes, fuel, health and labor?

Time is money.

Use Fels-Naptha Soap every washday and save it.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

MEMORIAL DAY

present day generation to read these despatches and letters and learn from them the lessons of patriotism, that kind of patriotism that is willing to sacrifice life for one's country. What an inspiration to read of the response made by Quincy men when President Abraham Lincoln called for volunteers after impious hands had hauled down the flag from above the ramparts of Fort Sumpter What an inspiration to read there of Co. H of the old 4th regiment, assembling almost at a moment's notice and marching off to the south under their gallant leader, our own Col. Abner B. Packard! What an inspiration to read the letters sent home from the front by our Quincy soldier boys. Each letter breathes the air of true patriotism. Each man says he is willing to fight for the flag until life is gone. Especially significant is the last letter sent home by one Quincy boy so soon to fall in battle, the first Union soldier to fall in battle, Francis L. Souther, who writes he will be home in the fall, God willing, but is ready to die for his country if Almighty God should will it that way. And here in this peaceful cemetery they laid him down and today above his grave are placed the flowers of his fellow soldiers, a remembrance and an assurance alike, that the soldiers who dies for his country does not die in the hearts of his countrymen and that if the future should threaten the life of the republic, there will be others to take his place in the ranks.

Men of the Grand Army. This day is a solemn one, it is an inspiring one. Of all the countries of the world whose soldiers have helped to transplant empires across the seas away from home, none, save ours, remembers the men who fought for them. God grant that we shall never forget the citizen-soldier because the country is worthy of his sacrifices and his deeds and the soldier is worthy of the best this country can provide. I want to say to you, in closing, that I believe public sentiment in Quincy is about to find expression by means of a suitable memorial building where you can go and come as you wish and enjoy, in some slight degree, the comforts to which you are so greatly entitled by your sacrifices of 50 years ago. God grant that this country of ours may never again be forced into a war. There is no man who will say this more fervently that the one who has fought in battle like you have. The first words that Gen. Grant uttered on meeting the leader of the Confederate Army was: "Let us have peace." God grant it may abide with us honorably and forever.

At the conclusion of these exercises the Women's Relief corps, and Grand Army proceeded to the Grand Army lot, for the unknown, where exercises were held by the Women's Relief corps which also concluded with three volleys by the firing squad.

While these services were in progress exercises were being held by Camp Bumpus, Army of the Philippines, and the Spanish War veterans at the grave of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus. These services were of an interesting nature and included an address by Charles H. Johnson, who made a strong appeal to the citizens to provide a memorial for the Grand Army. A brief address by Judge Bumpus and remarks by Commander White of the Camp Bumpus, who served under Lieut. Bumpus in the Philippines. The services were closed with taps by the bugler and three volleys by the company of Coast Artillery.

Both the services of the Woman's Relief corps and at the grave of Lieut. Bumpus were completed at the same time and the two bodies joined again at the entrance to the cemetery.

Here the line was again formed and a march taken to headquarters on Hancock street where they were dismissed.

A RELIC OF 1861.

Past Commander Isaac M. Holt of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., displayed quite a relic of the Civil war in the shape of a twelve-foot flag from his flag staff on Cottage street. This flag was owned by his father Albert Holt fifty years ago. These old colors did service by being wrapped around around the casket of Francis L. Souther of Company H 4th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, who was the first soldier killed in the Civil war from Quincy and similar service for many whose bodies were sent home later. It has often been used by Undertaker John Hall. Comrade Holt proposes to display it to the breeze on Flag day, June 14th, if weather permits. The flag has 34 stars and is in good condition.

THE SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

Editors Ledger:

Lot owners in Mt. Wollaston cemetery near the Soldiers' monument should get together and start a vigorous campaign in favor of moving the monument to a suitable place, the desecration, the abuse and misuse of the lots, Memorial day by the rabble which always follows music, makes it most emphatic that the Soldiers' monument be moved to a place where lot owners who take pride in keeping their lots looking decent, some of whom have had them placed under "perpetual care" system or that the exercises be held in a public hall, after the graves had been quietly decorated in the morning by a delegation of the G. A. R. men.

Lot Owner.

FLAG RAISING.

A public flag raising took place on the Ward 3 playground, Tuesday morning at 8.30 when the new flag bought by popular subscription was raised on the pole presented by the park commissioners Councilman Bolster who was chiefly instrumental in getting the flag, introduced Chairman Gill of the Park Commissioners who gave a short address in accepting the flag in behalf of the city. The flag was raised by Councilman Bolster and was then brought to half mast out of respect to the day.

BASE BALL AND OTHER SPORTS

Results of the Many Holiday Sporting Events

WINS BOTH GAMES.

The Quincy baseball team opened its season very successfully on the holiday winning both games quite handily. In the morning, Patterson pitched against the Montello team and gave a very good account of himself. The first ball was pitched by Edward Histen, who represented Mayor Shea. The Old Colony league pennant was raised on the temporary flag pole amid cheers and flourishes by the band.

Quincy won the game by a score of 6 to 4 administering the first defeat to the visiting team which was playing its seventh game. Briggs was back in his old position at first and played in his usual form. One of the features of the game was his base stealing. He stole third twice of "Bob" Lefavour who is better known as a boxer among the followers of sports. "Artie" Dunn proved himself a good "come-back" both in the field and at the bat.

"Arbie" Dam gave a good account of himself as did also "Bill' Duggan who was in his old position at left field. Patterson was at all times master of the situation and was in better form than ever before.

In the afternoon game against Makaria, Glaze was in the box for the Quincys and he had the opposing batsmen at his mercy winning 6 to 0. The lineup was a little different from the one which faced the Montello team. Fitzgerald was still behind the bat and Briggs was on first but Shaw took Fallon's place on second and Fallon took Daly's place at third. Nowell was in right field and Duggan and Dan covered left and centre respectively.

"Artie" Dunn was still in his position at short-stop and covered it well. Duggan played a strong game in the field as did Dam also. Shaw showed up well at second. "Johnny" Glaze was the big gun however and he mainatined his position as idol of the fans.

Penley pitched for Makaria and was effective at times. "Bootus" Chapman gave a good account of himself behind the bat and taught a number of the men who tried to steal early in the game, a valuable lesson. The Makaria batsmen found Glaze a puzzle and Penley was touched up for hits quite frequently. The Quincys found their revenge sweet for the defeat received earlier in the season.

MANET—ADAMS.

Manet Baseball club won a game at Ward 3 Tuesday by the score of 6 to 5, featured by McCarthy's and Gillis's sensational playing. Up to the 6th Canavan had Adams eating out of his hand until a pass, a single and a double by Grethe, gave them two. In the 8th they got one more on a hit and a bad throw by O'Brien. With two out in the 9th Barry singled, Desmond doubled and Caine did the same trying to stretch it into a home run when the ball got away from Kerr, but was out on a relay. Manet got 4 in the first by bunching hits, one being a home run by O'Brien. In the 7th and 9th they got two more by bunching hits. Howley, Creswell and Duggan played one of the fastest infield games seen at Ward 3 for some time. The summary:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Manet	4	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	— 6
Adams	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	2	— 5

Runs— Howley, Artis, Smith, O'Brien 2, Creswell, Barry, Desmond 2, Mulligan, O'Rourke. Two-base hits — Gillis, Creswell Canavan, Caine, O'Rourke, Desmond. Home runs—O'Brien. Sacrifice hits—Allen, Caine. Struck out—byGrethe 13, Canavan 5. Basses on balls—by Grethe 1, Canavan 2. Umpire Duffy. Time 2.45.

APPRENTICES WIN.

The Fore River Apprentices defeated the Neponset Warrens on Merrymount park Tuesday afternoon by a score of 14 to 5. The home team got 16 hits two of which were home runs by Oliver and Wilkins. Devine starred for the Warrens.

The score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Appren.	5	0	3	1	2	1	1	1	0	—14
Warrens	2	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	— 5

Batteries: Ackers and Williamson, Boyle, Lundin and Dolan.

ORIENTS—TEMPLE CLASS.

The Orients were defeated by the Temple class of Dorchester at Franklin field, yesterday morning by a score of 3 to 2 in a 13 inning game. McDonald who pitched for the Orients struck out 16 men, allowed seven hits and passed one man. Godfrey, the opposing pitcher, allowed three hits, gave two bases and got 17 strikeouts.

INTERMEDIATES WIN.

The Y. M. C. A. Intermediates defeated the Narragansetts of Wollaston yesterday morning by a score of 10 to 2. Tirrell pitched a fine game for the Y. M. C. A. team holding his opponents to two hits.

Chapman and Harkins was the battery for the Narragansetts and Holmes was Tirrell's backstop.

LOBSTER TOURNAMENT.

The official opening of the Quincy Tennis club took place yesterday when the annual lobster tournament took place. All previous winners were barred from play. At the morning game, Mrs. James H. Slade and Miss Irene Hibbard were the hostesses and in the afternoon Miss Maud McFarlane and Miss Dorothy Edwards.

The final games will be played Saturday afternoon.

The time was very good, 50 3-5 sec.

440 yards run won by Trask, Tirrell, second, Wood third, Avery, fourth. Time 50 3-5 sec.

UNRIGHTEOUS PEACE

Roosevelt Declares It to Be a Greater Evil Than War

New York, May 31.—Theodore Roosevelt stood beside General Sickles, the only surviving division commander of the Civil war, at Grant's tomb yesterday afternoon and aroused a Memorial day throng to long applause by a denunciation of "false apostles of peace."

He recalled the days of 1861, when, he said, the veterans he addressed defied the lie told in the name of peace, He voiced his faith in peace only as the handmaiden of justice, and with vigorous gestures he stirred the gathering to tumultuous cheers with the declaration that unrighteous peace was a greater evil than war.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Atlantics defeated the South Quincy A. A. at the Ward 6 playgrounds Tuesday afternoon by a score of 13 to 5.

St. Johns A. A. defeated the Danforths of Jamaica Plain on the holiday by a score of 9 to 6.

Adams A. A. defeated the Mt. Hope team of Cambridge on the morning of the holiday by a score of 16 to 2. The game was called in the 8th inning in order to enable the Quincy team to get home in time for the afternoon game.

The testimonial dance for William Murray given by the Adams A. A. Monday evening was a great success in every respect. The hall was more than well filled with couples and it is said that only a little over half of those who bought tickets attended. A sum of $150 was cleared and it has been turned over to Mr. Murray. Dr. McLennon had charge of the arrangements with the assistance of nine members of the club.

In the Grammar school league Adams was defeated by Cranch 27 to 1 on Monday and Massachusetts Fields won from Wollaston 15 to 7. John Hancock plays Lincoln and Gridley Bryant meets Quincy school today and the final game in the league will take place Thursday afternoon between Massachusetts Fields and Willard. The game will be played in the upper field at Merrymount park beginning at 4 o'clock.

The Bates brothers and Troupe went to Norwell yesterday to start playing with the baseball team representing that town.

Knights and Rogers have gone to Westville, N. S. to play baseball during the summer season.

The Rail Reds defeated the Colonials on the Ward 4 playground on the holiday by a score of 9 to 4.

The Bigelows of Quincy Point lost to the Glover A. C. of Atlantic at the Ward 6 playgrounds Tuesday morning 8 to 5.

A meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. this evening for the purpose of organizing a Senior Baseball team.

South Quincy A. A. defeated Roslindale on the morning of the holiday at Ward 3 playgrounds by a score of 12 to 7.

F. OF A. SOCIAL

The officers of the three Courts of Foresters of America in this city held a social at the Willard Associates hall, West Quincy, on Monday night.

The purpose of the gathering was to congratulate Past Chief Ranger James O'Dowd of Court Roger Wolcott on his election as delegate to the Supreme Court Convention to be held in Detroit, Mich., in August of this year.

The motion made by the Quincy Courts at the Grand Court Convention in Haverhill, in 1910 "that affliation with Grand Court Funeral Fund be not compulsory" was carried four to one; so that the Foresters of Quincy are congratulating the delegates from Quincy to the Grand Conventions of 1910 and 1911 for the excellent work performed in getting the desired result.

There was an informal talk about participating in the "Fourth of July Parade" and the general opinion was to the effect that the Foresters will not parade this year.

A good deal of effort was put into the matter last year and the speakers commented on the fact that the Foresters were practically the only fraternal organization that paraded.

The Weather

Forecast for New England: Probably local showers; light, variable winds, mostly east.

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucepans, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

Dealers everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

DEAN OF HIGH SCHOOL MASTERS.

The resignation of George L. Baxter, probably the dean of high school masters in New England in point of service, headmaster of the Latin high school in Somerville, was read at Monday night's meeting of the school committee, to take effect June 23. His service will then have covered 44 years.

Mr. Baxter became principal in July 1867. The high school building was then what is the city hall now and Mr. Baxter taught a class in the room now used as the aldermanic chamber, where school committee sat Monday evening. His 44 graduating classes comprise close upon 3,000 pupils. Many of them are now distinguished in the state and nation.

He was born in Quincy Oct. 21, 1842, the family home being on Franklin street in the south part of the town not far from the birthplaces of Presidents Adams. He graduated from Harvard in 1863. His first public school teaching was in the Reading high, where he was principal nine months. For the next three years he was principal of the high school at Plymouth and then became principal of the Somerville high.

—Possibly on days when there are no ball games and sometime during the summer, the Senate will begin to debate the reciprocity treaty.
